Contention betwirt the Slocefter.

Che lords come to the parlement established. It was not long after the finishing of this parle ment, but that Arife and variance began to kindle 60 betweene the king and the earles of Leicester and Gloceffer, by reason of such officers as the said earles had removed, and put others in their romes: as mong the which John Panfell was discharged of his office, and fir Hugh Bigod, brother to earle Marshall, admitted in his rome. Also bicause the forefaid governours had knowledge that the king minbed not to performe the ordinances established at Drford, they thought to make their part as ffrong as was possible for them to do, and therefore opon the morrow after the feast of Parie Pagdalene, the king as then being at Westminster, the earle Parhave their oz Mall, the earle of Leicetter, and diverse other came to dinances ron- the Guildhall of London, where the majo; and ale bermen, with the commons of the citic were afternbled, and there the losos thewed the instrument of writing sealed with the kings seale, and with the feales of his sonne prince Coward, and of mante o ther loads of the land, containing the articles of those ordinances which has beine concluded at Drford, willing the maioz and albermen to fet also therebri to their common feale of the citie. The maioz and als dermen upon aduile amongst them taken, required respit till they might know the kings pleasure there in, but the loads were so earnest in the matter, and made such instance, that no respit could be had: so that in the end the common feale of the citie was put to that writing, and the major with diverse of the citie swoone to mainteine the same, their allegiance faued to the king, with their liberties and franchifes, according to the accustomed manner.

Apon the ninth day of August, proclamation was Appoclama= made in diverse places of the citie, that none of the tion against kings takers thould take any thing within the citie, purveiers. without the will of the owner, except two tunnes of wine, with the king accusiomablie had of cuerie hip comming from Burdeaux, pateng but 40 thile lings for the tun. By meanes of this proclamation, nothing was taken by the kings officers within the citie and liberties of the same, except readie paiment were made in hand, which vie continued not long. Herebpon the king held a parlement at Wellmin: A parlement Her, and another at Winchester, ozelle prozoged and removed the same thither. Also sir Hugh Bigod load thefe inflice, with Koger Auckley, and other called Itinerarij, kept the terme for ples at faint Saul The inffices ours: for you must understand, that in those dates sit at & Se they were kept in diverte places of the realme, which wours. now are holden altogither at Westminster, and tube ges ordeined to keepe a circuit, as now they keepe the alliles in time of vacation. The forelate judges lite Bailiffes and ting on that maner at faint Saulours, punished bale other officers liffes, and other officers verie extremelie, which were punished. convict afore them for diverle trespattes, and special lie for taking of merciaments otherwise than law gave them. After this, the same sir Hugh came buto the Buildhall, and there fat in judgement, and kept micheb. plæs without order of law; yea contrarie to the libertics of the citie, he punished bakers for lacke of true lize, by the tumbzell; where before they were punished by the pillozie, a manie other things he vied after fuch manner, more by will than good order of law.

There was a benite railed (whether of truth 02 0, Matth. Paris. therwise we leave to the credit of the authors) that The Poince the Postauins had practiled to poison the most part thing suffered to have poison the English nobilitie. Indeed divers of them were some of the English nobilitie. græuoullie tomented with a certeine difease of hilh lords. fuelling and breaking out, some died, and othersome berie hardlie escaped, of which number the earle of Glocester was one, who late sicke a long time at Sunning a place belides Reading. At length he recoucred: but his brother William died of the same discase, and upon his death-bed laid the fault to one Walter Scotenie, as the occasioner of his death. which afterwards cost the faid Walter his life. Foz although he was one of the cheefe councelloss, and steward also to the said earle of Glocester, pet being had in suspicion, and ther boon apprehended and thar ged with that crime, when in the yeare next following in June he came to be arreigned at Windhe walter Scofer, and put himselfe to be trico by a furie, the same ned and cous pronounced him guiltie: and when those that were domned. impanneled byon that jurie were asked by the judges how they understoo that he Monlo be giltic, they answered, bicause that where the said Walter was mover indebted, that they could heare of, either to William de Malence, oz to any of his brethren, they were fullie certified that he had late received no

C c.tj.

Bakers pus

tonie arreiga

fmall fum of monie of the faid Tal. de Halence to polfon both his maifter and other of the English nobilitie as was to be thought, fith there was no other apparant cause why he thould receive such a gift at the hands of their entinie the faid William de Walence, and so was the said Walter executed at Winches ffer aforefaid.

The harwest was verielate this yeare, so that the most part of the come rotted on the ground, and that

De luffereth. 3 late haruelt

Dearth of Aorne increa-

Falts & procellions bled.

which at length was got in, remained yet absode till 10 after Alhallowentide, so untemperate was the wes ther, with excelline wer and raine beyond all meafure. Derevpon the dearth so increased, that even those which had of late relevued other, were in danger to Carue themsclues. Finallie solemne facts and generall processions were made in diverse places of the realme to appeale Gods weath, and (as it was thought) their plaiers were heard, for the weather partite amended, and by reason the same serued to of in the market fell halfe in halfe. A good and memo rable motive, that in such extremities as are above the reach of man to redrette, we thould by and by have recourse to him that can give a remedie a gainst everie casualtie. Foz

Flectituriratus voce rogante Deus. Richard Grap the chattellaine of Bouer loking

diligentlie unto his charge, twhe a thousand marks which the bishop of Wlinchester had sent thither to the popes Nuncio perceiuing the trouble that was like to infue within the realme would no longer tarie, but wifelie departed and got him home. Deremith certaine wife personages were sent to Kome on the part of the king and baranage, to informe the pope in that fate the realme flod, and to give him to brider stand how granoustic the people had bane handled by the practile of certaine Romane prelats promo-

Richard Grap lozd the posts.

Erlotus the popes Nuncia returneth boure.

Matth.Paris. The lord of Redwellie Caine. Matth.Paris.

ted in this land. This yeare nere to Carmardin Patrike of Chan 40 ton lood of Bedwelli, Hugh de Ainn, and diverse other both horlinen and fatinen were flaine through treason by the Melshmen : yet it thould appeare by Marchew Paris that the Englithmen procured this milchefe to light on their owne heads, through their distall dealing. For where they were come to the place to talke of an agreement, some of the marchers supposing they had beene to strong for the Wellhmen, persuaded the said load of Bedwellie to affaile them byon the sudden, in hope to have destroice them all: but in the end the Englishmen were difressed through the valiancie of Dauld one of the formes of the great Leolin and other capteines of the Wellth nation . Deuertheleffe Matthew Westminfter faith brieflie, that the English men were treafo nablie flaine: so that it seemen that Matthew Paris speaketh rather of an affection and good will which he bare to the Wielth proceedings in those dates, than otherwife.

Marth Paris not well affe= ded towards the governe: ment of the realme as it then from.

Godfrev de Minton arch: bishopef Can:

perceive that he had no good liking of the Cate in those daies, neither concerning the ecclevalicali noz temporall policie, in somuch that he sticketh not to commend the Welthmen greatlic for their holding togither, against the oppession (as he meaneth it) of the English government, and no doubt there was cause that moned him to such missiking, namelie the offen paiments and collections of monic by the popes agents, and other fuch milosders as dailie were permitted or rather mainteined to the impoue rithing of both effaces spirituall and tempozall.

Godfrey de Kinton was confectated archbishop of Canturburie at Rome, about the feast of Chills maile lair pair, and to returned from thence home to his cure. There was an ordinance made about this an ordinance time, for punithment to be had of the extortion of this against the riffes, to that aswell the receiver as the giver of bale toxtion. bes was punishable. Which law if it were now crecuted byon all officers toccupiers what locuer, there would not be formuch wealth and fubstance, so great riches and treasure raked by togither in the polletion of some few men, as the old lage fating importeth.

Quisquis ditatur rapidos miluos imitatur.

The bilhops of Worcester and Lincolne, with the Anno Regal carles of Porfolke and Leicester, were fent over in Indulty earles of Portolke and Leiteuer, were reine vice un amballage buto a councell holden at Cambrey, for a founcilla because the between league and peace to be concluded betweet the king Cambin doms of England and France, and also the empire: but bicause the French king loked to have the king of England there, when he heard that the fame king came not, he also stated at bonne, and so no conclusion followed at that affemblie.

Jone counteste of Penbroke, the twife of William Jone counget in some such come as was not lost, the price there 20 de Malence the kings halfe brother; demanded hir tesses place right of dower, in luch lands as belonged to har by to bloke. tle of inheritance. At length the had to the value of five hundred marks aftigned hir of the fame lands, notwithstanding hir heritage amounted to the fum of a thousand marks and about of pearelie reue nues, but for that the thoutomet aid hir hulband with part thereof, the one halfe was thought fufficient for hir maintenance. About Aduent next infuing, the went ouer buto hir hulband, either for the defire haus beene transported over into France. Orlotus 30 the had to into his personall presence, or for that the thought hirselfe not well dealt with, to be abstoged of those revenues, which by right of inheritance were hir owne. In the first night of December, there than a greaten ced a maruellous fore tempett of lightning and thun pull of light der, with mightie winds and raine, as a token and mag and figue of the troubles that after followed, the moze noted for that thunder in the winter leason is not commonlie heard of. Buy de Rochford a Polacouin, Guyde Rol to thom about two years before the king had given for bamba the castell of Rochester, was now banished the realme, and deprined of all that he held in this land. About this featon there role great variance amongst Clariance the scholers of Orford being of sundrie countries, as the finite Scotilhmen, Welthmen, Porthern men, and Seu Droph thern men: who fell to farre at Iquare, that they rate fed baners one against an other, and fought togisher, in somuch that directle were flaine, and manie burt on both parties. • The Welshmen this yeare, notwithstanding their god successe had in these late wars, confidered with themselnes, that if the barons of England bid once toine in one knot of freenothip, they would with maine force easilie subone them, The wellwherefore to preuent that which might chance buto men lake to them by Aubborne relitance, they made fuit to be re- agree with ceived into the kings peace, offering to give buto the king. him the fumme of foure thousand markes, and to his fonne the load Coward thee hundred marks, and to the quæne two hundred marks. Det the king would not accept those offers, and so the matter depended For tipo to marketh the course of his historie, thall 60 in doubtfull balance a certeine time. The Teleish men in the meane feafon attempted not any exploit, but rather fate Will in hope to come at length to some reasonable agræment. The monks of Minde fer meaning to proute themselues of a bilhop, now that Athelmare alias Doomare the kings halfe bio ther was banished the realme, elected one Henrie de Wingham the kings chancellos, in hope that the la. thende of windham would be contented with his election, and so he was, trace with

> About the feast of S. Hilarie, then knowledge was given that king Richard of Almaine meant to Amballadol returne into England, there were fent oner buto fent tothe & que place.

but pet conditionallie, that if the pope would allow of winchill his faid halfe brother for bishop, then should the other him of Alman.

Dis protelta:

nemand.

him the bilhop of Worceffer, the abbat of faint Co mundfburie, peter de Sauop, and John Panfell, as amballadours from the baronage and communaltie of the realme, to require of him an oth, to fand unto and obeic the ordinances of the late parlement holden at Drenford . When the faid amballabors came before his prefence, and declared to him the el fect of their message, he beheld them with a sterne loke, and frowning countenance, fateng (and bind. ing it with an oth) that he would neither be fwozne, 10 no beepe any fuch ordinances as had beene made without his confent; neither would be make them of counsell how long his purpose was to state within the realme, which the ambalfadours required also to understand. Perebuto he further added, that he had no pere in England, for he was the fonne of the deceased king, and brother of the king that now reigned, and also earle of Cornewall, and therefore if the barons of England ment to reforme the Cate of the kingdome, their duetie had beene first to haue fent 20 for him, and not to have proceeded to prefumptuoul. lie in (uch a weightie cause, without his presence or confent. When one of the amballabours was about to have made answer somewhat roundlie, and also niminglie buto this speech bittered by the king of Almaine, he was stated by one of his associats. And fo the amballabours buderstanding his mind, refurned with all convenient speed.

The king of Almaine had affembled a great fof of men on the further live the lea, meaning with all 30 erpedition to have palled hither into England ; but when he had advertisement given that there was a power railed in England, and bestowed both by fea and land to relift him, he changed his purpole by adulle of his freends, so that he consented to receive fuch manner of oth as the barons required, and here with taking the fea, he arrived at Douer on faint Julians date with his owne boulhold-feruants, brings ing with him no traine of Arangers, ercept onelie two earles of Almaine, which brought with them but 40 onelie the knights, and he himfelfe had but eight knights: his brother king Denrie was readie to receine him, and brought him from Douer onto Canturburie, for neither of them was fuffered to enter into the castell of Douer, the loads having them in a gelousse, least they should be about to breake the ordinances which were concluded. On the mozow alter, the king of Almaine received the oth in the prefence of Kichard earle of Glocester and others, with in the chapter house of Canturburie. And on the day 50 of the Parification of our ladie, the two kings with their quænes and a great number of moble persona. ges made their entrie and pallage into the citie of flatutes of Drivid.

an oth not to

De changeth

England.

I perlement.

In the octanes of the faio Purification, the parles ment began at London, to the which came the earle of Leicester from the parts of beyond the sea, where he had for a certeine time remained. There came also an amballadoz from the French king, one that was deane of Burges, and to there was an earnest treat 60 tie had touching a peace to be concluded betwirt the two kings of England and France, which on the day of faint Chalentine was accorded and put in articles, with condition that the same Gould remaine firme. and stable, if the kings would assent to that which had ancart Eng beene talked of and agreed upon by their special and folemine agents. For the further perfecting of this agreement and finall peace betweet the kings of England and France, about the beginning of Apzilli. the earls of Gloceffer and Lefceffer, John Panfell, Peter de Sauop, and Robert Walerane were fent ouer into France, having also with them letters of credence, to conclude in all matters as had beine tal. ked of by their agents. But when the countelle of Leicester would not consent to quite claime and re The counteste leafe hir right in fuch parcels of Pozmandie as be, of Lecceter. longed to hir , which king Henric had covenanted with the relione to religne buto the French king. The Contention earle of Glocefter fell at woods with the earle of Let betwirt the cester, about the stubboanc demeanor which his wife earles of Glothewed in that matter, and so by reason that either celler and of them flod at defiance with the other (although by Leicelter. meane of frænds they stated from further inconues nience)they returned backe without concluding any thing in that thereabout they were lent.

About the same time there was a certeine manfion house by waie of denotion given onto the friers prachers bethat are called preachers within the towne of Dun, gin to inhabit Stable, to that certeine of them thensting themselves at Dunstable. in there, began to inhabit in that place, to the great annotance of the pito; and convent of Dunftable, & as it were by the example of the other order called minors (which in the last preceeding yeare, at faint Comundiburie in Suffolke had practiled the like matter against the willes of the abbat and convent there)they began to build verie sumptuous houses, so that in the cies of the beholders such chargeable workes of building, to suddenlie advanced by them that professed voluntarie powertie, caused no small wonder. The faid friers building them a church with all speed, and setting op an altar, immediatlie began to celebrate divine fervice, not once ffaiena for the purchase of anie licence. And so building from day to day, they obteined great aid of fuch as inhabited nære buto them, of whome the prior and content ought to have received the revenues that were now converted to be imploied on the faid friers towards their maintenance. Thus by how much more their The monks house increased, by so much more did the prior and hindred by the convent decreate in substance and possessions: for the comming the rents which they were accussioned to receive of of the friers. the melluages and houles given to the friers , were lost, and like wife the offerings (which were wont to come to their hands) now these friers being newlie entred by occasion of their preachings, plurved to themfelues.

Kichard Braie confiable of the castell of Bouer, and lood warden of the cinque posts was this yeare Rithard remoued by the load cheefe inflice Hugh Bigod, tho Gray bischars twke into his owne hands the cultodie of the faid cas ged of his fell and posts. The cause whice the said Richard Graie warden. was discharged, we find to have fallen out by this walascho a means. De fuffered a frier minoz called Walaldio. frier fent from comming from the pope (bicause he had the kings the pope. letters bnoer the great feale) to enter the land, not flateng him, not warning the loods of his comming, contrarie(as it was interpreted) buto the articles of their providens enaced at Orenford. This frier inded was fent from the pope to have restored Athile marus oz Ddomarus (as some write him) the hings halfe brother, but o the polletions of the bilbourike of Winchester, to the which he had beene long before elected. But the loads were to bent against him, that bpon such suggestions as they laid forth, Walascho refrained from doing that which he had in commany dement, and returned to make report that he buder-And lo that Dogmarus was now as farre from his purpole as before.

About the fealt of faint Michaell, the bishop of Ehe bishop of Bango: was sent from Leolin prince of Wales on Bango: sent to the king of England, to make offer on the behalfe fro the prince of the laid Legimand other the loods of Wales, of ding denrit.
Article thousand pounds of filter for a peace to be the first withhad betwirt the king and them, and that they might men offer to come to Cheffer, and there have their matters heard refort buto and determined, as in time patt they had beene accu. Cheffer. Comco. But what answer at his returne was ginen to this billyop by the king and his nobles, it is oncer-

sat. I

Cc.iti.

A parlement.

The flatutes of Orenfoed read, and the breakers of the fame Denounced ac= curffed.

Elcuage granteb.

knights fors how manie were then in England.

Fabian. A folkemote.

Cheking al=

Matth. West. The king fat= leth ouer into France.

1260

Polydor. N.Triuet. Wil.Rifang.

Matt.VVeft,

Diffention be twirt punce Edward and the earle of Blocefter.

teine. In the fortie and fourth peare of king Benries Anno Reg. 44. reigne, the fridate following the feaft of Simon and Jude, in a parlement holden at Wellminffer, were read in presence of all the lords and commons, the ads and ordinances made in the parlement holden at Drenford with certeine other articles by the goucrnours therebato added and annered . After the reading whereof the archbishop of Canturburie being revelled with his luffragans to the number of nine bilhops, belides abbats and others, denounced . I all them accurated that attempted in wood or deed to breake the fair fatutes, or anie of them. In the fame parlement was granted to the king a take called Coutagium, oz elcuage, that is to fate, fortie thillings of everie knights fæ throughout England, the which ertended to a great fumme of monie. For as diverle writers do agree, there were in England at that time in possession of the spiritualtic and tempozaltie bes pond fortie thou fand knights fees, but almost halfe of them were in spirituall mens hancs.

Upon the firt day of Pouember the king came onto Paules, where by his commandement was the folkemote court affembled, and the king (according to the former ordinances made) alked licence of the acth icence to communaltie of the citie to palle the lea, and promis palle the leas. led there in the presence of a great multitude of peop ple, by the mouth of Hugh Bigod his chafe tuffice, to be god and gratious load buto the citie, and to mainteine the liberties thereof buhurt . Derewith the people for top made a great thout . The eight day 30 of Pourmber he rode through the citie towards the fea five, and upon the thirteenth daie of Douember, he toke the fea at Douer and arrived at Whitfand, and so from thence he rode buto Paris, where, of the French king he was most honorablie received. The cause of his going over was chefelie to conclude formeassured peace with the French king, that he thould not need to boubt any forren enimies, if he Chould come to have warre with his owne people, whereof he fair great likelihoos, and therefore he 40 the compoun: made such agræment with king Lewes (as in the bethall diffe-French historic more at large appeareth) which (to be the French k. Most) I here omit.

This one thing is here to be noted, that bestes the monie which king Henrie had in hand, amounting to the lumme of an hundred and fiftie thouland crownes for his relignation then made buto Pop mandie, Aniou and Paine, it was accorded, that he thould receive yearelie in name of a tribute the fum of ten thouland crownes. ADthers write that he had g the hundred thousand pounds of small Turon mo. nie, which he received in readie paiment, and was promifed restitution of lands to the value of twentie thousand pounds of yearelic rent: and that after the decease of the French king, that then was, the count trie of Poicon Could returne onto the English do: minion . Some write that immediatlie after king Penrie had concluded his agreement, he began to repent himselfe thereof, and would never receive of duke of Mozmandie. But it is rather to be thought that such an agrament was at point to have beine concluded, or at the leadinife was had in talke, but pet neuer concluded not confirmed with hands and feales, as it ought to have bene, if they had gone through with it.

In the means time that king Henrie was thus occupied in France, diffention fell in England betimene prince Edward and Richard carle of Bloces fler, for the appealing whereof a parlement was called at Wellett minifer, to the which the loads came with great companies, and speciallie the faid prince and carle. They intended to have lodged within the citie: but the maior going buto the bilhop of Morceller.

to fir Bugh Bigod, and to fir Billip Ballet (bnto inhome, and to the archbilhop of Canturburie, the la had committed the rule of the land in his absence) required to know their pleasure herein. Where boon they thought it good to have the advice of Kichard the they monghe a grow to have been to him, where king of Almaine, and the rebpon went to him, where they concluded, that neither the fait prince noz earle wardancy no ante of their partakers thould come within the eatle of Size citie, the gates whereof were by the malous apoint fier are me citie, the gates whereor were by the minute appoint fulfictor ment closed and kept with watch and ward both day fulfictor come fulfing. and night. Some after allo, for the more lafegaro of the cite of the citie, the gates were by the maioes amountment London closed and kept with diligent watch and ward both day and night. Some after allo for the more falegard of the faid citie, and fure keeping of the peace, the king of Almaine with the faid fir Pugh and fir Phi liv came and lodged in the citie with their companies, and such other as they would affigue, to streng. then the citie if need required. Wherin their prouident 20 consent to withstand so foule a mischeefe as sedition might have beet in the citie, deserteth high come mendation, for it was the next wate to preferue the State thereof against all occasions of ruine, to butte harts and hands in so sweet an harmonic, which the law of nature teacheth men to do, and as by this lage lentence is infinuated and given to understand,

Manui manum lauat & digitus digitum, Vir virum & ciuitas servat civitatem.

Shootlie affer, the king returned out of France, Cheking m and about the featt of S. Parke came to London, turnethun and lodged in the bilhops palace. And bicaufe of cer. England teine rumous that were speed abroad sounding to some entil meaning, which prince Coward should have against his father, the king brought over with him a great power of men in armes being frans gers, howbeit he brought them not into the citie, but left them beyond the bridge in the parts of Surrie, notivithstanding being entred the citie, he so kept the gates and entries, that none was permitted to enfer, but fuch as came in by his lufferance. The earls of Clocester by his amointment also was lodged within the citie, and the prince in the palace at Wells minster. Shortlie after by the kings commandement he removed to S. Johns, sall the other loods were lodged without the citie, and the king of Almaine remoued againe to Meliminfler . In which time a direction was taken betweene the fato parties, and a new allemblie and parlement alligned to be kept in the quindene of S. John Baptiff, and affer defers red or prozoged till the feaft of faint Edward, at the which time all things were partied a while, but fo as the earle of Olocester was put beside the rome which he had amongst other the pieres , and fo then Cheert d he foined in freenothip with the earle of Lefceffer, Giocelinia as it were by way of confederacie against the rest treerauthe due, and yet in this last contention, the fato earle of felle with the Letcester twhe part with the prince against the earle cetter. of Glocester.

This yeare the look William de Beauchampethe Chr. Dundin penic of the monie, not leaue out in his fille the title 60 elber deceaffed. The lord Coward the kings sonne, with a faire companie of knights and other men of armes, palled the leas to exercise himselfe in tuits, but he himfelfe and his men wire enill intreated in manie places , to that they toll bootle , armour , and all other things to his great griefe and billiking (as Manh Well may be efferned) pet (as some twite) he returned bome with bistorie in the infis. This yeare at Teu- 3 Jew st helburie, a Jew falling by chance into a lakes open Coukelbant the faturdate, in retierence of his fabboth would not fatieth into luffer any man to plucke him footh, therof the earle takes. of Gloceffer being aduertiles, thought the chiffians should no as much renevence to their fabboth which is fundate, and therefore would luffer no man to go about to take him forth that day, and fo lieng trill

Matt. Westm. elemen.

Bach rather.

Matth West.

Anno, Reg. 45.

€ cots com=

Matt. West.

Divers Poble men departed this life in this yeare. pathof fix as the earle of Albemarle, the losd William Beauchampe, Stephan de Longelpe lozo chefe iuffice of Ireland, and Roger de Turkeby one of the kings thefe councelloss and inflices of the land, william de lairtham bilhop of Durham, and John de Crake hale treasurer of England, a spirituall man, but rich bepond measure: also Genrie de Ba another of the kings inffices of the bench. In the 45 yeare of king 1 Henries reigne, Alexander king of Scotland came to London anon after the featt of S. Coward, with a faire companie of Scotishmen, and thortie affer meth to Lon- his wife the quiene of Scots came thither allo.

Mozeouer king Benrie kept a roiall feaft at Wellminifer, where he made to the number of foure lcoze knights, amongst whome, John sonne to the earle of Britaine, who had maried the ladie Beatrice, one of the kings daughters was there made knight. Shortlie after was fir Hugh Spenfer made load 20

After Chairmaile the B. comming into the towar chefe iustice.

1261

Fabian. 3 folkemote

of London fortified it greatlie, & caused the gates of the citie to be warded, fending forth commandement to his loods that they Mould come to the toluze, there to hold a parlement; but they denied flatlie fo to do. sending him wood that if it pleased him, they would come to Wellminster, where vivallie the parlement had beine kept, and not to any other place, wher boon there role diffention betwirt him and the barons. 39 After the feath of the Purification, at a folkemote holden at Wanles croffe (where the king was prefent in person, with the king of Almaine, the archbishop Banis croffe of Canturburie, and diverse other of the Pobles) commandement was given to the maioz, that everie Artifling of the age of 12 yeares and aboue, Chould before his alberman be fwome to be true to the king and his heires kings of England, and that the gates of the citie thould be kept with armed men, as before by the king of Komans was denifed.

About Cafter the barons of the land with concent of the peres, discharged fir Dugh Spenier of his of-true to the

The lord Spenfer offa

In oth to be

Mmh.Woft.

fice of thefe inffice, and placed in his rome fir Philip Ballet without the kings allent, he being not made prinie therebuto. Therebpon a new occasion of displeasure was ministred to kindle debate be twirt the king and his loads, but by the policie of the king of Almaine and some prelats, the matter was quieted for a time, till after at Hallowentide nert inluing, which was the 46 years of B. Henrics reigne, 50 Anno Reg. 46. At that time the barons twhe boon them to discharge The prefump such Chiriffes as the king had eleated a named gartwos processions of the countries and thires, and in their play bards against ces put other thirittes, and besides that would not luffer the inflice which the king have domitted, to do his office in keeping his circuit, but appointed fuch to do it, as it pleased them to assigne; wher with the king was fo much offended, that he laboured by all means tohim possible about the disamilling of the ordinances made at Orford, and opon the fecond fundair in 60 L'entite caused to be read at Paules croffe a bull, ob Toutreso at teined of pope Arbane the fourth, as a confirmation Dauls crosse, on of an other bull before purchased of his prevered four pope Alexander, for the absoluting of the king, and all other that were swome to the maintenance of the articles agreed spon at Oxford. This absolut tion he canferto be thewed through the realmes of England, Wales Treland, gluing Areight charge that if any person were found that would disobete this absolution, the same should be committed to pie fon, there to remaine till the kings pleasure were further knowne.

Swerlie the most part of those pieces which had the Dany goner: rule of the king and kingdome thus in their hand, perceiuing the enormitie that dailie grew of fo ma, nors pernicis nifold heads and governours, were minded of them; ous to a come felues to diffolue those provisions and ordinances so made at Drford, in somuch that there were but five which fliffelie flood in defense of the same, that is to fair, the bilhop of Morceller, and the earles of Leis ceffer and Gloceffer, with Henrie Spenfer, and Des ter de Montsont, the which by no meanes could be brought to confesse that they might with a safe conscience go contrarie to those opinances which they had confirmed with their folemne oth, not withfranding the popes dispensation; whereas the same oth was rather a bond of iniquitie (as faith Match. Weltminiter) deutled to conspire against Chass and his annointed, that is to faie, their naturall liege lood and lawfull king, than any godlie oth adulfedlie taken.02 necestarie to be received of god meaning lubs teas, yea and of fuch a friuplous oth it is faid, that

In aqua scribitur & in puluere exaratur.

In June the king of Almaine twhe Chipping and Cheking of failed ouer into Dutchland, and king Penrie at a Blimaine gofolkemote holden at Paules croffe the fundate af ethouer into ter S. Deters day, had licence to falle into france, Germanic, and the morrow after he departed from I ondon to. Fabian. and the morrow after he departed from London to: Ebeking has wards the fea five, with the queene and other loads, his uing licence two formes prince Coward and the earle of Lancas pallethoure fer being at that present in Buten. When he had into France. bene a feason in France, he went unto Wurdeaur, Befalleth liek and there fell sieke of a feuer quartane, by occasion of afcuer on whereof he taried in those parties till S. Pitholas quartane. tive nert following. There were few that went ouer Chro. Dun. with him that escaped free without the same discase, so that in maner all his companie were taken and fore handled therewith. Panie died thereof to the Death of nonumber of theescoze, and amongst them as theese biemen. inere thefe, Baldivine de Lifte earle of Denonihire, Ingram de Percie, and William de Beauchampe.

In this years died Richard the Clare earle of The carle of Blocester, and his sonne sir Bilbert de Clare was Blocester de-40 earle after him, buto thome his father gaue great parteth this charge that he fhould mainteine the ordinance of life. charge that he Could mainteine the ordinances of Drford. In the 47 years of king henries reigne, Anno Reg. 47. by reason that a Jew had wounded a christian man at London within Coledurch, in the ward of cheap, Jewes flaine. not onelie the faid Jew was flaine by other christis ans that followed him home to his house, but also manie other Jewes were robbed and flaine in that furie and rage of the people. The Wellimen with Marth Welfin. their prince Leolin made wars against the men and The wellh. tenants of Roger de Postimer; and toke two of men warre his castels (the one called thenet) and raced them both against y lood to the ground. The feet Mountains and Mountains to the ground. The faid Roger being foze greened tenants. herivith, got fuch affiliance as he could of other loses there in the marches, and watching the Wellymen De feelth at advantage, diffressed diverse companies of them, his revenge fometime thee hundred, sometime foure hundred, and against them, other whiles fine hundred. But at one time he lost these hundred of this fortmen that were entred the countrie, and to inclosed that they could make no thiff to efcape.

Apon the eneriof Si Thomas the apostle, the king Fabian. landed at Direct, and came to London the Wedness date before the bivelfe day irradigitimate. In this yeare the frost began about S. Picholas date, and continued for the space of a moneth and moze; so extreamelie, that the Thames was frolen, to that men passed over on horsebacke. The same winter the kings little hall at Westminster, with manie other houses therebuto adjoining, was consumed with fire, by negligence of one of the kings feruants. Ua. Clariance bes riance role betwirt the citizens of London, and the twist the ciconstable of the towne, for that contrarie to the libers tizens of Losies of the citie he toke certaine thips passing by the constable of towie with wheat and other vittels into the towie, the towic.

Carcont (2 on peach aggett

បត្តិការពេល ក្នុង

1 2 6 3 frofen,

making

making the price thereof himfelfe. The matter was had before fir Philip Baffet lord cheefe inflice and o thers, who boon the light and hearing of all fuch ent bences and printledges as could be brought forth for the advantage of both the parties, toke order that the constable should (then he lacked provision of grame 02 bittels) come into the market holden within the citic, and there to have wheat two pence in a quarter within the majors price, and other vittels after the Matth.West. Dunce Co ward goeth against the wellhinen.

The archb. of Canturburie goeth to Rome.

Fabian.

fwozne to be true to the bing.

Clokedmalice burfteth out.

like oth.

The barong raile people.

Eine lozd Cliffogo.

Chron.Dun.

Prince Co= ward taketh monic out of § treasure of the temple.

Mars.lib.11. Hor.lib.car.3. ode 24.

The Londo ners rob the house of the lojd Gray.

Prince Coward the kings some returning from the parts beyond the fea, went with a great power (as well of Englishmen as strangers) against the Welchmen towards Snowdon hils: but the entimics withdrawing themselves to their friengths within the woods and mounteines, he could not much indamage them, wherebyon after he had fortified certeine castels in those parts, with men, munition, and vittels, he returned being fent for backe of his father. The archbishop of Canturburie forefæing the trou- 20 ble that was like to infine betwirt the king and his barons, got licence of the king to go buto Rome, a bout such businesse as he fained to have to do with the pope, and so departed the land, and kept him awaie till the trouble was appealed. Upon Widlent fundaie, at a folkemote holden at Paules croffe, bes fore fir Thilip Ballet and other of the kings councell, the major of London was sworne to be true to the The lord mas king, and to his heires kings of England, and byon to, of London the morrow at the Guildhall everte alberman in presence of the major twhe the same oth. And byon 30 the fundate following, everie inhabitant within the citie, of the age of 12 yeares and about, before his ale berman in his ward was newlie charged with the

> Then began the displeasure betweene the bing and his barons to appeare, which had beene long kept fee crct, divers of whom allembling togither in the marthes of Wales, gathered but o them a power of men. and fent a letter unto the king, under the feale of fir 40 Roger Clifford, belieching him to have in remembrance his oth and manifold promiles made for the observing of the flatutes ordeined at Drford. But although this letter was indited and written berte effectuallie, yet received they no answer from the king, who minded in no wife to observe the same star tutes, as by entocut tokens it was most awarant. Therespon they determined to attempt by force to bring their purpole to palle. The king and the quane for their more lategard got them into the towice of London, and prince Coward late at Clerkenwell, but incluch necellitie and discredit for monie, that neis ther had they any flore to furnish their wants, new ther was there any man that would trust them with a groat.

> Drince Edward not able to abide fuch dishonor. in the feat of the apolle Peter and Paule, taking with him Robert Waleran, and certeine others, went to the new temple, and there calling for the kees per of the treasure-house, as if he meant to fee his mothers iewels, that were late up there, to be fafelie 60 kept, he entred into the house, and breaking the ros fers of certeine perfons that had likewife brought their monie thither, to have it in more fafetie, be twhe away from thence the value of 1000 pounds.

-ò quantum cogit egestas! her il hannon Magnum pauperies opprobrium iubet 😘 🐃 🕬 Oniduis of facere or pati, and it agreed Virtutisque viam deserit ardua.

The citizens of London were to offended herewith that the profe in armour against him and other of the kings councell, in fomuch that they affailed the longing of the lord John Gray without Ludgate, and toke out of his fables 32 horfes, and fuch other things as they might late hold bpon, kieping such Aur that the load Gray himselfe was forced to flie bepond fleethringe. The like rule they kept at the house of John de Paccelew.

John Pansell departing fouth of the towne to the John Mila Thames, with the counteffe de Life, and other ladies fieth into that were strangers borne, sailed into France, and France, landed at Whitland, where the late Paniell hearing that the losd Denrie, sonne to the king of Almaine, that then held with the barons was in those parts, he caused the lood Ingram de Fines to Caie him as priloner, and fo he remained, till king Henrie bpon the agræment betwirt him and the barons, found meanes to gethim released, and so then he returned into England.

But now touching the barons, they proceed in their bulinelle which they had in hand with all earnest diligence, of whome these were the cheese that bender take this matter: yong Humfrie de Boun, the lood Che baron Henrie son to the king of Almaine, Henrie Pont, that role a: ford, Dugh Spenfer, Baldwin Wake, Gilbert Gif. gaind the food, Richard Gray, John Ros, William Parmion. hing. Henrie Hallings, Haimon le Strange, John Sitz John, Goofrey Lucie, Picholas Segraue, Roger de Leibozne, John Mesie, Roger de Clifford, Johnde Maus, Gilbert de Clare, Gilbert de Lacie, and Robert Tepont, the which with one generall consent co lected for their chefe capteins and generall gouer nours, Simon de Pountfort carls of Leiceffer, Bil. Chetr chak bert of Clare earle of Gloceffer, and Robert Fer wis earle of Darbie, and John earle of Warren. On the kings part thefe persons are named to stand with him against the other. First, Roger Bigod erle Che berne of Portfolke and Suffolke, Humfrie de Boun earle that token of Hereford, Hugh Bigod lord cheefe inffice, Philip with the lang Ballet, William de Malence, Beffrey de Lucignan, Peter de Sauoy, Robert Malrand, John Pansell, Geffrey Langley, John Gray, William Latimer, Henrie Percie, and manie other . The barons not withstanding having assembled their powers, resol ned to go through with their purpole.

The first enterpate they made was at Percford, Rifanger M where they take the bithop of that lie named John teththis us Wieton, and as manie of his canons as were frangers bome. After this they take fir Pattheto de Bee zilles chrifte of Bloccifer, a franger borne, and kieping on their wais towards London with baners displaced, so manie as came within their reach, whom The barons they knew to be against the maintenance of the sta. make hand tutes of Drions, they spoiled them of their boules. robbed them of their gods, and impilance their bo dies, having no regard whether they were spirituall men or temporally. In diverte of the hingscallels they placed indicapteins and foldiers as they thought convenient, autoisplaced others upon they either knew or suspected to be adversaries to their purpose.

About Midlummer fichen they welv nière to Low dom, they fent a letter to the major and aldermen bus ber the seale of the earle of Leicester, willing to bu berfland abother they would abler ue the acts and flas tintesestablished at Orford, or else aid and still fied persons as meant the breath of the same. And here with they fent buto them a copie of those articles, with a provide, that if any of them were projudiciall, or in any wife hartfull to the realing and common wealth, that then the fame by the admite of discret perform thould be amerided and reformed. The maior bare this letter amount the copie of the articles but other king, who in this means time remained in the towns of London, togither with the quiene and the king of Almaine, latelie returned but of Almaine, also his fonne prince Coward, and manie other of bis councell. The king asked of the major what he thought of those articles: The made such answer as the king

Chemilde:

lewd persons towards the meanor of

lemed well pleased there with, and to permitted the The billigence maioz to returne againe into the citie, who toke much orthologomas paine in keeping the citie in good quiet now in that 17 of London. Dangerous time.

All fuch the inhabitants as were frangers borne, and suspected to favour either of the parties, were bas nithed the citie, but within a while after, prince Co. mard fet them or the most part of them in offices mithin the castell of Windloze. On the faturdate nertafter the translation of faint Benet, as the 10 quene would have palled by water from the tower bnto Mindloze, a fort of lewd naughtipacks got them to the bridge, making a notice at hir, and crieng; Prowne the witch, threw downe fones, cuogels, dirt, and other things at hir, so that the escaped in great banger of hir perfon , fled to Lambeth , and through feate to be further purfued, landed there, and fo the stated till the mator of London with much adm ameling the furie of the people, repaired to the queene and brought hir backe againe in lafetie buto the tows to Chron, Dunft er. And (as some write) bicause the king would not fuffer hir to enter againe into the tower, the main; conveied hir buto the bishop of Londons house by Paules, and there lodged hir.

Manh, West.

The barons in this meane time having got the citic of Worcester and Bridgenorth, with other place ces were come into the fouth parts, to the end that they might win the castellof Douer, and find some meanes to let the load Henric (sonne to the king of Almaine that was prisoner beyond the seas) at liber 30 tie. In the meane time the bilhops of Lincolne, Lon. Chron. Dunft. Bilhops tra- don and Cheffer, travelled betwirt the king and ba will to make rous for a peace; but the barons would not agree, er cept that the king and quæne would first cause the loso Denrie to be fet at libertie, and deliver into their hands the castels of Windloze, Douer, and other for trelles, and fend awaie all the Arangers, and take suchoeder that the provisions of Drenford might be observed, as well by the king as others.

The king although these conditions seemed verie 40 hard and displeasant to his mind, yet was he ditten to such an extremitie that he granted to accept them, and to an agreement was made and had betwirt him and the loods. But now all the difficultie was to app peale the load Edward, and to remove the Arangers which he had placed in the calfell of Windloze, which they had not onelie fortified, but also in manner des Aroicd the towns, and done much hurt in the countrie round about them. There were to the number of an hundred knights or men of armes (as I may call 50 them) belide a great number of other men of warre. But now after that the king had agreed to the peace, the barons entred the citie on the fundate before S. Pargarets daie; and Mozilie after the king came to Meliminster with the quiene, and those of his councell. And immediatlic herespon, by consent of the king and the barons, fir Hugh Spenfer was made chale luftice and kaper of the tower. During the time that the loods remained in London, manie robberies and riots were done within the citie, and 60 small reducte had incorrecting the offendors, they were so borne out and mainteined by their maillers and others.

Che great the citie of Dtrangers

beene the cas

fell of wind-

The commons of the citic were farre out of order, for in the affemblies and courts, as well at Guilohall as in other places, the matters and tudgement of things went by the voices of the limple and bnoile creet multitude, so that the substantiall and worthip full citizens were not regarded. The barons on the morrow following the featt of faint James , departed from London toward Mindloze, in which means thile prince Coward was gone to Briffow, & there thinking himselfe to be out of danger, by mishap there role variancel betwirt the citizens a his men, so that the thole citie revolted from him, and prepar red to beliege him in the castell, not doubting but easilie to win it. When he saw how the world went, he sent to the bishop of Mozester that was of the barons live, promiting that he would agree with the barons, if he would helpe to deliver him out of the Brillow mens hands. The billyop taking his promile conneced him forth in fafette toward the court; but then became nære buto Windfoze, he turned this ther, greatlie to the milithing of the bilhop: pet nes verificielle when the barons came forward to beliege that calle, the losd Edward met them not farce from Atingflon, offering them conditions of peace. Some Nic. Treuer. write that he was stated and not suffered to returne againe to Mindloze, after he had ended his talke with the barons : but how locuer it was , the callell was furrended, with condition that those that were within it should laselie depart, and so they did, and were conducted to the leady Humfrey de Bohun the punger . About the fame time , Leolin prince of Wales defiroted the lands of prince Coward in Chethire, and the marthes thereabouts. The two cafiels of Difard and Bannoc he toke and defireted, being two berie faire for trelles.

About the feath of the Partuitie of our litote, there was a parlement holden at London, at the tothe all 3 parlement. the nobles of the realine both leftituall and temps, Abington, rall were prefent; and then the citie of London; and the cinque ports toined in league as confeverats with the barons ; but the king plainlic protested be- The kings fore all the allemblie, that by the Catutes and prouts protestation fions (as they termed them) made at Drenford, he against the was much deceived. For contrarie to that which the articles at barons had promifed the felt himfelfer after the Openion. barons had promifed, he felt himfelfe tather tharged with more debt than ante thing released: and therefore fith he had obtained of the pope an absolution of the oth both for himselfe and his people, his request was to be restored buto his former estate of all such prerogatives as in time past he had infored. The bas rons on the other lide fiftelie mainteined, that they could not with fafe consciences go against their oth, and therefore they meant to frand in defense of the articles aforelato even folong as they had a date to

Thus whilest both parts kept to farre from all hope of agreement, and were now in point to have departed in funder, through mediation of some bishops that were present a peace was concluded, and the parties so agreed, that all matters in controversie touching the articles, proutflons, and fratutes made at Orenford Chould be ordered and judged by the Thematter French king, whom they chose as arbitrato, betwirt put to the them. Herebpon, on the thirteenth of September, French king. both the king and queene, with their fonnes, and ofuerse other of the nobles of this land, twhe thipping, and failed over to Bullongne, where the French king as then was at a parlement, with a great number of the nobles and pieres of France. The earle of Let. cester also with diverse of his complices went this ther, and there the matter was opened, argued, and debated before the French king, who in the end upon due cramination, and orderlie hearing of the whole processe of all their controversies, gave expresse sens tence, that all and everie of the faid fatutes and 03. The french dinances deutled at Drford, thould be from thence, king gineth forth viterlie vold, and all bonds and promifes made fenter by king Henrie, or anie other for performance of against the them Could likewise be admihilated, fordome, and clearelie cancelled.

The barons highlie displeased here with, resuled to Cand to the Frenchkings award herein, bicanse he had judged altogither on the kings lide. Wherebpon after they were returned into the realme, either para tie prepared for warre: but pet about the feath of S.

A : 4

rest of h

1695 (.12 24 (2.25)

Abington.

Anno Reg. 4 8.

Coward, the hing and the barons efflones met at London, holding a new parlement at Wellminfer but no goo could be done. Then when the king of Almaine and prince Coward, with others of the hings councell faw that by rapine, oppettion, and er to:tion practiced by the barons against the kings sub-Manh. Wellm. iects, as well spirituall as temporall, the fate of the realme and the kings honour was much decated, and brought in manner onto otter ruine, they procured the king to withdraw fecretlie from Welestmin 10 ffer buto Windlove caffell, of which his sonne prince Coward had gotten the pollellion by a traine. from Windlow he went to Reading, and from thence to Wallingford, and so to Drford, having a great power with him.

The loads that remolted to the bing.

Chron Dun.

स्टाइस ्मृत्य

Abington,

1264

The king go:

Fabian

At his being at Drfoed there came buto him the toed Henrie, fon to the king of Almaine, John earle Warren, Roger Clifford, Roger Leiborne, Hatmondle Strange, and John de Maur, which had res nolted from the barons to the kings live; John Gib ford also did the like: but he Chortie after returned to the barons part againe. The kings fonne the loop Coward has procured them thus to repolt, promis fing to everie of them in reward by his charter of grant fiftie pounds lands to aid the king his father and him against the barons.

After this the king went to Winchester, and from thence came backe buto Reading, and then he mare thed forth with his armie buto Douer, where he could not be suffered to come into the castell, being kept out by the lood Richard Gray that was capteine there. Herebpon he returned to London, where the barons againe were entred, through favour of the commoners, against the will of the cheefe citizens, and here they fell eftiones to treat of agreement but their talke profited nothing. And fo in the Christmaste weke the king, with his sonne prince Coward and diverse other of the councell failed over againe into France, and went to Amiens, where they found the eth again cuer to the French French king, and a great number of his Pobles. Ab 40 fo for the barons, Peter de Pontford, and other were fent thither as commissioners, and as some write, at that present, to wit on the 24 date of Januarie, the French king litting in judgement, pronounced his definitive sentence on the behalfe of king Benrie a gainst the varons: but whether he gave that sentence now, or the yeare before, the barons inoged him berie parciall, and therefore meant not to frand but o his arbitrement therein. The king having ended his bulinelle with the 50 French king returned into England, and came to London the incrowafter S. Malentines day. And about leuen or eight baies affer, the lord Coward his elocit fonne returned alfo, and hearing that the barons were gone to the marthes of Wales (where toining with the Welthmen, they had begun to make warre against the kings frænds, and namelie against his lieutenant Roger lozd Wortimer, inhome they had belieged in the callell of Waigmore) the look Colward therebpon, with luch power as he could get 60 togither, marched thitherwards to raife their fiege: but the lood Postimer perceining himfelfe in dans ger, fled privile out of the caffell, and got to Hereford, whither the prince was come. The barons inforced their frength in luch wife that they wan the castell. Prince Coward on the other five toke the caffels of Haic and Huntington that belonged buto the earle of Hereford young Henrie de Boun.

The callell of Beechnoe was also delivered into his hands, which he bectoke to the keeping of the load Roger de Doctimer, with all the territorie thereto belonging. Robert earle of Darbie that tobe part with the barons, belieged the citie of Taoceffer, and twhe it by the old caffell, facked the citizens gods, and constrained the Jewes to be baptiled. The citie of Gloceller allo was taken by the barons : but prince Coward following them and reparing the bridge o uer Scuerne, which the barons had broken downe af ter they were come over, he entred the castell of Gloceffer with his people. The nert day by procurement of Walter bithop of Wocester, a truce was taken betwirt prince Edward and the barons that had taken the towne, during the which truce the barons left the towne, and the burgelles submitted themselves bnto prince Coward: and to be having the caffell and towns in his hands, imprisoned mante of the Manh. Wida burgefice; fined the towns at the fumme of a thou. Theme burgefics; a fined me rowie at the minima of the file Cloreday (and pounds. Then he deets towards his father it courts and the courts and the courts are the courts and the courts are the eng at Drfogd,og at Wloodfoke, gathering people to put to fine. gither on ech hand. In the meane time the loads delv folvards Lon The come bon, and the melvallurance by limiting indented was ners of the made before the communality of the citie and the threat Los barons, without consent of any of the rulers of the faith the citie. The commoners here with appointed of them barons. felues two capteins, which they named conflables of R.Fabian the citie that is to faie, Ahomas Piwelloon & Ster than Bukerell, by whole commandement and tolling of the great bell of Paules all the citie mas marned to be readie in harnelle, to attend byon the faid two capteins. About the beginning of Lent the conflat ble of the towie fir Hugh Spenfer, with the faid time capteins, and a great multitude of the citizens and o thers went to Ahistleworth, and there spoiled the mar Chillians nour place of the king of Almaine, and then fet it on foolid, fire, and defiroied the water milles, and other commodifies which he there had. This deed was the cause The chair (as some have subged) of the warre that after insued. cause that it is a distance that it For there before this time the faid king of Almaine maine folgo had beene, by reason of the alliance betinist him against the and the earle of Glocester, continuallie an intreater barons. for peace, he was now ever after this time an otter enimie unto the barons, and unto their live, lo farre as laie in his power. The king hearing of this richeds act, and being informed that Peter de Bountfort was at 1909 thampton, aftembling people to frengthen the bas rons part, he got togither fuch men of warre as he could from all places, and to be had with him his biother Richard king of Almaine, his clock fonne the loed Coward, William de Malence his halfe beo The louis ther on the mothers lide, a John Comin of Waro in that follows Scotland with a great number of Scots, John Bal lioll lood of Gallowaie, Robert Bruis lood of Annandale, Koger Cliffoed, Philip Parmion, John Maur, John Leiborne, Penrie Percie, Philip Bal fet, and Roger Postimer. Thus the king having these Poble men about Content him, with his armie fped him towards Porthamp taken by in ton, and comming thither take the towne by force, flue dinerle, and take priloners Peter Pountfort, and Simon Mountfort the earle of Leicelfers fon, William Ferries, Baldwin Wake, with Picholas his brother , Berengarius de Wateruile, Hugh Bubiun, Robert Buteuilein, Abam of Beimarth, Robert Peloton, Philip Dubie, Orimbald Paunce. feet, Roger Beltram, Thomas Panfell, and diverte other, to the number of 80 knights (02 as Matthew Westminster hath 15 barons, and 60 knights) belides a great number of elquires and burgelles, the which were bestowed abroad in sundrie prisons. The towns (as some write) was taken by this meanes. While it diverse of the capteins within were talking with the king on the one live of the towne towards the medowes, the losd Philip Ballet approched the walles neire unto the monasterie of S. Anovew, and there with his people having spaces, mattocks, and other instruments provided for the purpose, undermined a Nic.Triuet. Calleia gots ten by prince Coward.

morceffer

Scholers

Mome wzite that John de

Robert de

Deter de

Buns, and 18 mis, came and not before

Cutburge de= taken

warwike

The Jewes

fight againft

great paine of the wall, and reversed the same into pitches, making such a breach, that fortie horsemen might enter afront . Some put the blame in luch monks of the abbeie as were ftrangers, as though they thould prepare this entrie for the enimie: but howfocuer it was, the king got the towne out of his enimies hands.

This also is to be remembred, that where by reas fon of variance, which had chanced that yere betwirt the scholers of Orford and the townesmen, a great 10 number of the same scholers were withdrawen to Porthampton and there Audied. They had railed a banner to fight in defense of the towne against the king, and did more hurt to the affailants than anie other band; wherebpon the king threatned to hang them all, and to had he done indeed, if by the perfuafion of his councell he had not altered his purpole, poubting to procure the hatred of their freends, if the erecution should have beene so rigozoustie prosecuted against them: for there were amongst them manie 20 pong gentlemen of goo houses and noble parentage. Thus was the towne of Porthampton taken on a laturdate being Pallion lundate even, and the morrow after the date of S. Ambrole which is the fift of Appill. On the monday following, the king led his armie towards Leicester, where the burgestes receined him into the towne at his comming thither. From thence he marched to Potingham, burning and walting the houses and manaes of the barons longed to the earle of Leicelter. Here he also gathe, red more people, and so increased his power: in so much that diverte Poblemen, as Roger Cliffozd, Henrie Percie, Richard Tray, Philip Ballet, Ki. dard Sward, and Dubert earle of Bent, doubting the lacke of power in their companions, revolted incontinentlie to the kings fide. Pelent his sonne prince Coward into Darbis thire and Staffordhire with a ftrong power, where be walled the manours and pollellions of Kobert De 4 Ferrers earle of Darbie, and namelie he overtheir and defaced the callell of Tutburie. Where so ever the kings armie,oz that which his fonne pzince Coward led, chanced to come, there followed spoiling, burning and killing. The barons on the other live fate not fill, for the load John Gifford, with others that were appointed by the earle of Leicester to keepe Billing. worth castell (which was furnished with all things necessarie, maruelloussie, and with such strange kind of engines as had not beine lightlie heard of noz 50 fæne in these parts) toke by a policie the castell of The callell of Warwike, and William Danduit earle of War, wike, with his wife and familie within it; and leas ding them to killing worth, there comitted them to pilon. The cause was, for that they suspected him that he would take part with the king against them . The cassell of Marwike they raced downe, least the The caftell of kings people should take it for their refuge. In the Patilon worke the Jewes that inhabited in London being detected of treason, which they had deuised 60 against the barons and citizens, were saine almost all the whole number of them, and great riches found in their houses, which were taken and carried awaie by those that ransacked the same houses.

After Caffer the erle of Leiceffer, hauing London at his commandement, went to Rochester and bester ged that citie, but the capteine thereof John earle of Elarren did manfallie relift the enimies; till the king advertised thereof, with the power of the marthes of the north parts and other came and removed the liege. This done, he left a connenient garrison within the citie to defend it, and comming to Tunbringe, wan the callell, and taking the countelle of Sloceffer that was within it, permitted hir to des part. This done, he repaired to the fea fide towards France, to faie there till his brethien, Beffrey and Buie, the sonnes of the earle of Parth should arrive with some band of souldiers, for thom he had now The kings fent and renoked into the realine, being latelic before halle breihren banished by the Pobles, as before ye have heard. They thoulie after landed, therebyon the king ha unig his power increased, came to Lelves, and pight The king indowne his field not farre from that towne.

In the end of Aprill the barons hearing where the king was, departed from London with a great multitude of the citizens, whom they placed in the bantward, and marched footh towards the king, and comming nære to the place where he was looged; fet downe their tents, and incamped themseluss a little beside him. Either here or by the waie as they came forward, the barons deutled a letter, and fent it buto the king, conteining an excuse of their dwings, and a declaration of their well meanings, both to- The barons wards him, and the wealth of the realme, and here, fenda letter with accused those that were about him, and with e uill counsell milinformed him, both against them, against the publike wealth of the land, and his owns: honoz. This letter was dated the tenth of Paie and subscribed with the names of a great number of no ble men, of the which the more part do here infue, but pet not all ; Sir Simon de Pontfort carle of Leiceffer and high feward of England, fir Gilbert de Clare earle of Glocester, Robert Ferrers earle and other of his enimies, and speciallie those that be 30 of Darbie, Hugh Spenser low deefe tustice, & Henrie Pontfort sonne and heire to the earle of Leices fter, Richard Grey, Henrie Hallings, John Fitz John, Robert de Acepont, John Binuile, Robert Ros, Milliam Barmion, Baldwine Make, Bilbert Difford, Picholas de Segraue, Boofrey de Lie cie, John de Meilie, Milliam de Mountchensie, with other. The king answered this letter, in that The answer ging them with rebellion, and moung of open war to p barons. against him, to the great disquieting of the realme. Also halaid buto their charge, the burning of the may nours, houses and places of his nobles and councel : loss; and herewith defied them by the same answer, which was dated at Leives afozefaid on the twelfth them. of Paie.

Also the king of Komanes, and prince Coward fent their defiance to the barons at the fame time its writing under their feales, for that the barons in their letter to the king, had burthened them and or ther with milleading the king with butrue informations and finister counsell. Thus as they wait to and fro such nipping letters, all the treatie of peace was forgotten and laid alide, so that they prepared to battell. The king had indeed the greater number of armed men, but manie of them were unfaithfull, and cared not greatlie though the lotte fell to his lide, and so whilest they went to it without order, & unaduiseds lie, they fought at aduenture, a continued but faintly. N. Triver. His capteines made the battels of their armie, the The opering lood Coward led the foreward, and with him Willi, of the battels. am de Malence earle of Penbroke, and John de Warren erle of Surrey and Suffer. In the fecond, the Bof Almaine, with his found Penrie were cheeftaines. The third the king gouerned himselfe.

The barons divided their hoft into foure battels, the first was bnoer the government of the load Henriede Pontfort and others. The fecond was led by the load Gilbert de Clare, the load John Att; John, and the lood William de Dountchenlie. The third, in which the Londoners were placed, the lood Picho las de Segraue ruled . The fourth was led by Si mon Montfort earle of Leicelter himfelfe , and one Thomas de Peucliton. Thus being oedered, on the fourteenth of Paie being Medneldaic, they The battels toined in fight, and at the first incounter, the L. Densioine.

come out of france to camveth at Lewes.

to the king.

De befieth

Matth:Well. don

12 113

Y. Triuct.

Rochester

biliegen.

Dince Cofoard purfu-eth the Londoncrs.

The kings

part put to the worle.

Nic.Triuct.

Matth, Paris.

Deuen hun=

Dico hath 21=

meth backe

to his father.

Friers fuboz= ned to treat a bington. Prince Eb=

Chron. Dunft. rie de Haffings, the load Geffrey de Lucie, & Humfrey de Bohun the ponger were wounded, and the Londoners forthwith were beaten backe : for prince Coward to fiercelie affailed them, that they were not able to abide the bount. De hated them indeed aboue all other, namelie for that of late they had mile bled his mother, remling hir, and theowing durt and fiones at hir, then the palled the bridge (as before ye have heard which wrong and abuse by them committed was peraduenture on their parts forgotten, 10 but of prince Coward (as it fæmeth) remembred, for

Puluere qui lædit, sed læsus marmore scribit.

Herebpon prince Coward now to be renenged of them, after they began to flie, most egerlie following them , chalco a flue them by heaps . But whileft he les parated himselfe by such earnest following of the Londoners to farre from the relidue of the kings armie, he was the onelie cause of the loss of that field: for the earle of Leicester, perceiving that the prince with the chiefelt force of the kings armie was 20 thus come after the Londoners (of whom he made no great account) he exharted his people to thew their valiancie at that instant, and so comming vpon his adverfaries with great courage, in a moment put them to flight. There were taken the king of Almaine, the loods John de Burgh and Philip Bal fet with all other the chiefest that were about the king, but the king himselfe retired with those few a bout him that were left, into the priorie of Lewes, and other there were that withozew into the castell. The barons purlaing them, entered the towne, and twice of flue lo mante as they found within the caffell and priorie. At length, prince Colvard returned from the chafe of the Londoners, whom he had purfued for the space of foure miles, and finding the field lost, began a new battell: but the earle of Surrie, Will liam de Malence, and Buy de Lucignan, with Hugh Bigod and others, having with them thee hundled armed men, freightwaies fled buto the caffell of Pemlie. Prince Edward then perceining flaughter 40 to be made on each hand, cast about the towne, and with his companie got into the priorie to his father.

In the incane time the barons gave affault to the castell, but they within valiantlie defended thems felues, with whose hardie dwings prince @bivaro incouraged, gathered his people togither againe, and meant efflones to give battell; but the lubtill head of the earle of Leicelfer beguiled them all, for he caused certeine friers to take in hand to be intreators betwirt them, which comming to the king and to the 50 prince his fonne, occlared that the barons, to audia that more chriffian bloud thould not be full, would be contented to have the matter put in compromise of indifferent persons; but if it were so, that the king and his fonne would needs frand to the ottermoft tri all of battell, they would not faile but firthe off the heads of the king of Almaine and other paisoners, which they would fet byon the ends of their speares in fred of frandards.

The king and his people having the respect of vitie 60 before their cies, changed their purposed intent to fight, and falling to a parle (which continued for the most part of all the night next following) at length An agrament it was agreed boon, that the French king with thee piclats and this other noble men of the temposaltie, thould those footh and name two noble men of France, which comming into England Chould take a third person to them whom they thought god, and they the should have the hearing of all controvers fies betwirt the king and the barons, and what order so ever they twhe therein, the same thould frand, and be received for a perfect conclusion and stable decre. This agreement was confirmed, and prince Comard and Henric sonne to the king of Almaine were appointed to remaine as holfages with the barons.

Ther write other wife of this battell at Lewes, Polydon, affirming, that not onelie the king of Komans, but also king Denrie himselfe, having his owne house thruit through on both fides, was taken, and like wife his sonne prince Coward with other on their side, to the number of five and twentie barons and banne: rets: and that mozeover, there died on the kings lide that day in the battell and chale, fir thousand and five hundred men, as Polydor noteth: howbeit, Richard Southwell faith, there viet on both parts onlie 3400. But Matth. Westminster watteth, that as the report went, there vied five thouland on both fives, and a mongst other, these he nameth as cheese, William de Wilton one of the kings justices, 4 the load Fouke Fit; Waren a baron that toke the kings part. On the barons live, the lood Kafe Heringander a baron Manh. Web. alfo, and William Blunt the earles frandardbearer. Lords when Df them that were taken on the kings five, befive on the kings fuch as before are recited, we find thele named, Houng frie de Bohun earle of Hereford, William lood Bar-dolfe, Kobert lood of Tatthale, Roger lood Somerie, Penrie lord Percie, John de Balioll, Robert de Bruis, and John Comin, with other barons of Scotland, having lost all their formen whom they had brought with them to the kings aid.

Mozeoner, it should appeare by some writers, that Fabian the king being thus in captivitie, was confreined to M.Trivet make a new grant, that the flatutes of Drford fould Matth. Wells stand in force, and if any were thought bureasonable, the fame should be reformed by foure Poble men of the realme of France, two of the spiritualtie and two of the tempozaltie. And if those foure could not agric, then the earle of Anion and the duke of Burgoigne thuld be judges in the matter. ABut if either those of the other were amointed to be arbitrators, like it is, that the former report touching the successe of the battell is true; for if both the king and his sonne had beine taken prisoners in the field, the barons would swerlie have constreined him to have consented to the observance of the Catutes, without putting the fame in compromise, to be altered at the discretion of any arbitrators, and namelie Grangers. But how loener it was, on the tuelday before the Alcention day, peace was proclaimed in London, be peace was fivene the king and the barons; and theras the king claimed. either by constraint for safegard of himselfe or his freends, either boon afforance of the barons promile, committed himselfe buto the companie of the same barons, at their comming with him to London they went from this last agreement, and foothwith denifed other ordinances as thus. Abey ordefined, that anew brit two earles and a bithop, which being elected out by the communaltie, thoulo chose to them nine other persons, and of these, there of them thouse still remaine about the king, and by their order and the o ther nine, all things thould be governed both in the court and in the realme. They constrained the king and his sonne prince Coward (menacing to depose the one, and to keepe the other in perpetuall prison) to confent and agree to this last ordinance : and so the earles of Leicelfer and Glocelfer, and the bilhop of Chichester were ordeined there the cheefe rulers, and letters sent with all speed unto the cardinall Sabi nenlis the popes legat, and to the king of France, to fignific to them, that the compromise agreed open at Lewes was ofterlie renoked, and that a new peace

But although the bishops of London, Winches fer, and Morceffer instantlie required the faid legat, that he would helpe to further the fame peace, yet he fore rebuked them, in that they would give their confent, so much to abase and bying wnder the kings rosall power. And bicause be might not be suffered to in frændlie wife was concluded.

taken

An.Reg.49.

enter the realme, he first cited them to appeare before him at Bullongine. And thereas they feemed to contemne his authoritie, and appeared not, he both ful pended the faid the bilhops, and ercommunicated the faid carles of Leicetter and Blocetter, and their complices, with the citie of London, and the cinque ports: but the forefaid bilhops, earlies and barons, frigning to make their appeales to the popes confiforie, or if need were, buto a generall councell and fo forth though indeed trusting more to the temporall to fword, than fearing the spirituall, they did not for bears to fair and heare blume fernice in thurthes and elfe-obere, as before they had done, till the comming of the caroinall Othobone.

The capteines and men of warre, whom the king had left at Eunbridge, immediatlie bpon the agree

Matth, Welt.

N.Triues.

The London

ners (poileb

ment concluded betweet the king and the barons, mere commanded by the B. to depart, a repaire enter rie man to his home; but they fearing the malice of their enimies, would not breake in funder, but keep- 20 ing togisher, went frait to Bistowe, and there remained, till the load Coward the kings fonne was escaped out of captivitie. But this is to be rememe bred, that before their departure from Tunbrioge, then by report of William be Saie, the escaping from the battell at Lewes, was come thither, they procession bow the matter had passed on both sides. and that the Londoners being chaled out of the field, were lodged at Croidon, about the evening tide they came thither, and affailing them in their lodgings, Que manie, and wan a great spoile. The earle of Leicefter and the barons having the rule of the king and realme in their hands, lought to oppresse all such as they knew to be against them, and not to like of their proceedings; namelie, the northerne lords, and those of the marthes of Wales, as the losd Posti mer and others: but waring herewith wilfull, they bled things with small discretion, which at length brought them to confusion. For the foure somes of the earle of Letcelter, Henrie, Buie, Simon, and an 40 other Benrie, which had ferued right worthilie indeed on the date of the battell, began to ware so proud, that in comparison of themselves, they despised all

Matt. West.

The earle of Darbie com=

thoniand men.

The loods of the marthes of Talales, as Roger de Portimer, James de Audelie, Roger de Clifford, Roger de Leibozne, Haimon le Strange, Hugh Turberuile, and other that had escaped from the battell at Leines, began to make against them that hav thus blurped the rule of the land, under colour of 50 bauing the king in their hands. The earle of Leice. Her advertised hereof, joined in league with Leolin prince of Wales, and comming with the king into those parts, entered into the castell of Pereford, into the which he remoued the losd Coward from Do uer, where he was first kept in ward, after he had palded himselfe at Lewes. After this, the earle of Leiceller recouered the castell of Paie, and wasting the lands and manours of the load Mostimer, conhis callell called Richar, and other his pottettions, were committed to the keeping of the load John Fitz John . Robert de Ferrers earle of Warbie. with a great puillance of horstemen and formen came to Cheffer, in favour of the earle of Leicester, against whome although William de Cousche, and Danid brother to the prince of Wales, taking the contrarie part with the lood James Audelie and other, came to incounter, vet they durft not abide him, but fled, and loft an hundred of their men.

In the meane time, the earle of Leiceffer procée ding in his businesse, wan the castell of Ludlow, and after marching towards Pontgomerie, whither were withdrawne, he confired them at length to a feigned agreement, so that they gave hostages, pro. The lords miling to come to the nert parlement that was ap Mortimer pointed to be holden, tibete they were banished the banished. land for a twelve moneths, and all the castels on the marthes in mainter from Billow to Cheller, were delivered to the earle. After this (as by Nicholas Trivet it aweareth) there was a great allemblic of men of warre made out of all parts of the realme, to telist such strangers as the queene (remaining in the parts beyond the feas) had got togither, meaning to fend them into England to all the king against the barons, and for that purpose had caused a great number of thips to be brought into the haven of Dam. But now that the king was in the barons hands, and that fuch a multitude of horffemen and Anarmie lobformen were affembled on Barham-downe (as a ged on Bar= man would not have thought had beene possible to ham-downs. have found within the whole reline) to relift the land. ing of those Arangers, the said Arangers were fent bome againe, without having done anie pleasure to the queene, other than spent hir monie. The king held Matth. West. his Chillmas at Modifoke; and the earle of Leice, 1 2 6 5 fer, tho feemed then to rule the thole realme, kept Chr. Dunftab. his Chilimalle at Billingworth.

After this, a parlement was holden at London in the octaves of faint Hilaric, and manie things were concluded, covenants accorded, and oths taken for performance by the k. and his fonne prince Boward, which thoutlie after came to little effect. Pet prince Edward, and Henrie the sonne and heire of the king of Almaine, which had beene kept as pleages about the tearms of nine moneths and od daies, were in the Lent following fet at libertie, vpon asturance made that the fato prince Coward thould remaine Abington, in the kings court, and not depart from thence with but licence of the king and certeine of the barons. We was also constrained to give buto the earle of Leicester the countie Palantine of Chester, before he might obteine to have so much libertie. Betweine Caffer and Whitfuntide, the earles of Leiceffer and Cloceffer fell at variance, through the presumptu ous demeanour of the earle of Leicelters formes, and also bicause the earle of Leicester would not deliver the king of Almaine and other pisoners buto the earle of Bloceffer, requiring to have the custodie of them, bicause he had taken them in the battell

The earle of Glocelter, perceluing himselfe not well bled, secretlie entred into confederacie with the losd Doztimer, and other of the marthes: thereppon the earle of Leicester having thereof some inkeling, came to Dereford, in purpole to have taken the earle of Gloceffer, and to have put him in fafe keeping as latelie before he had ferued the earle of Darbie. But by the practice of the lord Portimer, Chortlie after the lord Edward or prince Edward (thether pe lift to call him)affaieng abroad in the fields an horffe or two, such as he should ble at fulls and toznies, which Areined Hugh Portimer to yeeld himselse, so that 60 were appointed to be holden, he mounted at length bpon a light courser, which the said losd Postimer had fent to him; and bidding the losd Robert Ros Wince Ed and other (that were appointed to attend on him, as ward eleapeth his keepers) farewell, he galloped from them, and Matth. West. could not be overtaken of them that pursued him, till at length he came to the losd Postimer, who with a great trope of men was come fouth of his castell of Migmore to receive him. This was on the thurf daie in Whitfunweke.

About the same time, the earle of Warren, with William de Walence earle of Penbroke, the kings halfe brother, and others, tho (as ye have heard) fled from the battell at Lewes, were now returned into the realme, landing first in Southwales with a ED D.f. power

the logos Roger de Postimer, and James Audelie

The earle of

De wan win-

The armic of the earle of Leicefters

fonne is bif-

A)onmouth

Ebe battell of Eucham.

Polydor.

taben.

comfited.

N.Triuet.

Leicefters fonne raifeth an armic.

chefter.

power of croffebolies and other men of warre, the with hearing that the losd Coward was thus elcaped out of captuitie, came to Lublow, and there iois ned with him, and fo likewife did the earle of Gloce! fler. Howafter they had communed tegither, and were made france and confederate, they caused all the bridges to be broken, that the enimics should not come to oppelle them, till they had allembled all their forces, and palling forward towards Sloceller, wan lides, namelic those loos and capteins, which all the time fince the battell of Lewes had laine in Bit flow. After this they came to Worceffer, and entred there also. When the earle of Leicester was hereof advertised (tho in all this means time by order tay ken, was about the king, and ruled all things in the court he sent in all half onto his some Simon be Dontfort to raile a power of men, the which accordinglic affembled to him much people, and comming furrender, spoiled it, and flue the more part of the Zeives that inhabited there. Then he law frege to the castell, but hearing a feined rumo: that prince Coward was comming thither with his power, he departed from thence with his companie, and went to Billing worth.

holf came to lailing worth aforefaid, and there figh ting with the faid Simon de Montfort and his are toke prisoners the erie of Drford, the lords William de Pontchensie, Adam de Pewmarch, Baldwine

Wake, and Hugh Peuill, with diverse others: the loed Simon himfelfe fled into the caffell, and foefcas ped. In this meane while the earle of Leicester has uing railed his power, came to the castell of Mon-The caucilof mouth, which the earle of Glocoffer had latelic taken and fortified: but they that were within it being drie uen to yolo, it was now raced downe to the ground. This done, the earle of Leicelter entring into Gla-

On the last day of Julie, prince Coward with his morganshire, and joining his power with the prince of Wales, walted and burned the lands of the faid carle of Oloceffer: but hearing what his adversaries went about in other places, he returned from thence, and came forward towards the faid prince Coward, tholikewife made towards him, and at Guelham they met on the firt day of August, where was fought a verieflerce and cruell battell betwirt the parties. Some write, that the earle of Leicester placed king Henrie in the front of his battell, whom he had 50 there with him as captine, and had arraied him in his owne cote-armour, that if fortune went against him, while if the enimics thould be carnet to take the hing bearing the semblance of the chefe capteine, he might himselse escape : but king Henrie, üben they came to toine, fought not, but called to his people, and occlared tho he was, thereby he escaped the danger of death, for being knowne of them he was faucd. The Welthmen which in great numbers the earle of Leicester had there on his lide, at the first onset fled 60 and ran awaie; which their demeanoz, when the earle falu, he erhorted those that were about him to place the men, and for rulhing fouth into the prease of his enumics, he was inclosed about and flaine, togither with his forme Genrie. Gerebpon, his death being knowne, his people toke them to flight as men bi terlie discomfited. There died in that battell about 4000 men (as Polydor faith.) But Richard Southwell faith, there were killed of knights or rather men of armes 180, and of peomen or rather demilances 220, of Welchinen 5000, and of such swimen as were of the earle of Leicesters owne retinue 2000, so that there died in all to the number of ten thousand men, as the fame Southwell affirmeth. Among thom of noblemen, thefe are reckoned; Hogh Spenfer logo Much Med chefe inflice, the lord Rafe Baffet, the lord Peter de Montfort, the lood John Beauchampe, fir Edilliam Porko, the lord Thomas de Cherlie, the lord Walter de Cremings, Quie de Baliell a Frenchman, the loed William be Pandeuill, the loed Roger S. John, the lood Robert Tregos, and others.

This ruine fell to the barous by the discord which was from latelie before, betwirt the carles of Let The mited the citie, and fill came people unto them from all 10 ceffer and Sloceffer, through the infolencie and pride the cities. of the earle of Actesters sources, who as I sao be fone bin fore delpiling other of the nabilitie, and forgetting in gether he the means time the nature of true and bustained no tons to conbleneffe, therof it is faid and trulie remembred, that fullon, Nobilitis morum plus ornes quangenitorum, spake manie reprochfull words by the said earle of Glocefter, and pled him in fuch enill fort, that he opon displeasure thereof, had not onelie procured the frape of prince Coward, but foined with him in aid. with the same onto Winchester, wan the citie by 20 against the said earle of Letcester; and other of the base rons, to the otter confusion, both of them and of their cause. The bodie of the samoearle was thannefullie abuled cut in pæces, his head and his prince members were cut off, and fastened on either fide of his nose, and presented but the wife of the lord Roger Mortimer.

The people conceined an opinion, that this earle Polydor, being thus flaine, fighting in defense of the liberties of the realme, e performance of his oth, as they toke mie, with little flaughter discomfited the fame, and 30 it, died a marty: which by the banted holinefle of his passed life and miracles ascribed to him after his death, was greatlie confirmed in the next age, But the feare of the kings displeasure stated the people from halfie honouring him as a faint at this time, where other wife, they were inclined greatlie thereto, reputing him for no lefte in their confcience, as in fer eret talke they would not flicke to biter. These were wounded taken, belides the other that were flaine March Well at that battell of Euelham, Guie de Bontfort, the earle of Leicesters sonne, the loods John Sitt John, Henrie de Hallings, Humfrie de Bohun the ponger, John de Clefcie, Peter de Pontfort the ponger, and Picholas de Segrane with others. The king being delivered out of his adverfaries hands, and likelyste the king of Komans, went onto Warwike, and there increasing his power, determined to purlue his entimies.

But first, about the Pativitic of our ladie was a But here, about the Patients of our isole was a patient parlement holden at Alinchester, where the statuts at wishes of Drfoed ivere cleerelie repealed. Also, all such as fter. had favoured the barons, and were as then either in prilonor abroad, should be disherited. It was also ordeined at this parlement, that the wealthick citisens of London thould be cast into prison, and that the citie Chould be deprined of hir liberties. Also, that the fulps and theins, therewith the firets were fensed, thould be had awaie, bicause that the citizens had aided the earle of Leiceller against the king and his realme. All this was done, for the chefe citizens were committed to ward within the caffle of Winds (02, till they had pato no small summes of monie for their fines. The liberties of the citic were suspended, and the towize of London was made stronger by the fulps and chains which were brought into it out of the citie. Bozeoner, bicause Simon de Pontfort might not agree with the king, being come to this parlement open affurance, he was reflezed to the caffell of Billingworth.

Affer this, in the feaft of the translation of S.Co. A parison ward, a parlement was holden at acceliminater, and at wellmin the sentence of disheriting the kings adversaries ster. was pronounced against them, whose lands the bing forthwith gave buto his truftie subicas, where he thought god. Some of the differited men redés men fled.

The wellh:

The carle of Leiceller flaine.

Crle Ferrers

Fabian. Anno Reg. 50. Che citic of leile to the IR.

The Londo: ners put to their fine. Cardinali D= thobone the

One Othon

Nic.Treuct Che legat holoetha (p= nodat Mozthempton.

Matt.VVeft. hon was pro: councell hol= den by the a: Paules as Fabian faith. latth.Weft.

nuotheir possessions, with a postion of monte, in name of a fine. Dither of them flocking togither, got them into the woods and defert places, where keeping them out of fight as outlawes, they lined by spoiles and robberics. The chafest of them was Robert erle of Ferrers, who neverthelette was restored to his lands, but yet with condition, that if afterwards he fell into the like crime, he fould forfeit his earldome for euer. The Londoners with much ado, at length, obteined pardon of the king. The maior and alder: 10 men of the citie were glad to submit themselues, though the commons, without confideration of the great perill which they were in , would have food fill at defiance with the king, and defended the citie against him. It was no maruell though they were of diuctle and contrarie opinions, for in thole daies, the citie was inhabited with manie and fundzie nations which then were admitted for citizens. At length, bp. on their submission, the king toke them to mercie, pon their fine, which was leized at twentie thouland 20 marks.

About Alhallowentide, cardinall Athobone came from the pope into England as his legat, to helpe towards some agreement to be had betweet the king and his barons . He was committed to pillon (as forme write) by the Londoners , for that he spake a gainst their doings, when they that their gates as gainst the king; but he was shootlie released as hould appeare. On the firt day of Pouember in the fifith yeare of his reigne, king Penrie came to 30 Meliminster, and thootlie after, he gaue awaie the number of the escape houses, with the houshold stuffe in the same conteined, so that the owners were compelled to redeeme them agains of those his servants. to whome he had given the faid houles, togither with all fuch lands, goods and cattels, as the fame citizens had within any part of England. Then was one called fir Dithon made cuffos or gardian of the citic, tho was also conestable of the tower, he chose to be bailiffes, and to be accomptable to the kings vie. 4 John Adian, and Walter Penrie, citizens of the same citie. The king also twke pleages of the best mens formes of the citie, which pleages he caused to beput in the tower, and there kept at the colls of their parents. The king by adulte of his councell ordeined, that within everie thire of the relme, there thould be a capteine of lieutenant appointed with ne cellarie allowance of the king for his charges, the which, with the affiffance of the thiriffe, thould punith and have downe the wicked outrage of theues and 5 robbers, which in time of the late civill warres were fprong op in great numbers, and growen to erceding great bolonelle; but now, through feare of deferued punishment, they began to cease from their accustomed rapine, and the kings power came a gaine in estimation, so that peace after a manner toke new rot and increase.

Apon S. Micholas even, the king departed from Welfminster, towards Posthampton, where the cardinall Othoboneheld a fonod, and according to that he had in commandement, pronounced' all the kings adverfacies accurated, and namelie all the bi thops which had aided the barons against the king, in time of the late warres, of whome afterward he This inspen- absolued the most part. But John bishop of Winthe Her, Henrie bishop of London, and Stephan bishop of Thichester were sent to Rome, to purchase their absolution of pope Clement the fourth, as well for o ther points of disobedience, as cheeflie for that, where the quene had procured a curffe of pope Arbane the fourth, that was prevered to this Clement, to accurife all the barons and their supporters, which war red against the hirig hir busband: the said bishops to whome the commission was fent to benounce that curife) for feare of the barons deferred the execution. Waiter bilhop of Worceffer; chancing to fall ficke at that time, died about the beginning of Febzuarie, confesting first, that he had gracuouslie erred, in mainteining the fide of the erle of Leicester against the king, and therefore directed his letters to the popes legat, requiring to be absolued, which his petition the legat granted. Dozeover, in this councell at N. Trives. Posthampton, there was published by the cardinall a grant, made to the king by the pope, of the difmes of the english thurth for one whole yeare then next infoing.

A little before the kings departure from London now in this last time, he oppoined sir John Linde knicht, and maifter John Waldzen clearke, to be gardians of the citie and tower, by the names of lenethals or frewards : but fuch earnest fuit was made to the king, to obteine a perfea pardon for the Londoners, that at length after the aforesaid feneshals had taken sucrtices for the paiment of their fine, the la. caused his charter of pardon to be made binder his broad feale, and fent it binto them, wherein The London all former trespattes committed by them in the last ners pardoed. warres was clærelie pardoned; certeine persons, whole bodies and gods were given buto his eldeft fonne Edward ercepted out of the fame pardon. This charter was dated at Posthampton, the tenth day of Januarie, in the fiftith pere of king henries reigne. Fabian. Then allo were dicharged the forefait fenethals, and the citizens of themselves chose for maioz, William Fit; Kichard; and for Chiriffs, Thomas de la Fourd, and Gregozie de Rockelleg.

Whilest the king late at Porthampton, the lord Simon De Simon de Pontfort put himfelfe vpon the dome Montfort. and order of the legat Othobone, and was therefore permitted to be at large in the kings court : but at the kings comming to London, he suddenlie departed out of the court, and rode to Minchellie, where he affociated himfelfe with rouers, and after forme prices taken, departed from them, and went info France, where he offered his feruice to the French Matth. Weft. king, and was received. Thus faith Matthew West- Polydor. minster, and other. But Polydor faith, that by Dtho bons means, he was reconciled to the kings favour; and therebpon to audid occasion of further displeas fure hexommanded that the castell of Billingworth Mould be restozed onto the king, which the capterne refused to deliner, having fortified it with all manner of provision, and things necessarie to defend a Gege.

The wardens of the cinque ports, which (buring Fabian the time of the barons warre) had done manie robe. The warries on the lea, as well against the Englishmen as bens of the other. were at length reconciled to the king, who was faine to agree with them boon such conditions as the king. they thought good bicause at that time (as the comon Matth. West, fame ment) they had the dominion of the fea in their owne hands. But in some writers we find it thus recorded, that then certeine priloners which were kept by the barous of the cinque ports in the castell of Douer, heard how all things prospered on the kings five, they got possession of a tower within the same castell, and twke boon them to descend it against their keepers; whereof when advertisement was given to the king and to his sonne the lood Coward, they have fled forth to come & fuccour their frænds. The keepers of the castell, perceining themselnes belet with their Doner castell enimies, fent to the king for peace, tho granting belivered to them pardon of life and limme, with horde, armour the king. and other fuch necessaries, the castell was period but tohis hands . From thence, prince Edward depart ting vilifed the lea coalts, punishing diverse of the inhabitants within the precinct of the cinque poets, and putting them in feare, received diverse to theking Do.ci.

1266

concilco to Euerfden.

winchellie Swon by force.

Matth. westm. The Zie of Drholme.

Abington. Lincoine taken. N.Triuet.

Rillingworth caltell fozti= ficd against the king.

3dam Gur=

Chefterfieto.

Euersden.

#13.

Pet the lood John o' Guille brake out, and incountring with fir Gilbert Hanlard, ouerthiew him, and escaped out of danger. Great flaughter was made on ech hand, and in the meane while the Pobles and gentlemen fought to get out of perill by flight. The earle of Darbie got into a church, but he was descried by a woman, and so was taken. Ehere were manie other also taken: ; amongst them the logo Wald wine Wake, and fir John de la Paie with much paine escaped. This battell was foughten about the midit of Paie, or upon Whitlun ceue, as the Chroni- 60 cle of Dunstable laith. Those that escaped, as the load Johnd' Cuille and others, gaue not over pet, but alfembling themfelnes togither in companies, keeping within woods and other defert places, brake out of tentimes, and did much mischefe. On the ninthof August they take the Fle of Elic, and so strengthned it, that they held it a long time after, spoiling and rob bing the countries round about them, as Postfolke, Suffolke, and Cambudgefhire.

The bilhop of Clie had undertaken to keepe the Ale to the kings ofe, but being now dispossessed therof, he got him awaic, and fell to curling them that were thus entred against his will, but they formed to his fathers peace. The inhabitants of Winchellie onelie made countenance to reuft him, but prince Coward with valiant affaults entred the towne, in which entrie much guiltie bloud was fpilt, but yet the multitude by commandement of prince Coward was spared. And thus haning wone the towne, he commanded that from thenceforth they should abs feine from piracies, which they had before time greatlie vico. Thus were the leas made quiet, and those of the cinque posts brought to the kings peace, 10 and throughlic reconciled.

In this meane will diverse of the disherited gentlemen, fore repining at the fentence and order given against them, had taken the 3le of Orholme in Lincolnethire, whither a great number of cuill do ers immediatlie reforted, and began to do milchefe in all the countries nert adjoining. They toke and facked the citie of Lincolne, spoiled the Zelves, and flue manic of them, entred their lynagog, and burnt the boke of their law. At length prince Coward, 02 20 (as other faie) his brother carle Comund, was fent against them, tho compelled them by force to come to the kings peace, which to observe, they received an oth thoulic after at London, but neverthelette were as force readie to breake and renounce the fame, and began a new broile in fundrie parts of the realme. Diverse of them fortified the castell of Billing worth, proutoing themsclues of all things necessarie for defense out of the countries adjoining. The king aduertifed hereof, fent buto them a purseuant, com-The bings manding them to ceale trough receivious accomples, pursuant had but the mellenger had one of his hands cut off, and so manding them to cease fro such rebellious attempts. 30 with a contemptuous answer was sent back againe.

Prince Coward in palling through the forrest of Aulton, got light of fir Adam Gurdon one of the difherited men, with whome he coped and take him prisoner with his owne hand, pet fauing him, and par-Matth. Wellm. Doning the offense of rebellion, in respect of the ball ancie which he trico by profe to rest in him: but his foldiers and complices being there taken, he caused 40 to be hanged opon trees within the same forrest. Robert earle Ferrers contrarie to his oth of late receiued, accompanied with the load d' Cuille and others. did much hurt by way of open war against the kings freends in the north parts. Against whom the lord Henrie, sonne to the king of Almaine was fent with agreat power: the which comming to Chesterfield fell The battell of opon his enimics in such wife on the sudden, that they had not time to arme themselnes, and so were diffrested and ouercome.

passetifle boon his thundering eccommunications. On the 16 of December, they came to the citie of Anima Dozwich; and spoiling it, twhe manie of the wealthie lacken citizens, and ransonied them at great summes of monie. The losd Henrie Haffings and Simon de Patelhull, with diverse others, got them into the car fell of killing worth, and daille went forth at their pleasures, spoiling and wasting the townes about them, og cauling them to fine with them to be spared. Chron, De And this they forced not to do, although the lord Co mund the kings sonne late in Taarwike, to cut them thoat of such their licentious doings. The king ther, fore mening to have the fair castels of Billingworth The light by force, began his stege about the same boon the & Lillingue uenof S. John Baptiff. But the loss Henric Ha callulings flings, the capteine of that castell, and other his com Che lon plices befended it to Aronglie, that though the king halings, inforced his power to the ottermost to win it of them, pet could be not anie thing prevaile, till at Anno Regg length vittels began to faile them within, and then boon the œuen of faint Thomas the apostle before Christmalle, the lord Henrie Hastings delivered the faid castell into the kings haves, boon condition that killing he and all other Chould have life and limme, house roots the and armour, with all things within the place to them belonging. And thus this fiege had continued from the 26 of June onto the 20 day of December. There is to be remembred, that at the beginning of the siege, there were within the castell a thousand and feuen hundred armed men, and eight score women, beffoe lackies and cofferels. Here is also to be remembred, that whilest the siege late before killing, worth, by the adulte of the kings councell, and of the legat Dthobone, there were twelve peres appointed and cholen fouth, which thould denife and make ordimances touching the frate of the realme, and the dif herited persons, who according to their commission on, ordefred certeine provisions, the which are conteined within the statute intituled Dictum de Kil- Diftumde lingworth. The king after that the castell of Billing, Killingworth worth was delivered to his hand, left therein his Abing Sonne Comund, and went himselfe to Couentrie 02 Matth, Web (as other have) to Orfoed, and there held his Chille maile. Shootlie after comming to Welesiminster he Fperious held a parlement there, fludieng to let a quietnesse at wellows in all matters and controverties depending betwirt fier. him and the barons. In this parlement fentence was given against earle Ferrers for the forfeiture of his Earle for earledome: then was Comund the kings ponger tres dian forme put in possession both of the earledome of Dar teo. bie and Leicelter.

On the firt of Februarie being fundaie, the king came to S. Comundiburie, and faieng there till the tivo and tiventith of the same moneth, set foreward that day fowards Cambridge, where he late with his armie, the better to batole them that kept the Ile of Clie against him. De laie there all the Lent scason. And in the meane time the earle of Gloceffer taking Theenks great displeasure, for that he might not have his Glocofin will, as well for the banithing of frangers, as for re- with an arm fitution to be made buto the differited men of Lendon their lands, he began a new Aurre, and allembling a great power in the marthes of Wales camenere onto London, pretending at the first as though he bad come to aid the king, at length he got licence of the maio: and citizens to palle through the citie into Southwarks, where he lodged with his people, and thither came to him Moutlie fir John d'Emlle, by Southeric lide, bringing with him a great come

The maior caused the bridge and water fide to be kept and watched both day and night with armed men, and eneric night was the drawbridge drawns by : but within a while the earle vied the matter lo, that he was permitted to lodge within the citie with certeine of his men, by reason whereof, he ozew more and more of his people into the citie, fo that in the end he was maiffer of the citie, and in Galfer wake twice the keies of the bridge into his hands. The legat comming footh of the towie, repaired to the church of S. Paule, binder a colour to preach the croffer, but in the end of that his erhortation, he turned his words to the earle of Glocetter, admontth. ing him to obeie the king as he was bound by his 10 allegiance. And further, whereas the earle had given commandement that no victuals thould be fuffered to be brought into the tower there the popes legat was longed, he thought himselfe euilt vied in that be, halfe, fith he was a mediator for peace, and no partaher. But ichen the earle fæmed to give fmall regard to his words, he got him fecretlic againe into the tower, with certeine noble men the kings frænds, meaning to defend it buto the bttermost of their powers.

The legat nomonisheth the carte of obcie the bing.

The legat & the earle of Glocefter.

The citizens new officers.

Bamley,

hire foldiers to affift him.

Tient B. remo:

There entred also into the tower a great number of Jewes with their wives and children, buto whome one ward of the tower was committed to defend. which they did in that necessitie verie Coutlie. Manie of the citizens fearing a new infurrection auotoed out of the citie, whose gods the earle seized into his owne ble, or luffered his men to spoile the same at their pleasures. The most part of all the commons of the citie toke part with the earle, and in a tumult got them to the Buildhall, and there thole for their 30 maioroz custos of the citie, Richard de Colworth knight, and for bailiffes, Kobert de Linton and Roger Parthall, discharging the old maio; and thiriffes of their romes. Diverse albermen were committed topallon, and their gods lequelired, and much part thereof spoiled. Also all such persons as were passo, Prisoneratet ners in Pewgate, Ludgate, Creplegate, 02 in any other prison about the citie, for the quarrell of the barons warre, were fet at libertie.

The legat perceiuing such disorder, accurssed genes 40 The legal ac rallie all such as thus troubled the kings peace, the w traine an initial and the medical from the first to the king and the realine. He also interdicted all the churches within the citie and about it. licencing onlie divine fervice to be faid in houses of religion, and without ringing of any bell or finging : and whilest feruice was in hand, he appointed the church dones to be thut, bicause none of them that frod accurated, thould enter and be prefent. Theking late The king in the meane time late at Cambridge to at Cambridge befond the countries about from injuries, which 50 were dailie attempted by them that held the Tle of Clie against him, of whome at one time he distressed a certeine number at Kamley. And bicause now af fer that the earle was thus come to London, another companie of them brake out to rob and spoile, and were stopped by the kings power from entring into the Ile againe, they revaired freight to London, do ing mildbæfe inough by the waie.

The carle of Glocester greatlie incouraged by their affiliance, fell in hand to affaile the tower, with 60 in the which the popes legat Othobone, and diverse other were inclosed, taking upon them to defend it against the earle and all his puissance. The king 'bpshbard hift on the first neives of the earle of Glocester his commotion, ingaged the thines of faints, and other ielucls and relikes of the church of Wieffminster unto certeine merchants for great summes of monie, with the which fending into France and Scotland, he reteined men of warre to come to his aid . Herebpon his sonne prince Coward came to his succour buto Cambridge, bringing thither with him thirtie thousand able men out of the north parts, Scots and orth towards other. The king then leaving a convenient number to defend Cambitoge, marched from thence toward Waindloze. After his comming thither, his armie dailie increased. The earle of Glocester and his complices, began to feare the matter, and fent to him for peace which could not be granted: where byon they amointed to give him batell opon Houndlow heath. The king comming thither in the morning, found no man there to relift him , and therefore, after he had Maied there a certeine space, he marched forth and The king came to Stratford, where he was longed in the abs commeth to beie : his hoad incamped and late at Ham and there Ethian abouts.

This thanced about the weekes after Caffet. Matth. Weekm. The fouldiers which late in London and in South warke, did much hurt about in the countrie of Sou therie, elic-there. They also spoiled the towne of Weltminffer, and the parish-church there: but the wellminfter monks and the good belonging to the abbete they fpoted. touched not, but made hauocke in the kings pas lace, drinking by a destroteng his wine, breaking the 20 glasse windowes, and defacing the buildings most diforderlie, yea fearle forbeating to fet the house on fire. Also there were of them that brake up a robbed certeine houses in London, of the which milgonerned persons there were foure taken, that ware the cognifance of the earle of Darbie, whome the earle of Sodders fac-Gloceffer caused to be put in sackes, and so theowne wen into the into the Ahames.

As the king thus laic at Stratford, there came but o him from the parts of beyond the fea, the earle The earles of of Bullongne, and S. Paule, with two hundred men Bullongne & of armes, and their luit of other fouldiers. Alfo there A fict of Gafariued in the Thames a fleet of great veffels fraught coins come to with Balcoins, and late afore the tower, abiding the the bings aid. kings pleasure. The earle of Glocester had caused bulworks and barbicans to be made betwirt the tower and the citie; and also in sundate places where need required ditches and trenches were cast, so that the citie was aronglie fortifico. Howbeit now that the faid erle and his complices perceived themselves in manner as belieged, they lought for peace. And by mediation of the king of Almaine, the love Hillip Abington.

Ballet and the legat Diffusione, the fame man grant. I prace con-Ballet and the legat Dthobone, the fame was gran clubed. ted, the ordinance of Killingworth in everie condition on observed. The Londoners were pardoned of The Londo: their trespace for receiving the earle, though they ners pardoned were confireined to paie a thousand marks to the king of Romans, in recompense of the hurts done to him in burning of his house at Thisseworth.

Whilest the earle of Glocester kept the citie of Chron. Dun, London against the king, one Benrie de Buderesch, Buderesch. feward to the fate earle, departing from London, came to the manour house of Geffrey faint Leger at Offelo, which he burnt, and turning from thence came to Buckhill. The load Reignold Braie that Theload held of the knights part, advertised hercof, followed Grace. him with his retinue of men of warre, and comming bpon his enimie at buwares, twhe the faid Henrie, and flue thirtie of the chéfest of his companic, some he take, howbeit manie escaped. But now to our purpole. By this agreement concluded befwirt the king & the earle of Gloceffer, he also accepted to his grace the low John Cineley, the low Dichelas de Segraue, the lood William Parmion, the lood Richard de Graie, the load John Fitz John, and the loed Bilbert de Lucie, with others : fo'that all parts of the realme were quieted, faving that those in the Ale of Elie would not submit themselves : pet at length by mediation of prince Coward they were reconciled to the king, and all the fortrelles and befenles within that Ille by them made, were plucked downe and deffroicd.

But it appeareth by other writers, that immediate Eversden. lie after the agræment concluded betwirt the earle of Gloceffer, prince Coward the kings sonne, by fet, DD.fr.

Chames.

ting workemen in hand to make a causse through the fens with bords and hurdels, entred woon them that kept the Fle of Clie, so that manie of them got out, and fled to London buto the faid earle of Gloce. ffer, and other their complices. The relidue fubmit. ted themselves, as the lood Wake, Simon Ponts fort the younger, the Pethees and other, byon conditi on to be parboned of life and member: and further, that prince Coward hould be a meane to his father to receive them into favour. But by other it may , rather fæme, that some of them kept and befended themselves within that 3le, till after the agræment made betwirt the king and the earle of Gloceffer. 1By oeder of which agraement there were foure blthops and eight loads chosen fouth, which had beene first nominated at Coventrie, to order and prescribe betwire the king and the differited men a forme of peace and redemption of their lands. And so in the Anno Reg. 52. feath of All faints, proclamation was made of a full paic for his ranfome for redenting his offense & gainst the king.

In the occaues of S. Wartine, the king held a par-lement at Parlebosough, where the liberties conteb ned in the boke called Magna charta were coffrmed, and also diverse other god and wholesome ordinances concerning the state of the common-wealth were established and enaced. ¶ In the moneth of Appill there chanced great thunder, tempestuous raine, and continuing for the space of fifteene vales togither. The legat Dthobone, after he had in the spnoos how den at Posthampton and London, deutled and made manie orders and rules for thurthmen, and levied a mongst them great summes of monte, finallie in the moneth of Julie, he take leave of the king and returned to Rome, where after the decease of Inno.

cent the fift, about the yeare of our Lord 1276 he was chosen pope, and named Adrian the fift, living not past 50 daies after . He went so neere hand to learth 40 out things at his going awaie, that he had inrolled

the true value of all the churches and benefices in ther great loods of England before this legats departure out of the realme, received the croffe at his hands in Porthampton on Midlummer day, meaning thortlie after according to promife there made, to go into the bolie land to warre against Gods e nimics. In this yeare fell great variance betweene 50 and tailors within the citie of London, therebuto e-nill words flowing from the tong gave originall, for Prince Coward the kings fonne, and diverte o.

England, and toke the note with him to Kome.

3 parlement at Maric: bozough.

The legat Dthobone returneth to Rome. Dthobone chosen pope.

Abington.

Prince Co= ward recei= croffe.

Fabian. A fraicin Lo- the corporations or fellowihips of the goldsmiths the golo= fmuths and tailorg.

Pondus valde grane verbosum vas sine claue, so that one eucning there were assembled to the number of five hundred in the firets in armour, and running togither made a fowle fraie, to that manie were wounded and some slaine. But the thiriffes hearing thereof, came & parted them, with affiliance of other trades, and fent diverte of them being taken 60 buto pulou, of the which there were arreigned to the and hanged.

Anno. Reg. 53. Chames frofen.

In the fiftic otherd years of king Henries reigne. there was such an erceding great frost, beginning at faint Andrewestide, and continuing till it was niere candlematte, that the Thames from the bridge bowards was so hard frolen, that men and beates palled ouer on fet from Lambeth to Welftminffer, and so wellward in dinerse places by to Lingston. Alfo merchandise was brought from Sandwich and other places buto London by land. For the thips by reason of the yee could not enter the Thames. And about the feast of S. Aedast, which falleth on the 6 of number of thirtie, and thirtiene of them condemned

Februarie, fell fogreat abundance of raine, that the Thames role to high, as it had not done at any time before, to remembrance of men then living; to that the cellars and baults in London by the water fide were drowned, and much merchandize marred & loff.

About S. Georges day there was a parlement Abington holden at London, for the appealing of a controuer- 3 parlement holden at London, to, the appearing of a contestat bolten at fie depending betwirt prince Coward the kings fon bolten at London. and the earle of Gloceffer: at the which parlement were present almost all the prelats and pieces of the realme. At length they put the matter in compromile into the hands of the king of Almaine, bnocre taking to be ordred by him high and low touching all controverties : and likebile for the fournie to be made into the holie land, but the king of Almaine dio little in the matter to any great effect. The beginning of Lent the king game to his fonne prince Coward the rule of the citie of London, with all the revenues and profits thereto belonging. After which accord and agreement, and that everie man thould 20 giff, the laid prince made fir Hugh Fitz Dithon con-Stable of the towie and custos of the citie of London. I Apon the ninth day of Appill, Edmund the kings fonne, furnamed Crouchbacke, married at West minifer Auelina the daughter of the earle of Aumarle. Prince Colward commanded the citizens of Prince London to present buto him fix citizens, of the which ward appear number he might nominate two thiriffes, and fo av, teth the ma pointed William de Hadstocke and Anketill de Al and furdir of London berne, which were fluozne to be accomptants as their flouds, occasioned by the same, verie soze a hourible, 30 predecessours had beene.

In those dates a new custome or toll was bled to be paid, which prince Edward let to farme buto certeine strangers, for the summe of twentie marks by peare. Wherefore the citizens being greeued there with, bought it of him for tino hundred marks. Also this peare there was granted to the king towards his fournie by him purposed into the holie land, the twentith penie of everie mans moveable gods the analogo coughout the realine of the laie fee, and of the spiritue too to his his altie was granted by the affent of pope Gregoric the tenth, thee dilmes to be gathered within the terms of the yeares. This yeare the kings sonne the losd The librals Edward obtained a confirmation for the citie of of the citie London of the charter of the ancient liberties, so that confirmed the citizens did then chose buto them a maio: and two thiriffes, which thiriffes by vertue of the same charter, had their office to farme, in maner as before Thermal time was acculioned: saving that there they paid the farmed afore but three hundred and fiftie pounds, they paid the farmed now foure hundred and fiftie pounds. After which of London confirmation granted and passed under the kings increased. broad feale, they chose for their maior John Adrian, and for thiriffes Walter Potter and John Zailoz, the which incre presented the 16 day of Julie buto the king at Wellminster by his sonne prince Coward, and there admitted and fwome. Then was fir Hugh Fitz Dthon discharged of the rule of the citie. The citizens of their owne frewill gave buto the king an bundeed marks, and to his fonne prince Coward fine hundred markes. There was no great dilorder at Chron, Duit tempted this yeare to the disquieting of the realme, fauing that certeine of the disperited gentlemen that belonged to the earle of Darbie, withdrew buto the forrest of the Peake in Darbishire, and there making their above, spoiled and wasted the countries nert adjoining.

In the moneth of Paie, prince Colvard the kings Anno Reg. ! fonne fet forward on his fournie towards the holie land, and taking the fea at Douer , paffed ouer into Wilking. France, and came to Burdeaux, there he faled a Prince Co while, and after went to Agues Hortes, and there ward fent twhe Chipping, first failing as some in-its bate star. former of toke thipping, first failing (as some write) buto Thu wards # nis, there the chiffian armie, which Lewes the holiciant French king as then deceasied had brought thither, was readie to depart, and to prince Coward, with the new French king Lewes and other princes valled ouer into Sicill, where he folourned for the winter time. In this yeare the king was bered with a gree, Main. Weit. chebing fich nons fichnteffe: and the Iriffimen in rebellion flue a areat fort of Englishmen, as well magistrats, as o. thers in that countrie.

Matth. West.

When the spring of the yeare began to approach. Anno Reg. 55. prince Coward efflones toke the fea, and finallie arrinco at Acres with a thouland cholen men of warre, 10 though there be writers that aftirme, how there arris ned with him of fundair countries five thousand hoad men, and double the same number of formen. But amongs those that went out of England with him. thefe we find as principall, John de Britaine, John de Aclcie, Dies de Brantlon, and Robert de Brule. befides other. Of his noble chivalrie there atchived, vie thall find a briefe note in the description of the hos lie land, and therefore here we omit the same . How beit this is to be remembred, that whilest the load Co 2 ward foliomed there in the citie of Acres, he was in great danger to haue beene flaine by treason : for a traitozous Saracen of that generation which are called Arfacida, and latelie reteined by the fame load Coward, and become verie familiar with him, found means one day as he fat in his chamber, to give him the wounds, which fuerlie had cost him his life, but that one of the princes chamberleins stated the trais he wounded.

Port Japha.

Drince Co=

at Meres.

Abington.

Arlacide, of fome named

Maffint.

ward arriveth

There be that write, how prince Coward him felse, perceiving the traitor to Arike at his bellie, marded the blowe with his arme: and as the Sara cen offered to have friken againe, he thauft him backe to the ground with his fot, and catching him by the hand, weeked the knife from him, and theufting him into the bellie, so killed him, though in Arugling with him, he was hurt againe a little in the forhead: and his fernants withall comming to helpe him, one 4 of them that was his mulician, got bp a treffill and Aroke out the braines of the traitor, as he laie dead on the ground, and was blamed of his maister for Ariking him, after he faw him once dead before his face, as he might perceine him to be . Some write, that this traitor was fent from the great admerall of Japa, on mellage to the prince Coward, and had bene with him diverfe times before, & now making countenance to take forth letters, got forth his knife, cuer the man was, the prince was in great danger, by reason of the envenimed knife therewith he mas wounded, so that it was long per he could be perfect The genera: lie whole. These Saracens called Arfacida, are a wicthunofth are kedgeneration of men, infected with fuch a superfit tious opinion, that they believe heavenlie bliffe is purchased of them, if they can by anie means are one of the enimies of their religion, a luffer themselves for that fact the most cruell death that may be deule fed. Prince Coward, after he was whole and reco. 60 Anno Reg. 36. nered of his wounds, perceining that no fuch aid came into those parts out of chaiffendome, as was lwked for twke a truce with the enimies of our faith, and returned towards England, as hereafter Mall

On the fourth nones of Appill (as some saie) of in the moneth of Februarie (as other write) in the fir and fifith yeare of I. Penries reigne at Berkhamsteo.

died Richard king of Almaine and earle of Comes wall, and was buried in the abbeie of Patles which he himselfe had founded : he was a worthie prince, and flood his brother king Henrie in great flead, in handling matters both in peace and warre. He left behind him issue begotten of his wife Sanala two 1272 Nic.Triuct. Matth. West. The creage the king of Timaine.

be thewed.

Pis auc.

he that brought the bloo of Bails out of Germanie: of Cornewall, for as he was there bpon a time with his father, it chanced that as he was beholding the relikes, and other pretious monuments of the ancient emperors, he espied a bor of gold: by the inscription whereof he perceived (as the opinion of men then game) that therein was conteined a postion of the bloud of our fautour. We therefore, being delirous to have some part thereof, so intreated him that had the keeping of it, that he obteined his delire, and brought it over with him into England, bestowing a third part thereof after his fathers decease in the abbeie of Hailes, as The blond of it were to adorne and inrich the fame, bicause that waiter. therein both his father and mother were buried; and the other two parts he did referue in his owne cultodie, till at length moued boon such devotion as was then bled he founded an abbeie a little from his mas nour of Berkhamsteed: which abbeie was named Alhang in the which he placed monks of the oader of Alhang aba Bonhommes, being the first that ever had beene beie built. fæne of that order here in England. And here with he also assigned the two other parts of that bloud to the fame abbeie. Wherevoon followed great refort of people to those two places, induced therebuto by a certeine blind denotion.

Henrie the brother of this Comund, and sonne to The L. Hen= to; s hand, and somewhat hake the strokes, till other structures from the foresand king of Almaine, as he returned from the fix of Affrike, where he had been e with prince Coward, mains marked. was flaine at Afterbo in Italie (whither he was red in Italic. come about butinesse which he had to do with the pope) by the hand of Buie de Pontfort, the sonne of Simon de Pontfort earle of Leicelfer, in reuenge of the fame Simons death. This murther was committed afoze the high altar, as the fame Henric knee led there to heare divine fervice. The forefaid Buie bpon that murther committed, fled buto his father in law, the earle of Anguilare, then governour of Tulkain. There was at Uiterbo the same time Philip king of France, returning homewards from the iournie which his father made into Affrike, where he died. Also Charles king of Sicill was there prefent, thome the faid Buie then ferued. Both those kings were put in much blame, for that the murther and wilfull escape was done and suffred in their presence and no pursuit made after the murtherer. Boniface Robert Bilthe archbilhop of Canturburie, when he had ruled the warbie archb fea feauen and thirtie yeares, departed this life : and of Caturbaris and attempted to to have wrought his feat. What for so after his decease, about two yeares or more, was one Robert Kilwarbie appointed in his place by pope Gregozie, which Kobert was the fir and fortith arch. bilhop that had governed the lee of Canturburie.

About the moneth of June there fell great des bate and discord betwirt the monks of Porwich and the citizens there; which increased so farre, that at length the citizens with great violence affaulted the monasterie, fired the gates, and forced the fire so with twonks and reed and drie wod, that the church with the bokes, and citizens of all other ornaments of the same, and all houses of Morwich. office belonging to that abbete were cleane burned, walted, and deftroied, so that nothing was preferued ercept one little chapell. The king hearing of this riot, rode to Posivich, and cauling inquirie to be made thereof, thirtie young men of the citie were condem. Thirtie of the ned, hanged and burnt, to the great greefe of the other Morwich han citizens, for they thought that the priour of the place ged and burnt, mas the occasion of all that mischeste, tho had got togither armed men, and toke boon him to keepe the belfrate and thurth by force of armes: but the prior was well inough borne out, and defended by the bithop of Postwich, named Roger, who (as it is likelie) was the mailier of the milcheie, though hands were not laid byon him noz his adherents: perhaps for fonnes, Comund and Henrie. Chis Comund was Comund erle

Bonhommes.

feare, peraduenture for fauour ; a no maruell though the leffe faultie loft their lines as most guiltie, for

-rarus venator ad vrscs Accedit, tutos conseruat solua leones, Debilibus robusta nocent, o grandia parun, Ales fulminiger timidos infestat olores, Accipiter laniat turdes mollela, columbus, Versicolor coluber ranas miferifg lacert.us, Irretit muscus transmittit aranea vespas.

The king returning by faint Comundfburie, affer 10 he had done his ocuotions to S. Comunds thine, began to ware somewhat crasse: but after having a little recovered his health, he called a councell there, wherein he went about to have taken ozber for the punishment of rebels: but his sicknesse againe res newing, he brake by the affemblie, and with all speed haffed to London. Prince Coward byon his returne out of the holie land came to Chalons in Burgogne, at the request of the earle he did attempt with his companie to hold a justes and tournie against the 20 faid earle all other commers; And though through distaine and spite there was homelie place thewed, bpon purpose to put the Englishmen to the foile & reproch; pet by high valiancie prince Coward and his companie bare themselves so worthilie, that in the end the aducrfaries were well beaten, and confirei. ned to leave the honor of that enterprise to the faid prince Coward and his partakers. After this, he kept on his fornie till he came onto Paris, where he was honourablic received of the French king, and from 30 thence he went to Burdcaur, and there remained till after his fathers death.

Anno Reg.57.

3 iults and at Chalons.

toznie holben

The earle of

Che iffue of king Denrie the third.

Dis proporti= on of boote,

In this meane time king Henrie, being returned to London from faint Comundfburie (as before pee have heard)his ficknesse so increased upon him, that finallie he departed at Westminster on the sixteenth day of Ponember, in the yeare of our Saulour 1272. after he had lived the eleoze and five yeares, and reigdeparteththis ned fiftie and fir yeares, and feauen and twentie life. daies. A little before his death, when he perceived 40 that he could no longer live, he caused the earle of Glocester to come before him , and to be netwite Avorne to keepe the peace of the land, to the behave of his some prince Coward. Dis bodie was buried at Mellminster. He had istue by his tosse quæne E lianor two formes , the forefair Coward , prince of Males, that succeeded him; and Comund earle of Lancaffer, by fome authors furnamed Crouchbacke, though (as other affirme butrulie) that this Comund was the elder brother: but bicause he was a defore 5 med person, therefore his yonger brother Coward was preferred to the kingdome, which was denifed of purpose to conucic a right to king Henrie the fourth, which fetched the descent from the said Co. mund, and by force viurped and held the crowne, as after it may appeare . Pozeouer, king Benrie bad the daughters by the faid Cliano, as Pargaret maried to Alexander king of Scots, Beatrice ichom the duke of Britaine had to wife, and Catharine 60 which died before the was mariable.

He was of bodie well cast and strong, of a god stature in heigth, well favoured of face, with the liv of one of his cies comming downe, fo as it almost couered the amle of the same eie . Df nature he was His conditios courteous, and of fomach rather noble than fout; a benout prince and liberall towards the pore and nee Die. Bet he wanted not dispraise in some points, namelie for that in ordering of things and weightie affaires, he vied fmall confideration . He was also noted to be a great taker of monte by loanes, tares, and lublivies : but therebnto he was inforced by ne cellitie, to beare the charges of warre and other pub, like affaires, than of any couetous mind or purpole to ferue his owne turne. Tahat capteins of honour among the nobilitie lined in his time, it may apeace by the course of the historie of his age.

Df fundite learned men thefe we find mentioned in maifter Bales centuries and others. Walter of Couentrie an historiographer : Kadulphus Piger that wrote both histories and other treatiles, Gerua. flus de Welkelie, Albricius of London, Robert Curfon a man excellentlic learned both in divine and humaine letters, to that comming to the court of Rome he there grew in such essimation, that he became a cardinall, of thom we find this recorded by Matthew Westminster and Matthew Paris. [At the taking of Damiate, a citie in Acgypt, there was with Pelagi, us, the cardinall of Alba, the popes legat, matter Ro. bert Curlon an Englithman a moff famous clerke, borne of a noble house, and cardinall of the church of Rome. These are reported to florith in the dates both of king John and king Henrie his sonne. In the faid kings time also there lived other learned men, as thefe; Hugh Kirkeffeed, Kichard of Elie, Peter Henham, John Biles oz de Sancto Egidio an ercellent phylician, Caducan a Welthman borne and bishop of Bangor, Alexander a fingular learned man that wrote diverse and manie treatifes aswell in divinitie as philosophie and humanitie, both in verle and profe; also Stephan Langton, that for his lingular knowledge was made high chancel loz of the buiner litie of Paris, and at length was admitted archbishop of Canturburie, against the will of king John, in which quarell to great trouble infued, as before væ have partic heard; Kafe Coggethall allo lived in king Henries dates, that wrote the appendir buto the chaonicle of Ralfe Piger , he was abbat of Coggeshall abbete in Eller, thereof he toke his furname ; William Lanthonie , Peter of S. Sauloz, a canon of the house called S. Sauloz, 02 of the trinitie by London; Alexander Hailes a fri er of the order of the minors, who wrote manie treatiles in divinitie; Richard furnamed Dedicus a molt learned pylician, and no lette expert in pilosopie and the mathematicals. There be also remembeed by maiffer Bale, Kandulfe the earle of Cheffer, the third and last of that name, who having great knowledge and understanding in the lawes of this land, comple led a bake of the same lawes, as a witnesse of his great skill therein: Alexander Wendocke bishop of Cheffer, John Blund, Comund Kich, Robert Kich, Henrie Bradon, that ercellent lawier, who wrote the boke commonlie called Bracon after his name, intituled De consuetudinibus Anglicanis; Richard surnamed Theologus, Walter de Cuetham, Kalfe Freb borne, Laurence Somercote, brother as it is thought to Robert Somercote, at that time a cardinall of the Komane church; Picholas Fernham a phylician, Robert Bacon a notable divine , Simon Langton, brother to the archbishop of Canturburie Stephan Langton, Kichard Filaker, Simon Stokes, John of Bent of Bantianus, William Shirwod, Pichaell Blaunpaine, John Godard, Aincent of Couentrie, Alberthe Mer, Richard Wich , John Bating alias de Balingstoke, Roger Waltham, William Sening ham, Robert Groffed that learned bilhop of Lincolne, whose memorie amongst the learned will remaine while the world laffeth.

Thus farre Henrie the third.

Edward the first, surnamed Longshanks, the eldest sonne of Henrie the third.

1272 Anno Reg. 1.

March West.

A new feate

Chro. Dun.

Dward, the first of that name after the conquest, began hisreigne over this king Dome of England, the 16 day of Pouember, in the yeare of the world, 5 2 3 9, of our Lord 1 272, of the Sarons 8 14, af ter the conquest 206, the va tation of the empire after the decease of Frederike the yeare next following, Kadulfe of Hablyurge was elected emperour) in the third yeare of Philip the third then reigning in France, and Alexander the third pet living in government of the Scotish kingdome.

This Coward the first, when his father died, being about the age of 35 yeares, was as then in the holie land, or rather in his tournie homewards: but therefoeuer he was at that prefent, the nobles of the land, after his father was departed this life, affemt 20 bled at the new temple in London, and cauting a new feale to be made, they ordeined faithfull mini-Aers and officers, which thould have the treasure in keeping, and the administration of instice for the maintenance of peace and tranquillitie within the land, and on the 22 day of Pouember he was proclaimed king. Tho after he had remained a time in the holie land, and perceived himselfe destitute of such ato as he loked for at the hands both of the Christians and Tartarians, he left in the citie of Acon certeine 30 Aipendarie Couldiers, and taking the fea failed homewards, arriving first in Sicill, where, of Charles B. of that land he was honozablie received and conveied, till he came onto Civita Vecchia in Italie, there pope Gregorie as then late with his court, of whome (as of his old freend that had been with him in the ho lie land) he obteined that earle Aldebrandino Rollo, and Supof Pontfort, that had murthered the look Henrie, eloeff sonne to Richard king of Almaine. felfe,but Buy de Pontfort was ercomunicated, as a biolator of the church, a murderer and a trattor, fo as he was dishcrited even buto the fourth generation, till he had reconciled himselfe to the church, as he was infomed.

After this, it is wonderfull to remember with that great honor king Coward was received of the cities, as he patted through Tuscaine and Lumbars die. At his comming over the mounteins at Chalon in Burgundie, he was at a just and toante, which 50 then was there holden by the Frenchmen against the Englithmen, the honor whereof remained with the Englishmen. In this toxnie the fight of the fate men was great: for the Englishmen being soze pronoked, flue manie of the French formen, but bicanfe they were but rascals, no great accompt was made of them, for they were bnarmed, gaping for the spoile of them that were overthowen. B. Coward palling forth, came to the French court, where of his coline germane king Philip he was totfullie receiuco. Here king Coward, dwing homage to the French king for the lands which he ought to hold of him in France,palled into Buien.

A tenth was granted of the cleargie to the B. and to Anno Reg. 2. bis brother Comund earle of Leiceffer and Lanca- Matth. Westin. fer by the popes appointment for two yeares, a chap a biline graileine of the pope a Galcoine borne named Reimond to to to the king being for that surpose the same house for that surpose the same the lecond as yet induring (though though the after in 10 being fent into England for that purpose, tho gave part unto them, and part thereof he kept to himselfe towards his charges, but the most part was referued to the popes disposing. Thisest the king remained in Balcoigne, he had fom what to do against certeine rebels, as Gaston de Bierne, and other that were renolted from him. The castels belonging to the faid Salton he subdued, but his person he could not met with. Finallie, after he had let things in order aswell in Buten as in other places in the parts of beyond the leas he hafted homewards, and came to London Nic. Trever. on the fecond day of August, where he was received King Cowith all iop that might be deutled. The firets were turne home. hanged with rich cloths of filke, arras, and tapeffrie, the aldermen and burgelles of the citie theto out of Matth. West. their windowes handfuls of gold and filuer, to fignt fie the great gladnesse which they had concessed of his fafe returne: the conduits ran plentifullie with white wine and red, that eth creature might drinke his fill. Upon the 19 day of August in this second peare of his reigne he was croinned at Melimin

Her, togither with his wife quene Clianoz, by the hands of Robert Killwarbie archbishop of Cantur

At this coronation were prefent Alexander king of Scots, and John earle of Britaine, with their wives that were lifters to k. Goward. The king of Scots did homage buto king Coward for the realme of Scotland, in like maner as other the kings of Scots land before him had done to other kings of England Some Mob might be fent for. Carle Aldebrandino purged him 40 ancestours to this king Coward. At the follownitie of this colonation there were let go at libertie (catch them that catch might) flue hundred great horlies by the king of Scots, the earles of Cornewall, Gloce: Caxton, ffer, Penbloke, Marren, cothers, as they were allighted frotheir backs. ¶ Dn S. Picholas even there chanced luch an earthquake with lightning and thunder, and therewithall the appearing of the burning brake, and a blating farre called a comet, that the people were brought into no small feare byon consis deration thereof. But now to the point of the his > hing Coward at the first like a prident prince chole the wilest and worthiest men to be of his councell, to purchase the love of his subjects, whose mines were somewhat offended towards his father (by reafon that he refused to keepe promise with them, touch ing the restitution of gentle and favourable lawes) king Coward the wed himfelfe to gentle towards all

degras

Anno Reg.3.

3 parlement. Ehe ftatutes of wellmin-The prince of walcs Lco-

lın,

begres of men, that he famed to erced the reasonas ble bounds of courteous humanitie, much more than became his rotall effate. After this, he reformed di uerle laives and fratutes, and denifed forme new or dinances, greatlie for the wealth of the realme. De held his first parlement at Westminster, where the ordinances were made, called the flatutes of Wells minster the first.

To this parlement was Leolin the prince of Wales furnioned to come and do his homage, has 10 uing beene requested first to come to the kings coronation, but he refused; and now having sum mons to come to this parlement, he excused him felfe, affirming that he durft not come for feare of certeine noblemen that late in wait for his life, requiring to have pleages delivered for his fafe come ming and going, the kings sonne, and Bilbert earle of Clocester, with Robert Burnell the lord chance loz. The king was greatlie offended with fuch a prefumptuous demand, but palled it ouer, till after the 20 The king co- end of the parlement, then repatring to Cheffer he meth to Che- fent efflones mellengers to the faid Leolin, required ring of him to come too his homage, but he ftill de traced time, to that in the end the king railed an are mie, meaning to recover that by force, which other wife he could not obteine by quiet meanes. This vere the people paid a fifteenth to the king of all their temporall gods, which was faid to be granted first to his father.

Marth.Westm. 25zeton bi= thop of Heres ford Departeth this life.

It rained

1276 Anno Reg.4.

The earle of Montforts Daughter ap: pointed wife to the prince of wales taken.

aineth to make wars. Marth. Well.

bishop of Hereford, who being verie expert in the laines of the land, compiled a boke of them called Le Breton. The 11 of September, a generall earth quake chanced betwirt the first houre and the third of the same date, the church of S. Wichaell on the hill without Classenburie, was ther with theolone down to the ground. After this, it rained bloud in the cour trie of Wales, as a prodigious enill token to that nation, with whose bloud thoutlie after that region was in manie places moissened and stained. For as 40 it chanced thootlie after, Leolin the sonne of Briffin came to have the government of Wales, who parts lie to raile new feditions in England, and partlie to vurchale him frienothip and aliance in France, fent unto king Philip, requiring of him that he might haue in marriage the ladie Cleano; daughter to Simon Pontfort earle of Leicester, the which togis ther with hir mother and brother Emerike, remained as banished persons in France. The French king hir faid brother to be connected into Wales unto Les olin, who had promifed to marrie hir. But per thep approched to Males, at the Ile of Sillie both the bros ther a litter were taken by foure thips of Baiffold, the owners whereof that so toke them, sent them by to king Edward. Withen Leolin binderfoo that his wife was taken from him by the waie as the was comming, he was not a little worth, and incontinentlie began to make warre vpon king Cowards Leolin prince lubicats that bordered nære unto Wales, killing the 60 of wales be: people, spoiling their gods people, spoiling their gods, and burning op their townes and houses on each five.

Herewith the king of England was to moned, that although the faid Leolin made fute for peace, and offred no small sum of monie to have the daugh ter of the earle of Leicester his fianced wife deline red to him, yet would not the king by any meanes consent to that marriage, nor receive any monie of him, except he would restore but othe right owners fuch lands as he had inuaded and got into his poffes sion, and further repaire such castels as he had defroied. Herebpon grew no small grudge betwirt the Welthmen and Englishmen, so that to represe the invalion of the enimics in the parts towards Briffow, Wountgomerie and Cheffer, the king fent the bundeed men in armes on horfebacke. In the quindene of Caffer, the king departing from Weleff. minffer, hafted towards Wales with a mightic power, and caused the courts of the ercheker and of Manh Wes his bench to remove buto Sheewelburie, that they The taken his bench to remove onto sayetherbutte, was they might be neere onto him, making for ward with all and the king might be neere onto him, making for ward for the busy butch time. convenient speed to come to the aid and succour of neoto the his liege people.

Herbpon entring into Wales he toke the cassell Checassell of Rutland, and fent into Wellwales a valiant cap Rutlandi: teine named Paine de Camureys, tho with fire ben. and fword wasted that countrie, so that the people of Anno Regs. fering themselues to the kings peace, delinered onto -1 277 the fato Paine the cassell of Strivelvic with the The callely the fato Pame upe council of Striberg countrie adioining. Then Leolin the prince of Striberg countries adioining. Countrie adjusting that he was not able to reliff the for pear. kings power, and knowing that if he did attempt the conflict against him the danger would redound to himself & his traine, did as th'old verse counselles.

Peruigili cura semper meditare futura, and therefore made fuit for peace, in 10 much mai in nature mallie it was agreed, that commissioners for both Tomillionia. and therefore made fuit for peace, in so much that fiparts thould talke concerning certeine articles, and appoints whatsoever they concluded, aswell the king as the faid Leolin Chould hold the same for firme and star ble. The king appointed one of his commissioners, to wit, the lood Robert de Tiptoff, to take an oth for him, cauthorifed the fato Robert, Anthonie Beke, The fame pere departed this life John Breton 30 and frier William de Southampton, prior prouinciall of the friers preachers, commissioners, nominated on his behalfe, to receive the like oth of the faid Leolin. Which Leolin appointed commissioners for his part, Tuder ap Coenenet, and Grono ap Helin, the which commissioners with good deliberation concluded byon certeine points and articles, of which the principall were as followeth.

First, that the faid Leolin should set at libertie all prisoners which he held in captinitie for the king of Englands cause, frælie and without all challenge.

Decondlie, that to have peace and the kings of Englands favour, he thould give but the faid king fiffic thouland pounds feeling, the dates of the paiment whereof to rest in the kings will and pleasure.

Thirdie, that the land of the foure cantreds with out all contradiction thould remaine for ever to the king and his heires, with all lands conquered by the king and his people, the Ile of Anglescy excepted, which Ale was granted to the prince, to that he Chould granted his request, and sent hir binder the conduct of 50 pate for the same yearelie the summe of one thou fand marks, and flue thouland marks for an income. Paronived, that if the prince chanced to die without if fue, then the faid He to revert agains into the kings bambs.

> Fourthlie, that the prince Gall come to Ko thelan or Rothland (as it is commonlie called) there to do fealtie to the king, and before his comming the ther, he should be absolved and have the interplation of his lands released, and at his being at Rothelan, a date thall be appointed him by the king for his comming to London, there to do his homage. Herebpon was order taken for his fafe conduct, aswell in his comming to Kothelan, as to London. There be that write that he was amointed to come onto London, at the fealt of the nativitie of our Lord.

Fifflie, it was covenanted, that all the homages of Wales thould remaine to the king, except onelie of five barons which inhabited neere onto the callell of Snowdon: for otherwise the said Leolin could not convenientlie call himselse prince, except he had some barons onder him.

Sixtlie, that he thould receive the title and name of prince folong as he lived, and after his decease the homages of those fine barons thould revert to the N Triuct. Danid Lco= proutoed for.

Inoth to be

Leoling bye:

Dauib rewat:

hing and to his hetres forener. While had Seventhlie the king granted buto the fate A colin. the lands that belonged to his brother Daylo, for tearme of the faid Leolina life, and in recompens thereof was contented to lattile the laid Danio with other lands in forme other place, the which after the deceale of the faid Legius ios Dauid Chanle reuert to the bing and his beices, source of at fluride to

for the affurance of which articles and copenants the prince belivered for bottoges; ten persons of the best in Wales, which he could get in thom imprisonment, ditheriting, oz/termerof deliuerangeround of euerie cantred twentic perfons, of the best and most fufficient, to be chosen by such as the king flight send thither perelie, a thall from piere to perele Aworne pronthe enangelits, in profence of the boileffes of the faid Leolin, that phenfoeuer the prince Spall breake any of thefe articles, and byon a monition both not reforme himfelfe, they that forfahe him. and in all things, being onto him open onimies, that 20 beare him deadlie houilitie.

Belides this, the prince Chall (as farte as in him may lie) parifie his brethren, of the which he had put two in pulon, Diven and Roderthe 1 the third naned Danid, cleaping his hands, fled into England. and remained many veres with king Edward, tho receiving him into his fernice, made him knight in this warre, and gaue buto him a caffell at Denbigh in Wales, with lands to the perelie value of a thoufand marks, in recompense of those possessions which he ought to have had in Anglesey, the which (as before is faid) the king granted buto Leolin for terme of his life, and after his decease to revert buto the Danid prefer: king and to his heires. Mozeoner, he preferred Da nonmariage uid to the marriage of a follie widowe, that was daughter to the earle of Warbie.

The article

As concerning Diven, through the kings, favour he was delivered out of pallon, by force of the articles concluded at this present by the commissioners, binder this forme and maner: that byon his being fet 40 at libertie, certeine persons appointed by the king hould make offer to him, to choice whether he mould first compound with his brother, and there open come to the king, and beleach him to allow the composition, exelleto put himselfe binder the safe keeping of the king, till according to the laives and customes of Wales, in the place where he did transgresse, indoes ment thould be given of the matter: and if he were acquit, then might he demand his heritage if he thought it so expedient; and which of these two water 50 he thould chose, the same thould be made firme and

Stable in the kings presence. All these articles, with other additions, were accorded by the laid comissioners at Aberconweie, on the tuesdaie before the featt of S. Partine, in the yeare 1277, and letters of confirmation made thereof by the king, dated at Kutland on the tenth date of Ponember, in the fiff pære of his reigne. Also the said Leolin, by the name of Leolin ap Briffin prince of Wales, with letters under his feale, confirmed the 60 about faid articles on his behalfe, for the releating of his right to the foure cantreds and other things that thould remaine to the king, which letters bare date at Aberconweie, on the foresaid tuesdaie in the said peere 1277. Also the B. released to the said Leolin, the laid lumine of fiftie thouland pounds, and the laid fumme of a thousand marks perelie to be paid for the Ne of Anglescy, as by his letters dated at Rutlawon the fair 10 bate of Pouember in the fair fift pere of his reigne moze at large it appereth. Peucr. thelette by his letters dated at Rutland, on the faid es leventh of the faid month of Pourmber, it is evident that he received of the faid Leolin the summe of two thousand marks serling, by the hands of Thomas

Beke képer of his wardzobe,

Pozeover, the king in the west part of Wales built The castell of at the fame time axalle at Lamperbenaur, to keepe Lamperbenaur to keepe unit built. buden the rebellious attempts of the Wielchmen. hing Colvard gaue in mariage by mate of splittuite Anno. Reg. 6. on to the fore-ramembred Leolin prince of Wales the earle of Leicekers daughter, which was taken as: Leolins wife pehane heard) at the He of Sillies De allo bare all reflored to hir the charges of the feall at the date of the marriage, bulband. and honozed the fame with the prefence of himfelfe. and the quæne vit A sublidie of the twentieth part of enerie managods was granted to the king to wards his charges sufferned in the Whelf warres. Portouer, in the firt percof his reigne la. Edward. held a parlement at Gloceffer, in the inich were cer Statutes of teine acts and flatutes made for the wealth and good Gloceller. government of the realme, which buto this date are called the Catutes of Gloceller. Alcrander bing of Scoto came into England, to common with 12. Coward, of matters touching his kingdome of Spotland, Shortlie after king Coward went over into France, and there received certeine tolones that were reflored to him, but not the moitie of those that were promifed to his father, when he released his fitle unto the outsite of Pozmanoic.

Lobert Billwarbie archithop of Canturburie, The archith was by pope Jisholas advanced to the dignitic of a of yorke being cardinall, and made bilbon of Jactus. To that he made cardinal cardinall, and made bishop of Portua, so that he resigneth his went to Kome, and gave over the archbishopake of archbishopake Canturburie, to the which through the popes grant frier John Deckham was admitted archbilhop, This: John Deck= piere there was inquirie made in London for luch as bam archbull, had climed mathed a counterfaited the bings soin of yorke. had clipped, walhed, a counterfaited the kings coine, Chippers of the citie and divers gold mome. fmiths that kept the crchange of filner were invited, and after to the number of two bundseth foure score Anno Reg. 7. and feuentæne persons were condemned, and in die Nic. Triuct. ners places put to execution . There were but 3. One gliffmen among them, all the refidue were Jewes, but diverse chaiffians that were participants with them in their offenles were put to their fines, and not without just cause.

About the same time the king removed all such Chron, Dunk. thiriffes as were either priests or strangers, and in their places amointed knights to be thiriffes that were of the fame countrie where their offices laie. Mozeoner, about this scalon king Coward builded The castels of the castell of Flint, and fortified the castell of Rut. Flince Rusland and others, placing garrifons of Englishmen landbuilt. in the same to befond the countrie, and to keepe the Welthmen under obedience . But Leolin to smallie regarded all covenants made, and benes fits received, that thoutlie after, upon the death of his late married wife, being summoned to come to a parlement holden by king Coward, he distained to obeie, and upon a verie fpite began to make new Leolin beginwarre to the Englishmen , in wasting and destrote neth new war eng the countrie : notwithfranding king Colvard had to manic wates done him god, and had given him full cause of thankfulnesse, which is the common reward of benefits, and which little recompense who so negleateth to make, being but a little lip-labour,

Non est laudari dignus, nec dignus amari. But being put in feare with the kings comming towards him with his power, he laid armogalide, and the fuethfor began eftiones to require peace, which the king nom peace. the fecond time did not denie to grant; bicause he would not lofe time to warre with the mounteins, woods and marithes, the places of refuge for Whelthmen in those daies, when they wanted power to a bide battell and keepe the fælds. About the fame time the king gave onto David the brother of Leolin the loodship of Frodelham in Cheshire, and made him knight. Pozcouer, in this yeare the king held a parle

1278

1279

The Statute of More:

3 fonob et

Meading.

280

ment, in which the tratute of sportmoine was ettablifhed.

Frier John Pechham, whome the pope had alreas vic confecrated archbishop of Canturburie, being the 47 in number that had gouerned the fait fee, came this yeare over into England to Supplie the rome. Allo Walter Sifford archbilhop of Booke departed this life, in whole place fuccaded William Telickham, the 37 archbilhop there. The archbilhop of Canturburie beld a spnod at Reading about the late 1 ter end of Julie, therin he renewed the constitutions of the generall councell, as thus: That no ecclefiallicall person Chonio bave above one benefice to the which belonged cure of foule; and agains, that all those that were promoted to any recletialicall living, thould receive the order of priekhood within one yere after his being promoted therebuto.

Che kings coine amen= beb.

In this yeare the king take order for the amend ding of his monie and coine, which in that scalon was fowlie clipped, wathed, and counterfeited by thole 20 naughtie men the Zewes, and other, as before pou hauc partlie heard. The king therefore in the octaines of the Trinitie lent forth commandement to all the thiriffes within the land, that fuch monie as was counterfeited, climed or walked, thould not be cutrant from thencefouth: and furthermore he fent of his owne treasure, god monie and not cliped, buto certeine cities and townes in the realme, that exchange might be made with the same till new monte inere flamped. About the third date of August, the 30 first erchange was made of the new monie of pence and farthings; but pet the old monie went all this peare togither with the new, and then was the old coine generallie forbioden, and commandement ginen by publike proclamation, that from thenceforth tt thould no moze be allowed for current. Herewith also halfpence, which had beene stamped in the meane time, began to come abroad the fame day in which the old monie was thus probibited.

Billingworth, with infis and triumphs of an hundied knights and as manie ladies, to the which refor ted loads, knights, & gentlemen from diverse cours tries and lands, to their profe of their valiancie in the practice of warlike feats and exercises. In the meane fealon king Colward standing in need of monie, deuiled a new thiff to ferue his turne, as this: namely that theras he was thefe losd of many losd thips, manours, postessions and tenements, he well binderilod, that partite by length and proces of time, 50 and partite by calualties during the troubles of the civill warres, manie mens cuidences, as their charters, deds, copies and other writings were loft, was fed, and made awaie, he therfore boder colour to put the statute of (Quo waranto) in execution, which was o; deined this yeare in the parlement holden at Gloceffer in August last past (as some write) did now command by publike proclamation, that all fuch as held any lands or tenements of him, thould come and thew by what right and title they held the fame, 60 that by fuch meanes their possessions might returne buto him, by eldicat as thefe lood of the fame, and fo to be fold or redæmed againe at his hands.

Dinances

Anno Reg.8.

I 280

N.Trauct.

Polydor.

Abington.

2 Chift to get

This was thought to be so sore a proclamation, as that a more greenous had not lightlic beene heard of. Wen in everie place made complaint and thewed themselucs groundlie offended, so that the king by meanes thereof came in great hatred of his people: but the meane fort of men, though they frod in de fense of their right, pet it availed them but little, be cause they had no enidence to thew, so that they were confiremed to be quiet with loffe, rather than to ffrine against the ffreame. Panie were thus called to answer, till at length the losd John Warren earle of Surrie, a man greatlic belower of the people, perretuing the bing to have call his net for a preie, and that there was not one that wake against firm de terimined to Rand against these so bitter and cruck proceedings. And therefore bring called afore the infices about this matter, he appeared, and being after by what right he held herlands Indoculie drawing forth an old ruftie fword; 15 pithis infirmment (faid ?) footh an old ruftie (100203 Byrons murumens (1010 Che faire) he) do 3 hold ing lands and by the fame 3 intend the care of to defend them. Dur ancedors comming into this burn. realme will William the Conquerour, conqueren their lands with the fluoric, and with the farme will a desenviore from all those that thall be about to take ? them from the bed not make a conquest of this ,, realme alone, our progenitors were with him as 3136

The litting bitoer Charming into what hattened his people by this meanes he was tallen, and thestole de-Arous to atioib civil diffention and warthat might thereby inflie, he let of his begun practife: to that the thing which generallie flients have touched and bane hurtfull to all men, was now subdentile flated by the manhod and couragious fromnelle onelie of one man, the forelaid earle, tho in his rare act of ocfending comon equitie against the mightie in authoritie (who spared not to offer extreme insurie) the wed himselfe a verie true and natural branch of probilitie.

cupit qua grandia semper, Vilia contemnit qua sursum tendere ut ignii Nititur, & summai penetrat Velut ardea mibes.

The archisthop of Canturbute held an other ly. A synobu nod at Lambeth, in the which he received and confir, Lambeth med the orders and confitutions decreed and establis theo by the legats Dtho and Dthobone, in councels by them kept here within this realme, adding diverle other of his owne: & in the Tame councell he went a bout to aunificate criteine liberties belonging to the crowne, as the taking knowledge of the right of pafronages and the kings prohibitions In placitic deca-The lood Roger Postimer kept a great feast at 40 talls, and such like, which feamed meetle to touch the spiritualtie. But the king by some in that councell withstoo the archbishop openite, and with menaces flated him from concluding any thing that might prefindice his rotall liberties and prerogatines. Hing Coward held a parlement at London, in the which 3 parkent he demanded a fifteenth of the cleargie, which latelie before he had got of the temporalitie. The artifolithop of Porke was content at the first to grant his sit shoot rake teenth to be paid of the cleargie within his diocette in tino yeares; but the archbishop of Canturburie held Theathb off, and required respit till the next parlement to be thop of Car holden after Caster, and then be granted buto the turbuil king the dilmes of all his cleargie for the yeares, that in some point he might be different from the archbilhop of Dorke.

In the ninth yeare of king Cowards reigne, the Anno Regs. feath of the round table was kept at Wartotke with 128 great and fumptuous triump. Whilest these things The frail were in doing, Dauth brother to Leolin prince of the rounds Ectales, forgetting the great benefits which he bab warmite received at the hands of king Coloard, became his Danit the aduerfarie, and caused his faid brother the prince of brother of Males with a great number of other noble men of Leolings that countrie to rehell; and to incourage them of teth, and to that countrie to rebell: and to incourage them the comment, soner to attempt the warre, he began the first er rebell. ploit himfelfe, taking the faid load Roger Clifford a Thelogo right worthie and famous knight) in his callell of Chiffigh Hawardine, opon Palmelandate, the faid lood being taken. in no doubt of any luch matter. Diverle knights and other that were in the fame castell at that time, and made relitance, were flaine.

After this the forelaid Danio returned to his bis The could ther the prince, and there with affembling an armie gurian a they went both togither and belieged the castell of negen Kutland.

ang taken.

Emericke de Bontfort fet atlibertie.

Leolin and other the welch rebels accurifed. Anno Keg.10.

treth into

Themart=

anque ports.

Meneth.

The loso

Mutland. Ling Colward af the same time being in the parts about Salifburie, where he kept his Caffer at the Clics, fent out commissioners to leavie an armie, and commanded such men of warre as he had then in a readinesse, to hast fourth to the rescue of the ela callell of cassell of Ruthand. And in the meane time, the cassell of Lamperdenaur was taken by Rice ap Balgone and Griffith ap Weridoc . Also diverse other caffels were taken by other of the Talelah nobilitie. Dozeouer, about this time by the labour and fuit of John 10 the archbishop of Canturburie, Emericke de Mont fort, which had beene reteined in prison (fith that he was first taken togither with his lister at the Ide of Sillie by the Bristowmen) was now set at libertie and permitted to returne into France. The faid ardbilhop of Canturburie was fent into Wales to persuade Leolin and his brother with the other rebels buto peace and quietnelle, but returning into England, without bringing anie thing to patte, he des nounced them accurifed.

The king halted facto to come to the rescue of his The bing car people, there boon Leolin and his brother Daulo retired with their people to Snowdon hilles, and fortis fied the castell there with a strong garrison of men. The king entring into Wales, when he heard that his chimies were withdrawne into the mounteins, passed forth till be came nære buto them, where he pitched downe his field, and the nert day causing his horstemen to illue footh of the campe, filled all the on the east side as toward the south) with the same hordemen, and herewith placed his formen more a loft on the five of the hilles in couert: this done he pronoked his enimie to come forth to fight, but when he fato this would not be, then that he might from them from all places of refuge, he caused his thips to take the Ide of Angleley, bicaule the Welthmen bled to flie thither oftentimes for their fafegard, in the which enterpaile the mariners of the cinque poats bare themselves right manfullie.

After this, joining certeine vessels togisher, be caused a bridge to be made in the river of Deneth, into the which an other small river falleth that rifeth at the rots of those hilles of Snowdone, to keepe the enimics from lodging on the further fide of that ris uer. This bridge conteining rome for the escape armed men to palle afront, was made over the river of Sient, by the which men faile into the Ille, which by the course of the sea ebbeth and floweth eneric twelve houres. But so it came to passe, that before the bridge 5 was well borded over, whilest the king pet remais ned at Aberconwaie, diverte of the English nobilis tie, to the number of seaven banerets with three hundreth armed men rathlie patted ouer, and as they surveied the fot of the mounteine, the tide began to come in so swifflie, that where the Englishmen were advanced a god prettie waie from the water fide, they could not now get backe agains to the bridge with as yet was not fullie made bp.

fide the mounteine, and affailed the Englishmen berieficrcelie, and with their great multitude so op The English: pressed them, that for feare the Englishmen were manufraction between to take the water, and so by reason they were loaden with armour, manie of them were drowned: and amongst other, that famous knight fir Lucas de Thanie, Robert Cliffogo, fir William Lindsey, and two gentlemen of god accompt that were bees then to Robert Burnell as then bishop of Bath. Cion, Dunst. There perifhed in all(as some faie)thirteene knights, fenentiene poing gentlemen, and to the number of two hundged formen . Det fir Milliam Latimer, as god hap would, escaped, and diverse other. This michance hamened on S. Leonards day.

In this meane time in another part of the coun- Cheenele of trie the earle of Glocester with an armie, made soze beth warre on inarre to the Wellimen, and niere into the towne the wellimen called Lantilaware, fought a fore battell with them, in the which manie of the Welthmen being flaine, the earle lost also five knights opon his partie, as Milliam Malence the yonger, being one of that number, who was the kings confine. The earle of Glocester then departing from thence, Leolin the prince of Wales entered into the countrie of Care digan and Stradwie, destroieng the lands of Rice ap Meridoc, which now held with the king agamst the fald prince. At length, prince Leolin going to Anno Reg. 11. wards the land of Buelth with a small companie. left his maine armie behind him aloft bpon the top Leolin inuaof the mounteine, niere to the water called Waie, beth the hings and he had let a number of his people to keepe the freends. bridge of Drewin: and so the Welshmen kept on the one five, and the Englishmen on the other, of whome were capteins the load John Gifford and the loed Comund Postimer, the which perceining the The loed Welchmen that were readie to defend the bridge, Martiner, and a great host of them opon the top of the mounteine, they consulted togither what they were best to bo.

At length by the couragious exhortation of one Helias Walewaine they drew on the one hand a longst the river, where was a food passable in ded, though not without danger: but yet the Englishmen plaines which compatte the fot of those hilles (aswell 30 by the conduct of the same Helias, got over by the fame food, to that it bare the name long after of He lias way. And so the Welthmen that kept the bridge (perceiving the Englishmen to be got over buto that lide)fled, wherevoon the relique of the English armie palled ouer at the bridge, whereof role a great noise, which Leolin lurking not farre off might well heare, but pet at the first he could not be brought to thinke that by any possible means the Englishmen were got over to that five of the water. But pet percoluing it to be true, he drue backe toward the height of the mounteine againe, neverthelette being oifco nered by one Stephan de Franketon , named by Painer Love some writers Sward, he was so narrowlie pursued ha flaine by of the same Stephan, that he was overtaken and Frankcton. flaine.

Stephan not knowing whomehe had flaine, returned to the holf, the which was now mounting up the hill to ioine with the Welch armie that frod Mill laking for the returne of their prince Leolin (though in vaine) pet they manfullic abode by their tackle, discharging plentie of arowes and darts at the Englithmen as they came op towards them. The Char lith archers which were mingled among the house men, paid them home againe with their that, for that finallie the English horstemen, winning the top of the hill, flue manie of them Canding Coutlie at des fenle, and put the relioue to flight. Stechan Sward that hav flaine Leolin, after the victorie was atchined, rode to the dead bodie which he had flaine in the The Welthmen perceiving this, came bowne bes 60 beginning of the battell, and opon bew taken of him perceived who he was, of which good hap the English, men were verie toffull. His head was herewith cut Leolins head off, which the load Comund Dortimer take with him prefented to buto Rutland (where the king as then was looged) buto whome he presented it : and the king fent il put to London, appointing that there thould be an vuic crowne let ponit, in token that he was aprince, and so being adorned, a horseman carried it byon the end of his Caffe through Cheaplide, holding it as he rode on heigth, that all nien might fee it, till he came to the tower, a there it was pight by alou byon one of the highest turrets, remaining there a long time afternown in an annual and an annual and an annual an helias wal-

Gifford and

11615

to fnialled.

more is required in family founds flower freed or dunck up mit , osmalina mit annomia, acut port intum práctiver ar djem ár djudir som indipa comm or his hem through Chemitar : un to his the description products in time delates a trought tideskouring. The monutor thereas the Wielly merchanic banquiller, as bifur in hanchear dine cot on the femoralistics in Lacres day . Bring Cohave being constant thus of the toronic, fisciple 10 insura margerfacilitati in il in propie, and agranded all country pullings continues bearing of furtherns today as ment for the enumers. Also at the foot of the hilles he left his helicona, and aromaid up the hilles ha lette fouth the articule of his armie. There were our teine Calonnes, ihnme the last John Clebes had leanight half him aut of their commune, to forme the king, that lunnermanic triums, and fine great ndicersof the Tikelihonen, all that cause an their tin rellimen war, and finally, group an alimit to Success 20 called, they bear it as four by force.

n un m ar od nomar nder fir e fondismer of

In this means mur, the Wellipmen, then her for the salidness and alone and france from all bonness trefrage, after the maner of both bracks, fled anto the theke modes a cours, form of these making houses get dubum derryhdir Kape andkreken melos, and form of them leaking to charpe by flight, but mos then exputes have, a lact eather flavor or taken. and amongs their about Parlament was Danie taken, togaher innih his tarke, his than komors, and 30 france bangheres and iconstitution being the first Spens for to tracking excludificate to be fatche kept.

thing Clinical human februar the Whiteman hat installed in the mountains, must about all the countries to compact the restoure, askembling all his arms in the purious des aboutances made great Carphine of them on each five, to that Corre favore Carine abonne their homband mars : them howing the communicat has boild, he game but o he Capital leas formes in the material of Clairs and 40 trained for committee and Court , externo furnitra and other oxicers as flow were blod in Capitals. At Therements he builted aftering called share before tens and product injury mounts for which he common to is the Cisic rouse on Continue, where he builded a four above of the College water, and embedded at hai great lands and manners. He also make and foreign the called of Carnerman fall by Sentation, and reports against the contract of Laurence berg herboic calco Aberbach, which Lesin has before 50 instended and the place Could gerries a Or celels are joins to the leafners, not make Conidents lads of the process are policions belanguing to the fame. Less up Becam exe of the chefol an explant capture of all Water, which we ring the increes, has beene much inspiratore to the Englishmen then any other, so specient their confenes, and making great flanghters open form, but ber firming note both of the beath of prace Levius, nd the taking of his brother Danie, and also perceicing hunicile prefere on each five, at length perfect bisalche and his completes to Danufie be Before earle of ligarian, who arrught weirs for them to the kerg and the king ferst him to Leadon , there to be her fundamen un tige folger.

Thus hing Colpard , boning brought the rebelle ons Methymen baser his coursion, appointed his general luculenant there, the loss Robert Exp foll, and üben he had let all things in gad spher, a bout Pichecianas he came to Shechelbarie, where at a particular to hum, there bothen, the freefald Das md (hat was brought thither) as thefe procurer of all this warre, was condemned of treaton, and was effections executed, according to indigenment pro-

mance agains him has a white, he was hanger be a new distinguished and quantitative from the first transfer of the contract of the don, and for toping the heat of the trouter 1 eatin 1 mg quantities have trained, and feature be felt describe gave of former five destrict orace of Carylant Alue estimate example for for forgon consumers and makes for Con, angels, and men : an hardite punits ment for an henrous offente; and no manuall, for

Ante Des voluments and 2mg During their marres, the long labof the temporal way are, the thursth part of all their grove, and of the fourtendent the thereated part total the the manufacturer of the Councilian was

The lance years allo after Portugues, the king time by habe perferent at Anne Bereril, disease time Comes more admined, which there has been been the manner of the place where they more mate. In the Checking person of this bangs reague, his elical famor Minute depuniso his life at Albandice, and on S. Court : Parles the historic Colomb for the tumory is no ton from me the hanghame, trees because the where the king has bushes a freeE BETTE count the her both the quarter and ar, well the fame. Alle this years with anadean of fami He America duel, he influes navious legan to go her pe MODELL CHICKONS.

On Caller dair Michaeldis vener en die nuch 3 parter of Sprid, burng wife bespe spene, in the warrang with Car adomic the rating of the faceure, the element times the municipality bottom bank fact darkenrife and theckarife of mer. ha i femet is bour myht agame, andiaduziu rule and provide frame and design and came, and after of lands, that connect all the cardy-and then fellater for frencher and highway, that men beer mandalis and directly conducting it is ment to be against the mature of the leadon, for learly in April had pre houre more find humber. Pet at transfer and the commencement of the so and decreases.

In the historia peace of his reigne, king Ch. James Japa from kept his Confining at Bodishe, and hed fores present council, but no general parisment; and his bass the first time that arms Could being can be comended, to take kept any folenne fraf at 15-16 de The Lang from homes procure of deep Friday cere at Ballon, both his deliver, came to Lordon, here he had can been about of their years before here came endengers to him from the Frince Amendes king, requiring him to come in person, him 2000 from the ther of men of marr, to at her enter francis insures against the king of Aragon, as of right he is to do no crates of the builder of Guien thich be belt of him. The fame years that William the relian is and other of Paris, after he has generall that for including fir peares, and then forcedoes one John far named cenfel. Ramane. Abrenthis frafen, was Perten enledge John Emil in Orenfard forumed by Wildlitz Martin that has arrinding land Chamerineur of England, and after bespop of inches ikachester. Sixing Commun fersed the francisco and increase ibrities of Lexbon into his hains, and takhanged (as mil Gregorie Robbielle the many then bring, and appositive for codies and gention of the citie, one Selephan Sundands, the talact from the bay of the conner. from of faint Plante, till the mountay following the Destination of our latter, consumers on that other, and was then brichargen, and for John 15 orten langist charges thereinth for the remove of the peace. There ts no certaine knowledge left in receis, like the hing take but dichesture with the citie, lave that the fath Gregoric Robbellie then maior, as the fame inent, take babes of the bakers, and feafered them to fell becautacking for or framen sources of inergist in a penie lofe. The new leache of the chards of Wellmintler, to the cras of the speet, beginn as be-mu u u

I minutal

Tie Giel:

egeria.

Times bure

DEL THE

Tur Unk

to the americ

Dutil muit

Berm B:

was partielly

brodile buis

L.Coraci.

Mure.

come anutine

e Sharmel Dame condemonst of Irteles.

fore is thewed) in the third years of king Henrie. was in this yeare fullie finished.

The reach of ine Scotish hing.

Rich South.

The nineteenth of Parch, died Alexander king of Scotland, by a fall which he caught as he ran a firring horffe : he left no iffice behind him, noz any certeme knowne hetre to lucced him, by realon wherof infued great harme to that reline (as in the Scotifb hillogie may more at large appeare.) The manner of those ocathas in Richard Southwell 3 find it repos ted) I have thought good bræflie to touch, for that in 10 recitall thereof, he somewhat disagreeth from the Scotish historie. There went (faith he) a common speach through Scotland all this yeare, before the hings death, that on the fame nineteenth of Warch the date of tudgement thould be: wherevoon, as the faid king fat at dinner in the castell of Genburgh, having a diff of excellent good lampies before him, he fent part therof to one of the lozos that fat at some other table not far from him, and willed him by the gentleman that bareit, to be merrie, and have in 20 mind that this was the day of dome. The load fent him thanks againe, and praied the mellenger to tell the king merilie, at if this were the daie of dome, they thould rife to sudgement speedlie with their bel lies filled with goo meats and brinks. After they had bined, and the night began to draw on, he toke his bolle, and onlie accompanied with the gentlemen, would needs rive to Kingome, where the quæne his new wife then late, and before he could get unto Innerkenin, it was barke night, so that he toke there 30 two guides to lead him the waie: but they had not rippen past two miles, but that the guides had quite lost the waie, so that they were orinen to give their horlies libertie to beat it out themselues.

Herewithall the king being severed from his companie, how he ruled his bootle it is hard to faie, but downe he was theowne, and immediatlie died with the behoment fall which he thus caught, either headlong downe one of the cliffes or other wife, and thus he came to his end ,on a mondate, being faint Cuth 40 berts even the nineteenth of Parch (as before is no ted) after he had reigned fir a thirtle yeares and nine moneths, as the same Southwell safeth; the also (contrarie to that which Hector Boetius maiteth) af firmeth, that the fame daie was to tempelinous with wind, snow, haile and raine, that he and manie other that then lived and felt it, durit not oncover their faces, in going abroad against the bitter northerne wind, that drove the fnow and fleet most behementlie bpon them. And although that such fowle weather 50 might have stated him from taking his fournie in that fort, yet he made no accompt thereof, as he that was accustomed to ride as well in fowle weather as faire, and spared neither for tempest, waters, nor craggie rocks, thicke not thin; for all was one to him, offentimes taking his tournie in disguised apparell, accompanied onlie with one fernant. But to returne bnto the doings in England.

In this yeare the king twke escuage, fortie thillings of eucrie knights fæ, towards the charges of his 60 lass wars in Wales. A parlement was holden at Westminster, at the which were made the statutes called Additamenta Glocestria,03 rather the Catutes of Wellminster the fecond. In the foureteenth yeare of king Coward, a citizen of London named Thomas Piwileston, who in time of the barons warres had beene a great ower, to fir the people against king Henrie, was now accused, that he with other thould go about to make new disturbance within the citie: whereof inquirie being made and had before fir Kafe Standith, then cultos or gardian of the civ tie, the faid Piwile foon and other, to the number of affic, were banished the citie for ever. Also, whereas of old time before this feafon, the merchant frrange ers were vied to be lodged within the dwelling how fes of the citizens of London, and fold all their merchandise by procuration of their holds, for the which their faid hofts had a certeine allowance, after the rate of everie pound : now it was ordeined, that the faid merchant Arangers might take houses to hire, Anew order for to inhabit therein, a for flowage of their wares, for merchant & no citizen to intermeddle with them or their wares: Arangers. by reason whereof they vsed manie deceits, both in bitering counterfeit wares, and also briuft weights. Mozeover, much of those wares, which they thould have wated at the B. beame, they weighed at home within their houses, to the hinderance of the kings custome. There boon fearth being made boon a fud Dirangers den, and their weights found and promed falle, twen committee to tie of the faid frangers were arrefted and fent to the the towie. towie, and their weights burnt, destroied and broken to pieces in Weltcheape, on thur loaie before the feath of Simon and Jude. Finallie, the faid merchants were delivered, being put to a fine of a thousand pounds, after loze and hard imprisonment. The Jewes in one night were generallie appres hended, and put in pation through all the parts of England, and to kept in durance, till they had fined at the kings pleasure. It is reported that the commons of England granted to the king, the fift part of their moueables, to have the Jeines banished out of the land: but the Jeines, to put the Englishmen fro their purpole, gave to the king great lummes of monie, whereby they tarried yet a while longer. King Edward went over into France opon the five and Nic. Triver. twentith of Paie, palling through Picardie onto A palleth ouer miens, and there the French king, to do him homoz, into France. was readie to receive him. Here king Coward did homage but othe French king, for the lands which he ought to hold of him in France. And after, he was also present at a parlement, which the said French king held at Paris, in the which he obteined manie things for the liberties of his faid lands, as then by diverse waies wrongfullie oppessed, though such grant continued not long in force. After Whitlung tide, king Coward departed from Paris and went into Balcoigne, togither with his wife queene Clianoz, tho was with him in all his cournie. This yeare the king went into Aragon, where his Anno Reg. 15. authoritie auailed much, in the making of agreement betweet the kings of Aragon and Paples; thereby Charles king of Paples was then fet at libertic, bp. on certains contrads of covenants passed and a Rich. South. greed betwirt them. The kings mother quene @ lianorthis peare forloke the world, and take upon hir the babit of a nunne at Ambresburie; but yet the fill reteined and infoice hir dower by the popes au thoritie and dispensation. About this time a squire called Chamberlaine, with his complices, fet fire on the merchants bothes, at S. Butolihes faire; and whilest the merchants were about to quench the fire, the faid squire and his complices set opon the said merchants live manie of them, and robbed them of their gods. In this yeare fell variance betwene the Gariance belood Paine Tiptoff, wardeine of certeine castels iwirt the lood in Wales, and a Wielth knight called fir Resap Paine Tip Meridoc, to that fundrie thirmithes were fough, toft, and thice ten betwirt them, and men flatne on both fides, to the ap Aperidos. great disturbance of the countrie.

The cause of this warre rose cheesite, for that the faid lood Tiptoff, and the lood Alane Plucknet, the kings feward in Walcs, would have confreined the faid Kies to appeare at counties and hundreds, as the ble in other parts of Wales then was, copy trarie to fuch liberties as he had obteined of the king as he pretended. But when the king wrote onto the fame Res, requiring him to heepe the peace, till his returns (at what time he promiled to reforme all things

Ce.y.

1 286

252 ftow faire robbeb.

Anno Reg. 14. Chomas 131bilefbon a citizen of London.

he with other are banelipe b

N. Trivet

things in due and reasonable order) Res having ab readie put armour opon his backs, would not now incline to any peace, but to revenge his caule, allembled a great multitude of Welthmen, with whose helpe he burnt a destroice manic townes in Wales, fo that the 13. being then bevond the feas, fent to the earle of Comewall, whom in his absence he had appointed his lieutenant oner England, requiring him to fend an armie into Wales, to relift the malice and riotous attempts of the Weldimen. The earle horte 10 lie thereupon prepared an armie, and went with the fame into Tetales,02 (as other write) the bishop of Co lie, the lood prior of S. Johns, the earle of Cloceffer, and diverse barons of the land went thither, and that fing the faid ties, dispersed his armie, and overthrew and raced his castels, but by undermining and reverting the wals at the castell of Drustan, with the fall therof, the baron Stafford, and the lord William be Wontchenfie, with manie other knights and clquiers, were oppessed and bused to death. This 20 peare, the king at Blankfort in Galcoigne, toke opon him the croffe, purpoling eftlones to make a journie against Gods enimies.

In the winter of this yeare great flouds chanced, by reason of the erecting abundance of raine that felt: and the fea alongst the northeast coasts from Humber to Parmouth, brake into the land, overflow ing the fame by the space of thee or foure leagues in Chron, Dunft breath (as the author of the Chronicle of Dunftable affirmeth)overtheologing buildings, and deologing up 30 menanocattell that could not avoid the danger by the fudden comming in thereof, namelie, about Parmouth, Dunwich, and Ofpelwich. Likewise in the Hers land of Lincolnthire it did pasting great hurt, beinging all the countrie into water. This chanced in the verienight of the beginning of this piere, to wit, in the feast of the circumcision of our Lord, and in December it brake out agains in Porthfolke and Suffolke, there it did much harme, namelie about Parmouch.

This yeare, and likewise the yeare last past, was fuch plentie of graine, that wheat was fold in some Chron, Dunft, places of this land for timentie pence a quarter, and in some places for sirteine pence, and peace for tivrine pence a quarter. The lummer this yeare exceded in theat, so that men thorough the intentperate excelle thereof died in divers places. The chanced in Gal roigne, that as the king a quæne late in their chamber open a bed talking togither, the thunder-bolt through betweet them as they fate, and flue two of their gentlemen that frod before them, to the great Ri. Southwell, terror of all that were present. This yeare diverse of those that robo the faire at Bolton, were executed.

Hopeoner, thereas Kas ap Heridoc continu, ed ffill in his militianous doings, at length, the load deputic of Wales, Robert Tiptoff, ofing both spec die diligence and timelie counfell, gathered all such power as he could make, a palled forth against his adverfaries. Ethereof when fir Kies was advertised, 60 and buderstanding that the Englishmen were farre fewer in number than his Welfhmen, he thought to onertheow them at his pleasure, and therefore incomraging his people with manie comfortable words, to their their manhoo boon the Englishmens apports, he haffed to met them. The Wieldnien being for the more part but poing fouldiers, and not trained fo keepe any order of battell, ran fiercelie bpon their co nimics, affailing them on the front before, on the sides a slanke, and on the backe behind, inforcing themselves to the bitermost of their power to breake ragiouslie the Welfhmenastailed, the more Coutlie the Englithmen defended, in kaping themselues close togither, and beating backe their adversaries: and at length perceiving them to faint and war wear rie, they ruthed footh into the middle of the teleff men, & brake them in funder, to that twen they fate themselves thus repelled by the Englishmen, contrarie unto all their expectation, they knew not what The web to do, for they durft neither fight nor flee, and fo by differnates that meanes were beaten downe on cuerie fide. We Bau ap Sp ridoc himselfe was taken, but the most part of all riouciakin his armie was flaine, to the number of foure theufand men. Thus were the Welfhmen worthilie that fisco for their rebellion. Sir Kæsap Deridoc was had to Pocke, where at length, after the king was returned out of Salcoigne, he was hanged, dramen and quartered.

But the Englishmen valiantlie refissed, so that there was a fore battell for a while, and the more con-

This peare on S. Margarets even, that is, the 9 Anno Reg. daie of Julie, fell a wonderfull tempest of haile, that 128 the like had not beene feene nor heard of by any man Han Me then living. And after, there infued fuch continual I fore time raine, to differenting the ground, that come warre had officed the serie bears to that there were the serie bears to that there were the serie bears to the serie bears. veried eare, so that wheras wheat was sold before at the pence a buthell, the market forose by little and I great little, that it was fold for two shillings a bushell, and dearther so the dearth increased fill almost by the space of 40 gimush, peares, till the death of Coward the second, in so much that sometime a bushell of wheat London meafure was fold at ten shillings. The king, after he had remained and continue ed the yeares, two moneths and fifteene dates in Galcoine, and in other parts there beyond the fea, he returned into England on the fourth day of August. and buon the even of the Affumption of our ladie he came to London, there he was most infullie recriued, & lo came to Wellminfter : where fhortlie atter were prefented but him manic grauous complaints and informations against diverse of his inffices, as fir Chomas Welland, Adam Stretton, 40 and others, the which were had in examination, and ther upon found giltie of manie trespattes and trans grellions, in to much that it was given him to buder fland, that there were among them that had given consent to the committing of murthers and robbe ries, and wittinglie had received the offendors. Where upon, the king canfed fireight inquirie to be Chron. Dua made by an inquest of 12 substantiall personages, tho found by verdict, that Thomas Weiland loed Thomas there fullice of the kings bench, had caufed amur, writand there followed by his form bench, had caufed a mur, writand comming in at the window behind them, passed 50 ther to bedone byhis servants, and affer succoured influents and mainteined them: her boon he was by the kings hings book officers acrefied, but escaping their hands, he toke fanduarie in the church of the friers minoes at faint Comundelburie, and was admitted into their habit, but within fourtie dales after, order was given by the king that no kind of bittels should be suffered to be conneied to that house, so that all the friers came forth, except thee or foure, and at length he was con-Areined to take opon him a late mans apparell, and comming fouth was delivered to the hands of 130: Robert 33: bert Walet knight, who had before the cultodie of let him, and now having him againe brought him to the towie of London. At length, he was put to his choice of their wates, which somer of them he would take, that is, whether to be tried by his pieces, or to remaine in perpetuall prison, or to abine the realme: he chose the last, and so bare-sweed and bare-headed, bearing acrosse in his hand, he was conucied from the towns to Doner, where taking the fea, he was transported to the surther side of the sea; his gods, moucable and bimoucable, being confifcate to the william hings coffers.

Milliam Brampton, Roger Letceffer , John Lu cefter. neth, affociats of the faid Thomas, and inffices of the John Land

15 ampton

Anno Reg. 16, 1 2 8 8 Nic.Treuet.

0 5 T O wander by thunder!

Polydor. Ran. Higd. N. Triuct.

Balomon de faoffa. Thomas de Butington. Bichard De 15oiland. walter Hopto Bafe De ngham.

checfe baron.

Ichn be ABe=

Eob,Heff. in Pfal,2,

Anno Reg. 18. 1290 H.Marle. N. Trinct.

The flatutes established.

The Jewes of England.

Buigs bench: alfo, Robert Lifthurie chapleine, and maifter of the rolles, being accused of wzongfull judgements and other trespalles were committed to pulon within the tomer, and at length with much as do, cleaped with paieng their fines, fo that he which pateo leaff, gaue a thouland marks. Pozeouer, Salo monof Rochester, Thomas de Sudington , Kichard de Boiland, and Walter de Popton, inflices itine rants, were likewife punished, and for the femblable offenles put to their fines. Sir Kafe de Bingham 10 a inflice also, to whome in the kings absence the oza bering of the realme cheefelie amerteined, being ac culed of diverle transgressions, and committed to the tower, redeemed his offence for an infinit fumme btratton, 1. of monie. Adam de Stratton, lood chefe baron of the ercheker, being conuited of manie hainous crimes, a man plentifulliz provided both of temporall poffes fions, and ecclefiafficall revenues, lost all his tempotall livings, and foure and thirtic thousand marks in readic coine, befide other moucables, in cattell, 20 ald of monte of the spiritualtie, for that (as he picteniewels and furniture of houthold, which were all confilcated, and forfeited wholie: and it was thought he was gentlie dealt with, that he escaped with life, and such spiritual livings as to him remained. Henrie Braic escheator, and the sudges over the Jewes, were reported to have committed manie græuous offenles, but for monte they bought their peace. To conclude, there was not found any amongst all the fulfices and officers clere and boid of briult dealing ercept John de Betingham, and Elias de Beking, 30 ham, who onclie among the rest had behaued themselnes byzightlie. When therfoze such grænous com plaints were exhibited to the king, he amointed the earle of Lincolne, the bilhop of Clie, and others, to heare everie mans complaint, and opon due erami. nation a triall, to lie them answered accordinglie as right and equitie Hould require. In which admini Aration of inffice against entil insticiaries, the king performed the charge imposed and lato bpon all such

Nunc igitur reges resipiscite quærite rectum, Quorum iudicijs terra regenda data est.

In the eighteenth yeare of his reigne, the king married two of his daughters, that is to faic, Joane de Acres buto Bilbert de Clare earle of Bloceffer and the ladie Pargaret binto the lozd John Conne to the duke of Brabant. The king ordeined, that all the woll, which should be fold but a strangers , should be brought buto Sandwich, where the Naple thereof was kept long time after. In the same years was a 50 parlement holden at Westminster, therein the statutes of Westminster the third were precined . It was also becreed, that all the Jewes thould audid out of the land, in confideration thereof, a lift enth was granted to the king, and to her upon were the Jewes banufico out of all the kings cominions, and neuer fince could they obteine any privilege to returne his ther againe. All their goos not moueable were confilcated, with their taillies and obligations; but all o ther their gods that were moveable, togister with 60 their coine of gold and filuer, the king licenced them to have and convey with them. A fort of the richeff of them; being thipped with their treature in a mightie tall thip which they had hired, when the fame was under faile, and got downs the Thames towards the mouth of the river beyond Duinbozowe; the mais fer mariner bethought him of a wile, and caused his mentocall anchor, and forode at the fame, till the thip by obbing of the Arcame remained on the drie lands. The mailfer herewith entited the Lewes to walks out with him on land for recreation. And at length, tiben he under food the tide to be comming in, he got him backe to the thip, whither he was diawne op by a cord. The Jewes made not so much half as he did, bicause they were not ware of the dans ger. But when they perceived how the matter flod, they cried to him for helpe: howbeit he told them, that they ought to crie rather unto Poles, by whole conduct their fathers passed through the red sea, and therefore, if they would call to him for helpe, he was able inough to helpe them out of those raging flouds, which now came in opon them : they cried indeed, but no fuccour appeared, and fo they were swallowed Jewes drowby in water. The mailler returned with the thip, and told the king how he had vied the matter, and had both thanks and reward, as some have written. But other affirme (and more truckle as thould ferme) that Chro. Dun. diverse of those mariners, which dealt so wickedie against the Jewes, were hanged for their wicked practile, and so received a just reward of their fraus dulent and mischéuous dealing. But now to the

In the forelato parlement, the king demanded an ded)he meant to make a tournie into the holie land, to fuccour the chaffians there: wher boon they gran. The eleventh ted to him the eleventh part of all their moveables, part of eccicia. He received the monie afosehand, but letted by other afticult revenue businesse at home, he ment not fourth moon that four. businesse at home, he went not fouth opon that tour to to the B. nie. In the nineteenth yeare of king Coward quene Cliano, king Cowards wife died voon faint An: Anno Reg. 19. dietus œuen at herdebie, 02 herdelie (as some Che deceasse haue neere to Lincolne the king being as then are of D. Glianoz have)neere to Lincolne, the king being as then on his wate towards the borders of Scotland: but have ning now lost the iewell which he most esteemed, he returned towards London to accompanie the corps Thom. Walfin. unto Wellminffer, where it was buried in S. Co. wards chapell, at the feet of king Henrie the third. The was a godlie and modelt princelle, full of pitte, Chepraile of and one that the wed much favour to the English nas the queene tion, readie to relevue eucrie mans greefe that luffeis deceafed. ned wrong, and to make them freends that were at discord, so farre as in hir late. In everie towns and as are in government and magistracie; namelie, 40 place, where the corps rested by the waie, the king caused a croffe of eunning workmanship to be crecfed in remembrance of hir, and in the same was a picture of hir ingrauen. Two of the like croffes were Charinglet op at London, one at Charing, and the other in cross wother Weltcheape. Pozouer, he gave in almes everie wed, ercaed. nesday wheresoener he went, pence a piece, to all such voze folkes as came to demand the fame.

About the same time, bicause the king should be the more willing to go into the holie land, as he had promifed to do, having monie to furnith him forth, the pope granted but o him the tenth of the church of England, Scotland and Ireland, according to the frue value of all the revenues belonging unto the lame for fix yeares . He wrote to the bithops of Line Ehe tenth of fame for fix yeares . colne and Wincheffer, that the fame tenth thould be unnue gralaid by in monasteries and abbeics, till the king was ted to the k. entred into the fea, called Mare Maggiore, forwards on his fournie eastwards, and then to be paid to his ble. But the king afferwards caused the collectors to make paiment to him of the same tenth gathered for three yeares, and laid by in monasteries, although he let not one for forward in that fournie, as letted through other businesse.

Also, by reason of the controversie which depended as then betwirt diverse persons, as competitoes of about the the crowne of Scotland, he went into the north parts crowne of and kept his eafter at Pewcastell, and shortlie after, Scotland. called a parlement at Posthampton; where, by the adule of the prelats and other of his councell, learned in both the lawes, opon knowledge had by fearth of records, and thronicles of ancient time, he caused all the prelate and barons of Scotland to be called as fore him, and there in the parity-church of Porham, he declared onto them his right to the superiozitie of

Œ e.íti.

T 2 9 T

Controuerlie

the hingbome of Scotland, and requiring of them, that they would recognife the fame, protesting that he would defend the right of his crowne, to the thed bing of his owne blond, that a true certificat and information might come to light of his title and right. full claime, buto the bired and supreme dominion of uer the realist of Scotland.

Le bad caused verelie all the histories, chronicles, and monuments that were to be found within Eng. land, Scotland and Walcs, to be lought by and per- 10 nfed, that it might be knowen that right he bad in this behalfe. (Therebpon it was found by the chronicles of Marianus the Scot, William of Malmesburie, Roger Houeden, Henrie Huntington, Rafe de Diceto, and others, that in the yeare of our Lord 910, B. Coward furnamed Senio, or the elder , lubdued tohim the kings of Scots and Welfhmen, fo that in the years 921, the fame people chofe the fair Co ward to be their king and patrone. And likewife in the years 9 2 6, Athelifan king of England banqui thed Constantine king of Scotland, and permitted him pet to reigne under him. Poreouer, Cored the brother of Athelifan, and king of England, ouercame the Scots and Posthumbers, the which submitted themselves to him and sware him fealtie. Also Co. gar king of England banquilhed Kineth the fon of Alpine bing of Scotlino, icho fware fealtie to bim. Likewife Cnute king of England and Denmarke, in the 16 years of his reigne ouercame Malcoline king of Scots, to became king of force kingdoms, 30 England, Scotland, Denmarke, and Portvate.

Furthermore,that bleffed king &. Coward, gaue the king dome of Scotland unto Balcolme the sonne of the king of Cumberland, to hold the same of him, Againe, William Baffarothe Porman conquerer, in the firt yeare of his reigne vanquished Balcoline king of Scotland, and received of him an oth of feat fie. Alfo, Will. Rufus did the like buto Palcoline king of Scots, and two of his formes that incceffine hie reigned over that realme. Also, Alexander success 40 bed his brother Cogar in the kingdome of Scotland, by confert of L. Henric the first. Also Danid king of Scotland did homage to L. Stephan, & William L. of Scots did homage to Henrie, the fon of L. Henr rie the second, when in his fathers life time he was crowned; and againe, to Henrie the father in the 20 years of his reigne, as by an agreement made bee twirt them two it doub appears. Also, Roger Housden faith, that William bing of Scotland came to his loucreigne lood king Penrie into Pasmandic, 50 and like wife to king Richard, and moreover to king John at Lincolne, dwing to them his homage. Also, in the chronicles of S. Albons it is found, that Alex ander bing of Scotland married at Poste Pargaret the daughter of king Henrie the third, in the 35 peace of his reigne, and did to him bomage.

And further, when king Coward himselfe was crotoned at Wichminster, in the years of our Lood 1274, being the fecond of his reigne, the last decease fed 18. of Scotland, Alexander the third of that name 60 bid bemage but o him at Wieliminster the morrow after the coronation. All which homages and featies thus bone by lundic kings of Scotland, brite fren bele bings of England, were birealie and most mamiletilic promed to be done for the realine of Scots land, and not onclie for the lands which they belo of the kings of England within England, as the Sco tith waters would forme to colour the matter. But things being then freth in memorie, no fuch cavillation might be ancreed. And to here boon king Cofaperiour lood toards title being fabiliantialise passed, he ivas reof Scotland. cognifed superious lood of Scotland, of all them that pretended title at that time to that hingdome, by writings thereof made and confirmed under their feales, the with being witten in French conteined matter as here followeth.

The copie of the charter in French.

Tous ceulx, qui ceste presente lettre verrunt ou orrunt, Florence counte de Holland, Robert de Brus seigneur du Val Danand, Iehan Baliol seigneur de Galloway, Iehan de Hastings seigneur de Aberge. uenne, Ichan Comin seigneur de Badenaugh, Pa. trique de Dunbar counte de la Marche, Iehan de Vescy pur sonpere, Nicholde Seules, & Guilaum de Ros, saluz en dseu. Come nous entendons d'auger droyt enreaume d'Escoce, & celle droyt monstrer, chaleger, & auerer deuant celuy, que plus de poer, iurisdiction, & reeson, eust de trier nostre droyt, c'l noble prince sire Edward par la grace de dicu, roy d'Angleterre, nous a enforme per bonnes d' suffisaunt reesons, que aluy apent, & auer dois la souerein seigneurie, du dict reaume d'Escoce, & la cognisaunce de oir, trier & terminer nostre droyt. Nous de nostre propre volunté, sanz nulle maniere de force ou destresse, voluns, otrions, & grantons de receiure droyt deuaunt luy, come souerein seigneur de la terre. Et voluns sa lemeins, & promettons, que nous auerons, & tendrons, ferme, & estable son fait, & que celuy emportera le reaume, a qui droyt le durra devant luy. En testimoigne de ceste chose, nous auons mis nous seaules a ceste escript. Fast & donné a Norham, le mards prochesnapres la Ascension, l'an de Grace, 1291.

In English thus.

O all them that these present letters shall see or heare, Florence earle of Holland, Robert le Bruce lord of a nandale John Communication of the second of t nandale, John Comin lord of Badenaw, Patrike de Dunbar earle of March, John de Baliol lord of Gallowaie, John Hastings lord of Aberganennie, John de Vesey in stead of his father, Nicholas de Sules, & Walter Ros, fend greening in our Lord. Whereas we intend to haue right in the kingdome of Scotland, and intend to declare, chalenge and proue the fame before him that hath the best authoritie, surisdiction and reason to examine our right, and that the noble prince the lord Edward, by the grace of God king of England, by good and fufficient reasons hath informed vs, that the superior dominion of Scorland belongeth to him, and that he ought to haire the knowledge in the hearing, examining, and defining of our right, we of our free willes, without all violence and constraint, will, consent and grant, to receive our right before him, as the superior lord of the land. We will also & promise, that we shal have and hold his deed for firme and stable, and that he stall have the kingdome, vinto whom before him best right shall assigne the same. In witnesse whereof we have to whele letters put our feales. Given at Norham, the tueldae next after the feast of the Ascention of our Lord, in the yeare of Grace, 1291.

The recogniting therefore made of the imperioritie and lubinission of grant to receive that, which before the hing of England fixed by late be defined, the faid king required to have the castels, and the whole land ochucred unto his possession, that by peaceable fetzine thereof had, his right of superioritie now recognifed by their letters and writings, might be the more manifelt and apparent to the whole world. They freightwaics agreed to the kings requeff, and was tings thereof were made and confirmed with their feales, being written in French, as followeth.

B. Edward recognised to:

The copie of the second charter touching the possession of the land, in French.

Tous iceulx , que ceste presente lettre verrunt ou orront ,Florence counte de Holland , Robert de Brus feigneur du Val Danand , Iehan de Baliol feigneur de Galloway, Iehan de Hastings seigneur de Abergeuenny, Ichan Comin seigneur de Badenaw, Patrique Dunbar counte de la Marche, Iehan de Ves- 20 cy,pour sonpere, Nichol de Seules, & Guilaume de Ros, saluz en dieu. Come nous aions otrie, & graunte, de nostre bonne volunté, & comune afsent sans nulle destresse, a noble prince sire Edward, par la grace de dieu, roy de Angleterre quil come souerein seig. de la terre de Escoce puisse oir trier, terminer nos chalenges, nos demandes, que nos entendons monstrer, & auerrer pur nostre droyt en la reaume de Escoces & droyt receiver deuant luy, come souerein seigneur de la terre, pro- 30 mettons ia lemains que son fait auerons & tendrons ferme & estable, & qu'il emportera le reaume,a qui droyt le durra deuant luy.

Mes pour ce que lauandict roy de Ang. ne puist nulle manier conusance faire ne a complier sauns iugement, ne iugement doit estre sauns execution, ne execution ne peult il faire duement, sauns la possession,& seysine de mesme laterre, & de chasteaux. Nous volons, otrions, & grantons, quil co- 40 me souereine seigneur, a parfaire les choses auant dictes, ait la seysine de toute la mesme terre, & de chasteaux de Escoce, tant que droyt soit seit & perfourme, as demandans en tiel maniere, que auant ceo qu'il eit le seysine auant dict face bone seurte, & suffisante as demandants & as gardiens, & a la commune du reaume d' Escoce, a faire la reuersion de mesme le reaume, & de chasteaux, oue toute la royauté, dignité, seignourie, franchises, coustomes, droitures, leys, vsages, o possessions, o touz manieres des apurtenances, en mesme le estate,quils estoient quant la seysine luy fust bailleé,& liuere é a celuy que le droyt emportera par iugemet de faroyauté, fauue au roy d'Anglterre le homage de celuy, qui serra rey. Ysint quela reuersion Sott fest dedans les deux moys apres le iour que le droyt sera tricé affirmé. Et que les yssues de mes me la terre en le moyne temps resceus; soient sauuement mis en depos & bien gardees par lamain le 60 chamberleyn d'Escoce que ore est, & de celuy qui serra assigne a luy de par le rey d'Angleterre, & de sous leur seaus saune renable sustinance de la terre, & des chasteaux & des ministres du royaume. En testimoigne de testes choses auandicts, nous auons mis nos seaules a ceste escript. Fait & donne 4 Norham le mecredie prochein apres l' Ascension l'an de Grace, 1 2 9 1.

The fame in English.

O all them that these present writings hall see or heare, Florence earle of Hot-land, Robert le Bruce lord of Annandale, Iohn de Balioll lord of Galloway, Iohn Hastings lord of Abergeuenny, John Comin lord of Badenaw, Patrike de Dunbarre the earle of March, Iohn de Vescy in stead of his father, Nicholas de Sules, William de Ros, fend greeting in our lord. Bicause that of our good will and common affent, without all constraint, we doo consent and grant vnto the noble prince the lord Edward, by the grace of God king of England, that he as superiour lord of Scotland, may heare, examine, define and determine our claimes, chalenges, and petitions, which we intend to shew and prooue for our right, to be received before him as fuperiour lord of the land, promiting moreouer, that we shall take his deed for firme and stable, and that he shall inioy the kingdome of Scotland, whose right shall by declaration best ap-peare before him.

Whereas then the faidking of England cannot in this manner take knowledge, nor fulfill our meanings without judgement, nor judgement ought to be without execution, nor execution may in due forme be doone withour possession and seizine of the said land and caftels of the fame; we will, confent, and grant, that he as superiour lord to performe the premisses may have the seizine of all the land and castels of the same, till they that pretend title to the crowne be satisfied in their suit, so that before he be put in possession and seizine, he find fufficient fuertie to vs that pretend title, and to the wardens, and to all the communaltie of the kingdome of Scotland, that he shall restore the fame kingdome with all the roialtie, dignitie, feigniorie, liberties, customes, rights, lawes, vsages, possessions, and all and what soeuer the appurtenances, in the same state wherein they were before the seizine to him delinered, vnto him to whome by right it is due, according to the judgement of his regalitie, fauing to him the homage of that person that shall be king: and this restitution to be made within two moneths after the daie in the which the right shall be discussed and established, the issues of the 50 same land in the meane time shall be received, laid vp, and put in lafe keeping, in the hands of the chamberlaine of Scotland which now is, and of him, whome the king of England shall to him affigne, and this under their feales, referuing and allowing the reasonable charges for the fustentation of the land, the castels and officers of the kingdome. In witnesse of all the which premisses, we have vnto these letters set our feales. Given at Norham the wednesday next after the feast of the Ascension of our Lord, in the yeare of Grace, 1291.

These two letters the king of England sent under his privis feale unto diverse monasteries within his realme, in the 19 pere of his reigne, that in perper fuall memorie of the thing thus palled, it might be registred in their chronicles. Thus by the common allent of the chefell of the loops in Scotland, king Edward received the land into his cultodie, till by due and lawfull triall had, it might appere who was Rich. South. rightfull beire to the crowne there. The homage or feattie of the nobles of Scotland was expected in wozds as followeth.

2.1.50

The forme and tenor of the homage doone by the Scots.

I cause all we are come buto the allegiance of the noble prince &d= ward king of England, we promile for by and our hetres, bpon all the danger that we may incurre, that we thall be faithfull, a locallie hold of him against all maner of most all men, and that 10 we thall not biderstand of any damage that may come to the king, not to his heires, but we thall state and impeach the same to our powers. And to this we bind our felues zour heires, and are swome byon the enangelists to performe the same. Belides this, we have done fealtie buto our sourreigne losd the said king in these words ech one by himselfe; I shall be true 20 preme lord of that land. and faithfull, and faith and foialtie I Chall beare to the king of England Edward and his heires, of life, member, and worldlie honour against all mortall creatures.

Mafter Stes phantons bake of 1Rc= cczdø.

the realme of Socitiand an pointed by is Edward.

Be receiueth his feale.

The wardes Cwozne.

The king having received as well the polletions of the realme, caffels, manours, as other places belonging to the crowne of Scotland, he committed the government and cultodie of the realine unto the Comin, and James Steward, who had put him in possession, so that wider him they held the same, in maner as they had done before. But in diverse cas ftels he placed such capteines as he thought most mætest to kæpe them to his vse, till he had ended the controversic, * placed him in the kingdome, to whom of right it belonged. De also willed the loads of Scot land to clea a sufficient personage to be chancellour The billion of of the realine, which they did, naming Alane billion of Energine of Catnelle, whom the king admitted, forning with him 40 At length the matter burff out from sparkes into o ted chancellog one of his chapleins named Walter Armundes of Scotland, ham, so that on the 12 of June, byon the græne over against the the castell of Potham, neere to the river of Twee, in the parith of Tipletelington, before John Baltoll, Robert Bruce, the bishops of S. Ans drefus and Clasco, the loads Comin and Steward, wardens of Scotland; the bithop of Catnelle receiv ned his feale, appointed him by the hing of England as supreme lood of Scotland, and there both the Deissworne, faid bishop & CClatter Armundelham were fworne 50 trulie to gouerne themselues in the office.

The morrow affer were the wardens sworne and with them as affociated Brian Fitz Alanc, and there all the earles and loods of Scotland that were prefent fware fealtie buto king Coward, as to their fu preme sourreigne lord, and withall there was peace proclaimed, and publike coids fet forth in the name of the fame king, intituled supreme lood of the realme The Scotish of Scotland. The residue of the Scotish nobilitie, nobilitie both carles, barons, knights, and others, with the bithops featre to bing and abbats, byon his comming into Scotland, fware fealtic either to himfelfe in perfon, 02 to fuch as he ap pointed his deputies to receine the fame, in fundrie towns and places, according to order given in that behalfe. Such as refused to do their fealties, were at tached by their bodies till they foodlo do their fealties as they were bound. Those that came not, but excused theinfelies opon fome reasonable cause, were heard, and had danginen butill the next parlement; but fuch as neither came, nor made any reasonable ercuse, were amounted to be diffreined to come.

The billhop of S. Andrewes, and John lord Comin of Babenoth, with Brian fit; Alane, were affigned to receive such fealties at S. Johns towne. The bithop of Glalco, James lood feward of Scotland, and Picholas Degraue were appointed to receiue them at Dewcastell of Are. The earle of Southerland, and the thiriffe of that countrie, with his bailiffes, and the chatellaine of Invernelle were ordeined to receive those fealties in that countie; the chattelaine firft to receive it of the faid earle, and then he with his faid affociats to receive the fame of others. The lord Call liam de Saintclare, and William de Bomille, were appointed to receive fealtie of the bishop of Thit terne, and then the fato bifthop with them to receive the fealties of all the inhabitants of Gallowaie. A. mongs other that old their homage to the king himfelfe, was Marie queene of Man, and countelle of Stratherne, opon the 24 date of Julie, the king being thus in S. Johns towne, other wife called Perth. To conclude, he was put in full possession of the realine of Scotland, & received there homages and fealties (as before pe have heard) as the direct and lu-

This done, and everie thing ordered as læmed most erpedient, king Coward returned into the fouth parts of his realme, to be at his mothers buris The king all, that in this meane time was departed this life. Whe single Hir hart was buried in the church of the Braffriers ccalled, at London, thir bodie at Ambresburie in the house of the nunnes. After the funerals were ended, king Edward returned into the north parts againe : he faied a while at Porke, and during his above there, bithops of S. Andrews and Glasco, to the lords John 30 Mes ap Peridoc (of thome ye have heard before) was by order of law condemned a executed. This peare after Caffer, as the flet late before S. Datthewes in Bittaine, there role certeine discord be twirt the Posman mariners, and them of Balon, NicTing and to farre the quarell increased, that they fell to trie it by force, the Englishmen assisting them of Baion, and the French kings subtects taking part with the Pogmans, and now they fraught not their thips lo much with merchandize as with armour & weapon. pen flame, the fequele wherof hereafter fhall appeare, as we find it reported by writers. But now touching the Scotilh affaires. At length the king comming into Scotland, gaue summons to all those that claimed the crowne, to appeare before him at the feast of the nativitie of S. John Bap tiff nert infuing, that they might veclare more at large by that right they claimed the kingdome. Hers bpon, when the date of their appearance was come, and that king Coward was readie to heare the mate ter, be chose out the number of 40 persons, the one halfe Englithmen, and the other Scotiffmen, wich should discusse with adulted deliberation and great diligence the allegations of the competitoes, defers ring the finall fentence onto the featt of S. Wichaelt next influing, the which feat being come, after due er amination, full triall, and affured knowledge had of the right, the kingdome by all their allents was ad John Baid tubged buto John Balfoll, the descended of the ele obtentible best daniel best 60 best daughter of Dauto king of Scotland. Robert le Honganiand Bruce, betwirt whom and the fame Balfoll at length (the other being excluded) the quelifon and trial onlie rested, was descended of the second daughter of king Dauld, though other wife by one degree he was new Nic. Trina ter to him in bloud. Thus waiteth Nicholas Triver.

But others aftirme, that after long disputation in Polydor. the matter, by order of king Colvard, there were appointed 80 ancient and graueperlonages, amongit the which were 30 Englishmen, onto whom (being fwome and admonished to have God before their cies) authoritie was ginen to name him that should be king. Thele 80 perions, after they had well confibered buto ubome the right apperteined, declared with one boice, that John Balioll was rightful king.

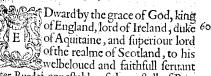

king Colvard allowed their fentence, and by his and thoustic confirmed buto the fame John, the pollellion of the kingdome of Scotland, with condition that if he did not gouerne that realme with inflice, then bp on complaint, the hing of England might put binto his hand of reformation, as he was bound to do by his right of superioritie, that in him was inuctied. Derebpon hing Coward awarded fouth his writ of polimeric of foizine at the fuit of the fato J. Balioll, to William and Robert, bilhops of S. Andrewes and 10 Olafco, to John loed Comin , James loed Steward of Scotland, and to the load Brian Fitz Alane, war dens of Scotland, commanding them to deliver bus to the faid John Balfoll the feigine and possession of that realine, fauing the relectes and debts due to him of the iffues and profits of the same realine, but othe day of the date of the weit, which was the nineteenth dan of Pouember, in the twentie pere of his reigne. Also there was another writ made, and directed to fuch as had the keeping of the castels in their hands, 20 in forme as followeth.

The copie of the writ for the deliuerie of the castels.

Dwardus Dei gratia rex Anglia, dominus Hibernia, dux Aquitania, E fuperior dominus regni Scotia, dilecto & fideli suo Petro Burdet, 30 constabulario castri de Berwike salu-tem.Cum Iohannes de Baliolo nuper in parlamento nostro apud Berwicum super Tuedam, venisset coramnobis, & petiuisset pradictum regnum Scotia sibi per nos adiudicari, & scisinam ipsius regni vt propinquiori haredi Margareta filia regis Normegia domina Scotia iure successionis liberari,ac nos auditis & intellectis petitionibus, & rationibus diligentur examinatis, inuenerimus prafatum Iohannem de Baliolo esse propinquiorem 40 haredemprædictæ Margaretæ, quo ad prædictum regnum Scotia obtinendum : propter quod idem regnum Scotia, & seisinam eiusdem, saluo iure nostro, & beredum nostrorum, cum voluerimus inde loqui,pradicto Iohanni reddidimus : tibi mandamus quòd seisinam prædicti castri de Beruico cumomnibus pertinentijs suis, vna cum alijs omnibus rebus tibi per chirographum tradicis , secundam quod in predicti castri tibi commissa custodia 50 res hunsmodi recepisti, sine dilatione prafato 10banni de Baliolo, vel attornatis suis has litteras deferentibus, deliberari factas. Teste meipso apud Beruicum super Tuedam 19 die Nouembris, Anno regni nostri 20.

In English thus.

Peter Burdet conestable of the castell of Berwike, sendeth greeting . Where Iohn de Baliolllate in parlement holden at Berwike vpon Tweed, came before vs, and demanded the faid realme of Scotland to be adjudged to him by vs, and seizine of the same realme to be to him delinered as next heire to Margaret daughter to the king of Norwaie, ladic of Scotland by right of fuccession. We having heard and vnderstood the same petitions; and reasons being diligentlie weighed and examined, we had the faid Iohn Balioll to be next heire vnto the laid Margaret, as to obteine the faid kingdome of Scotland, whervpon we have delivered to him the said kingdome of Scotland, and the seizine therof, fauing the right of vs & our heires, when it shall please vs to speake therof. We therefore command you, that you deliuer vp vnto the faid Iohn Balioll, or to his attornies, that shall bring with them these our present letters, the seizine of the faid castell of Berwike, with all the appurtenances, togither with all other things to you by indenture delinered accordinglie as you did receive the same, with the custodie of the said castle to you committed: and this without delaie. Witnesse our selfe at Berwike vpon Tweed the nineteenth day of Nouember, in the twentith yeare of our reigne.

In the fame forme of ivords were writs awarded forth, to all and everte other the heepers of castels and manoes belonging to the crowne of Scotland, and being at that time in B. Cowards hands, the names of places and the persons that had them in custodic onelie changed. On the fame day also in the castell broken, of Berwike was the feale broken, which had beens appointed to the governozs, during the time that the realine was vacant of a king . It was broken into foure parts, and put into a purife to be referred in the treasurie of the king of England, in further and more full token of his superioritie and direc supreme dominion over the realine of Scotland.

These things were done in presence of the said John Walfoll then king of Scotland, John arch bithop of Dubline, John bithop of Winchester, Anthonic bithop of Dureime, William bithop of Elic, John bishop of Carleil, William bishop of S. Andiewes, Robert bilhop of Glasco, Warke bilhop of Man, and Henrie bishop of Aberdene, with diverle other bishops, besides abbats and priors of both the realmes, Penrie earle of Lincolne, Humfrie earle of Pereford, Roger earle of Postfolke, John earle of Buchquane, Douenald earle of Par, Gilbert earle of Angus, Patrike earle of March, and Malife us earle of Stratherne; with the foure and twentie auditors of England, and the foure score auditors of Scotlano: chapleins also, Penrie de Pelumarke deane of Poste, John Lacie chancellour of Chiches ffer, Milliam de Grænefield canon of Porke, and John Ercurie notarie, and manie other. John Balis oll being thus created is. of Scotland, on the twentiff day of Pourmber, in the castell of Pozham, dia fealtie to king Coward for the kingdome of Scotland, in maner as followeth.

The forme of the fealtie of Iohn Balioll king of Scots to the king of England in protestation.

His heare you my load Coward king of England, sovereigne load of the realine of Scotland . than of the realme of Scotland, that I John de Baliollking of Scot land, which I hold and claime to hold of you, that I thall be faithfull and loiall, and owe faith and loialtie to you, I thall beare of life and member, and of earthlie honour, against all people, and lawfullie I shall acknowledge and do the fernices which I owe to do to you, for the realme of Scotland afozelaid. So God me helpe and his holie enangelists.

wereof also be made letters patents, wirnesting that he had thus done fealtie buto king Coward, with letters he fealed and delinered in prefence of William billiop of faint Andrews, Robert billiop of Clasco, John carle of Bouchquane, William earle of 1:08, Patrike earle of Harth, Walter earle of Menteth, James lost felward of Scotland, Alexan der de Ergay, Alexander de Balioli lood of Caures, Patrike de Graham, and William de Saintelere: of Durefine, and the lood John faint John to palle with Walioll into Scotland, and there to put him into the corporall possession of the same realme of Scotland, which they did, and to be was crowned at Scone byon faint Andrews day, being placed in the crowned king Stone open faith and east, and there . The folemnitie of which coronation being enved he returned into England, and comming to Pelucastell by on Eine, where la. Coward in that yeare kept his Chiffmaffe, he there did homage byon faint Stee 20 thans daie buto the faid king Colward, in forme of words as followeth.

Anno Reg. 21 John Waltoll of Scotland.

> The forme of the king of Scots homage to king Edward, in action.

P lozd, lozu wowner word and, I land, superior lozd of Scotland, I land, superior lozd of Scotland, I land of Scotland John de Balioll king of Scotland, dw acknowledge and recog- 30

nise me to be your liegeman of the whole realme of Scotland, with all the appurtenances, and what soeuer belongeth thereto, the which kingdome I hold and ought of right and claime to hold by inheritance of you and your heireskings of England, and I thall beare faith and localtie to you and to your heirs kings of England, of life. of member, and earthlie honour, against all 40 men, which may live and die.

1292

Richard 25 agicy. A priloner refeued.

wind in Maic The archhi= Chop of Can= rurburie De= ccaffeth.

The kings rico to the war betwirt France.

Ewo Eng: lish shipa taben.

This homage in forme aforclaid did king Colvard receive, his owne and others right faued. Then did the king of England without delaie restoze buto the faid John Baliolithe kingdome of Scotland, with all the appurtenances. This yeare, as one Richard Bagley an officer of the Chiriffes of London led a priloner towards the gaile, them persons rescued the faid personer, and twice him from the officer, the which 50 were purfued and taken, and by indgement of law then vied, were brought into Welest cheape, and there bers loft their had their hands friken off by the walts. On the 14 date of Paic fell a townderfull fnow, and therewith Egreat fnow blew luch an erceding wind, that great havine was done thereby in fundice places of England. In the fame peare died frier John Deckham archbilhop of Canturburic, and then was Robert of Winchelfie ricaed arabithop the 48 in number that had ruled that fie. About the micole of September following, 60 the earle of Bar a Frenchman, married the ladie E beughter mas liano: the kings daughter in the towne of Bistow. This yeare wheat was fold at London for two thilearle of War. lings a buthell.

This yeare also the war was begun betweene the England and kings of England and France. For thereas king Coward had furnished forth fir thips of warre, and fent them buto Burdeaux for defenfe of the coaffs thereabouts, tivo of them, as they failed along if the coast of Pormandie, and fearing no burt by enimies, were taken by the Poman fleet, and diverse of the mariners hanged. The lood Robert Tiptoff that toas admerall of the English fleet advertised therof, got togither a great number of thips, and directed his cearle with them freight towards Popmantie. and finding no thips of the Pozmans abroad in the The leads and finding no type or the provinced the mouth meralle expenses before to be revenged, entered the mouth meralle expenses the Porman thins land time. feas, boon a deute to be tenenges, and fet boon the Porman filps book garden for the river of Saine, and fet boon the Porman files. that laie there at anchos, flue manie of the mariners, manthos, manthos t toke fir thips awate with him, and fo returning to the lea againe, cast anchor not far off from the land, to provoke the Frenchmen to come forth with their flet to give battell. And as he late at anchozit chan, This done, hing Coward appointed Anthonie bithop 10 ced that certeine Poman hips fraught with wine came that water, as they returned out of Balcoigne. The logo Tiptoft letting on them, toke them with little ado, and fleating neere hand the third part of all the mariners, sent the thips into England.

The Frenchmen to revenge this act, prepared a nauie, and furnishing the same with souldiers went footh to the lea, to incounter the Englishmen : but per they met, mellengers were fent to and fro, the Englishmen accusing the Frenchmen of truce-breas king, and the Frenchmen againe requiring relitius tion of their good taken from them by biolence. Ind now forfomuch as this bulineffe had beene moued rashlie betwirt the Englishmen and the Pozmans, without any commission of their princes, their minds therefore were not so kindled in displeasure, but that there had being ad hope of agreement betwirt them, Charles and if Charles earle of Calois the French kings brother of Calous in (bring a man of a hot nature & delirous of revenge) cureth wan had not procured his brother to læke reuengement by betwirt Enforce of armes. Wherebpon the French fleet made land and toward the Englishmen, who minding not to detract the batell, Charplie incountred their enimies in a certeine place betwirt England and Pomandie, where they had laid a great emptie thip at anchoz, to give token where they meant to toine. There were with the Englishmen both Irishmen and Pollanders, and with the Posmans there were Frenchmen and flemings, and certeine bellels of Benowaies.

The fight at the first was doubtfull, and great flaughter made, as in the meeting of two fuch migh tie nauses mult needs infue. Pet in the end the viato The Engla rie fell to the Englishmen, and the French Chips put men bans to the chase and scattered abroad. The number of by sea. thips loft is not recorded by fuch writers as makereport of this conflict, but they write that the lotte was great. King thilip being aduertifed of this discomfiture of his fleet was loze displeased, and as hough he would proceed against king Coward by order of it Stwin law, he fummoned him as his liegeman to appeare fummonds at Paris, to answer what might be obiected against appears him; but withall bicause he knew that king Coward Paris. would not come to make his appearance, he prepar red an armie.

In the meane time king Coward fent his brother Cowardian Comundearle of Lancaffer to be bis attoznie, and of Lancalt to make answer for him before all such sudges as sente the might have hearing of the matter: but the iudges french bur meaning nothing leffe than to trie out the truth of the cause, admitted no reasons that the earle could alleage in his brothers behalfe, and fo pronounced king & Count Coward a rebell, and becreed by area, that he had for condemic feited all his right unto the duchie of Outen. These the french things thus done, he fent privie mellengers buto bingscome Burdeaur, to procure the citizens to renolt from the Arnold & Peale link lood Arnold de Peale to follow with an armie, who into Gal comming thither ealilie brought them of Burbeaux cougue with onder the French dominion, being alreadie min- anamate ded to renolt through practife of those that were latelic before fent buto them from the French king for that purpole. After this, the fato contrable brought the people neere adjoining under subjection, partie moned by the example of the cheefe and head citie of all the countrie, and partlie induced therebuto by bibes and large giffs. The Englishmen that were in the countrie, after they perceived that the people did thus revolt to the French king, withdrew inconfinentlie buto the townes lituat nære to the lea live. but speciallie they fled to a towne called the Mioli, thich they fortified with all speed. Thus faith Po-

N.Triuct.

Benrie carle

Nicholas Triuct, writing hereof, declareth the beginning of this warre to be on this manner . The English merchants being divertie vered byon the 10 feas, made complaint to the king for lotte of their merchandize . The king fent Benrie Lacie earle of Lincolne bnto the French king , instantlie requiring, that by his affent there might some waie be provided with speed by them and their councell, for forme competent remedie touching fuch harmes and loffes by fea as his people had fuffeind. In the meane time whilest the earle tarted for answer, a naute of the parts of Pointandie conteining two hundred thips and about, being affembled togither, that they might the more boldlie affaile their enimics, and the more valiantlie reliff such as should encounter them, sais led into Balcoigne, determining to destroie all those of their adversaries that Chould come in their waie. But as these Pormane thips returned backe with wines, glozieng as it were that they had got the rule of the fea onelie to themselves, they were attailed by this fore English thips, which take them, & brought them into England the friday before Wilhitsunday: all the men were either decloned or flaine, those one lie creepted which made thiff to escape by botes. The newes hereof being brought into France, old not fo much move the king and the councell to wonder at the matter, as to take thereof great indignation.

Ambassadous were amointed to go into England which on the behalfe of the French king, might demand of king Edward restitution of those thips and gods thus taken by his lubicats, and conneced into his realme, without all velaie, if he minded to have any favour in the French court touching his affairs 4 that belonged to his countrie of Galcoigne. The Chebilippol king of England hearing this medage, toke therein deliberation to answer, and then sent the bishop fwer but othe of London, accompaned with other wife and difcreet frenching. persons into France, to occlare for answer unto the cc French king and his councell as followeth; that is,

Whereas the king of England hath his regall court " without lubication to any man, if there were there fore any persons that found themselves burt or indamaged by his people, they might come to his 50 ec court, and bpon declaration of their received inim ries, they should have specie instice, and to the end ce they might thus do without all danger, whosvener minded to complaine, he would give buto them a ce fafe conduct to come and go in fafetie thosough his land : but if this waie pleased not the French king, then he was content there thould be arbitrators thoec fen on both fides, tho weteng the lottes on both parts, might prontoe how to fatilite the complaints:

cano the king of England would for his part enter in 60 ce to bonds by obligation to fand to and abide their oze der and ludgement herein, so that the French king would like wife be bound for his part, and if any fuch ce doubt fortuned to artie, which could not be decided by a the faid arbitrators, let the same be reserved buto ce the kings themselves to discusse and determine, and the king of England opon a sufficient safe conduct had, would come over to the French k. if he would a come downe unto any haven towne niere to the sea coast, that by mutuall assent an end might be bad in the businesse: but if neither this waie should cc please the French king not the other, then let the ce matter be committed to the order of the pope, to ce thom it apperteined to nourth concord among chalifian painces; or bicaule the fee was as then boto, let the whole colledge of cardinals 02 part of them 33 take order therein, as thould be thought necessarie, that Arife and discord being taken awate and remoned, peace might againe flourish betwirt them and " their people, as before time it had done, and bring with it the bleffings therebpon depending; namelie, althings that may make an hapie & fortunat fate, according to the nature of peace, whereof it is faid,

Pax eft cunctorum mater veneranda boncrum, Fit subpaceforum, fit felix cultus agrorum, Pax pietasmentis, pax est pincerna salutis.

The French councell weied nothing at all these of fers, and would not fo much as once bouchfafe to give an answer to the English ambassadors cars nelllie requiring the same. Finallie, the French li. fent buto the citie of Anion, which is knowne to be long unto the butchie of Guien, where he there caused the king of England to be cited to make his appearance at Paris, at a certeine daie, to answer The king of to the inturies and rebellions by him done in the Englander-countrie of Balcolome at the which dair when he ted to appare a countrie of Galcoigne, at the which vaie when he appered not, the French king litting in the feat of tudgement in his owne proper person, gaue sen Sentence tence there against the king of England, for mar given against king default, and withall commanded the high costhehing of mestable of France to leize into his hands all the du England. thie of Guien, and either to take or to expell all the king of Englands officers, fouldiers, and deputies, which were by him placed within the faid duchie. The king a little before had fent thither a valiant knight, named the load John faint John, which had furnis thed all the cities, townes, cattels, and places, with men, munition, and vittels, for defense of the same. Anno Reg. 22.

In the meane time the king of England, defirous to be at quiet with the Frenchmen, amounted his brother Comund earle of Lancafter, as then fotours ning in France, to go buto the French kings councell to procure some agreement, which both might be allowed of the French king, and not be dishonozable buto him. But when the earle could not prevaile in his lute, he toke his fournie tolvards England, biterlie despairing to procure any peace. But yet he came to the fea five, he was fent for backe againe 1 294 by the two quienes of France, Jone wife to king Philip, and Parie his mother in law, which promis fed to frame some accord betweene the two kings, and to therebpon after diverte communications by them had in the matter with the faid earle of Lancaffer, at length it was accorded, that for the fauing of the French kings honour, which læmed to be tour The peace of thed by things done by the king of Englands mint the quenes. ffers in Galcoigne, fir castels thould remaine at the faid kings pleature, as Sandes, Talemond, Turs nim , Pomeroll, Penne, and mount Flaunton. Also there thould be set a servant or sergeant in the French kings name, in everie citie and castell with in all the whole duchie of Guien, except Burdes aur, Baion, and the Rioll. And further, hostages Mould be delinered at the French kings pleasure, of all ministers to be placed by the king of England in Galcoigne and other places through all the country. These things done, the French king thould revoke the lummons publithed and pronounced in the court of Paris against the king of England. Also he thuld restore all the castels (his fernants being remoued which he had placed in the same) togither with the pleoges incontinentlie, at the request of the same quænes, 02 of either of them. The hing of England having a fafe conduct Chould come to Amiens, that there meeting with the French king, peace and amis tie might be confirmed betwirt them. Then were there writings made and ingroffed touching the forfaid articles of agreement, one part velivered to the earle, scaled with the scales of the quanes, and other remained with the forcfaid queenes scaled with the feale of the carle.

Letters pa = tenta.

The king of England certified hereof, fent his let. ters patents, directed buto all his officers and minip ffers in Cascoigne, commanding them to obeie in all things the French kings pleasure. These letters patents were first sent unto the earle of Lancaster, that he might cause them to be conveied into Gab coigne when he Mould le time. The earle having res 10 ceived those letters, doubting whether the French l. would obscrue the agræment which the quænes had made and concluded, or not; required of them that he might heare the French king speake the word, that he would frand but othat which they had concluded. Wherebpoil in the presence of the faid earle and his wife Blanch quæne of Pauar, mother to the French queene, also of the duke of Burgoigne, Hugh Acre sonne to the earle of Drenford, and of a chapline called fir John Lacie, the French king promised by the faith of a prince, that he would fulfill the promises of the said queenes, and the couenants by them accorded.

bir Geffrep Langley.

Herebpon a knight of the carles of Lancaster, called fir Beffrey de Langley, was speedlie fent in to Galcoigne with letters from the Frenchking, directed to the conestable, to call him backe againe from his appointed enterpile. And the forelate chapleine fir John Lacie was fent also thither with the letters patents of the king of England, directed brito his officers there, in forme as is about mentioned, ther upon the lozd John faint John the king of Engi lands licutenant in Galcoigne, understanding the conclusions of the agreement, sold all such provisions as he had made and brought into the cities, townes, and fortrelles for the defense of the faine, and departing out of Galcoigne, came towards Paris to returne that waie into England.

The French changeb.

his bninft bealing.

But behold that followed; suddenlie by the eniv thanged. And where the king of England was come bnto Canturburic, and kept his Caffer there, that immediatlie upon the receipt of the lafe conduct he might transport over the leas, and so come to Amiens, according to the appointment made by the agree ment; now not onelie the fafe conduct was denied, but also the first letters revocatorie sent buto the conestable to call him backe, by other letters sent after were also made void, and he by the latter letters appointed to keepe byon his fournie, to that the conestable entring into Galcoigne with a power, found no reliffance, the capteins and officers fubiniting them sclues with the townes and fortreties at his pleasure according to the tenor of the letters patents latelie to them belivered. All the officers and capteins of the fortrelles were brought to Paris as captives and pledges.

Within a felv daics affer, the earle of Lancaffer required the quienes, that they would call byon the king to grant his fafe conduct for the king of England, to renoke the citation of fummons, to re- 60 ffore the lands taken from him; and to deliver the pledges: but the French king by the mouths of cer-B. renounceth teine knights fent buto the earle, renounced all such couenants as before had beine concluded. The earle of Lancaster then perceiving that both he and his brother king Coward were mocked thus at the French kings hands, returned into England, and informed the king this connell from point to point of all the matter. Herebpon a parlement being cal led at Welfminster, at the which the king of Scotland was prefent, it was occreed by the trates, that those lands which were crastilie taken so from the k. Hould be recovered agains by the Iwood. And the king herewith fent buto the French king a frier preacher named Hugh of Mancheller, and a frier bughote preacher named Hugh bi spinister, both being helitrah minoz called William de Baineshourgh, both being finite in finite in the bastoura of dininitie to minoz caned wanted and doctours of diamitie, to with the wife and discreet men, and doctours of diamitie, to trent in declare onto him, that lith he would not observe such agreements as had beene concluded betwirt their ancestours; and further had broken such concurants as were now of late agreed byon betwirt them, by the travell of his brother Comuno ence or Annea. The his iter : there was no cause which he ought to account Englands him being king of England, and duke of Guien, as nouncities his liegeman, neither did he intend of meane further front he to be bound onto him by reason of his homage.

About the same time bid the king of England Imbalating feno the archbishop of Dubline, and the bishop of fentunes. Dureline into Germanie about the concluding of manic. Durelme into Germanie, about the concluding of a league with Adolph king of Komans, to thome was given a great fumme of monie (as was faid) bpon covenants, that he should aid the king of Engi land against the French king, with all his maine force, and that neither of them should conclude peace with the faid French king without consent of the o, ther About the Ascension tide, king Coward stated wolles bea the wolles of this land, aswell belonging to spiritue Fabian all men as temporall men, till the merchants had fi ned with him for the same, so that there was a subsi: A subside die paied for all farpliers of woll that went out of railed of mile the relime, and in semblable wife for felles and hives. De allo fent anarmie by fea into Balcoigne, bnoer Inamilie the conduct of his nephue John of Bzitaine that was to Galcogu earle of Richmond, appointing to him as councellours, the load John faint John, and the load Robert Tiptoli; men of great wisdome, and verie expert in warlike enterprifes.

He also caused the severall flets to be prepared, N.Trine; and appointed to them the fundrie admerals, for the better kæping of the scas . To them of Parmouth Chafles and other of those parts, he assigned the lood John these. Botetourt: to them of the cinque posts, William mie of peace was the French kings mind quite 40 be Leibonne: and to them of the west countrie, and to the Triffmen, he appointed a valiant knight of Areland as their chéefteine. This peare in England was a great dearth and scarliftie of coune, so that a Rich, South quarter of wheat in manie places was fold for thirtie hillings : by reason whereof poze people died in manie places for lacke of full nance. About Michael The Coul mas, the English fleet toke the fea at Poztesmouth, armicpille and after some contrarie winds, yet at last they arriv to Galons ued within the river of Garon, and so passing up Counsing the same river, man divers to man a North Nic. Tribe. the same river, wan divers tolunes, as Burge, Polydon

Blaines, Kions, and others.

The kings coffers by reason of furnishing forth of this arinte, and other continuall charges which he had fulleined, were now in maner emptie: for remedie thereof, William Parch one of the kings treasur rers, purposed with other mens losses to suplie that want. He knew that in abbetes and churches was Matth Well much monie kept in foze, the which if he commanded Thill in to be taken from thence, he thought that he thould monie. not commit any offense, but rather dwa good ded, that the monie might come abroad to the vie of the people, whereby the fouldiers might be satisfied for their wages. Such capteins therefore, as he appointed to worke the feat, placing their foldiers in everic quarter through the realine, made fearth at one time, Abington in Julie, at the of the clocke in the affernone, for all such monie as was hid and laid by in all hallowed places, and taking the fame awaie, brought it buto the king, who differibling the matter, as he that find Thems in need, excused the act done by his treasurer so well reraccular as he could, to anoid the enuie of the people; and not content here with, he called togither thoutlie affer, to The hand wit, on faint Matthewes day the apostie, at London, feth his all the archbilhops, bilhops, beanes, carchdeacons, Abington

The French What he had

Cheir offer

not libeb.

king. R.Fabian.

Polydor.

Abington.

N.Triuet.

10.

not in their proper persons, but by two procurators of cuerie diocette. Here when they were once affem. The fatrities bled, the king veclared unto them the warres which the called to he was divinen to mainteine against the French men, the charges which he was at for the fame . De alfo thewed them, that the earles, barons & knights of the realme, ord not onlie ato him with their gods, but put their persons forward to ferue him in defense of the land, whereof they were members, even to the theoding of their bloud, and oftentimes with lotte of 1 their lines. Therfore (faith he) you which may not put pour persons in perill by securce in the warres, it is god reason you thould aid be with your gods.

The cleargie having no special head, by reason hat the feof Canturburie was voto, wift not well bow to governe themselves. At length Dliver bie thop of Lincolne, required in all their names to have the dates respit to make answer to the matter, the which time expired, they offered to the king two dif mes to be paid within one yeare. The which when the 20 hing heard, he toke great distaine therewith, and threatned by some of his men of war to put the clear. gie out of his protection, except they would grant to him the halfe of their gods. The cleargie put in feare berewith, and some of them also desirous to win the part of (piris kings favour, granted his request, and so the king at that time got the halfe part of everte spirituall mans granted to the living and benefice for one yeares extent, to be paid in postions within thee yeares nert infuing, beginning at twentie marks benefice, & so vpwards. And 30 the coner to induce them herebuto, he promised the bilhops to grant some thing that might be benefici all to the cleargie, if they would demand it.

The bithops taking councell togither, required of him that the Catute of Mortmain might be repealed, which they faw to be most preindiciall to their order. tute of Most. But the king answered them, that without the whole confent of a parlement be could not breake that ordinance, which by authoritie of parlement had beine once established, and therefore he wished that they 40 would not require that thing which laie not in him to The R. Chiftith them off, grant, and to by that means he thifted them off. The spiritualtie was not onelie charged with this substi die but they of the tempozaltie were also burthened. For the citizens and burgelles of god townes gave to the king the firt part of their gods, and the relique of the people gave the tenth part.

Poseoner, about the same time, the Wellymen effiones revelled against the king, and in diverse The weithminarebule, parts made diverlevulers amongst them. Those of 50 Manoc. Carnaruan Palgon. thougan data at his commandement, expelled and done the earle 60 not the carte of Glocester out of his countrie of Glamozgan, out of Siamon which earle had before time ditherited the ancessors gandhire.

Porthwales which inhabited about Snowdon bils. having to their capteine one Padoc, of the line of their former prince Leolin, burned the towne and car fell of Carnaruan, fleating a great multitude of Englishmen, which boubting no such matter, were come thither to the faire. Those of the well part hauing thosen to their ruler one Malgon on the parts of Penhanke and Carmardin Chires, did much mile therfe. And one Pozgan having them of Southwals of the same Mozgan. The king therefore to represse the Melhmens attempts, called backe his brother Comund earle of Lancaster, and the earle of Lincoine, being readie to have failed over into Gas-Checarica of coine, the which earles as they approched neere buto Lincolne ban the cassell of Denbigh opon faint Partins day, the fully the Williams with great force incountred them, and gining them battell, droue them backe and discomfited their people. Polydor suggeth that this overtheolo happened to the Englishmen, the rather for that the armie was hired with such monie as had beene wrongfullie taken out of the abbeis and other holie places, howbeit it is but his opinion onelie.

The king kept his Chaffmaffe at Aberconwep in Anno Reg. 13. Wales, and hearing that the new arthbilhop of Canturburie, dodo: Robert Winchelfep, being returned from Kome (where, of pope Celeffine he had received his pall) was comming towards him, he fent one of his chapleines named John Berwike with a power of fouldiers to conduct him fafelie bnto his presence. And after the archbishop had done his fealtie to the king, accordinglie as of outle and custome he was bound, he was licenced to returne with great honour thewed but ohim at the kings hands. Upon the day of the circumcifion of our Load. Baion pertwas the citie of Baion renozed buto the locd John bed to the faint John, the which the day before had beene taken by the mariners by force of allault. Panie of the ci tizens which were knowne to be cheefe enimies onto The castell of the king of England, were apprehended and fent in Baion won to England. The castell was then besieged, and after eight baies taken . The lood of Aipermont with diverse others that held it, were committed to Two french prison. There were also taken two gallies, which the gallies taken. French king had caused to be made, and appointed to be remaining there byon befense of that citie Short be Soint John lie affer the total and of Citie Toke to Solves. lie after the towne of faint John de Sozdes was de livered buto the Englichmen, who wan manie other townes and fortrelles, some by surrender of their owne accord, and some by force and violence. The English armie greatlie increased within a thile, af ter the decett of the Frenchmen once ameared, for The Gals the Balcoins returned buto the English obedience, the English in such wife that foure thousand formen and two men. hundred horlemen came to aid the English capteins.

In the meane time, the king of England palling Cheking ens ouer the riner of Conwey, with part of his armie to treth into go further into Wales towards Snowbon, lost ma, wales. nic carts and other cartages which were taken by the Welchmen, being loden with the provisions of vite tels, so that he with his people induced great penus rie, and was constreined to drinke water mirt with honie, and eat fuch course bread and falt flesh as he could get, till the other part of the armie came buto him. There was a imall quantitie of wine amongst Abington. them, which they would have referred onelie for the king, therfore refuled to tall therof. But least they should repine at his ertraozdinarie and severall fare, and to by conceits of discontentment for not have uing the like, he considered in a sympathic, that,

Qua mala cum multu patimur, leuiora videntur. faieng, that in time of necessitie all things ought to be common, and all men to be contented with like viet. For as touching him (being the cause and procurer of their want) he would not be preferred before any of them in his meats and drinks. The Welsh men compated him about in hope to diffreste him. for that the water was to rifen, that the relique of his armie could not get to him. But Sportlie after, when the water fell, they came over to his aid, and therewith the adversaries fied.

The earle of Marwike, hearing that a great Checarte of number of Mellymen was affembled togisher, and warwise. lodged in a ballie betwirt two wods, he chose out a number of hordemen, with certeine crossebowes and archers, and comming boon the Welthmen in the night, compatted them round about, the which pitching the ends of their speares in the ground, and turning the points against their enimies, stod at defense so to keepe off the houstemen. But the earle has uing placed his battell to, that ever betwirt two horstemen there stod a crosbow, a great part of the Welthmen which frod at defente in maner aforefaid The wellwith their speares, were overtheowne and becken men overwith the thot of the quarels, and then the earle that the earle of ged the relidue with a trope of hordinen, and bare warmike.

手机。

Englishmen

them

them downe with fuch flaughter, as they had not ful teined the like loffe of people (as was thought) at a nic one time before. In the meane while, king Coward to refreine the rebellious attempts of those Welfhmen, caused the woods of Wales to be cut downe, wherein before time the Welthmen were accultomed to hide them-felues in time of banger. De also repared the castels and holds in that countrie, and builded some new, as the Wallymen confirmed through hunger and famine, were inforced within a while to come to the kings peace. Also at length about the feast of faint

Laurence, the William Madoc, that toke him felfe for prince of Wales was taken prisoner, and being brought to London was committed to perpetuall prison. IBy some writers it should appeare, that Madoc was not taken, but rather after mas

nic adventures & fundie conflicts, when the Welth

the faid Padoc came in and fubmitted himfelfe to the kings peace, and was received, opon condition that he thould purfue Doggan till he had taken him and brought him to the kings prison, which was done.

and so all things in those parts were set in rest and peace, and manie hostages of the chefest amongst the

Willip nobilitie were delivered to the king, who fent them to diverse castels in England where they were fafelic kept almost to the end of the warres that folto the French king, being sent with an armie into Galcoine, and comming opon the ludden, found the Englishmen wandering abroad in the countrie out of order, by reason whereof taking them at that aduantage, he caused them to leave their botics behind them, flue part of them, and chased the residue, the were in their possession. The capteins of the English the load John faint John, after they had got togither bands unto Bonteley to defend that towne against the enimics : also other two bands onto faint Seue re: and they themselves went to Rion to sortifie that place. Charles de Malois aduertifed hereof, thought he would not give them long respit to make them-felues frong by gathering any new power, and ther fore amointed the concitable fir Rafe de Peale, lithmen latelie before) to go unto Ponteley and be-he belieged and fiercelie affaulted . But the Engliff:

men and Galcoins did not onelie defend the towne

foutlie, but also made an issue footh open their enf-(tho had wone the citie of Burdeaux from the Eng. 5

About the same time Charles de Malois brother lowed with Scotland.

the citie and castell of Belomarise with other, so that a

The woods bowne.

23caumarile balli.

919adoc ta= Ben prifoner. Abington.

men imprifoned.

Polydor.

Charles de Valois chaleth which fled to their thips, or to luch hauen townes as che English

The Carle of their fouldiers which had beine thus chafed, fent two Rion belieged flege that tolune, whilest he went unto Kion, which Pontfey Swon.

mies, though (as it hamened) the smaller number was not able to suffeine the force of the greater multitude, and so were the Englishmen beaten backe in. to the tolune againe. the confiable wone Ponteley of Pontlac vpon Dordone, and came to foine with the earles de Tialois at Rion, and fo inforced both their powers to win that towne . The Englithmen and Galcoins, though they were put in some seare, yet they shewed their approved valiancie in defending the towne, till at length when they faw they could defend it no long. er, and were in no hope of succour from anie part, they fled out about midnight, and made toward their thips: but diverse of them were taken by the wate, for the Frenchmen having knowledge of their intent, forlate the passages , and taking some of them that first lought to cleave thus by flight, flue them, but there was not many of those. For all the residue, when they perceived that the Frenchmen had laid betwirt them and their thips, making vertue of ne cellitte, floo fill in defense of the towne, till the frenchmen entred it by force of affault the friday in Nic Tris Caffer weke.

Some write, that the fame night, in which they fo ment to fle to their thips , there chanced a great tw mult and mutenie betwirt the fortmen and horfes men, to that they fought togither, or elfe might the mole number of them have elcaped. The horffemen that got footh left their horfes behind them readic briveled and fadled, which the Frenchmen byon entring the towne in the morning take, after they had flaine the most part of the formen. The Frenchmen having got a bloudie victorie, faued onelie the cape teins and gentlemen, and flue the other, aswell Engteins and gentumen, and the was taken of knights, lithmen as Galcoins. There was taken of knights, Engilym fir Rafe Cannie, fir Amis de faint Amand, with his taken. brother fir Kafe de Gorges marthall of the armie, fir men were brought to an illue of great extremitie; 20 Roger Letborne, fir John Breting, fir James Breting , fir Den. Boding, fir John Pandeuile, fir John Fulbozne, fir Robert Goodfield, fir Thomas Turber, uile, & fir Walter, with thice & thirtic esquiers, which were fent all bnto Paris. Sir Abam Breting was killed, a right valiant knight, by reason of one sir kreinghb. That the Birdelin sir valing the best of the birdelin sir valing the birdelin sir valing the birdelin sir valing the birdelin sir valing the birdeling the birdelin France manie peares before as an outlaw.

On the same day was the towne of faint Senere On the same day was me rowne or rain severe belivered onto the Englishmen, the which Hugh or unreading (as Abington faith) Robert Wer, brother to the earle Nic. Trive of Drenford toke boon him to keepe as capteine Bughtim there with two hundred men of armes. Charles be Charles madeia apporting thereof departed from Mint. Malois, Malois advertised thereof, departed from Kion with all speed, to besiege the foresaid towns of faint Se Boint So uere, per the Englishmen should have time to fortiffe vereboing it . But the forelate Hugh Acer kept him out the space of thirteene og(as Abington saith)nine weekes, to the great losse of the Frenchmen, no small part of their people dieng in the meane time, both of pelife men, as John de Bitaine carle of Richmond, and 40 lence and famine. At length, then vittels began to faile within, a truce was taken for fiftenc daics, within the which it might be lawfull for them within the fowne to send buto Baion for succour, which if it came not within that tearme, the towne hould be peelbed buto the Frenchmen, and to it was boon Sainthe these conditions, that the Englishmen and other that he complete would depart, thould have libertie to take with them cion. their armour and gods, and be fafelie conneied two dates fornie on their waie from the Frencharmie. Also that those which were minded to remaine still in the towne, thould not fulfeine any lotte or damage in their bodies or gods. The pledges also which afores time were taken out of that towne by the French kings seneshall, should returne in safetie to the towne, and have their gods reflozed onto them. This Charlest done, Charles de Malois appointed a garrison of fol Million ma diers to remaine there for the keeping of the tolone, nethino and then returned backe into frame. The Gracific France. and then returned backe into France. The English men, which escaped out of those places from the Polydon Thilest they tried their manhood thus at Kion, 60 Frenchmens hands, repaired buto Baion, to defend that fowne with their capteins the foresaid erle earle of Richmond and the load John de S. John, the which of some are untruelie said to have beene saine at Kion. Shortlie after that Charles de Walois was departed and gone out of the countrie, the towns of faint Seuere was recoucred by the Englishmen. It should ameare by report of some writers, that Hugh Cleer (thome they wronglie name to be earle Orters to of Drenford) was fent ouer as then from king Ed lining bit ward to the aid of his capteins in Galcoine, and at Bobert all his first comming, recovered the towne of faint Se and not he ucre, and afterwards to valiantlie defended it against the Frenchmen, that honozable mention is made of him, both by Nicholas Triuet, and also by some French witters, for his high manhood therin the wed. But whether he were brother or sonne to the earle of Orford, 3 can not faie; howbeit about the 27 yeare of this king Cowards reigne, we find one Dugh Cler, that was a baron, whom I take to be this man,. but carle I thinke he was not. For (as Euersden faith) one Robert Ter that was earle of Drford des ccassed in the yeare next insuing, and after him suce coded an other earle that bare the fame name (as by ficge of a. Seucre, rehearfeth not who was capteine as then of the towne, but in the yeelding of it unto Charles de Clalois, after he had laine moze than thice moneths before it, he agreeth with other writers.

Rion foote

In the fame yeare Berard bilhop of Alba and So mon archbishop of Bourges, two cardinals of the Polydor. Cardinals Romane le, were fent onto the kings of England and france, to move them to conclude a peace. They firff came into France, and after into England, but gland and perceiuing the minds of the kings nothing inclined 20 France to treat a peace. to concord, they returned to Kome without any con-Matth. Westm. clusion of their purpole, but not without monie gas thered of religious men to beare out their expenses, for they had authoritie by the popes grant to receive in name of procuracies and expenses, fir marks of e uerie cathedzall and collegiat thurth thozough the realme, besides diverse other rewards. And where nats gather

Julydor.

The carbis

Nic.Tritiet.

At the same time fir Thomas Turberuile a knight, and one of those (as before pe have heard) which were Manh. Westim. taken at Rion, to saue his life, and to deliver him. Sur Thomas selse out of captivitie, though he was never proved pomife to the falle before, promifed king Philip that if he would french bing. lufter him to returne into England, he would fo worke with king Coward, that he might be made by him admerall of the leas; which thing brought to valle of the faid king Philip. Herebyon was he fet at li bertie, and over he came into England. And for as much as he had knowne to be a man of fingular and appoued valiancie, king Coward received him verie courteouslie, who remembring his promised practife to the French king, fell in hand by procuring of freends to be made admerall of the feas. But king Edward (as God would have it) denied that fute.

any poze chapiter of numes or religious persons were not able of themselves, the parish thurthes next

Che French king fendeth against Eng-Abington,

The French king in the meane time having prepared his naute conteining the bundeed faile, what with the gallies and other thips (for he had got of ucric both from Perfelles and Genoa) fent the fame forth to the leas, that boon fuch occasion the king of England might also send forth his fleet. But the French name comming neere to the coast of Engi land, and lieng at anchoz certeine daies, loking for fir Thomas Turberuile; when he came not at the day prefired, the capteines of the French fleet appoint ted one of their vellels to approch nière to the those, and to set on land certeine persons that knew the 60 countrie, to binderstand and learne the cause of such ffaic. They being taken of the Englishmen and eras mined, could make no direct answer in their owne ercuse, and so were put to death. Some write that they fent five gallies towards the those to furvey the coast, of the which gallies one of them advanting forth afore hir fellowes, arrived at Hive neere to Romney hauen, where the Englishmen espieng hir, todialo the Frenchmen on land, feined to flie bache into the countrie, but returning suspendie opon the enimies, they flue the whole number of them, being about two hundred and fiftie perfons. They let fire on the gallie also and burned hir.

ger herewith, sasted streight onto Douer, and there landing with his people, robbed the towns and pilo. Doner robrie. The townslinen being firthen with terror and bed by the feare of the ludden landing of their enimies, fled into the countrie, and raised people on cuerie side, the which being affembled togither in great numbers, towards evening came to Douer, and incisoing fuch Frenchmen as were Araico abroad to fake preies, flue them downe in fundzie places. The French ad The Frenchrecords it may appeare.) Polydor speaking of the 10 merall this had beene busic all the day in pilering men chased to seem of Society, rehearlesh not this mas cauteine the folium, hearing the units of those Frenchmen their Hips. the towns, hearing the noise of those Frenchmen that came running towards the fea five, fireights wates got him to his thips with such pillage as he could take with him. The other Frenchmen, which were gone abroad into the countrie to fetch precies, and could not come to their thips in time, were flaine eucrie mothers some. Some of them bid theme felues in the come fields, and were after flame of the countrie people. There was little leffe than eight Frenchmen hundred of them thus flaine by one meane and other Danie al Doier. at that time. There were not manie of the men of Douer Caine, for they escaped by swift flight at the first entrie made by the Frenchmen: but of wo men and children there died a great number, for the enimies spared none. There was also an old montic flaine named Thomas, a man of fuch bertue (as the opinion went) that after his decease, manie miracles through him were thewed.

Sir Thomas Turberuile, being troubled in his adicining were amounted to be contributorie with 30 minothat he could not bring his traitorous purpose to palle, began to allaie another waie, which was to procure John Balioll king of Scotland to toine in league with the French king, but per any of his reas ailes could be brought about, his treason was reucaled, who being thereof eutdentlie connicted, was put Sir Thos to execution. Nich. Triner faith, that he had promifed mas Europe French king to cause Wales to reposit from because execute the many state of the many states. king Colward, and that by procurement of the prop N. Triuct. uoft of Paris, he consented to worke such treason. he would definer the English name into the hands 40 And (as some write) he did not onelie homage buto Caxton, the French king, but also left two of his sonnes in pleage for affurance to worke that which he had promiled. Dis fecretarie that wrote the letters onto the French king, conteining his imagined treasons, Abington, with other advertisements touching king Cowards purpoles, fearing least the matter by some other means might come to light (as the old prover faith, Quicquid nix celat folis calor omne reuelat) as well to his destruction as his maisters for concealing it, disclosed all to the king. Pow he having knowledge that he was beweated by his fernant, fled out of the court, but fuch diligence was vied in the pursuit of him, that he was taken within two daies after, and brought backe againe to London, there be was connicted of the treason so by him imagined, and therefore finallie put to death . This yeare the cleargie gave to the king the tenth part of their gods, the citizens a firt part, and the commons a twelfth part, or rather (as Euersden saith) the burgelles of god townes gave the feventh, and the commons abroad the eleventh penie.

The same years died Gilbert de Clare earle of The death of Glocester, which left issue behind him, begot of his noblemen. wife the countesse Jone the kings daughter (beside the daughters) one young sonne named also Gil bert to lucceed him as his heire. The countelle his wife, after hir hulbands deceaffe, married a knight of means estate, borns in the bishopricke of Du refine, named fir Mafe Monthermer, that had ferued Sir Bafe the earle hir first husband in his life time. The king Mouthermes at the first twhe displeasure herewith, but at length countess of through the hie valiancie of the knight, off times the Gioceace. wed and apparantlie appioused, the matter was fo well taken, that he was intituled earle of Glocoffer, French.

Daine about

The admirall of the French flet kindled in an-· Aff.y.

French men flaine. I galtie

Abington.

N. Triuct.

Anno Reg. 14. and advanced to great honoz. 30hn Romane archbishop of Booke also this yeare died, after whome one Henrie de Pelumarke deane of the colledge there fuccaded. I Poseover the fame yeare Will liam de Clalence carle of Penbroke departed this life, and lieth buried at Westminster, and then Ab mer his fonne faccæded him.

John king of Scotland affianced bis fonne Co-

The king of €cois conclu deth a league Spith the French king. Frenci, Polydor.

ward Balioll with the daughter of Charles du Mas lois brother to the French king, and concluded with 10 the faid Frenchking a league against the king of England. Dothing moued the Scotish king so much hereto, as the affection which he bare towards his native countrie, for he was a French man borne, and lood of Harecourt in Pormandie, which fegnio-Matth. Weft. rie was after made an earledome by Philipbu Clalois king of France. The Scotilhmen had cholen 1 2 peres, that is to faie, foure bishops, foure earles, and foure barons, by whole adule and counfell the king thould gouerne the realine, by whome he was 20 induced also to consent buto such accord with the French men, contrarie to his promiled faith giuen to king Coward when he did homage to him.

Hing Colvard not fullie bnderstanding the conclusion of this league, required aid of the Scotish king for the maintenance of his warres against France, and receiving a doubtfull answer, began to lulped the matter : wher boon he required to have thic cassels, as Barwike, Coenburgh, and Rokes burgh, delinered buto him as gages till the end of the warre, and if the Scotishmen continued fatthfull k. Edwards buto him, he would then restore the same castels to them agains then the warres were ended. This to do the Scotishmen otterlie denied, alledging that their countrie was free of it felse, and acquit of all feruitude or bondage, and that they were in no convition bound buto the king of Scotland, and there fore they would receive the merchants of France, of Flanders, or any other countrie without exception on, as they thought god.

The diffotall bealing of the Scots.

request made to the Scots is benteb.

Abington,

Nic. Triuet.

The carle of Lancafter Abington.

The caffell of Lefpar deline red bnto him. Nic.Triuet.

23 23767

The french=

There were in the hauen of Berwike at the same time, certeine Englich merchants, opon whome the Scots made allault, and wounded some of them, and some of them they slue, and thased the residue, the which returning into England, made complaint, and shewed in what euill maner they had bone dealt with. Bing Coward herebpon percetuing the purpoles of the Scots, determined to make warre by on them with all speed, a to conquer the whole count dealing as of them was reported and thought to be put in practile. About the convertion of faint Paule in Januarie, king Colward lent ouer into Galcoine his brother the lord Comund earle of Lancatter, fent into Gaf: with the earle of Lincolne and other, to the number of 26 banerets, and 700 men of armes, belides a great multitude of other people. They arrived at Blay, about the midft of Lent, and fraied there till towards Cafter. In which meane fealon, a great fort of Galcoins and other people relocted buto them, 60 so that they were two thousand men of armes.

Tipon Cene thursdaic, the castell de Lesparre was delivered buto the earle of Lancaster, and after that divers other castels. At his approching niere buto Burdeaur, bpon the thurldaic in Caffer weke, as he refred to refresh himselfe and his armie in a little village called Bekell, an armie of French menissw ing out of Burdcaur, ment to come on the English. men at unwares : but having warning, they prepared themselves to battell, so well as the thortnes of time would permit, and to there boon incountring with their enimies, and fighting a fore battell, at men forced to length confireined the French men to returne buto the citie, and pursuing them as they fled, two Englift knights being breihren to fir Peter de Mallom and an other that was a Balcoine, entred the citie with two flandard-bearers belonging to the earle of Richmond, to the load Alane de la Zouch, whom the frenchmen toke, cloting them within the gates. The other Englishmen being thut out, first fell to the spoile of the suburbs, and then fet fire boon the same. After this were certeine of the citizens that fecret: Polydon lie were at a point with the earle of Lancaster, to have delinered the citie into his hands, but their practife being espied, they were taken and executed yer they could performe that which they had promi-

Then the earle percetaing he thould but lose his labor to ffaie any longer there, opon certeine weigh. The carte of tie occasions returned buto Baionne, where he Lancaster de Mostlie after fell licke and died. He left behind him part the formes, Momas that succeeded him in the earldome of Lancaffer, Henrie logo of Honmouth, and John whome he had begot of his wife Bland, the which before had beene married unto Henrie earle of Champaigne, and king of Pauar, by whome the had but one onelie daughter, that was married buto the French king Philip de Beau. After this the Tques belie English armie belieged the citie of Aques, but tho gi rough want of bittels be was constreined to raise Checated thence and breake by the siege. The earle of Arthois arthois sind animal former for the first being forther than army with an army being sent of the French king with an armie into to Galcone, Galcoine, incountred with the Englishmen, and N. Triuct, thased them with the flaughter of a great number, and after reconcred divers townes and fortrelles in the countrie.

Thole Englishmen that kept the towns of Burg, Burg delle being compated about with a fiege by Dounfeur De ged. Sully, obtained truce for a certaine space, during the which they fent onto Blaines for some relecte of vittels, and where other refused to bring by a thip loven Cheloph with vittels, which was there prepared, the lord Si mon de Mon mon de Pontagew, a right vallant chefctaine, and tagewham 40 a wife, toke opon him the enterprife, and through terpule tout the middle of the French gallies, which were placed on of Burg. in the river to frop that no thip thoulo passe towards that towne, by helpe of a prosperous wind, he got into the haven of Burg, and so relieved them within of their want of bittels, by meanes thereof, Doun' Cheligis feur de Sully brake op his fiege, and returned into raifed. France.

In the meane time, king Edward not flepping his Chekingd businesse, procured Guie earle of Flanders to soine Englander with him in leaves account the flanders to to the trie, if they could not cleare themselues of such enill 50 with him in league against the Frenchmen. This stague with Quie was the fon of Margaret counteffe of Flans the carkof ders, whom the had by hir fecond hulband William Flanders. lord of Dampire in Burfoine. Also king Coward peth aleant procured Henrie earle of Bar, to whome (as before also with the pe haue heard) be had ginen his daughter Cleanoz carle of Bir. in marriage, to make warre opon the Frenchmen, Che carled to that at one time the erle of Bar innaded the court Champaign trie of Champaigne, and the earle of Flanders made incurtions boon those countries of France which toine buto Flanders. Ling Philip hereof aductiv led, fent forth one Walter de Creste with a great armie against the earle of Bar, so that besseging the chefell towne of Bar, he constreined the said earle to leave off his enterpille in Champaigne, and to returne home, for doubt to lofe more there than he Chould win abroad.

But now to touch more at large the circumstans ces of the occasion that moved the earle of Flanders to make war against the French king, I find Americal (in Iacob Meir) that there was a marriage conclusion ded betwirt the losd Coward the elocat fon of king Coward, and the ladie Philip daughter to the fore faid Buie earle of Flanders, thich marriage was concluded by Henrie bishop of Lincolne, and the

carle

The carle of arrifte).

Carle Warren, being fent oner as amballadours by king Coward, buto the faid earle Gute for the fame purpose. In the yeare following, the faid earle of Flanders, togither with his wife, comming to bilit the french king at Corbeill, were arrefted, and fent to Waris, there to remaine as puloners, bicaule that the carle had affianced his daughter to the French kings adverfarie, without his licence : neither might they be delivered, till by mediation of the pope (who mult needs meddle in the matter by bertue of his re peremptozie power, all christendome must beile the bonnet to his holinelle, oz rather abhominablenelle. Ille etenim toto fese iubet orbe colendum.

Cui nisiparueris, crede perire licet)

The carle of

forced to a:

Ebr pope in and lucrtic had boon the promise of Amedie earle of trimebleth in Sauop, they were let at libertie, with these conditis ons, that they thould deliver into the French kings bands their daughter, which was fo affianced buto ik. Cowards fonne, and further covenanted, not to conall points t'observe a certeine peace which was concluded with Ferdinando earle of Flanders, in the gra with the peare 1225. And if earle Quie brake the fame peace. then thould be be ercommunicated, and all his countrie of flanders interdiacd by the archbishop of Reims, and the bithop of Senlis, judges appointed herein by authoritie of the pope. The earles daughter being fent foz, and brought bnto Paris, the earle and his wife were released, and the earle made earneff fuit to have his daughter returnethhome. Hozed unto him againe, infomuch that he processed pope Boniface to be a meane for him to the French king, but all would not ferue, no, though as fome fap the pope accueffed the French king for reteining hir. answer being made, that matters perteining to wildiegonernement, belonged not to the pope to discusse. Finallie, earle Buie, perceining be could not prevaile in that fuit, to have his daughter as gaine, upon high displeasure concluded to some in 40 Inwleague league with king Coward this confederats. Here, kiwirthek, bpon,at an affemblie og councell kept at Ocrardmount, there was a solemne league made and as greed betwirt Adolph the emperour of Almaine, Co. wardking of England, Suie earle of Flanders, Arneth bing, John Dute of Brabant, Penrie earle of Bar , both formes in law to king Coward, and Albert duke of Autrich, against Philip king of France, and John

Othe carle of

Manh West.

against the

earle of Henault his partaker. The merchants of Flanders procured the earle to 50 conclude this league with king Coward, as some write, the rather in respect of the great commodities which rose to their countrie, by reason of the intercourse of merchandize bled betwirt England and Flanders, and for that through aid of the English men, they might the better with frand the malice, both of the French and of all other their entinies. This league being proclaimed in England, there were fent ouer into Flanders , the treasurer of the exchefrom thence, and to give to the earle fifteene thouland pounds of filner, toward the fortifieng of his castels and holds. Ling Philip being hereof advertiled, by counfell of the pares of his realme, fent two honoras ble personages, as the capteine of Mounstrell, and the capteine of Belguerke, which should attach the earle of Flanders by his bodie, and fummon him to palo himselse prisoner at Paris, within the space of fiftene daies nert inluing.

This attachment made, and fummous given, the earle of Flanders fent his full defiance winto the hand bing. French king by the abbats of Gemblois, and Sone fics, buto whome he gave functiont letters procurs. toxic, to authorife them thereto, dated at Pale in the peare of Grace 1296, after the accounts of the thronicles of Flanders, which begin their yere at Cafter: and so this chanced in the fine and twentith years of king Cowards reigne, the wednesdate nert affer the feaft of the Opiphanie. Herebpon was the carle ac The carle of curifed, & flanders interdicted by the archbifhop of Flanders Reims, and the bishop of Senlis comming unto accurated. Terwane for that purpole, about the fifteenth day of June, in the yeare 1 297. Wit the lord Robert the Dissonne earles some appealed from that interdiction to the epicalcib pope, and so the Flemmings toke themselves free from the inout of danger of the fame. Carle Bute also obteined terbiation, of king Coward, that it might be lawfull for them of Bruges, to buy wols, through England, Scotland and Ireland, as frælie as the Italians might by their puullege and grant.

But to returne now to the doings of king Co. ward, who in this meane time, having perfect knows ledge of the league concluded betwirt the king of cluve any league with the king of England, but in 20 France and the king of Scotland, prepared an armic, and first fent ambassadors into Scotland, to Ambassadors give fummons to king John to appeare at Dew fenr to the &. castell within certeine daics, that he might there of Socots. thew the cause whie he had broken the league; and further, to veclare buto him that he was deceived, if he thought he night ferue two maiters, contrarie to the words of the gospell, and according to the old faieng which feldome neuer faileth in confequence, Deficit ambobus qui vult servire duobus. luffered to returne into Flanders, and Mortlie after, 30 For how much favour as he purchased at the hands of the Frenth king, so much displeasure might he as fure himselfe to procure at the hands of the king of England, whome to obeie, it thould be most for his aduantage. The amballadors that were fentalo their mellage throughlie, but king John was so farre off from answering any thing that might sound to the maintenance of peace, that thoutlie after he fent letters of complaint buto king Coward , for wrongs which he alledged he had fulfcined by his means and at his hunds. Herebpon king Coward, by adulle of his councell, determined to let forward with his armie into Scotland.

In the meane time, Robert Ros, capteine of Nic. Triver. Marke cassell, renolted to the Scotth king, mound The lord it of therebute therebute therebute the lord of a Scotth continue the lord it is the first the scott the continue the lord of t therebute through the love of a Scotift gentlewo k.o. Scota man, whome he meant to marrie, notwithstancing he had fwome fealtie unto king Comard. Whereup, william de on, his brother William de Ros giving knowledge Ros commuto king Coward, required to have forme atd, thereby eth fath till be might defend the castell grainst the Sections to the king he might befend the castell againt the Scotishmen. of England, King Colvard fent buto him a thouland fouldiers, (Polydor faith an hundled) the which as they lodged one night in a towne called Preffen, were flaine Englishmen by the Scotilhmen of the garifon of Rockefbozongh, bidredet. that were led and guided by the fatd Robert Ros: some of them although but setu escaped awate by flight.king Coward aduertifed hereof, haffed fwath, and came to the laid castell, glad of this (as is repose ted)that the Scotishmen had first begun the warre, her, and directe other noble men, to fetch holtages 60 meaning, as it thould fame by their proceedings, to follow the fame, for upon God friday, diverte Sro. Rich South, filhmen entring the borders, burnt fundzie villages, and spotled the abbete of Carham. Furthermoze, whilest king Coward kept his cas N. Trivet, ftell at Marke, featien carles of Scotland, as Bouchan, Denteth, Stratherne, Lennor, Ros, Atholi, and Par, with John Comin the mailler of Bavenaw, haufing affembled an armie togither of fine hundred men of armes on horsebacke, and ten thousand fot. Abington, men in Annandale, opon monday in Caller weke Che Scots entred Angland and untiting all in fire and funch inade Engentred England, and putting all to fire and fwood, land, approched to Carleill, and laid frege there onto on each Coe, palling the water of Coen by a food boder Ris harollon, and did to much prevaile, that they burned Nic. Triver.

Ff.iu.

the fuburbes, and affaulted the gates, at which enterpule, a gentleman of Galloway as he ventured concernat neere to the gate, was drawne by by an iron hoke, of those that food aloft bpon the gates to befond the fame, and there flaine, and theuft through with speares. In the meane time, a spie, the which had beene taken and commutted to pulon, let fire on the house therein he was inclosed, and so the flames cat. thing hold byon the other buildings, a great part of the citie was thereby burned. Pet the men and the 10 women getting themselves to the wals, droue their enimies backe, and to defended the citie from taking. Wher bpon, the Scotish loads percetuing they conto not prevaile, left their fiege on the thursdate in Caffer wæke, and returned againe into Scotland.

Werwike. fummones.

The Scots raile their liege from

Caricil.

Abington.

Foure Eng: lift fhips loft.

Abington.

Berwike wone. Chisfir Ri= chard Comes Abington.

Caxton,

Abraham

On the fame thurfdaic, king Coward with his armie passed the river of Tweed, and so entring in to Scotland, fent to the burgeffes of Berwike, offer ring them peace bpon certeine conditions, and faied a whole day for an answer: but when he could have 20 none that liked him, noz that founded in ante thing to peace, he approched the folime, and lodged in the monafferie of Caldeffreime. Dis armie conlifed as fome write of foure thouland men of armes on hork backe, and thirtic thousand formen, belides fine hundecomen of armes on horfebacke, and a thouland The English fatmen of the bishoppike of Durham. At the same time, there came foure and twentie Englith thips, the mariners whereof, beholding where the Englith armie was placed in battell raie, bpon a plaine, the 30 king making there certeine knights, they thought his meaning was to have given forthwith an affalt, and fo entring the hauen, and approching to the land, began to fight with the towne imen, where they loft foure of their thips, and were confireined to with draw with the relidue, with helpe of the falling was ter. Some have written, that they loft but thre thips which were consumed with fire, and that the mark ners and fouldiers of one of those thips, after they had defended themselves by great manhod from the 40 first houre of the daie, till eleven of the clocke, escaped alvaie, some by the bote of that thip, and some leas ping into the water, were fauce by the botes of other thips that made in to fuccour them. The rumoz of the mariners attempt being bar ted through the armie, the king palling forward to wards the towne, got ouer a ditch, which the Scots had call to impeach his pallage, and lo comming to the towne, wan it, not loling any man of renowine, faning fir Richard Comewall, the which was flaine 50 wall was bios by a quarell which a Flemming thot out of a croffes ther to the cirle bowe, being in the red hall, thich the merchants of Flanders held in that towne, and had fortified it in manner of a tower: but when they would not palo, and could not calilie other wife be wone, the house towards enening was let on fire, and to they being thirtie in number, were burned to death within if. Cloon the fame night, the king longed in the caffell. which was vielded buto him by them that kept it, their lives and limmes faued, and receiving anoth, 60 that they thould not from thenceforth beare armour against the king of England, they were permitted to depart whither they thought god, their capteins fir William Dowglas excepted, whom the king fill kept with him, till the end of the warres. Some write that there should be slaine of Scotishmen at this winning of Berwike, about the number of twentie thousand men, Abington faith 8000, but Richard Southwell faith 15000 at the least one with an other, with fmall loffe of Englishmen, not past eight and twenticof all forts. Demay read more hereof in the Scotish historic.

Wut before I palle ouer this flaughter, so lamenta. ble and wonderfull, I have bethought my felfe of a promised apologic for and in the behalfe of Richard Grafton, mentioned before in the reigne of Benrie the fecond, page 112.col. 1. where I thewed how bn. adulfedlic and with unfermelle modeffic for a man of learning, George Buchanan the Scot both fhot his bolts at the faid Grafton, as now by occasion of the matter convenientlie occurrent thall be the wed. The faid Grafton in his large volume of English chaont cles, falling bpon the affaires betwene king Co ward the first, and John Balioll king of Scotland, R.Graffe among other things there remembeed, maketh re. Pag. 176. port that in the faid battell of Berwike, the flaugh ter was fo great, that a mill might well have borne ditten by the space of two dates, with the ffreames of blood which at that time overranne the ground. At G. Buthing thich woods George Buchanan giueth a Inatch, cm. Ter. Score boldened to to do , bicause the said Grafton referreth 8 pagas this record to Hector Boetius in his fourteenth boke penning and fecond chapter.

Jelu, how the Scot taketh by the Englishman for halting in his allegation, first for the chapter, conuincing him that Hector Boetius biuided not his boke into chapters, and therefore, where is the fecond chapter, lith the whole fourteenth boke is a continued discourse without distinction by chapters. Secondite the faid Grafton hath the checke, for letting a lie aflote, Buchanan flatlie affirming that Hector Boetius hath no fuch matter once mentioned in his annales, Touching the first fault, wherewith the Scot char. geth the Englishman, this is note-worthic, that it hould sæme to anie man of meane sudgement, that Buchanan of a prepented malice and purpoted wilfulnesse hath tharpened his stile in this niming tost against Grafton. For sith it was Graftons mean ning to record the truth, so farre forth as he was warranted by the auerment of writers; why thould he be cast in the teeth with Effranz maledicendi libido,02 dishonestlie termed Indoctine or impudenter mendax? Which opposious epithets, if they were deferned by an untrue report of the author; then thould Buchanan haue tharpened his tong against Belenden his countriman, the translator of Hector Boetius into their mother tong, from thome Grafton hath beriued his words; sense for sense bumangled (as he found the fame written.)

Pow who knoweth not that Bellenden diffinguiv thed Hectors annales into chapters, bpon whole authoritie Grafton relieng, and citing his authoritie according to the quotation of his division, whice should he rather than Bellenden be barked at , tho is the principall in this controuerfie - Againe, it could not be hidden from Buchanan, that Bellenden had diffributed Boerius into chapters; considering that they were obyxeovor, both living in the reigne of James the fift of that name king of Scots; fo that it might have pleased him to have tried Grafton by the Sco. tilh Boctius, and to to have beene resolved for the second chapter of the foureteenth booke, according to the archdeacon of Murreis translation.

Pow for the matter it felfe, touching the effusion of blond, where with a mill might well have beene date uen for two daies space; Hector Boerius his owne Hedor 100208 ate thele; Riui sanguinis toto oppido adeo fluxere, usspessio ot cum astu decurrente minor aqua quam ad molendina cir fisi loca cumagenda suerit, adiunante aquam sanguine aliqua circum- Paysista agi fonte caperint. Which place, Bellenden hath inferpreted after this manner; So lamentabl' Caubter wes throw all the parts of the toun, that ane mill might haif gane two dates ithandlie be ffremts of blude. Dow cramine Graftons woods by Bellenden, and Bellendens by Boetius (belides that, marke what Grafton annexeth to the report of this flaughter, who faith that he will not inforce the credit there of opon any man, but counteth it a Scotish lie rather

An. Reg. 24. hand matter of truth) and then conclude according tocquitie, that Grafion is altogither excusable and fautleffe, and Buchanans curious & furious challenge reproueable. But admit Grafton had fetcht his report from Boetius, as the had it from Bellenden; for methit a lie or an unlikelihoo, that the bloud gulls ing out of the bodies of 25000,02 (as Hector Boetius (auth) 7000, would not increase to a streame sufficient able to drive a mill or two about, without any water intermingled ther withall. The Latine copie 10 hath Ruis languing, rivers of bloud, noting by the word the abundance and also the Areaming course of the fance, which was able with the violent current there. of to bearc awaie the verte bodies of the flaine. To conclude this matter, to fet our Englishman by the truth, and let the Scot go with his lieng twng, which I would be had had the modellie to have tempered, to have proffered a practice of that which himselfe parappasticallie preacheth and teacheth others to ob ferive, fairing;

(Linguæ obseraui claustra fræno,pertinaæ Obmutui silentio, Ac temerè ne quid os mali profunderet, verbs bonis clausi exitum.)

k.Edward fortificth Werwikt. fent to king

The Scotilh

ceth his ho= mage and fe=

alric hato the king of En=

per pfal 39.

And now to the Corie. In. Coward remaind at Berwike 15 daies, a caused a ditch to be cast about the towns of 80 for in breadth, tof the like in depth. In Mouth frier the meane time, about the beginning of Aprill, the warden and reader of the frier minogs of Rockel basough called Adam Blunt, came buto him with 30 letters of complaint from king John, for the wrongs bone and offered unto him and his realme, as well in claiming an buinft fuperioxitie, and confireining him to do homage by bridge and wrongfull meanes, as also by inuading his townes, flateng and robbing his subjects: for the which causes he testified by the fame letters, that he renounced all such homage and fealtie for him and his subiects, as he, or any of them owight for any lands holden within England. The king hearing the letters red, received the relignation 40 of the homage, and commanded his chancelloz, that the letter might be registred in perpetuall memorie of the thing. The earles of Scotland before remembred, being

The Scots Enclish beiders.

Darbotell.

Rich.South.

affembled togither with their powers at the castell of Jedworth, entred into England the eighth of A pail, and with fire and swood did much hurt in the countries as they palled . In Riddelbale they belieged the callell of Harbotell by the space of two dates, but when they could not prevaile, they removed, and 5 pailing fouth by the cast part of the river of Tine, tho rough Cokefoale, Kiodefoale, and Posthumberland, unto Derham, they did much milchefe by burning and harrieng the countries. At Herham they footled the abbeie church, and got a great number of the cleargie, as well monks, prieffs, as scholers, and o thers, whom they thrust into the scholchouse there, and clotting up the dozes, fet fire on the schoole, and burs ned all them to ashes that were within it. It is wonderfull to read, what beatflie crueltie the Scots bled 60 in that road which they made at that time in two le nerall parts. For the earle of Boghan, with them of Galloway, entred by Cumberland in like manner as the other ofo in Riodesvale, burning and murthe ring all that came in their waie. For whereas all of the Hocots. those that were of able age and lustie to get awaie, fled, tescaped their hands; the aged timpotent creat tures, women in childhed, and young children that could not thist for themselues, were unmercifullie flaine, and thrust open speares, and shaken op in the aire, where they yielded up their innocent gholfs in most pitifull wife.

Churches were burned, women were forced with out respect of order, condition or qualitie, as well the maids, widowes and wines, as numes that were reputed in those dates consecrated to God, and when they had beene to abuled, manie of them were after also murthered, and cruellie dispatched out of life. At length, they came to the nunrie of Lamelate, & burs ned all the buildings there, saving the church, and then of Lamelaie returned backe into Scotland with all their pillage burnt. and bottes by Lauercoff, an house of monks, which they likewile (poiled. So that the cruell & bloudie des folation whereof Lucan speaketh in his second bake of civill warres, may aptlie be inferred here, as fitlie describing the mercilette murther of all fates and feres without parcialitie under the hand of the es nimie: for faith he,

Nobilitas cum plebe perit ,latéque vaçatur Ensis, à nullo reuocatum est pectore ferrum, Stat cruor in templis, multáque rubentia cæde Iubrica saxa madent, nulli sua profuit ætas, Non sens extremum piquit vergentibus annu Pracipitasse diem, non primo in limine vita Infantis miseri nascentia rumpere fata.

Patrike earle of Dunbar came to the king of England, and submitted himselfe, with all that he had England, and submitted himselte, with all that he had Eie castell of Dunbar voon faint Dunbar rens Parkes day, being affieged of the Scots was ren dento the dred buto them, by treason of some that were within Scots. it, of whome, the countelle (wife to the same erle) was the cheefelt; for recouerie übereof king Coward fent Belide 2000 Identification to the control of the thichlaieng flege to that callell, a great hoff of Sco. 10000 tate tilhmen came upon them to the rescue of them with tilhmen came upon them to the reicue of them with N. Triuct. in, so that there was foughten a verie soze and terry Matth. Westm. ble battell. At length, the vidozie abode with the En Abingion gliffmen, and the Scotiffmen were put to flight, the I face battell Englishmen following them in chase eight mile of fought at Englishmen following them in chale eight mile of Dunbar, that countrie, almost to the forcest of Selkirke: the The number Caughter was great, fo that (as was elicemen) there faince Dies of the Scotiffmen that day, to the number of Marth Wellm. ten thousand.

The motrow after being faturdate, which was the eight and twentith day of Aprill, at the kings comming thither the callell was furrenous onto him. There were taken in the same castell the earles, Denteth, Callels, and Kos; fir barons, John Comin the yonger, William Sanclere, Kichard Siward the elver, John Sit; Beffrey , Alexander de Mosfeigne, Comund Comin of Bilbiro, with fhirtie knights, two clearks, John de Someruile, and Wil liam de Sanclere, and thee and thirtie elquires, the which were fent buto diverse castels in England, to be kept as prisoners. After the winning of Dunbar the king went to the castell of Rockesbozough, which Rockesboz incontinentlie was pælded by the load Steward of rough paldes. Scotland, the lines and members of all fuch as were within it at the time of the furrender.

Then went king Coward buto Coenburgh where he planted his liege about the castell, and raised engines, which cast fromes against and over the walles, lose beating and brufing the buildings within. But as it chanced, the king witting letters, to advertise his councell at holive of his proceedings, and concerning other buffnette, beliueren that packet unto a Rich. Southin. Wellhman named Lewin, commanding him to go with the fame to London in all half possible, for he knewhim to be a verie sperie mellenger and a trus fie also (as be toke it.) But hauing the letter thus delivered him, togither with monie to beare his charges, he got him to a tauerne, there riotoullie co. furning the monie (which he had fo received) in plaie, $ making good there, in the morning he caused one of his companions to take a target, and beare it afore him in approching the castell, for that he meant (as he colourablie pretended) not to depart, untill he had

Luc. lib.3.

mionabt

25 oghan. The crueltie

wrought some despleasure to them within with his croffebote, which he take with him for that purpole, fo that comming buto the castell gates, he called to the warvers on the walles to call downe to him a cord, that they might plucke him by to them therewith, for that he had formulat to fay to their capteine touching the fecrets of the king of England.

They fulfilling his befire, when he came in, and was brought afore the captein litting then at breaks fait, he faid buto him : Wehold fir, here ye may per, I ce use the king of Englands secrets, and withall raught to him abor, wherein the packet of the kings letters were inclosed, and appoint me (faith he) to some cor concrofthe wall, and trie whether I can handle a croffe ce bow or not, to defend it against your adversaries. Dere when others would have opened the bor, and have read the letters, the capteine would in no wife confent thereto, but going into a turret, called to the Englishmen bælow, and willed them to signific to the king, that one of his fernants being fled to him, 2 fought to bewaie his fecrets, therebuto he would by no means agree, and therefore meant to reffore both the traitor and the letters. Herebpon, the lord John Spenfer, comming to heare what the matter might meane, the capteine caused Lewin to be let downe to him, togither with the letters fafe, and not touched by him at all.

When the king buder food this, be much commens ved the honest respect of the capteine, and whereas he had caused engins to be raised to annote them with: 30 in (as ye have heard) he commanded the fame to cualic, and withall, bpon their capteins fuit, he granted them libertic to fend onto their king John Ball oll, to give him to bnder frand in what fort they frod. As touching the Welthman, he was drawne and hanged on a paire of high galowes, prepared for him of purpole, as he had well deferued. A notable erample of a traitozous villaine, fo to offer the fe crets of his foucreigne to be known to his enimies: and no leffe excellent a president of an honest and 40 faithfull harted foe, that would not himfelfe nozlet anie other have a light of the contents therein wit. ten; a rare point of good meaning and uppight deas ling in a fouldier, and speciallie in an enime; but

multo optimus ille Militia cui postremum est primuma, tueri 🔒 🔢 Inter bella fidem.

Striueling caltel left boid

augh og gig s

A wellhman

hanged.

Pow while the mellengers were on their waie to Forfair, where the Scotill king then late, king Co. ward with a part of his armie went onto Strives 5 ling, where he found the castell gates set open, and the keiss hanging on a naile, so that he entred there without any reliffance, for they that had this caffle in gard, were fled out of it for feare before his comming. The most engers that were sent from them within Coenburgh castell, comming to their king, declared to him in what case they find that were be, fieged. king John, for that he was not able to fuccor them by any manner of means at that prefent, fent turning, the caffell was immediatlic delivered buto the load John Spenfer, that was left in charge with the siege, at the kings departure towards Strive reprotes hing ling, with the like conditions as the castell of Rockelbo:ough had pælded a little before.

Thus was that firong castell of Coenburgh furrendzed by force of flege, to the king of Englands ble, on the 15 daie, after he had first laid his siege about it. A place of fuch Arength by the heigth of the ground whereon it flod, that it was thought impregnable, and had not beine wone by force at any time, fince the first building therof, before that prefent, so farre as anie remembrance either by writing or or therwise could be had thereof.

Here at Coenburgh, orrather at Rockesborough (as Abington faith) a great number of Welthmen came buto the king, who fent home the like num ber of Englith formen, of those that famed mott wearie. Pozeouer, at Striveling, there came to the hing the earle of Alder, with a great number of A Saint In rithmen. Then patting over the river of Forth, the towne king came buto faint Johns towne about Piolum. The kingel o mer, and there tarried certeine dates. Whilef these Scotsimh things were a doing, John king of Scotland, perceiuing that he was not of power to relift king Co ward, fent ambaffadozs bnto him to fue for peace: king Edward was content to heare them, and there byon appointed, that king John Chould refort buto the castell of Brechin, there to commen with such of his councell as he would fend thither within fiftene dates next enluing, to treat of an agreement. Ling Chebihon Edward sent thither Anthonie bilhop of Durham, of o with full commission to conclude all things in his name. And within the appointed time came king John, and divers of his nobles onto him, the which after many fundzie treaties holden betwirt them The kingd and the laid bilhop, at length they lubmitted them: Scots lib feliues and the realme of Scotland, fimplie and pure; mittely his into the harde of the king of Gregory. lie into the hands of the king of England, for the of England which submission to be firmelie kept and observed. king John delivered his son in hostage, and made letters thereof, written in French as followeth,

The instrument of the said submission.

Ehanper la grace de Dieu, roy de Ef-coce, á tous ceulx quæ ceftes præfen-tes letres verront ou orront, faluz, &c. Iohn by the grace of GOD king of Scotland, to all those that these present letters shall see or heare, sendeth greeting. Bicause that we through cuill counsell and our owne simplicitie, haue greeuouslie offended our souereigne lord, Edward by the grace of God king of England, lord of Ireland, and duke of Aquitane, in many things; that is to faie, in that, whereas we beeing and abiding under his faith and homage, have bound our felues vnto the king of France which then was his enimie and yet is, procuring a mariage with the daughter of his brother Charles du Valois, and that we might greeue our faidlord, and aid the king of France with all our power by warre and other means, we have at length by aduise of our peruerse counsell defied our said ford the K. of England, and haue put our felues out of his allegiance and homage, & fent our people into England, to burne houses, to take spoiles, to comthem wood to take the best wate they could so their 60 mit murther, with many other damages, and owne safetie; with which answer, the messengers reals in fortifieng the kingdome of Scotland, which is of his fee, putting and establishing ar-med men in townes, castels, and other places, to defend the land against him, to deforce him of his fee, for the which transgressions our faid fouereigne lord the king, entring into the realm of Scotland with his power, hath conquered and taken the same, notwithstanding althatwe could do against him, as by right he may do, as a lord of his fee, bicause that we did render vnto him our homage, and made the forefaid rebellion. We therfore as yet being in our full power and free will, doo render vnto him the land of Scotland, and all the people therof with the homages. In witnesse whereof, we have caused these letters patents to be made. Yeuen at Brechin the tenth day of Iulie, in the fourth yeare of our reigne, sealed with the common seale of the kingdome of Scotland.

Chenburgh caffell beitue=

& Cowerd palleth fo2:

B. Edward bungeth the out of $500t=

The nobilitie frincy to the bing.

After this, king Coward went forward to læ the mounteine countries of Scotland, the bilhop of pautique mato through Durham euer kieping a dates fournie afoze him. At 10 length, when he had pasted through Murrey land, and was come to Elghin, perceiuing all things to be in quict, he returned towards Berwike, and comming to the abbeic of Scone, he toke from thence the marble frome, where bon the kings of Scotland were accultomed to lit as in a chaire, at the time of their coronation, which king Edward caused now to be transferred to Westminster and there placed, to ferue for a chaire for the priest to fit in at the altar. The king comming to Berwike, called thither buto 20 a parlement all the nobles of Scotland, and there received of them their homages, the which in perper about them thall witnesse of the thing, made letters patents thereof, written in French, and fealed with their feales, as the teno; here followeth.

The instrument of the homages of the lords of Scotland to K. Edward.

Touz ceux que cestes lettres verront ou orront, &c. To all those that these present letters shall see or heare, we Iohn Comin of Badenaw, &c. Bicause that we at the faith and will of the most nobleprince, and our dearest lord, Edward by the grace of God king of England, lord of Ireland, and duke of Aquitaine, doo yow and promile for vs and our heires, vpon paine of bodie and goods, and of all that we may haue, that we shall serue him well and trulie against all men, which may liue and die, at all times when we shall be required or warned by our faid lord the king of England or his heires, and that we shall not know of any hurt to be doone to them, but the same we shall let and impeach with all our power, and giue them warning thereof: and those things to hold and keepe, we bind vs, our heires, and all our goods, and further, receive 50 an oth thereof vpon the holie euangelists: and after all, we and euerie of vs haue done homage vnto our souereigne lord the king of England in Cortome of words as followeth; I become your liegeman of ther homage. life, members, and earthlie honour, against all men which may liue and die. And the same our souereigne lord the king received this homage Emmons under this forme of words; We receive it for right of vs, or other faued, and except the lands which Iohn Balioll sometime king of Scotland granted vnto vs, after that we did deliuer vnto him the kingdome of Scotland, if happilie he hath ginen to you any fuch lands.

Moreouer, all we, and euerie of vs by himselfe haue done fealtie to our faid souereigne lord the king in these words; I as a faithfull & liege man, shall keepe faith and loialtie vnto Edward king of England, and to his heires, of life, member and earthlie honor, against all men which may live and die, and shall never for any person beare armour, nor shall be of counsell nor in aid with any person against him, or his heires in any case that may chance, but shall faithfullie acknowledge, and doo the feruice that belongeth to the tenements the which I claime to hold of him, as God me helpe and all his faints. In witnesse wherof, these letters patents are made and figned with our feales. Yeuen at Warke the four c and twentith of March, in the 24 yeare of the reigne of our faid lord the king of England.

Then was John Marren earle of Surrey and Officers ap-Suffer made by king Coward warden of Scotland, pointed in Hugh Creffingham treasurer, and William D: Scottono v. melbie high instice, whome the king commanded, that he should call all those before him which held any lands of the crowne, and to receive of them in his name their homages and fealties. John Balioll the John Baliott late king of Scotland was fent to London, and fent to Lonhad a convenient companie of fernants appointed to bon. attendhim, having licence to go any whither abzoad, so that he kept himselfe within the circuit of twentie miles nere to London. John Comin of Badenaw, and John Comin of Lowan, and diverse nobles of Scotland were brought into England on the fouth live of Trent, being warned boon paine of death not to returne into Scotland, till the king had made an end of his wars with France. After this, at his re: A parlement turne into England, king Coward held a parlement at laint Coat laint Edmundsburie, which began the morrow as mundsburie. fer the feast of All faints, in which the citizens a burgelles of god townes granted buto him an eighth granted. part of their gods, and of the relidue of the people a twelfth part.

The cleargie by reason of a constitution ordeined and constituted the same yeare by pope Woniface, The pretent prohibiting byon paine of ercommunication, that ded excuse of no falages not other eractions thould be leuted of er, the cleargie. aced of the cleargie in any manner of wife by fecular princes, or to be paid to them of things that perteined to the church, otterlie refused to grant any manner of aid to the king, towards the maintenance of his wars. Wherebpon the king, to the intent thev Chould have time to Audie for a better answer, des ferred the matter to an other parlement to be holden on the morrow after the feath of faint Bilarie.

This yeare after the feaft of the Epiphanie, Elle Anno Reg. 27. sabeth the kings daughter was married buto king John carle of Holland. Humfrey de Bohunearle of The carle or Hereford and Associated for the carle of The carle or Hereford and Gler was fent to conucie them into Polland mara Holland, there to take pollellon of the earledome, as beth the kings then descended buto the said John, by the death of his daughter. father latelie before flaine by his owne subiects, bi, N. Trivet. cause he would have disherited this John, and made a baltard sonne which he had to be his heire. The day appointed for the parlement to be holden at Lone bon being come, and the cleargie continuing in their deniall to grant any sublidie, the king excluded them out of his protection, for the redeeming whereof, mathe land of the which you be now feized, the 60 nie by themselves, and manie by inediators, of as terwards give buto the king a fift part of all their gods. The archbishop of Canturburie being found Aiffe in the matter, the king fefred all his lands, and commanded all such debts as were found of his in the rolles of the ercheker, to be lenied with all fred of his good and cattell. Some write, that when the Abington. archbishop of Canturburie in name of all the rest. The archbis due had declared to them whom the king had apoin, thop his ted commissioners to receive the answer, that where, words. as they of the cleargie had two fouereigne loods and governours, the one in spirituall matters and the o ther in tempozall, pet they ought rather to obeie their spirituall governour than their temporall. Peverthelesse, to satisfie the kings pleasure, they would of their owne charges send to the pope, that by his li cence and permission, they might grant the king some aid, or else receive some answer from him, what to ow therein: for (faith the archbishop) we believe that " the king feareth the sentence of excommunication, " and would be as glad to avoid it as we.

Then the committioners heard this antwer, they required that they would appoint some of their owne companie to beare this inclage unto the king, for they durff not report it to him: which being done as the commissioners had required, the king in his fu ric proceded against them, in such rigorous manner as pe have heard, in somuch that the lood cheefe suffice Othe declarati fitting boon the bench, spake openlie these words; Dou firs that be attornies of my loads the archbis ce thous, bithous, abbats, priors, and all other the clear, ce gie, occlare buto your masters, and tell them, that from henceforth there thall no inffice be done onto them in the kings court for any manner of thing, al ce though never to he inous wrong be done onto them: 20 but fustice shall be had against them, to everie one that will complaine and require to have it.

The clearke: the archbi, of orke his fuffragans.

Henrie de Powarke the elect bilhop of Porke, liehanoling of the matter he inth the bishops of Durham, Elie and Salisburie, with certeine other, fearing the kings indignation thus kindled against them, ordefned to late downe in the churches, a fift part as pe have heard, of all their gods, towards the defense of the realme, and main tenance of the kings warres in such time of great necessitie, and so the king receiving it, they were re-Rosed to the kingsprotection agains. The frænds of 30 the bilhop of Lincolne found means, that the thiriffe of the thire levied and take the fift part of all his gods, and reflored to him againe his lands and pol fellions. Also, all the monasteries within his diocesse, and within the thole province of Canturburie, were fersed into the kings hands, and wardens amointed, which onelie ministred necessarie finding buto the monks and other religious persons, and connerted the ouerplus buto the kings ble. Whereboon the abbats and priors were glad to follow the court, and fur 40 ed to redeeme, not their fins, but their gods, with at uing a fourth part thereof. The cleargie luffered mas nie inturies in that feafon, for religious men were spoiled and robbed in the kings high wate, and could not have any restitution not remedie against them that thus evill intreated them, till they had redeemed The miferie the kings protection. Persons and vicars, and other of churchmen. of the cleargie, when they rode fouth any wither, were glad to awarell themselues in late mens garments, so to palle through the countrie in safetie.

The archbilhop of Canturburie lost all the goods that he had, for he would neither agree to give any thing, no: to late any thing downe in the church, that the king might receive it. Therebpon he was brought to luch extreme miserie, that all his feruants went from him, a commandement was given fouth, that no man thould receive him, neither within mo nasterie nor without, and so not having any one place of all his bithopike where to late his head, he remained in the house of a poze person, onelie with 60 one prich and one clearke : pet he friffelie foo in the Theobainate matter, affirming certeinlie, that all those which granted any thing, either to the king, or to any other temporall person without the popes leave, ran with out doubt into the banger of the fentence pronouns ced in the canon.

About the fealf of S. Watthew in Februarie, the king called a parlement of his nobles (not admitting thereto any of the cleargie) at Salisburie, and there required certeine of his Pobles to palle ouer into Salcoine, but enerie of them læmed to excule bim felfe, whereat the king being mouce, threatened that they thould either go,02 he would give their lands to other that would go, with which words mante of them were grauoullie offended, in so much that the earles of Hereford and Marthall, Humfrie Bohun, and Roger Bigod, declared that they would be readie to go with the king if he went himselfe, or else not. And when the earle Parthall was effoncs to quired to go, he answered, I will willinglie go with the king, and march before him in the fore ward, as his right of inheritance 3 am bound. Dea (faith the king) and you thall go with other though 3 go not. T am not lo bound (laith the earle) neither do I pur, pole to take the fournie in hand with you.

The king then in a great chafe burft out & fware. By God fir earle, either thou thalt go og hang. And I Iweare (faith the earle) the fame oth, that I will new ther go not hang: and so he departed from the hing The man without leave taking. Immediatlie herebyon bemeiner those two earles affembled manie noble men, and 70 the trong ther of their freends togither to the number of thirtie banerets and aboue, so that in all they were found to be fifteene hundred men of armes appointed and reas die for battell, and here with they with drein into their countries, and kept such thir there, that they would not permit the kings officers to take neither wols, leather, not any thing against the owners will, but forbad them on paine of lwling their heads to come within their romes, and withall prepared themselves to relift if næd were.

In this meane time the warre was profecuted in Theole Balcoine. The thursdaie before the Purification of within our ladie, Henrie earle of Lincolne, and the lood armen armen John faint John departing from Baton towards 10000fer Bellegard, a place belieged as then by the earle of as Abure Arthois, to fuccour them within the same with vit, suth, tels (thereof they flood in need) as they approched to a wood distant from the fortresse three miles, they dis uided themselnes into two severall battels, the loo John faint John leading the first, and the earle of Lincolne the fecond. The lood faint John therefore Battelle having passed the wood with his battell, and entring winter into the plaine fields, was incountred by the earle of Lincon of Arthois, who tarried there for him with a great of Andrew power, where immediatlie at the first totning of the who have battels, the earle of Lincolne retired backe: so that him 1500 the losd John faint John and his companie overfet ofarmes with preate of enimies were banquiffed; and the Abingois faid lood faint John with fir Milliam de Pootimer, fir William Burmengham and other to the number of eight knights, and diverle elquires were taken, the which were fent to Paris as prisoners. Dther write comembat otherwise of this battell, as that boon the first incounter the Englishmen drove backe one regiment of the earle of Arthois his men of armes, whom he divided into foure parts; but when they once coined with the fecond regiment, to the which they were beaten backe, forward they came againe, and to charging the Englishmen, with helpe of their third lquadzon, which was now come to them allo, they easilie put the Englishmen opzessed with multitude buto flight, a followed them in chafe. After this came the Englishmen which were in the rereward, and incountring with the fourth fquadzon of regiment of the Frenchmen, streightwates bake the fame. Herewith was the night come boon them, lo that one could not know an other, a freend from an enimie, and to both the Englishmen and Frenchmen were dispersed till the mone rose, and the French men withozew to their fortrelles, and among them certeine Englishmen were mingled, which being dis couered were taken puloners, as the lood John faint John, and others.

The flaughter was not great, for there were no formen on either part, to spoile or kill the men of armes that were throwne before their hortes: for the maner of the archbishop of Canturburic.

The archbish. of Canturbu. confilcate.

3 parlement et Salifburie

English

Matth West.

Abington

The carle of incolne el=

The commeth

De inuabeth about Tho: loufe.

The custome of wol railed.

Abington. Euerlden. Prousion for the kings touraie into France.

la Meir. Flanders.

Lille belie= geb.

The earle of

N. Triuet.

leff the English horfemen in banger of the enimies which had compassed them about on everie side. Thee hundred of the men of armes came through to the towne of Bellegard, but bicaufe it was night, fo that or focs, they within the towne would not lufter them to enter : wherebpon they departed, and went to S. Seuere foure leagues off . Pet further in the night, other of the Englithmen were received into Bellegard, which came thither after the other, and fo in the morning they of the garifon with their affifiance iffued forth, and comming to the place where the bats tell had beene, gathered the spoile of the field, and conucied into their towns such proutsion of vittels as they found there. The earle of Lincolne with a great manie of o-

Diawne backe, as before pe haue heard, without attempting any exploit worthie of praile. Indeed some laic the blame in the Balcoine fortmen for the loffe of this battell, bicause that they withozew backe, and ther wandred a great part of the night and knew not whither to go. At length about the of the clocke in the morning he came to Perforate, where he had longed with his armie the night before, & there found agreat number of his people right glad of his come ming and hapic escape out of danger. From thence he returned buto Baion with the earle of Kichmond fir John de Britaine and all his companie that were left. And such was the hap of this tournie. In Lent 30 following, those that were dispersed here and there as broad, reforted to the earle of Lincolne, fotourning at Baion, and in the fummer featon made a tournie tos wards Apolouse, spoiling and walking the countries of Tholouse and other there abouts, and removed also the siege which those of Tholouse had laid unto a fortrelle called S. Liternes, in chaling them from the fame fiege: and towards Dichaelmaffe they retur, ned to Baion, and there late all the winter till after Chistmaste, and then by reason of the truce conclus 40 ded, as after appeareth, betwirt the two kings of England & France, they returned home into England.

In the same yeare the king raised the custome of woll to an higher rate than had beene paid at any time before: for he twke now fortie Hillings of a facke or farpler, where before there was paid but half a marke. Pozeouer he commanded, that againft his fournie which he meant to make ouer into France, there thoulo be two thousand quarters of wheat, and as much of oates taken by the thiriffe in everie coun, 50 tie within the realme to be conneied to the fea five, ercept where they had no store of corne, and there should beines and bakons be taken to a certeine number. In the meane time the earle of Flanders The French was loze bered by war which the French king made ding innadeth against him, being entred into Flanders with an armie of this score thousand men, as some authors haue recorded.

About the feath of the nativitie of S. John Bap. till, he laid fiege to Lifle, and thoutlie after came the earle of Arthois, being returned out of Gascoine with his power buto that siege, and was sent forth to kepe the Flemings and others occupied, which late at Furneis, and in other places thereabouts in low Flanders, with whome he fought and got the victorie. king Coward therefore, to fuccour his friends prepared to go over into Flanders, and therebpon fummoned all those that owight him any service, & such also as helo lands to the value of twentie pounds and about, to be readie with horse and harnesse at London about Lammas to passe over with him in that

3 rebellion in

In the meane time about the moneth of Maie, Sections by there began a revellion in Scotland by the letting on of William Walcis: for the king of Englands fur the means of fice William Damfbie, accoadinglie as he had in one william commission, confined and put to outlawite a great fort of such Scotishmen, as refused to do fealtie and bomage buto the king of England, the which Sco. tilhmen being thus condemned as outlawes, elected the foresaid William Waleis for their capteine, with whome William Douglas being once allocia. ted, the number of them increased hugelie. The earle they could not be diferened whether they were frends 10 of Surrey and the treasurer being in England, those outlaines purposed to have taken the inflice at Scone : but he being warned though almost twlate. escaped himselfe with much ado, leaving the most part of his people as a spoile to the enimies. Hoz William Waleis and his companie killed as mas Englishmen nie Englishmen as fell into his hands, and taking flaine in certeine religious men, he bound their hands behind Scotland. them, and constreined them to leave into the river, taking pleasure to behold how they plunged.

The king fent the bilhop of Durham into Scotland, to biderstand the certeintie of this rebellion, the returning from thence, informed him of the truth. The king not minding to breake his fournic which he had purposed to make into Flanders, appointed that the earle of Surrey (hould have the leading of all such men of warre as might be levied beyond Trent, to represse the Scotish revels, and also mote buto John Comin earle of Boughan, that remembring their faith and promife, they thould returne into Scotland, and do their bell to quiet the countrie: they according to his commandement. went into Scotland, but thewed themsclues flow to nough to procure those things that perteined to peace and quietnelle.

In the meane time, whilest these things were a do Abington. ing the bishop of Carleill, and other which laie there bpon the gard of that citie and castell, having some mistrust of the localtie in Robert Bruce the younger, Robert that was earle of Carrike by his mother, they fent Biuce. him wood to come buto them at a certeine date, ble cause they had to talke with him of matters touch ing the kings affairs. He durit not disobeie but came to Carleill togither with the bilhop of Gallowaie, & there received a copposall oth byon the holie and facred mofferies, and boon the fwood of Thomas Bec. Thomas het, to be true to the king of England, and to aid him Beckets and his against their enimics in all that he might: fwozd. and further to withfrand that the faid king received no hurt noz damage to far as in him might lie.

This done, he returned againe into Scotland, and for a colour entred into the lands of William Douglas, and burnt part of them, bringing the wife and children of the same William backe with him into Annandale: but Mostlie after, he conspired with Robert Bruce the Scotish rebels, and foined himselfe with them, therebels. not making his father printe to the matter, who in the meane while remaind in the fouth parts of England. He would have persuaded such knights, gentlemen and other as held their lands of his father in Annan N. Trivet. dale, to have gone with him, but they would not Thee hun= breake their faith given to the king of England, and breth men of fo left him. The earle of Surrey affembling togi, armes, and ther his power in Porkeshire, sent his nechue the lord fand formen Henrie Percie with the fouldiers of the countrie of faith Abing-Carleill before into Scotland, tho palling forth to conthe towne of Aire, went about to induce them of Ballowaie into peace, and hearing that an armie of Benrie Ber-Scotifhmen was gathered togither at a place about foure miles from thence called Irwin, he made the Irwin. therward, and comming neere to the Scotish host, might behold there the same was lodged beyond a certeine lake. In that armie were capteins, the bis thop of Glasco, Andrew de Hurreie steward of Scotland, and William Waleis with (as it should (ceme)

The butaiths full desling of the scots.

and the ex

14.8

.....

renolteth to 304 teme) were not all of one mind.

Discordin the & co= Sir Richard Lundie.

The Scots fue for peace.

There was in the fame armie a knight named fir Richard Lundie, which never pet had don homage to the king of England, but now flieng from his companie, he came to the English armie, and submitted himselfe with his retinue onto the king of England, fairing that he ment not to ferue amongst them any longer that could not agree togither. The relique of the Scotillymen fued for peace, bpon condition to haue lines, members, gods, cattels and lands faued, 10 with a parcon of all offenfes paff. The load Percie bpon pledges & waitings herrof beliucred, was contented to grant their requests, so that the king his mailter would be therewith pleased, tho being here of certified, bicause he would not gladlie be ffaied of his fournie into flanders, granted buto all things that were thus required.

Then after that the earle of Surrie was come to the English campe, bicause William Waleis ceal fen not in the means time to affemble more people, 20 the Englithmen doubting some treason, resolued to give battell, but while if they were in mind thus to do, The bishop of the bishop of Glasco and William Douglas to a note the note of difficialtie and treason, came and submitted themselves : and so the bilhop was committed to ward within the caffell of Kokesbozough, and William Douglas in the caltell of Berwike. It is to be noted, that even in the verie time that the treas tie was in hand betwirt the losd Percie and the Scoboon that part of the English campe, where the trulle and baggage late, which they spoiled and ranfacked, flateng aboue five hundzeth persons, what of men, women and children, but the alarum being rais fed, the Englishmen came to the rescue, and chasing the Scots, flue above a thouland of them, and reconered the most part of their owne gods, with moze which they take from their enimies.

In this meane time king Coward at the feath of Lammas held a councell at London, where he receiued the archbishop of Canturburie agains into his fanoz, reflozing buto him all his gods and lands. He appointed him and the load Reinold Brey to have his eldelt sonne prince Coward in keping, till his to turne out of Flanders. But Nicholas Trivet waiteth, Bardians ap: that the faid prince Coward being appointed to res pointed to the maine at home, as lieutenant to his father, there kings some were appointed but o him as councellors, Richard bis in his fathers absence. Moreon, William earle of Warwike, and the forenamed lord Reinold Grey, with the lord Carles Mar- John Gifford, and the lord Alane Plokenet, men of thall and here high wifebome, gravitic and diferetion, without mas king mention of the archbishop of Canturburie in that place. The tivo earles Warthall and Hercford being commanded to attend the king into flan ders, refuled, erculing themselues by mellenger.

After this, the king caused fir Kafe Wonthermer (whom his daughter the counteffe of Gloceffer, in hir widowhood had taken to hulband without knoledge of hir father) to be belivered out of the castell of 60 Buttow, wherein he had beine kept puloner a certeine time byon displeasure for the marriage: but now he was not onclie fet at libertie, but also refto red to his wife, and to all the lands perteining to the earledome of Glocester, appointing him to find 50 men at armes to ferue in that fournie into Flanders. He also delinered the earles of Cassels and Menteth, John Comin, and divers other Scotiff men appointing them also to go with him into flanders. Finallie having affembled his armie, over the which he made the lord Thomas Berklie constable, and Geffrey Jenuille marthall, he went to Winthelfey, and whilst he late there before he toke the lea, there was prefented onto him from the earles a writ ting, which confeined the causes of the greefe of all the hinging. archbilhops, bilhops, abbats, carles, lords, barons, carles to and of all the communaltie, as well for fummoning Public them to ferue by an bnoue meane, as also for the bn reasonable tares, sublidies, impositions & paiements which they dailie susteined, and namelie the impost augmented byon the custome of woll fæmed to them verie græuous. For thereas for everie facke of thole woll there was fortie hillings paid, and for euerie facke of broken woll one marke: it was well knowne, that the woll of England was almost in value esteemed to be worth halfe the riches of the realme, and so the custome thereof paid, would as cend to a fift part of all the substance of the land.

The kings answer therebuto was, that he could The king not alter any thing, without the adulte of his count aniwn cell, of the which part were alreadie patted over into Flanders, and part were at London; and therfore he required the faid earles, that if they would not at tend him in that fournie into flanders, they would pet in his absence do nothing that might be presude ciall to the realme : for he trufted by Gods fauour to returne againe in fafetie, and fet all things in god Thebings order. At length, about the 21 date of August, the flanding king toke the lea, and landed in Flanders neere to Abingion Sluice, about the 27 day of the same moneth. He was no coner on land, but that through old envie and malice depending betweene the mariners of the cinque ports, and them of Dermouth and other quar Debattan tilh capteins, the Scots of Ballowate and other let 30 ters, a quarell was picked, so that they fell togither, fighingh and fought on the water in luch earnest lost, not with twisting famoing the kings commandement fent to the con- rineradia trarie, that there were 25 thips burnt and destroied cinquipm of theirs of Vermouth, and other their partakers: al fo thee of their greatest thips, part of the kings treas fure being in one of them, were tolled fouth into the high fea, and quite conveied awaie.

The king from Sluice fird went to Banges, and la. Mein after to Baunt, finding the countrie in enill flate, by reason that the god towns were not all of one mind: for divers of them milithed with the dwings of the earle, in that he had alico himselfe with the French Lingin bings aduerlaries. About the beginning of Septem, tothe fun ber was Liffe yelbed bnto the French king, and af king ter that they of Doway, Curtray, and Buges, did Charles likewife submit themselves to the same king. Then mains was Charles earle of Malois sent to Bruges to for to Bings tific that tolone, and to take the English nanie that late at anchoz in the bauen of Dam: but the Englishmen having warning thereof, got south with their vellels into the lea, and to the earle of Halois being disappointed of that preie, set in hand to fortifie Bauges and Dam. But the earle of Austrich, & Kobert de Peners son to earle Buy, being sent with a power of Englichmen, flemings, and other fouldiors buto Dam, fought with the Frenchmen, line foure hundreth of them, belides divers that were taken, and recovered the towne. They might also have recovered Bruges, as was thought, if the English men and flemings had not fallen at frife, & fought togither about dividing of the preie.

Finallie, after this, the French king came to 1820 Chi ges, and when the king of England and the earle of Bould Flanders had long loked and all in baine for the em, beth pied peroz Adulfe, tho had promifed to come to their aid with a great armie; for the charges and wages wher of he had received great summes of monie both of the king of England, and also of the earle of Fland ders: they concluded in the end (when they perceived be would not come) to make some agreement with the French king: and fo first was a truce taken, from the middelt of Daober, buto the calends of Decemi ber, and after by mediation of Charles (furnamed Claudius)king of Sicill, the same truce was prolon.

william Dou

glag.

Abington.

The archbilh. rie receiued into fauour.

Nic.Triuet.

fozo refulc to go oner with Flanders.

Bir Rafe Monthermer releafed.

mieafeb.

Othe loza 3 libell beli= ucred to the ged as hereaver pe thall heare.

An.Reg.25,26.

In this meane while, to wit, about the end of Auquif, the earle of Surrey, then he faw that the Sconihmen would not performe promife touching the pelinerie of the pleages, and that William Wlaleis fill monco the people to rebellion, he affembled his armie, & with the fame entring Scotland, came on to Striveling. Then the lood feward of Scotland, and also the earle of Lenor came buto him, requiring him to faic till they might have leafure to le if they could bying the people of Scotland buto the kings peace. But when they could not dwit, they returned on the tenth day of September, promiting to bying to the aid of the earle of Surrey on the mos row after fortie horstemen, bpon the which day two friers of the order of preachers were fent unto Wil liam Maleis, and to the other Scotillymen lieng bes pond the hill about the monasterie of Scambeskin, to move them to the kings peace. But their answer was, that they were not come to have peace, but to trie the matter by battell. The English armie without god aduise, thosough the prefumptuous pride of the lord Dugh Creffing-

The pride of tjugh Erelûngham.

The Scots affaile the Engliffmen.

Abington.

maduke Chweng.

Deb ;ench

cut

ij.

ham, preased to the bringe, and halting to palle the fame, the Scotiffmen came bpon them per the one halfe could get ouer, and so fiercelie affailed them, that the Englishmen were beaten backe and flaine downe. For the Scots, after they faw fo mante of the Englishmen to have passed the brioge, as they thought themselves able to diffreste, they made downs to the bridge fot, and with a number of their 30 spearemen on fot, closed it by, that no moze should come over to the aid of their fellowes, nor those that were alreadie passed, spould returne againe: yet one Chebaliancie fir Marmaduke Thiveng a right valiant knight, thich was one of the first among the men of armes that came over, after that he and his companie had driven downe one wing of their adverlaries, thad followed them in chase a good wate, as purpoling to have gotten the conquest against them, at length perceining the companie behind diffrested by the Scots, he returned with those few that were about him, and purpoling to repatte the bridge, ruthed in among the Scots that floo before him with fuch violence, that he passed thorough them, making waie for himselfe and his folks by great manhod, fauing one of his neques also which was let on for a wounded, after his hoeffe had beine killed under him.

At length the discomfiture was such, and the Scots men discomfi: preasted so carnettlie to win the bridge also of those Englishmen, which were not yet passed, that at 50 length the earle of Surrey commanded to breake that end of the bridge, there they frod at defense to keepe backe the Scots, for else had there sew of the Englithmen escaped. There were flaine (as wme have written) to the number of fix thousand men, and amongst other was saine fir Bugh Crestingham, whose Kin(as hath beine reported) the Scots Ariped off his dead carcalle, for the malice which they bare toward him. This discomfiture chanced on the 11 day 60 Checarle of of September. The earle of Surrey, leaving in the castell of Striveling the said sir Harmaduke Thweng, promised him to come to his aid at all times when neo thould be, within ten wekes fpace, and here with taking his horse, rode in such half to Berwike, that after his comming thither, his fied being fet by in the Cable of the friers minors, neuer affer taffed meat, but died: affer this, the faid earle making no long aboad in Berwike, rove by to London buto prince Colvard, and left the towne of Beri wike as a prece to the Scotishmen: but those pet that had the castell in keeping, defended it manfullie against the Scots, the which assembled togisher in campe wider the leading of Alexander earle of Hur, rey: and their capteine William Walcis came to The castell holdeth tacke Werlothe, and finding the tolune boid of all defense, against ihem. entredit, but they could not win the castell by any

The Posthumberland men conveied their wives, their children, their cattell, aother goos, which might be removed, out of the countrie for feare of the entimics invalin: but when the Scots lingered time, and entred not within the English borders for a feat thumberland, fon, they brought their gods againe, in hope that the and spoile the Scots would not come forth of their owne marches countric. at that time. But the Scots having advertisement thereof, about the feast of S. Luke entred the One glift borders, and did much hurt within the countrie of Porthumberland, so that to audid the danger, all the religious mentled out of the monasteries situat betwirt Pewcastell vpon Tine, and Carleill. The Scots spoiled, harried, and burnt by the countrie, till the feast of faint Martine, and in the vacues of 20 the same feast they diew togither, and went towards Carleill, with towne they fummoned, as you hall

They fent a prect to them that kept it, comman ding them to yeld: but receiving a froward answer, they fell to and wasted all that countrie, passing tho, they fell to and wasted all that countrie, pauling 11109, The fexest of rough the foxest of Inglewood, Cumberland, and Al Inglewood, lerdale, till they came onto Derwent and Cokermouth, not sparing either thurth nor thappell . Their meaning was to have gone into the billiopzike of Durham, but what through fore weather of haile, fnow and frost, that through vaine feare of wrong information given by their spials, that the countrie was well provided of men of warre for defense, they brake off that fournie, and yet there were not past a hundred men of armes, and thee thouland formen in that countrie, which were then also dispersed thos rough ir klomenesse of long stateng for the enimics. The Scots therefore drew onto Herhain, and there lodged, not without bering the canons, although they 40 had granted letters of protection buto the prior and covent of the same house, to indure so, one wolc yeare: and likewife letters of fafe conduct to paste and revalle for one canon, one squire, and two serv uants, when soener they thould send to them, ouring that terme: which letters were given forth under the name of the fair earle of Hurrey, and William The towns of Waleis. From thence they went towards Pewcas Ruson burnt. fell, and burnt the towne of Kiton. Finallie, percei, Anno Reg. 26. uing they could not prevaile in attempting to win the towns of Pewcaltell, they divided their spoiles and returned home.

About the same time, to wit, a little before Christs malle, the load Robert Clifford, with the power of the ford inuaccin citie of Carleill, entred Annandale, committing all Annandale, : to the spoile of the formen, of whome there was a great number. The men of armes on hosfbacke, being not paft an hundeed in all, kept togither, and finding their enimies assembled neere to Annankirke, Annankirke, game a charge opon them, and chased them into a marify, within the which they kept them, till the fot: men came in, and affailing them, flue 308 perfons, and twhe diverse of them piloners, and returning againe to their market, burnt ten villages, and on Chaifmaffe even returned with their preie and box ties buto Carleill. In the beginning of Lent they Annanturke made an other rode, in the thich they burnt the church burnt. of Annan.

Whilest these things were in hand, prince Coward the kings eldeft son, and other, which had the rule of the realme in the kings absence, sought meanes to N Triver, pacific the earles Parthall and Herefood: but they The fromard would not agree, but boon fuch conditions as pleafed besting of the themselves to prescribe, which were, that the king ford a Sparthould confirme the great charter, and the charter of chail.

The Goots returns home.

The load Cit

Scots flaine.

The Scota

Dirrepre:

haft to 15 cr=

turneth tuwille.

Oq.j.

forrests

forcests, with certains new articles to be included in the fame great charter, and that from thenceforth the king should not charge his subjects so frælie at his pleasure as before time he had bone, without confent of the flates of parlement, and that he flould pardon his displeasure and malice conceined against them for denieng to go withhim into Flanders. Panie other articles they would that the king hould grant, confirme, pardon and establish. The which were all sent over into Flanders to the king, that he might 1 perule them, and declare whether he would agree or dilagre to the lame. He as one being dinen to the wall, thought goo to peelo unto the malice and iniquitie of the time to reconcile the offended minds of the percs and barons of his realme, and granted unto all the fair articles, confirming the same with his charter under his great feale. In confideration where of the nobles of the realme and commons granted to the king the ninth penie of all their gods: the archi bishop of Canturburie, with the cleargie of his pro- 20 uince, the tenth penic; and the elect of Porte and those of his province, granted the fift penie; towards the maintenance of the war against the Scots, bicaule they were nert buto the danger.

A parlement at yozhe.

Abington.

A Cublinie

granted.

The king also by his speciall letters required the nobles of the realme, that if they continued in their due obedience to him, as they promifed at his departure out of the realme to do, that then they thould refort and appeare at his parlement, to begin at Borke the morrowafter the featt of faint Pilarie, without 30 and befought him to fair his people from commitall ercuse or delaie: for otherwise he would accompt them as enimies to the commonwelth of the realme. At which day appeared the earles of Warren and Glocester, with the counteste of Glocester his wife daughter to the king, the earles Parthall, Pereford, and Arundell, Guie sonne to the earle of Marwike in his fathers rome: and of barons, the load Henrie Percie, the lood John Wake, and the lood John See grave, with manie of the nobilitie, the which being affembled togither, would that it thould to all men be 40 notified, in what manner the king had confirmed the great charter, and the charter of forrests: where byon Magna charta. the fame being read with the articles therebuto ad ded, and put in, the bithop of Carleill, adorned in pontificalibus, oid pronounce all them accurated, that went about to violate and breake the fame. And bis cause the Scotish loods appeared not, being summo. ned to be there, it was decreed that the armie thould come togither at Pewcastell bpon Tine, in the oc tames of the feath of faint Pilarie next infuing, to 50 that the generall musters might then and there be taken.

Debate hes twirt o kings Gantnerg.

The king laie the most part of this winter at Sant, in the which meane time there chanced fedition betwene th' Englishmen & the Bantners, insomuch that the Welthmen had fet fire on the towne, if the king had not flaied the matter. But the Flemill weiters faie, the Englishmen fet fire in foure parts of the towne indeed, that they might the moze free lie have robbed in other parts thereof, whilest the 60 townelmen had gone about to quench the fire. But the townsimen bent on revenge, affembled togither in great numbers, and falling on the Englishmen Que thirtie of their hostlemen, and of their formen to the number of leven hundred, or thereabouts. They had also flaine the king, if a knight of Flanders had not made thift to lauchim. ¶ In bed (as thould appeare by the same writers) the English formen hab done much hurt in the countrie, and namelie one day they spoiled the towne of Dam, and flue two hundred worthic personages, who had veloed them felues to the king at his first comming into the coun-

And although the king caused certains of those that had done this outrage to be hanged : yet the file: mings bare this & other inturies in their minds, meant to be revenged thereof, before the English men departed out of their countrie, and therefore there drew out of fundrie parts into the citie of Bant by Imall companies, to the number of foure thou fand men of armes, besides a great multitude of fortmen, and when they perceived themselves frong inough (as they toke the matter) at the day amongs o them appointed, and confidered in their minds, that

-vnita potentior est vis Qualibet, at partes in plures (e. La peribit, they clufted togither, and under the leading of the earles fonnes, William and Robert, they did first fet bpon the Englishmen that were in their lodgings, The fre of whom they flue diverte, and after comming fouth mings in into the freets, they ment to have made flaughter of onthe Ca all the residue: but by the noise that was raised, the than an king had warning in what state the matter stod, and ings, therewith getting him to armour, came footh of his lodging, and freightwaies his people flocked as bout him. And furthermore, the formen which were lodged in the suburbes, hearing of this tumult, got them to armour, a approching the gates, found them that : but with fire which they kindled with Graw. wood, butter and tallow, and other fuch things, they burnt op the same gates and so got in, losing not past fir persons that were flaine at the first entring.

Herewith the earle of Flanders came to the hing, ting further outrage: but the king as he had reason to to ow, blamed him for the outragious attempt of his people, and bad him go to appeale them, or he would take paine with them himfelfe to his owne fuertic, though not greatlie to their ease. The earle went, and prevailed so much, that at length he quie: Theratel ted them, and then was order given for restitution of flanders fuch things as had been taken from any man wrong, check the fullte, according to the order and direction prescribed by certeine discret persons appointed as commission ners in that behalfe. The king perceiving himselfe in some danger, and that without the fauour of the Flemings he might bardlie escape out of their countrie, bare manie things, and spake courteouslie, mar king partlie amends for the harms done by his peop ple, as well abroad in the countries as in the towns. And finallic about Pidlenthe returned into Engi land, as after pe thall heare.

In this meane time, by the kings appointment, the earle of Surrey lood warden of Scotland, with Nic. Trinet other earles and noble men to him affociat, about the funded if feast of faint Pilarie, had assembled an armie at yout. Porke, having first fummoned the loads of Scotland to appeare there at the same day, who pet came not, but contrarilie had besieged the castell of Rockelbosough. Where opon the earle of Surrey hafted this The Son therwards, to that William Waleis and other of beliege to the Scotishmen which late there at siege, raised the bestoonut fame, and departed from thence. The earle of Surrey comming to Kockefbozough, and reliening them Thermal that kept it with such things as they wanted, passed bu fouth to Reliow, and came afterwards to the towne freth bis of Berwike, with the Scotiffmen had left void, land, Here came letters buto them from king Coward, fignifieng that he had taken truce with the French king, and that he meant thoullie to returne into Engi land, and therefore commanded them not to make a ny further enterpaise than the defending of the frontiers, and the recoverie of Berwike, till his coins ming over. Percupon was a great part of the armie discharged, and such onelie remained in Berwike as might luffice for defense thereof.

King Coward having made an end of his bull returned nelle in Flanders, as before pe haue beard, returned homewend

30

The Scots fammoned to Coto come.

In armie rat=

Abington. Che number in this armic.

Bridmen.

Galcoing.

N. Triuct.

Callels won of Durham.

Abington. I fraic be= twirt the wellhand Englichmen.

weihmen.

now towards England, and came to a towne called Arbenburge, where the most part of luch Scotilhmen as he had brought with him into flanders flimed from him, and went onto paris. The king being returned into England, removed the barous of the er theker, and the tuttices of the bench buto Docke, cal ling a parlement thither and gave fummons buto the lords of Scotland to come to the fame; but ma, the parlament king default in their appearance, he fent footh his commission and letters to warne his subjects to be 10 readie with hoofe and harneste at isochesbozough in the featt of the Patiuitie of S. John Baptiff nert infring. They obeieng his commandement, affembled there at the day amointed.

There were in this armie now attembled at Roce kesbozough togither with those of the bishopzike, a. bout the thouland men of armes mounted on barded hortes, belides foure thouland other armed men on horsebacke without bards. There were also a great number of formen, and yet none but such as 20 came byon their owne god willes, the which were wellmen and almost all Welshmen of Frishmen. There came al fo afterwards five hundred men of armes well ap. parelled, furnished and mounted out of Galcoine. of the which a certeine number were fent to Berwike by the king: where after the battell fought with the Scots, they remained in gartion. The earle of Were. ford, and the earle Parthall were prefent with their retinues amongst other in this armie here assembled at Rockelbozough, the which byon suspicion conces, 30 ned of that they had heard, thought it not sufficient The earles of to have the kings letters patents touching the conone of the articles and other the articles muche bing. aboue mentioned, figned by him, whileft he was out of the realme, and therefore required that he would now within his owne land confirme the same as gaine. Here the bilhop of Durham, John earle of Surrie, Milliam earle of Wlarwike, and Kafeerle of Glocester, bindertwke for the king, that after he turned into the realme, he should fatisfie them in that behalfe, and confirme the fame articles.

This done, the king marching forth with his armie, came to Temple Hilton, and fent forth the bis thop of Durham to take certeine castels therabouts, as Dinton og (as fome copies have) Dilton, and o. ther two, which enterprise the bishop speedilie accomplished. The English flet that should have come from Berwike, and kept alongst the coast to have holden backe with contrarie winds, to that the armie began to be in great necessitie of victuals. The Sco. tilhmen were advertised hereof, and supposing that the Englishmen by reason of such want of victuals, had not beene able through feblenesse to make anie great relicance, altembled their powers togither, and came towards the place where the king with his armie was lodged.

At the same time two of the English thips arris ued there with victuals, the which being bestowed at 60 mongst the souldiors, relevued them greatlie of their hunger. Amongest other the Welshmen had two tunnes of wine belivered to them for their chare, the which they talked so gradulie, that overcome there. with they fell to quarrelling with the Englishmen, and begun a fraic, in the which they flue eightæne, and hurt diverse. The English boassemen herewith being kindled with displeasure, got them to armoz, and letting boon the Wellhmen, flue of them to the number of fourescore, and put the other to flight: therebpon the next morning it was faid that the Exenglish whereopon the next morning is all the want to manken in which was the conceived hereof meant to depart to the Scots: but yet when the campe remos ued, they followed the armie though a farre off, and a part by themselves, insomuch that manie doubsed teaff if the Englishmen had chanced to have had the worlde at the Scotilhmens hands, they would have ioined with them against the Englishmen. This blos die broile fprang of intemperancie, and furfetting drunkennelle, which is worthie to be thus disclaimed.

- anima leshum, & visiorum Nutrix at scelerum, quid nonmertalia cogis Pectora? Quid per te non audent? Iurgia,lites, Pralia dira mones, o gaudes sanguine suso, Sordi dioriquanes, qua bellua vilion? oc.

211 . The king nowhearing that the Scots were com, N. Triuct, ming towards him, railed his field, and went forth to meet them, lodging the next: night in a faire plaine. In the morning verie earlie, a great alarme was railed, to that enerie man got him to armour, Supposing the Socots to be at hand. The hoose appoint ted for the kings faddle that day, as the king should have got boon him, frighted with some noise, started alide, and threw the king downe with such violence, that he brake two of his ribbes, as the report went. Dther write, that his horfe trod on him in the night, as he and his people rested them, keeping their horse fes still bridled, to be readie the somer opon occasion of any necessitie: but howsoener he came by his hurt, he stated not to passe forward in his purposed fournie, but mounting boon an other hortle, went forth with his armie till he came to a place called Foukirke, where both the armies of England and Scotland met and fought.

The Scots were divided in foure schiltrons, as Abington. they termed them, or as we may faie, round battels, The order of in forme of a circle, in the which flood their people the Scotth that carried long flaues or speares, which they croffed battets. cointlie togither one within another, betwirt which Ichiltrons or round batels were certeine fpaces left, the which were filled with their archers and bowmen, and behind all these were their horsemen placed. They had cholen a firong ground, somethat fiveling had luboued his enimics, and thould be againe re- 40 on the live of a hill. The earles Parthall, Pereford, & Lincolne, which led the fore ward of the Englishmen, at the first made directlie towards the Scots, Lincolne led but they were stated, by reason they found a marish, the fore ward, 02 an cuill fauoured mosse betwirt their enimies and them, so that they were constrained to fetch a compalle towards the well live of the field. The bishop of Durham ruling in the second battell of the The bishop of Englishmen, consisting of fir and thirtie standards of Durham led banners, knowing the let of that most or marth to. furnified the armie with victuals, was flated and 50 ward the east five, hasted footh to be the first that should give the onset: but yet when they approched nere to the enimics, the bilbop commanded his veople to fraic till the third battell, which the king led, might appoach. But that valiant knight the loop Kafe Ballet of Draiton faid to him: Dy lord bilhop, pou may go and lay malle , thich better becommeth Daitons you, than to teach be what we have to do, for we will words to the do that which belongeth to the order and cultonie of bilhop of > Derewith they halted forth on that live to charge the first schiltron of the Scots, and the earles with their battell on the otherlive, and even byon the first bount the Scotish hoosemen fled, a fely onelie ercen. The Scotish ted, which flated to heepe the fortmen in order. And a. horfemender. mongst other was the brother of the lord steward of Scotland, who as he was about to let in order the bowmen of Selkirke, by chance was onhorited, and flaine there amongst the same bowmen, and manie a Their are tall mans bodie with him. The Scotish archers thus chers laine. being flaine, the Engliffmen affailed the fpearemen; Thefe Seebut lieping themselves close togither, and standing till spearemen at defense with their speares like a thicke wod, they lowaicas lowaicas kept out the English horstemen for a while, & fought Eueriden manfullic, though they were fore beaten with thot of faith.

iant, ional c inoulous Santa 🚱

The battell of Foukirke.

The earles Marthail De-

The lorn

arrowes by the English archers on fotis so at length galled with thot; and affailed by the horflemen on ech five, they begun to dilorder and thrinke from one five to another, and herewith the horfemen brake in amongst them, and so they were slaine and beaten downe in maner all the whole number of them.

Nic.Triuet.

Marth. West. Polydor. N. Triuet.

S.Andrews.

The calleli of Bire.

Abington. The Tie of Braine,

Chomas Bi= Cet requireth the Fie ot Braine.

Che euill opts mon of the earles Mar= Thall # Dereford towards the king.

The kings wards his nobles.

Anno Reg. 27.

Cottngham.

1299

3 parlement. Abington.

The loads call buon the forme promife.

Some faie there died of the Scots that daie (bes ing the two ; twentith of Julic, and the feat of Harie Pagdalene)aboue twentie thouland. Diher write that there were flame at the least to the number of ? 15 thousand. The Scotish writers alledge that this battell was lost by treason of the Comins and other, as in the Scotish bistorie pe may more plainlie pers before, with more matter touching the same battell: The towns of after this was the towne of faint, Andrews defiros cd, no man being within to make reliffance. And from thence the English armie came through Sel hirke forcest onto the castell of Aire, which they found boid: and after they came by the towne of Annan, and toke the castell of Lochmaben, and so returned 20 into England by the west marches, and came to Carleill.

About the same time certeine Irish loads, and as mongst other as chefe, one Thomas Bilet landed in the Tle of Araine, the inhabitants whereof pelded themselnes onto the same Thomas, who (as was sudged)micant to have aided the Scots: but now hear ring of the victorie which king Coward had gotten in a pight field, he fent buto him to give him to but derstand that he was come in his aid, thad won the 3 faid Ble of Araine, and therfore befought him that it might please him to grant it buto him and his heires for over. Which request the king granted: whereof when the earles Warthall and Hereford were aduer tised, they thought this a rash part of the king, consis dering that he had promised to do nothing anew without their confents and counsell.

Therefore the king being (as pe have heard) return ned to Carleill, they got licence to depart home with he remained a time, and held a parlement there, in the which he granted buto manie of his nobles, the lands and livings of divers noble men of the Scots, as to the earles earledomes, to the barons baronies; but Vallowaie and Annandale, with certeine other counties, he alligned to none, referuing the fame (as was thought) buto the forefaid two earles, leaft they thould thinke themselves evill dealt with, if they had no part bestowed on them amongst the residue.

The king after this went to Durham, and from 50 thence thought to have returned Areight towards London, but hearing that the Scots meant to make fome inualion, he went to Tinmouth, and remained there till towards Chilfmasse. Pow when the king had laine a certeine time at Timmouth, he departed from thence, and diew fouthward, and comming to Cotingham, a little from Beuerlie, belo bis Chaffe malle there, and after diew towards London, where in the beginning of Lent, he held a parlement, at the which he was required to keepe promise for the confire 60 mation of the two charters and articles concluded with the earles of Hereford and Parihall. The king was nothing contented that this matter Mould be so earnefflie called byon, for lost be was to grant their full requests; and agains to benie them, he stood in doubt how it might be taken : he therefore prolone ged time, & would make no answer either to 02 fro. But when the loods toged him to love to give them answer, he got him out of the citie, not making them printe of his departure, and when they followed him, and feemed not well contented that he thould so diff femble with them, he excused himselfe by blaming the aire of the citie to be against his health, and there fore bare them in hand, that he onelie fought to refresh himselfe in some better aire in the countrie more agreeable to his nature tand as for answer to their requests, he willed them to repaire agains to their requests, and they thould have answer by his count his mine cell, to farre as thould than with reason to content them. They returned as he willed them, and had the charters confirmed according to their requests, faning that this addition was put in the latter end of the fame, sulse ince corone passes. Welth which addition The other the loods there effended, and termed home to their putin the houses in abgreat displemente towards the bing as clutoned before. before.

The councell boubting fome feditious fife to arife hereof amongst the people, belimered the charters (fo fealed and figured as they were) buto the thiriffes of London, that the same might be read opentie before the people, which was done in Paules churchpard in Themis prefere of a great allemblie there, come togistic reduction and gatheren for that purpose. The neonly (than churchyn) and gathered for that purpole. The people (than whom the lea in ebbing and flowing is not moze inconstant, no, in judgment moze rash, heddie, sudden, and bnadulted, as one faith verie well, & to purpole,

Iudicium vulgi infulfum, imbecilláque mens est, Quandoquidem inuifa est vulgo sapientia. c. at the first before they heard the addition, gave manie bleffings to the king for those grants: but when they heard with what words he concluded, they curied as fall as before they had bleffed. Wefore this parlement was discoured, the loads had warning to returne a gaine Chatlie after Cafter, and then they had all things granted and performed as they could with or things granted and performed an uper come unique to before. The perambulations of forcestes were applications of forcestes were applications of the perambulations of the period of the pointed unto the bilhops, the earles, and the foreis

About the latter end of June there came over a A bishoples bishop fent from pope Boniface as his Nuncio, and from the pa diverte other with him, to beclare the order which the pope as arbitrator indifferentlie chosen betwirt the kings of England and France, for the deciding of their people, leauting the king Will at Carleill, where 40 all controversies depending betwirt them, had give uen forth a decreed, which was in effect as followeth.

1 First that king Coward being then a wid The popel dower thould marrie the French kings litter named decreations Dargaret, notwith fanding the degrees of confant brings of confant brings of confant brings of guinitie, for the which the pope would offpenfe.

2 That the lood Coward the kings eldeff fonne france. Chould at concenient time take to wife the ladie 3fabell the Frenchkings daughter.

That the king of England should make satis faction for the French thips which his men had taken Nic. Trius. at the beginning of the war, and that fundite townes in Galcoine thould be put into the popes hands, till it might be understood unto whome the right apperter ned. But those two last articles twhe small effect, the French king refuling to deliver any of those townes which he had gotten in polletion. Pozeouer, The popul these messengers in the popes behalfe required the request to king that he would fet John Balioll, sometime king the release of Scotland at libertie, and refloze those lands buto tolibertie his some Coward Balsoll, which he ought to hold Imithin the realists within the realme of England, promiting and bider taking in the popes behalfe to preferue and fane the realme harmelelle from all burt and damage that might infue by the deliverie of the faid John Bar lioll.

King Coward biderstanding that there was great danger in letting him at libertie, was conten. Iom Both ted to deliver him buto the pope, but he refued to deliver of make refitution buto Balfoll of the lands which he the popular demanded. The popes amballadours receiving John Balioll at king Cowards hands, toke him over with him into France, and there left him in the custodic polydon of the bishop of Cambrie, the popes deputie in that the popular behalfe, where thoutlie after he vied. After this, accor this life.

N.Triuet.

The king marieth the frech kinga 3 parlement at youke.

ping to the covenants of agreement made betwirt the two kings of England and France, the captives bon either part were velivered. In the feast of the nativitie of our Ladie, the king married the ladie Margaret fifter to the French king at Canturburie with great folemnitie. About the featt of S. Bar. tine in winter the king held a parlement at Poske, meaning to have gone from thence into Scotland, to have rescued the castell of Striveling, which the Scotiffmen had befreged, and had it furrendzed bn- 10 to them, yer the king could fet forward to come to raise the siege. The same yeare died Benrie De-The decease warks archbilhop of Porke, and Thomas Corbridge of the archbie a docour in diunitie lucceded him.

1300

∮orren mo=

ben to go as 100

oli,

In the eight and twentith yeare of his reigne in the Chiffmaffe fealon king Coward fet fouth a proclaination, forbidding and prohibiting all forren appoclamatiz coins to be received and paid as ferling monie with onformente. in his dominion, commanding by the fame proclamation, that two pieces of them thould go for one 20 ficiling, butill the feast of Caster. There were diuerse monies in those daies currant within this realine, as pollards, crocards, faldings, eagles, leonines, flepings, and all these were white monics artificiallie made of filuer, copper, and fulthur, fo that it was an ill time for bale montes, a much chopping and changing was bled in buteng and felling of thinas.

At Caffer following the king otterlie forbad that any of those monies thould be current at all, and 30 earnesmeste and importunate suit, he condescended beld his erchange in fundice places, and to be rid of them, men gave five or fix of them for one ferling, not caring for them, bicaule of their balenelle, and vet within a yeare after that men had learned the skill by profe how to trie mettall with melted lead in the fire, they found that two pieces of those base monies were in value worth one ferling, and many became rich by the erchange, which had bought goo store of them, when they were so smallie esteemed: but the king caused inquirie to be made of them that vied 40 such erchange without his licence, and put them to their fines.

Ataparlement holden at London in Lent this yeare, the king renewed the confirmation of the tharters, and made certeine new Catutes concerning fines and goale deliveries, verie profitable to the common-wealth. About the feast of faint John for eleven moneths, that is to faie, till Whitfuntive nert infuing. As the king was opon his tournie fores wards in the north parts, his late married wife quene Pargaret was delivered of hir first sonne at Brotherton, a place in Borkelhire not farre from Pontfret; he was named Thomas, and toke the furname of Bzotherton, of the place where he was Biotherton boine the firft of June.

Abington.

Doctland.

Poscouer pope Boniface at the fute of the Scots wrote his letters buto king Coward, commanding 60 him by the same and by the archbishop of Canturbus rie, whome he amounted to deliver the same letters by other letters to him directed, that he should not onelie release and set at libertie all such Scots as he had in pilon, but also give over his warres which he made against the realine of Scotland: and if he meant to make anie claime to the fame, then to fend his procurators but othe court of Kome, and there to thew what eucoence he could for his right thereto, where the mater(as he mainteined) was to be heard, decided, and induced; and not elsewhere. The archbithop, according to the popes commandement, did the mellage, and presented the popes letters buto the king, who deferred the answer unto the assemblic of -the estates in parlement, and hereof the archbishop advertised the pope accordinglie, as in the letters: to him dieraed he was commanded; which he durit not but satisfie, bicause he was persuaded the popes authouttie to have beene fo ample and peremptorie, that there was no relifting or gainefairing of him, lith,

Vi medijs luduni in aquis immania cæte, Et patulo pisces quoslibet ore vorant: Sic tenet imperium mortales inter or omnes Diripit, illicita subdit & arte duces. Omnibus infultans, sic subject impius orbem, Implicat asque suo regia colla ingo.

Antich Christ.com Antichrift. pag.

Euersden.

Croxden.

1301

This peace also on faint Remigius daic, which is the first of Daober, died Comund earle of Cornes wall, the fonne of earle Kichard, that was also king of Almaine; and bicause he lest no issue behind him to inherit that carledome, the same returned to the eroluite. In the 29 yeare of king Chivards reigite, Anno Reg. 30. on faint Diwalds day , og (as fome hane wgitten) the friday after the featt of Peter Ad Vincula, his wife quæne Pargaret was belivered of hir fecond fonne, that had to name Comund of Modfoke, furnamed to of the place there he was borne. The king allo this yeare after Chiffmaffe helo a parlement at Lincolne, to the which the earls and barons of the realme came in armour, to the end (as it is faid) that they might procure of the king the more specie ercs cution of the charter of forrests, which by him had his therto beene delaied, but now that he perceived their

Pope Boniface being follicited by the instant fuit Pope Bontof the Scotishmen, and offended also that the lands face prohibt in England, which belonged unto Coward Balioll teth the king forme of John Malioll increment to the forme Colombia fonne of John Balioll, were not to the fame Colward further to ber reffored, he efflones wrote to king Coward; forbio the Scots. ding him from thence footh any further to ver the Scots by wars, bicaule that the kingdome of Scotland was furrendeed alreadie into his hands by the generall confent of the Scotiffmen themselves, and therefore was it in his power to beliow and take a way the same to whom of from whom soever it would please him.

to their willes in all things.

There were reasons alledged thy the king of N. Triver. England fæmed to do wrong in challenging as then the kingdome of Scotland : and amongst other, one was, that such homage as had beene done of ancient time to the kings of England, by the kings of the Scots, was onelie meant for Tinbale, Penreth, and that inhabited the mounteine countries to indure 50 luch other lands as the Scotish kings held within England, and not for the realme of Scotland. And whereas the kings of Scotland had afted the kings of England in their warres against the revels of the realine of England, and beine prefent at their cotonation, the same was done of special favour, and not of dutie. It. Coward having received the popes prescript, and well considered the thole contents there of fent in writing his answer at large, proving by evident reasons that the right of proprietie in the kingdome of Scotland, did most fustie apperteine ento him, and that the allegations were not true, but forged, which had beene by furmifed information presented against him.

> Beside the kings letters, which he wrote in his owne behalfe, there was an other letter beutled and witten by all the loods temporall of the land, affems bled in parlement at Lincolne, in which letter they answered in name of all the estates there gathered, unto that point wherein the pope pretended a right to be inoge for the title of the realme of Scotland, protesting statlie, that they would not consent that their king thould do any thing that might tend to the disheriting of the right of the crowne of England, and plaine overthow of the frate of the fame realing, and

Eg.iy.

The king go: Baptist, king Edward went with an armie into eth with an Scotland, and there granted a truce to the Scots also burt of the liberties, customs, and laives of their fathers lith it was never knowne, that the kings of this land had answered or ought to answer for their rights in the fame realme, afore any iudge ecclesia-Micall o: fecular.

The tenour of the foresaid letter indited and directed to pope Boniface.

Oour most holie father in Christ, Soniface by Gods providence high bilhop of the holie Romane and bilhop of the holie Romane sonnes John earle Marren, Thomas erle of Lancalter, Rafe de Monthermer earle of Glocelter and Herefoid, Humfrey de Bo: hun earle of Pertford and Ester and constable of England, Roger Bigod earle of Porfolke, and mareschall of England, Guie earle of Tlarwike, Richard earle of Arundell, Adomare de Calence lord of Monternan Romaio de Calence lord of Monternan Romaio de Calence lord of Monterney, Benrie de Lancalter lozd of Monmouth, John de Haltings lood of Bergeuennie, Henrie de Percie lood of Topclife, Somund de Mostimer lood of Topclife, Edmand de Mortuner wie wie Grandler (1920 of Ciligmor), Kobert Fitz Cialter (1920 of Ciligmor), Kobert Fitz Cialter (1920 of Hans 300 of Ciligmor), Kobert Haltungs the tarner wie wie Grandler (1920 of Hans 1920 of Leibonne, John de Greistocke (1920 of Acceptable (1920 of Hans 1920 of Hans 1920 of Acceptable (1920 o de Tatethall logd of Wiokeham, Reignold de Grey logd of Ruthin, Henrie de Grey logd of Coducze, Hugh Bardolfe logd of Momegaie, Robert de Cliffozd chatel= laine of Appelbie, Peter de Malowe lozd of Mulgræne, Philip lozd of Kime, Kobert fitz Koger lozd of Clauerings, John de Mohun Tord of Dunelter, Almerike de S. Amound lood of Colidehate, Tolilliam de Ferrers lood of Grobie, Alane de Zouche lood of Ahvie, Theobald de Cerdon lood of Clebbeley, Thomas de Furniuall lood of Schefield, Thomas de Multon lood of Egremont, Tailliam Latimer lozd of Tozbie, Thomas loed Berkley, foulke fitz 50 Ctarren loed of Mitingham, John loed Segraue, Edmund de Eincourt lord of Thurgerton, Peter Coebet loed of Caus, Thulliam de Cantelowe loed of Rauens thome, John de Beauchampe low of Hacche, Roger de Adortimer lord of Penkethlin, John Sitz Keignold loed of Blenleueny Rafe de Neurl lood of Rabie, Brian Fitz Alane lood of Bedale, Coulliam Marthall lood of Hengham, Coalter lood Hunter, 60 combe, Tailliam Martin load of Cameis, Henriede Thies loed of Chilton, Roger le Telare load of flefield, John de Rivers load of Augre John de Lancalter loed of Griles dale, 13 obert fitz Paine loed of Lainnier, Henrie Tregoz load of Garinges, Robert Hipard load of Lomfoad, Telater load fancomberge, Roger le Strange lozd of Elles mer, John le Strange lozd of Cnokin, Thomas de Chances lord of Aorton, Chalter de Beauchampe lord of Alecester, Bichard Talbot lord of Eccleswell, John Butetourt lord of Mendecham, John Engain lord of Colum, Hugh de Poins lord of Corneualet, Adam L. of Coleis, Sumon L. Montacute, John L. Sulle, John de Melles or Moelles L. of Candeburie, Comund baron Stafford, John Louell lord of Hack habited ings, Comund de A. lord of Elchumhono: taken, kes, Kafe fitz Tuilliam L.of Grimthozpe, Robert de Scales lozd of Peulels, Chille am Tuchet lood of Lewenhales, John Job badan lood of Beneriton, John de Hauerings lood of Grafton, Robert la Telard lord of Withitehall, Aicholas de Segrane lord of Stow, Walter de Tey L.of Ston graue, John de Lille lozd of Wlodton, Gustace lord Hacche, Gilbert Peche Los Corbie, William Painell lord Trachington, Rog, de Albomonasterio, Foulke le Strange Whitmids logd of Cozham, Penrie de Pinkenie logd Ithus. of Tedon, John de Podeleston lozd of Aneis, John de Puntingsield lozd of Bzabenham. Hugh Litz Penrie lozd of Kaue neswath, John Daleton loed of Spoele, Chastral Richolas de Carrie loed of Mulesson, of Maletond, of Malesson, Thomas lozd de la Roche, Wal. de Mun binschie cie lozd of Thoznton, John fitz Maxima ner trupt, duke lozd of Hozden, John lozd of Kington, with all humble submission.

The holie mother church, by whose mis oud m nisterie the catholike se is governed, in hir strated deds (as we throughlie believe and hold) proceedeth with that ripenelle in judges ment, that the will be hurtfull to none, but like a mother would everte mans right be kept bubzoken, alwell in another, as in hir selfe. Tothereas therfore in a generall parlement called at Lincolne of late, by our most dread lord Edward by the grace of God the noble king of England; the same our load caused certeine letters received from you to be read openite, and to be declared feriousie afoze be, about certeine bulinesse touching the condition and state of the realme of Scotland: we did not a little muse and maruell with our selves, hear ring the meanings concerning the fame, fo wondzous and strange as the like we have not heard at any time before. For we know most holie father, and it is well knowne as well within this realme of England as alfo not buknowne to other persons besides) that from the first beginning of the realme of England, the certeine and direct gouernment of the realme of Scotland in all tems pozall causes from time to time belonged to the kings of the same reline of England and reline of Scotland, as well in the times both of the Britains as also Englishmen, year ather the same realme of Scotland of old time was in fee to the ancestours of our foresaid lords kings of England, yea and to furthermore, the kings of Scots and the realme have not beene bnoer any other than the kings of England, and the kings of England have answered or ought to anfwer for their rights in the forelaid relme, or for ame his temporalities before anie moge eccletialticall or fecular, by reason of fræ preheminence of the state of his rotall dignitie and cultome kept without breach at all times. Totherefore, after treatie had. and diligent deliberation of the contents in your fozelaid letters, this was the com- 10 mon agræment & consent with one mind. and thall be without faile in time to come by Gods grace, that our fozelaid load the king ought by no meanes to answer in inogement in any case, or thould bring his foresaid rights into doubt, nor ought not to fend any prodors or mellengers to your presence, speciallie sæing that the premisles tend manifeltlie to the ditheriting of 20 the right of the crowne of England, and the plaine overthrows of the state of the faid realme, and also hurt of the liberties. customes and lawes of our fathers, for the kæping a defense of which we are bound by the duetie of the oth made, and we will mainteine them with all power, and will defend them (by Gods helpe) with all strength; and furthermore, will not suffer our foresaid lord the king to do or by anie means attempt the premises being so bn= accustomed, biwont, and not hard of afoze. Tuherefoze we reverentlie and humblie belæch your holinesse, that ye would suffer the same our load king of England (who a= mong other princes of the world theweth himselfe catholike and devout to the 1Ro= mithchurch) quietlie to iniog his rights. liberties, customes, and lawes aforelaid: 4 without all impairing and trouble, and let them continue butouched. In witnesse whereof, we have set our seales to these presents, as well for bs, as for the whole communaltie of the foresaid relme of Eng= land. Dated at Lincolne the twelfth of Fe= bruarie, in the yeare of our Lord 13 0 1, Et anno Edwardi primi 29.

The pope when he heard and deliberatelic pondes red the kings answer, with this letter directed to him from the English barons, wared cold in the Ches. gorth matter, and followed it no further. The truce besociation. thirt the king and the Second heing once expired the twirt the king and the Scots being once expired, the king affembled his armie, and went into Scotland, about the feast of saint John Baptist, and tarting there all the fummer and winter following, his foulviers lost manie of their great horses for lacke of forrage, which could not be gotten in the cold winter Anno. Reg. 30 scason. He kept his Christmas at Lithquo, and at 60 length at the request and sute of his brother in law Imaggan the French king, he granted efflones atruce to the Scotilhmen, butill the feast of All faints nert in-

Then being ordered his businesse for that time in Scotland, he returned into England, and about midlent called a parlement at London. Also this The pope cr. Vicre pope Moniface opon displeasure conceined as eachthein gainst the French king, sent unto king Coward, of England to erhosting him to make warres against the same French king, and to perfuse him the more casilie therebute, he promised him great aid: but the king of England having promed the faid pope, not the furest man in frienoship towards him, forbare to attempt anie forceable exploit against the French king, truffing by some other meanes to reconer

This pere Humfrey Bohun earle of Dereford The deceaffe Departed out of this life, after thome fucceeded his Dereford. foune Humfrey, who afterwards maried the kings daughter, Clizabeth counteste of Holland, after that hir first husband was dead. Tournies, fuffes, barri Re. Tur. ers, and other warlike exercises, which young loods Tournes and gentlemen had appointed to exercise for their par prohibited. frime in diverse parts of the realme, were forbioden by the kings proclamations fent downe to be published by the thirtes in everie countie abroad in the realme: the teste of the wait was from Westmins ster the sixteenth of Julie. The citizens of Burdeaux could not beare the yoke of the French bons dage, and therefore this piere about Chrismasse erpelled them out of their citie. Shortlie after the French king doubting least the king of England, by the fetting on of the pope, thould make warres as gainst him for wongfull deteining of Gascoine, to purchale his fauoz, restozed to him all that which he flored to the is, beld in Balcoine, and so then they of Burdeaux also in Galcoine. submitted themselves to the king of England of their owne accord.

Powaffer that the truce with the Scots was expired, which twice end at the feast of All faints last past, the king sent the lood John Segraue, a right Polydor. Etc lood Se valiant knight (but not fo circumfpea in his gouern graue fet with ment as was necessarie) with a great armie into an arme into Scotland, to have the rule of the land as lord war, Scotland. den of the same : with him was toined also Rafe Confreie, treasurer of the armic. These two capteins comming to the borders, and hearing that the Abington. Scotishmen alreadie were in armes, they entered Polydor. into Scotland, and in order of battell passed forth to Edenburgh, and hearing nothing of their eni-mies which kept them fill in the mounteins, they deuided their armie into thee feuerall battels, two of the which came behind the fore ward bider the leas ding of the fato Kafe Confreie, the third (that is to fay) the fore ward, the lord Segraue led himfelfe, in fuch order that there was the distance of foure miles betwirt their lodgings. This they did to be the moze plentioullie ferued of vittels.

But the Scots understanding this order of these enimics, became the moze hardie, and therebpon has uing knowledge where the lord Segrave was lode ged with his companie, a good way off from the other two parts of the armie, they halted forwards in the night feason, and came niere buto the place where the faine lord Segraue was incamped, a little be fore daie, making themselves readie to affaile the Engliffmen in their campe. But the lost Segrave having knowlege of their comming, though he was counselled by some of them that were about him, eigh ther to withdraw buto the other battels, or else to fend buto them to come to his aid, he would follow neither of both the water; but like a capteine more hardie than wife in this point, disposed his companies which he had there in order to fight, and incouraging them to plate the men, immediatlie bpon the riling of the lunne, and that his enimies approched, he caused the trumpets to sound to the battell, and gave there with the onlet.

The fight was fore and doubtfull for a while, till the Englishmen overcome with the multitude of their entimies began to be flaine on co five, fo that fewel cared by flight. To the number of twentie worthie knights were taken, with their capteine the faid lood men banqui-Begraue being fore wounded, but he was by chance then by the rescued and delivered out of the enimies hands, by Scots. certeine horstemen, which binder the leading of the

1302

Cheking re= turneth into England.

Abington.

was flaine at this incoun: ter, as Abing-

N.Triuct. The carie Marfhall re: figneth his the king.

M fablibie.

The king go= into Scot. tano.

Cathnes.

The Scots fubinit them= felues to the king.

Abington. ieig.

Polydor. Hect.Boetius. Ia, Meir.

Anno Reg. 32. Striucling calleli belie= geo. Abington.

1304 Engins to calt Goneg.

loed Robert Neuell a right vallant knight (vpon hearing the notic of them that fled came on the ipurs Rate Cofreie out of the nert campe to the fuccour of their fellowes. Hafe Confreie after this milhap (as Polydor faith) brought backe the reficue of the armie into Eng. land, not thinking it necessarie to attempt any further enterpule at that time against the enimics, ouers matching him both in Grength and number. This incounter chanced on the first fundaie in Lent. 93 res member the Scotill chronicles conteine much more 10 of this enterpife greatlie to their glozie, and more (haplie, than is true, as by conferring the place where they intreat of it, with this that I have here exemplified out of our writers it may well appeare. The carle Warthall hauing fpent largelie whilest he food in contention against the king, who was now ears nestlie called byon to repair such summes of monie as he had bosowed of his brother John Bigod, tho was verierich by reason of such benefices and spiris tuall livings as he had in his hands, the earle bicause 20 he had no chilozen, to whom he might leave his lands, meant to have lest them onto his fato brother: but when he saw him so importunate in calling for the ochts which he owaht him; he toke such displeasure therewith, that to obtaine the kings fauour, and to disapoint his brother of the inheritance, he gave but o the king all his possessions, byon conditions on that the king adding thereto other lands in value mouth a thousand markes by yeare, should restore them to him againe to iniop during his life, the re. 30 mainder after his decease to come buto the king, and further, the king thould paie and discharge him of all his ochts.

Bing Coward being advertised of the loss which his men had fulleined in Scotland, freightwates called a parlement, wherein by affent of the flates a sublidie was granted, towards the maintenance of his warres, and then the fame being levied be affembled his people, and thostlie after about Whitsuntide entred into Scotland to revenge the death of his 40 men. The Scots hearing of the kings comming, fled into the mountains, molles, and marith grounds, not once thelwing any countenance to fight any let battell with the English host, so that the king in maner without reliffance passed through the countrie even buto Cathnes, which is the furthest part of all Scotland . Manic of the Scots perceiving their lacke of power to relift the English pullance, came to king Coward, and submitted themselves, with condition that they thould into their lands which he 50 had given awaic to his loods, they redeming the fame with convenient fines, which was granted.

But Will. Walcis with certeine other, keeping william was themselves in places where no armie could come to purfue them, would never give eare to any condition ons of agræment: fo that neither with feare, neither with offer of rewards could this Waleis be induced to follow or behold the English B. ruling the realme of Scotland, Bing Colward returning backe, came to the eastell of Striveling (which the Scotishmen 60 held against him) and besieged it. The king himselfe laie at Dunferling the most part of the winter : and willest he late there, the quæne which had lien a long time at Tinmouth came to him, and then the wine ter was once past, the king himselfe came to the fiege, and caused certeine engins of woo to be raised op against the castell, which thot off stones of two 02 the hunded weight: but yet would not they with in once talke of any furrender. And where the Englichmen filled the ditches with wood and boughs of tres, they fet the fame on fire, and burnt them to afters : at length the ditches were filled with froncs and earth, so that then the Scots within perceiving themselves in embent perill to lose the castell, on faint Wargarets baie fiep yelbed themselues fimplie into the kings hands, as the English writers af firme, though the Scotish writers record the contrarie.

Finallie, when the king had ordered all his buff nelle in Scotland at his pleasure, he returned into England, leaving in Scotland for warden the lord Polydor, John Segraue, 02 (as other writers haue) fir Aimer De Malence earle of Penbroke. At his comming to Tho. Wall Porke he caused the tuffices of his bench, and the bar Ebetania rous of the ercheker to remoue with their courts, and Denbiek all their clearks and officers, togither with the lood of scotten chancellog and his court to London, that the termes N. Truct, might be kept there, as in times past they had being. Polydon, whereas now the fame had remained at Porte a. boue the frace of fir yeares, upon this confideration, that the king and his councell might be neere buto Scotland to pronide for the defense thereof, as occafion from time to time Hould require. From Porke he came to Lincolne, and there remained all the winter, holding a councell, in the which he efflones confire med the articles of Magna charta, touching the liber. ties, privileges and immunities of his subicas, the which to declare their thankfull minds towards him for the same, granted to him for the space of one pare the fifteenth part of all their revenues. Others write a filtenth that the king had in this yeare of citizens and of the granco. burgelles of god townes, the firt penie according to the valued rate of their gods.

About the same time, Thomas Colebrugh or Core The board bridge archbishop of Porke departed this life, and one of the anti-William Greenefield doctour of both the laives fuc thopol you ceded him. There died about the fame time that wil. Giant ceded him. T shere over about the value that baliant knight the lood T. Latimer. Also John archibits Warren earle of Surrey and Suller died this yere of yout. t was buried at Lewes. His nephue by his fon (named also John) succeeded him, obteining to wife the kings néce by his daughter Clianoz that was mare ricd to the earle of Bar, as before ye have heard. Likewife Robert Bruce earle of Carrike, the fift of Robert that name died this yeare, who was father to that Buccell Robert Bruce that was after L. of Scots. Though beward ouer, about this scason the king ordeined certeine this like commissioners of insticiaries, to make inquisitions through the realme, by the vertice of substantial in N. Trivet ries byon all officers, as maiozs, thiriffes, balliffes, Taquinmo erchetozs, and other that had miluled themselues in millionis their offices, either by extoction, beiberie, or other, nors of the wife, to the grauance of the people, contrarie to that fices. they rightlie might do and fulfiffe by vertue of their Caxion offices: by means of which inquilitions manie were accused and found culpable, and therebyon put to grœuous fines.

Also the suffices, which were affigured to take these Marth. Wells inquilitions, extended the same according to their commission against such as had made intrusions in to other mens lands, and for doubt to be impleaded for the same had made alienations over into the Introfond hands of great men; also against such barretoes pumilions as bled to take monie to beat any man, and againe other official would not flicke to take monie of him whom they against the kings post had so beaten, to beat him that first hired them to and which beat the other. The malice of such maner people was now reffreined by force of these inquilitions: for such as were found culpable, were worthilic punished, fome by death, and fome by ranfoms: diverte also for feare to come to their answers fled the realme; also forfeits. forfeits against the crowne were creightlie loked unto, found out, and leuted; by reason whereof great fummes of monie came to the kings coffers, with holpe well towards the maintenance and charges of his warres. This kind of inquilition was named commonlie Traile bafton, which fignifieth, Traile 02 Nic. Tring draw the staffe. And forsomuch as the proceeding in Traisting this

Tuffices

1.15

this wife against fuch mildemenoes as then were be fed, brought fo great a benefit to the realme in refreming such malefactors, which greatlie (as thould feme disquieted the fate of the commonwealth, have thought god to let downe the lubstance of the fame, as followeth.

An extract of the foresaid writ, as it is registred in the booke that belonged to the abbeie of Abington.

Ex dilectis & fidelibus suis, Radulfo filio Wilhelmi, & Iohanni de Barton de Riton salutem. Quja quamplures malefactores,& pacis nostra perturbatores, homicidia, depradationes, incendia, & alia damna quamplurima nocte diég, perpetrantes, vagantur inboscis, parcis, & alyslocis diuersis, tam infra libertates quam extra, in comitatu Eboracensi, & 20 ibidem receptantur in maximum periculum tam hominumper partes illas transeuntium, quàmibidem commorantium, in nostri contemptum, ac pacis nostra la sionem manifestam, vt accepimus : per quorum incur sum poterunt peiora peioribus de facili euenire, nisi remedium super hoc citius apponatur, nos eorum malitia in hac parte obuiare, & huiusmodi damnis & periculis pracauere volentes, assignamus vos ad inquirendum per sacramentum tammilitum quàm aliorum proborum & legalium hominum, de contemptu pradicto, tam infra libertates quam extra, per quos ipsa veritas melius sciri poterit, qui sint illi malefactores & pacis nostra perturbatores, & eos conduxerunt conducunt ad verberandum,vulnerandum, malè tractandu, & interficiendum, plures de regno nostro in ferijs, mercarijs, & alijs locis in dicto comitatu, pro inimicitia,inuidia, aut malitia. Et etiampro eo quòd in assissiuratis, recognitionibus, & inquisitionibus 40 factus de felonijs positi fuerant, & veritatem dixerunt : vndeper conditionem huiusmodi malefactorum, iuratores assisarum, iurationum, recognitionum, & inquisitionum illarum, pro timore dictorummalefactorum, & eorumminarum, sapiùs veritatemdicere, seu dictos malefactores indictare minime ausifuerunt, & sunt. Et ad inquirendum de illis qui huiusmodi munera dederunt, & dant, & quantum, & quibus, & qui huiusmodi munera 50 receperunt & à quibus & qualiter, & quo modo, & qui huiusmodi malefactores fouent, nutriunt, & manutenent in comitatu prædicto, & ad ipsos malefactores tamper vos, quam per vicecomitem nostrum comitatus pradicti arrestandos, & prisona nostra liberandos, & saluò & secure in eadem per vicecomitem comitatus prædicti custodiendos, staquòdab eadem prisona nullo modo deliberentur, sine mandato no stro speciali.

Et ideo vobis mandamus , quòd ad certos diem colocum, quos ad hoc provideritis, inquisitiones illas faciatis. Et assumpto vobiscum sufficienti passe comitatus pradicti, si necesse fuerit, dictos malefactores coram vobis sic indictatos, arrestetis, & splos prison e nostre liberetis, informa preducta: & etiamomnia bona, & catalla ipsorum malefactor u qui se subtraxerint, & sugam secerint, postquam de selonys aliquibus coram vobis solenniter indictatifuerint, per vicecomitem comitatus pradicti, in manum no stram capiatis, & ea ad opus nostrum saluò custodire faciatis, donec aliud inde vobis preceperimus. Mandamus enim vicecomiti nostro comitatus pradicti, quod ad certos diem & locum, quos vos prouidere duxeritis, venire faciat, coram vobis tot & tales, tam milites quamaltos, quos habere decreueritis, de comitatu illo, tam infralibertates, quam extra, per quos ipfa veritas melius sciri poterit, & inquiri. Et quod omnes illos quos per inquisitionem culpabiles inuentre contigerit, & quos vos sic liberaueritis, à nobis re-10 cipiantur, & quorum nomina eis scire faciatis, afsumpto secum sufficienti posse comitatus pradicti, sine dilatione arrestari, & in prisona nostra Saluo & Secure custodire faciat in forma pradicta, & communitati dicti comitatus, quod simul cum vicecomite pradicto, vobis quotienscung, opus fuerit in pramisis pareat, asistat, & intendat, prout eis iniungetis ex parte nostra. In cuius reitestimonium, &c. Theerevnto were annexed certeine articles by way of instructions, of what points they should inquire, as partlie aboue is noted out of the addition to Matthew West. but not so fullie, as in the said chronicle of Abington is found expressed, and heere for breefenesse omitted.

In the the and thirtith yeare of his reigne, king Anno Reg. 33. Coward put his sonne prince Coward in mallon, bicause that he had riotouslie broken the parke of Prince Co-Ward comuration biffop of Cheffer; and bicaufe the ward comurate teb to ward. prince had done this deed by the procurement of a Caxton, lewo and wanton perlon, one Pers Bauaffon, an Fabian. esquire of Gascoine, the king banished him the realme, least the prince, who delighted much in his companie, might by his euill and wanton counsell fall to enill and naughtierule. Poseover, the same william wapeare, William Waleis was taken, and delivered leis taken & nut o beath. buto king Edward, who caused him to be brought to Rich. South. London, where on S. Bartholmewes even, he was conveied through the fræts buto Westminster, and there arreigned of hic treason, and condemned, and therebyon hanged, drawne and quartered, his head was let over London bridge , his right fide over the bridge at Pelwcastell opon Tine , his left fide was fent to Berwike and there let op, his right leg was fent to S. Johns towne, and his left buto Aberden, in which places the fame were fet by for an erample of terroz to others.

Also, about the same time, the king of France required the king of England by mellengers and letters fent buto him, that he would banish all the Fles mings out of his realme, in like manner as at his instance he had latelie before banished all the Scotithmen out of France. The king of England was bandhed the contented to to do, and by that means were all the land, at con-Flemings avoided out of this land at that featon, but templation of Mostlie after, they returned againe. Ling Coward the king of accused Robert archbishop of Canturburie onto the Abington pope, for that he thoulo go about to trouble the quiet The archbifrate of the realine, and to defend and fuccour rebel. Mop of Cantious persons, thereboon the sate archithop being surburteaccuses the same consistence was supported by the B. cited to the popes consistozie, was suspended from Nic. Tr erecuting his office, till he thould purge himfelfe by theis fuspenorder of law, of fuch crimes as were laid and objected bed. against him. The king also obteined an absolution of the pope, of the oth which against his will be had taken, for the observing of the liberties eraced by force of him, by the earls and barons of his realme, namelie, touching disforcettings to be made.

This yeare, Robert Bruce, contriving water how Anno Reg. 34. to make himselfe king of Scotland, the nine flivens tith day of Januaris, flue the lood John Comin at John lood Dunfrice, thilest the kings justices, there fitting in Comin flains Dunfrice, Willest the kings tuffices were fitting in by Mobere judgement within the castell there, and boon the day Bince.

ward cõmit=

of 25 oughan on Robert 25 mee his

She is taken.

Dir punish: ment.

of the Annunctation of our ladie, caused himselfe to be crowned king of Scotland at Scone, where the counteste of Boughan, that was secretlie departed from his busband the earle of Boughan, and had ta-The counteffe ben with hir all his great houses, was readie to fet the crowne upon B. Buces head, in absence of hir brother the earle of Fife, to thom (being in England) folourning at his manoz of Whitivike in Leiceffer, thire, that office of right americinco. This counteste being afterwards taken the same yeare by the Eng. 10 lithmen, where other would have had hir put to death, the king would not grant therbuto, but commanded that the thould be put in a cage made of wood, which was fet upon the walles of the castell of Berwike, that all such as passed by might behold hir; to dender a punishment for so great an offense. But the king counted it no honour to be seuere against that fer whom nature tendereth, though male factors, and ther, fore was content with a milo correction tending rather to fome than than fmart, to recompense hir offense, thereby the procured against hir felfe no lette reproch than the futteined, agreable to the old faieng,

An armie feut into Socot=

Waince Ed= ward made knight. Chice hun= Matth. West.

Dince En-Scotland.

Robert Bance.

Abington.

Tt was the nert fundaie mer baie.

Rob. Bzuce

Rob. Bince fled into Ken=

this wife and brother are taken. Atholi taken.

Sape suum proprium fecit puer ipse flagellum. There were present at his coronation foure bis thous five earles, and a great multitude of people of the land. Immediatlie bpon the newes brought to the king of Buces cozonation, he fent fouth a power of men, bnocr the conduct of the earle of Denbroke, and of the lood Penrie Percie, the lood Robert Cliffoed, and others, to relift the attempts of the Scots, now readie to worke some mischefe, through the incouragement of the new king. Coward prince of Wales was made knight this yeare at London bpon Mitfundaie, fa great number of other youg bachelers with him (297 as Abington waiteth) the which were sent streightwaies with the said prince towards Scotland, to joine with the earle of Benbroke, to relift the attempts of the new king Kobert le Bruce and his complices. King Coward himfelfe ward fentinto followed. The generall affemblie of the armie was 40 appointed at Carleill, fiftene dales affer the Patiuitie of faint John Baptiff, from thence to march forth bider the guiding of the prince into Scotland.

In the meane time, Robert le Bruce went abroad in the countries of Scotland, received the homages of manie Scotiffmen, and got togither an armie of men, with the which he approched neere to faint Johns towne, into the which the earle of Penbroke was a little before entred to defend it, with thee hundred men of armes, belief formen. Then K. Bruce fent to 50 the earle to come out and gine battell, the earle fent buto him word againe, that he would not fight that date being sundate, but boon the next mozow he would satisfic his request. Robert Bzuce herebpon withorew a mile backe from the towne determining to rest himselfe and his people that night. About ever ning tive came the earle footh of the towne with his people in order of battell, and affailing his eniout to dight his people in order of vatten, and analying his emby the earle of mics upon a funden, fine diverse yer they could get their armour on their backs. Robert Bruce and o. 60 thers that had some space to arme themselnes made fome reliffance for a while, but at length the Englishmen put them to the worse, so that they were con-Areined to fle.

The earle following the chafe, purfued them even into hentire, not resting till he understod that a great number of them were gotten into a castell, which he belieged, in hope to have found Robert Bruce within it, but he was fled further into the countrie. Howbeit, his wife and his brother Digell or Deall, with dinerle other were taken in this car ffell, and fent in fafetic buto Berwike. Also Mortlie after, the earle of Atholl was taken, being fled out of the same castell. I But some write, that this earle mas taken in the battell laft remembred, after long fight and great flaughter of Scots, to the number of feuen thousand, and also that in the chase, the load Si mon de Friseill was taken, with the bishops of faint Andrews and Glasco, the abbat of Scone, and the faid earle of Atholl, named fir John Chambres. The bishops and abbat, king Coward fent buto pope In- Nic Trius nocent, with report of their persurte: but others Matth Wet write, that the foresaid bilhops and abbat being taken inoco the fame yeare, were brought into Eng. land, and there kept as prisoners within fundrie cas

The wife of Robert le Bruce being daughter to the earle of Wiffer, was fent onto the manour of Bruffwike, and there honorablie vied, having a conuentent number of fervants appointed to wait on bir. The earle of Allter hir father, in the beginning Bines in should thinke convenient, to assure himselfe of him, that he would attempt nothing against the English Inbiects. Also it was said, that the ladie hir felfe, the fame daie hir husband and she should be crowned, faid that the feared they thould prove but as a fum Thefairn mer king and quiene, such as in countrie tolunes the of Bours in 15 mers in 1 poing folks choic for sport to danse about maipoles, Hoz thefe causes was the the moze courteoullie vied at the kings hands, as reason no leste required.

At thould ameare by Robert Fabian, that the king was present himselfe at this battell: but other affirme, that prince Coward was there as generall Polydor, and not his father, and that the battell was fought at Dunchell byon the riner of Tap. But neither the Scotilh theonicles noz Nicholas Triver (thom in the bistozie of this king Coward the first, we have most Nic. Trive. followed) make any mention, that either the king or prince Hould be at the foresaid battell, but that the earle of Penbroke with Robert lord Clifford, and Henrie lozo Percie were fent befoze (as pe haue al readie heard) with an armie, by thome as appeareth Math Wel this vidorie was obteined, at a place called Dethfen. Methin. After this was the castell of Lochdoze taken, and The called within it Christopher Seiton, that had married the fi- of Lother and fer of Robert le Bruce; and bicaule he was no Scot Chilliph but an Englishman borne, the king commanded Beitonin that he thould be led onto Dunfrife, where he had kil- in it. led one of the kings knights, and there to be hanged, the is the drawen and quartered.

The wife of this Chailtother Seiton, he amointed to be kept in the monasterie of Mirell in Lindsey; and the daughter of Robert le Bruce, which was also taken about the same time, was sent to the monate rie of Maiton. Pozeouer, the manour of Settonin hisland Thitebestroud he gaue onto the lood Edmund de bything Mauley, and those other lands that belonged buto the faid Christopher Setton in Porthumberland he The land gave buto the lood William Latimer. The lands that 180b. 3300 belonged to the new Scotill king be bestowed in gianass this wife, to Henric Bohun earle of Hereford, with pertun had married one of king Edwards daughters, he gaue the loadfhips of Annandale; Bert & Bertnes be gaue buto the lood Robert Cliffood, sauing al Loubling waies the right pet that belonged to the church of Durham, Totenham, and Totenhamihire; and the maner of Mrothell in the fouth parts he gave to o. ther noble men; and the earledome of Carrike which R. Bruce had holden, as by inheritance from his mother, the king gave to the load Henrie Percie, the The logo earledome of Atholl he gaue to Kafe de Ponther richting mer earle of Gloceffer, tho had also marrico (as be had the fore yee have heard) an other of the kings daughters, after the vecelle of hir firt hulband Gilbert De Clare carle of Gloceffer.

About the feat of faint Pichaell, the new Scotish

The L. Ders dight by the 25 шсс.

contemned and executed.

The earle of cuteb.

The fummes Sphich the pope had of the archbilh. of yorke.

Che great

eia fammo:

bing Robert le Bruce returned forth of the Ales (into the which he had fled) with mante Brithmen and Scots in his companie, and remained a certeine time in lientire, he fent certeine of his officers, to les nie and gather by the rents of the fermes due at the feast of faint Partine for such lands and possessions as they held in that countrie, wherof the load Wercie bring aduertised, halfed thither ; but the new king scouth king comming opon him, flue certeine of his men, take his horffes and plate, with other things, and drone him into a castell, within the which he besieged him, till at length by a power lent from king Coward, Bruce was confireined to depart. The king in this meane time was come to Lauercoff nere to Car. leill, and there remained a long time. From thence he senthis inflices buto Berwike, where thep fate in judgement byon Pigell Bzuce, and the other pal-Peall Brace foners taken with him, which were condemned to die and so they were hanged, drawen and quartered. The earle of Atholl was conneied to London, and although he fued for pardon in respect of that he was of kin to the king, yet was he hanged boon a gibbet higher than all the relidue, his bodie burned onber the same gibbet, and his head first cut off, was set bpon a pole ouer London bridge for example fake that traitors thould loke for no vardon. The elect archbishop of Pozke William Bræner field was confirmed this yeare by pope Clement the fiff, at the citie of Lions in France, where the fame pope was crowned about the fame time, and held his court there, living chaffie by the monie which he got of bilhops that came to him for their confirmations: he had of the fato archbithop of Poske within one yeare, nine thousand and 500 markes, before the erpenfes which he was at whilest he late there, and so when this archbilhop was returned into England, through pouertie he was driven to gather monte of the persons, prefts, and religious men within his province at two fundrie times in one yeare, as fira, in name of a courtelie and gratious beneuolence, and 40 the second time by waie of an aid.

Mozeover, pope Clement ordeined Anthonie bis thop of Durham, patriarch of Jerusalem, dispensing with him, so as he held will the bishopsike of Durham, not with Canoing his other promotion; and this was, bicause the bishop was rich, and the pope poze. For this billion might dispend in yearelie reuenues by purchales & inheritances, belives that belonged to his miter, aboue fine thousand marks, and he gave great rewards to the pope, and to his cardinals, by means whereof he obteined in fuit against the prior of Durham, so that he had the charge and overlight of the monasterie of Durham, both the spirituall gouernement and tempozall, through informing the pope, that the prior was not able in discretion to rule the house. At his returning home, he caused a crosse of filuer and gilt, adoaned with an image of the cruct fir, to be borne afore him.

13ut where he appointed certeine persons as his distribute take charge thereof in place of the prior, the months 60 that the gates against them, amealing to the pope, and pretending the kings protection, which they had purchased. But those that thus came in the bishops name, accurred the monks, a fo departed. The king herewith was highlie offended, so that he caused them to answer the matter afore the tultices of his bench, and for their prefumption in pronouncing the curife, without making the king privile to their dos bit the killings, they were put to their fines. And thereas the bithop was luminous to appeare before the king in person at a certeine date, he made default, and departing out of the realme, got backe agains to the pope, contrarie to the kings prohibition: whereupon the liberties of the fæ of Durham were fefsed into the kings hands, and the king placed his inffices and thancellos there, and in the yeare next infining, he ere acted of the tenants of the archbishoppine, the thir teenth penie of their gods, and other wife vered them with fundzie talages.

The conclusion of this matter was this, that the Che conclus prior was cited by the pope, to ameare at his confillor from of the rie, whither he went, having the kings letters in his artic between favour directed to the pope; whereupon, when the pope the bishop and fauour directed to the pope; were upon, when the pope manks of had cramined the matter, and heard the prior freake Durham. in his owne person, he perceived him to be other wife than he was informed (a lober and discreet man) and therefore reflozed him agains to the government of his house; but he remained in the popes court, till after the kings death, and finallie died there himfelfe in the years 1 307. But now to return to other dos ings of king Coward. The find, that whilest he lap fill at Lauercoff, he gave to the earle of Marwike Bernards ca-Bernards castell, the which be had by escheat, through the carie of forfeiture thereof made by John Baltoll late king of warmike. Scotland. He also toke and seized into his hands Penreth with the appurtenances.

In the octaues of S. Hilarie, the king held a par, Anno. Reg 35? lement at Carleill, in the which, by the pares of the realine, great complaint was made of the oppen. A partening of Carleill onsome to churches, abbeies, and monasteries, by at Carlell. reason of paiments latelie raised and taxed by one william Tes maiffer William og Guilelmo Deffa the pes chas fa the popes pleine. Commandement therefore was gilien to the chapteme same chapleine, that from thences with he should not inhibited to leavie anic such paiments; and so, surther remove, leave monie. mellengers were made forth buto the pope, to de: clare onto him the inconvenience thereof. This Te, ha was lent from pope Clement into England with Abington. bulles, in the contents whereof it appeared, that the pope had referued to himselfe the first truits of one peares revenues of everie benefice that fell boid by ante manner of meanes within the realme of England, Scotland, Wales, and Ireland, and like wile of all abbeies, priories, and monasteries; so that it may well be fato of him a his retinue, according to the processe of all their actions, as it was faid of old, Curia Romana non quarit ouem sine lana. But the king and loods of the land thought it as gainst reason, that the pope thould take and receive the profits of those abbeies and monasteries, which had beene founded by their predecessors for the fernice of God, and the maintenance of almesdeds, and good hospitalitie to be kept: and so the pope changed his purpole, touching abbeies, but granting to the kithe tenth of the English churches for two years, he obteined the first fruits of the same churches for A flatute as himselse, as besoze he required. In the same parle, gainst the rement were statutes made concerning religious ligious persons. men, which had their head and cheefest houses in for N.Triuet.

ren regions. There came also at the same time, a cardinall Petrus Hisfrom the pope, named Petrus Hilpanus, to procure panus a carthe confummation of the mariage, betwirt the prince fro the pope. of Wales, and the French kings daughter; for the fame was delated, by reason that all covenants were not kept on the French kings behalfe, touching the deliverie of the fownes in Galcoine. Foz thereas in times past, the French king had given one of those townes that were taken from the English. men, named Mauleon , buto a French knight ; he kept the same still, and would not deliner it now at the French kings commandement, where-through (as was faid)the marriage had beine hitherto defer, red. The same cardinall by vertue of his bull, would Mouth. West. have had of eneric cathediall thurth, colledge, abbete, his bemand and priorie, tipelus marks of feeting monie, and of ofmonic of and priorie, twelve marks of feetling monie; and of religious enerie person of parish churches eight pence of cues houses.

The caufe of

rio marke of his revenues. But the English clears gie appealed from this cracion, to that by the king and his councell it was ordeined, that he thould have no more than in times past cardinall Othobon did receive, that is to fair, the halfe of his demand. Spores ouer, this cardinall being at Carleill, and having The carbinal made a fermon in praise of peace, opon the conclufion of marriage betwirt the prince of Wales and the French kings daughter, in the end he remeffed himselse and the other bishops which were present, 10 and then with candels light, and causing the bels to be rong, they accursed in terrible wife Kobert Bruce the vlarper of the crowne of Scotland, with all his

De accurfeth Rob Biuce. Nic. Triuct,

Thomas Bince and

Akrander

23 zuce tahen.

Matth.West.

preacheth.

partakers aiders and mainteiners.

Penertheleste, Robert Bince in this meane while flept not his businesse, but ranging abroad in the countrie, flue manie that would not obcie him, and fent forth his two brethen, Thomas that was a knight, and Alerander that was a piech, with part of his armie into an other quarter of the countrie, to al 2 lure the people unto his obedience, partlie with gen: tlenelle, and partie with menaces. 13ut the English men came boon them in the night and take them both, so that being brought before the inflices they were condemned, and therebyon hanged, drawen and quartered. Some write, that Duncan Wagboill, a man of great power in Galloway, toke thefe two brethen pilloners, togither with Reginald Crawford (being the principlas) on the ninth daie of Februaric, as they with certeine other capteins 30 and men of war came by lea, and landed in his countrie, opon whome being seven hundred men, he with the hundred or few about that number boldlie gave the onfet, and not onelie toke the faid thee persons puloners, fore wounded as they were, with diverfe other, but also five Palcolme Pakaile a lozo of Bentire, and two Irith loads, whose heads, and the fores faid paifoners, he prefented buto king Coward, liho caused Thomas Bruce to be hanged, drawen and Bauce & life: quartered at Carleill, where their heads were fet by ginald Craws aloft on the castell and gates of the citie, type executed. After Caster their hosting

Cho.232uce erecuteo. Alexander

The carle of 13 cnbzoke purto fiight.

252uce belie= of Glocefter.

Deis chaled fro that liege.

After Caffer their brother Robert Bruce, calling himselfe king of Scotland, and having noin augmented his armie with manie fouldiers of the out-Iles, fought with the earle of Penbroke and put him to flight, and flue fome of his men though normanie. Within a few daics after, he chased also the earle of Cloceffer, into the castell of Aire, and belieged him geth the carle within the same, till an armie was sent from king 50 Coward to the rescue : for then the said Robert was confireined to fle, and the Englishmen followed, till he got into the woods and marifhes, where they might come nere him without manifest danger, to cast themselves awaie. The king of England, minding to make a full conquest of the Scots, and not to leave off butill he had wholie suboued them, fent his commissions into England, commanding all those that owight him feruice, to be redie at Careleill with in the wekes after Hislammer. He fent his sonne 60 Coward into England, that byon knowledge had what the French king did touching the agreement, he might accordinglie proceed in the marriage to be made with his daughter.

After the prince was departed from the campe, his father king Coward was taken with fore fickes neffe, pet he remoure from Carleill, there the fame ficknesse first twice him, buto Burrough boon Sand. The death of and there the daie after being the feuenth daie of Julie, he ended his life, affer he had reigned 34 yeares, fir moneths and one and twentie daies. He lived 68 peares and twentic daies. His bodie was conneied to London, and in the church of Westminster lieth turico. De hadillue by his firt wife quæne Clianoz, foure fons, John, Benrie, Alfonfe, Colward with fuceword him, the other died long before their father. Also five daughters; Clianoz, Jone, Margaret and Clizabeth, were beitowed in marriage as before in this boke is expressed : the fift named Paric became a nunne. By his fecond wife quene Pargaret, he had two formes, Thomas of Brotherton, and Ch. mund of Woolfoke, with one daughter named Pargaret affer bir mother.

De was ta'l of Cature, some what blacke of colour, frong of bodie, and leane, audiding grolenette, with Diships continual erercife, of comelie favour, and iettie etes, teen the which when he wared angrie, would faddenlie be, come reddily, and ferme as though they sparkled with fire. The haire of his head was blacke and curled, his one he continued for the most part in good health of bos efmind die, and was of a flout flomach, which never failed him in time of advertitie. Dozeover, he had anercellent god wit, for to what somer he applied his fig. die he easilie atteined to the understanding thereof: wife he was and vertuous, an earnest enimic of the high and prefumptuous infolencie of profis, the bemulia which he judged to proceed cheelie of to much wealth the pulic and riches : and therefore, he deviled to establish the pictais. flatute of Portmaine, to be a bridle to their inordi nate lufts and riotous erceffe. He built the abbeic of the vale rotall in Chethire, be was a confrant frend, but if he once toke displeasure or hatred against any person, he would not easilie receive him into favour againe: whilest he had any bacant time from weigh tie affaires, he spent lightlie the same in hunting.

Towards the maintenance of his warres and o ther charges, belides the lublidies which he levied of his people, and other revenues comming to his cof fers, he had great belpe, by reason of the silver mines Source which in his dates were found in Denonthire, and occupied greatlie to his profit, as in the records remaining in the ercheker, concerning the accompts and allowances about the fame it doth and may apquartered, but the other two were onelie hanged and 40 peace. For in the accompts of mafter William de Mimonoham, it is recorded, that betwirt the twelfth date of August, and the last of Daober, in the 22 Chillin peare of this king Cowards reigne, there was tried also minosite and fined out at Partinefowe in Denonthire by 82 pounds times, to much of fined filmer, as amounted to the 16 founds fumme of 370 pounds weight, thich being brought lead, or to London, was there refined by certeine finers, that which plate might be forced thereof so the lane file. plate might be forged thereof, for the ladie Cliano: as appear duches of Bar, and daughter to the faid hing, married by his in the yeare then last past to the duke of Bar, as be complain fore pe haue heard.

In the 23 years of his reigns, there was fined at the place afor fato 521 pounds ten thillings weight of filuer by times, which was also brought to Lone 23ctmal don. In the 24 years of his reigne, there were taken in, and op 337 miners, within the wapentake of the Deake day of S in Darbithire, and brought into Denonthine, to ber this worke there in those filter mines, as appeareth by the reach allowance demanded by the faid matter William de Wilmondham in his roll of accounts, belivered that yeare into the ercheker: and there was brought from thence to London the fame prace of filuer fined and call in wedges 700 foure pounds, thic thillings, one penie weight. In the 25 years of his reigne, there were then hundred and fourtic eight miners brought againe out of the Peake into Denonthine, and out of Males there were brought also 25 miners, with all were occupied about those filuer mines, befice o there of the felfe countrie of Denonthire and other places. Also Will de Aulton clearke, kéeper of the kings mines in Denonthire and Cornewall, was accomptant of the issues and profits of the kings mines there, from the fourth of Parch, Anno 26 cf his reigne, till the eighteenth of Aprill, Anno 27, 200

It. Coward the first. De is buried at wellinin= fter.

Dis ilue.

példed

valoed up his account, both of the filter and lead.

Lout now to conclude with this noble prince king Coward the first, he was sure not onelie valiant but also volitile, labouring to being this divided 3le, into one entier monarchie, which he went berie nære to have atchived, for whereas he was fullie bent to make a conquest of Scotland, in like case as he had alreadie done of Wlates, if he had lived any longer time to have dispatched Robert le Bzuce, that onelie food in his waie, it was verie likelie that he should Ic have found none other to have railed banner against him about the quarrell or title to the claime of that realme. For as he was a right warlike prince of him felfe, fo was he furnished with capteins and foulds ers answerable to his desire, who being able to lead and command them of himfelfe, had them at length obedient inough to ferue him, although (as partlie væ have heard) some of the pæres the wed themselves at times disobedient and flubborne, whom pet in the end he tamed well inough, as the earles of Dereford 20 and Porthfolke, the which in the thirtith yeare of his reigne refigned their castels and manours into his hands, as by the records of the tower it further may

Pow to follow, as in other kings I have done heretofore for learned men, thefe I find to have flow rifhed in this kings daies, Denrie de Denna a Carmelite frier, Goowine the chantoz of the church of Salifburie, Adam de Marisco og Pareis borne in Summerletchire an excellent diuine as he was re. 30 puted in those daies, Gregozie Buntington a monke of Kameley verie expert in the tongs; Senall arch bilhop of Dozke a man fingularlie learned and front in defending the cause of his cleargie against the pope, Haimo de Fenertham, Peter Swanington, Helias Trickingham , Helias de Eucham, Kabulle Bocking bozne in Suller , Alphed lurnamed Anglicus, James Ciltercientis, William of Ware, Robert Drenford, Thomas Docking, John furna. med Grammaticus, Robert Dodeford: but the more 40 part of these are rather to be ascribed buto the time of Denrie the third, the father of this king Coward. where these that follow are thought to flourish in the time of king Cowards reigne, after the decease of his father king Benrie, Thomas Spot a chronogra. ther , Peter de Ickeham a Kentishman bozne as Bale thinketh, John Beckton a boctoz of both the

laives, William Panaberge a Carmelite frier, prouinciall gouernour of his order here in England; Robert Kilwarbie bithop of Canturburic, and after made a cardinall and bishop of Poztua; Glbert surnamed Pagnus, a monke of the Citeaur order; Helias Ros, Malter Recluse, Bugh le Guetham, John Guerfoen a writer of annales, whome I have partlie followed in this kings life; William Pagham, Denrie Effebogne, John de Paida, Roger Bas con a Franciscane frier, an ercellent philosopher, and likewise a mathematician , John Derlingon a dominike frier, John Chelmellon, Ahomas Bogffale a Porthfolke man borne, Gregorie Cairugent a monke of Glocefter a writer of annales, Gregorie de Bzedlington , Thomas Bungey a frier minoz borne in Porthfolke, an ercellent mathematician, prouinciall ruler of his order here in England, he flourished in the daies of king Coward the first, although there were another of the same name that lie ued in the time of king Coward the third, Hugh de Pancheffer a Dominike frier, & prouinciall goners nour of his ozder here in England, Kichard Linap well a Dominike frier, John Deckham bozne in the dioces of Chichefter, a Franciscane frier, excellentlie learned, as by his workes it appeareth, he was advanced by pope Honoxius the third, to the archbio thops fix of Canturburie; Thomas de Illey a Suffolke man bozne, and a white oz Carmelite frier in the house of Sipelivich, Dichaell furnamed Scot, but borne in the bilhoprike of Durham (as Leland faith) an ercellent phylician, and likewife verie erpert in the mathematicals, Hugh de Newcastell a frier minoz, professed in the same towne, Thomas Sutton a blacke frier, that is of the order of S. Do minike, John Read an historiographer, William de la Pare a frier mino2, Thomas Wicke a chanon of Diney in Drenford, Simon de Gaunt, William Hochun, prouinciall of the friers Dominiks in England, John de Hide a monke of Wincheller, Kobert Crouch, a coadelier, oga Franciscane frier, Richard Didleton a frier minoz, Thomas Spirman a blacke frier, William Lidlington a bodoz of diumitie, and a Carmelite frier in Stanford, John Fiberie or We. uer a monke of Meliminter, Milliam Pakeles field borne in Chethire, in a market towne, whereof he beareth the name, a blacke frier by profession, and an excellent philosopher.

Thus farre Edward the first, surnamed Longshanks.

The control of the property of the control of the c

The state of the s

Edward

Concilia

THE PROPERTY.

ាស្រែ ។ ស្រ ១៥ឆ្នាំស្រីស្រ ១៥សាធាស៊ីស C. Micropies

.ganc.et

Edward the second, the sonne of Edward the first.

1307

Continuation

aname, the fonne of Coward the first, boine at Carnaruan in Wales, began his reigne ouer England the scauenth day of Julie, in the yeare of gour Lord 1307, of the world STYPE $ 5273, of the comming of the Barons 847, after the conquell 241, about the tenth peare of Albert emperour of Rome, and the tivo and twentith of the fourth Thilip, furnamed Le Beau, as then king of France, and in the third yeare after that Robert le 15:uce had taken boon him the crowne and governement of Scotland. His fathers couple was conneced from Burgh bpon Sands, buto the abbeie of Waltham, there to remaine, till things were readic for the buriall, which was appointed at

W Dward, the second of that Within the daies affer, when the loed treates rer Walter de Langton bishop of Couentris and Lichfield (tho; ough whose complaint Piers de Ga uefton had beene banished the land) was going towards Wiefiminfter, to make preparation for the fame buriall, he was boon commandement from the new king arrested, committed to pisson, and after belinered to the hands of the said Poers, being then returned agains into the realme, who fent him from callell to callell as a puloner. His lands and tenements were feized to the kings ble, but his mourables were ginen to the forefaid Pærs. Walter Reig, 30 noto that had beene the kings tutor in his childhoo. was then made lood treasurer, and after when the fee of Morecular was void, at the kings instance he was by the pope to that bithopsike preferred . Alfo, Kafe bishop of London was deposed from the office of loed Chancellour, and John Langton bishop of Chichester was thereo restored. Likewise, the barons of the ercheker were remoued, and other put in their places. And Americ de Clalence earle of Penbroke was discharged of the wardenship of Scotland, 40 and John de Britaine placed in that office, whom be also made carle of Richmond.

But now concerning the demeanour of this new king, whose disordered maners brought himselfe and manic others buto destruction; we find that in the beginning of his governement, though he was of nature given to lightnesse, yet being restreined with the prudent advertisements of certains of his councellois, to the end he might thew force likelihoo of god piofe, be counterfeited a kind of granitie , ber 5 tue and modeffic; but pet he could not throughlie be lo bridled, but that forth with he began to place diners wanton and light parts, at the first indeed not outragionflie, but by little and little, and that covertlie. Fer having revoked againe into England his old mate the faid Ders de Caucion , he receiued him into most high fauour, creating him earle of Coinci wall, and lood of Dan, his principall fecretarie, and Therine to all, and 10,000 span, give principal receivance, and next infinitely distributed the realine, the one of the realine, the real panic and locietie he was luddenlie lo corrupted, that Man wash he burff out into most heinous bices; for then bling kenbr ko the faid Deers as a procurer of his biloedeed doings, he began to have his nobles in no regard, to fet no thing by their intructions, and to take fmall hed but to the god gouernement of the commonwealth, a that within a while he gave himselfe to wantonnes. palling his time in voluptuous pleasure, and riotous ercesse: and to helpe them forward in that kind of life, the fore faid Ders, tho (as it may be thought, he had fwoone to make the king to forget himselfe, and the state, to the which he was called) furnished his court with companies of ieffers, ruffians flattering paralites, mulicians, and other vile and naughtierie balds, that the king might spend both dates and orights in telling, plateng, banketing, and in luch o other filthie and bilhonozable exercises: and moze. ouer, defirous to advance those that were like to bim felfe, he procured for them honorable effices, all which motable preferments and dignities, fifth they were ill bestowed, were rather to be accounted dishonotable than other wife, both to the giver and the receiver, lith

Sufficiens honor est homini, cum dignus honore est, Qui dutur indigno non est honor, est onue, imo Indibrium, veluti in scena cum ludius est rex, Quippe honor est soli virtuti debitamerces.

About the thirteenth day of Daober , a parlement I parlem was holden at Posthampton, in the which it was or at Com deined by the kings appointment, that the come of ampten his father king Coward thould be fill currant, not withstanding the basenesse thereof, as some reputed it, and therefore it was mourd in the parlement to have it disamplied. Also, order was taken for the buriall of his fathers couple, which was folemnels: conneced from Waltham, and brought to Wellmin Ver the seaven and twentith day of Daober follows ing, where with all funerall pompe it was interred. Poreouer, at the fame parlement, a marriage was concluded betwirt the earle of Cornemail Dars de Caucifon, and the daughter of Cilbert de Clare Darant carle of Cloceffer, which he had by his wife the court in telle Joane de Acres the kings lifter, which marris age was folemnized on All hallowes day next in

About the time and twentith of Januarie, the king that failed over into France, and at Bullongne in Pie Lit cardie on the foure and twentith day of Zanuarie, he france bid homage to the French king for his lanes of Calcoine and Ponticu, and on the morrow after, marico 3 fabell the French kings baughter, and on the fea De mis tienth of Februarie be returned with his into Cng from land, and comming to London, was toifullie recet ned of the citizens, and on the fine and twentith date Mo

Comentrie Committed

Officers remouco.

Polydor.

Dárs te Sanefton.

quant crowe Tho Walfin.

dir John Blachweit franthered and thrust to of N. Triuct.

Che order taken for the of Februarie, being Shrouelundate in the leape The king and yeare, they were folemnlie crowned by the biffiop of Celincheffer , bicause that Kobert the archbishop of . Canturburie was not as then within the realme. There was such prease and throng of people at this coronation, that a knight called fir John Bakewell alia Blackwell, was thoult or crowded to death. In the day of the circumcilion this yeare, a great temped of thunder and lightning began about evenlong lowing.

On wednesdaie after the Epiphanie, the knights templers in England were appehended all in one day by the kings commandement, bpon fuspicion of hainous crimes great enormities by them practs fed contrarie to the articles of the christian faith. The order of their apprehention was on this wife. The king directed his writs buto all and enerie the this apprehention eithe teplers. riftes of counties within the realine, that they fhould give fummons to a certeine number of substantiall 20 persons, knights or other men of god accompt, to be afore them at certeine places within their gouernes ments, named in the same writs, on the sunday the morrow after the Epipanie then nert infuing, and that the faid thiriffes faile not to be there the fame day in their olune persons, to execute that which in o ther writs to them directed, and after to be fent, thould be conteined. The date of this wit was the fiftenth of December.

The fecond wait was fent by certeine chapleins, 30 in which the thiriffes were commanded byon the opening of the same, forthwith to receive an oth in presence of the said chapleins, to put in execution all that was therein conteined, and not to disclose the contents to any man, till they had executed the fame with all expedition, and there with to take the like oth of those persons, whom by vertue of the first weit they had lummoned to appeare afore them. An other writ there was also framed & sent by the same chapleins. by the which the laid thiriffes were commanded to 40 attach by their bodies, all the templers within the precinat of their governments, and to leise all their lands and gods into the kings hands, togither with their witings, charters, deds, and miniments, and to make thereof a true inventarie and indenture, in presence of the warden of the place, whether he were brother of that order, or any other, tin presence of honest men being neighbors; of which indenture, one part to remaine in the custodie of the fato warden, and the other with the thiriste, bnoor his seale that 50 thould so make feigure of the faid gods: and further, that the faid goods and chattels thould be put in fafe custodie, and that the quicke good and catten should be kept and found of the premises as should sæme most expedient, and that their lands and possessions hould be manured and tilled to the ottermost conv moditie.

Further, that the persons of the said templers being attached, in manner as before is faid, thould be safelie kept in some competent place out of their 60 owne houses, but not in Areight person, but in such order, as the thiriffes might be fure of them to bring them footh when he thould be commanded, to be found in the meane time according to their effate of their owne gods fo lefted, and hereof to make a true certificat buto the treasurer and barous of the ercheker, what they had dome concerning the premiss, occlaring how manie of the fato templers they had attached, with their names, and what lands and gods they had leized by vertue of this precept. The date of thefe two last waits was from Bislet the 20 of December, and the returns thereof to be made but o the ercheker, was the morrow after the Purification. There were writs also directed into Freland, as we have there made mention, and likewife buto John de Britaine earle of Richmond the lood warden of Scotland, to Cufface de Cotesbach chamberleine of Scotland, to Walter de Pederton instice of Messwales, and to Hugh Aloighle alias Audlie in fice of Porthwales, to Robert Holland justice of Cheffer, under like forme and maner as in Ireland we have expressed.

The malice which the loads had conceived against beath continued the most part of the night fol 10 the earle of Connessall fill increased, the mose indeed through the high bearing of him, being now aduanced to honour. How being a goodie gentleman and a fout, he would not once peeld an inch to any of them, which worthilie procured him great envis amongst the cheefest peres of all the realme, as sir Henrie Lacie earle of Lincolne, fir Onic earle of Marwike, and fir Aimer de Malence carle of Denbroke, the earles of Glocester, Pereford, Arundell, and others, which byon such weath and displeasure as they had conceived against him, thought it not convenient to lufter the same any longer, in hope that the kings mind might happilie be altered into a better purpole, being not altogither converted into a benemous disposition, but so that it might be cured, if the corrupter thereof were once banished from him.

Hereupon they allembled togither in the parle: Tho. Wals. ment time, at the new temple, on faturbaie nert bes Continuatio fore the featt of faint Dunffan, and there ordeined of N. Triuct. that the faid Piers thould abiure the realme, and des part the same on the morrowafter the Patinitie of faint John Baptist at the furthest, and not to returne into the same againe at any time then after to come. To this ordinance the king (although against his will) bicause he saw himselse and the realme in dans ger, gave his confent, and made his letters patents to the faid earles and loads, to witnesse the fame.

The tenour of the kings letters patents.

Otum vobis facimus per prasentes, quòd amodò vsque ad diem dominus Petrus de Gaueston regnum nostrum g est abiuraturus & exiturus, videlicet in crastino nativitatis S. Iohannis Baptista proximo sequenti: nos in quantum nobis est nihil faciemus, nec aliquid fieri permittemus, per quod exilium dicti domini Petri in aliquo poterit impediri, vel protelari, quin secundum formam à pralatis, comitibus, & baronibus regni nostri, ordinatam, & per nos libero consensu confirmatam plenarie perficiatur. In cuius rei testimo-nium has literas nostras fieri fecimus patentes. Datumapud Westm. 18 die May. Anno regni nostri primo.

Thefe letters were read, heard, and allowed in the presence of all the Poble men of this land, the day and peare aboutlaid. The archbilhop of Canture burie, being latelie returned from Rome, where he had remained in erile in the late occeased kings dates for a certeine time, did pronounce the faid Beers accurled, if he tarted within the realme longer than the amointed time, and likewise all those that thould ato, beloe, or mainteine him, as also if he should at any time hereafter returns agains into the land. To conclude, this matter was to follow ed, that at length he was confircined to withdrain Anno Reg. 2. Etc earle of Concession and to by sea as a banished man Concession to faile into Ireland.

The king being loze offended herelvith, as he that realme. favoured the earle moze than that he could be with banished the

The kings fauour towards the earle of Coans Spall.

Polydor. The carle of Cornewall deputic of Freland. Hen Marle.

1309

Anno Reg. 3.

Hen.Marle.

to Triuct.

The earle of

Cornewall

placed in calleil.

Polydor.

out his companie, threatned the loads to be renenged for this displeasure, and ceased not to fend into Fres land unto pers, comforting him both with frænd. lie medlages, and rich prefents, and as it were to thew that he meant to reteine him Mill in his fauour, he made him ruler of Ireland as his deputie there. A wonderfull matter that the king thould be fo inchans ted with the faid carle, and so addid himselfe, or rather fir his hart bpon a man of such a corrupt humoz, as gainst whome the heads of the noblest houses in the 10 land were bent to deute his overthow: but the leffe maruell it is that the king bare him such a feruent affection, and let his hart opon him, confidering that vetus autorum sententia, mores Quod similes, simile or studium sunt fomes amoris, Sic vanus vanum, fludiofus fic fludiofum Diligit, o focios adeunt animalia catus.

The loods perceining the kings affection, and that the treasure was spent as laushlie as before, thought with themselucs that it might be that the king would 20 both amend his palled trade of life, and that Pers being restored home, would rather adule him theres to, than follow his old maners, considering that it might be well perceived, that if he continued in the incouraging of the king to lewonede, as in times past he had done, he could not thinke but that the loads would be readie to correct him, as by profe be had now tried their meanings to be no lette. Here boon to reteine amitie, as was thought on both fides, Ders by confent of the loods was restored home 30 againc (the king meeting him at Cheffer) to his great comfort and rejoiling for the time, although the malice of the loads was luch, that luch top lafted not long.

In the fourth yeare of king Coward was a councell holden at London against the templers, the The addition which councell indured from the beginning of Baie, till June. In this councell they confelled the fame, but not the fact of the crimes late to their charge, ercept two or three ribalds that were amongst them: but bicause they could not clears themselves, they 40 were adingged buto perpetuall penance within certeine monasteries. The king this yeare fearing the ennie of the loads against Pærs de Baueston, placed him for his more fafetie in Bambourgh cafiell, bearing the prelats and loods in hand, that he had committed him there to pillon for their pleas

> This yeare also there were ordinances made for the state and government of the realine, by the pielats, carles, and barons, which were confirmed with 50 done. the sentence of ercommunication against all then that should go about to breake the same. The king neither allowed of them noz observed them, although he had confirmed them with his feale, and fent them to all cathedrall churches and counties, to be regi Ared in perpetuall memorie therof. The king indeed was levolie led, for after that the earle of Cornewall was returned into England, he thewed himselfe no changeling (as writers do affirme) but through lupdoings, which were without all good order, that he feemed to distaine all the peeres a barons of the realme. Also after the old sort he provoked the king to all naughtie rule and riotous demeanour, and having the custodie of the kings iewels and treasure, he toke out of the iewell-house a table, a paire of treffels of gold, which he delivered but a merchant called Aimerie de Friscobald, commanding him to conveie them over the fea into Bascoine. This table was indged of the common people, to belong some time buto king Arthur, and therefore men grudged the more that the same thould thus be sent out of the realine.

The king this yeare railed a great power to go into Scotland. And about the feats of the Affumption Rich.Sc of our ladie, hauing with him Piers de Baueffon Anno he earle of Cornewall, and the earles of Cloceffer and Marren, he came to Berwike, which towne he can Strong fed to be fortified with a firong wall, and a mightic tific. Deepe ditch, and although the outer earns wound not come to ferue him in that botage, by reason of a new tro min bariance rifen amongst them, yet he marched fouth broiting into Scotland, to læke his aducrfarie Robert le Bauce: but Kobert refusing the battell, kept him forth of the waie, so that the king was driven to te turne to Berwike againe, without meeting with his enimie. And he was no foner come backe, but the faid Robert and his people entred into Louthian, fore molesting such as were yelded to the king of England. The king advertised therof, followed them, but could do no god, fo returned. The earle of Comes ivall late at Kockefbourgh, and the earle of Gloce ffer at Popham to befend those parts. After Candlematte, the king fent the earle of Cornewall, with two hundred men of armes to S. Johns towne, beyond the Scotish sea, who received to the kings peace all those that inhabited beyond that sea by to the mounteins. The king laie ftill at Berwike, but the earles of Gloceffer and Warren, after the begins ning of Lent, rode into the forest of Solkirke, and received the foresters & other the inhabitants there to the kings peace. ¶ In this fift yeare of the kings reigne, but somethat before this present, in the yeare 1310, Henrie Lacie earle of Lincolne gouernour of England in the kings absence departed this life, in those place the earle of Bloceffer was chosen gouer. nour, and therefore he returned now into England. This erle of Lincolne was buried in the new worke at Paules. Lieng on his death bed, he requested (as was reported) Thomas earle of Lancaster, who had married his daughter, that in any wife he thould stand with the other loads in defense of the commonwelth, and to mainteine his quarell against the earle of Cornewall, which request earle Thomas faithful lie accomplished: for by the pursute of him, and of the earle of Marwike cheefelie, the fato earle of Comewall was at length taken and beheaded (as after thall appeare.) Some write that king Coward the first open his death-bed, charged the earles of Line coine, Warwike, and Penbroke, to forelæ that the forelaid Pers returned not againe into England, least by his enill example he might induce his sonne the prince to lewonelle, as before he had alreadie

Thomas earle of Lancaster came toward Berwike, to do homage to the king for the earledome of Lincolne fallen to him in right of his wife, now af ter the decease of hir father the late earle of Lincoine. But he was counselled not to go forth of the realme to the king, to that therebpon role no imail displeasure, and great doubt least there would have followed civill warres about it. Penerthelelle, at length the king was perfuaded to come over the was post of the kings fauour, bare himfelte fo high in his 60 ter onto Hagerston, foure miles distant from Berwike, and there received homage of the earle, and to they continued freends, and for that time departed a funder in louing maner. The loads perceining the Fabian mischeefe that dattie followed and increased by that Healthin naughtie man (as they toke it) the earle of Come wall, affembled at Lincolne, and there toke counsell togither, and concluded efficies to banish him out of the realme, and so there spon shortlie after, about Chillmatte (as fome write) or rather, as other haue, within the quindene of faint Pichaell, he was eriled Rich Soft into Flanders, loze against the kings will and pleat Cherry fure, tho made such account of him that a country fure, who made such account of him, that (as appear bembed) red) he could not be quiet in mind without his come finder panie, & therfore about Cantlemalle be efflones re-

Caxton.

1311

e etgaeth Eustal

3 343

13500013

্ব ক্রিছের ১ ১৯৯১ হে ১ ১১

C WORLD

e... PuisT

ea Saintig

Erfr 4" c*p

.ga.ukso@

Wie L. Much

d Steffna

uoked him home.

But he being nothing at all amended of those his enill manners, rather demeaned himfelfe woole than before he had done, namelie towards the lords. against whome vsing reprochfull speech, he called the carle of Gloceffer baltaro, the earle of Lincolne lat: lie occeased burden bellie, the earle of Marwike the blacke hound of Arderne, and the earle of Lancaffer durle. Such losos and other mose that were thus as bused at this earle of Comewals hands, determined 10 to be renenged byon him, and to dispatch the realms of fuch a wicked perfort : and therespon afternbling Mailter Fox. their powers togither, came towards Pewcalicli, wither the king from Porke was removed, and now hearing of their approch, he got him to Tinmouth; where the queene late, and understanding there that pewcastell was taken by the loods, he leaving the quene behind him, toke thipping, and failed from thence with his dearelie beloued familiar the earle of Comewall, buto Scarbourgh, where he left hint 20 in the castell, and rode himselfe towards Warwike. The loods hearing where the earle of Conwall was, made thither with all speed, and belieging the callell, at length confiremed their enimie to væld himfelfe into their hands, requiring no other condition, but that he might come to the kings presence to talke mith him.

> The king hearing that his belt belowed familiar was thus appehended, fent to the loads, requiring to his prefence, promiting withall that he would lie them fullie latisfied in all their requells against him? Therebyon the earle of Penbroke persuaved with the barons to grant to the kings delire, ondertaking buon forfeiture of all that he had, to bring him to the king and backe agains to them, in fuch fate and cone dition as he received him. When the barons had consented to his motion, he take the earle of Come. wall with him to bring him where the king laie, and comming to Dedington, left him there in fafe keet 4 ping with his fernants, whilest he for one might went to vill his wife, lieng not farrefrom thence.

The fame night it chanced, that Buie er le of Talar wike came to the verie place where the erle of Com wall was left, and taking him from his kepers. brought him unto Wartvike, where incontinentlie it was thought belt to put him to death, but that forme bombting the kings displeasure, adulted the residue to flaie; and so they did, till at length an ancient grave man amongst them exhorted them to ble the 50 occasion now offered, and not to let dip the inteane to deliver the realing of fucha dangerous person, that had wrought so much mistigete, and might turns them all to such perill; as afterwards they ihould not Continuation be able to auoto, not find thill how to remedicit. And thus perfuaded by his woods, they caused him Greits. water to be brought forth to a place called Blackes Contrabeath low, otherwise named by most waiters, Gariersie heath, where he had his heat smitten is but his shoulfull retoard for lo looznefull and contempations a merchant; as in respect of himselfe (bicause he was in theprinces favour) estimated the Poblics of the Land as men of fuch inferiorities as that in compartion of him they descrued no tittle tot or mite of honour. But lothe vice of ambition, accompanies with a car ble of other outrages, ever a reprochailteno from an cucrlatting marke of infatric, which he makes by bio? lent nicanes on himselfacions, the cosos of his owner lewonete, and could not escape this fatalifall for that he would lie his death revenged, so that the rancour which before was kindled betwirt the king and those lords, began now to blate abroad, and spred so farre, that the king ever fought occasion boin to worke them displeasure. This yeare, the thirteenth of Anno Reg. 6. Pourembet, the kings elocit Conne named Colward & Coward & (which succeeded his father in the kingdome by the third boanc. name of Coward the third) was borne at Windloze. Ring Coward now after that the forefaid Piers Gas nesson the earle of Cornewall was dead, nothing Polydor. reformed his maners, but as one that detelled the counsell and admonition of his Pobles, those such to be about him, and to be of his prinie councell; which were knowne to be men of corrupt and most wicked fluing (as the watters of that age report) among c these were two of the Spensers, Hugh the father, and Hugh the fonne, which were notable inffruments The Spento bring him buto the liking of all kind of naughtie fers. and entil rule.

Admalapatrata funt atra theatra paratá. 111 6:00 1 When the king has knowledge hereof, he was wonderfullie displeased with those than that have thus put the fair earle but roeath, making his bow

By the counsell therefore of these Spensers, he was wholie lead and governed ! wherewith manic were much offended, but namelie Robert the archbis thop of Canturburie, who forelaw what milcheefe was like to infue : and therefore to proutoe forme remedie in time, he procured that a parlement was cal- Fabian. led at London. In the which mairie good ordinances A parlement. and fratutes were deutled and effablillied, to opicalle the viots, milgouernance, and other mildrefes which as then were bled: and to keepe thole ordinances, the them to space his life, and that he might be brought 30 king first, and affer his loods recessed a solemne oth, that in no wife neither he not they thoulo baske them. By this means was the frate of the realme newlie reflored, and new councellours placed about the king. But he neither regarding what he had fwozine, neither weieng the force of an oth, observed afterwards none of those things, which by his oth he had bound himfelfe to observe. And no maruell: for merlie (as it thould feeme by report of Thomas de la More) the loads togethed hinf to much, and beyond o the bounds of realon, cauting him to receive to bear bout him thome it pleased them to appoint. For the yonger Spenicr, who in place of the earle of Com? ivall was ordeined to be his damberlaine, it was Spenfer the knowne to them well inough, that the bing bare no fonne at the good will at all to him at the field though after wards first not fauo a through the provent policie, and alligent indultrie of; red of the it. the marthe quicklie crept into his facout, and that further than those that preferred him could have water.

But now to die purpole Abouethe fame time to Continuation with open the cleanenth of wate, the affice taio Hos of Triuck bort archithop of Canterburie departed this Het. 1 3.1.3.0 minetene peares affer his fiell emtrance into ffe go. minment of that les after him was cualter billien of Worceller translated buto the le of Canfirlis rie, and was the mine and foitish archbishop that had ruled the faint is allo william the artifolities of Polydor, Porte decealled and one Etilliam Defici Tucceded. hinr the two or forth archbirgopunderhies ders, the twentith day of June beingtiechaie. A 600 that the . This archieffop politon, Hough be was mod flublous of things perfeining to religion ; best nothing almouth's thole time about the fame, yet neaccific lettere their not forgettent of that edith bee longed to the additivement of the commonwealth. and therefore being at London Upon a time, Simon the elect bilhop of Chimerne contested Doine, that the The bilhop of nuther beconsecrate of him i werete this wither whiterine in the game editionement to John the billion of youked the categories and the billion of the billi name to receive of him his othor obedience Adich Carteill commandencia the faid billyop of Carleill bed belie ol, douglass.

The king and queene this years in Paie well where Continuation into France, where they were present in Parts on Truet. Thom. Walf.

The caric of Cornewall talien.

Che kings requelt for his life.

The carle of Ocnbroke fut to the o: ther load s.

of Triuct.

The earle of Commall be= beeces.

The kings dipleafare,

Anno Reg. 7. Record.Tur.

Hen. Marle. Mariages.

w he tucceffe or Robert 132ucc.

The king of England val-Broiland.

The English men chaleb.

The king eicapeth.

The battell of Wanohel= borne.

The great flaughter of Englishmen. Polydor,

Fabian. Croxden. Addition to Triuet and Matth.Paris.

Anno Reg.8. A councel hol= den at yoghe.

Sir Peter Spalding.

1315 Ene Scots in Irciand.

Whitfundaic at the cosonation of Whilip fonne to the French hing, created that day king of Panarre. Tohn de Drokenfford bithop of Bath and Welles was amounted warden of the realme till the kings returne. In Julie the king returned backe from his fournic into France, and landed at Sandwich the mondate before the featt of S. Pargaret, hauting bil patched his businesse with the French king in god and honorable maner, for his lands and countrie of Galcoine. ¶ About this fealon Maurice fit; Tho 1 mas, and Thomas fitz John maried two litters that were daughters to Kichard carle of Alneffer. In this meane time, Kobert Bauce recouered the molt part of all Scotland, winning out of the English mens hands fuch caffels as they held within Scots land, chaling all the foultiers which laie there in gare rison, out of the countrie, and subduing such of the Scots as held on the Englich part.

Ling Coward to be reuenged herof, with a migh fie armie brauelie furnished, and gorgioullie amarel 20 led, more fæmelie for a triump, than met to incouns ter with the cruell enimie in the field, entred Scots land, in purpose speciallie to rescue the castell of Sterling, as then belieged by the Scotilhmen. But at his approching neere to the fame, Robert Bruce was readie with his power to give him battell. In the which king Coward nothing doubtfull of lotte. had so untuffelie ordered his people, and confounded their ranks, that even at the first ioining, they were not onclie beaten downe and overthowne, by those 3 that coved with them at hand, but also were wounded with that a farre off, by those their enimies which stood behind to succour their fellowes when need required, so that in the end the Englishmen fled to faue their lines, and were chaled and flaine by the Scots in great number.

The king escaped with a few about him, in great danger to haue beine either taken og flaine. Danie mere drowned in a little river called Banokelborne, nære to the which the battell was fonghten. There 40 were flaine of noble men, Gilbert earle of Bloces ffer, Kobert logo Cliffogo, the logo Giles Argentine, the losd Paine Tiptol, the losd William Parchall. the losd Reginald Daincourt, the losd Comund of Pauler the kings freward, with other loads and barons to the number of 42, and of knights and baro: nets to the number of 67. There were laine of all forts opon the English part that date about ten thonfand men, ouer and belide the palloners that were take hen. Amongs the which were accounted 22 men of 50 name, as the carle of Hereford, the lord John Se graue, William loed Latimer, Baurice loed Berk lep, and others. He that lifteth to heare moze of this discomfiture may read thereof further at large in the Scotilb billozie.

The king of England having elesped from this vattell, which was fought on Piolummer day in the pere aforefaio, came to Porke, where he held a councell of his loods, to have their adulle by that means which he had full cined at the hands of his entire to. Bruce. And thortlie after was fir Peter Spalding fent unto Berwike, with a crew of fouldiers to defend the towne against the faid Bauce, who intended Choeflie to laie liege to that towne, as the king had certeine understanding. Also the Scotishmen aduanced highlie in their minds for the late gotten bidozie valled ouer into Ireland, bnderthe conduct of Coward Bruce, the brother of Robert Bruce, fore afflicting that countrie, by spoile, fluord, and fire : the villages were robbed, the townes and castels with they wan were facked, and after fired, fo btterlie to affembled togisher, and foined themselves with such Englichmen as laie there in garrifons, cuer the which the lood John Bermingham as deputie had the Chile thefe charge. Thus being toined togither, they made Brimen earned relitance against the attempts of their enimies in defence of the countrie. And to by that means they warred and fought one against an other, with great flaughter on both fibes, the Scotifymen on their part dwing their belt to obteine the gouerne. ment of the countrie, having alreadie obteined no fmall portion thereof, and created Edward Bince king there; and the Triffmen on the other part, in forcing their whole indeuor to beat the enime backe, and to rid him out of the countrie. But at length the inuincible obstinatueste of the Irismen penailed. through aid of the Englishmen (as after shall an peare.) Penerthelelle in the means while, as some Grather English disonicles make mention, there died of the tride Scots in these warres to the number of thirtie thon in Irlan fano, and above fifteene thouland Friffmen.

The Frithmen being put in great feare herewith,

The Scots not onelie thus inuaded Ireland, but Riscouls also continued their rage against England. Ho: the same yeare about the feast of Peter and Paule, Theblin they entered into the bilhapaike of Durham, & look rike of Durham, & look rike of Durham, led the countrie unto Hartilpole, which towns they bangain robbed of all the countries think they there found the in. the same robbed of all the gods which they there found, the inhabitants being fled with their thips to the fea. About Mandelentide following, the king of Scotsentred Anno Reg. England with a mightie armie on the west borders, Rob. Blue o and comming to Carleill belieged the citie, remais inualing ning before it ten daies, but they within to valiantlie gland befended themselves and their wals, that the Scots segio, loft moze than they wan, fawing that during their a bode at this fiege, they robbed and walted the cour tries of Allerdale, Copeland, and Westmerland. The 11 day after their comming thither, then they had affaied all their force and policie to win the citic, and faw themselnes nothing to premaile, but to lose their men and travell, they raised their field, and res Chiling turned into Scotland with bilbonoz, leaving behind raich them all their engines of warre, to that belides the dichonour which be full eined by the repulle, in lien of lucre he fuffered late, and therefore this letton byer emplification would be learned and practice, that Res bene quisque gerens lucra fit unde ferens.

Poin as they went their wate, certeine Englishmen John following them, take John be Hurrey, who in the battell of Striveling had for his part 13 English taken. knights petioners, belide equiers and others. They toke allo with him one Robert Berbolle a greate nimie of the Englichmen.

This years there fellescading great rains and Great in abundance of wet, in the moneths of Julie and Au gulf, that the hulbandmen of the countrie could not get in that small crop which then stod on the ground, and that which they inned, pieloed not the hoped quantitie, as when it came to the threshing well appeaced. In the day of the Assumption of our las die, John the kings fecond forme was borne at Ch Johnde he might bell relloze his armie, and revenge the lolle 60 tham. A knight of Lauralhire called fir Abam home Banifler raifed war in this years of king Cowards reigne, against his lood the earle of Lancaster; but about the feast of faint Partine he was taken and beheaded. Also this yeare, Coward de Bruce bio ther to the king of Scots, entred into the north parts of Ulnefter with a great armie, byon the day of S. Augustine in Paie, and afferwards burnt Dun Hen Ma balke, and a great part of Argile . Che Brithmenal Dunbell fo burnt the church of Athico. Sporeover in the battell bank of Comeran in Alneffer, Kichard earle of Timeffer Chair fled, and fir Richard Bourgh, & fir John Mandenile, and it Alane fit; waren were taken priloners. The caffell of Portrough was also taken, e at Bentle in Weth the lood Roger Wortimer was discomfited by Edward the second.

Z blafing far cearth and

The deceale

ct Gute carte

o warwike.

1316

Rich South.

Anna Reg. 10.

comfited.

Sir Gilbert

P

the forciato Coward Bruce, and manie of the faid fir Rogers men were flame and taken.

also in the ninth years of king Cowards reigne. before Cyriffmalie, a blafing farre or comet apeared in the north part of the element, by the space of a mos neth togither, and after followed dearth and death(as affer fall apeare.) Guie earle of Warwike, a man of great counsell and skilfull providence, departed this life this yeare, and was burico at the abbeie of Boodilley. About Piolummer the Scots efflones 10 entred into England, doing much milchefe with fire and sword, in like fort as they had bled to do before time, not sparing (as some write) so much as those houses therin women late in childred. At their comming to Richmond, the gentlemen of the countrie that were got into the castell to defend it, compound bed with the enimies for a great summe of monie, to spare the towne and countric about it, without om ing further damage thereto at that tournie.

The Scots having received the monie, turned 20 their march toward the well parts, and tournieng the fore miles, came to Fourneis, burning all the countrie thereabouts, and toke awaie with them all the goods and prisoners, both men and women which they might late hands on, and fo returned, rejoiling most of such iron as they had got in that tournie, for they had great want in Scotland of that kind of me tall in those baies. The dearth by reason of the busea fonable weather in the fummer and harvest last past ned, after when it came to the profe, pelded nothing to the value of that which in theafe it femed to conteine, so that wheat and other graine which was at a fore price before, now was inhanced to a farre higher rate, the fearlitie thereof being so great, that a quarfer of wheat was fold for fortie thillings, which was a great price, if we thall confider the allaie of monie then current. Also by reason of the murren that fell among cattell, befes and muttons were burelo. nablie priceo.

About this fealon, the load Henrie Beaumont a man of high valiancie and noble courage, bauing gotten togither a power of men, entred into Scot. land, and after he had taken great boties and fpoiles in the countrie, he being intrapped by fir James Dowglas, loft the most part of his men, togither The load We= with the prey which they had gotten. The displeasure of these milhaps was increased with the naughtie and bold presumption of fir Gilbert Middleton knight, who being offended that maifter Lewes Lewes Bean Beaumount was preferred unto the bishops lie of Durham, and Henrie Stamford put from it, that was first elected and after displaced by the kings suit made unto the pope, twhe the fair Letves Beaumont and his brother Henrie on Minglesoon more nicre unto Darington, leading the bithop to spoze path, and his brother the lord Beaument onto the cas fell of Mitford, and to deteined them as priloners, till they had redeened their libertie withgreat fums of monic. Herewith the fato fir Gilbert being av 60 nanced in prive, proclaimed himfelfe onke of Popp thumberland, and foining in freenothip with Robert hindels onlic. Bruce the Scottly king, cruellic deficated the court tie of Richmond. With fuch traitozous parts Wills am Kelton, and Thomas Heton, being not a little firred, first wan by force the castell of Witford, and after appehended fir Bilbert Hiddleton, with his companion Malter Schie, and fent them op to London, where Chartie after they were drawns, hand ged and quartered.

Some write that the fair fir Gilbert was put fo death for robbing two cardinals, to wit, Gancellino the popes chancellour, and Lucas de Files, that were fent from pape John the two and fwentith, to confecrate the forefaid Leives Beaumont bishop of Thom, Walfi Durham, and to intreat a peace be twirt the realms of England and Scotland, and also to make an a græment betwirt the king and the earle of Lanca. fter. The which being met with voon Minglesoon Fabian. more in Porkelhire by the faid Bilbert, were robbed Caxton, of fuch fruste a treasure as they brought with them, but yet escaped themselves and came to Durham, and from thence fent mellengers to Robert Bauce, Polydor. to persuade him to some agræment. But whereas he would not condescend to any reasonable conditions of peace at that time, they determined to go into Scotland to talke with him themselves : but before they came to the borders, king Robert, who judged it not to frand with his profit to have any peace in that feafon, fent certeine of his people to forbid the cardi nals the entrie of his realme . The carbinals being Che curfe thus infuriousite handled, pronounced the Scots by pronounced their legantine power accurled; and interdicted their against the thole realine. And bicause they saw nothing lette socots. than any hope to do god with king Robert touching any composition or agreement to be had, they return ned againe to the pope, without any conclusion of that for the which they were fent.

After that Coward Bouce had atchined fuch ene Rich, South, terpiles in other parts of Ireland, as in the last viere ye have heard, he went buto Fenath, and to Skeres in Leinister, and there the lood thefe instice Edmund Butler role against him, with the losd John fill increased, for that which with much ado was in 30 fit; Thomas, that was after rele of kildare, fir Ar nold Power, and diverse other, with a great armie. But by reason of discord that chanced amongs them. they scaled their armie, and departed out of the field on the 26 date of Februarie. Coward Bruce then burned the castell of Leis, and after returning into Minester, he besieged the castell of knockfergus, and flue Thomas Pandeuile, and his brother John, at a place called Down, as they came thither out of England. After this the forelaid Edward returned 40 into Scotland.

In this leason vittels were to scant and diere, and A pitiful theat and other graine brought to so high a price, famine. that the poze people were confireined thozough famine to eat the fleth of horfes, dogs, and other vile bealts, which is wonderfull to believe, and yet for dee Fabian. fault there died a great multitude of people in die ucrs places of the land. Foure pence in bread of the courfer fort would not fuffice one man a date. Wheat was fold at London for foure marks the quarter and aboute. Then after this dearth and fearlitie of bittels & fore mortainfued a great death and mortalitie of people, to little of people, that that by warre of the Scots, and that by this mortalitie and death, the people of the land inere wonderfullie walted and confumed. D pitifull depos pulation!

Coward Bruce before the feaff of Caffer retur. ned againe into Ireland, with the earle of Adurrep and other noble men of Scotland, having with them a great atmie, and belieged the castell of knockfers gus, and after they went to another castell where they take a baron prisoner: there Coward Bruce late for a feason. Also Kichard earle of Wineffer lay in faint Paries abbie by Dublin, where the maioz and communaltie of the citie toke him, and put him in pailon within the castell of Dublin. They also Que his men, and spoiled the abbie. After this the forefaid Coward Bruce went to Limeritie, after the feath of faint Patthew the apostle, and there is fourned till Caffer was paff,

In the meane while Roger be Portimer the kings deputie acrined at Materford with a great armie, by reason therof Coward le Bruce for seare deparby reason wheref Edward to Builte to, teare vepals John fitz ted, and got him into the ottermost parts of Eline, Thomas crie fer, and John fit; Thomas was made earle of lith of kidoare.

Tho. Walk

Jan J

2 (11 h)

Sincilling eas kliffe teroingia.

F

Dare. Also Deconer of Conneigh, and manie other Triffinen of Cornaghand Weth were flaine neere to Aurie by the Englithmen of those parts. There was a great flaughter also made of the Trishmen nære buto Thillilocrmote, by the load Comund But ler, and an other also at Baliteham of Dmooth by the fame Comund. The lood deputie deliucred the earle of Ulneffer out of pulon, and after Whitluntide banithed out of Weth fir Walter Lacie, and fir Hugh Lacie, graing their lands awaie from them buto his 10 knights, and they went over into Scotland with Co ward Bruce, who returned thither about that time. The death fill increased as by some writers it should Croxden.

Anno Reg. 11. Ri. Southwell. 1318 Bermike be: trated to the Scots.

Anno Reg. 12, Additions to Triuet. The king & the earle of Lancafter madefrends.

Rob. Bzuce pronounced accurled.

Hen.Marl.

Th. Walfing.

In the elementh years of king Edward the fecond his reigne, bpon the faturdate night before Widlent fundate, the towne of Berwike was betraied to the Scots, through the treason of Peter Spalding. The castell helo good tacke a while, till for want of vittels they within were constrained to deliner it into the Scotiffmens hands, the wan also the same time the Eaters won caffell of Harbotell, Merke, and Debfood, fo that they pollected the more part of all Porthumberland, even buto Dewcastell bpon Tine, fauing that cers teine other castels were defended against them . In Date they entred with an armie further into the land, burning all the countrie before them, till they came to Ripon, which towns they spoiled, and farteng there thee vales, they received a thouland marks of those that were got into the church, and defended it as gainst them, for that they should spare the towne, and 30 not put it to the fire, as they had alreadie done the Morthalecton townes of Porthalecton and Bourghbridge as they and Bourgh came forwards. In their going backe they burnt bridge burnt. Unaresbourgh, and Skipton in Crauen, which they had first facked, and so pailing through the middest of the countrie, burning and spoiling all before them, they returned into Scotland with a maruellous great multitude of cattell, belide palloners, men and ivomen, and no finall number of poze people, which they take with them to helpe to drive the cattell. In the 12 years of Coward the feconds reigns, in August, the king and the earle of Lancaster came to talke togither in a plaine belide Leiceffer, where they were made frænds to the outward thew, to that in the yeare next following, the fair earle went with the king to the fiege of Werwike. About the feaft of the Patinitie of our ladie, the two cardinals, which were yet remaining in England, fent forth conv mandements buto all the piclats and picets with in the realme, that there times in cuerie solemne 50 malle, they hould denounce Robert Bruce that called himselfe king of Scotland accursed, with all his councelloss and fautoss, and on the behalfe of the pope, they deprived him by denunciation of all honour, and put all his lands under interdiction, dif abling all their children to the second degree that held with him, as unworthis & bufit to receive or take bpon them any ecclefialticall function. They denounced also all the prelate of Scotland and men of 60 religion, exempt, and not exempt, excommunicate and accurled.

The lord Roger Portimer returned agains into England, and Alexander, Bicnoz was made cheefe in ffice of Ireland. TAlio Coward Bruce, with fir Walter and fir Pugh Lacie, bringing with them a great armie, returned out of Scotland, and arrived at Dundalke, on the day of faint Caliro the pope. But nære to the fame place fir John Beimingham. Continuation Richard Tute, and Wiles of Terdon, with a power of 1324 men incountred then and five the faid Ed. ward le Bruce, and about the number of $200 men, ox(as other have) but 5 800. The faid fir John Wir murgham brought the head of Colvard le Bouce ouer into England, and presented it to the king. Therebpon the king in recompense of his service. gave buto him the earledonic of Louth, to hold to him and his heires males, and the baronie of Athird to him and his heires generall.

About this feafon, or form what before, about Min fummer (as Southwell faith) a naughtie fellow called John Poidzas, oz (as fome boks haue) Ponberham, a tanners fon of Orceffer commining to Orford, and there theusting himselfe into the kings hall that stop without the wals, gave fouth that he was sonne and right heire of king Coward the first, and that by means of a falle nurse he was folne out of his cradle, and this Coward the fecond being a carters for was brought in and laid in his place, so that he by reason thereof was afferwards hardlie fostered and brought by in the north part of Wales. At length be ing law for, he fled to the church of the white friers in Drford, truffing there to be fafe through the immunitie of the place, bicause king Coward the first was their founder. But when he could not keepe his tong, but Will fondlie uttered his follie, and food in his ople nion, to that great rumoz thereof was railed, he was at length taken out of that church, ccarico to Porth hampton, where he was there arreigned, condemi ned, and had fouth to a place in the countrie called the copped oke, where he was drawne, hanged, and as a traitour bowelled. At the houre of his death he com felled that in his house he had a spirit in likeness of a cat, which amongst other things assured him that he thould be king of England.

In this fealon, to wit, in the yeare 1319, a great 1319 murreine and beath of cattell chanced through the apartin of whole realme, spreading from place to place, but spc. catten ciallie this yeare it reigned most in the north, where as in the yeares before it began in the fouth parts. The king destrous to be revenged of the Scots, made Anno Reg. preparation to leuie a mightie armie; and for want of lufficient numbers of men in other places to wards the north parts, the king caused much people to come buto him out of the fouth and east parts of the realine amongst the which the citie of London was confireined to find at their rolls and charges two hundred inen, sending them to Poske, where the generall affemblie of the armie was made. From thence, after he had received his men from fundie countries and good townes of his realme, he went to The hings Berwike, laid fiege to the towne. In which means ethio Bi time the Scots being affembled, came to the boy with. bers, passed by the English host, and entring into England, came in fecret wife bowne into the marthes of Poskethire, and there are the people, and robe come until bed them in most cruell svile. Therefore the archbithop of Porke, meaning in your time of suchnecessitie to ow his invenour in defense of his countrie, affembled fuch power as he could get togither, of clearkes, monks, canens, and other fpirituall men of the church, with hulbandmen and fuch other brapt people for the warres: and thus with a great number of men, and fein warlike or diferet chefeteins, he togither with the bishop of Clie, as then lood chancellour, came froath against the Socots, Aucsbuic and incountremouth them at a place called spitton byon Suale; the fiveleth day of Doober. Here as the Englishmen palled over the twater of Suale, the Secots let fice Opon terteine ffacks of haie, the limble Chilled thereof was so huge, that the Englishmen might not secure the secretarias Appendix not ferihere the Sectolate Anothien the English Bualt men were once got over the water, the Scots cante Caxton bpon them with a wing in good order of battell, in fathion like to it thelb, egerlie affailing their enimics, tho for lacke of god governoment force easilie bras ten downe and disconstited, without thelving any great reliftance who that there were flaine to the namber

Dare. Also Occoner of Conneigh, and manie other Triffinen of Cornaghand Deth were Caine neere to Aurie by the Englithmen of those parts. There was a great flaughter also made of the Frishmen nere buto Thillilocrmote, by the load Comund But ler, and an other also at Baliteham of Dmorth by the fame Comund. The lood deputie deliuered the earle of Almester out of pulon, and after Chitfuntide banished out of wheth fir Walter Lacie, and fir Hugh Lacie, gruing their lands awaie from them onto his 10 knights, and they went over into Scotland with Bo ward Bruce, who returned thither about that time. The death Mill increased as by some writers it should Anno Reg. 11. Ri. Southwell. 1318 Berwike be= trated to the Botts.

Croxden.

Caffels won by the Scots.

Anno Reg. 12, Additions to Triuet. The king & the earle of Lancaster made frænds.

Rob. Wince pronounced accurled.

Hen.Marl.

Th. Walfing.

In the elementh yeare of king Edward the fecond his reigne, bpon the faturdate night before Widlent fundate, the towne of Berwike was betraied to the Scots, through the treason of Peter Spalding. The castell helo goo tacke a while, till for want of vittels they within were constrained to deliner it into the Scotishmens hands, tho wan also the same time the castell of Parbotell, Werke, and Dedford, to that they possessed the more part of all Porthumberland, euen bnto Dewcaltell bpon Tine, fauing that cers teine other callels were defended against them . In Daie they entred with an armie further into the land, burning all the countrie before them, till they came to Ripon, which towns they spoiled, and tarting there the dates, they received a thouland marks of those that were got into the church, and defended it as gainst them, for that they should space the towne, and 30 not put it to the fire, as they has alreadie done the Porthalerton townes of Porthalerton and Bourghbridge as they and Bourgh- came forwards. In their going backe they burnt bridge burnt. Linaresbourgh, and Skipton in Crauen, which they had first facked, and so passing through the middest of the countrie, burning and spoiling all before them, they returned into Scotland with a maruellous great multitude of cattell, belide puloners, men and ivomen, and no imall number of poze people, which they take with them to helpe to drive the cattell.

In the 12 years of Edward the feconds reigns, in August, the king and the earle of Lancaster came to talke togither in a plaine beside Leicester, where they were made frænds to the outward thew, to that in the yeare next following, the faid earle went with the king to the fiege of Berwike. About the feat of the Patinitie of our ladie, the two cardinals, which were pet remaining in England, fent forth conv mandements buto all the prelats and prieffs with in the realme, that there times in cuerie solemne 50 matte, they hould denounce Kobert Bruce that called himselfe king of Scotland accursed, with all his councelloss and fautoss, and on the behalfe of the pope, they deprived him by denunciation of all honour, and put all his lands under interdiction.dif abling all their children [to the second degree] that held with him, as unworthie e bufft to receive or take bpon them any ecclefiafficall function. They denounced also all the prelate of Scotland and men of 60 religion, erempt, and not exempt, excommunicate and accurled.

The lood Roger Postimer returned againe into England, and Alexander, Bicno; was made chefe in flice of Ireland. Talky Edward Bruce, with fir Walter, and fir Pugh Lacie, bringing with them a great armie, returned out of Scotland, and arrived at Dundalke, on the day of faint Caliro the pope. But neve to the fame place fir John Beimingham, Continuation Richard Dute, and Wiles of Tlevdon, with a power of 1 224 pien incountred them, and five the faid Ed. ward le Bucc, and about the number of $200 men, og (as other haue) but 5 800. The faid fir John Wir mingham brought the head of Colvard le Wauce ouer into England, and presented it to the hing. Therebpon the king in recompense of his service. gaue buto him the earledonie of Louth, to hold to him and his heires males, and the baronie of Athird to him and his heires generall.

About this feafon, or form that before, about Mio fummer (as Southwell faith) a naughtie fellow called John Poidas, or (as fome boks haue) Ponderham, a tanners fon of Orcefter commining to Orford, and there theusting himselfe into the kings hall that and without the wals, gave fouth that he was sonne and right heire of king Coward the first, and that by means of a falle nurse he was folne out of his cradie and this Coward the fecond being a carters fon was brought in and laid in his place, to that he by reason thereof was afterwards hardlie follered and brought op in the north part of Wales. At length be ing law for, he fled to the church of the white friers in Drford, truffing there to be fafe through the immunitie of the place, bicante king Coward the first was their founder. But when he could not keepe his tong, but fill fondlie ottered his follie, and food in his ople nion, so that great rumoz thereof was railed, he was at length taken out of that church, & caried to Postly hampton, where he was there arreigned, condemned, and had fouth to a place in the countrie called the comed oke, where he was drawne, hanged, and as a traitour bowelled. At the houre of his death he con felled, that in his house he had a spirit in likenelle of a cat, which amongst other things assured him that be thould be king of England.

In this featon, to wit, in the yeare 1319, a great murreine and death of cattell chanced through the anarra of thole realme, spreading from place to place, but spc. cattall, ciallie this yeare it reigned most in the north, where as in the yeares before it began in the fouth parts. The king defirous to be revenged of the Scots, made Anno Reg preparation to levie a mightie armie; and for want of lufficient numbers of men in other places to 40 wards the north parts, the king caused much people to come buto him out of the fouth and east parts of the realine, amongst the which the citie of London was confiremed to find at their roffs and charges two hundred men, sending them to Porke, where the generall allemblie of the armie was made. From thence after he had received his men from fundie countries and good townes of his realme, he went to Che his Berwike, claid fiege to the tolone. In which means this kinne the Societ being affembled, came to the box with. ders, passed by the English host, and entring into England, came in fecreet wife bowne into the marthes of Poskethire, and there due the people, and role comit on the bed them in must count suite bed them in most cruell tvice.

Therefore the archbilhop of Porke, meaning in your time of luchnecellitie to do his indepour in defense of his countrie, affembled fuch power as he could get togither, of clearkes, monks, canons, and other fpiritual men of the church, with bufbanomen and fuch other brapt people for the warres; and thus with a great number of men, and fein warlike or diferet thefeteins, he footther with the bishop of Clie, as then load chancellour, came froath against the Scots, Ausbur and incountremouth them at a place called Mitton bpan Suale; the twelfth day of Doober. Here as the Englithmen patter over the water of Suale, the Scots let the Opan certeine fracks of haie, the lmoke Chillish the conditions of the Children ithereof was for huge, that the Englishmen might to how not freichere the Secots late Anorthen the English Sual men were once got over the water, the Scots came Carion bpon them with a wing in god order of battell, in fathion like to a their, egerlie affailing their enimics, tho for lacke of god government were easilie was ten downe and disconflited, without thewing any great willance who that there were flaine to the number

Polydor-

Anasburic.

Carron

Polydor.

The enuie of wards the Spenfers.

3, I3,

ggo

cote

0 th ic.

comfi 1311:

number of two thouland and the relidue chamefullie put to Aight. The archbiffiop, the lood chancellos, and the abbat of Selbie, with helpe of their fwift hoofes elcaped, and dinerfe other . The maior of Booke named Atcholas Fleming was flaine, t fir William Diremin proft taken puloner. Panie were drowned, by reas fon that the Scots had gotten betwirt the Englishmen and the bridge , fo that the Englishmen fled betell, which has compassed the Englishmen about on the one fide, as the wing did byon the other . And bis cause so manie spirituall men died in this battell, it was after named of manie waiters The white battell. The king of England informed of this overthrow given by the Scots to the Portherne men, he brake op his fiege incontinentlie, and returned to Porke. Thus all the kings exploits by one means or o ther quailed, and came but to enill fucceffe, fo that 20 the English nation began to grow in contempt by the infortunate government of the prince, the which as one out of the right waie, rathlie and with no god adullement ordered his dwings, which thing lo graved the noblemen of the realme, that they fludi ed day and night by what means they might procure him to loke better to his office and dutie; which they judged might well be brought to palle, his nature being not altogither euill, if they might find thiff to remoue from him the two Spenfers, Hugh the far 30 ther, and Hugh the sonne, who were gotten into such favour with him, that they onelie did all things, and without them nothing was done, so that they were now had in as great hatred and indignation (fith

liuor non deerit iniquus

Dulcibus 👉 lætis, qui fel confundat amarum) both of the loads and commons, as ever in times patt was Pærs de Baueffon the late earle of Countrall. But the logos minded not so much the destruction of these Spensers, but that the king ment as much 40 their advancement, so that Hugh the sonne was made high chamberleine of England, contrarie to the mind of all the noblemen, by reason whereof he bare himselfe so hautic and proud, that no lord within the land might gainfaie that which in his conceit fee med gwd.

In this thirteenth peace of his reigne, in June king Coward went over into France, where at A. miens he found the French king, of whome he received the countie of Pontieu, which the faid French king bponhis comming to the crowne had feized in to his hands, bicause the king of England had not dome to him his homage oue for the same. Also this yeare the pope granted to the king of England the kings grant tenth of ecclefialticall revenues for one yeare, as be, totather. forethat time he had likely for the year. totothek. forethat time he had likehosse boone. About this ann. Reg.14 season, pope John, being informed of the great decoration. fruction and himnercifull warre which the Scots made byon the Englishmen, and namelie for that they spared neither thurth nor thapell, abbeie nor pris 60 orie, he fent a generall sentence bnder his bulles of tead but o the archbilhop of Canturburie and Poske, appointing them that if Robert le Bruce the Scotish king would not recompense king Coward for all such harmes as the realme of England had by him luffeined, and also make restitution of the goos that had beene taken out of churches and monasteries, they thould pronounce the same sentence as long accurled gainst him and his complices.

Wherebpon when the Scots toke no regard to the popes admonition, the archbithop proceeded to the pronouncing of the foresaid sentence, so that Kobert Brace, James Dowglas, and Thomas Kandulfecarle of Purrey, and all other that kept him companic, or them in any wife mainteined, were accurifed throughout England cuerie day at malie the times. Powbeit, this nothing holpe the matter, but put the king and the realme to great cost and tharge, and in the meane feafon the commons of the realme were fore oppeffed by fundrie waies and means, diverte of them lost their goos and possessive ons, being taken from them boon furmifed and fets ned quarels, so that manie were vtterlie vndone, twirt that wing of the Scots and their maine bate 10 and a few lingular and milozoered persons were aduanced.

After the Epiphanie, when the truce failed betwirt the two realmes of England and Scotland, an are Rich. South. mie of Scots entred England, and came into the The Scots bilhoppike of Durham. The earle of Pourrey flated land. at Darington, but James Dowglas and the few ard of Scotland went fouth to walte the countrie, the one towards Hartlepole and Cleveland, and the o. ther towards Richmond: but they of the countie of Kichmond (as before they had done) gave a great fumme of monie to faue their countrie from inualion . The Scots at that time remained Within Eng. land by the space of fistione dates or more. The knights and gentlemen of the north parts did come buto the earle of Lancaster that laie the same time at Pomfret, offering to go forth with him to give the enimies battell, if he would affilf them: but the earle feemed that he had no luft to fight in defense of his prince, that fought to opprette him wrongfullic (as he take it) and therefore he distembled the matter, and so the Scots returned at their pleasure without encounter.

About this feafon, the losd William de Bruce that Thom. Walf. in the marches of Wales enioted diverse faire polfollows to him descended from his ancestors, but through want of god gouernement was run behind hand, offered to fell a certeine postion of his lands called Bowers land lieng in the marches there, buto diverse noble men that had their lands adjoining to the fame, as to the earle of Dereford, and to the two loads Postimers, the bucle a nerbue, albeit the load Molobraie that had maried the onelie daughter and heire of the lozd Bzuce, thought verelie in the end to have had it, as one to his wife by right of inheris tance. But at length (as buhap would) Bugh Spenfer the yonger losd chamberleine, coueting that land(bicaule it late niere on each live to other lands The chiefe that he had in those parts found such means through cause of the the kings furtherance and helpe, that he went awaie variance bewith the purchase, to the great displeasure of the other twirt & logis lozos that had beene in hand to buie it.

Hereby fuch hartburning role against the Spenfers, that byon complaint made by the erle of Hereford but othe earle of Lancalter, of their presumptuous dealing, by ruling all things about the king as fæmed best to their likings, it was thought erpedient by the faid earles that some remedie in time (if it were possible) should be provided. Wherebyon the faid earls of Lancaffer and Hereford, with the lords Roger Tuchet, Roger Cliffogo , Jocelin Deieuille, Roger Bernstielv, the two Postimers, Roger the vncleand Roger the nephue, William de Sullie, William de Elmbrige, John Bifford of Brinch, field, and Henrie Tieis, all barons; the which with die uerle other loads and knights, and men of name, ale fembling togither at Shierbozne in Elmedone, fware each of them to frand by other, till they had a mended the fate of the realme . But pet notwith Canding this their oth, the most part of them afters wards forfaking the enterprise, submitted themfelues to the king.

Penerthelette, whether for that the king by a proclamation let footh the litteenth of Parch, had coms mmoed (as some write) that the lords Powbraie, Cittoro.

1 3 2 0 3oditiong to N. Triuet.

I tenth of the

Clifford, and Deienille for disobeteng to make their perforall appearance before him, thould audio the land within ten dates next influing, or for that they meant with all speed to put their enterpase in execution, we find that the earle of Hereford, the loods Mostimer, the bucie and nephue, the lood Roger Da morie, the lord John Dowbraie, the lord Dugh Audelie, and his forme named also i)ugh, the lord Chifford, the load John Giffoad of Baimelfield, the load Posice trauers, with manicother that were alico togither, having the confent also of the earle of Lancaster, on the wednesdate nert after the feast of the Invention of the crosse, having with them to the number of eigth hundred men of armes, five hundred hoblers, and ten thousand men on fot, came with the kings banner spread onto Peloport in Wenloks lands, where they twhe the cassell that belonged unto the loed chamberleine Hugh Spenfer the younger.

They inuade the Spenters ianos.

The dozos

take armes

boon them

agamft the Spenkers.

Taluan, Lamblethian, Benefegis, Proth, Daullelan, and Divenoz; part of his men which in the forefaid places they found, they flue, as fir John Iwain, and fir Patthem de Gorges knights, with 15 other of his men that were Wellymen: part they twke and put them in prison, as fir Kafe or Kanculfe de Corges being fore wounded , fir Philip Joice , fir John de Friffingfield, fir John de Dunsfable, Wilham be Dunffable, and manie other, of the which the mod part were put to their ransome. They toke spot ted and destroiced so much in value of his goods as as mounted but o two thouland pounds. They take bp in fuch debts as were owing to him in those parts, to the furnine of their thousand pounds, and of his rents to the value neere hand of a thouland pounds. They burnt 23 of his manoes which he had in those parts of Walcs, with his barnes, and did what hurt they could deutle, burning or taking awaie all his wir tings and cuidences. After they had remained is daies there, they came into England, with the like 40 force and bilorder inuading his caffels, manors and possessions, so that the damage which they did here into the faid losd chamberleine, amounted to the bas luc of ten thouland pounds.

The king letbs.

The king advertised of their dwings, sent buto fenteth to the them the archbishop of Canturburte, and the lood Barcholomew de Bavelilmere lozd Ceward of his house, to request them to besist and leave off from such their outragious doings, and comming to the parles put in their complaints and grienances, & he would fee that they should have suffice, according as equitie The lord War Chould require. The lord Badelifinere for faking the king, became one of the confederacie with the bar note that to the rons, and so the archith, was glad to return alone, so of the leaving the L. Badelilinere behind him, who fent the king word by the archbithop, that till they had expelled the Spenfers out of the realme, they would not giue ouer their enterpaile. On faint Barnabies day they came to a manour of Hugh Spenier the 60 father called Fasterne, in the countie of Wiltspire, and spoiled the same with diverse and manie other manoes, as well in Wiltshire, as else where, to wit, in Clocefferthire, Dogletthire, Damfhire, Barkefhire, Deforbilite, Buckinghamthire, Surrie, Cambudgehire, Huntingtonihire, Leicefferihire, Lincoincibire, Chesthire, and Warwikeshire, making fuch hauscke of all fuch goods or cattell as belonged to the faid bugh Spenfer the father, that he was thought to be indamaged to the value of thirtie thous fand pounds, burning his houses, heating, maining and ranforning his men.

Furthermore not contented to spoile those places which belonged to him, but hearing that in the abbeie of Stanlie he had laid by monie and cuidences, they brake into that abbeie, and toke out thereof a thou fand pounds in readie coine, befide cuidences and writings, to the indamaging of him to the value of for thouland pounds, and likewife entring into the car fell of Warleburgh, where the fato bugh Spenfer the father had laid by in woll to the number of 36 facks, they toke the fame and other of his gods, as well in plate as apparell, to the value in all of fir thou Berkeley, the lood Penric Cicis, the lood John Ba 10 land pounds. And they did not one lie spoile the pole festions houses amocattels of the two Spens fers, wherfocuer they could heare that the fame were to be found, but also they bled the like bisozber against all such as were knowne to be freends or wellwillers, to either the father or fonne, fending comunilitons buto fuch as should fee the fame erecuted to the most extremitic, so that in this rage of envicand hot renenge there was no parcialitie, but that one with another, the innocent with the norent, the They also twhe Bacroic, Bertillie, Lantrillane, 20 guiltlesse with the guiltie went to wacke, and as the old prover be faith concurring with common practile

Quod sus peccanit succula (æpe luit) finallie, after they had latilfied their delires in Theband fuch riotous feet, they raised the people, and confired tallethens ned them to flucare to be of their accord, and fo came ple and tag forward with the like force towards the parlement warts the that was summoned to be holden at London the paricular weeks after Midlummer. At their comming to 5. Albons, they fent the bishops of London, Salisburie, Clie, Hereford, and Chichester, to the king with their humble fuit in outward apperance, though in offer the king and berieded more prefumptuous than was requifite. Their cheefe request was that it might pleafe his highrelle to put from him the Spenfers, whole counfell they knew to be greatlie against his honour, and hereof not to faile if he tendered the quiet of his realme. They also required letters patents of him, conteining a generall pardon for the indemnitie of Chet the themselnes, and all those that had beene in armes with them, so as they thould not be impeached by the king for any transgrellions past or present, in time hereafter to come.

The king herebuto answered, that as concerning Entire Hugh Spenfer the father, he was abroad on his bu answer, fines beyond the leas, and that Dugh the sonne was on the lea for the lafe keeping of the cinque ports, as by his office he was bound, and that they ought not by any right or custome to be banished, before they have made answere to the crimes objected against ment which he had alreadic fummoned, they might 50 them. He added further, that their request wanted foundation of law and reason. And if it might be proued that the Spenfers had in any wife offended against the statutes and ordinances of the land, they were alwaies readie to make their answere as the lawes of the realme Mould require. Lattie he added this with an oth, that he would not be for swome contravie to that which at his coronation he had taken bpon him by oth, through granting letters of peace and pardon to luch notoxious offendars in contempt of his person, and to the trouble and disquieting of the whole realme.

> The barons bpon knowledge had that answer the king made to their requests, forthwith got them to armour, and with a great power of men of armes and other, came to the parlement, which the king had Fabian fummoned to begin at Wellininster the weekes Canon after Plolummer. Their retinue were amarelled it a fute of takets of coats of colours demie, partiepel low and greene, with a band of thiterall overthwart. 13p reason thereof that parloment long after was called The parlement of white bands. Then to the the kings peace kept within the citie, the mator cab which it fed a thouland then well armed to watch dailit in man all diverte warms a st diverte Diverle wards, 4 at diverte gates of the citie, which contact watch began at foure of the clocke in the morning, and fo continued till fir at night, and then as manie were amointed to the night watch, continuing the fame till the houre of fine in the morning. And for the more fuertie that this night watch thould be well and sufficientlie hept , two aldermen were affigned nightlie to rive about the citic with certeine officers of the towne, to fee the wardmen well and difcreeflie guided. The gates were thut at nine of the clocke & citizen was warned to have his armour by him, that he might be readie byon anie occasion when he Mould be called.

An. Reg. 12, 13.

Matt. VVcft.

arhe donen:

Deverthelesse the barons being come in forceable wife (as ye have heard) buto this parlement, thep constreined the earle of Richmond, Arundell, Warren, and Penbroke, to agræ buto their purpole; and likewife some of the bishops they compelled through feare to take anoth to toine with them in their purpole, for the expelling of the Spenfers out of the 20 realme, and to comming all togither before the king. they published certeine articles agains the said Speniers, both the father and fonne, where bon they made an award, that they thould be ditherited and banished the land during their lives, if by the king and confent of all the loads in parlement affembled, they should not be restozed. They had day and place appointed where to passe footh of the land, to wit, at Douer, and not elsewhere, betwirt the daie of his a ward made, and the feast of the decollation of faint 30 John Baptill, that day to be counted for one. Diuers articles (as before is faid) were laid to the charge of thole Spenlers.

Amongst other things it was alledged; First Inches wher that Hugh Spenfer the fonne, being on a time an. with the har gric and displeased with the king, sought to allie and roug charged appropriate himselfs with the lead difference of Allies confederate himselfe with the load Giffoad of Bat. melfield, and the load laichard Gray to have confireis ned and forced the king by Arong hand to have fol lowed his will and pleasure.

Secondlie it was alledged, that the faid Spenfers as well the father as the sonne, had caused the king toride into Glocestershire, to oppesse and destroie the god people of his land, contrarie to the forme of the great charter.

Thirdie, that there the earle of Hereford, and the lord Portimer of Wligmore, had gone against one Thewillin Bien, who had raised a rebellion against the king in Glamozganshire, whiles the lands of the earle of Glocester were in the kings hands, the same 50 Thewillin yelved himselfe to the said earle, and to the load Mostimer, who brought him to the king, bp. on promise that he should have the kings pardon, and so the king received him. But after that the said earle and losd Postimer were out of the land, the Spensers taking to them rotall power, twke the faid Thlewillin and led him onto Bardif, where after that the faid Hugh Spenfer the sonne had his purpartie of the fair earle of Gloceffers lands, he caus quartered, to the discredit of the king, and of the said carle of Hereford and lord Wortimer, yea and contrarie to the lawes and dignitie of the imperiall

Fourthlie, the faid Spenfers counselled the king to foretudge fir Hugh Audlie, sonne to the lood Hugh Audlie, and to take into his hands his castels and policilions. They compalled also to have atteinted the lood Roger Damogie, that thereby they might have entoired the whole earledome of Glocester.

These and other articles of misoemeanour in the Spenfers were exhibited, to perfuade the king and others, that they were unprofitable members in the common-wealth, and not worthis of those places which they occupied. Polo after that their differiting and banifiment was concluded in manner as before is faid, the earle of Hereford and other the lords that had profecuted the quarell against them . came before the king, and humblie on their kness befought him of pardon for all things which they had commits ted against him, his lawes, or any other person in the pursuit of the said Spensers. The king, being brought into a Arcia, dura not but grant onto all ovened agains at featien in the morning. Also enerie 10 that which they requested, establishing the same by statute.

> The parlement being thus ended, the king and The king go: quene went to Canturburie, there to visit the thing cit to Canof Thomas Becket Comtime archbilhop there. From turburic. thence he went to the 3le of Cenct, that he might met with his deare a welbcloued councellour Hugh Spenfer the ronger, whome he had of late fent in amballage buto the French king, and now being res De commeth turned by fea into those parts, be was desirons to for the load chains him, that he might have conference with him: and so beriaine. comming together, they spent certaine dates in conv moning of fuch matters as they thought god. The king calling to him the mariners of the cinque posts, committed to them the custodie of the faid Hugh, who for a time kept him with them in their thips, and the king failing alongst the coast to Poz cheffer, conferred with him of manie things.

From Porchetter the king ment to returne buto London, there to meet the quenc, who in hir returne from Canturburie would have looged one night in the calfell of Leds, which the load Bartholome w de Badelismere late steward of the kings house had by erchange of the king for other lands, and now taking part with the barons, had left his wife and children with other of his frænds and treasure in the same castell. Those that were put in trust with keeping this The quene caffell, would neither permit quene noz other to en, not fuffered to ter therein, without expecte commandement from longe in the cattell of their lood and mailter, and to they fignified not one Lads. 40 lie to the quenes servants that came before to make providion for hir, but also declared the same to hir felfe comming thither in person.

This chanced berie buluckflic for the barons: for where the quæne had ever lought to procure peace, love and concord betwirt the king and his lords . Thee toke such displeasure with this deniall made to hir for one nights lodging in that castell, that bpon hic greeuous complaint fent to the king, he forthwith railed a mightie armie out of Bent and Eller, from the cinque posts, and of the Londoners, and having with him his brethren, Thomas earle Parthall, and Comund earle of Kent, also the earls of Richmond, The king be-

Penbroke, Arundell, and Atholl, he halted thither, & flegeth the cas lato flege about the castell; constraining them within still of Lads. by all meanes that might be deutled.

In the meane time, at the fuit of the load Bades The loads lismere, the earle of Hereford, and other lords of the came with a confederacie came with a great power buto king the fiege. Stone, about the feast of Simon and Jude, and there fed the faid Thie will in to be drawne, headed and 60 flateng certeine dates for some of their companie that were to come buto them, they fent buto the king the archbishop of Canturburie, and the bishop of London, with the earle of Denbroke, requiring him to remove his stege, till by parlement some order might be taken: but the king would not give eare to their fuit, but continued his fiege till the castell was pælded to him. For those that were at kingstone The cases of cowardie leuing their enterprife, came not forward, Lads paided but returned backe againe. They that were within the castell, having simplie submitted themselves to the king caused twelve or thirteene of them to suffer death. Amongst other was one Malter Culpepper walter Cake reckoned for the cheefe of them that desended the cas pepper exefell against the king. The wife of the logo Bavelis, cuted.

mere, with his nethuc Bartholomew de Burwath was fent to the to ver of London, but his lifter was fent to Douer caffell, there to remaine in fafe has ping. The castell of Loos being thus poloed to the king, he entred the fame on All halowes date, and shortlic after the castell of Chilham was delines red, and the castell of Sunbridge left boid by them that had it in kaping. The king thus bestirring him, came into Offer, and feised into his hands the lands of the losd Badelismere, and likewise the lanes of fuch as were his mainteiners, abbettors, frænds, faucurers, and furtherers; of the which fuch as he could meet with he put in pulon, and here with fummoned an armie to mot him at Cirences fier about faint Lucies day the birgine. And then as bout faint Anderws tide he came to London, where the archbishop of Canturburie had called a proninci= all councell.

The lord chaberleine ræl: Derh himfelfe to the law.

At the faine time Hugh Spenfer the fonne, being latelie come from the fea, paloco himfelfe paffoner 20 to the kings ward beliething the king that he might have right ministred to him, concerning the wiongs and injuries to him come by the barons in maner as before ve have heard, speciallie for the award which in parlement they had procured to be enaded against him, the errours committed in the processe, thereof he belought the king that he might be admitted to thew : as first, in that they made them? felues judges: fecondlie, in that he was not called to answer: thirdlie, for that the same award was made inithout the affent of the vielats, who are peres of the parlement as well as the temporall loods: fourthlie, in that the faid barons had no record in their purs fuit won the causes confeined in that award: fifflie, in that the award was made against the forme of the great charter of franchiles, wherein is conteined that none shall be foreiunged nor destroied but by lawfull subgement of his piers, according to the law of the land, Further, he alledged that it was to be confidered, how the faid barons and great men being summoned to come in due maner buto that parlement, they came in forceable wife with all their powers. A like petition was also erhibited on the behalfe of langh Spenfer the father, for redreffe to be had of the wrongs and lottes, which in like case he had inficined.

Anno Reg. 15.

mions of the preiats.

The occiara: tion of the piclats.

tion of fue

The king favouring inough the causes and petitions of the Speniers, granted their requells, and de livered the petitions buto the archbilhop of Cantur The king ale burie and his suffragans, the which at the same time were there affembled in their provinciall councell as forefaid, requiring to have their adulle and opinion therein. De like wife requeffed of the earles and bas rons that were then with him, and of the counsellers in law, what they thought of this matter. The prelats byon deliberation had, declared that in their opinis on, the faid award as touching the differiting and banishing of the Spenfers, the father and sonne was erronious, and not rightlie decreed, and for thems felues they denied that they either did or could thinke it reason to consent therebuto, and therefore they rev 60 quired that it might be repealed, and the kings bio ther Comundearle of Bent, John de Bitaine carle The declaras of Richmond, Aimer de Clalence earle of Penbioke, and Comund earle of Arundell, then being in pies fence of the king, and like wife of the forefato prelats, affirmed that the faid award pronounced again the Spenfers was made contrarie to law and right, and therefore as the prelats requested, that the same mucht be revealed.

Further, the laid earles alledged, that the affent libid, they gave in the faid alward, was for doubt of the bulawfull force which the barons brought buto the faio parlement, when they made that award, and fer that the faid earles that now were with the king, had counfelled him to luffer the laid award to palle, for feare of the faid force, and confessed they had bone cuill, and belought him of paroon for their of fences in lo doing. The king thus having caused the prelats, earles, barons, and lawiers there prefent to ofter their indgements in maner aforefaid, he indiciallic renoked and quite difanulled the processe of the faid award, made as well touching the banithment, as the ditheriting of the Spenfers, and refloich them to his peace and allegiance, and to their former estates, in all conditions as they inivied the fame be: fore the making of the faid award, not with transing certeine letters to the contrarie of the carle of Lan cafter, and other loods of his faction, which for the approuing and ratifieng of the faid processe they direct ted buter their scales to the king as pet remaining at London.

They wrote also to the prelats, infices, and barons of the ercheker, to induce the king to give his affent to that which in the teno; of their letters was contest ned. The earle of Hereford, the lood Roger Both Theban mer of Cherke, the lood Roger Portimer of Wig again gin more, entring the marches of Wales, came to Clo. armon. celler, and toke that citie. The callell was also deliucred botto them by the constable thereof. The king having his people comming dailie buto him, where by his armie was hugelie increased, about the feast of faint Picholas he fet fouth from London, and with him there went his brother Comund earle of Bent, John earle of Richmond, Comund earle of A rundell, and manie other great loods and barons. The queene with hir children he lest in the tower of London. The lood John de faint John comming to Thim fubruit himfelfe buto the king, at the intercession of faint 304 diverse noble men, with much ado had his parbon at length granted him.

The king palling forward, feised into his hands the townes, callels, manoes, and gods of them that were against him. But in the meane time the look Henrie de Ticis, with certeine other that were en This tred into Glocelferthire hearing that a great multitude of people was affembled out of the countrie of Cirencester by the kings commandement) came Cumula thither and chalco them home to their houses, putting them in feare of their lives, if they thould offer to refill him. The king comming to Crikelade after the The him fealt of faint Lucie the virgin, wrote to the earle of tentralia Lancaster an answer of his letters, which he had receined from him at London, modefflie reproning him, for that he had to are usualie and binoutifullic reproched him, without refpect had to his rotall effate, and also presumed to alligne him a date within the which he hould reforme those things which he milliked in him, as if he were his lubied and underling, s belide this was now joined with his adverlaries against him, where on his behalfe there has bone no let not ffaie at any time, but that they might be frænds a remaine in quiet togither. Therein though he did more than frod with the dignitie of his rotall title, in somuch as he had the earles life at his commandement, yet for that he tollerated fuch infolencie of behaviour, as was beformelie to be thewed at gainst the person of his prince, the kings clemencie and patience is highlie therein to be commended; though his forbearing and feeking means of qui etnelle did neuer a whit amend the malignant mind of the earle, whose hart was to inchanted with ambition and supereminent honour, that he quite forgat this god letton of submission and due allegiance,

Vt nequeas ladi maiori semper obedi. From Crikelade the king went to Cfrencester, peth is where he held the featt of Christmatte, the earles of Chairman Doubles Bouleade Thomas Andrews Portfolke, Denbroke, Surrie, and other great lords at Cristi

comming

An. Reg. 14,15.

Ling to Critic

The Scots

mil.

comming thicher to some their powers with his. Carles that Chither came alle a great frength of fotmen , part of the which binder the leading of one Robert Aquarigaright famous capteine, toke the cattell of Brome ficlo, those that had the keeping of it fleing fouth of it. The king comming to Worceffer about Pewpercs tive, caused the walles of the citie to be repared, committing the custodie thereof buto William de Longchampe. Affer the Epiphanie he palled on the fide of Seuerne towards Shiewiburic, where, at his 10 comming thither he was honourablie received by the burgettes that came footh to meet him in armoz. and to conneced him into their towns being frong. lie fenced. In this meane time the Scots now that the truce was ended, entring with a firong power into England, destroied all the countrie to Newcathumberland. ffell boon Time with five and fword. The Wellhmen with their capteine Briffin Loitis toke the calfels in Wales, which were kept by the people of the load Mortimer the close . They take also the castels of 20 Hole, Chirke, and Dlono, the keepers thereof comming onto the king to Shiewfourie fubmitted them. selves to him, who sportlie after sent them to the tower of London. The lord Bugh Audelie the elder. the lood John de Halfings, and diverse other comming in , and fubmitting themselves to the king were likewife committed to ward. The lozd Roger Damozie entring into the citie of Wozcester deffroice all that which the Is. had appointed to be done, about the fortification thereof.

The earle of

Che carte of

Dereforn con

The earle of Lancaster lieng at Pomfret, and Licalter wat hearing of all this businesse, wrote to the earle of Dereford and other loods that were with him, that they fould make half to come to him at Pomfret, promising from thenceforth to be their generall and leader. The earle of Pereford retoiling at these newes togither with all those that were about him, leaving Cloceffer and all other ffrengths which they held in those parts, set forward to passe through the middel of the realme, spoiling by the way menscate 40 tell and goods verie disorderlie, and so came through meth to some to the earle of Lancaster. The king getting into his with the earle hands all the callels of his adverfacies in thole parts, of Lancader, went to Hereford, where he was honorablic received of the cleargic and citizens. His armie increased dailie, many comming in buto him, that before durit not for feare of his adverfaries. The bishop of Here. food was tharplie checked, bicause he had taken part with the kings enimies.

The king fent from hence the load John Hallings 50 into Southwales, to take in his name the feizine of the cautels belonging to the earle of Hereford, the lood Roger Damosie, and the lood Hugh Spenfer the punger, which the barons had the last yeare got into their hands, all which being now taken to the hings vie, were furnished with faithfull garrisons. The king, after this, comming to Gloceffer, condenined the thiriffe of Hereford to be hanged, for that he had taken part against him with the barons. The loss Haurice Berkley came to the king to Glo 60 Schlep sab. cester, submitting himselse to the kings pleasure. named him: After this the king came by Weletton brider edge to that the k. wards Courntrie, there he had appointed aswell fuch as he had lattic licenced to depart to their homes to rearely themselves for a time, as also diverse other, to affemble with their powers to go with him from Cherappoin: thence against his adversaries. The day of this al to io mat at semblic was the friday next after the first sundaic in Lent. The king from Coventrie went to Perinall, and there lodged in the abbeie for his more eafe, in ating to William Sutton boder-conflable of War, whe castell, commanding him to be attendant on the thiritie of Marwike, in helping him to watch the entries and filtes to and from the castell of Billings worth that was holven against him. In the meane killingworth time certeine of the loads that were gone to the earle holden 8= of Lancaster besieged Sthehill castell sistence dates annit the K.

togither, but prevailed not.

There were letters intercepted about the fame time, which a medlenger brought fouth of Scotland, Letterointhe closed and the open, for there were fir in all. The king fent them to the archbishop of Canturbus rie, who by his commandement published them in o pen audience at London. The first was closed with the feale of the logo Thomas Kandulfe earle of Hurs rie, lood of Annandale and of Man, lieutenant to Robert le Bruce king of Scotland, which conteined a fafe conduct for fir Thomas Topcline chapteine, and one to be affociate with him to come into Scotland, and to returne from thence in fafctie. The fecond was lealed with the feale of fir James Dowglas for a like fafe conduct for the fame persons . The third was closed with the scale of the said carle of Purrie for the fafe conduct of the lord John of Mowbraic, and the load John de Clifford, and fortic horses with their pages for their fafe comming but othe faid orle into Scotland, and for their abiding there and returning backe. The fourth was closed with the feale Ring Arthur of James Dowglas, directed to king Arthur . The anome feined fiff was closed with the seale of James Dowglas of purpose. directed buto the lood Rafe Penill. The firt had no direction, but the tenour thereof was this as followeth.

beliegeb.

tercepieb.

The tenor of the faid fixt letter lacking a direction.

Du thall bnderstand my load, that the communication before hand had, is now brought to effect. For the earle of Hereford, the loads Roger Damozie, the loads Roger Damozie, Hugh de Audelie the yonger, Bartholo: mew de Badelesmer, Roger de Clissozd, John Gifford, Penrie Teis, Thomas Manduit, John de Millington, and allos ther are come to Pomfret, and are readie to make you good assurance, so that you will performe covenant with them, to wit for your comming to aid by, and to go with bs into England and Wales, to live and die with vs in our quarell. Une therefore belæch you to alligne bs day and place, where we may meet, and we will be readie to accomplish fullie our businesse: and we befæch you to make bs a safe conduct for thirtie horses, that we may in safetie come to your parts.

The king, when such earles and loads as he had liv Record. Tur. cenced for a time were returned (his brother the earle of Porthfolke excepted) a that the most part of those men of warre were assembled that had summons, although diverse came not at all; about the first sun vale in Lent he fet forward towards his enimies, The king fee having with him to the number of firteene hundled teth forward men of armes on hoeffebacke, and formen innunc, towards his rable; with this power patting fourth towards his adenimics. uerlavies, becaused proclamation to be made, that proclamation, he was readie to receive all men to his peace, that would come and submit themselves, those excepted which had beene at the siege of Tikehill castell, oz at the taking of the citie of Glocester, or at the inualion made boon his men at Biogenorth.

At his comming to a little village called Calde Burten boon well, he fent afore him certeine bands to Burton wp. Erent.

Couentrie.

mil Sutton.

The load

earles of Lancaster and Hereford, the lords Roger Damorie, Bugh Audelie the ponger, John de Bow. braie, Bartholomew de Badelilmere, Roger de Clif feed John Ciffoed de Bermelfield, Denrie Dieis, and many other being gotten thither before, kept the bitoge, and affailing the kings people with he had thus lent before, forme of them they flue, and forme they wounded, so desending the bridge, that none allie the river of Erent through abundance of raine that was latelie fallen, were raifed, there was no meane to passe by the fords, therebpon the king fighting with those that thould affaile them afront.

ture at wichnoze. The earles of Kichmond & Denbioke.

The carle of

Deraduen=

durrie.

Robert I= quarte.

The A.pal= fith by a

The earles of A ancafter & the towne.

Of he Tk. com:

burie.

meth to Tue- came to Tutburie, and lodged in the castell, sending fouth the next day with all speed, letters to the thiriffe of Derbishire and Potinghamshire, aduertising him both of the inccesse he had against his enimies, and withall, pronouncing them and all their adherents, rebels and traitors to him and his realme, and that for such they should be reputed, taken and vsed. Where forche commanded in the same letters or writs, opon forfeiture of all that the faid thiriffe might forfeit, he thould pursue the said revels, that is, the earles of 60 Lancalter and Hereford, the loads Roger Damorie, Hugh Andelic the ponger, John de Powbraie, Bartholometo de Badelilmere, Roger de Clifford, John Cifford de Brimelfield, Denrie Tieis, and all and e ueric other persons: persons that were of their confederacie,o: in their companies; cauting hue and crie to be raised byon them, in that part socuer they might be heard of, and in all places where the faid thiriffe thould thinke it expedient, and to infoine and fireightlie command all and fingular persons, the faio rebels and enimies to purfue, take and arreff, and them to beliver buto the faid thiriffe, and that fuch as were not able to purfue them, yet with hand or home they thould lenic hue and crie against them, on Event, where he ment to have lodged : but the could palle, and by reason that the waters, and specie 10 thiriffes and others, that although he had beine conwas confiremed to faie the space of these dates, in which meane time, the earles and their complices for tified the bridge at Burton, with barriers and such like defendes, after the maner of warre, but the king at length byon deliberate admile taken how to palle the riner, oedeined, that the earle of Surrie with certeine armed men, thould go over by a bridge that 20 was thic miles diffant from Burton, that he might come upon the backes of the enimics, as they were

The earles of Richmond and Penbioke were appointed to palle by a food, which they had got know ledge of, with their hundled holfemen in complet armour, and the king with his brother the earle of Bent thould follow them, with the relidue of the armic, fauing that Robert Aquarie or Waters, with certeine bands of formen was commanded to ale 30 found, thould be arrefted, and committed to fafe cw faile the bridge, which he did berie manfullie, caufing the archers teroschowes to annois them that kept it, so as he might draw the whole power of the enis mics that waic, till the king and the earles were passed by the food. But after that the earles of Lancaffer and Hereford with their complices, heard that the king was passed with his armie, they came forth with their people into the fields, and put them in og der of battell: but perceiuing the great puissance which the king had there readic to encounter them, 40 inithout more adm they fled letting fire on the towne. and leaving all their vittels and other things behind them. The kings people comming fpeoilie forward, and entring the towne, quenched the fire, and fell to the spoile of such things as the enimies for half had left behind them. The king kept nothing to himfelfe, but onelie a faire cup that belonged to the earle of Lancaster, a piece estamed to be of some great in paine that being found negligent herein, to be accompted for fauourers and adherents to the faid rebels and traitors, and that the faid thiriffe thould ther, byon appehend them, and put them in pulon. The wit was dated at Dutburie the eleventh of Barch. and the like wits were directed and fent fouth to all other thiriffes through the realme, and like wife to the bithop of Durham, and to the inflice of Cheffer.

Belide this, he directed also other writs to the faid Areined to palle in forceable wife through diverse parts of his realme, and the marches of Wales, to supresse the malicious rebillion of diverse his subtens, and that as yet he was confiremed to continue his fournie in such forceable wife, nevertheles his pleasure was, that the peace should be mainteined and kept throughout his realme, with the flatutes, lawes and cultomes inviolated, and therfore he commanded the faid thiriffes, that they Hould cause the fame to be proclaimed in places there was thought Product most expedient, as weil within liberties as without, the plate inhibiting that any maner of person, of what state bekent, or condition focuer he was, bpon paine that might fall thereon, to attempt any thing to the breach of peace; but that eucrie man should fete to mainteine and preferue the peace and tranquillitie of the people, with the fratutes, lawes and god customes of the land to the ottermost of his power: this alwaics ob ferued, that the revels, wherefocuer they might be fooie. The date of this writ was at Tutburic afore faid on the twelsth of Warch.

The loco Roger Damorie late ficke in his bed at the The local faine time in the priorie of Tutburie, who after he Damourk had heard what sudgement the king had pronounced parts had against him, departed this life within two daies as ter. But the earles of Lancaster and Perefcid, with other in their companie that fled from the discomfis ture at Burton, loft manie men and horffes in their flieng away, by reason of such pursuit as was made after them. Diverse of them that had taken part with the loads against the king, came now and submitted themselves but him, amongst the which were fir Bilbert De Blieffield, and fir Kobert Bol Samme land knights. The king yet had the faid Holland in firefair force fuspicion, bicause he had promised to have come Helland to him before. The earle of Lancaster had sent him met them at this time to raise his tenants in Lancashire, and him. to bring them buto him, but he deceived him, and On the same night, being wednesdaie, the king 50 came not to him at all, there boon the earles of Law The wind cafter and Hereford, with the other barons, being Lancille come buto Pomfret, fell to councell in the Friers Deritor there, and finallie, after much debating of the matter, Domitte and confidering how by the untrue dealing of the faid Robert Holland, their fide was much weakened, it was concluded that they thould go to the castell of Dunckanbosough, and there remaine till they might purchase the kings pardon, lith their enterpise thus quailed bnoer their hands: and herewith fetting for ward that waie forth, they came to Borough bridge, Rich 2nd there for Current was an and the control of Current was an and the control of Current was a second of the control of Current was a second of the control of there fir Andrew de Perkley with the power of the house counteffe of Cumberland and Wellmerland had for laid the passage, and there on a tuesdaic being the 16 of Warch, he fetting boon the barons, in the end bili confifed them, and thated their people.

In this fight was laine the earle of Pereford, the Check lood William de Sullie, with fir Roger de Wourgh, igertid ficlo, and directe others. And there were taken Tho flank ficto, and directle others. And there were taken the mas carle of Lancatter, the look Roger Clifford for the care to that lood Roger which died in the battell of 13an takin nockesbogne in Scotland, the load Gilbert Talbot, the lood John Powbraie, the lood Hingh de Willing. Said! ton, the lord Thomas Danduit, the lord Warrende Life, the losd Philip Darcie, the losd Thomas Will ther, the lood Henric de Willington, the lood Hugh de lanouill, the lord Phillip de Weche, the lord Hen rie de Leibogne, the logo Denrie de Bradbogne, the lood John de Beckes , the lood Chomas Louell, the lood Milliam fit; Milliam, Robert de Mateuille. John de Strifteland, Donell Heron, Walter Baues lie of Stretton , and a great number of other elquires and gentlemen. This battell was fought on the fifteenth day of Warch, in the yeare 1322 after the accompt of them that begin the yeare at the Cir, 10 cumcilion, which was in the laid fifteenth years of this kings reigne.

The battell (gironote i billgr.

The bodie of the earle of Hereford was fent to Poste, two friers of the order of preachers being appointed to loke to it, till the king take order for the burteng of it. The load Tliffoad allo, bicause he was wounded with an arrow, was fent unto Booke. At the same time, the lood Henrie Percie toke the lood Denrie Tieis, and John de Goldington knight, with two elquires, and within a few daies after, Do 20 nalo oc Partwise the lord Bartholomciu de Bade. lismere, the lood Hugh Audelie the ponger, the lood John Sifford, the lood William Tuchet, and in mas ner all those which escaped by flight from this battell were taken in one place or other, by fuch of the kings feruants and frends as purfued them. Upon the one and twentith of Harch, came fir Andrew de Harkley onto Pomfret, bringing with him the earle of Lane caffer and other personers. The king was come this ther a few dates before, and had the callell polded to him by the constable, that not manie dates past was amointed to the keeping thereof by the carle, which earle now being brought thither captine, was moci ked scomed, and in derision called king Arthur.

On the morrow after being mondaie, the two and twentith of Parch, he was brought before these noble men, Comund carle of Bent, John earle of Rich; mond, Aimer earle of Denbroke, John erle of Surric, Comund carle of Arundell, Dauid earle of A tholl, Robert earle of Anegos, the lord Hugh Spen 40 fer the father, the load kobert de Malmelthoap fultice, and others with them affociate, before whome he was arreigned of high treason, for that he had raised warre against the king, and defended the passage of Burton brioge for the space of thee dates togither a. gainst him, and after when it was perceived that the king had passed the river, he with Humfrie de 180: hun earle of Hereford, and other their complices like traitors, let fire on the faid towne, and cruellie burnt part of the houses and men of the same towne, and affer, the faid earle of Lancaster with his complices, arranged himselfe in field with his armie and banners displaid readie to fight against the king, till that perceiving the kings power to be overfrong for him this partakers to refilf, he togither with them fled, committing by the waie viverle felonies and robbes rics, till they came to Burrough bridge, where find. ing certeine of the kings faithfull lubicas readie to telid them, they affailed the faid faithfull subjects with force of armes and banners vilplaied, flateng 60 diverse of them, till finallie the said earle of Lancas fier was caught, and other of his complices, some taken, some slame, and the residue put to slight, so that there wanted no good will in the faid earle of Lancaffer and others, while the king thould not have beine banquished. Thich treasons, murthers, burning of houles, destroicing of the kings people, being plainlie a manifefflie knowne to the earls, barons, lows, In Southwell, and other people of the land, the faid earle of Lancas her was thereupon adjudged to die, according to the law in luch cales provided, that is, to be drawne, hanged, and headed. But bicause he was the quænes bucle, and sonne to the kings bucle, he was pardoned of all fanc heading, and to according lie therebuto fulfered at Pomfret the fluo and fiventish of March.

Thus the king seemed to be renenged of the dis pleasure done to him by the earle of Lancaster, for the beheading of Poers de Gauction earle of Comes wall, whom he so derelie loued, and bicause the crie of Lancaster was the cheefe occasioner of his death, the king neuer loved him entirelie after. So that here is verified the confure of the foripture expected by the wisedome of Salomon, that the anger and diff pleasure of the king is as the rozing of a lion, and his reuenge ineuitable. Therefore it is an hie point of discretion in such as are mightie, to take her hew they give edge buto the weath of their fourthigue, which if it be not by submission made blunt, the burthen of the fmart infuing will lie heavie open the ofs fendoz, even to his otter undwing, and loffe (perhaps) of life. In this fort came the mightie earle of Lancaffer to his end, being the greatest pare in the realme, and one of the mightieft earles in chiffens dome: for when he began to leavie warre against the king, he was possessed of five carledomes, Law eaffer, Lincolne, Salisburie, Leicester, and Derbie, belide other feigniories, lands, and polleflions, great to his advancement in honog and puissance. Wut all this was limited within prescription of time, which being expired, both honour and puillance were cut off with difference and death, for (D mutable fate!)

Inuida fatorum series, summis g negatum Stare diu.

On the same day, the losd William Tuchet, the loed William fitz William , the loed Warren de Lille, the losd Henrie Bradborne, and the losd Willis am; Chenie barons, with John Page an elquire, were drawne and hanged at Pointret aforefaid, and then Chortlie after, Roger loed Cliffoed, John loed Dowbzaie, and fir Golein d' Cenill barons, were Lords exec drawne and hanged at Porke. At Bristow in like manner were crecuted ür Benrie de Millington, and fir Denrie Pontfort baronets; and at Gloseffer, the lood John Bifford, and fir William Elmebridge knight; and at London, the load Henrie Teies baron; at Winchellie, fir Thomas Culpemer knight; at Mindloz, the losd Francis de Aldham baron, and at Canturburie, the logo Bartholomew de Badelife mere, and the lood Bartholometo de Afhbambani, barons . Also at Cardiffe in Wales, fir William Fleming knight was erecuted: diverse were crecuted in their countries, as fir Thomas Dancit and

But now touching the foresaid earle of Lanca, Auesburie. fer, great frife role afferwards amongst the peop Nic. Trivet, ple, whether he ought to be reputed for a faint or no. Some held, that he ought to be no leffe esterned, for that he did manie almesdeeds in his life time, honored men of religion, and mainteined a true quarell till his lives end. Also, his enimies continued not long after, but came to cuill end. Others conceined an other opinion of him, alledging, that he fauoured not his wife, but lived in spouse-breach, defiling a great number of damolels and gentlewomen . If anie offended him, he due him Coatlie affer in his weathfull mod. Avolfafaes and other cuill owers he mainteined, and would not luffer them to be punt thed by due order of law. All his dwings he vico to commit buto one of his fecretaries, and twke no had himselfe thereof: and as for the manner of his death, he fled tham efullie in the fight, and was taken and put to death against his will, bicause he could not auoto it : yet by reason of certeine miracles with were faid to be done niere the place both where he fuffered, and where he was buried, caused manie to thinke he was a faint; howbeit, at length, by the kings commoment, the church doics of the priorie there he was buried, were fint and closed, so that no 31, 11.

The carte of erreigned.

The caftell of Domirct is rendred to Deta found

Deia behene

1

Caxton.

any offerings, or to do any other kind of ocuotion to the fame. Also, the hill where he suffered was kept by certeine Galcoines, appointed by the loss Hugh Spenfer the some then lieng at pomfret, to the end that no people thould come and make their praiers there in worthip of the fair earle, whome they toke berelic for a martyz.

A parlement at yozhe.

The record baniffung of the Spenfers reuerleo.

Creation of

The logo Ainneite pardoned.

Robert Wal= backe is made lead chancel= lour. Polydor.

The queene giucth gwd counfell.

The kings elbelt fonns of wales.

Statutes.

3 fublibie.

Addition to Triuct. Che carle of Denblobe arrefted.

Fabian

man might be fuffered to come to the tome to bying

TElien the king had subdued the barons, shortlie after, about the feath of the Afcention of our lood, he ro held a parlement at Booke, in which parlement, the record and whole processe of the decree or indgement concerning the differiting of the Spenfers, azdelned by the logos in parlement allembled at London the last furnmer, was now throughlie eramined, and for their errours therein found, the same record and processe was clerelie adnihilated and reversed, and the faid Spenfers were restored to all their lands and offices, as before. And in the fame parlement the Winchester, and the lood Andrew de Perklie earle of Carleill. Poseover, in the same parlement, all fuch were ditherited as had taken part with the earls of Lancatter & Gereford, ercept the lord Hugh Audes lie the ponger, and a few other, the which losd Hugh was pardoned, bicause he had married the kings nece, that was fiffer to Gilbert de Clare earle of Olocester, which was flaine in Scotland, at the battell of Bannockefborne, as before is mentioned.

At this time also matter Robert Baldocke, a man 30 euill beloued in the realme, was made lood chancel lour of England. This Robert Baldocke, and one Simon Reding were great fauourers of the Spenfers, and to like wife was the earle of Arundell, where by it may be thought, that the Spenfers ow helve to advance them into the kings favour, so that they bare no small rule in the realme, during the time that the same Spenfers continued in prosperitie, which for the terms of fine peares after that the fores faid barons (as before is expressed) were brought to 4 confusion did wonderfullie increase, and the quiene for that the gave god and faithfull counfell, was no thing regarded, but by the Spenfers meanes clerelie worne out of the kings favour . Poreover, we find, that in this parlement holden at Poske, the created prince kings sonne Colward was made prince of Wales. and duke of Aquitaine.

Also, the king caused the ordinances made by the earles and barons to be examined by men of great knowledge and fkill, and fuch as were thought neces 5 farie to be established, he commanded that the same Mould be called fatutes, and not ordinances. Befide a great subsidie granted to the king by the tempozal tie, the cleargie of all the province of Canturburie granted five pence of everie marke, and they of the province of Porke foure pence. Aimer earle of Penbroke, being returned home from this parlement holden at Porke, was arrested by certeine knights. fent with authoritic thereinto from the king, who brought him backe to Porke, where at length tho 60 led Beaumond, not past three miles fro Carleill, by rough fuit of certeine noblemen, he was opon his oth taken to be a faithfull lubica, and in confideration on of a fine which he paied to the king, fet at libertie. The occasion of his imprisonment came, for that he was accused and detected to be a secret favourer of the barons cause against the Spenfers in time of the late troubles.

Dozeouer, Mortlie after the king gathered the firt penie of the temporall mens gods thorough England, Ircland and Males, which had beene granted to him at the foresaid parlement holden at Porke, to. wards the defending of the realme against the Scots. This far was not gathered without great murmur and grudge, the realme being in fuch cuill and miserable fate as it then was. This peare also the sunne appeared to mans light in colour like to bloud, and fo continued fir houres, to wit, from for nen of the clocke in the morning of the last date of Daober, butill one of the clocke in the after none of the same daie.

Here is to be noted, that during the time while a Polydon the civill warre was in hand betwirt king Coward and his barons, the Scots and Frenchmen were not tole, for the Scots walted a destroiced the countrie of the bishoppike of Durham (as before pe haue partie Che Sing heard) & the Frenchmen made roades & incursions inuable the into the bodders of Guten, alledging that they blot biliomis byon god and lufficient occasion, for that king Co. of Dutan ward had not done his homage buto the king of France, as he ought to have done, for the duchie of Aquitaine, and the countie of Ponticu. But the true occasion that moved them to attempt the warres at that present, was for that they were in hope to recolood bough Spenier the father was made earle of 20 uer all the lands which the king of England held within France, clerelie out of his hands, for so much as they biderstood the discord betwirt him and his barons, and how infortunatlie he had sped againg the Scots, by reason thereof they sugged the time to ferue most sittle now for their purpole.

In the octaves of the nativitie of faint John Bap Rich South tist, Kobert Bzuce entring into England by Car Rob. Bing leill, kept on his waie through Cumberland, Coupe imadeth land, Bendall, and fo into Lancaspire, till he came to England, Preston in Andernesse, which towns he burnt as he had done others in the countries through which he had palled. There were some of the Scots that for raied the countrie five miles on this five Presson & non fouthwards, and thus being fourescore long miles bottom within England, they returned homelwards, and entred againe into Scotland Without incounter, affer they had beene at this time within England the space of the weeks and thee dates. King Coward being thus befet with two mischieses both at one time, thought god first to provide remedie against the nee rer danger, which by the Scots was fill at hand, and therefore he meant to go against them himselfe, and to lend his brother Comund earle of Bent into Gui en, to defend that countrie from the Frenchmen. Herebpon now in the firteenth years of his reigns, Anno Reg. after that the Scots were returned home with a great botic and rich (polle, he got togither a wonder) full great armie of men, and entring into Scotland, Scotland palled far within the countrie, not finding any reli- with an am Chance at all (as the most part of our writers down Risouth græ)but at length, through famine and diseases of the flir and other maladies that fell amongst the Englishmen in the armie, he was constrained to come backe, and in his waie believed the callell of Poy ham, which fortresse he wan within ten daies after he had begun to allault it.

Robert Bruce immediatlic after the English are mie was retired home, ratied a power, and entring into England by Sulwaie fands, late at a place calthe space of five dates, sending in the meane time the most part of his armie abzoad to spotle and harrie the countrie on eucrie fide, and afferwards removing from thence, he palled towards Blackamore, having knowledge by diligent espials, that king Coward was in those parts, giving himselfe moze to passime in hunting there within the woos about Blackamore, than to the god ordering of his people which he had then about him. Where bon the Scotill king Bruce, entring into that wild and morth countrie, where he had not beene afore, conveied his enterpale to warilie, and with such diligent industrie, that on faint Lukes daie, comming boon the English armie at buwares, he put the same to flight, so that the king himselse was in great danger to have beine taken pilloner. Fox(as forme authors write) the Scots had almost taken him at dinner in the abbeie of Beigh land. Sir John Britaine earle of Richmond was taken at this battell, and the kings treasure was spop led and carried awaie, with the provision and orde nance that belonged to the hoff.

The ting escaping awaie, got to Porke, and the Scots having thus the oper hand, after they had pleasure there, they passed forth into Porties wold, de,

Arolena that countrie even almost buto Beverlie, which towns they ransomed, receiving a summe of monie for sparing it, least they should have burnt it.

as they did other . The earle of Carleill being com-land, Westmerland, and Lancathire, did so, and accos ding to that he had in commandement, bringing them belowe the countries onto Poske, found the all things being brought about him into great confusion: wherebyon he licenced his people to depart to their homes againe, and the Scots fo returned without battell home into their countries, entring into Scotland the morrow after All hallowes date, after they had remained in England at thistime, one thole moneth and foure dates . Some write, that in their returne, they spoiled Porthalerton, and diverse

E.ch.South

roskelwoll fpoiled by the Beuerlie ranfomed.

The carle of fithan armic manded by the king to raile the powers of Cumber=

Fabian,

3 confpiracie to fet patioc

other townes and places as they palled. In the fame yeare, there was a great conspiracie 30 practiced by certein persons that had taken part with the barons in the late warres, purpoling to fet at lie bertie in one felfenight, all those noble men and o: thers, that were by the king kept in prison for that quarrell. Certeine therefore of those conspirators came to the castell of Walingford, within the which the load Paurice Berkelie, and the load Hugh Audilieremained as pailoners. The conspirators found hist to enter the castell by a posterne gate towards the Thames live, howbeit not to fecretlie but that the 40 townslmen having knowledge thereof, affembled togither, and belieged them that were so entred the castell, till the earles of Lient and Winchester came with agreat power to reenforce the stege, so that in the end, they that had made this attempt fled into the chappell of the castell, in hope to be saued through fanduarie of the place, but they were (against the willes of the deane and præsts of the colledge there that fought to defend them) taken fouth by force, so the Bech chapleine, and an esquire called Roger Walton, were sent to Pomfret, and there put in priv son; the esquire was after sent to Yorke, and there drawne and hanged. This enterprise caused all other prisoners to be more areightlie loked buto. In this yeare was begun a wicked placife of treas fon bpon this occation. Where th. Edward having af faied fortune to froward towards him, in chance of warre against the Scots at sundie times, was there by taught to doubt the triall thereof any further, and 60 rather to læke for peace, he appointed Andrew Herk lie earle of Carleill, to læke some means, whereby a peace might be concluded betwirt him and king Rich Southw. Kobert. The earle by the kings commandement, go ing into Scotland, and comming onto king Robert, thome he found at Loghmaban, intreated with him of warre, and not of peace; for whether it were fo that he despatred of the state of king Colvards buss nelle, which prospered neither at home nor abroad; thefelie by reason of his owne wilfull negligence (as some write) or whether of his owne nature this earle delighted in nothing to much, as in deceipt, craft, and treason: he concluded upon points with the Scotish king, how, when, and where king Co ward hould be betrated, and to the end that covenan. ted faith on either fide might be the moze suerlie kept and observed, the lister of th. Robert was affianced buto the faid earle of Carlcill: a verie beautifull ladie and a comelie as was anie where to be wene oz

This practice being thus contriued, thoutlic affer the king got knowledge thereof, though by whome it was not certeinlie knowne : so hard a thing it is for spoiled the monasterie of Rinale, and taken their 10 man to conceale and keepe secret that thing with he goeth about, though he fludie neuer fo much fo to dw, Creason will namelie in matters of treason, which hath a thou cuer come to fand fæt to cræpe abroad, and which way foener it go, light by ons eth, it leaveth a thouland prints of the fotileps behind meane or it, by the which it may be discourred to the world. other. When therefore the earle came backe agains to Car. leill, he was arrested by commandement from the king, and fraightwaies being arreigned of the treafon, he was thereof condemned and put to erecution. 1 3 2 3 B. there in no plight to give battell to his enimies, 20 His head was fent buto London, and there for byon The earle of the bridge, or rather boon some turret of the tower. Carleillyut So hard a matter it is for traitors to escape the to death. hands of the executioner; under whose hatchet they fubmit their heads to be hewen from their thoulders, euen then when they have conceiued their traitozous attempts in hart, for God who hath placed princes in thrones of rotaltie, to this end hath bouchfafed them a superlative degrée of dignitie, that they might be obeied, neither will his tuffice permit impunitie to the diffoiall enterpites and complots of malefactors, common peace-diffurbers, hautie-harted Pemrods, ambitious Hamans, 02 anie lelvo malcontent : fo2

A cer Dei est oculus ad omnia videndum, Eius pænas non effugit mortalis, Viuere volens ergone faciat morte digna.

T But there be that write otherwise (as it may mell be)thus, that this earle of Carleill, perceining the milerie of his countrie, without consent of the king of England, made peace with the king of Scots, under this forme, as by Richard Southwell Ri. Southwell we find recorded. First, the earle promised faithfullie for him and his heires, that they thould with all their force and means politible, like to mainteine the lato king of Scots his hetres and fucceffors, in the praces able possession of the kingdome of Scotland, and that to their powers they thuld fight against all those that would not agree buto that covenant, as against them that thould feeme to be enimies buto the common-wealth of both the realmes of England and hat fir John de Goldington knight, fir Edmund of 50 Scotland. The king of Scots promifed faithfullie for his part, to defend the faid earle, his heires, and adher rents in the faid covenant or paction, and not onelie to keep peace with England, but also to build a monafferie within Scotland, affigning revenues there. to to the value of fine hundred marks, to celebrate divine service, and to pray continuallie for the soules of them that were dead, by occasion of the passed warres betwirt England and Scotland; and further. that he thould give to the king of England within ten yeares, fortie thouland pounds of filuer; and that the king of England thould have the king of Scots eldest sonne, to marrie him buto some ladie of his bloud, as he should thinks expedient. To the perform mance of all which covenants well and truelie to be observed, Thomas Kandulfe earle of Hurrey Sware on the behalfe of the king of Scots, and the earle of Carleill Sware for himselfe : and herewith certeine writings indented were drawne and ingroffed, to the which interchangeablie they let their hands and feales.

> After that the earle of Carleill was returned home, he called to Carleill all the chafe persons of the countrie, as well spirituall as tempozall, and there rather through feare, than other wife, confircis

Folydor.

The load

ned them to receive an oth, that they thould aid & al fix him to their powers, to fee all the couenants as bouclaid performed and kept. After that thefe things were knowne to the king and the realme, although some of the communaltie liked well inough of the matter, because they hoped thereby to remaine in peace, especiallie those of the north parts, the king pet and his councell (not without cause) were soze offended, for that he whom the king had so latelie ad uanced, thould confederate himfelfe with the Scots, 10 to the prefudice of the king and his crowne, concluding any concuants of peace without his confent, where opon reputing him for a ranke traitor, the king fent unto the lood Antonie Lucie, to apprehend the Cato earle by some meanes if he might, and for his paines he thoulo not faile to be well rewarded.

The load Lucie watching his time, then the earles men were gone some wither abroad, and but few lest about him, the morrow after the feast of faint Patthew the apostle, he entred the castell of Carleill, 20 as it were to talke with the earle of some businesse, as his manner was at other times to do. He had with him fir Hugh Lowther, fir Kichard Denton, and fir Hugh Poricebie knights, and foure elquiers, befor other privile armed, so that leaving some at es nerie gate and doze as he entred, he came into the hall, and there finding the earle inditing letters, ar refled him. Herewith when certeine of the earles fernants made a notic, and cried, Arealon, trealon, the poster of the inner gate would have that it bpon 30 them that were thus entred, but fir Kichard Denton Aue that poster with his owne hands, and there was not one moze flaine by them in the apprehention of the earle, for all other his fernants pelded thems felues and the house unto the said load Lucie, with out more reliffance

Howbett one of his fernants that faw these dow ings, got awaie, and with all speed ran to the peele of Hethead, and the wed to the earles brother Wichaell the faid Pichaell forthwith fled into Scotland, and with him fir William Blunt knight, a Scotiffman, and diverse other that were of the carles privile councell. The load Lucie Areightwaics fent a mellenger to the king buto Docke, advertifing him how he had taken the earle, and therefore required to understand further of the kings pleasure. The king forthwith fent the lood Geffrey Scrobe instice, with a number of armed men unto Carleill, the which came thither on faint Chaddes daie, and the morrow after, being 50 the third of Parch, he fat in indgement boon the faid earle, in the castell of Carleill, and there (as out of the kings mouth) he pronounced fentence against him in this wife; first, that he should be disgraded of his earledome, by the taking awaic from him the Award which the king had gird him with, and like wife of his knighthwo, by cutting off his spurs from his heles, and that after this, he Gould be drawen from the castell through the citie onto the place of execution there felons were accustomed to suffer, and there 60 at all. to be hanged, afterwards headed, and then his head

The earle of Carleng. indgement.

Michaell be Berkley.

> Tithen he had heard this indgement, he faid; you haus divided my bodie at your pleasure, and I com. mit my foule buto God; and being according to the indgement drawen to the place where he luffered, he never thranke at the matter, but boldie behaved himselfe, declaring at the verie houre of his death, that his intention in concluding the agreement with the Scots was god, and proceeding not of any cuill > to be fent unto London, there to be fet aloft upon one of the furrets of the tower, and his quarters to be diuided, one to be fet by at Carleill, an other at Dem

castell opon Tine, the third at Bristow, & the fourth meaning, but fending onelie to the wealth and quiet nes of the realme. Petther could fuch friers as were permitted to come to him before his arreignement to heare his confession, get any thing more of him. but that his meaning was god, and that which he had concluded with the king of Scots was not done by on any cuill purpofe, whereby any hart might infine, either to the king or to the realme. Thus have me thought god to thew the cause of this earles death, as by some writers it hath beene registred; although there be that write, that the overthrow at Beighland Fabian chanced through his fault, by millcading a great part Canton of the kings holf, and that therefore the king being offended with him, caused him to be put to death, al beit (as I thinke) no fuch matter was alleged against him at the time of his arreignement.

About this scalon was the foundation begun of $. Polydon Michaels colledge in Cambridge, by one fir Penrie Stanton knight, chancellour of the ercheker, About the featt of the Alcention, there came as committo, Rich South the feast of the Alcention, were came as community ners from the king of England onto Peticastell, ners nare Aimerie earle of Penbroke, and the lord chamber introp of laine Hugh Spenfer the yonger, and other foure peace. personages of god accompt. And from the king of Scots, there came the bilhop of faint Andrews, Dos mas Kandulfe earle of Murrey, and other foure of god credit to treat of peace, or at the leastwife of fome long truce, and through the god will and pleafure of God, the author of all peace and quietnesse, they concluded byon a truce, to indure for thirtene peares, and to about the featt of faint Barnabe the a Atricio postle, it was proclaimed in both realmes, but vet fo, claded that they might not traffike togither, bicause of the ercommunication where with the Scots were as yet intangled, although as some write, about the same time, the interoid wherein the realme of Scotland Awd bound, was by pope John released.

The French k, being latelie come to the crowne, Hed. Beck t certeine ambattage. fent certeine ambassadors buto king Edward, to Anoker Spelingu Werkelev that was chanced to the earle, therebyon 40 wit, the losd Beouille, and one Andreas de Floren from the tia a notarie, to give fummons buto him from the frenchis French king, to come and do homage for the lands which he held in France, as for the duchie of Aqui. The firm taine, and the countie of Pontien. And though the towns at load chamberleine Yugh Spenfer the forme, and the quitam loed chancellour Robert Baldocke Did what they could to procure these amballadors, not to declare the cause of their comming to the king, yet when they thould depart, they admonished the king to come and do his homage onto the French king, and spon this admonition the faid Andreas framed a publike in Arument, by vertue whereof, the French king made procede against the king of England, and feized into his hands diverse townes and castels in Aquitaine, alledging that he did it for the contumacie the wed by the king of England, in refuling to come to do his homage, being lawfullie fummoned, although the king was throughlie informed, that the summons was neither lawfull, not touched him anie thing

> About the same time, the lood Roger Postimer of The international Wigmoz, giving his keepers a drinke that brought Maiting them into a found and heavie Repe, escaped out of ofthere the tower of London there he was polloner. This escape of the loso Mostimer greatlie troubled the king, so that immediatlie byon the first news, he wrote to all the Chiriffes of the realme, that if he chanced to come within their romes, they should cause hue and crie to be raifed, to as he might be Kaico and arrefred, but he made such thist, that he got ouer into France, where he was received by a lood of Picar die, named monfier John de Fieules, who had faire lands in England, and therefore the king wrote to him, reprouing him of bothankfulnelle, confidering

Dis conftan: cieat his beath.

he had benequer readie to pleasure him, and to ad nance his profits and commodities, and yet not withflanding he did faccour the faid loed Postimer, and other revels that were fled out of his realme.

Thom. de la

 $T {\rm lom}_s W alf_s$

More.

In Lent this yeare, a parlement was holden at 4 parlament. Lonvon, in the which diverse things were intreated, among frother the the fell was, to determine for the fending of Come honozable ambastage to the French king, to excuse the king for not comming to him to do his homage, according to the pretended sums 10 The bishop of mons. The fame parlement, Adam bishop of hereford ar- hereford was arrefted, and examined bpon points of treason, for aloing, succouring, and mainteining the Postimers, and other of the revels. This bithop was reckoned to be wife, subtill, and learned, but o thermile, wilfall, prefumptuous, and given to mainteine factions. At the first, he difdeined to make anie answer at all, and finallic, when he was in manner forced thereto, he flatlie told the king, that he might not make any answere to such matters as he was 20 charged with, except by the licence and confent of his metropolitane the archbilhop of Canturburie, and other his piercs. Hierebpon, the faid archbillhop and other bithops made such sute, that he was commits ted to the keeping of the fair archbishop, with him to remaine, till the king had taken order for his further answer.

Within few dates after, when the king called him againe before his presence, to make answere to the matters laid against him, the archbishops of Can- 30 The prefrum turburie, Porke, Dublin, and ten other bithops came mons denica: with their croiles afoze them, and under a colour of not of pictars, the privilege and liberties of the durch, twke him as wate, before he had made anic answere, forbidding all men on paine of ercommunication, to late anie hands boon him . The king greatlie offended with this bold proceeding of the prelats, caused pet an inquest to be impanelled, to inquire of the bishop of Derefords treasons, and byon the finding of him giltie, he feized into his hands all the temporalties 40 that belonged to his bishoppike, and spoiled his manours and houses most violentlie, in revenge of his dificiall dealings.

Re. Tur

ie. 13

mg.

nc)

130 er ont

Moreover, in this parlement, the lands and pollel Lands belog- fions that belonged sometime to the Templers, and had bene delinered unto the knights Polpitalers. otherwise called knights of the Rodes by the king in the scanenth yeare of his reigne (according to the des cre of the councell of Atenna) were by authoritie of this parlement affured unto the faid knights, to en, 50 top to them and their fuccessors for ever. Also it was concluded, that the earle of Bent, and the archbishop of Dubline thould go over as amballadours into France, to excuse the king for his not comming in person to the French king, to do his homage for the lands he held in France. Dozeover, in the fame par-Lucrocto bu lement, the king granted, that all the dead bodies of notice homes. his entinies and rebels that had luffered and hanged fill on the gallowes, thould be taken downe, and the same bodies were hanging, and not elsewhere, by such as would take paine to burie them, as by his writs directed but o the Chiriffes of London, and of the counties of Wiodleser, Bent, Glocester, Porke, and Buckingham it appeared. And not onelic this li bertie was granted at that time for the taking down of those bodies, but (as some write) it was decreed by authoritie in the same parlement, that the bodies of all those that from thenceforth thould be hanged for folonies, Mould incontinentlie be buried, which ozdinance hath bene euer fince observed.

The earle of Kent, and the archbishop of Dubline going ouer into France, could not light bpon anis god coirclusion for the matter about the which they were fent, bicaule the fame time, or rather formewat before, the lood Rafe Baffet of Draiton , being the Chelora kings senethall in Suien, had overtheowne a certeine towne, newlie fortified by the Frenchmen on the frontiers, for that the inhabitants, trusting on the French kings fauour and maintenance, refused to obeie the lawes and ordinances of the countrie of Aquitaine, and femed to despite and set at naught the authoritie of the faid lord Ballet in that countrie, contrarie to all right, god order or reason. Peuerthe lette, the French king toke the matter to grænoulie, that except the load Ballet might be constrained to come unto Paris, and there make answer to his of fense, he would not hearken to anie other satisfacts on. And thereboon, then the ambalfadours were res Anno Reg. 18. turned, he fent his bucle the load Charles de Calois The carle of earle of Anion, with a mightie armic, against the Amon sent English subieds into Guien, where entring into into Guien. Agenois, he take and feized all that countrie into the French kings hands. The earle of thent being now The earle of gotten into those parts, with a great number of o ther capteins and men of warre sent thither by the king of England, relifted the enimies berie manful lie, in so much that boon their approch to the Rioll, a Arong towns in those parts, the earle of Bent as then being within it, did iffue forth, and giving them battell, fluc(as some write) fouretene hundred of their men, so that they were glad to lodge at the first somewhat further off the towne.

Whilest this siege remained before the towns of Fabian. The king of the Kioll, the king of England wrote his letters to England the duke of Britaine, as one of the peeres of France, writeth with declaring the infurious dealing of the Frenchking, dake of Abeta tho had sent his bucle the earle of Anion with an are Record. Tur, mie against his people in Agenois, where he had ta ken manie townes, destroied his people, and now had belieged his nemue Comurd earle of Bent, within the towne of the Rioli, inforting his whole puissance wongfullie to beteaue him of all the duthie of Buien, and against all reason, and the prerogative of the pæres of France, to an enill pretident oz example in time to come of the perpetuali feruis tude of the faid peres. And although faith the king of England, that the French alledge that we have been 22 lawfullie summoned to come and do homage, and have refused to to do, that is not for for we were neuer in due oeder required as was connenient, nei ther could we ew homage, by reason of the great iniuries and hard dealings practiced against bs, from >> the feat of Caffer lat, till the date of those his prefent letters (which was the firt of Daober, in this >2 eighteenth yeare of his reigne, and yet, faith he, there was neuer anie lawfull procede had against be be, 22 fore our pieres, in the great chamber at Paris, as ,, haobene requilite.

Herebpon he requested the duke of Britaine, that for the prefernation and maintenance of the honoras ble effate of the peres of France, 4 for iuffice fake he would helpe to ato him, either by waie of request, buried in the churchyards nert to the places where 60 or other convenient meanes, so as the laid Arcic bealings and inforious wrongs may ceaffe, and the estate of the pæreship may be mainteined as was requilite. He wrote likewife to the lord John the infant, the lood of Bilkie, and to the ladie Parie Chelord of of Bilkie governede of the king of Castile and Les Bilkie. on, and to James king of Aragon, requelling them to aid him with men of warre, as well horffemen as formen, against his adversarie the French king, that most unfusible went about to deprive him of his inheritance. But howfoever the matter went, no ato came to the carle of Bent from any part, till at length, the Frenchmen so reinsocced the siege, that the towne was delivered to the earle of Amou. and a truce taken byon certains conditions, that further fallie might be had, for the conclusion of foine peace.

Zinbaffatorg fent into france,

Polyder.

336 Tho. Walf Atruce také.

The lord De wuine fent into France

Ehe pope

fenoeth ain= halladous to the kings of France.

England and

Ehen were fent ouer other ambastadoes, as the loid John de Sullica Frenchman boine, and one maifter John de Spordich, but the lord Sullie had lo frange interteinment for some displeasure wich the French king conceived against him, that if the French guene had not the beter intreated for him, he had loft his head; and as for the other, he had also returned home without bringing any thing to patte, 1 of that for the with he was lent. After this, the pope sent the archbishop of Aienna, and the bishop of D range, to the princes of either realme, to erhort them to some agreement, but they could do no god, and so taking monie of the cleargie for their expenses, they returned. After this, about the twentith daie after Chistematte, there was a parlement called at London, in the which the king required to have the advice of the loos, how he might worke for fauing of the duchie of Quien, fore moleffed by the French. Herop- 2

Other ambais on it was concluded, that the bithops of Winchester and Norwith, and John de Britaine earle of Rith, fabois fent o ouer into mond, hould go over as amballadors to the French France. king, tho comming into France, after manie argumentations, allegations, and excuses, made on both parts, at length received a certeine forme of pacifica, tion at the French kings hands, with the which the bishop of Winchester was sent backe to England, the billyop of Norwich, and the earle of Kichmond res maining there, till it might be knowen how the king 30 mentable cafe, that such division should be between of England would like thereof.

The quenc is fent ouer into France to talke with hir brother the French

3 peace and concord a= grad bpon.

bing.

Anno Reg. 19.

Kinallie it was thought god, that the quæne thuld go over to hir brother the French king, to confirme that treatic of peace upon some reasonable condition ons, She willinglie toke opon hir the charge, and fo with the lood John Crumwell, tother foure knights. without any other great traine, taking fea, the landed in France, where of the king hir brother the was tolfullie received, and finallie the being the mediatrir, it give to his elocit fonne the dudie of Aquitaine, and the countie of Ponticu, and that the French king receiving homage of him for the same, he should refore into his hands the fato countie, and the lands in Buien, for the which they were at variance, and for those countries which had beene forraied and spotled. the earle of Anion Hould fullie lee him latistied, as right did require.

Upon the covenants the French king wrote his of fafe conduct, as well for the forme as for the king himselfe, if it should please him to come over himfelfe in person. Upon which choise great beliberation was had, as well at Langdon, as at Doner, biverfe thinking it best that the king should go over him felfe: but the earle of Winchester and his sonne the loed chamberleine, that neither durft go over them. felues with the king, not abide at home in his abfence, gave contrarie counfell, and at length prevate led fo, that it was fullie determined that the kings el 60 dest some Coward should go over, which turned to their destruction, as it appeared afterward.

Herebpon the king made a charter of grant bnto his sonne, of the duchie of Gusen, and countie of Ponticu, to have and hold to him this heires kings of England, with condition, that if he chanced to depart this life whilest his father linco, those lands should returne to his father againe, so as the French king might not marrie the kings sonne at his pleat fure, not amoint buto him any gardians of gouers The prince of nours. This ordinance was made at Douer by the wales is fent kings charter, with consent of the prelats and other noble men of the realme there present, the morrow after the Patinitie of our ladic, and on the thursdais following, the kings sonne toke the sea, and with him Walter bilhop of Creeffer and others in competent number, and about the featt of faint Patthew the avoile, he did homage to his bucke the French king at Bois de Vincennes, binder certeine protestations made, as well on the one part as the other.

The lummer this yeare proucd erceding hot and I due line drie, so that springs and rivers failed to yell their mar. accustomed course of waters, by reason wherof great numbers of cattell and beatls, both wild and tame Cattelline vied, through lacke of convenient liquor to allwage their behement thirst. In the beginning of the next fpzing, king Coward fent into France bnto his Theking fixing, king Commanding them, now that they wife and sonne, commanding them, now that they will easily had made an end of their bulinelle, to returne home toretung with all convenient speed. The queene receiving the home, mellage from hir hulvand, whether it was to that the was fraied by hir brother, buto whome belike the had complained after what manner the was vied at hir hulbands hands, being had in no regard with him: or for that the had no mind to returne home, bicaufe the mas loth to fee all things ordered out of frame by the counsell of the Spensers, whereof to heare the was ivearie: 02 whether (as the manner of Ivomen is) the was long about to prepare hir felfe forward, the flacked all the fummer, and fent letters ever to excuse hir tarriance. But yet bicause the would not run in The wi any suspicion with hir husband, the sent diverse of hir mans different price of the ma folkes before hir into England by lost fournics. A las mulation, a king and his queene, being lawfullie married, and having issue of their bodies, which ought to have made that their copulation more comfortable: but (alas) what will not a woman be drawne and allured buto, if by eaill counfell the be once affaulted? And that will the leave bnowne, though never to inconvenient to those that should be most dere buto hir, so hir owne fancie and will be satisfied. And how hardlie is the renoked from proceeding in an enill was finallic accorded, that the B. of England Chould 40 action, if the have once taken a take of the fame : As verie truly is reported by the contedic-writer, lateng,

Male quod mulier incopit nisiefficere id perpetrat, Idilli morbo, idilli senio est; ea illi misera miseria est: Si bene facere incapit, eius eam cità odium percipit, Nimifg, pauca sunt defessa, male qua facere occuperint; Tru, Nimila pauca efficient, si quid occaperint benefacere; Mulieri nimio malefacere melius est onus quam bene.

But to the purpole. Bing Coward not a little of fended with king Charles, by whole meanes he knew letters patents into England, and other letters also 50 that the woman thus lingured abroad, he procured pope John to write his letters but othe French king, admonithing him to lend home his fifter and hir Conne but hir hulband. But then this nothing auais Apales led, a proclamation was made in the moneth of De tion. cember, the ninetænth years of this kings reigne, Fabian that if the quiene and hir some entred not the land by the ocacies of the Epithanic next inliving in peaceable wife, they thould be taken for enimics to the realme and crowne of England. There authors Polydon varie, for some write, that beon knowledge had of this proclamation, the queene determined to returne into England forthwith, that the might be reconciled

Others write, and that more fruelie, how the being highlie displeased, both with the Spensers and the king hir hulband, that luffered himfelfe to be milled by their counsels, did appoint indeed to returne into England, not to be reconciled, but to fir the people to some rebellion, wherby the might revenge hir ma nifold infuries. Which (as the profe of the thing thew ed) fæmeth to be most true, for the being a wife woman, considering that sith the Spensers haverely bed, put out, and remouce all god men, from and befides the kings councell, and placed in their romes into France.

luck of their clients, lervants and freends as pleased them, the might well thinke that there was small hope to be had in hir husband, who heard no man but the faid Spenfers, which the know hated hir deadlie. Wherebyon, after that the tearme prefired in the preclamation was expired, the king caused to be feiico into his hands, all fuch lands, as belonged either to his some, or to his wife.

Sir Robert malktare.

About the same time, one fir Kobert Walkfare knight, a right harote man of his hands, but craftie 10 and fubtill (who being taken in the warres which the logos railed against the king, had beene committed to prison in the castell of Corfe) found means now to hill the constable of that castell most cruellie, and escaping awaie, got over to the quene into France, and so the number of them that ran out of the realme buto hir dailie increased. This fir Robert Walk fare was agreat procurer of the discord betwirt the king and the loads, and a thefe leader, or rather fedu Hereford : and whilest other gave themselves to swhe a reformation in the decated state of the commonivealth, he fet his mind opon murders and rob. beries. Diverse other about the same time fled out of the realme buto the quæne, and buto hir sonne the The billiop of earle of Thetter. But in the meane time, Walter Stapleton bifhop of Erceffer, which hitherto had remained with the quæne in France, fale now from hir, and got over into England, opening to the king all the counsell and whole mind of the quane: which 30 thing turned first of all but ohis owne destruction, as Mall after appeare.

Sir Dliner de Ingham Balcoine.

dercefter co = meth from the quæne.

meng handg.

Dhips of Pormandia taken.

About the same time, one fir Dliver de Ingham, ayong, luftie, and valiant knight, was by the kings sonne the duke of Aquitaine (not without his fathers confent) established lood warden of the marches of Guien, the which fir Oliver gathering an armie of hired foldiers, Spaniards, Aragons, and Balcoins, inuaded the countrie of Agenois (which the French recovering it from the French, cleerelie reduced it to the English dominion . Pozeover, fir John Dtw rum, fir Dicholas Miriell, and fir John Felton, admerals by the kings appointment, with the fleets of the east, south, and well parts, went to the lea, to appea bend such Frenchmen as they might meet withall. They according to their commission bestirred them, felues to that within few daies they twke fir score faile of Pozmans, and brought them into England, two realmes.

The king of England food not onelie in doubt of the Frenchmen, but more of his owne people that remained in France, least they thorough helpe of the French Chould invade the land, and therefore he commanded the havens and posts to be fuerlie watched, less some suoden inuation might happilie be attemp. ted, for it was well understoo, that the quæne meant not to returne, till the might being with hir the loca wife could obteine anie fauour at the kings hands, folong as the Spenfers bare rule. The pope lamenting this matter, fent two bishops into England, to reconcile the king and quiene, and also to a gra the two kings. These bishops were renerentlie received, but more than reverence here they obteined not, and so departed as they came.

King Coward binderstanding all the quienes billi, at length fought the French kings fauour, and did so much by letters and promise of bribes with him and his councell, that quæne Jabell was vestitute in manner of all helpe there, so that the was glad to withoraw into Heinault, by the comfort of John the loo Beaumont, the earle of Heinault his brother, tho being then in the court of France, and lamens ting quæne Habels cafe, imagined with himfelfe of forme marriage that might be had betwirt the young prince of Wales, and some of the daughters of his brother the earle of Deinault, and therefron required hir to go into Deinault, and he would be glad to of England attend hir. She gladlie confenting hereto, went this with hir fon ther with him, where the was most totfullie received goeth into with hir fonne, and all other of hir traine.

The Spenfers (some write) procured hir banish: ment out of France, and that the was admised by the earle of Arthois chefelie to repaire into Bei nault. Ald I find that the Spenfers delivered five barrels of filner, the fumme amounting unto fine thouland marks, buto one Arnold of Spaine a bioker, appointing him to conucie it ouer into France. to bestowe it boon such freends as they had there of the French kings counsell, by whose means the king of France did banish his litter out of his relme. But cer of that noble man Humfrie de Bohune carle of 20 this monie was met with boon the fea by certeine Zelanders, and taken, togither with the faid Arnold, and presented to the earle of Heinault, under whose dominion the Zelanders in those dates remained, of with god hap the earle and quene Habell greats lie refoifed.

In the time that the quiene and hir sonne late in Fabian. the court of the earle of Peinault, a marriage was concluded. concluded betwirt the prince of Wales, and the ladie Philip, daughter to the faid earle, vpon certeine conditions, whereof one was, that the faid erle thould at his proper colls fet ouer into England the faid prince of Wales, with a crue of foure hundred men of armes. But whether there was any such marrage as then concluded, and that in confideration thereof, the earle of Peinault aided quiene Jlabell and hir fonne it may be doubted bicaufe other witers make no such report. Peucrthelesse, certeine it is, that the earls brother fir John de Heinault lord Beaumont, was appointed with certeine bands of men of arms, Agenois reco king held pet in his hands contrarie to covenant) and 40 to the number of foure hundred or five hundred, to palle over with the faid quiene and hir sonne into England, and so therebyon began to make his puruciance for that fournie, which thing when it came to the knowledge of king Coward and the Spenfers, they caused musters to be taken through the realme, and ordeined beacons to be let by, kept and watched, as well in the vallies by the sea side, as within the Caxton. countries, bpon hilles and high grounds, that the Providion fame opon occasion of the enimies arrivall, might made in Eng therespon the displeature fore increased betwirt the 50 be let on fire, to warne the countries adjoining to al the quein. femble and relift them.

But queene Isabell and hir sonne, with such others as were with hir in Peinault, Caied not their tours nie for doubt of all their adversaries provision, but immediatlie after that they had once made their puruciances, and were readie to depart, they toke the fca , namelie the quene, hir fonne, Comund of Modsoke earle of Kent, sir John de Heinaulta forefaid, and the lord Roger Mortimer of Migmore. Mortimer, and the other banished men, who in no 60 a man of god experience in the warres, and diverte others, having with them a small coinpanie of Eng. Tho. Walfin. lithmen , with a crue of Peinewiers and Almains, Ehe quene with bur fon to the number of 2757 armed men , the which fair land in Bule ling forth towards England, landed at length in folke. Suffolke, at an hauen called Dawell belides Barwich the 25 daie of September. Immediatlie affer that the queene and hir sonne were come to land, it was wonder to fee how fall the people relocted buto them; and first of all, the earle Parshall, in whose Tho. Walk, I mas the first came on those, repaired onto hir, so did the earle of Leicester, and diverse barons & knights of those parts, with all the prelats in manner of the land, as the bishops of Lincolne, Hereford, Dubline, and Clie, the which being toined with the querie,

The quene Beinault. Polydor.

Caxton.

Anno, Reg. 20.

olymast.

Chercabi= nelle of the piclats to affift the quenc.

The answer of the Lone

the hing.

made a great armie. The archbishop of Canturburie and others aided hir with monte.

After that the had refreshed hir people a little fpace at faint Comunofburie, the marched forth to feche the aduct fartes of hir and of the realine, as the binted it; but they still kaping themselves nære to the kings person, that bnock the shadow of the wings of his protection they might remaine in more fafegard, burff not depart from his prefence. At the time of the quares landing he was at London, and being fore amazed with the newes, he required aid of the Londoners. They answered, that they would bo all the honour they might but o the king, the quene, and to their forme the lawfull heire, of the land ; but as for firangers atraitors to the realme, they would hape them out of their gates, and refift them with all their forces: but to go forth of the citie further than that they might returne before sunne-letting, they refuled, pectending certeine liberties in that behalfe to them granted in times pall, as they alledged. The king not greatlie liking of this answer, fortis

Che king for= laketh Lon: don, and goeth towards the marches of wales.

A proclama= tion fet foath by the king.

The bishop of Engefter leit in charge with the citie of London.

Caxton.

fico the tower, and leaving within it his yonger for John of Eltham, and the wife of the lood chambers leine Bugh Spenfer the yonger that was his nece, he departed towards the marches of Wales, there to raife an armie againft the quæne. Before his bepar ture from London, he fet fouth a proclamation, that enerie man under paine of forfeiting of life & gods, thould refift them that were thus landed, affaile, and kill them, the queene, his forme Coward, and his bro ther the earle of Bent onelie excepted; and who loeuer could bring the head or dead corps of the lord Mortimer of Wigmore, Gould have for his labour a thow The quenes fand marks. The quenes proclamations on the other part willed all men to hope for peace, the Spenfers publike enimies of the realme, and the load chancelloa Robert Baldocke, with their afficiants onlie ercepted, through whose meanes the present trouble was happened to the realme. And it was forbioden, that no man thould take ought from any person, and tho so encreonly being to the quiene the head of Bugh Spenfer the yonger, thould have two thousand pounds of the quænes gift. The hing at his departure from London, left mal-ffer Walter Stapleton the bishop of Orcester be hind him, to have the rule of the citie of London. Then thostlie after, the quiene with hir fon, making towards London, wrote a letter to the maior, and the citizens, requiring to have affiffance for the putting downe of the Spenfers, not onelie knowne enimics of theirs, but also common enimies to all the realme of England. To this letter no answer at the first was made, wherefore an other was fent, dated at Baloocke the firt daie of Daober, buder the names of Habell by the grace of God queene of England, ladie of Ireland, and countesse of Pontieu, and of Edward eldest some to the king of England, duke of Guien, earle of Chefter, of Pontien and of Muttrell. This letter being directed to the major and communaltie of London, conteining in effect, that the cause of their landing and entring into the realme at that 60 time, was onclic for the honor of the king and wealth of the realme, meaning hurt to no maner of person, but to the Spenfers, was fallened bpon the croffe in Cheape, then called the new croffe in Cheape, on the night befoge the ninth daie of Daober. Dinerfe co. pies of the same letter were set up, and fattened byon windowes and dwies in other places of the citie, and one of the fame copies was tacked byon the lood mar ios gates.

After which letter thus published in the citie, a P.bian. Thom.Walfi, great number of artificers, and other that loued not to fit in rest byon such occasion of discord offered, now that things were in bootle in other parts of the realme, affembled in great numbers, 4 with weapon in hand came to the load maior of the citie, whom they knew to fauor the kings part, therefore they forced Chelen him through feare of some inturious violence, tore mainti ceive an oth to stand to their ordinance, which was to totales. put to death all those that were adversaries to the quene, or had by any meanes procured the hinder rance of the cities liberties, buder pretert of which oth they ran and twke one of the citizens, called John John go Warshall, who bicause he was verie familiar with hall take the earle of Gloceffer, and therefore suspected to have beheaven accused the citizens, they Aroke off his head, and spot led all his gods:

On the fame day, being the fourteenth of Daober. continuing their rage, they can to the house of the bithop of Erceffer, Walter de Stapleton, and fetting fire on the gates, they entred and spoiled him of all his plate, iewels, monie and gods. And as it chanced in an infortunate houre for him, the bilhop being at the fame time returning from the fictor, would not seeme to Chinke, although he was admonished of thefe outragious attempts of the people; but litting on horffebacke, came to the north doze of S. Paule, there forthinith the furious people laid violent hancs on him, threw him downe, and drew him most out ragiouslie into Cheapeside, where they proclamed him an open traitor, a feducer of the king, and a de-Aroier of their liberties. The bithop had vpon him a certeine cote of defense, which was called an aketon, The bing the same therefore being plucked beside his backe as of Ereka all other his garments, they shore his head from his Choulders, and to the like death they put two of his feruants, the one an efquire, and the other a peoman, The bishops head was set on a pole for a spectacle, that the remembrance of his death, and the cause thereof might continue. Dis bodie was burico in an old churchyard of the pied friers, without a ny manner of crequies of funerall fertice done for

The chiefest cause of the enimitie which the Londo. ners bare towards this bilhou, role hereof. He being lood treasuros, procured that the justices itinerants did fit in the citie of London, and where mante of the citizens were found offendors, and jufflie punished, as well by losing their freedoms, as by paieng their fines, and luffering corporall punishments, they con crined a great displeature towards him. Mozeouer, it was faid, that he had raifed a great multitude of armed men against the quene, and hir fon the duke of Aquitaine, and therefore did the Londoners (as they affirmed) læke to preuent his procædings. The morrow after that they had thus beheaded the bithop of Erceller, they toke by chance fir John Tac fion constable of the tower, and from him they toke the keies of the same tower, and so entering the tower, they fet all the prisoners at libertie, and in like case all those that were imprisoned in maner through the land were permitted to go at large, and all the banished men and outlaives were likewise restored

The Londoners having the tower thus at their commandement, removed all the officers therein placed by the king, and put other in their romes, in the name of the losd John de Eltham the kings fon, thom they named warden of the citie and land. And pet they ceased not to commit manie robberies ; 00 ther outragious 4 most insolent parts. In the means time, the king being come to Bullow, left that citie in the keeping of the earle of Minchester. And with the earles of Clocester and Arundell, and the love This chancellog fir Robert Baldocke, he failed ouer into failed Wales, there to raife a power of Welthmen in Des Wells. fense of himselfe against the quiene and hir adher rents, which he had good hope to find amonget the Melly

An. Reg. 20,21.

! dor. mafauour tuvaros the mithmen.

The queine to Orenford.

Tho. de la

Che bilhop of Excreto20 maketh an oration to the quænes

More.

Mellimen, bicaufe be had euer bfed them gentlie, and thewed no rigoz towards them for their riotous milgouernance. Againe, he diew the rather into that part,that if there were no remedie, he might easilie escape ouer into Treland , and get into some mouns teine-countrie, marith-ground, o: other freid, where his enimies thoulo not come at him.

But now to speake of the queene, yee most underfland, that after the had received knowledge from the Londoners, that they were wholie at hir denotic 10 on, the being glad thereof, turned hir tournie toward Wales to follow the king, and comming to Drenford, stated there a while, and still came people to hir king commeth from all fives . Here Adam de Colleton the bifthop of Pereford, which latelie before had beene fore fined by the king, for that he was accused to firre the peo. ple to revellion, and to aid the barons (as ve haue heard)made a pithie oration to the armie, beclaring that the quæne and hir sonne were returned onelie into England, to the intent to perfecute the Spen, 20 fers, & reforme the ffate of the realme. And fith then that they now were come in maner to an end of the tyzannie of most naughtie men , and of the danger that might growe vailie thereof, he erhorted them with patient minos to beare the small travell that remained in pursuit of the enimies; and as forces ward, they might loke for all things by the victorie, and the queenes liberalitie, whose love was such to wards the common-wealth, as the onelie amlied all hir endeuours and dwings to the advancement 30 thereof.

The quent Glocefter.

These words spoken, the quæne accompanied with a great power, departed from Drenford, and went fraight unto Gloceffer, and fent before hir bus to Bussow the earle of Kent, the kings brother, sir John of Hennegew, with other, to take the earle of Windester . They did their endeudur with such diligence, that the townelmen, compounding to be las ned harmleffe in bodie and good, delinered the folune and castell onto the quiene, & to hir some the prince. 40 In the meane time, there came to the quiene at Blos ceffer, the lord Percie, the lord Wake, and diverse o. ther, as well from the north parts, as footh of the marches of Wales, so that hir armie hugelie increased.

The load Berkley.

From Gloceffer the patted by Berkley, and resozed the castell of Berkley (which the earle of Gloceller, Hugh Spenfer the yonger had held) unto the lord Thomas Werkley, heire to the lord Paurice Berkley latelie before deceassed in prison, within the 50 callell of Wallingford, togither with all the apurte. nances to the honox of Berkley belonging. From thence the went to Bullow, and the morrow after hir thither comming, being the even of the apostles Simon and Jude, through the instant calling byon of the people, the earle of Winchester was drawne forth in his cote armor unto the common gallows, and there hanged. His head was after cut off, and lent to Winchester, whereof he was earle.

The carte of winchester

The quiene

commeth to Buftom.

The king in this meane time kept not in one place, 60 but thicking hither and thither , remained in great dir Thomas care . Thereopon fir Ahomas Blunt, an ancient knight, and losd steward of the kings house, take his fernants, with bittels, horffes, and armour in great plentie, and came to the queene, of whome, and likewise of hir sonne be was totfullie receiucd, and dincres of them which he brought with him were reteined, and the other hapilotters of protection, and were font awaie in lowing manner . The king with the earle of Gioceffer, and the loss chancellos, taking the fea, meant to have gone either into the Ile of Lundaie, or else into Ireland, but being toffed with contrarie winds for the space of a weeke togither, at length he landed in Slamozganihire, and got him to the abbeie and callell of Peith, there fecret lie remaining boon trust of the Wielshmens promis fes. Ibugoline Spenfer, the sonne of the earle of Cloceffer , defended the castell of Bertilie , against the power of the guane and of hir sonne till caster following, and then compounding for the fafette of his owne life, and all theirs within that caffell, and likewise for the intolong of their gods, he yalded it to the hands of the men of warre that held flege before it in the queenes name, and of hir fonne.

But now touching the king, whilest he was thus abzoad, and no man will where he was become, proclamations were made in the quænes armie dailie, in the which he was summoned to returne, and to take the rule of the relme into his hands, if he would te conformable to the minos of his true liege men; but when he appeared not, the loads of the land affent bled in councell at Pereford, whither the quane was a councell at come from Bullow, and there was the lord Coward Decetord, prince of Wales and duke of Aquitaine made war- The prince den of England, by common decree, buto whome all of water men, as to the load warden of the realine, made feal, made load tie, in receiving an oth of allegiance to be faithfull warren of the and locall to him. After this thou made the historical realms. and locall to him . After this, they made the biffiop of and lotall to him. After this, they made the village of Anew Collars and the bilhop of Attitches collars and fer lood treasuros.

treafuroz.

The quiene remained about a moneths space at Hereford, and in the meane while fent the lord Henrie erle of Leicelfer, and the lood William la Zouch, and one Rice ap Howell, that was latelic delivered out of the tower where he was pulloner, into Wales, to le if they might find means to appehend the king by helpe of their acquaintance in those parts, all this of them having lands thereabouts, where it was knowne the king for the more part kept. They vied fuch viligence in that charge, that finallie with large aiffs bestowed on the Wieldhmen, they came to bus derstand where the king was, and so on the day of faint Comuno the archbilhop, being the firteenth of Ponember, they twice him in the monasterie of Reich,nere to the callell of Laturlan, tegither with Bugh Spenfer the sonne called earle of Gloceller, the losd chancellour Robert de Baldocke, and Sie mon de Reading the kings marthall, not caring for other the kings fernants, whome they fuffered to cleave.

The king was delivered to the earle of Leiceffer, The king is the connected him by Ponmouth and Leadburie, Encuings to Killingworth caffle, where he remained the whole Killingworth. ininter. The earle of Glocester, the load chancellog, and Simon de Kending, were brought to Herrford, and there presented to the quæne, where on the foure e twentith of Pouember, the fair earle was drawne Buch Spens and hanged on a paire of gallowes of fiftie fot in ferthe ponger beigth. Then was his head Arthen off, his bowels executed. taken out of his bodie and burnt, and his bodie dini ded in quarters . His head was fent to London and let bron the bridge with other, & his quarters were fent to foure feuerall parts of the realine, and there pight upon poles, to be fiene of the people. He was drawne in his owne cote armour, about the which there were letters embrodered plaine to be read, conteining a parcell of the 5 2 pfalme, as followeth.

Vid gloriaris in malitia potens? Iniquitatem tota die, iniustitiam cogitauit lingua tua, sicut nouacula acuta fecisti dolum,

Dilexisti malitiam super bonitatem, iniustitiam mag is quàm loqui iustitiam,

4 Dilexisti omnia verba demersionis linguado-

Propterea Deus destruat te in finem, euellat te & emigrare te faciat de tabernaculo tuo, & radicem

Diemardto the hing, res thequane.

dicem tuam de terra vinentium,

Videbunt insti & timebunt, & super eum ridebunt, & dicent,

Ecce homo qui non posuit Deum adiutorem suum, sed sperauit in multitudine diuitiarum suarum, o præualuit in vanitate sua.

m V Hy boaftest thou that thou canst do mischiese?

Thy toong imagineth wickednesse, & with lies thou cuttest like a sharpe rasor,

Thou hast loued vngratiousnesse more than goodnesse, and to talke of lies more than righteousnesse,

4 Thou hast loued to speake all words that may doo hurt ô thou false toong,

Therefore shall God destroie thee for euer, he shall take thee, and plucke thee out of thy dwelling, and roote thee out of the land of 20 the lining,

The righteous also shall see this, and seare, and shall laugh him to scorne,

Lo this is the man that tooke not God for his strength, but trusted vnto the multitude of his riches, & strengthned himselfe in his wickednesse.

Dimon de Reading ere= cuted.

Caxton

On the fame date was Simon de Reading drawne and hanged on the fame gallowes, but ten fot lower 30 than the other. This Reading being marchall of the kings house, had bled the quæne very vncourteoulie, giving hir manie reprodull words, which now were remembred, and therefore may ferue for an example, how dangerous a thing it is to speake enill of the higher powers. The common fame went, that after this Hugh Spenfer the sonne was taken, he would receive no luftenance, therefore he was the somer put to death, or elfe had he bæne conucied to London, there to have suffered . John earle of Arundell was 4 taken on S. Hughs day, in the parts about Shewel burie, and the fame day fewennight before the erecution of the earle of Glocelter, Hugh Spenfer the punger, as well the faid earle, tho had beine cuer a great frænd to both the Spenfers, as also John Das niell, and Thomas de Milcheldeure were put to death at Pereford, by procurement of the lord Mortimer of Wigmore, that hated them extreamelie, by reason whereof they were not like to speed much better, for the quane in all these matters did nothing.

Execution. The fauour in Sphich the load Moati=

the quæne.

Th. Walfing.

The earle of Arundeilta: ken.

> The chancellour Robert de Baldocke being committed to the custodie of Adam de Tocketon bishop of Pereford, remained at Pereford in fafe keiping till Candlemasse next, and then the bishop being at London, amointed him to be brought bp, where not without the vilhops consent (as was thought) he was taken out of his house by violence, and laid in Dew gate, there thostlic after through inward forow and extresme grafe of mind he ended his life. Thus the 60 quene and hir companic having compatted their bu fineffe in to happic maner as they could with, the with bir fonne and a great companie of losos and gentlemen repaired buto Telallingford, where they kept Conflimate togither with great toy and triumph, the hing in the meane while remaining (as ye have > heard at Killing worth, in a kind of honorable efface, although he was prisoner. After Christmasse, the outine with hir fon and fuch loods as were then with them, removed to London, where at their comming thither, which was before the feats of the Epiphanie, they were received with great toy, triumph, and large giffs, and to brought to Wiefiminifer. where the more # parlement. row after the fame feath, the parlement which before hand had beene summoned began, in which it was concluded and fullie agreed by all the fates (for none burft (peake to the contrarie) that for diverte articles which were put op against the king, he was not wor thie longer to reigne, and therefore should be depofed, and withall they willed to have his sonne Co ward duke of Aquitaine to reigne in his place. This ward duke of Aquitaine to beigne in 1915 place. The food and opposed on the food opposed opposed on the food opposed opposed on the food opposed oppos at Meliminster by one of the loads, on the feat day of patter of faint Pilarie being tuesdaie, to the which all the people consented. The archbishop of Canturburie ta Theant hing his theame, vox populi, vox Dei, made a fermon, hope of erhorting the people to praie to Gor . bestom of his reached grace byon the new king. And so when the irmion was ended, encrie man departed to his lodging. But the duke of Aquitaine, when he perceived that his mother toke the matter heavilie in appearance, for that hir hulband thould be thus deprined of the crowne, he protested that he would never take it on him, without his fathers confent, and fo there byon it was concluded, that certeine folemne mellengers thoulogo to Billingworth to move the king to make relignation of his crowne and title of the kingdome onto his sonne.

Robert Bak docke ended hia life.

There were fent on this mellage (as some write) thee or (as other have) two bishops, two earles, two Thomas abbats, two 02 (as Tho. de la More and Walfingham More haue) foure barons, and for enerie countie, citie, and Thom.Wil burrough, and likewife for the cinque ports, certeine knights and burgettes. The bithops that were fent were thefe (as T. de la More noteth) John de Stratford bilhop of Wincheller, Adam de Torleton bishop of Hereford, and Henrie bishop of Lincolne. The two earles (as Southwell hath) were Laucaster and Marwike: the two barons, Role and Court, nev : befide thefe (as he faith) there were two abbats, two priors, two inflices, two friers of the order of preachers, two of the Carmelits, two knights for the commons on the north five of Arent, and two for the o other on the fouth lide of the fame river: two citizens for London, two burgeffes for the cinque ports, foas in all there went of this mellage (as Southwell faith) thice end twentie or rather foure and twentie per-four of one degree and other. Pone of the frier minors went, bicaule they would not be the bringers of so heavie tidings, sith he had euer borne them great god will. The bishops of Winchester and Lincolne went before, and comming to Billing worth, affociated with them the earle merwas with that he willed the fame was done, and without him 50 of Leiceffer, of some called the earle of Lancaster, that had the king in keeping. And having fecret conference with the king, they lought to frame his mino, so as he might be contented to resigne the crowne to his sonne, bearing him in hand, that if he refuted so to do, the people in respect of the euill will which they had conceived against him, would not faile but proced to the election of some other. that should happilie not touch him in linage. And fith this was the onlie meane to bing the land in quiet, they willed him to confider how much he was bound in confidence to take that wate that should be so beneficiall to the thole realme.

The king being fore troubled to heare fuch vilpled fant newes, was brought into a maruelous agonic: but in the end for the quiet of the realne mid boubt of further vanger to himselfe, he betermined to sol low their abule, and withen the other committee ners were come, and that the bithop of Develop had declared the cause where then they were sent, the king in preferice of them all proceeding aming his but ward countenance discolieces how much it inward lie grietted film; pet affer ho was come to himfelfe, he answered that he isn't with the was fallers into Ricks this milerie through his owner thenles, and therefore i olydor.

1 3 2 7

The bing 3 anfwii.

Merimuth,

Thom. de la

he was contented patientlie to luffer it, but pet it could not (he faid) but greene him, that he had in fuch mile runne into the hatred of all his people: not. withstanding he gave the loads most heartie thanks, that they had so forgotten their received insuries, and ceased not to beare so much god will towards his fonne Coward, as to with that he might reigne ouer them . Therefore to latilite them , lith otherwise it might not be, he biterlie renounced his right to the kinadome, and to the whole administration thereof. 10 And lafflic he belought the loads now in his miferie to forgive him such offenses as he had committed against them. Ah lamentable ruine from rotaltie to miferable calamitie, procured by them thefelie that thould have beene the pillers of the kings effate, and not the honed engins to pull him downe from his throne! So that here we læ it vereffed by triall, that

-miser atg, infælix est etiam rex, Nec quenquam(mihi crede)facit diadema beatum.

The ambalfadours with this answer returning to 20 London, declared the fame buto all the Mates, in oz. der as they had received it, wher byon great for was made of all men, to confider that they might now by course of law proceed to the chosing of a new king. And to ther upon the nine and twentith day of Janus arte in section of parlement then at Wellminster allembled, was the third king Coward, sonne to hing Coward the lecond, chosen and elected king of England, by the authoritie of the same parlement, first (as before is faid) confirmed by his fathers resige 2 nation; and the first day of his reigne they agreed to be the fine and twentith of Januarie, in the yeare 1326 after the account of the church of England, be. ginning the yeare the flue & twentith day of Warch. but by the common account of writers, it was in the peare 1327. ¶ Dn the same date fir William Trus fell procurator for the whole parlement of tenounce the old king in name of the wole parlement, with all homages and fealties due to him, so that the same ted and taken for the first day of the beginning of king Coward the third his reigne, so that what soe ver chanced before that day, is ascribed to be done during the reigne of his father.

But now to make an end of the life, as well as of the reigns of king Coward the fecond, I find that after he was devoted of his kinglie honour and title. he remained for a time at Billingworth, in custodie of the earle of Leicester. But within a while the quane was informed by the bithop of Hereford, 50 (those hatred towards him had no end) that the erle of Leicester favoured hir hulband to much, and more than flod with the fuertie of hir fonnes flate. wherebyon he was appointed to the keeping of two other loods, Thomas Berkley, and John Patreners, tho receining him of the earle of Leicester the third of Appill, connected him from Billing worth buto the callell of Berkley, lituate not farre off from the riuer of Severne, almost the midwaie betwirt Glo cester and Bristow.

But for formuch as the losd Berkley bled him mose courteoullie than his adverfactes withed him to do, he was dicharged of that office, and fir Ahomas bu Thomas Courney appointed in his fread, the togither with the lord Patreuers conveied him fecretlie (for feare least he thould be taken from them by force) from one frong place to another, as to the castell of Coafe, and such like, still removing with him in the night feason, till at length they thought it Houlo not be knowne whither they had conveied him. And so at length they brought him backe againe in secret maner buto the castell of Berkley, where whilest he remained (as some write) the quæne would send buto him courteous and louing letters with apparell and other such things, but the would not once come nære to visit him, bearing him in hand that the durst not, for feare of the peoples displeasure, who hated him so ertreamelie. Dowbeit, the with the rest of hir confer derats had (no doubt) laid the plot of their deuise for his dispatch, though by painted words the pretended a kind of remode to him in this his diffreste, t would sæme to be faultlesse in the sight of the world; for Proditor illudit verbis dum verbera cudit. But as he thus continued in prison, closelie kept, to that none of his freends might have accesse when him, as in luch cales it often happeneth, when men be in milerie, some will ever pitte their state, there were The earle of diverse of the nobilitie (of thome the earle of Bent Kent conspis was cheefe) began to deutle means by fecret conference had togither, how they might refloze him to libertie, discommending greatlie both quene Ifabell, and fuch other as were amounted governours to the young king, for his fathers Areia impellonment. The queene and other the governours bnderstanding this conspiracie of the earle of Bent, and of his bzo. ther, durif not yet in that new and græne woold go about to punish it, but rather thought good to take a wate from them the occasion of accomplishing their purpole. And herebpon the quæne and the bithop of Hereford wrote charpe letters buto his keepers, blaming them greatlie, for that they dealt fo gentlie with him, and kept him no streictier, but suffered him to have such libertie, that he advertised some of his frænds abroad how and in what manner he was bled, and with all the bithop of Percford under a for thisticall forme of words fignified to them by his let. ters, that they thould dispatch him out of the waie, the tenoz whereof weapped in obscuritie ran thus:

Edwardum occidere nolite timere bonum est:

To kill Edward will not to feare it is good. Which riddle og doubtfull kind of spech, as it might be taken in two contrarie fenfes, onelie by placing the point in orthographie called Coma, they construed five and twentith day of Januarie hath beine repu- 40 in the worfe fense, putting the Comma after Timere, and so presuming of this commandement as they toke it from the bithop, they longed the milerable pale foner in a chamber ouer a foule filthie oungeon, full of dead carrion, truffing to to make an end of him, with the abhominable flinch thereof; but he bearing it out Aronglie, as a man of a tough nature, continue ed fill in life, so as it sæmed he was berie like to ef cape that danger, as he had by purging either bp 02 downe auotoed the force of fuch potton as had beine ministred to him sundrie times before, of purpose so to rid him.

Therebpon when they fawe that such practices would not ferue their turne, they came suddenlie one night into the chamber where he late in bed fast a fleepe, and with heavie featherbeds of a table (as Tho. Walf. some write) being cast opon him, they kept him bown and withall put into his fundament an home, and through the same they thrust op into his bodie an hot Thom.de la fpit, 02(as other have) through the pipe of a trumpet More. a plumbers instrument of iron made verie hot, the thich passing by into his intrailes, and being rolled the second to and fro, burnt the fame, but fo as no appearance of murthered. any wound or hurt outwardlie might be once percet ued. Dis crie did moue manie within the caifell and towne of Berkley to compation, plainelie hearing him otter a wailefull noise, as the toamentoes were about to murther him, so that diverse being awake. ned therewith (as they themselves confessed) praied heartilie to God to receive his foule, when they but derstood by his crie what the matter ment.

The queene, the billion, and others, that their trians nie might be hid, outlained and banished the load Da. treuers, and Thomas Bourney, who flieng buto Parcels, thie yeares after being knowne, taken, and brought toward England was beheaded on the fea, leaft he thoulo accuse the chiefe owers, as the bis thop and other. John Patreuers, repenting himfelfe, laie long hidden in Ocrmanie, and in the end died penitentlie. Qus was king Coward murthered, in the yeare 1 327, on the 22 of September. The fame monor the general that buthis Colward the fecond, affer his death manie miracles were wought. So that the like opis nion of him was conceined as before had beene of carle Chomas of Lancalter, namelie amongst the common people. We was knowne to be of a goo and courteous nature, though not of most pregnant wit.

BB.j.

The fond opt-

Chanature ? disposition of king Edward the lecond.

Dis illue.

And albeit in his youth he fell into certeine light crimes, and after by the companie and counfell of es uill men, was induced buto more beinous vices, yet was it thought that he purged the same by repentance, and patientlie luffered manie reprofes, and finallie death it felfe (as before pe have heard) after a most cruell maner. De had suerlie god cause to repenthis former trade of lining, for by his undifcræt 20 and wanton milgouernance, there were headed and put to death during his reigne (by indgement of law) to the number of 28 barons and knights, oner and befive fuch as were flaine in Scotland by his infortunate conduct.

All these mischeses and manie more happened not onlic to him, but also to the whole state of the realine, in that he wanted indgement and prodent discretion to make choise of lage and discreet councelloss, receis uing those into his favour, that abused the same to 30 their prinate game and aduantage, not respecting the advancement of the common-wealth, fo they themsclues might atteine to riches and honour, for which they onelie fought, in fomuch that by their coues tous rapine, spoile, and immoderate ambition, the hearts of the common people & nobilitie were quite eftranged from the outifull love and obedience which they ought to have the wed to their four eigne, going about by force to wrest him to follow their wils, and to fæke the ocftruction of them whome he common 4 lie favoured, icherein sucrlie they were worthie of blame, and to tast (as manie of them did) the deferucd punishment for their disobedient and distoiall demeanors. For it was not the waie which they toke to helpe the diffigured state of the common-wealth, but rather the readie meane to overthrow all, as if Gods gwonelle had not bene the greater it must needs have come to palle, as to thole that thall well consider the pitifull tragedie of this kings time it may well appeare.

But now to proced with that which remaineth touching this infortunate prince. He had flue by his wife quene Tabell two sonnes, Coward with was made king whilest he was yet aline, and John which died young: also two daughters, Eliano: which died before the came to peares able for mariage; and Jone which was after given in mariage onto David kina of Scotland. He was indifferentlie tall of flature, ftrong of bodie, and healthfull, neither wanted there in him foutnelle of flomach, if his enill councellogs 60 had beine remoued, that he might have thewed it in honozable exploits, which being kept backe by them,

he could not do. So that thereby it appeareth of what importance it is to be trained by in youth with and and honest companie. This fait that he was learn ned, infomuch that there remaine vertes, which (as forme have written he made whileft he was in prifon. Certeine it is he fauozed letning, as by the creation of Diall colledge in Drford, & S. Paries hall, which Annews were of his foundation, it may well be gathered. in Orfice.

Learned men ine find recorded by Bale, to line in this kings time thefe as follow. John Duns that fub Exemple till logician, borne (as Leland hath gathered) in a bil. 4 Bak. lage in Porthumberland called Emiloune, the miles distant from Alnwike, although other hold the contrarie, the Scots claiming him for their countrieman, and the Brithmen for theirs; Robert Wale fingham a Carmelite frier that wait diverfe treats fes, John Wilton an Augustine frier, Walter Winterboane, Rafe Lockley, Dicholas Stanford, Wil liam Whitley, Thomas Joice, Walter Joice, Will liam Bainelburgh, Kobert Baffon boine not farre from Potingham & Carmelite frier of Scarburgh, the same whome king Coward toke with him into Scotland to write some remembrances of his viaor ries, although being taken by the Scots, he was con Saingin freined by Robert Bruce to frame a dittie to a constant. trarie tune; John Horminger a Suffolke man borne, William Kilhanger a monke of S. Albons an historiographer, Kafe Baldocke bishop of Low don waote also an historie, which was intituled Historia Anglica; Michard Bliton a Lincolnihire man bozne a Carmelite frier, John Wallingham bozne either in Walfingham of Brunham (as Bale Supor feth) a Carmelite frier also, and wrote diverse treat tiles; Thomas Chabham a canon of Saliburie and a doctor of diainitie, Robert Plimpton borne in Deuonthire a regular canon, Thomas Calilefoed a monke of Pomfret, William Panifield, John Canon, Robert Brime, William Afkettle of Beuer ley, Geffrey of Cornewall, John Gatisdene, Theobald Anglicus, Stephan Citon oz Coon, John Gold Cone borne in Porkelhire. John Wincheller, Bicho las de Lyza a Jew by birth of those that had their habitations in England, who wrote verie manie treatiles, to his great commendation for his lingu lar knowledge and zeale, which he thewed in disprouing the Kabines that Mill fought to keepe the Jew ith nation in blindnesse and vaine hope, in loking for another Pellias; Rafe Acton an excellent of uine, John Dumbleton a logician, Thomas Lange ford borne in Maldon in Eller a logician, Dibert Pickenama Carmelite frier of Lin in Postfolke, Picholas Dkeham a graic frier, William Dckam a frier minoz that wzote diverse treatiles, and namelie againft John Duns, and likewise againft John the three and twentith pope of that name in fanour of the emperour Lewes of Banier, Lichard Walingford, Thomas Halelwood a canon of Leds in Bent wrote a chronicle called Chronicon compendiarium, Robert Barew, Robert Perscrutato: bo;ne in Porkelhire a blacke frier and a philosopher or rather a magician, Kichard Belgrane a Carmelite, Brink ley a minozite; and others.

Thus far infortunat Edward the second.

Edward the third, who came to the crowne by the refignation of his father Edward the second.

I Dward the third of that name, the sonne of Edward the fecond, and of Isabell the onelie daughter of Philip le Beau, & fifter to Charles the fift king of France, began his reigne as king of England, his father yet living, the 25 date of Januarie, after the creation 5293, in the yeare of our load 1327, after the account of them that 10 begin the yeare at Christmaste, 867 after the comming of the Sarons, 260 after the conquest, the 13 peare of the reigne of Lewes the fourth then emperour, the fewenth of Charles the fift king of France, the second of Andronicus Junior emperour of the east almost enced, and about the end of the 22 of 160: bert le Bruce king of Scotland . He was crowned at Mcfiminster on the day of the Purification of our ladie nert infuing, by the hands of Walter the archbishop of Canturburie.

Conernours appointeb.

And bicaule he was but fourtene yeares of age, fothat to gouerne of himselfe he was not sufficient, it was decreed that twelve of the greatest loads within the realme thould have the rule and government till he came to moze perfect yeares. The names of which loods were as followeth. The archbilhop of Cantur. burie, the archbithop of Vorke, the bithops of Winthefter and of Hereford, Henrie earle of Lancaster, Thomas Brotherton earle marthall, Comund of Modfoke earle of Bent, John earle of Warren, 30 the loso Thomas Wake, the loso Henrie Percie, the loed Dliver de Ingham, the loed John Ros. Thefe were swozne of the kings councell, and charged with the government as they would make answer. But this ordinance continued not long: for the queene, and the load Roger Postimer twke the whole rule fo into their hands, that both the king and his faid councelloss were governed onelie by them in all matters both high and low. Pewerthelesse, although they had taken the regiment byon them, yet could they not 40 forefæ the tumults and opposes that presentlie opon the yong kings intheonising did infue: but needs it must come to passe that is lest written where this Dien weare the crowne, & beare the scepter in hand,

Vapueri terra sapissime sunt ibi guerra.

De confirmed the liberties and franchiles of the cltie of London, and granted that the maior of the En tranchi- same citie sor the time being might sit in all places isofthe citie of indgement within the liberties thereof for thefe inffice, above all other, the kings person onelie ercep, 50 ted; and that energy alberman that had beene major thould be inflice of peace through all the citie of Lonbon and countie of Mivolefer; and everie alberman that had not beine maioz, Mould be suffice of peace within his owne ward. He granted also to the citie zens, that they Mould not be constrained to go forth of the citie to anie warres in defense of the land, and that the franchises of the citic should not be seized from thenceforth into the kings hands for anie cause, but onelie for treason and rebellion the wed by the thole citie. Also Southwarks was appointed to be under the rule of the citie, and the maior of Lone don to be bailiffe of Southwarke, and to ordeine luch a substitute in the same bozough as pleased him.

In the first years of this kings reigne, we find in Becords of records belonging to the abbeie of S. Comundibus Buric. rie in Suffolke, that the inhabitants of that towne railed a loze commotion against the abbat & monks of the same abbeie, and that at severall times, as first on the wednesdaie next after the feast of the convers fion of S. Daule, in the faid first yeare of this kings reigne, one Robert Forton, Richard Diaiton, and a great number of other, affembling themselues togs ther in warlike order and araie, affaulted the faid abo beie, brake downe the gates, windowes, and dozes, 20 entered the house by force, and affailing certeine monks and fernants that belonged to the abbat, did beat, wound, and entil intreat them, brake open a number of cheffs, coffers, and forffets, take out chalie ces of gold and filuer, boks, besiments, and other oze naments of the church, beside a great quantitie of rich plate, and other furniture of household, apparell, armour, and other things, befide five hundred pounds in readie coine, also thee thousand flozens of gold. All thefe things they toke and carried awaic, togis ther with diverse charters, writings, & miniments. as the charters of Unute Cometime king of England, foure charters of king Paroiknute, one charter of king Coward the confessor, two charters of king Denrie the first, tother two charters of king Henrie the third, which charters concerned as well the foundation of the same abbeie, as the grants and confirmations of the pollettions and liberties belonging thereto. Also they toke awaie certeine with tings obligatorie, in the with diverse persons were bound for the paiement of great lummes of monie, and deliverie of certeine wines onto the hands of the fato abbat. Poseoner they toke awaic with them ten feuerall buls, concerning certaine exemptions and immunities granted to the abbats and manks of Burie by lundzie bilhops of Kome.

Furthermore, not herewith contented, they take Peter Clopton prior of the faid abbeie, and other monks fouth of the house, and leading them buto a place called the Leaden ball, there imprisoned them, till the thursaie next before the feast of the Purificas tion of our ladie, and that date bringing them backe againe into the chapter-house, beteined them still as pulsoners, till they had fealed a writing, conteining that the abbat and convent were bound in ten thow fand pounds to be paid to Dliver kempe and others by them named. And further, they were confireined

Li k.tj.

The fecond

TIOL.

to feale a letter of releafe for all actions, quarels, bebts, transgressions, suits and demands, which the abbat might in anic wife claime or profecute againff the fato Oliver Bempe and others in the same let-

For these wrongs and other, as for that they would not permit the abbats bailiffes and officers to keepe their ordinarie courts as they were accusto. med to do, as well this baies in the weeke for the market, to wit, mondaie, wednesdaie and fridaie, as the Portman mote currie tucloaie thie wells, and further prohibit them from gathering fuch tols, cultomes, and pearelie rents, as were due to the abbat for certeine tenements in the towne, which were let to farme, the abbat brought his action against the faid Forton, Deaiton, and others, and having it tried by an inquest, on the fridaic next after the feaft of faint Lucic the birgine, in a feffions holden at Buric by John Stonoze, Walter Frifkney, Kobert Daberthoppe, John Bouller, by bertue of the 20 kings wait of oter and determiner to them directed, the offendors were condemned in 40000 pounds, so that the faid Richard Draiton, and others there present in the court, were committed to prison incustodic of the shiriste Robert Malkefare, who was commanded also to appehend the other that were not pet arrested, if within his bailiwike they might be found, and to have their bodies before the faid fulfices at Burie aforfaid, on thursdate in White funwæke nert infuing.

Belide this, there was an other indidement and 30 action of trespasse found there the same date against the faid Richard Daniton and others, for a like diforder and riot by them committed, on the thursday next after the featt of the Purification of our ladie, in the fame first years of this king, at what time they did not onclie breake into the abbie, and beat the abbats men, but also twhe the abbat himselfe, being then at home, with certaine of his monks, keeping both him and them as prisoners, till the next daie that 40 they were confireined to feale certeine writings. And among it other, a charter, in which it was conteis ned, that the abbat and his convent did grant buto the inhabitants of the towns of Burie, to be a copporation of themselves, and to have a common seale with a gild of merchants and aldermen: also they were compelled to feale another charter, wherein was conteined a grant to the faid inhabitants, that they thould have the cultodie of the towne gates, and likewise the wardhip of all pupils and ormans within the same towne, beside diverse other liber-

Dozeover, they were in like manner confireined to scale thee scuerall obligations, in which the abbat and convent were bound to the faid inhabitants, as to a communaltie of a corporation, in feauen thou fand pounds, as in two thousand by one obligation, and in two thouland by an other, and in three thou fand by the third obligation: and further they were driven to feale a letter of release of all trespalles, and other things that might be demanded against the 60 faid inhabitants, with a generall acquittance of all belits. Befor this, the faid riotous persons toke at the fame time forth of the abbie great riches, as well in plate, armoz, boks, apparell, as in other things. Mey also brake downe two houses or melluages. that belonged to the abbeie, and fituate within the towns of Burie: they also destroied his fish-ponds. and to be out such froze of fifth as they found in the fame : they cut bowne also theescore askes there growing cuties foils that belonged to the faid abbat. and bib manis office great outrages and enormities, fo that it was found by the inquest, that the abbat was variative to the value of other fortie thousand

Thefe riots may feame greenous and veric frange, The thin but pet the same were not so heinoullie taken, as an tit. other which the faid inhabitants of Buric attempted against the said abbeie in manner of a plaine commotion, bpon faint Lukes day in the same years, at what time (as by the records of that abbeic it thould ameare) both the abbat and his house were in the kings speciall protection, and the said inhabitants prohibited by his letters to attempt anic injuric as gainft him oz his convent. But nevertheleffe we find that not onelie the inhabitants of Burie, but also a great number of other milgouerned persons, that reforted to them from places there about, arrated and furnished with horse, armor and weapons, after the manner of warre, came and affaulted the abbeie gates, fet fire on them, and burned them with diverfe other houses nere adjoining, that belonged to the abbeie, and continued in that their riotous enterpile all that day and the night following.

The same night also they burnt a manoz of the ab. The mane bats called Holdernelle barne, with two other mas of Holdenic noss called the Almoners barne, and Haberdone, al. barne, so the granges that stood without the south gate, and the manour of Wellie, in which places they burned The mana in come & graine, to the value of a thouland pounds. of wellin The next daic they entered into the abbeie court, and burnt. burnt all the houses on the north side, as stables, beeinhouses, bakehouses, garners, and other such nes cellarie houles and convenient romes of offices; and on the other five the court, they burnt certeine how fes belonging to the Almonrie. On the next daie they burned the mote hall, and Bradford hall, with the new hall, and diverse chambers and sollers to the fame halles annered, with the chapell of faint Law rence at the end of the hospitall hall. Also the mano:

of Clohall, the manoz of Hozninger, with all the come and graine within and about the fame. The next day they burnt the foller of the Sollerer, with a chapell there : also the kitchin, the larder, and a part of the farmarie. On the thursdaie they burnt the relidue of the farmarie, and the longing called the blacke lodging, with a chapell of S. Andrew therein. In executing of all these riotous disorders, one Geb frie Dozeman was an aider, who with diverle other persons buknowne, departed forth of the towne of Burie, and by the affent of the other his complices he burnt the manoz of Foznham. The same day also The mana other of their companie, as William the sonne of of former dames Deketon Asso Grobbo decident dames deketon Asso Grobbo decident dames deketon das of Grobbo decident dames deketon das of decident dames de decident de James Deketon, Kafe Brubbe, Kichard Kerie, and a great number of other persons unknowne, by the affent and abbetment of the other that committed the faid disorders, burnt two manoes belonging also to the faid abbeie in great Berton, with all the come and graine there found.

Upon knowledge had of thele great riots, and per rillous commotions, there was a commission directed from the king, buto Thomas earle of Porthfolke high marchall of England, to Thomas Bardulfe, Robert Polie, Peter Wedall, John Howard, and John Walkfare, authoriting them with the power of the counteste of Suffolke and Postfolke, to appe hend, trie and punish such lewed disordered persons, and rebellious malefactors, which had committed fuch felonious enterpiles, to the bicach of the kings peace, and dangerous disquieting of his subjects: but the fato commissioners proceeded not according to the effect of their commission in triall of anic felos nies by the fame persons committed and done, but onelie caused them to be indicted of trespatte: albeit Robert Malkfare, and John Clauer, with their ale fociats fulfices of peace, in their fellions holden at Clueden the tueldate next after the feast of the apofiles Simon and Jude, in the faid first yeare of this

B. Coward the third procéeded in such wise against the faid malefactors , that John de Berton cordwais ner, Robert forton, and a great number of other were indicted of felonie, for the mistemenours afore mentioned, and the indidements to found were after fent and prefented bnto John Stonore, Malter de Friskenie, Robert Palberthoppe, and John Boul fer, who by vertue of the kings commission of oter and determiner to them directed, fat at S. Comundo burie the wednesdate next after the feast of faint 10 Lucie the virgine; and then and there fent forth precepts to the thiriffe, commanding him to amzehend the lato Berton, Forton, and others, that were inditeo of the forefaid felonies, and also to returne a sufficient furie to trie byon their arreignment the faid malefactors by order of law, the fridate nert after the faio fcaft of S. Lucie. Herebpon Alane de Latoner, and Robert Dalling, with feauentene others, being arreigned, were found guiltie, and fuffered death accozoing to the order appointed for felons.

Die Adam Piniot fod mute, and refuled to be tried by his countrie, and fo was preffed to death, as the law in fuch cafe appointeth . Diverfe other were faued by their bokes, according buto the order of clerkes convid, as Alexander Bio person of Hoge. fet , John Rugham person of little Welnetham, John Berton cordinainer, and diverle other. Some were repliced, as one woman named Julian Barboz, who being big bellied was respited, till the were oclinered of child. Benedict Sio and Robert Ruffell were reprined and committed to the fafe keeping of thethiriffe, as triers or ameadhers (as we tearine them) of other offendors: and bicause there was not anie as yet attached by their appeales, they were commanded againe to prifon. Dne Robert de Creb well was faued by the kings letters of specialivar don, which he had there readie to thew. As for Robert Forton, Adam Cokefield, and a great number of o. ther, whome the thiriffe was commanded to appres hend, he returned that he could not heare of them 40 within the precina of his bailiffeweeke, wherebyon erigents were awarded against them, and the this riffe was commanded, that if he might come to at. tach them, he thould not faile but so toom, and to have their bodies there at Burie before the saio follices, the thursdaie in Whitsunweke, nert in-

Diverse also were arreigned at the same time of the fato felonies, and thereof acquited, as Dichaell Scabaille, Kafe Smeremonger, and others . Inded 50 those that were found guiltie, and suffered, were the there authors and procurous of the commotion, bear ring others in hand, that the abbat had in his culto, die a certeine charter, wherein the king Mould grant to the inhabitants of the towne of Burie, certeine liberties, whereby it might appeare that they were fræ, and discharged from the paiment of diverse cusomes and eractions, there open the ignorant multitude easilie giving credit to such surmised tales, ivere the somer induced to attempt such disorders as 60 before are mentioned. Ahus have you heard all in effect that was done in this first years of king Co. ward the third his reigne, by and against those offens does. But bicause we will not interrupt matters of other yeares with that which followed further of this businesse, we have thought goo to put the whole that we intend to write thereof here in this place.

Vie thall therefore binderstand, that diverse of hole, against thome erigents were awarded, came m, and yielded their bodies to the Chiriffes pillon, before they were called on the fift countie date. Albeit a great manie there were that came not, and so were outlawed. Robert Forton got the kings pardon, and b purchaling footh a superfedens, the full therebyon against him was stated . The chiriste therefore in Whitlunweke, in the fecond years of this kings reigne, made his returne touching Benedia Sio, Kobert Kullell, Aulian Barboz, so that he velicered them but othe bailiffes of the libertie of the abbat of Burie, by reason of an ancient printlege, which the Appindige. abbat claimed to belong to his boufe. The bailiffes confessed they had received the faid prisoners, but for fomuch as they had beene arreigned at a Postmane Postman mote, which was vied to be kept enerie the waks, and bpon their arreignment were found guiltie of certeine other felonies by them committed within the towns of Burie, and thereupon were put to erecution, Adam Finchman the kings attournie there The abbats take it verie emill, * laid it greenoullie to the charge officers blas of the abbats officers, for their half ie and prefumptus med. ous proceeding against the said puloners, namelic, bicaule the lato Sio and Kullell were reprined, to the end that by their otterance, many beinous offen, 20 les might haue bene brought to light.

On the same date, that is to wit, the thursdate in Whitlunwake, the forelaid Robert Forton, and dinerse other came in, and were attached by the Chiriste to answer the abbat to his action of trespasse, which he brought against them, and putting the matter to the triall of an inquest, they were condemned in A condems firtie thouland pounds, to be leuted of their gods and nation. chattels, buto the vie of the abbat, and in the meane time they were committed to pillon. But first they 30 made fuit that they might be put to their fines for their offentes committed against the kings peace, and their request in that behalfe was granted, so that byon putting in lufficient lucrties for their god a bearing, their fines were alleffed, as some at moze and some at lette, as the case was thought for to require.

Thus relied the matter a long leafon affer, butill the fift yeare of this kings reigne, in which the thurb daie next after the feast of the bicked Trinitie, the is. being himfelfe in person at S. Comundiburie afores faid, a finall agræment and concord was concluded In agræmet. betweet the faid abbat and his convent on the one partie, and Richard Deatton and others of the inhabitants of that towne on the other partie, before the right reverend father in God John bishop of Wincheffer and chancellog of England, and the kings in flices John Stonoze and John Canthringe litting there at the fame time, by the kings commancement. The effect of which agreement was as followeth.

The articles of agreement betweene the moonks of Burie and the inhabitants of Burie.

Irlt, wheras the laid abbat had recovered by judgement befoze the faid John Stosnoze and other his affociats inflices of over and determiner in the said towns of Burie, the fumme of senen scoze thousand pounds for trespasses to him and his house committed and done by the said Richard Draiton, and other the inhabitants of Burie: now at the delire of the laid king, and for other god respects him mouning, he pardoned and released but the said Ris chard Deaiton, and to other the inhabitants of Burie, to their heires, executors, and assigns the summe of 122333 pounds, eight willingseight pence, of the laid to tall fumme of 140000 pounds.

3. S.M.

The common

And

And further the laid abbat and convent granted and agreed for them and their ficcessors, that if the said Richard Draiton,. sother the inhabitants of the laid towne of Buric, examy of them, their heires, erecutors or allignes, thould pair to the faid abbat a convent, or their fuccessors within twentic yeares next infuing the date of that present agreement, 2000 marks, that 10 on the other part, and for the more confirmation ther istolaic, 100 marks yearclie at the fealts of S. Michaella Calter, by euen portions: that then the faid Richard & other the inhabitants of the towne of Burie Chould be acquited a discharged of 4000 marks, pars cell of 17666 pounds, thirteene chillings foure pence relidue behind for euer. Aboseoner, whereas the law abbat and concient, a the law abbat by hunselfe, fince the 19 years of the reigns of king Edward the second buto that present time, had sealed certeine charters, dæds, a writings, as well with the proper seale of the abbat, as with the common scale of the abbat a conuent, if the faid Richard and the inhabitants of the laid towne of Burie didrestore unto the laid abbat & convent all the lame writings, or take such order, that neither the abbat nor connent be impleaded, or in 30 any wife hindered, indamaged nor molefted by force of the fame: and further if neither the faid Richard, not any the inhabitants of the said towns, not their heires, executors, nor affignes, thall go about to reverse the subgements against them, at the suit of the faid abbat, not wall læke to impeach the executions of the same indgements by anic falle or forged acquitances or releas 40 ponthall underkand, that in the beginning of this les, nor implead nor moleltany of the furie, by whom they were conuit, that then they and their heires, executors a allignes thall be acquited a discharged of ten thousand pounds parcell of the law 17666 pounds, 13 Gillings foure pence.

And furthermose, if the faid Richard and other the inhabitants of the faid towne of Buric, do not hereafter maliciouslie rise against the said abbat of convent, not sæke to ber them by any conspiracie, confederas cie or by some other secret built cause, nor likewife cuill intreat any man by reason of the inditement found against them, not pet claime to have any corporation of themselves within that towne, that then the faid Richard, a the faid inhabitants, their beires, successors Fassignes, Chall remaine acquired and discharged of all the residue 60 of the laid 17666 pounds, thirtene Cullings four e pence for ener. And the faid abbat and connent do grant for them a their successours, that their intention is not, that if any lingular person of his owne priuste malice, thall rife against the said abbat and connent, their success, monks. bailiffes, og fernants, to dw them, og any of them murie of displeasure; that those which be not partakers of the offense. Chall be many wife punished for the same, so that the offendoes be not mainteined by any of the same towne, but that the inhabitants there, do allist the abbat and convent their fuccessours, bailiffes, feruants & officers. that the same offendors may be punished, according to their demerits, as reason and law thall allow.

This was the effect of the agreement at length had and made betwirt the abbat and monks of 15th rie on the one part, & the inhabitants of that towne of it pleased the king to put his seale to the charter conteining the fame agreement. I But how foeuer it chanced, it thould appeare by fuch records as came to the hands of master Iohn Fox, as he alledgesh in Thomas the first tome of his boke of acts and monuments, before the this agræment was but fooilie kept: for diverte of gramming the former offendors, bearing grudge towards the made until abbat for breaking promife with them at London, the king did confederat themselves together, and painilie in reigness o the night comming to the manour of Chennington bout 19 min there the abbat then of lie, burt open the gates, and tioned, and entring by force, first bound all his fernants, and af therebyok ter they had robbed the house, they twhe the abbat, from and thaning him, fecrettie conveied him to London, and there removing him from freet to firet but knowne, had him over the Thames into Bent, and at length transported him over buto Diff in Brabant, where they kept him for a time in much penurie, that dome and miferie, butill at length the matter being bnderfood, they were all ercommunicate, first by the archbishop, after by the pope. At the last, his francs having knowledge where he was, they found means to deliver him out of the hands of those theues, and finallie brought him home with procedion, and lo be was rectored to his house agame.

Thus much touching those troubles between the townelmen of Burie a the abbat and monks there, and now we will returne to other generall matters touching the publike Cate of the realme. And first kings reigne the land trulie fæmed to be bleffed of God :ifo: the earth became fruitfull, the aire temper rate, and the sea calme and quiet. This king though he was as pet under the government of other, no uerthelesse he began within a short time to thew to kens of great towardnesse, framing his mind wito grave deuiles, and first he prepared to make a fornie against the Scotishmen, the which in his fathers time had done so manie displeasures to the Englishmen, and now byon confidence of his minoritic, ceaffed not to innade the borders of his realine. And namelie the verie selfe night that followed the day of this kings coronation, they had thought by skaling to have folne the castell of Potham: but Robert Bar Rich Set ners capteine of that place, bnbertranbing of their Bob Mil enterprise aforehand by a Scottshman of the gartion of Subs there, so well promoed for their comming, that where catell firtienc of them boldlie entred bpon the wall, he flue nine of ten of them, and take five. This was thought an entil token, that they thould fill be put to the worse in this kings time, lith they had so bad successe in the verie beginning of his reigne: but they continuing in their malicious pur poles, about faint Pargarets tide inuaced the land with the armies, the earle of Spurrey having the the leading of one of the same armies, and Zames minki Douglas of another, and the third was guided by the land. carle of Mar. King Coward aductifed hereof, affembled not onelies great policer of Englishmen, but also required John lood Beaumont de Deinault, The 12 whome he had latelic fent home right honorablic re- 2 warded for his god affidance, to come agains into of going England, with certeine bands of men at armes, and he thould receive wages and god interteinement

Caron

A frate be-ich archers

Caxton,

Froiffart.

Carton

Fronfart.

$tanop for them. The lord Beaumont, as one that loued dans of armes, was glad to accomplish king Cowards request: and so therebpon with seauen bun-Decomen at armes, og fine hundred (as Froiffart faith) came ouer into England againe, to ferue as gainst the Scots.

The generall affemblie of the armie was amointed to be at Porke , and thither came the faid lord Beaumont with his people, and was toifullie recet. ued of the king and his loads. Here while finot one, 10 lie the Scotish ambassadours (with had beene fent to treat of peace, were heard to tell their medage) but also whilest the councell twice some leisure in des bating the matter how to guide their enterpille, which they had now in hand: byon Trinitie fundate, it chanced that there arose contention within the citie of Poske, betwirt the English archers, and the frangers, which the lood Beaumont of Beinault had brought with him, infomuch that fighting togither turitt & Enge there were laine to the number of foure score per 20 anothe Gen = fons of those archers, which were buried within the durch of faint Clement in Folgate. Some waite that there were flaine to the number of thee hundied Englishmen : pet bicause the Benuiers came to alo the king, their peace was cried bpon paine of life. And further, it was found by an inquest of the ct. tie, that the quarrell was begun by the Englishmen. the which (as some write) were of the Lincolneshire men, of those that sometime belonged to the Spen. fers, and to the earle of Arundell, so that there was 30 cause, whie they bare enill will to the Benuters with had afoed (as yee have heard) to bying the faid earle and Spenfers to their confusion.

In this meane time the Scots being entred into England, had done much hurt, and were come as farre as Stanop parke in Wiredale : and though they had fent their amballadours to treat with the king and his councell for peace, yet no conclusion followed of their talke. At the same time, bicause the in cotes and hods embrodered with floures and branches verie fæmelie, and vsed to nourish their beards: the Scots in decision thereof made a rime, which they fastened byon the church dozes of faint Peter toward Stangate, containing this that fol loweth.

Arime in be-Long beards, hartlesse, Painted hoods, witlesse, Gaie cotes, graceleffe, Make England thriftleffe. Englifhmen.

The king when he faw it was but a vaine thing to state antelonger in communication with the ams 50 balladous about peace, departed from Pouke with his pullant armie, and getting knowledge how the Scots were closelie lodged in the woods of Stanop parke, became and fromed all the passages, so it was thought that he should have had them at his pleasure, but through treason (as was after reported) of the loss Roger Postimer, after that the Scots had beine kept within their lodgings for the space of fificine dates, till they were almost famished, they did them under the leading of the load William Douglas, affailing that part of the English campe where the kings tent flod, in the night fealon, milled not much of either taking the king or fleteng him: and having done burt inough otherwise, as in the Scotill disonicle is also touched, they followed their comp panie, and with them returned into Scotland with out impeachment.

It is faid, that Henrie earle of Lancacter, and John the logo Beaumont of Peinault would gladie have passed over the water of Wifee, to have asalted the Scots, but the earle of March through counsoll of the love Postimer, pretending to have right to the leading of the fore ward, and to the giving of the first onset, would not suffer them. Howsocher it was the king milled his purpole, and right pentitie there fore, brake by his field, and returned buto London. Malter bithop of Canturburie departed this life in Pouember, and then Simon Pecham was ed, uanced to the government of that fee . The load Beaumont of Peinalt was honogablic rewarded The load for his vaines and travell, and then licenced to re- Weaumot returne into his countrie, where he had not beene long, Polydor. but that through his means then (as some write) the marriage was concluded betweene king Colward. and the ladie Whilip daughter to William earle of Heinault, and nece to the faid lost Weaumont , who had the charge to lie hir brought over thither into England about Chilimatte : there in the citie of Fabian. Poske bpon the œuen of the Conversion of saint Daule, being sundaie, in the latter end of the first peare of his reigne, king Coward folemnlie marv

1328

In the fecond years of his reigne, about the feat Anno Reg.2. of Pentecost, king Coward held a parlement at A parlement Posthampton, at the which parlement by cuill and at Morthnaughtie counsell, whereof the lood Roger Postimer ampton. and the quæne mother bare the blame, the king concluded with the Scotish king both an unprositable I dishonozas and a diffonozable peace. For first the released to the ble peace. Scots their fealtie and homage. Also he deliucred bnto them certeine old ancient writings, scaled with the feales of the king of Scots, and of dinerfeloids of the land both spirituall and tempozall : amongst the which was that indenture, which they called Rage Ragman, man, with manie other charters and patents, by the which the kings of Scotland were bound as feoda, Fabian.

ries onto the crowne of England; at which feafen al The blacke so there were delivered certeine iewels, which before cross. time had beine wone from the Scots by the kings of England, and among other, the blacke croffer of rod is speciallie named.

And not onelie the king by his finisfer councell English fouldiours of this armie were cloathed all 40 lost such right and title as he had to the realme of Scotland, so farre as by the same councell might be denifed, but also the loads and barons, and other men of England that had anie lands of rents within Scotland, loft their right in like manner, ercept they would dwell byon the fame lands, and become liege men to the king of Scotland. Herebpon was there Amarriage allo a marriage concluded betwirt Danio Bruce the concluded. some of Robert Bruce king of Scotland, and the ladie Jane lifter to king Coward, which of diverse writers is furnamed Jone of the tower, and the Scots furnamed hir halfe in derition , Jone Dake Jone Dake peace. This marriage was folemnifed at Werwike peace. ppon the baie of Parie Pagoalen. The quenc with the bithops of Clie and Portich, the carle Warren, the lord Mortimer, and diverte other barons of the land, and a great multitude of other people were pice Ri. Southwell. cent at that marriage, which was celebrate with all the honour that might be.

Affer the quindene of faint Dichaell, king Co. Tho. Walfin. not onclie find a waie out, but about two hundred of 60 ward held a parlement at Salifburie, in which the Adam Merilood Roger Postimer was created earle of Parch, muth the lood John of Eltham the kings bother was made earle of Commall, and the load James Butler of carles. of Ireland earle of Damond, the about the same time had married the earle of Perefords daughter. But the earle of Parch twhe the most part of the rule The carle of of all things perfeining either to the king or realme elithings at into his owne hands : to that the ichole government his pleasure, rested in a manner betwirt the quæne mother and him. The other of the councell that were first appoint ted, were in manner displaced; for they bare no rule to speake of at all, which caused no small grunge to arife against the quiene and the faid earle of Barch, tho mainteined fuch posts, and kept among them

Creations.

roiffart. Shelo:0 Dowglag.

fuch retinue of fernants, that their provision was wonderfull, which they caused to be taken bp, names he for the quane, at the hings price, to the fore oppel tion of the people, which twice it displesantlie inough.

Che er ric of Lancaiter.

Robert Bol: tand flaine.

There was like to have growen great variance betwirt the quæne and Henrie carle of Lancaster, by reason that one fir Thomas Wither, a knight perteining to the faid earle of Lancatter, had flaine Ro bert Holland, who had betraied sometime Thomas earle of Lancaffer, and was after committed to pile 10 fon by carle Denrics means, but the quene had canfed him to be fet at libertie, and admitted him as one of hir councell. The queene would have had fir Homas Couther punithed for the murther, but earle Denrie caused him to be kept out of the waie, so that for these causes and other, Henrie the carle of Lanca. fier went about to make a rebellion, and the quens having knowledge thereof, fought to appehend him: furouse was but by the mediation of the earles Parthall and Bent, the matter was taken up, and earle Penrie 20 the chiefe pro= had the kings peace granted him for the fumme of reconciliation cicuen thousand pounds, which he thould have paid, but he neuer paio that fine, though it was fo affelled at the time of the agreement. There were diverse loods and great men that muth faith.) Adam Meri-

athe archbis

Thop of Can=

curor of the agræment # of the carie

muth.

were confederat with him, the lood Thomas Wake, the load Henrie Beaumont, the load Foulke Fitz Warrein, fir Thomas Koffelin, fir William Trul fell, and other, to the number of an hundred knights. In the third years of his reigne, about the Alcen 3 Anno Reg. 3. frontide, king Coward went over into France, and comming to the French king Philip de Malois, as then being at Amiens, did there his homage unto him for the duchie of Guien (as in the French historie appeareth.) The fame years Simon the archbithop of Canturburie held a fynod at London, wherein all those were excommunicated that were guiltie to the brath of Malter Stapleton bilhop of Greeffer, that had beene put to death by the Londoners, as in the laft kings time ve haue heard. This bilhop of Er: 40 ceffer founded Greeffer colledge in Drfojd, & Harts hall. But now to the purpole.

Tho. Walf. Rt. Southwell Aphitions

The king about the beginning, or (as other fale)as bout the middle of Lent, held a parlement at TAindiester, during the which, Comund of Modstoke earle of Bent the kings buck was arrefted the mos row after faint Gregories day, and being arreigned byon certains confessions and letters found about him, he was found giltie of treason. There were Diuerfe in trouble about the fame matter, for the earle 50 bpon his open confession before sundzie lords of the realme, declared that not onelie by commandement from the pope, but also by the setting on of diverse nobles of this land (thome he named) he was perfus ded to indepour himselfe by all water and meanes possible how to beliver his brother king Coward the fecond out of pullon, and to restore him to the crowne. Thom. Dan: thome one Thomas Dunhed, a frier of the order of preachers in London, affirmed for certeine to be aline, having as he himfelfe faid) called up a spirit to 60 understand the truth thereof, and so what by counsell of the faid frier, and of the other friers of the fame order, he had purposed to worke some meane how to policer him, and to reffere him agains to the kingdome. Among the letters that were found about him, disclosing a great part of his practise, some there were, which he had written and directed but o his bro ther the faid king Coward, as by some writers it fhould awcare.

The bishop of London and certeine other great personages, whome he had accused, were permitted Anno Reg 4. to go at libertic, under fuerties taken for their god demeanour and footh comming. But Robert de Conton, and the frier that had raised the spirit fer to know whether the kings father were living of net. were committed to pulon, wherein the fiter remain ned till be died. The earle himselfe was had out of the castell gate at Winchester, and there lost his head the 19 day of Parch, chiefelie (as was thought) tho Street rough the malice of the quiene mother, and of the hamble earle of Parch: whele prive and high prelumption the ded. faid earle of Bent might not well abide. Dis death was the leffe lamented, bicaufe of the prefumptuous government of his fervants and retinue, which he fervants kept about him, for that they riving abroad, would bring ther take by things at their pleasure, not paicing no agree mader in ing with the partie to whome such things belonged; billaucon in so much that by their meanes, who ought to have bone their ottermost for the inlargement of his ho nour, he grew in greater obloquie and reproch: a fowle fault in fervants to to abute their loods names to their prinat profit, to whome they cannot be to truftie. But luch are to be warned, that by the fame ther in they offend, they thall be punished, even with fernants faithleffe to plague their butruffineffe, for

Qui violare fidem solet, vo violetur eidem.

The poing quæne Philip was brought to bed at Wilodfoke the 15 day of June of hir first sonne, the The Black which at the fontsione was named Edward, and in pline bing processe of time came to great profe of famous this ualrie, as in this boke thall more plainelie apeare. He was commonlie named when he came to ripe peares prince Coward, a alfo furnamed the Blacke o prince. The litteenth day of Julie chanced a great Croxden. ecliple of the lunne, and for the space of two moneths and which before, and three moneths after, there fell creading great raine, to that through the great intemperancie of weather come could not riven by reason whereof, in manie places they began not haruest till Dichael Alatchand mas, & in some places they inned not their wheat till Alhallontide, nor their peafe till faint Andrews tide.

Dn Chiffmalle even, about the breake of day, a marvellous fore and terrible wind came forth of the count, which overthrew boules and buildings, over turned træs by the rots, and did much hart in diwife places. This yeare thortlie after Caffer,the king with the bilhop of Winchester, and the lood William Montacute, having not pall fiftene horfes in their companie, patted the fea, apparelled in clokes like to merchants, he left his brother the earle of Cornewall his deputie a gardian of the realnic till his returne. Pozeouer, he caused it to be proclaimed in London, that he went ouer on pilgrimage, and for none other purpole. He returned before the later end of Aprill, and then was there holden a turnie at Dertfort.

The mondaic after faint Watthews day in Scp tember, the king held a folemne fulls in Cheapelide, betwirt the great croffe and Soperlane, he with 12 as chalengers answering all defendants that came. This folemne inframo turnie continued the daics. The quiene with manie ladies being present at the fame, fell belide a frage, but pet as good hap would they had no hart by that fall, to the retotling of manie that faw them in such danger, and pet so luckilie to escape without harme. • Also in a parlement holden at Potingham about saint Lukes tide, ar Roger Postimer the earle of Parch was appehens ded the sevent early of Oaober within the callel of Potingham, where the king with the two quenes, his mother and his wife, and diverse other were as then lodged. And though the keies of the castell were dattie and nightlie in the cultodie of the faid carle of Parch, and that his power was luch, as it was doub ted how he might be arrefted (for he had, as forme and miles myters affirmed a first house and the second and t writers affirme, at that present in retinue ninc score knights, belide elquiers, gentlemen and peomen) pet at length by the kings helpe, the lood William Wontacute, the losd Humfrie de 130hun, and his brether bed a frier.

Thom.Walf.

1;;0

fir William, the lood Rafe Staffood, the lood Robert Tifford, the load THilliam Clinton , the load John Deuill of Dombie, and diverse other, which had accus feo the fait earle of Parch for the murther of king Coward the fecond, found means by intelligence had with fir Milliam de Cland conffable of the cas fell of Potingham, to take the faid carle of Parch with his some the load Roger og Geffrey Postimer, and fir Simon Bereford, with other.

fonce copies haue) that was one of his chefelt freends with certaine other were flaine, as they were about to relift against the lood Pontacute, and his companie in taking of the faid earle. The manner of his tas hing I palle ouer , bicaule of the divertitie in report thereof by fundzie writers . From Potingham he was fent op to London with his sonne the load Ros ger og Beffrey de Postimer, fir Simon Berefosd. and the other pationers, where they were committed ment called at Weffminffer , thefelie (as was thought) for reformation of things dilordered through the milgouernance of the earle of Parch . But who foeuer was glad or forie for the trouble of the faid earle, sucrlie the quæne mother toke it most heautlie about all other, as the that loved him more (as the fame went)than food well with hir honour. For as Mailter Fox. some write, the was found to be with child by him. They kept as it were house togither, for the earle to hauchis prouisson the better cheape, lato his penie 30 with hirs, so that hir takers served him as well as they did hir both of vittels & cartages. Df which mile blage (all regard to honour and estimation neglected) cuerie subject spake shaine. For their manner of dealing, tending to fuch enill purpoles as they continuallie thought opon, could not be fecret from the eies of the people. And their offense herein was so much the moze hemous, bicaule they were persons of an extraozdinarie degræ, and were the moze nare > _nam lux altißima fati Occultum nil esse sinit latebrásq per omnes Intrat & obtrusos explorat fama recessus.

But now in this parlement holden at Wellminster he was attainted of high treason expressed in five articles, as in effect followeth.

1 First, he was charged that he had procured Edward of Carnaruan the kings father to be mur, thered in most heinous and tyzannous maner with in the castell of Werklie.

through his means elcaped.

Thirdlie, that he received at the hands of the loed James Dowglas, at that time generall of the Scots, great summes of monic to erecute that treas son, and further to conclude the peace opon such dis honocable covenants as was accorded with the Scots at the parlement of Posthampton.

4 Fourthlie, that he had got into his hands a confumed it.

5 Fifflic, that he had impropried but o him divers wards that belonged unto the king: and had beine moze privie with quæne Jabell the kings mother, than find either with Goes law, or the kings

These articles with other being promed against him, he was adjudged by authoritie of the parlement to luffer death, and according therebuto, bpon faint Andrewes wuen nert infuing, he was at London drawne and hanged, at the common place of execution, called in those dates The elmes, a now Tibozne, as in some bokes we find. His bodic remained two daies and two nights on the gallowes, and after taken downe was delivered to the friers minois, tho buried him in their church the morrow after he was delivered to them, with great pompe and funcrall erequies, although afterwards he was taken bp and carried unto Migmoze, whereof he was lozd. He came not to his answer in sudgement, no moze than any other of the nobilitie had done, fince the death of Thomas earle of Lancalter.

Sir Simon de Bereford knight that had beine Sir Simon Sir Hugh Trumpington of Turrington (as 10 one of the kings fullices, was drawne also and hang, ecuco. ed at London, bpon S. Lucies daie. In this parle. ment holden at Westminster, the king take into his hand, by admile of the states there assembled, all the possessions, lands and reuchues that belonged to the quene his mother, the having affigned to hir a some bobes thousand pounds by yeare, for the maintenance of have 3 thousand bir estate, being appointed to remaine in a certaine sand younds. place, and not to go elsewhere abroad: pet the king to comforthir, would lightlie cuerie years once come topillon in the tower . Shoutlie after was a parle, 20 to bilit hir. After that the erle of Warch was erecuted (as yee have heard) diverse noble men that were departed the realme, bicante they could not abide the pride and prelumption of the faidearle, now returned: as the sonne and heire of the earle of Arundell, Ad. Merem. the lord Thomas Wake, the L. Benrie Beaumont, fir Momas de Kostelin, sir Houlke fitz Warren, sir

Griffin de la Polc, and diuerse other. In the fift peare of B. Cowards reigne, Coward Baliolicame forth of France into England, and ob, Anno Reg. 5. teined such favour through the allusance of the lost boll commeth Henrie Beaumont , the lord Dauto of Strabogie into England earle of Athole, the load Geffrey de Dowbanie, the loed Walter Cumin, and others, that king Coward granted him licence to make his provision in Eng. land to passe into Scotland, with an armie of men to attempt the recoverie of his right to the crowne of Scotland, with condition that if he recovered it, he should acknowledge to hold it of the king of England as superiour lood of Scotland . The comming as rowlie marked of the multitude og common people, 40 waie of Coward Balioll out of France is divertic reported by writers : some saie, that he was aided by Caxton. the French king whose litter he had married: and o ther faie, that he being in pallon in France, for the escape of an Englishman, one John Barnabie el John Barquier, which had flaine a Frenchman by chance of nabie. quarelling in the towne of Dampierre, where the fame Barnabie dwelled with the faid Coward Balioll, to it came to passe that the logo Henrie Beau- Beaumont, mont having occasion of businesse with the French hing, that favoured him well, came over to France, and there understanding of Akales (world) will be freed and there understanding of Akales (world) procured his deliverance, and brought him over into England, and caused him to remaine in secret wife at the manoz of Sandhall boon Dufe in Pockefhire with the ladie Wescie, till he had purchased the kings grant for him to make his provition of men of war and thips within the English dominions.

In the firt yeare of king Cowards reigne, Keignold earle of Belverland married the ladie Eliano: Anno Reg. 6. great part of the kings treasure, and had wasted and 60 lister to this king Edward the third, who gave but Croxden. The earle of the faid earle with hir for hir portion, fiftene thous Getoerland. fand pounds feeling. Tabell the kings daughter was borne also this yeare at Woodfoke . Affer that Coward Balioli had prepared and made readic his purveiances for his fournie, and that his men of warre were affembled and come togither, being in all not past five hundred men of armes, and about two thouland archers, and other fortmen, he toke the fea at Rauenspurgh in Porkeshire, and from thence directing his course northward, he arrived at length in Scotland, where he atchiuing great victories (as in the Scotiff theonicle ye may read more at large) holl crowned was finallie crowned king of that realme.

It may feeme a wonder to manie, that the king

Weretord er=

The load

Edward 25as h.of Scotiad.

Adam Mc. remuth. The carle of Darch cre =

510 ıŧ

Che carle of March at-250

The caufe that moued h.Coward to Baltoll.

Rich South. Coward Ba itoli chafed ont of Pcot iand.

Anno Reg. 7.

Bermike beliegeb.

Ebe bidorie

Bermike De: hinered.

men at Das

libon bill.

thaid Calbot

Chelo:b inthree of Tre land coinerb into Šaate land.

of England would permit Coward Balioll to make his proution thus in England, and to luffer his people to ato him against his brother in law king Damo that had married his lifter (as before pe haue heard.) Indied at the first he was not verie readie to grant their fuit that inwheed it, but at length he was contented to diffemble the matter, in hope that if Colvard Balioll had good successe, he should then recover that againe, which by the conclusion of peace during his minoritie, he had through cuill counsell 1 religned out of his hands. The Scots neuertheleffe in December chafed their new king Coward Balioll out of Scotland, so that he was faine to retire into England, and celebrated the feaft of the Patinitie at Carleill, in the boule of the friers minors, and the morrowafter being S. Stechans ban, he went into Welfmerland, where of the load Cliffoad he was right honorablic receined, to whome he then granted Douglas Dale in Scotland, which had beine granted to the faid lord Cliffords grandfather in the baies 2 of king Coward the first, if he might at anie time reconer the realme of Scotland out of his adverfaries hands.

After this, he went and late a time with the ladie of Cincs , that was his kinfewoman . finallie about the teenth day of Warch, having affembled a power of Englishmen and Scotishmen, he entred Scoti land, and befreged the towne of Berwike, during the which fiege, manie enterpifes were attempted by the parties : and amongft other, the Scots entred England by Carleill, owing much mildhicfe in Bille fland, by burning, killing, robbing and spoiling. The king advertised hereof, thought himselfe discharged of the agreement concluded betwirt him and Dauid 13:nce, the sonne of Robert Bruce that had married his lifter a therfore twic it to be lawfull for him to ato his colen Coward Balioll the lawfull B. of Scots. And herewith affembling an armie, came to the flege of Berwike, togither with his brother John of Cl. tham earle of Cornewall, and other noble men, fee 40 king by all meanes possible how to win the towne: and finallie discomfited an armie of Scots, which came to the refene theeref bpon Balibon bill, in fleaing of them what in the fight and chale, seven carles, nine hundled knights and baronets, foure hundled elquiers, and upon 32 thouland of the common people : and of Englithmen were flaine but 15 perfons, as our Onglith writers make mention. The Scotith writers confesse, that the Scotishmen lost the numi her of 14 thousand.

On the morrow following, being D. Pargarets dan, the towne of Berinike was rendered unto king Coward with the castell, as in the Scorish chronicle re may read, with more matter touching the flege and battell aforefaid, and therfore here in felu words, I passe it ener. Ling Coward bauing thus sped his bufinelle, left a power of men with Coward Baltoll, The leed the buder the conduct of the lood Richard Calbot, and returned bimfelfe backe into England, amointing the land Percie to be governo; of the towne of Ber. 60 wike, and fir Thomas Orey bright bis lieutenant. The losd John Darcie losd thate inflice of Ireland, leaning the lood Thomas Bourgb bis deputie in that countrie, paffed ouer with an armie into Scotland, to aid the hing, tho , as ye have heard was there the fame time in perfon. And fo by the king on one fibe, and by the Brithmen on an other, Scotland was fuboned, and reffored buto Balioll, who the morrow af ter the ocaues of the Patinitie of our laber, helda parlement at faint Johns towne, in the which he renobed and made boid all aus, which the late hing of Scots Robert Biner bad insited o: made: and further orderned, that all fuch lands and possessions as the faid 13:nee had ginen to any maner of person, thould be taken from them, and restozed to the former and true inheritour.

In this yeare about the twelfth of October, Simon Decham archbishop of Canturburie, departed this life, in whole place incomocd John Stretford, being remoued from the see of Winchester, whereof he much was bithop, before that he was thus called to the le of Canturburie. After Candlemas the king of Eng Angol land repaired towards Pocke, there to hold a parle, Adamy ment, to the which (beginning on the mondate in the much fecond weke in Lent) when Edward Balioll doub. 3 painting fecond weke in Lent) when Edward Balioll doub. 3 painting fecond weke in Lent) ting to be surprised by his adversaries, could not come, pet he fent the losd Wenrie de Beaumont, and the low William de Montacute, to make ercufe for him. The king of England palling further into the north parts , held his Wihitluntide at Dewcastell bpon Tine , with great rotaltie : and shortlie af ter, Coward Balioll king of Scots came thither, Comany and boon the ninteenth date of June made his hos holl books and byon the nintering one of Julia had his on mage bits the king of England, and sware bits him mage bits himself and some bits him fealtie in the presence of a great number of Pobles ianofore and gentlemen there affembled, as to his superiour land, and thiefe load of the realme of Scotland, binding himselfe by that oth, to hold the same realme of the king of England, his betres and fuccestors for ever. He also gave and granted but othe king of England at that time fine counties next admining buto the borders of England, as Berwike and Rockfburgh, Peplis, and Dunfres, the townes of Hadington and Gedworth with the castell, the forrests of Silkirke, Etherike, and Gedworth, so as all these portions should be clerelie separated and put apart from the crowne of Scotland, and annered buto the crowne of England for ever. And these things were confirmed and robosated with oth, scepter, and with nelle lufficient.

Which things done in due order, as was requilite, the king of England returned home, and the kings went backe into Scotland. And then were all luch loads restored agains to their lands and possessions in Scotland, which in the dates of Coward the fecond had being expelled from the fame : and now they bid their homage buto the king of Scotland for those lands as apperteined. Immediatlie after, the king of England called a councell of his loads spirituall and temporall at Potingham, commanding them to meethim there about the thirteenth daie of Julie, there to consult with him of weightie causes concerning the flate of the realme. This years on faint 30000000 Clements date at might, which fell on the thee and ofthin twentith of Pourmber, through a maruellous in undation triling of the lea all alongst by the coasts of this realme, but especiallie about the Thames, the fea bankes of walles were broken and boine downe with violence of the water, and infinite numbers of beaffs and cattell decimned, fruitfull grounds and pafures were made falt marifyes, to as there was no hope that in long time they should recover agains their former fruitfulneffe.

In this meane time the French king was appointed to have made a viage againft the Saracens,ent mies of our faith, and had lent to the king of Eng. land, requiring him of his companie in that iournie. But the king of England being otherwise occupied with the affaires of Scotland, made no direct answer therebuto, so that the French king perceining that keen the the king of England was not in all things well pleased with bim, thought god before he set forward on that iournie to understand his meaning, and ther, bpon lent efficies buto him other ambaliadours. Chefe ambassabours arrived here in England and bad andience, but nothing they concluded in effect, faur that the king promifed to fend his amballadors ouer into France, to have further communication at London.

Rich.South.

2 parlement

in the matter fouching luch points of variance as depended betwirt them.

Although Coward Balioll by the pullance of the hing of Englands affiffance had got the moff part of the realine of Scotland into his hands, pet diverte caffels were holden against him, and the Scots dais lie fliped from him, and by open rebellion molefted him diverfe waies. The king of England advertifed thereof called a parlement at London, wherein he toke oader for his tournie into Scotland, had a tenth 10 and a fifteenth granted him, and fo about Alballontive he came to Pewcastell opon Tine, with his ar. mie, and remained there till the feath of faint hathas The bing en rine, and then entring into Scotland, came to Roc. kelburgh, where he repared the castell which had beene Acoiland aforetime destroied. After the third date of Chaise, with an armie malle was pat, the king of England entred into E. 1335 tothe forcest, beating it by and downe, but the Scots would not come within his reach: where boon he fent the king of Scots that was there present with him, 20 and the earles of Warwike and Drenford, and cer. teine other barons and knights with their retinues onto Carleill, to keepe and defend those well parts of the realme from the Scots.

In their fournie thither wards, they went by Pe. plis to appehend certeine Scots , whome they heard to be longed and abiding thereabouts, but when they found them not, they walted the countrie, and turned freight to Carleill, where after the Epiphanie there assembled an armie footh of the counties of Lanca 30 ffer. Messmerland, and Cumberland, by the kings amointment, which armie togither with the king of Scots and the other loads there found, entred Scot. land, and did much hurt in the countrie of Galloway, destroining towns and all that they found abroad, but the people were fled and withdrawne out of their wate. And when they had taken their pleasure, the king of Scots returned backe to Carleill. This pere s bearth and there fell great abundance of raine, and therebpon Beth of cattell, infued morren of beaffs: also come so failed this 40 yeare, that a quarter of wheat was foid at fortie ij.

Anno Reg.9. Amba.ladogg Lent into

Hen.Marle.

Finallie, when the king had finished his businesse in Scotland, as to his feeming food with his pleas fure, he returned into England, and Mostlie after he fent the archbishop of Canturburie, sir Philip de Pontacute, and Geffrey Scrope buto the French king, to conclude a firme amitie & league with him. These losos comming into France, were not at the first admitted to the French kings presence, till they 50 thewed themselves halfe græved with that Arange bealing: for then finallie were they brought buto him, who gentlie received them, and caused the matter to be intreated of about the which they were fent, infurthering whereof, such deligence was vsed, that finallie a conclusion of peace and concord was as greed, and so farre passed, that proclamation thereof Mondo have beene made in Paris, and in the countrie thereabout the next day: but scarse were the English ambassadours returned but otheir lodgings, 60 then they were sent for backe againe, and further informed, that the French king minded to have Das nid king of Scotland compatied in the fame league, lo that he might be restozed unto his kingdome, and the Balioll put out. The English ambassadors are Iwered, that their commission extended not so farre, and therfore they could not conclude any thing there. in. Herebpon all the former communication was renoked, and clerclie made void, so that the English amballadors returned home into England without anie thing concluded.

About the feast of the Ascention, the king held a Parlement, parlement at Poeke, oedeining for his tournie into Scotland, and also denifing by authoritie thereof dinerse profitable flatutes for the common-wealth. About midlummer, he came with his armie buto Pewcalfell byon Tine, wither came to him from Carleill the king of Scots, and there order was tar ken, that the king of England, and his brother the earle of Comwall, the earls of Marwike, Lancas fer. Lincolne, and Hereford, with all their retinues, and the earle of Bulikerland, that had married the kings lifter, and with a faire companie was come to ferue the king in thefe warres, thould paffe to Carles ill, and on the twelfe of Julie enter Scotland. The king of Scots, the earles of Surrie, and Arundell, and the lood Benrie Percie, a baron of great might and power, being all of kin buto the king of Scots, with their retinues should go to Berwike, and there enter the same day aboue mentioned, and as it was amointed, to it was put in practice. For both kings on the fame day entring Scotland in feuerall parts palled forward without reliffance at their pleafures. walting and burning all the countries, both on this fide, and beyond the Scotiff fea . The Wellimen The wells: spared neither religious persons not their houses, men. making no moze accompt of them than of others: the mariners of petrcallell also burnt a great part Dunde of the towne of Dunde.

The earle of Pamure about the same time com The earle of ming into England, to ferue the king in his warres, Mamure. take opon him to palle into Scotland with a band of an hundged men of armes, belide feauen og eight knights which he brought over with him, and certeine Englichmen to be his guides from Berwike, but he Fourdon, was affailed before he could get to Goenburgh, by the earles of Purrey and Dunbarre, and the lood William Dowglas: to that notwithstanding the Arangers bare themselues verie manfullie, yet op pressed with multitude, they were forced to give place, but pet Gill fighting and defending themselves till they came to Edenburgh, and there taking the hill there the ruines of the castell stwo kept the same all the night following. But the next day they despais ring of all fuccours, and having neither meat noz brinke, at length yelded themselves, whom the carle of Hurrey receiuing right courteoullie, theined The earle of them luch fauour, that without ransome he was con- Rich. Southw. tented they thould returne into their countries: and for more suertie, he conveied the said earle of Pamure (whome the Scotish books call earle of Gelberland) and his companie backe to the bodders; but in Fourdons his returne,02 (hoztlie after, the same earle of Hurrey that toke himselfe for governour of Scotland, was encountred by the Englishmen that late in garrison within Kockesburgh, and by them taken pails ner. The lozd William Dowglas being there allo with him escaped, but James Dowglas brother to the faid lord Milliam Dowglas, was at that bicker ring flaine with diverse other. About the feast of the Assumption of our ladie, of Scots fubmit uerse of the Scotish nobilitie came and submitted them to the bing of Engthemselves to the king, namelie the earle of Atholi iand, and others, but earle Patrike of Dunbarre, and the earle of Rolle, the losd Andrew de Murrey, the lord Milliam Dowglas, and the lost Milliam de Keth, and manie other would not come in, but affembling themselves togither, did all the mishafe they could unto those that had received the kings peace. The The casten of earle of Atholl in the winter feafon , befleging the cas Bildrummie. fell of Kildzummie beyond the Scotish sea was set byon by the earles of Dunbarre and Rolle, fo that The Carle of Punbarre and Rolle, fo that Thou fains, they flue him there in field, for his men fled from him (through some traitorous practife as was thought) and left him and a few other in all the danger. The king of England being returned forth of Scotland, remained for the most part of the winter in the north parts, and held his Chistmasse at Pewcastell bpon

1336

A truce granten to the Dcots.

Tine, and after the Cpfthanic having aftembled an armie readie to palle into Scotland, to reuenge the earle of Athols death, which he toke berie displeasants lie, there came in the meane time amballadous both from the pope and the French king, and found the king of England at Berwike, readie with his armie Anno Reg. 10. to fet forwards into Scotland. But thefe amballa does did so much by intreatie with the two kings of England and Scotland, that about the feath of the midlent.

Then was a parlement to be holden at London, and here with articles were drawne, and certeine per titions put forth, opon the which if the parties in the meane time could agree, the peace accordinglie might be established, if not, then the warre to be prosecuted as before. The chiefest article and petition which the Scots proponed, as desirous to be therein resolved, was to understand which of the two that claimed the crowne of Scotland, to wit, Edward 20 Balfoll, and Daufd Bzuce, hat moft right thereto. But when in the parlement time the load Paurice de Burrey flue fir Beffrey de Rolle a Scotiff knight, that was thiriffe of Aire and Lenarke, being of the Baliols five, for that in time of open warre the fame The Cournes fir Geffrey had flaine his brother, bpon respect of this presumptuous part, and by reason of such soutnesse as the Scots otherwise thewed, no conclusion of peace could be brought to effect.

clufion of the DEBCC.

into Scot-6. Johns towne foza

Adam Merimuch.

land.

tifieb.

THE RESERVE OF THE PARTY OF THE

neren the con-

The R. goeth into Dcct= land.

Aberben burnt. Tho.Walfin. Str Thomas Rollelin flain.

The earle of Coinewall.

The lord Douglas.

triueling caftell built og rather repa=

Before the featt of the Alcention, the king of Eng. 30 land fent forward the king of Scots, the earles of Lancaffer, Marwike, Drfozd, and Anegos, and die ucree loods and capteins with an armie, the which at Anarmiefent ter Whitfuntide entring into Scotland, paffed ouer the Scotish sea, and comming to faint Johns towne (which the Secots had burnt, despairing to defend it as gainst the English power) they set in hand to footifie it, compatting it with deepe diches and a firong rame pier of earth. About the same time the king called a parlement at Porthampton, where leaving the pre- 4 lats and other to treat of such matters as were proponed, he himselfe rode northwards, and comming to Berwike, twke with him a small band of men of armes, and fetting forward, hafted forth till he came to faint Johns towne, where he found the king of Scots, and other his nobles greatlie wondering at his comming thither to bulwhed for. After he had refted there a little, he twie with him part of the armie, and passed forward over the mounteines of Scot land even buto Elgen in Purrey and Invernes, 50 further by manie miles than ever his grandfather had gone. In his returne he burnt the tolone of Aberden, in revence of the death of a right valiant knight called fir Thomas Koffelin, that comming thither by fea twhe land there, and was flaine by the enimies: he burnt ofuerle other townes and places in this botage, spoiling and wasting the countries where he came, not finding anic to relift him. About Lammas the earle of Comewall with the power of Poskethire 60 and Posthumberland, and the losd Anthonie Lucie with the Cumberland and Weltmerland men entred Scotland, and deffroied the well parts, as Car. rike, and other which obeied not the Balfoll. The load Milliam Douglas fill coafted the Englithmen. dwing to them what damage he might. At length this armie loden with preies and spoile returned home. but the earle of Cornewall with his owne retinue came through to faint Johns towne, where he found the king being returned thither fro his fournie with he had made beyond the mounteins. The king fraied not long there, but leaving the king of Scots with his companie in that towne, he went to Striveling, there, on the plot of ground byon which the destroicd castell had stoo, he built an other fortresse, called a Dile. And now, bicause he had spent a great deale of treasure in those warres of Scotland, he summoned a parlement to be holden at Potingham, in with there was granted to him a tenth of the cleargie, and likewife of the citizens and burgelles of god towns and a fifteenth of other that dwelt forth of cities and ozougyes. About the latter end of Daober, John of Elham Chillian Engiand and Scottand, that about the team of the Burification, a truce was agreed byon to indure till 10 earle of Cornetwall the kings brother departed this of them. life at faint Johns towne in Scotland : his bodie Come was afterwards conneied to Wellminster, there buried with all folemne funerals. The Scotish with ters affirme that he was flaine by his brother king Coward for the crueltie be had bled in the well parts of Scotland, in fleating fuch as for fafegard of their lines fled into churches . Poseover, in Wecember Chebus there deceased at S. Johns towne afortfato, bugh of house de Freines, that in right of the countelle of Line freines colne was intituled earle of Lincolne. De vied of the of Lincolne fit, 02 (as was faid) through excelline cold, which in Walter C. those quarters in that cold time of the yeare soze as burgh flicted the English people: In the meane time, as Thomas bout the feast of faint Luke the enangelist, the king went with an armie into Scotland toward the callell of 15othuille, and comming thither repared the fame, which by the Scots had latelie before beene bestroied. Thein The baron Stafford at the fame time comming to staffin wards the king with a power of men, toke Douglas Dale in his wate, taking in the same a great prece of cattell and other things.

Before Christmasse the king returned into England, but the king of Scots remained all the winter in faint Johns towne with a fober companie. When the king had fetled the state of Scotland under the government of the Balfoll, thole Scotishmen with a statute toke part with the Balioll, ordeined as it were in respective his compense of king Cowards friendship a Statute, Scott it thereby they bound themselves to the said king Co. of Conse ward and his heires kings of England, that they thould aid and affilt him against all other princes: and when soener it chanced that either he or any king of England being rightfull inheritoz, had any wars again any prince, either within the land or without, the Scotilhmen of their owne proper colls and er penfes thoulo find thee hundred horffernen, ca thow fand formen well and sufficientlie arrated for the warre, the which thirtiene hundred men the Scots thould wage for a whole yeare : & if the king of England ended not his warres within the yeare, then he to give wages to the fato number of thirteene hundred Scots, as he douth to other of his fouldiers and men of warre. There be that write, that the king of Polydia England Chould not onlie fortifie faint Johns towns about this time, as before is mentioned, but allo faint Andrews, Cowper, Aberdine, Dunfermeling, with Count certeine other castels, leaving garisons of men in the tiste by fame. But for fo much as ye may read sufficientlie Ground of those troubles, in Scotland; and of the returns of king Parts 6-14. king Dauld footh of France, and how his realine was recovered out of the Baliols hands in the Scotish chronicles: we néed not here to make anie long discourse thereof.

The quiene was delivered of hir fecond sonne at Th. W. Hatfield, who was therfore named William of Hat. Cronics when he was but young. The king being returned home out of Scotland, fought by all wates possible michigan how to recover monie, both to suplie his charges for the the Scotish wars, and also to furnish the other wars maintain which he meant to take in hand against the French wants king : he got so much into his hands (as it is reported by writers)that it was berie scant and hard to come by throughout the thole realme: by reason of with relical wirs end frarlitie of monte.

Carlitie

1338

Kan, Higd.

Polydor,

Fabian.

Croxden.

epparell.

fearlitie and want of monie, or upon some other ne greet theaps coffarie caule, vittels, and other chaffer and merchans bise were ercading cheape : for at London a quarter of wheat was fold for two Hillings, a fat ore for to fillings eight pence, a fat theepe forfir pence or cigot pence, halfe a dogen of pigeons for one penie, a fat gode for theo pence, a pig for one pente, and fo all other bivels after the like rate. This ware was the warre proclamed betwirt England and France, chefelie by the procurement 10 of the load Mobert Dartois, a Frenchman, as then banished out of France, spon oceasion of a claime by him made unto the earloome of Artois. This logo

Robertaffer he was banished France, fled over bn. to king Coward, the gladic received him and made him earle of Richmond. All the gods of the Italians were by the kings commandement this peare confilcate to his vic, and so like wife were the gods of the monks of the Cluniake and Cifferce aur orders. Allis yeare also a comet or blasing ? flarre appeared, with long and terrible freames pal fing from it. In the eleanenth years of his reigne, the king held a parlement at Meliminiter, about Anno Reg. 11. the time of Lent, during the which, of the earledome of Concwall he made a duchie, and gave it buto his clock some Coward, that was then earle of The fter, whom also (as some write) he created at the same time prince of Wales.

Creations of noble men. Hen.Marle. Inact of ar= Taic,against famptuous.

Dozeover in reward of fernice, there were fir no. blemen at this parlement advanced to the honour 30 and title of earles, as the losd Henrie sonne to the carle of Lancaffer was created earle of Derbie, 02 after some writers, earle of Leiceffer; William Bo. bun was created earle of Porthampton, William Montacute carle of Salisburie, Hugh Auveley Idditions to earle of Glocester, William Clinton earle of Buntingdon, and Robert Uffood earle of Suffolke. This creation was on the fecond fundate in Lent, and the fame day were twentie knights made, whose names fer hierfenelle we owhere omit. In this parlement 40 it was enaced, that no man hould weare any many ner of filke in gowne, cote, or doublet; except he might dispend of god and sufficient rent an hundred pounds by yeare, which act was not long observed. For the nature of man is luch, that of it owne cor rupt a cuill inclination, it withfrandeth good things, and choseth rather to follow what soener is forbioden; yea though the same be starke naught and offensive to law and conscience: which preposterous and o uerthwart disposition the poet noteth well, sateng, 50

– aliúdą cupido Mens alud swadet: video meliora, probogo Deteriora sequor.

It was also ordeined by the adulte of this parle ment, that Henrie of Lancaster newlie created erle of Derbic thould go ouer into Balcoine, there to remaine as the kings lieutenant. But Richard Southwell faith, that the earle of Salifburie, and not the carle of Derbie was appointed to go into Galcoine at that time, and the earle of Marwike into Scot, 60 land. Pogeover in this parlement it was enaced that timing over no woll of the English growth should go fouth of the land, but be here wrought and made in cloath: and further an act was ordeined for receiving of Frangers that were clothworkers, and order taken, that fit and convenient places thould be affigued footh to them where to inhabit, with manie pitulleges and liberties, and that they thould have wages and Atpends allowed them, till they were so settled as they might gaine commodiouslie by their occupation and science: but now to returne agains to other The castell of matters.

The Scots this yeare take the castell of Bothuile in it, departed with their lines and goods faucd . Dis verse other cassels and soutrestes were taken by the Scots in Fife, and in other parts, but the countric of Galloway was by them speciallie sove afflices, bicause the people there held with their losd Coward Balfoll. Pereppon it was agreed in this last parles ment, that the earle of Marwike being appointed to go thither, Could have with him the power beyond Arent northwards. But when about the Accention tide the Scots had belieged the callell of Strineling, the king of England in person hasted thitherwards, of whole approach the Scots no loner bnderitod, but that Areightwaies they brake up their fiege, and beparted thence: the king therefore returned backe in to the fouth parts. About the fame time fir Cufface Sir Gufface de Parwellinight, lood of Carlanerocke, revolted Warwell from Coward Balioll buts Dauid le Bzufe his live, and so that part dailie increased, and also the warre continued, with damage inough onto both parts.

In the beginning of September the earle of The earle of Marwike with an armie entred Scotland by Ber, warwike wike, and the load Thomas de Wake, and the load imadeth Clifford, with the bishop of Carleill accompanied with the Westmerland and Cumberland men ene fred by Carleill, and within two dates after met with the earle of Marwike, as before it was amointed, and to ining togither, they passed forwards, spok ling and walking Teutoale, Pofetetoale, and Pidel dale. The load Anthonie Lucie with a part of the armie entred into Balloway, and after he had walled that countrie, he returned to the armie, which by roas son of the erceeding great weat that fell in that seas fon, they could not keepe on their fournie into Doug glassale, and to Aire, as they had appointed: but has uing remained in Scotland twelve dates, they returned altogither buto Carleill. Coward Balioll was not with them in this fournie, but remained Mill in England.

The Scots in reuenge hereof made diverle rodes into England, withdrawing fill with their prey and hoties, before the English power could assemble to give them battell. About Alhallontide, the Scots bes Che callell of fleged the castell of Edenburgh, but the bishop of Edenburgh Carleil, the logo Kancoll Dacres of Billefland, with the power of the counties of Cumberland and of Westmerland, and the king of Scots Coward Bas lioll, with the lost Anthonie Lucie, and such companie as they brought from Berwike, mæting at Koc helburgh,marched foath unto Coenburgh, and chas Che liege is fing the Scots from the fiege, twke order for the fafe ration. keeping of the castell from thencefooth, and returned into England. In this meane time things happened so well to the purpose of king Coward, that by prace the united with § tife he alienated the hearts of the Flemings from the obedience of their earle, being altogither an ears neft freend to the French king . He therefore under standing the minds of his people, fought to winne them by some gentle treatie, and so do cuen at the first, concluding an agræment with them of Saunt, which were fullie at a point to have entred into league with the king of England, as with him whole freedhip by reason of the traffike of merchandize, (and namelie of the English wols) they knew to be more necessarie for their countrie than the French kings. Although by the helpe of the bithop of Tournie the The bithop of earls of Flanders caused them to frais from concluding or foining in anie such bonds of amitie with the king of England for that time, yet he doubted the are rivall of some power out of England, and thereby on appointed his baffard brother Duie of Rychell Ia. Meir, burgh, and certeine other noble men and capteins, with a crue of men of warre to lie in the Ne of belieged.

Che R.pzac= fiemings.

by furrender, so as the Englishmen that were with 1.1.1.

Inact for re-Maunt of traff: Adam Meri-

 $\mathbf{K}_{\mathcal{C}_{L},\mathbf{S}_{\mathcal{A}}}$

Sochule

tazen.

he Jicol Canfant.

In armie fen! dianters.

Fourethou= inno faith

Froistard.

Cadfant, to desend the passage there, and to see that no English thips should come or go that wate by the feas: whereof the king of England being aduerti fed, fent thither the earle of Derbie, the lood Lewes Beauchampe, the loso Reginalo Cobham, also the lord William some to the carle of Warwike, the loed Walter de Mannie an Dannenier, and other lords, knights, and capteins, with a power of five hundred men of armes, and two thousand archers, the which comming to the foresaid Ale of Cadlant, 10 found the Flemings, about fine thousand in number, readic arranged on the towne dikes and lands, in purpose to defend the entrie, which they did a cers teine space right valiantlie: but in the end they were discomfitted, and them thousand of them staine in the Arcets, hauen, and houses. Sir Guie the baffard of Flanders was taken with diverse other knights and gentlemen, the towne was burnt, and the goos with the prisoners were carried into England. This chanced on a fundate the date before the feast of faint 2 Martine in Couember. Where the lood Walter de Mannie might have had I I thousand pounds ferling for the ransome of the said fir Bute, and other paloners, the king bought them of him in the foureteenth yeare of his reigne for eight thousand pounds fferling, as by records in the tower it appeareth.

Two cardi= to England.

Additions. to Meri.

1339 Ri Southwell The caltell of Dunbar befienco.

2 parlement.

Croxden. 3 lublidie.

Che cardinals returne.

About the feast of faint Partine in winter, there nais come m= came buto London two cardinals, fent by the pope to treat for a peace betwirt the kings of England, and France. Thearchbilhopof Canturburie, with 30 the bishops of Minchester, Clie, Chichester, Couen trie, the comoners of the citie of London met them on Shoters hill. The duke of Coencivall with the earle of Surrie, and manie other of the nobilitie recefued them a mile without the citie. The king him felfe received them at the leffer hall doze of his palace at Welfminster, and brought them into the painted chamber, where they declared their mellage: wherespon the king cansed a parlement to be summoned at London, to begin the morrolv after Can 40 dlemasse day. The king held his Christmasse at Gilds ford, and within the octaves of the fame feaff he toke his tournic towards Scotland, or rather (as other haur)he fent thither the carles of Salifburie, Gloce, fer, Derbie, and Anegos, with the barons, the loads Percie, Deuill, and Stafford, the which with twentie thousand men besieged the castell of Dunbar.

This fiege began even in the beginning of the twelfth yeare of king Colwards reigne, and continu ed for the space of nineteene weeks, with small gaine 50 and leffe honour to the Englishmen, in so much that the same brake by binder a colour of a truce, when there was no hope of winning the place, and that the noble men that late there at fiege, hafted to make an end, that they might attend the king in his tournie o ner into Wabant. The morrow after Candlemalle day the parlement began, in which there was a grant made to the king by the lattie of the one halfe of their towiles through the thole realme for the next fummer, which he received, and like wife he levied of the 60 cleargie the fehole, caufing them to paie nine marks of cuerie facke of the best woll. But affer the rate of the one halfe he twhe in whose hands so ever it was found, aswell merchants as others. After this, he twice a fifteenth of all the communaltie of his realme in woll, the price of eneric frone conteining foure tiene pounds rated at two thillings. The one and twentith of Parch the two cardinals twice the sea at Douer, and in their companie went oner the archbis thop of Canturburic, and the bishop of Durham to treat of a peace, if by any god means the two kings might be made frends. 13ut as it appeared, their tranell was in vaine, for although they above togither for a time on the frontiers, doing their best indeuoz vet their tranell nothing qualled, as by that which followeth is most manifest.

The flemings that faucured king Coward were put in such comfort by the late bidorie obteined by the Englithmen in the Ile of Cablant, that falling to their former practife, one Jaquies or Jacob oan James Artenelo an honimaker of the lowne of Gang was Jacobar, chosen amongst them to be as it were the oriender uchabin of the people, and namelie of the weather, and other make at clothworkers. Finallie, his authorifie grew lo huge. clothwozhers. I mallie, his authozitie grew wouger the amongst all the whole number of the commons in the amongst all the whole number of the commons in the amongst all the whole number of the commons in the amongst all the whole number of the common to Handers, that he might do more with them than comman their earle; and pet the earle to reconcile the people to his fauour, ceaffed not to bie all courteous means fowards them that he could deaile, as releating the fromes and buties of monie, pardoning offenics, forfeitures, and other such like, but all would not a uaile him. The king of England had so won them by the meanes of the faid Jaques ban Arteueld, that in the end John archbishop of Canturburie, & Richard the bishop of Durham, came into Handers as am Bleggib balladors from king Coward, and travelled lo ear, land that nestlie to draw the flemings buto an amitie with bers. their maffer king Coward, that finallie a league lacken was concluded betwift the countrie of Flanders, and the faid king at Gant, in the presence of the earle of Belderland, as then being there. The thefe authors of this league were the fair Jaques van Ar authors of this league were thermo Raques van attention, and a noble man of Flanders, called Siger Cump, de Curtrev.

But this Siger being immediatlie affer appe hended by the earle of Flanders, was put to death. Which ac procured the earle so much hatred of the people, that thoutlie after comming to Binges, and attempting to force the towne to his will, he was forced himselfe to the from thence, for otherwise he had been either taken of flaine; the commons of the The falm tolone a namelie the fullers, of abome he had flaine of Gant fome there in the Arests, role fo fail bpon him. Here, Chemital bpon fleing home to his house, he toke his wife, and flanders a sonne which he had, and fled with them into France, flethinto fo forfaking his countrie which was now governed frant by Jaques van Arteueld, as though he had beine im mediatile lood thereof. After this, the earle returned he returned home againe, as it were with the French kings come home, million, to persuade the Flemings to renounce the league concluded with the king of England: but he could bring nothing to patte, but was fill in danger to have beene arrested and stated of his owne subieas, both at Bant and in other places, but namelie at Dirmue, where if he had not made the moze half Dirmu awaie, he had beene taken by them of Bruges. A mongh other of his Ausse which he lest behind him in that hastie departure, his signet was foggetten, and not missed till he came to saint Dmers, whither he fled for his fafegard.

Thus ye may perceive that Flanders refled the flantin lie at king Cowards commandement, the to esta- wholearth blith amitie also with the duke of 132abant, and other denoted princes of the empire, about the middelt of Julie fais A. Court led ouer buto Antwerpe, with his wife quaine Philip, A Com his some the prince of Wales, and a great number failth o of other of the pieres and barons of his realme, Interior where he was most inifullie received of the duke of Brabant, and other loads of the empire. There was fent to the emperour to procure his frænothip, from the king of England, the marques of Bulike with Froifisch certcine noble men of England, and also certeine of Cherachet the duke of Oclderland his councell, the which mar fand. ques was made at that time an earle, & the earle of Gelberland was made duke. This duke of Gelber, She tall land named Reginald had married the lavie flabell Geloria fifter of king Coward, and therefore in favour of the created it king his brother in law, travelled most earnesslie to procure

procure him all the frænds within the empire that he

The princes and loads then, with thom king Co. mard was alied and confederated at that time, 3 Contestates. find to be thefe; the dulies of Babant and Gelverland, the archbishop of Cullen, the marquelle of Sulte, fir Arnold de Baquehen, and the lood of Clalkenburgh, who all promifed to defie the French king, in the king of Englands quarrell, and to ferue him with notable numbers of men, where and when focuer it thoulo please him to amount. The altance of the earle of Deinault first procured the king of England all thefe freends, buto the which earle he had fent ouer the bishop of Lincolne and other in ambal. fage, immediatlie after that he had resolved to make warres against France, by the counsell and adulte of fir Robert Dartois, as in the French historie moze plainlie appeareth. In this meane fealon was quane Philip brought to bed at Antwerpe of hir third fonne, which was named Lionell. The king of 20 England carnefflie followed his bufineffe, and bad manie treaties with his frends and confederats, till at length be made fure to him the freenoship of all those townes a countries, which lie betwirt France and the river of Khene: onelie the cities of Tournie and Cambrie held of the French kings part, though Cambrie belonged to the empire.

Enhittone to Adam Meri-3 parlement A lablitie bp= coalts of this

Minmouth

Eberaric of Ach South.

Longias.

li illiam

Lioneli that rence boane.

In this twelfth yeare of king Edwards reigne at a councell holden at Posthampton by the duke of the king his brother, and by manie of the prelats and barons of the realme, there was granted to the king a lublidie in woll, to the great burthen of the conv The cleargie mons : but for fo much as the cleargie of the land was not present at that councell, it was ordeined that they thould be called, and to they aftembled in a connocation at London the first day of Daober, in which the cleargie granted to the king a tenth for the third years then to come, over and belides the two tenths before granted, and that the tenth of this prefent yeare thould be paid in thorter time than it was amointed: but they flatlie denied to grant their wols, which neverthelesse the laitie paid, and that to their great hinderance, for it role double to a fifteene. From the beginning of Datober, to the beginning of December this yeare, fell fuch abundance of raine that it hindered greatlie the hulbandmen in sowing of their winter come: and in the beginning of De cember came such a behement frost continuing the space of twelve weeks, that it destroice by all the seed 50 almost that was sowne, by reason whereof small flore of winter come came to profe in the lummer following: but though there was no plentie, yet all Annokeg. 13. kinds of graine were fold at a reasonable price, through want of monie.

The Frenchmen by lea fore troubled the lea coaffs of this realme, speciallie where the champion countries fretch towards the fea coaffs. At Pastings in min umade & the feast of Corpus Christi, they burnt certeine fisher. mens houses, and suc some of the inhabitants. Also 60 in the hauens about Denonthire and Cornewall, and towards Bristow, they toke and burnt certeine thips, killing the mariners that came to their hands, and in the Whitsun-weike they landed at Pline mouth, and burnt the moze part of the towne : but Dugh Courtnie earle of Denonthire, a man almost fourescore yeares of age, and other knights and men of the countrie came against these Frenthmen, dear ing fuch as came into their hands to the number of five hundred, as was efficented, and chaled the relidue. The Scots also about the same time old much burt and great mildhefe to the Englishmen both by fea and land.

Anthe beginning of Julie the losd William Dow

glas, with a number of men of warre, returned from France home into England, and to him bpon his returne the castell of Cowper was delivered, with all the countrie thereabouts. After this, comming to the flege of S. Johns towne, which the governour the Hea. Boerius earle of Purrey, the erle of Parch, Patrike de Dunbarre, and other of the Scotish loads had belieged, at length it was surrendered by sir Thomas Athred capiteine there of the English garison, departing in fafetie home into England . Thie daies before the featt of the Allumption of our ladie, there chanced in the night feafon such a mightie and sudden inundation of water at Pewcastell opon Tine, that it 3 flond, bare downe a piece of the towne wall, fir perches in length, niere to a place called Walknow, where a hundred and twentie femporall men with diverse piels and manie women were diowned and las mentablie perished.

But now to returne to the king, which all this while remained in Brabant. De have heard how the citie of Cambrie held with the French king: where fore the B. of England allembling togither a mightie frong armie aswell of Englishmen as of the low countries of Dutchland, ment to beliege it, but first he sent the archbishop of Canturburie with the bishops of Lincolne and Durham onto Arras, as commissioners from him to met there with the Comissioners archbishop of Rouen, and the bishops of Langres fent to treat and Beaucais, appointed to come thither as com-Comewall, lood warden of England in absence of 30 millioners from the French king, to treat with the Englishmen of a peace, but they could not a gree bpon anie conclusion, wherebpon king Coward, comming forward with his power, appear agree thed to Cambrie, and planted his fiege round as Cambrie bea bout it. But the bilhop, not meaning to beliver the acged. citie buto king Coward noz buto anie other that Mould demand it to the behave of the emperour Ludonike of Bautere, as then ercommunicated of the pope, had received into the towne five thouland Frenchmen, with the French kings eloeff Ia. Meir. sonne, the duke of Pozmandie latelie returned out of Buien, and the lord Theobald Paruife, with cer. The king rate teine companies of Sanoilins, to that the citie was leth bis liege lo defended, that the king of England perceiving he and entreth thould but lose time, levied his siege, and entred into France, Flamin: France, pitching his field at a place called Flamine guerie. querie.

In the meane time had the French king not Fabian. orrelie made himselfe ftrong by land, but also by sea, Thom. Walfi. having lent forth a Arong name of thips and gallies towards the coalis of England, which arriving at Southampton the mondaie after Dichaelmas day, burit, take and spoiled the towne, and the morrow after set fire byon it in fine places, fo that a great part of it was burnt. Also thirteene failes of the French fleet met with fine Englich thips, and after a loze fight which continued nine houres, take two of those fine being tall and goolie thips, the one called the Co. ward, and the other the Chillopher; the other thic be, Ewo English ing finaller bellels, as two of them barks and the thips taken, other a carnell escaped by their swiftnesse of sailing. There was flaine in that fight opon both parts about the number of fir hundred men.

The French king himfelfe hearing that the hing of England would inuade his realme, made his ger acrall affemblie of his armie at Pocronne; and when he heard that he was entred France, he remoued towards him with his whole power, being at the Trench point of an hundred thouland men, as in the French kings armie, dponicle ye may read more at large. The king of England had not pall the éloge thouland in his acmie at the most: but whilest he late there open the Iacob. Meir. borders of France, his people did much hurt, making roads abjoad beyond the water of Some, burning of peace.

Ll.y.

They cannot

E omino burnt by the @nglifhmen in France. Che towne of Sinfe burnt.

Se carie of Demault.

and fpoiling abbies, tolons, and billages, as & ignic, faint Benoit, Ribimont in Dieraffe, faint Couan, Barle, and Creffie. Allo the losd Beaumont of Deis nault burnt the towne of Ouife, though bis baugh ter was as then within the same towne wife buto Lewesearle of Blois: his brother William earle of termault was latelie before deceaffed, leaving the earledome to his fonne named also William, who continued with the king of England folong as be laie before Cambrie, t kept him within the bounds 1 of the empire, as though his allegiance had bound him to no leffe, but after the faid king was paffed the river of Lefcault, otherwife called the Skell, and in Latine scalds, which divideth the empire from the kingdome of France, he would no longer ferue the king of England, but departed from him for feare to offend the French king, accounting that the matter perteined not now to the empire, but to the private quarell and bufinelle of the king of England: not withstanding his uncle the laid fir John like a faith full gentleman continued ftill in king Coward his feruice.

Ehs armics approch nere wgither.

Froit ard.

Sobert king si Sicili die madeth the to fight with England.

retire without battell.

3 councell at Dintett,

> 10 1612

The two armies of England and France approthed within foure miles togither, fo that euerie man thought that there would fure have beene battell be. twirt them, as there had bene in bed, if the french king bao bone willing; pet some faie, that he of himfelfe was disposed thereto: but his councello;s adnico him to the contrarie, by reason of certeine signs and tokens which they milliked, as the flarting of an hare amongst them, and such like. Also it was faid that Robert king of Paples being then come into France, those knowledge in altronomie was knowne to be great, distuaded the French king by his letters, that in no wise he should fight with the king of England, for he had understanding by art of the heavenlie influences and disposition of the bos vies about, that if the French king fought with this Colward king of England, he thould affured ie be put to the worle. Thether this was the cause, or anie 40 other, fure it is that the Frenchmen had no mind to fight, so that these two mightie armies departed in funder without battell, and the king of England returned into flanders, forie in bed that he had not with him halfe the number that the French king had, pet in truff of the valiancie of his fouldiers, chofen out of the pikeoff men through England and all the low countrie on this floe the Rhene, he ment verelie to have incountered his enimies, if they had come forward. At his comming backe into Babant, there was a councell railed at Buillets, where were present all those loods of the empire which had beine with him in that fournie, as the outes of Babant, Gelderland, and Culike, the marques of Blankbourgh, the earle of 13ergen, the lood 13eaumont of Deinault other wife called fir John to Heinault, the load of Walkery bourgh, and manic others. Thither came also Jaques Arteuclo chefe gouernour of Planders. Pere in mainteine the wars which be had begun thus against the French king, he was adulted that he thould in a nie wife require them of Flanders to aid him, and in his quarell to defie the French king, and to go with him against the faid French king, and if they would thus do, then thould be promife them to recover and beliver into their hands the towns of Lifle, Downie, and Bethon. The king of England, according to this abuile to him given, made futh request to the fle mings, who therebpon believe time to confult togither, what they might don the rem, and finallie they do clared for answer, that they would gladie to do, but pet thereas they were bound by faith and oth, and in the fumine of two millians of florens in the popes chamber, not to make not mone any warre againg the king of France, wholoeuer he were, on paine to lofe that fumme, and befice to run in the fentence of China curling, they belought him, that it might fand with the fine curling, they belong to jum, was a ringy a name will be be belong to have to him of right and of England his preside, to tame open gone to him of right, and tier port then would they obey him as rightfull is of France, themite and require of him acquittances in discharge of their crowns bonds, and he to pardon them thereof, as rightfull France king of France.

The king of England, though he had full cause to claime the crowne of France, in right of his mother quæne Habell, pet to take bpon him the name and armes of that realme, before he had made conquell of any part thereof, he thought it flod not with much reason: but yet after he had caused the matter to be throughlie devated amongst them of his councell, as well to fatilite the Flemings, as for other respects, be fair it should be the best water that might be taken to the advancement of his purpole. Then he answered The bing the Ptennings, that if they would tweare, and scale answers to this accord, and promise to mainteine his warre, he would be contented to fulfill their defire, and allo he promised to get for them agains the townes of This trans Lide, Dowaie, and Bethune. Herebpon was a day bab ban: affigned to met at Sant : the king came thither, and gagoon the most part of the faid loods, and all the councelloss bing of for most of the good townes a places in Flanders were there affembled, and so all the foresaid matters were rehearled, fivorne, and leaked, and the armes of France The quant were then quartered with those of England, and ungoing from thenceforth he toke boon him the name of hing Engine of France, in all his writings, proclamations, and france, commandements. This is noted by Christopher Okland, where speaking of the mingling of the French and Englith armes, he faith amongst other things,

-ve barca

Legisumus regni Celtarum infignia gentis Ille fuu immifeet atrox quod auunculus orbus

Carolus e vita ad superas migrauerat oras, erc. Sith then that we be come to this place, it thall Polyden not bemuch amille to rehearle somewhat of the right ain title infereby king Comard diothus claimethe crowne of France, bauing of purpole omitted to speake thereof, till now that he intituled himselse with the name, a twice opon him to beare the armes allo of France, opon occasion before expressed. It is Theffart well knowne that Philip le Beau king of France Bing. had filter by his wife queene Jone three fons, Lewes furnamed Hutine, Philip le Long, and Charles le Bean : also two daughters, the one dieng in hir infancie, and the other named Rabell lines, and was maried buto @biward the fecond of that name king of England, who begot of hir this Coward the third, that made this claime. The three sonnes of the force faid fibilip le Beau reigned ech after other, as bings of France. First after Ihilip the father, freceded Limit his electiforme Lewes Hatine, who had iffue by his time first wife Pargaret, daughter to Robert duke of conneclitation bow the bing of England might beft 60 Burgogne, a daughternamed Jone, the which was anon given in mariage into Lewesearle of Ew reur: but the living not long, died without iffue. Hir father the faid Leives Huttine married affer the des cease of his first wife, an other wife named Clo mence, baughter to Charles Partell, the father of it. Robert of Sicill, whom he left great with child when he died. The child being borne proued a fon, a was named John, but lived not manie dates after. Then Whilip the Long was admitted buto the crotone of Philips France; though manie flod in opinion that Jone the baughter of Lewes Hutine, ichich pet was aline, ought to have inherited the hingdome after hir father : and namelie Doo duke of Burgogne, weele to the faid Jone, was most earnest in that matter, in far

In Angland Sub Espans

Charles le

ting ED:

Ia. Mair.

Ring Ed:

bponhim the

Additions to our of his nece. But might our came right, to that he was confireinco to be quiet. Philip le Long, after he had reigned due peares, died allo, and lett no iffue behind him. Then lafflie Charles le Beau toke bpon him the hingdome, and the fewenth yeare after died, his wife big bellied, which Mostlie after brought forth amaiden named Blanch, that Areightwaies halling to follow hir father, lived no while in this world. Wo this means then the bloud rotall in the heires male of Philip le Beau was ertinguished in his sonne the 1 foresaid Charles le Beau, thereof the contention toke beginning about the right to the crowne of France, betwirt the Frenchmen and Englishmen. which hangeth as yet broccided till thefe our dates. for king Coward auerred that the kingdome of France apperieined buto him as lawfull beire , bis cause that he alone was remaining of the kings focke, and touched his mothers father Philip le 15e audin the next degree of confanguinitie, as he that was borne of his daughter Isabell.

Therefore immediatlie after the decease of the faid Charles le Beau, by ambassadours sent onto the pæres of France, he published to them his right, requiring that they would admit him king accorbing therebuto : but his amballadours could never to the crowne be quietlic heard, and therefore returned home without anie towardlie answer, which moved him in the end to attempt the recoverie of his lawfull inheris tance by force, fith by law he could not prevaile, and now by adulle of his freends to take byon him both 30 the title and armes of France, to fignific to the world what right he had to the same. After that this league therefore was concluded with them of Flanders, and that king Coward had taken bpon him the name of king of France with the armes ; the duke of Bel. derland and Jaques van Arteueld went onto all the god townes and jurifdictions of Flanders, to receive mings fwere their oths of fidelitie buto king Coward, perfuading feature to the with the people, that the supreme rule belonged buto king of Eng. him, lauring to the tolunes their ancient lawes and le 40 berties, and to their earle his right of proprietie.

About the latter end of this thirteenth yeare of B. Cowards reigne, the mariners and fea-men of the cinque posts getting them abost into a number of fmall thips and balingers, well trimmed and appointed for the purpole, patted ouer to Bullongne, more they take land one day in a thicke foggie wear ther, and letting on the Bale towne, they burnt nines tone gallies, foure great thips, and to the number of and furniture. They let fire also on the houses that Coonere to the water five, and namelie they burnt one great house, wherein late such a number of oares, failes, armour, and croffebowes, as might have fulficed to furnish so manie men as could be well aboud in ninctione gallies. There were manie flaine on both parts in atchiving this enterprise, but more of the Frenchmen than of the Englishmen. About the fame time the queene of England was delinered of hir fourth some in the towne of Baunt, the which 60 was named John, first created earle of Kichmond, and after duke of Lancaster. He was borne about

Then king Coward had finished his businesse Augo (105,14, Will) the Flemings at Saunt, he left bis wife quene chilip there still in that towne, and returned himfelfe unto Antiwerpe, and thoutlie after about the feast of Canolematic twice the fea, and came backe into England, to provide for monie to mainteine his begun warres . And herespon about the time of Lent following, he called his high court of parlement at Wellminiter, in the which he afted of his commons towards his charges, for the recoverie of his right in

Chilimalle, in the thirteenth yere of king Cowards

France, the fift part of their moueable gods, the Hen customes of wols for two yeares to be paid afore. hand, and the ninth thease of everte mans come. At A sublidie, length it was agreed, that the king thoulo have for eneric fache of woll fortie Hillings , for enerie them hundled woll fels fortie thillings, and for cueric late of leather fortie Hillings, and for other merchandize after the rate to begin at the featt of Caffer, in this fouretenth yeare of the kings reigne, and to indure till the feath of Pentecost then next following, and from that feath till the feath of Pentecost, then nert infuing into one yeare: for which the king granted, that from the feast of Pentecost, which was then to come into one yeare, he not his heires thould not demand, affeste, noz take, noz suffer to be affested oz taken, more cultome of a facke of woll of any Eng. lithman, but halfe a marke, and opon the woll fels and leather the old former custome.

Belide this, the citizens and burgelles of cities 20 and god townes, granted to give the ninth part of all their gods; and the foren merchants and other not living of gaine, not of bewoing cattell, not of thepe, thould give the lift eith part of all their gods lawfullie to the value: for the which he granted that as well now in time of warre as of peace, all merchants, denizens and forceiners (those ercepted that were of the enimies countries) might without let fafelie come into the realme of England with their gods and merchandize, and lafelie tarie, and like wife returne, pateng the customs, substotes, and profits, resonable thereof one, so alwaics that the franchises and free customs granted by him or his predecessours reasonablie to the citie of London, and other cities, burroughes, and townes, might alwaics to them be faued . Dozeover, there was granted buto him the ninth theafe, the ninth flece, and ninth lambe, to be taken by two yeares nert comming. And for the les nieng thereof, the losos of enerte thire through the land, were appointed to answer him, cuerie one for the circuit within the which he divelled . And bicause the king mult needs occupie much monie yer the receit of this lublidie could come to his hames, he bozos wed in the meane time manie notable furtimes of diverse cities, and particular persons of this land, as The citie of mongst the which he borrowed of the citie of Lon. London lenbont 20000 marks, to be pated agains of the monie monie, monie, comming of the forefato sublidie. In the meane while, now that king Coward was come backe into England, the warres were botlie twentie smaller vellels, togither with their tackle 50 pursued against his freends, that had their lands nere to the borders of France, and namelie against fir John de Heinault lozd Beaumont, for the French men burned all his lands of Chimate, ercept the for trelles, and twhe from thence a great prete. All the The frontifrontiers were full of men of warre , lodged within era of France tolones in garrifon, as at Cournie, Poztaigne, S. full of men of Amond, Dowaie, Cambite, and in other smaller fortrelles. These men of warre late not tole, but were doing offentimes in Flanders, and sometime others where, neither was the countrie of Beinault spared, though the earle (as pæ haue heard) ofd not onclie refuce to ferne the king of England against France, but also when the same bing entred France, he resoze ted to the French king, and served him; yet by the luggedion of the bilhop of Cambzie, who complate ned of the Painniers, for the damages which they had done him, the French garrifons of the frontiers thereabouts were commanded to make a road into that countrie, which they vid, burning the towns of The towns of Alper, and brought from thence a great bottle. The Alperdurnt, earle of Peinault fore moued therefuth to haue his The ericof lands to spoiled and burnt, defied the French king, Demant beste and foining with his bucle the lood Beaumont, en eth the frech tred with an armic into Thicrafte, twhe & destroicd hing.

Saunt boane.

Aubentair.

Cownes Chieraffe. Aubenfon, with Bawbert, Fonteine, Daubecuille, and diverse other.

Flanders inferbideb.

Ad, Merim.

Adam Mc-

Iac.Meir.

Baltiburte ?

Suffolke ta:

In this meane time the French king procured the pope to pronounce his curde against the Flomings for their rebellion, and to suspend all dinine service that ought to be face in anic hallowed place, to that there were no priests to be found that would take by on them to fair any office fertice: therebpon the Flemings fent ouer into England certeine mellenintreated, but he fent them wood that he would bring at his comming over onto them, priests that should faie malles and other fernice, whether the pope would or not, for he had privilege fo to do. In Aprill, Will liam Delton archbishop of Porke departed this life, after whome variance role in the election of a new governour to that thurth, so that two were elected, Cililliam la Zouch, and Milliam Billesbie : but at length William la Zouch toke place, being the 43 archbishop that ind sit in that seat. The earles of 20 Salisburie and Suffolke, which were left in Flanders by king Coward to helpe the Flemings, thost lie after Effer,og(as other haue) in the time of Lent, incre discomfited by the garrison of Life, and taken prisoners as they would have passed by that towne. Thecarles of to have found with Jaques Arteueld, meaning to befrege Tournie; but now by the taking of those two carles that enterprise was broken. The duke of Por mandie with a great armie entered into Heinault, The countrie burning and walking the countrie, even to the gates 30 of Ualenciennes and Duelnoy. And thus were they occupied in those parts, whilest the king of England prepared himselfe with all diligence to returne into Mlanders.

inuabed.

Gaguin,

I great nauie the french hing.

The hing of keth the tea.

Polydor. la Meir.

Additions to Triuct.

The French king being advertised, that the king of England meant Choetlie to returne into Flaw ders with a great power, in purpole to inuade the realme of France on that five, aftembled a naute of foure hundred flyips buder the leading of three expert capteins of the warres by lea, as fir Hugh Biriell, fir 40 Weter Bahuchet, and a Genewcis named Barbe Noir, appointing them to the coasts of Flanders to before the king of England from landing there, if by any meanes they might. Thefe thee capteins or admerals came and late with their thips in the haven of Slutte, for that it was inposed the king of England would arrive there, as his meaning was indeed. there open then his men, thips, and prouisions were once readie in the moneth of June, he toke the fea with two hundred faile, and directing his course to: 50 wards Flanders, there came buto him the load Ko. bert Hogley, with the north name of England, fo that then he had in all about thee hundred faile, or (as other fair) two hundred and three fcore.

The French name late betwirt Sluffe and Blancbergh, so that when the king of England approched, rither part descried other, a therewith prepared them to battell. The king of England Stated, till the funne which at the first was in his face, came somewhat westivard, and so had it vpon his backe, that it should 60 not hinder the fight of his people, and so therewith did fet voon his enimies with great manhod, who England fer- likelvile verie Coutlie incountered him, by reason teth boon his ithereof infued a fore and deadlie fight betwirt them. The names on both fides were divided into the bat. tels. On the English part, the earles of Gloceffer, Porthampton and Huntington, who was admerall of the fleet that belonged to the cinque posts, and the loed Robert Doeley admerall of the northerne naute had the guiding of the fore ward, bearing themselnes right valiantlie, so that at longth the Englishmen having the advantage, not onlie of the funne, but alto of the wind and tide, to fortunatlie, that the French flutivas driven into the Arcights of the haven, in fuch wife that neither the fouldiers not mariners could helpe themselves, in somuch that both beauen. fea, and wind, feemed all to have conspired against fea, and wind, removed at the frenching of flant the Frenchinen. And herefully manic thips of flant the Chibas the Frenchmen. 2010 presently the English fleet, in the Other of the Ch. enothe Frenchmen were vanquithed, flaine and ta mener fi ken, their thips being also either taken, bowged, og battell er broken.

Ren. Then night was come boon them, there were addition gers to give notice to king Coward how they were 10 thirtie French thips, that yet had not entred the bat. Trace tell the which fought by couert of the night to have rimus folne awaie, and one of them being a mightic great bellell, called the James of Depe, would have taken The James awaie with hir a thip of Sandwith that belonged to of Dan the prior of Canturburie: but by the helpe of the carle of Buntington, after they had fought all the night till the next morning, the Englishmen at length preuailed, and taking that great huge thip of Depe, found in hir aboue foure hundred dead bodies. To conclude, verie few of the French thips escaped, except some of their smaller vestels, and certeine gal lies with their admerall Barbenoir, who in the begin Barbenon ning of the battell got footh of the hauen, abutting Gaguin the other capteins to do the like, thereby to anoid the Austonia. Tho. Welldanger which they wilfullie imbraced. There died in Adam Merc this battell fought (as some write) on midsummer much daie, in the yeare aforesaid, of Frenchmen to the number of 30000, of Englithmen about 4000,03 (as Froiffard other have that lived in those dates) not past 400, at R. Souther mongst whom there were foure knights of great no Che name bilitie, as fir Thomas Ponhermere, fir Thomas La. flaine timer, fir John Boteler, and fir Thomas Poinings. Rich, South

It is fato also, that the king himselfe was burt in the thigh. The tivo English thips that had beine taken the yeare before, the Coward and the Christopher, were recourred at this time, amongst other of the French thips that were taken there. ¶ Sir Peter Bahuchet was hanged bpon a croffe pole fallened to a mast of one of the thips. Through the wilfulnesse of this man, the Frenchmen received this lofte (as the French chronicles report) bicause he kept the nanie to long within the haven, till they were to inclosed by the Englishmen, that a great number of the French men could never come to Arike Aroke, noz to vie the that of their artillerie, but to the hurt of their fellows. Howfoeuer it was, the Englishmen got a famous vidorie, to the great comfort of themselves, and diff comfort of their adverlaries. The king of England, after he had thus vanquished his enimics, remained on the fea by the space of the vaies, and then comming on land, went to Bant, where he was receined of the quæne with great toy and gladnesse.

In this means thile had the duke of Pozmandie Rich. South besieged the castell of Thuine Levelques, nere to chi to ch Cambrie, which was taken by fir Walter of Pan- Froillad nie, a lozo of Deinault, at the first beginning of the warres, and ever fince till that time kept to the king of England his ble. The earle of Heinault, who had beene of late both in England with king Coward, and also in Almaine with the emperour, to purchase their affiffance for the defense of his countrie a gainst the inuations of the Frenchmen, was now returned home, and meaning to refeue fuch as were belieged in Thuine, lent for fuccours into Flanders, and into Almaine, and in the meane time levieng fuch power as he could make with his owne countrie, came there with to Malenciennes, whither forth with reforted buto him the earle of Pamure with two hundred speares, the duke of Brabant with six hundred, the duke of Gelderland, the earle of Bergen, the lood of Walkenburgh, and diverse other, the which together with the earle of Peinault went and Chill lodged alongs by the river of Lestault over against Lessel the French host, which kept siege (as ye have beard) the said ender the conduct of the duke of Pozmandie before Chuine Leuclques, that is lituate bpon the lame

The fle

m.ngs.

Lundlin.

The armies

bicalic bp.

There came also to the aid of the earle of Heinault Zagues Arteueld, with his three score thousand file: mings. Powit was thought that they would have fought yer they had departed in funder, but they did not. For after it was knowne how the king of Eng. land was arrived in Flanders, and had discomfited the French fleet, the duke of Brabant and others 10 thought goo to breake up their enterprise for that time, and to refert buto the king of England, to but derstand what his purpose was to do. Petther were the Frenchmen hastie to give battell, so that after the capteins of Thuine Levelques, lir Kichard Limo gir Richard fin knight an Englishman, and two equiers, beethen to the erle of Pamure, John and Thierric, had left their fortrelle boid, and were come over the ris ner by boats buto the earle of Heinaults campe, the armies on both fives brake up and departed, the 20 nacke and others. Frenchmen into France, and the other to Malenci ennes, and from thence the princes and great lords dicin to Gaunt, to welcome the king of England into the countrie, of whome they were right toifullie received: and after they had communed togither of their affaires, it was appointed by the king, that they thould meet him at Willefort in Brabant at a date prefired, where he would be readie to consult with them about his proceedings in his warres againft

his adverfaries the Frenchmen.

The allemblic At the day appointed, there came to Millefort the of the princes dukes of Brabant, and Gelderland, the earle of Heis nault, Bulike, Mamure, Blackenheim, Bergen, fir Robert Dartois earle of Richmond, the earle of Halkenburgh, and Jaques Arteueld, with the other The couenates rulers of Flanders, and manie others. Here it was bitwirt the k. ordeined, that the countries of Flanders, Brabant, of England a and Deinault, Should be so united and knit in one his concerate corporation, that nothing hould be done among t and if anie warres were moved against anie of them then thould the other be readie to aid them . a gainst whome ante such warre was moved i and if bponanie occasion anie discord role betwirt them for anie matter, they thould make an end of it a mongs themselves; and if they could not, then should they fland to the indocement and arbitrement of the king of England, but o whome they bound them. felnes by oth to keepe this ordinance and agree

Froiffard

The Frenchking being informed that the king of England ment to laie liege onto Tournie, as it Courne fur- was indeed deuised at this councell holden at Aillemuch with a fort, twice order for the furnishing thereof with men, drong power munition, and vittels in most defensible wife. There munition, and vittels in most defensible wife. were fent to that tolvine the best men of warre in all France, as the earle of Give constable of France, the young earle of Snines his sonne, the earle of Fois and his brethren, the carle Amerie de Parbon, with manie other, having with them foure thousand 60 fouldiers. Sir Codmar ou Foie was there before as capteine of the towne, to that it was promoco of all things necessarie. Howbeit, the king of England (according as it was appointed at the councell hole den at Willefort, about the feast of Marie Pagdalen) beparted from Gaunt, and came to Tournie, having with him scauen earles of his owne countrie, as Darbie, Penbioke, Hereford, Huntington, Porth ampton, Cloceffer, and Arundell, eight prelats, eight and twentic baronets, two hundred knights, foure thousand men of atmes, and nine thousand archers, bestoes other fortmen. He looged at the gate called faint Partine, if the waterhat is toward Life and Downie. Same is 1

Anon after came the onkes of Brabant and Gels derland, the earle of Bulike, the marqueffe of Blane queburgh, the marquelle of Bulle, the earls of Bers gen, Sauines, and Deinault : alfo Zaques Artenelo, who brought with him about fortie thousand fles The great mings. So that there was at this fiege to the num number of peo ber of fir score thousand men, as some waters af pleatthe siege firme. There was also an other armie of Flemings, Ia. Meir. as of the townes of Ppies, Poppingue, Furnes, Cassell, of the Chateleinie, of Bergis, being to the number of fortie thouland, appointed to make warre against the Frenchmen that kept faint Omers and other townes there on the frontiers of Arthois, which armie was led by the earle of Richmond, otherwise called the load Robert Dartois, and by fir Denrie de Flanders, the which approching one day to faint D mers, were tharplie fought with; for within faint De mers at that time laie a firong power of French men with the duke of Burgoine, the earle of Armie

The Flemings were not willing to ferue, for me ther had they any trust in their capteine the faiderle of Richmond, neither would they willinglie have palled out of their owne confines, but onlie to defent the fame from the invalion of their enimies : vet through much perfuation, forward they went, divid ded into fundzie battels contrarie to their manner. The entimies perceiving forme advantage, iffued forth The french= byon them, and affailed them verie floutlie, informed menfet byon that the corles formings, that the earle of Arminacke fefting byon them of Popes, overtheew them, and chased them buto a fowne called Arques, which they had a little before let on fire and burned. An other companie of French men, fairmulhing with them of Franks, Furnes, and Bergis, put them also to the woole. Contravilie, The variable those Frenchmen that encountered with the losd fortune of Robert Dartois, and them of Bruges whome he led. fights. fusteined great losse, and were beaten backe into the citie: the duke of Burgoine himselse being in no Additions to them in publike affaires, but by common consent, 40 small danger for a time, so tharpe the vickering was much. betwirt them, and the event to variable . Therefore it is notablie and fitlie sato in this behalfe, that

-incerti fallax fiducia Martis. There be that write, that this fight continued from the of the clocke till eventioe, and that the earle of Richmond was twife put to flight, for his people did leave him in the plaine field: but at length by the aduise of sir Thomas Athred, whome the king of Eng. Sir Thomas land had appointed to attend the faid earle, with ma. Attheed. nie Englishmen and archers, he assembled his peo. ple efflones togither againe, and letting on his ent. mies. Pow when it was almost night, nere to the gates of faint Dmers, he finallie ouercame them, where were Claine of the French part fifteene barons and fourescore knights, belide a great number of a ther people. Diverse also were flaine on the earle of Kichmonds part at this last encounter, and among other an Englith knight, that bare armes eldecked filuer and quies.

Finallie, as the earle of Kichmond returned to wards his campe, which late in the vale of Cattell, he met with certeine Artelines and Frenchmen, which had beine challing the other Flemings, and though it was late in the evening, that one could not take god blew of an other, yet here they fought againe; and so diverse of the Frenchmen were taken and killed and amongst other that were caught, was a knight of Burgoine, named fir William de Pillie. But when the earle of Richmond and those that were with him came to the place where the campe late, the p found that all the relique of the Flemings were ficd and gone. And then the fair earle came to Taffell, The tark of the people were readie to have flatine him, their for banger to be mer malice towards him being now much increased flame,

The earle of Bichmond.

Adam Meri-

Sil. Ital.lib.6

~!? :d5)

Polys! r 1000 200 11100114 0.504543 ្រាស់ Access.

Cournie be= with the cuill fucceste of this pasted enterprise, so that he was glad to get him thence, and to repaire buto king Coward, that late yet at the fiege before Wours nic, onring which flege manie proper feats of armes were done betweet those within and them without: for few daies patted without the atchining of fome entervale.

The great are m erailed by the French bing.

Also the French king, having made his affemblie at Arras, and got thither a mightie hoff, as well out of the empire as of his owne fubicas, came and lod 10 ged at the bridge of Bonuins, three leagues from Cournie. Here were with him the king of Bohem, the duke of Lorreine, the billyop of Wentz, the earles of 13ar, mount 1Belliard, & Sauoie, also the dukes of Burgogne and Burbone, with a great number of other earles and logos, so that the greatest pullance of all France was indged to be there with the king. Whilest he laic incamped thus at Bouuins, and the king of England at Tournie, manie exploits were atchined betwirt their people, who late not idle, but 20 fill rode abroad and oftentimes met, and then that part which was weakelf paied for the others chars ges, fo that manie were flaine & taken on both fides as well of the nobilitie as other. Also diverse townes were facked and burned on the frontiers of France, during this fiege at Cournie, namelie at the pursuit of the earle of Deinault, as Seclin, S. Amond, Dy chies, Landas, and other.

The labie Jane de Ma= for a peace.

Mitruce ac-

cozded.

The fle=

minge releas

and of the in= terbiction.

Polydor.

Restitution

of townes to England.

Gaguin,

At length at the fuit of the ladie Jane de Walois, fifter to the Arench king, and mother to the earle of 30 Deinault, travelling fill betwirt the parties to bring them buto some accord, it was granted that either partie thould send certaine sufficient persons to intreat of the matter, which thoulo meet at a little thappell, standing in the fields called Esplotin, and hereto allowas a truce granted for three dates . For the English part were appointed the duke of Babant, the bishop of Lincolne, the dake of Gelderland, the earle of Bulike, and fir John de Heinault logo Beaumont. For the French part, the king of Bohem, 40 Charles erle of Alanfon brother to the French king, the bishop of Liege, the earle of Flanders, and the carle of Arminacke: and the ladie of Malois was fill among them as a mediatrix, by whose meanes chéfelie they at length did agrée voon a truce to indure for a yeare betweene all parties and their men, and also betweene them that were in Scotland, in Salcoigne, and Poictou.

It was agreed also by these commissioners, that or five meet at Arras at a date appointed, and thither also thould the pope send his legats, to treat of a perpetuall peace and full agreement to be made betwirt the two kings of England and France. There was allo confideration hav of the Flemings, so that they were released of all such summes of monie as they were by any bonds indangered to paic by forfeiture, as otherwise, for any matter before that time buto the crowne of France. Also they were released of the interdiction and curife of the church, and then also 60 was their earle restozed home. It was further accorded, that the French king spould restoze buto the king of England certeine townes and places in Suien, which in the beginning of these warres the carle of Alanfon had taken from the Englishmen, as Penne in Agenois, and others. Also whereas the French king had feized the countie of Pontieu into his hands, which was the dower of quene Habell, the mother of king Coward, he thould also restore the fame buto king Coward, to hold it as he did before.

The flege rat= fed from Cournie.

herebpon was the fiege railed from Tournie, ale fer it had continued there the space of ten weekes and foure daies. They within frod in great danger for lacke of vittels to have beine confireined to the furrendzing of the towne, if this truce had not beine concluded, which caused the French king the soner to a gra, in like case as the lacke of monie caused the king of England to take his truce, which otherwise (as was thought) he would not have done: fo that by the violent constraint of necessitie they were forced thus to do, against which there is no trieng of maine, ries, not firugling to make it flope and obcie; for

A necessitate omnia in seruitutem rediguntur. After he had raised his liege he went to Gant, and Chetaire thither came also the earle of Flanders being now flanders restozed home to his countrie, and made the king of frastrongs England great cheare, feaffing and banketting him of Englant right princelie, togither with the quene. Finallie, af La. Mey. ter that king Coward had refreshed himselfe a wile Chekings at Cant, he toke a verte few with him, and fanc in sthing die to Zealand; and there taking the feas to passe over land, into England, he was lose tolled by force of outrage ous frozmes of wind and weather. Pet at length af ter thee daies and thee nights failing, in the night of Contimation the feast of faint Andrew, he came on land at the of Iriuci tower of London about cocke-crowing, and with him the earle of Posthampton, the losd Walter de Pannie, the load John Darcie, the sonne of the load John Beauchampe, Biles Beauchampe, with two chapleins that were his fecretaries, fir William Billefbie, and fir Philip Welfon, belide a few others.

After his arrivall he fent for the bishop of Chiches fer that was lood chancellos, for the bithop of Conen trie and Lichfield being load treasuros, and for such of the judges as were then in London. The load chan Aucobaio cellor and the lord treasuror he streightwates dischar ged of their offices, threatening to send them into Flanders, there to remaine as pledges for monie that he there owght, or if they refused to go thither, then to keepe them prisoners in the towne. But when the bishop of Chichester declared to him the danger of the canon established against such as imprisoned bishops, he suffered them to depart : but the sudges, to wit, John de Stonoze, Kichard de Willoughbie. William de Sharethull, and allo Picholas of (as o ther haue Patthew de la Bech, who was before gar Jubgum dian of his sonne, and lieutenant of the tower: also other others John de Pultnie, and William de Pole merchants; committen and the chiefe clerkes of the chancerie, John de faint the work Paule, Pichaell de Wath, Penrie de Stretford, and Robert de Chikewell; and of the elcheker, John de Morpe, and manie other, were committed to diverse pallons, but yet bicaule they were committed but there thould other commissioners of either part foure 50 onelie bpon commandement, they were within a while after delivered.

The losd Wake was also committed, but sportie after, he was belivered to his great honoz, as Walfingham witteth. Robert de Bourchier was made Dew offert logo chancellog, and Richard de Sadington logo treas made in plan furoz: all the thiriftes of thires, and other officers al forthis fo were remoued, and other put in their places, and ged. fusfices amointed in everie thire, to inquire byon the defaults of collectors and other officers, to that few or none escaped inpunished, howsoever they had demeaned themselves, so stretalie those tustices proceed ded in their commissions. The king indeed was loss offended with those whom he had put in trust to leuie monic, and to le it conveied over to him into the low countrie, bicause that for want therof in time of new, he was constreined to take truce with his adversarie the French king, and leave off his enterprise, which he was in good forwardnesse to have gone through withall, if he had not beene disappointed of treasure which he had commanded to be fent over buto him, which was not done but kept backe, in whom focuer the fault reffed.

There were some of his secretaries, namelie, it The kom William Billetbie , which firred bim to take no oco such ex archb. of small displeasure against the archbishop of Cantur. fanturburic, buric John Stratford, who thereupon withdrew him into the priorie of Christes durch at Canturburie. and there remaining for a leafon, wrote his mind to the king, erhoring him not to give to light credit buto fuch as thould counfell him to have those in con-134 T tempt that were faithfull and true to him, for in fo which to the doing, he might happilie lose the love and good will of his people. Peuertheles, he withed that he thould trie out in whose hands the wols and monie remain ned, which were taken by to his ble, and that boon a instaccompts had at their hands, it might appeare tho were in fault, that he had not monie brought to him, whilest he laie at siege before Tournie, as he had appointed; and that when the truth was knowne, they that were in fault might be worthilie punished. And as for his owne cause, he signified, that he was readie to be tried by his pieces, fauing alwaies the flate of holie church, and of his order, ac. Further, he belonght the king, not to thinke enill of him, and of 20 other god men , till the truth might be tried , for o. therwise, if judgement thould be pronounced, with out admitting the partie to come to his answere, as well the guiltlesse as the guiltie might be con-

Eletter fent

to come to the

The king neverthelesses still offended towards the archbishop, caused Adam bishop of Winchester to indite a letter against him, directed from the king to the beane and chapiter of Paules, openlie to be publis thed by them: the effect whereof was, to burthen the ardbishop with bothankfulnesse, and forgetting of his bounden duetie towards his fouereigne lozd and louing maister, namelie, in that where he promised the king to lie him throughlie furnished with monie, towards the maintenance of his warres : when it came to palle, none would be had, which turned not onelie to the hinderance of the kings whole proces dings, but also to his great discredit, and causing him torungreatlic in oebt by interest, through borrowing of monic, for the paiment of the wages of his menof warre, when through the archbispops negligence, who had the chefe rule of the land, the collectous and other officers flacked their duetie, whereby there was no monie fent over, according to that was amointed: and wheras now, lince his comming over, he had fent to the archbiftop to come buto him, that by his information, he might the better learne who they were that neglected their duetie, he disobedient. lie refused to come, pretending some feare of bods. lie harme, through the malice of some that were as bout the king. Where byon, when Kafe logo Stafford, lood feward of the kings house, was sent with a safe conduct, for him to come in all fafetie to the court, he flatlic made answer that he would not come, ercept in full parlement.

Panie other mildemeanors was the archbithop tharged with fowards the king in that letter, as mai licionslie sandering the king for vniust oppression of the people, confounding the cleargie, and græuing the hurch with exactions, lentes of monie, tolles and tallages. Therefore, fith he went about to flander the 60 kings rotall authoritie, to befante his fernants; to firre rebellion among the people, and to withozaw the devotion and love of the earles, loves, and great men of the kind from the king: his highnesse occlas red, that he meant to prout oe for the integritie & pres fernation of his good name (whereof it is faid trulie, Dulcius est ære pretiossim nomen habane) and to meet with the archbishops malice. And here with diverse things were rehersed to the archbishops reproch, which he should do , procure, and suffer to be done, by his cuill and finifier countell; whileft he had the rule of the realme in his hands buter the king: therein he had the wed himselfe not onelie an acceptoz of gifts, but also of persons, in gratifieng diverse that nothing had deferued fundate wates fouth, and presuming to do rathlie manie other things to the detriment of the kings rotall state, and hurt of his regall dignitie, and to no fmall damage of the people, abuling the authoritie and office to him commits ted, to that if he perfifted in his obstinate wilfulnesse, and rebellious contumacie, the king by those his letters lignified, that he meant to declare it more appar rantlie in due time and place, and therefore comman. bed the faid deane and chapiter of Paules, to publish all those things openlie, in places where they thought concenient, according to their wisedome given to them by God, fo as he might have cause to commend therein their carefull diligence . This letter was dated at Mestminster the tenth of Februarie, in the fifteenth yeare of his reigne over England, and fecond ouer France.

There the Londoners would not permit the kings fuffices to fit within the citie of London, contrarie to their liberties, the king amointed them to lit in the tower; and when they would not make anie answer there, a great tumult was raised by the commons of the citie, so that the instices being in some perill (as they thought) feigned themselves to sit there till to. wards Caffer. Wherespon, when the king could not get the names of them that raised the tumult, no os ther wife but that they were certeine light persons of the common people, he at length pardoned the offence. After this, those inffices neither lat in the told er, nor elsewhere, of all that yeare.

In the quindene of Cafter, the king held a pars A parlement, lement at London, in the which, the prelats, earls, barons, and commons, prefented manie petitions; as Adam Merito have the great charter of liberties, and the charter much. of forcetts bulie observed, and that they which brake the same thould be discharged of their offices, if they were the kings officers, and that the high officers of the king thould be cleaced and cholen by their pares in parlement. The king withfrod these petitions a certeine time, yet at length he granted to some of them; but as concerning the election of his officers, he in no wife would confent, but pet he was contented that they thould receive an oth in parlement, to do inffice to all men in their offices, ac. Apon which article and others, a flatute was made and confire med with the kings feale.

In the meane while, the French king had with The emperor bathes wone Lewes of Bauaria, that named him wone fro the felfeemperour, from further favouring the king of king of Enga England; in 6 much that, under a colourable preschip. tenle of finding himselfe græued , for that the king of England had without his knowledge taken truce with the French king, he renoked the dignitie of being bicar in the empire, from the king of England, but pet fignified to him, that where the French king had at his request put the matter in controversie befwirt him and the king of England into his hands, to make an end thereof, if it to pleased the king of Engs land, that he thould treat as an indifferent arbitratoz The emperor betwirt them, he promifed to do his indenour, fo as a meane to cohe doubted not, but that by his means he thould clude a peace, come to a god agreement in his taule, if he would followhis adulle. And to receive answer hereof, he fent his letters by one Eberhard a chapleine of his, the reader of the friers herenuts to S. Augustins 02, der, requesting the king of England to advertise him by the same mellenger, of his whole mind in that bchalfe.

The king for answer, signified agains by his lets The kings ters to the emperour, that for the zeale which he had uniwer, to make an accord betwirt him and his adverfariz Philip de Malois, that named himfelfe Frenchking, he could not but much commend him, and for his part

Mor.lib.ca.

Ode 4.

he had ever withed, that fome reasonable agreement might be had betwirt them: but fith his right to the realing of France was clare and manifest inough, he purposed not to commit it by waiting buto the doubtfull indgement orarbitrement of anie. And as concerning the agreement which the emperour had made with the French king, bicause (as he alledged) it was lawfull for him to to do, fith without the emperois knowledge he had taken truce with the same French king he laid, if the circumftances were well 10 confidered, that matter could not minister any cause to mone him to such agreement : for if the emperour remembred, he had ginen to him libertie at all times to treat of peace, without making the emperour palnic thereto (so that without his astent, he concluded not upon any finall peace) which he protested that he neuer meant to do, till be might have his provident adulte, counfell, and affent therebuto. And as concers ning the renoking of the vicarity of the empire from him, he take it done out of time; for it was pro= 20 mised, that no such renocation should be made, till he had obtained the whole realme of France, or at the leaff, the more part thereof. Thefe in effect were the points of the kings letters of answer buto the emperour. Dated at London the thirtenth of Julie, in the second peare of his reigne over France, and fiftenth ouer England.

The occease of the tord Geffrey de Scrope, a of &incoln: The quante brought to Dis peare, about Diolummer, or fom that before, at Cant in Flanders, died the load Ceffrey Scrope the kings inflice, and Henrie bishop of Lincolne, 30 tivo chafe councelloss to the king. The quane after hir refurne into England, was this yeare brought to bed in the folver of London of a daughter named Manch, that died young, and was buried at Wiells minifer. In this meane while, during the warres betwirt France and England, the French king in favour of Danid king of Scotland, had fent men of warre into Scotland, bnder the conduct of fir Are nold Danderghen, tho was after one of the marthals of France, and the lood of Barrentiers, with o 40 ther, by whose comfort and helpe, the Scots that toke part with king David, bid indeno; themselves to rea couer out of the Englishmens hands, such castels and fortresses as they held within Scotland, as in the Scotish historic ye shall find mentioned, and how as bout this time, their king the forefatd Dauto returned forth of France into Scotland by the French kings helpe, who having long before concluded a league with him, thought by his friend thip to trouble the king of England to at home, that he should not 50 be at great leifure to invade him in France. But now to tell you what chanced of the meeting amointed at Arras. For the comissioners that thuld met at Breas. there treat of the peace, when the day affigued of their meeting was come, there arrived for the king of England the bishop of Lincolne, the bishop of Du refine, the earle of Warwike, the erle of Richmond, fir Robert Dartois, fir John of Peinault, otherwife called lood Beaumont, and fir Henrie of Flanders. For the Frenchking, there came the earle of Alan 60 son, the duke of Burbon, the earle of Flanders, the earle of Blois, the archbiffion of Sens, the biffion of Beauuois, and the bithop of Amerre. The pope fent thither two cardinals, paples and Tleremont; thefe commissioners inere in treatic fifteene daies, during ged about the the which, manic matters were put forth and argued, teaf of the des but none concluded: for the Englishmen demanded largelie, and the Frenchmen would depart with no thing, faming with the countie of Pontien, the which was given with quene Rabell in marriage to the king of England. So the treatie brake, the commis ting as the ab- fromers departed, and nothing done, but onelie that the truce was prolonged for two yeares further.

The commis=

Thus were the wars partlie appealed in some part of France, but yet was the truce but Aenderlie kept in other parts, by reason of the duke of Britaine. for ithereas contention arose betwirt one Charles de The ties Blois, and John earle of Mountfort, about the right of the wan to the buchie of Britaine, as in the historic of France Butann maie more plainelie appeare; the earle of Mount fort, thinking that he had wrong offered him at the French kings hands, who favoured his adversarie Charles de Blois, alted himselfe with the king of England. And (as some write) after he had wone du uerle cities and townes within Britaine, he came o uer into England, and by doing homage to king @do ward, acknowledged to hold it of him, as of the four. reigne losd thereof, so that he would promise to defend him and that duchie against his aducrsaries: which the king promifed him to bo. After this, the French king made such warres against this earle of Mountfort, that he was at length taken prisoner in the towne of Paunts, and committed to fafe keeping within the castell of Loure at Paris. But his wife being a frout woman, and of a manlie courage, frod by in the quarrell of hir hulband, and presented a young sonne which the had by him, but o such capteins and men of warre as ferued hir hulband, requiring them not to be dismaid with the infortunate chance of hir husbands taking; but rather like men of god fo machs, to frand in defense of his tight, lith what soener hamened to him, the same remained in that young gentleman his Conne: meaning that although the c nimies thould deale typannicallie with him, & with out regard of his noblenelle practile his overthrow; yet there was hope in hir fon, as increase of yeares thould minister strength and courage, both to be reuenged on his fathers enimies, and to ad an inlarge ment of glosie and renowne to his present honor by practiles of his prowelle: which to be fingular the fæmelie fymmetrie og godlie proportion of his perfon and his tolie countenance fæmed to testifie; for Fortes creantur fortibus & bonis: Est in innencis est in equis patrum Pirtus; nec imbellem feroces Progenerant aquila columbam.

This countelle of Mountfort was lifter buto Lewes earle of Flanders, and named Pargaret, and la Mice, not Claudia (as some wite.) She was verie diligent in hir businesse, and spared no tranell to advance hir caule, so that the wan not onelie the harts of the men of warre, but also of the people of Britaine, the with favoured hir hulband, and lamented the milhap of his taking. She first furnithed fuch cities, townes, Froilland callels, and fortrettes as hir hulband had in pollette on, with men, munition and bittels, as Renes, Di naunt, Buerand, Panthout, and others . This done, the fent over into England, fir Emerie de Cliffon, a noble man of Britaine, to require the king of Eng land of fuccoss, with condition, that if it pleased him, hir some John thould marrie one of his daughters. The king of England glad to have such an entrie into France, as by Britaine, thought not to refule the offer, a thereupon granted to aid the countelle: & forthwith railing a power, fent the same over into Britaine, boder the conduct of the lord Walter of Mannie, and others: the which at length, after they had continued long opon the lea, by reason of contrarie winds, arrived in Britaine; in which meane time, agreatarmie of Frenchmen were entred into Bis taine; and had be fleged the citie of Kenes, and finallie wone it by furrencer, swere now before the towne of Hantbout, with with Areid flege, and fore brufing of the walles, they were nere at point to have taken, and the countelle of Mountfort within it; if the fuc cours of England had not arrived there, even at luch time as the Frenchmen were in talke with them inithin, about the furrender. But affer that the Engi was prolons collation of ூ.John,to indure tell A3idinmmer nert follom: Merimuth libelat was some to approch, the treatie was some broken off, for they within had no luft then to talke anie further of the matter.

The lood of Mannie, and the Englishmen arriwherein the counteste, and the other within that towne were presentlie befet, greatlie recomforted the english using at Danibout thus in time of imminent danger, m gmd time.

archira.

Charles de

13/013.

Lewes be dovaine.

Bittaine

23monant.

the faid counteffe, as the well thewed by hir theres full countenance in receiving them . Shoztlie affer their arrivall, a certeine number of the English ar: 10 thers, illuing forth, beat the Frenchmen from an engine which they had reared against the walles, and fet fire boon the same engine. To conclude, the Frenchmen liked the Englishmen so well , that mostlie after being wearie of their companie, they raised their siege to get themselues further from them: and in an other part of the countrie indenous reothemselves to win townes and castels as they oid inded, having their armie divided into two parts, the losd Charles de Blois gouerning the one 20 part, and a Spaniard called the lood Lewes de Spaine the other (which was the same that thus departed from the fiege of Panibout, after the arrivall of the Englishmen) and then winning the townes of Dinant and Bucrand, passed into the countrie of Bitaine Bitonant, and there not farre from Duin percozentine, were discomfited by the Englishmen. the followed them thither . Of fir thousand Geno.

but a few awaie. A nephue which he had there with him named Alfonse was flaine, howbeit be himselfe of the place where he was thus borne. Also about the fametime was a great fuffes kept by king Coward at the towne of Dunftable, with other counterfeited and gentlemen, whereat both the king and quæne were present, with the more part of the lords and ladies of the land. The losd Charles de Blois, having in the meane time wone Clannes, and other towns, brought his armie backe buto Panibout, and eff.

lones belieged the fame, and the counteste of Mount fort within it. But for so much as it was well fortiff ed, and provided of all things necessarie to defend a fiege, the Englishmen being returned thither againe carles of Salifburie, Penbroke, and Suffolke, the loids Stafford, Spenfer, and Bourchier, with others, togo with hir oner into Britaine, who made their thither against the time that the truce betwirt the

This yeare, the fift of June quenc Philip was cleaped, though not without fore hurts.

waics, Spaniards, and Frenchmen, which the load

Comund of Langley that delivered of a sonne at the towne of Langley, the oute of yoshe with was named Comund, and furnamed Langley ts borne. A inks and Dunftabic.

Banibout belieged.

Anno Reg. 16 could not be easilic wone. At length, by the labour of The country certeine loods of Britaine, a truce was taken for a officiamon commethance time, during the which, the counteste of Kichmond into Englad, came oner into England, to commune with king Inamiclint Coward, touching the affaires of Britaine, who applied to the state of t mo Historic pointed fir Kobert Dartois carle of Kichmond, the countesse and the losd Charles de Blois should be much, and Nac.Truct.

Admittong to There be that write, how the load Malter be Partnie, twke a truce indeed with the lood Charles de Blois, to indure till Alhallontide next infuing, but with condition, that if the king of England were contented therewith, then the fame to be firme and fullic ratifico, other wife not. Wher opon, then about the beginning of Julie, the faid lood Walter came o her into England, bringing with him the lood of Lions, and other fuch puloners as he had taken, and fignified to king Coward what he had concluded touding the truce, the king liked not thereof, and fo fent ouer the earles of Posthampton and Benonthire, the load Stafford, and fir William de Billefbie bis Checarle of the lood Standood, and ur Column de universe yes Morthamps thapleine, and one of his fecretaries, with five hun, Conand Des beed men of armes, and a thousand archers, with tar nonthire. king thip, on the vigill of th'Affumption of our ladie, fatted fourth towards Britaine. The Frenchmen there fore understanding that this succour was comming, amointed the load Lewes of Spaine, fir Charles Orimaldo, and fix Antonie Dozia, with the thou reteined in the fand Denotvates, and a thouland men of armes, im French barked in two and thirtie great thips, to lie on the kings wages. fea in wait to incounter with the English fleet, as the fame thould approch towards Britaine.

About Caster, the counteste of Pountford with the Englifharmie, appointed to attend hir , toke the fea Che Englifh at Southampton, and at length met with the lood men and Ge-Lewes of Spaine, and his fleet, where bet wirt them nowaces meet was fought a foze battell. Of the Englishmen there and fight on were fir and fortie vestels, but the lord Lewes of the Seas. Spaine had nine great thips, and of moze force than anie of those which the Englishmen had, and also he had thice gallies. They began to fight about evenfong time, and continued till that night parted them, and had gone togither againe in the morning, if by a tempet that role about midnight, the same night, they had not beene leattered in lunder . The Spant ards and Genowaies toke awaie with them foure English thips, which being vittellers, were lest bes hind. And bicause the same Spaniards and Geno-Lewes of Spaine had there with him, there escaped 30 wates were able to abide the sea better than the Englishmen, by reason of their great thips, they kept the maine fea ; but the Englishmen were adule fee by their mariners to drawe buto the land, and fo they did, arriving at a little haven, not farre from Mannes, where comming on land, they areightwate Utannes won made towards that citie, and belieged it, not cealling to affault it both day and night, till at length they wan it, by giving the affault in two places at once, whilest an other number of them fet opon it in athird feats of warre, at the request of diverse young loods 40 place, where was no suspicion, and so entred. After this, the most part of the Englishmen des parted from Tlannes, as some with the counteste, to bring hir onto Hantbout, and some with the earls of Salisburie, Suffolke, and Cornewall, who went and laid liege to Kennes, fo that the earle of Kichmond remained in Hannes, with the looks Spenfer and Stafford, to keepe it , having a certeine number of archers and other men of warre with them. The load Clisson, and fir Henrie de Leon, which were within after the overtheolie of the lood Lewes de Spaine, it 50 Hannes, when it was taken by the Englishmen, and found means to escape, were abathed at the maiter, that they had so lost the citie, where upon they secret lie affembled a great power of men thereabouts, and came againe buto Hannes, and fo fiercelie allafe led the gates and wals, that in the end they entred by more force. The earle of Kichmond was fore hurt, but vet he escaped out at a posterne gate, and the load Stafford with him, but the lord Spenfer was taken by fir Henriede Leon. promition, so that they might take the sea, to come 60

Other wife other wife, both of the landing, and Additionate also concerning the missortune of the logo Spenser, Nic. Trivet. alledging letters fent from the earle of Porthamps ton (whome the same authors repute as generall of that armie into Britaine) directed to the king , in which was fignified, how that within the occaues of the Assumption of our ladie, they arised on the coast of Britaine, nere to the towns and castell of Brest, in the which the outchesse of Britaine with hir chiloten were of the enimies belieged, both by lea and land, by fea with thirteine great gailles, by land by the lord Charles de Blois, the earls of Sauvie and Fois. But the gallies perceiving the English fleet to be approched byon them, yet they were aware, so that they were compatted in , to their great danger , the of the same gallies fled, and so cleaped, the relieve got buinto a river of the fame haven, in ere they that were about, left their beffels and fied to the land, and as well they, as the other that held lege before Livell mid fuch as kept a castell there, not farre off, called Coule forrest packed awaie without anie more abo. The English mariners following the gallies that were withdrawn op the river, with their finall boats and barges, let fire on the gallies, and fo burnt them.

Thus all the Englishmen came on land, and icas ning the load Sate capteine in the faid caffell of Coule ferrest, they passe forward into the countrie, and comming to a castell commonlic called Honheur Relingaue an affault thereto, there manie of their men of warre were wounded, and fir James Louell flaine. After this, flaieng a time for the comming of their confederats, which after a fortnights space came to them on the mondaic, being the mos row after Michaelmas date they beard that the loods Charles de Lilois was comming in all half with a 2 potugr of their thousand men of armes, twelve hun-Died Cenowaies, ta great multitude of commons to ratte the flege. Wher boon the earle of Northamp ton with his armie marched foulic towards them, and choting a plot of ground convenient for his purpole, fought with his counies, flue and twhe of them at the least their hundled men of armes. The earle of Porthampton loff not any noble man in this fight, the lord Coward Spenfer onelic excepted.

But now as touching the earle of Richmont, Froiffard faith, that he comming to Danibout, after he had thus lost Tannes, twhe the sea, and sailed into England : but by reason of being tolled on the leas, his wounds rankled fo, that thoulie after his comming to London he died, 4 was buried in the church of S. Paule. The king of England was loze displeat fed with his death, and immediatlie after palled ouer into Betaine. himfelfe into Britaine with a great armie : and lane ding there the nine and twentith of Louember, at at his arrivall there, not far from Jannes, he went Araight and belieged Clannes, but perceiving that it would not be wone but by long flege he left the earle of Arundell, and the lood Staffood to continue the fiege, whilest he went to Bennes to aid his people, with Will laie at the liege thereof. 15cfore the kings arrivall in Britaine, those that were there under the earle of Northampton, as the lord Hugh Spenfer, and the lord Richard Talbot, with their retinues, fought with the Frenchmen nære to Worleis, where 50 a few Englishmen, searle fine hundred, biscomfited a imghtie power of Frenchmen, effented to be aboue fiftie thousand, of whome some they sine, and some they twhe. Imong other was taken the load Seffrey de Charnie, accompted for one of the beff and lageff knights in France, whome the loop Kichard Salbot toke and fent into England.

13ut now as touching the kings owings, we find, that whilest he remained for this winter feason in Bittaine, his people forraicd the countrie foure 60 dates fournie in length, and two dates fournie in breoth. After his comming to Kennes, he flated not past five daies, but leaving them whome he found there to continue the flege, he went himselfe to Naunts, where he had knowledge, that the lood Charles de Blois was. At his comming thither, he inuironed the citie about with a firong fiege, & made manic fierce affaults to the walles and gates, but could not prenaile, then leaving certains of his lords there to continue the fiege, he raised with the residue, and went to Dinan, which towns with fore and fierce affaults he lafflie wone, and after that drew againe towards Clannes, for that he was informed, how the duke of Asymanoic was comming downer towards him, with an armic of fortie Confand men. Derem on he fent for them that laie at fiege before paunts to come unto him, and luffered them at Bennes to kepe their flege fill till they heard other wood from him.

The duke of Posmandie with foure thousand men of armes, and thirtie thenfand other men of warre. comming into Wattaine to alo the lord Charles of Pome Blois, was advertised, that the king of England commit was with the most part of all his power withdialwen former the state of figure for confirming state. to Clannes, and there laie at fiege, fox confircining them within: wherefore he also drew thitherwards, and approching to the place, incamped with his armie ouer against the king of England, inclosing his field with a great trench. The king of England supposing he should have battell, sent unto those which laie at fiege before Bennes, commanding them to come from thence but o him: fo that by this meanes all the powers, both of the king of England, and of the duke of Dormandie, generall to his father the French king in those warres of Britains, being affembled before Clannes, had fought some great and bloudie battell, as was supposed, for the whole trials of the right of Britaine, if the cardinals of Cleremont and Parenelli, as legats from pope Clement the firt, had not taken by the matter, by concluding a truce bes twirt them, for the tearme of them peares.

Commissioners appointed to treat with these case additions dinals, on the behalfe of the king of England were Truck 30 thefe, Benrie of Lancalter earle of Derbie, Will Commission Liam Lobun earle of Postfammion William Cook liam Bohun earle of Porthampton, William Hon king of Ca tacute carle of Salifburie, Kafe lood Staffood, Bar land. tholomew loed Burghele, Aicholas loed Cantelow, Reginald lood Cobham, Walter lood of Pannie, Paurice lord Werkeley, and maifter John Ufford archdeacon of Clie. For the French king, Doo onke Committee of Burgogne, and Piers duke of Burbon were der nerslight puted commissioners. Such diligence was bled by frinching the parties, that finallie they agreed upon this truce the fame place where the earle of Richmond did land 40 of the yeares, with certeine articles for meane to conclude some finall peace, as that there thould be a true in fent from either king some personages of their bloud than plant and others, buto the court of Rome, with sufficient authoritie, to agræ, confirme, and effablish bpon all controverties and diffentions betwirt the faid kings, according to the agreement of the pope, and such as Chould be fo fent to treat thereof.

It was further agreed, that they Mould have liber tie to declare and pronounce their arguments and reasons before the pope, but not to have power to des cide and give fentence, but onlie by waie of some bet terfreatie and order of agreement to be made. And these commissioners were appointed to appeare before the pope, afore the feath of faint John Baptist next influing, and the pope to dispatch the businesse bes fore Chiffmalle after, if by confent of the faid nobles, the terme were not projoged. And if it so were that the pope could make no agreement, yet thould the truce induce the prefired terms, to wit, till the feast of S. Wichaell the archangell, and for the space The call of the yeares then next infining, betwirt the bings tonse of France, England and Scotland, the earle of 19ch nault and their alies, as the dukes of 13:abant, and of Gelderland, also the marques of Gulitherland, the loed Beaumont, otherwise called fir John de Beinault, and the people of Flanders, in all their lands and dominions, from the date of the charter made hereof, by all the faid terme aforefaid, to be observed, holden and kept. Also, the king of Scots, and the earle of Heinault were appointed to fend certeine persons. as commissioners for them, but othe safe court of

This frace was also accorded to be kept in 13:1taine, befwirt the faid kings and their adherents, in

Che king palleth oner

Clannes be= fiegeb.

Atditions to Triuct

An armie of frenchmen. bpalew En: glufmen.

Maunts bes

unich countrie, as well as in Buien, and other plas ccs, euerie man thould remaine in possession of that which he held at the time of concluding this truce. faue that the citie of Mannes thould be delivered into the hands of the cardinall, to be kept by them in the popes name, during the truce, and then to dispose thereof as thould fæme to them god . Manie other articles were computed in the charter of this truce. to long here to rehearle, all the which were confirmed with the oths of the fato dukes of Burgoigne, 1 and Burbone, on the French kings behalfe; and of the earles of Derbie, Porthampton and Salifburie, the lood Burgheras, and the lood of Mannie, for the king of England. In witnesse thereof, the faid cardinals caused the charter to be made, putting there, bnto their leales, the nineteenth daie of Januarie, in the yeare 1 3 4 3 in prefence of dinerfe prelats, and of the carles of Bullongne, Aufferre, Sancerre, Juignic, and Poscien, the losd Miles de Pohers, the telowe, Cobham, and Berkeley, with manie other lords, barons, nobles, and gentlemen.

Anno Reg. 17.

40 (a

124 i to lia:

ng

forth of 2321=

Shipmrache.

I parlement.

Ambaffado2g

When this truce was thus confirmed, manie of the Englith armie returned home through France, Cheking of fo to passe ouer by the narrow seas into England. but the king himfelfe, with a few other, taking their turneth byten thips to palle by long feas, were maruelloulite toz. mented by tempest, so that their thips were scattered and definen to take land at diverte havens. The dut defe of Butaine with hir some and daughter, came 30 on land in Denonthire. Sir Pers de Aele, and his fonne fir Benrie Tiele, and fir John Raine knights. were distance, together with the thip in which they pasco. The king escaping verie hardie, landed at Wichnouth, and on the fift day of Parch came to London to the quæne. In the quindene of Caffer, he held a parlement at Westminster, in which he created his elveft fonne Coward prince of Wales. treated punce Inthis parlement were diverte matters talked of, and speciallic concerning wols, and of the affeste, 40 ment of a certeine price of them, more and lette, accoiding to the fenerall parts of the realme, and of the customes to be made of them, to wit, the marks and an halfe, for everie facke to be transported forth of the realme.

Also in the same parlement were ambassadors appointed fouth, such as should go to the pope to treat of peace (as in the charter of the truce among other articles it was conteined) whose names follow, John bilhopof Erceffer, Henrie de Lancaffer earle 50 of Derbie, Hughle Dispenser logo of Blamoggan, coulins to the king; Kafe load Staffoad, William de Postnich deane of Lincolne, William Truffell knight, and masser Andrew de Afford a civillian. These persons were sent with commission to the pope, to treat with him, not as pope, noz as judge, but as a privat person, and a common frent to both parts, to be a meane or mediator, to find out some in different end of all controuerste betwirt the parties. The date of their commission was at Westminster, 60 the foure and twentith of Paie, in this feaventeenth peare of the kings reigne.

Horconce, in this parlement a græuous complaint was exhibited, by the earles, barons, knights, burgeffes, and other of the commons, for that firangers, by bertue of refernations and provisions apofolike, got the ben benefices of this land into their hands, and never came at them, nor bare any charges due for the same, but diminishing the treasure of the realme, and connecting it footh, fore indamaged the thole fate. The bishops durst not, or would not give their consents in exhibiting this complaint, but rather famed to frame against it, till the king compelled them to give over.

Herebpon, a letter was framed by the loads of the temporaltie and commons, which they directed buto the pope in all humble manner, beserbing him to consider of the derogation done to the realine of England, by fuch refernations, pronisions, and collas tions of benefices, as had ben practifed here in Enge land. And therefore, fith the churches of England had bene founded and endowed by noble and worthic men in times past, to the end the people might be infiruded by fuch as were of their owne language, and that he being to farre off, and not understanding the default, had (like as some of his predecessors more than in times past had beene accustomed granted by diverse reservations, provisions, and collations, the thurthes and spirituall promotions of this land unto diverle persons, some strangers, yea, and enimics to the realme, whereby the monie and profits were carried forth, the cures not provided for almes with drawne, hospitalitie occased, the temples and other lord Ingram de Coucie, and the forclaid lords, Can 20 buildings belonging to the churches ruinated and fallen downe, the charitie and devotion of the people fore diminished, and diverse other grævous enormie ties thereby growne cleane contrarie to the fourders minds: wherefore, byon due confideration thers of had, they signified to him, that they could not suffer such encountties any longer, a therefore belought him wolie to renoke such refernations, promitions, collations, to avoid such slanders, mischeses, and harmes as might infue, and that the cures might therewith be committed to persons meet for the erercife of the same : further also, belæching him with out delaie, to fignifie his intention, fifty they meant to imploie their oiligence to remodie the matter, and to fee that redrette might be had according to reason. The date of these letters was in full parlement at Meffminster, the eight and twentith of Paie, in the peare of Brace 1343.

Belide these letters, were other witten, and sent from the king, conteining in lumme, the tenoz of the horoich other aboue mentioned , and one fir John Shootich, fertrothe knight a grave personage and well some in the law, Pope. was appointed to go with the fame, tho comming to Augnion, and there presenting his letters in the popes printe chamber, where the pope fat, with all his cardinals about him, received no great courtes ous welcome, after his letters were once read. And thie: Quen bicause the cotents of the same miliked his mind tending to the impairing of his viurped profits & comodities from time to time in this land,

Ambitiosus enim sibi totum vendicat orbem,

Seq (scelus) Christo clamitat esse parem. Pow when the knight made answer to such words as he heard the pope viter, and charged him with gis woods to fir uing the deanrie of Poste unto one that was re. John Shop puted the kings enimie, the pope fato; Well, it is bichnot businowne to be tho made and indited these leter fers, and we know that thou madelf them not, but there is one that pincheth at bs, and we chall punish > him well inough: we know all. Herebnto he added ? thus much moze, that there was a knight that spake defamous woods of him, and the thurch of Rome. therewith he fæmed highlie offended. To conclude, he faid, that he would answer the letters of the king, and commons, as touching the points conteined in the fame. The cardinals, after they had heard thefe ?? things, departed as if they had beene fore offended and troubled therewith: and the knight taking his leave of the pope, departed also faith of the chamber, and without anic longer above, got him awaie to ward Burdeaur about other of the kings bufineffe, doubting least if he had stated longer, he might have bene kept there against his will. The pope tent and Officielles fiver indeed, but neverthelesse, the king proceeded in inhibited by prohibiting fuch proutitions, and collations within the king.

Pmj.

his realine, on paine of impillonment and death to the intrudors thereby, as after ve fhall perceive.

Tuffe in domithfield.

Th. Walfing.

a chamber buut within the cafe Hof windfore, round table.

LStow out of Bonrie de

The Lie of Reicefter.

Sigan.

called the

This yeare about Dioluminer, there were folemne insis preclaimed by the lood Robet Pooley, with were holden in Smithfold, idere for challengers, came forth one apparelled like to the pope, bringing with him twelve other in garments like to cardy nals, which toke boon them to answer all commers, for the courses. On the defendants lide, ran the prince of Wales, with manie earls, barons knights and elquires innumerable, so that those fulls continuco three dates togither, to the great pleasure of the beholders. This yeare, king Edward ordeined a certeine new coine of gold, which he named the flos Anno Neg. 18. ren, that is, the penie of fir thillings eight pence, the halfe penie of the value of the thillings foure pence, and the farthing of the value of twentie pence. This coine was ordeined for his warsin France, the gold whereof was not fo fine as the noble, which in the fourteenth years of his reigns he had caused 20 for to be coined. This yeare, the king cauled a great number of artificers and labourers to be taken by. thome he fet in hand to build a chamber in the caffell of Windlose, which was called the round table, the flore whereof, from the center or middle point, buto the compasse throughout, the one halfe was (as Walfingham writeth)an hundred fort, and so the diameter or compasse round about, was two hundred fot. The expenses of this worke amounted by the weke, fir & onto an hundred pounds, but afterward by reason of 3 the wars that followed, the charges was diminished unto two and twentic pounds the weeke (as Thomas Walfingham waiteth in his larger boke, intituled, the historic of England) 02 (as some copies have) bus to 9 pounds. This perc allo, W. Montacute carle of Salisburie conquered the Ile of Wan, out of the hands of the Scots, which Ile the king gave buto the faid earle, and caused him to be intituled, and crows ned king of Pan. ¶ This Ile(as Robert Southwell noteth) was wone by the Scots, about the fecond 40 peare of Coward the second his reigne, who in the peare before, to wit, anno Chilli 1307, had given the same He unto Piers de Gauction, whom he had ab lo made earle of Comewall.

Buffg # tot:

the garter founded.

Poscouer, about the beginning of this eighteenth peare of his reigne, king Coward held a solemne feast at his castell of Mindloze, where betwert Candlemasse and Lent, were atchived manie martiall feats, and fulls, tomaments, and ofuerle other the ties holden at like warlike pastimes, at the which were prefent mas 50 nie ftrangers of other lands, and in the end thereof, he decised the order of the garter, and after establis The order of thed it, as it is at this daie. There are fix and twentie companions or confrers of this felowship of that order, being called knights of the blewgarter, ras one dieth or is deprined, an other is admitted into his place. The B. of England is ever thefe of this order. They weare a blew robe or mantell, a garter about their left leg, richlic incought with gold and pretious fones, having this inscription in French opon it, 60 Honi foit qui mal y pense, Shame come to him that euill chinketh. This order is dedicated to S. George, as these patrone of men of warre, and therefore enerie peare do the knights of this order keepe fo lemme his feath, with manie noble ceremonies at the caffell of Clindloze, where king Colward founded a colledge of canons, or rather augmenting the fame, ordeined therein a deane with twelne canons fecus lar, eight peticanous, and thirtiene vicars, thirtiene clearks, and thirteene chanters.

The knights have certeine lawes and rules apperfeining to their order, amongst the which this is chef lie to be observed (as Polydor also noteth) that they thall aid and before one another, and never turne their backes or runne awate out of the field in time of battell, where he is present with his scuercione loed, his lieutenant of Deputie, of other capteine, ha uing the kings power rotall and authoritic, and ther, as his banners, frandards, or pennons are fpaco. The relidue of the lawes and rules americining buto this noble order, I do here purposelic omit, for that the same in an other place more convenient is cr. Lot. preffed, to far as may be thought expedient. But now before touching these sir and twentie noble men a knights, Bidaic, which were first chosen and admitted into the fame or der, by the first founder thereof, this king Coward the third, their names are as followeth. First the faid noble prince king Coward the third. the prince of Wales duke of Cornewall and earle of Cheffer his eldest sonne, Henrie duke of Lanca, ster, the earle of Warwike, the capitall de Bouch alias Bus or Boufe, Rafe earle of Stafford, William Pontacute carle of Salifburie, Roger lord Portie mer, John lood Lifle, Bartholomein lood Burwald or Berghelech, the lord John Beauchampe, the lord de Pahun, Hugh loed Courtnie, Thomas loed Ho. land, John loed Graie, Richard loed Fitz Simon, fir Diles Stapleton, fir Thomas Walle, fir Dugh Mrottelley, fir peele Lozing, fir John Chandog, James logo Audelie, fir Dtes Holand, fir Denrie Eme, fir Sanchet Dabuchcourt, fir Walter Das nell. Christopher Okland speaking of the first institution of this honozable order, douth faie, that affer find karan; foure dates were expired in the faid exercises of this ualrie, the king belides the rich garter which he beflowed byon them that tried maifferies, did also give them a pretious collar of S S. but whether this collar had his first institution then with the garter he faith nothing, belike it was an ornament of greater antiquitie. Oklands words are these as followeth;

_concertatoribus ampla Pramia dat princeps, baccatas induit ills Crura periscelides, quas unio mistus Eous Commendat, flammis interlucente pyropo. Praterea ex auro puro, quod odorifer Indus Miserat, inserta donabat iaspide gemma, Si formam spectes duplicato ex sygmate torques.

The cause and first original of instituting this The includer is bucerteine. But there goeth a tale amongs that mad the people, that it role by this means. It chanced that k. South 14. Coward finding either the garter of the quene, to infinite or of some ladie with whom he was in love, being the operating fallen from his less frames desired the sound the sou fallen from hir leg, froped downe and toke it bp, The count whereat diverse of his nobles found matter to tell, of hillion and to talke their fanties merilic, touching the kings affection towards the woman, buto whome he fato, that if he lined, it thould come to patte, that most high honoz thould be given buto them for the garters lake: and there boon thoulie after, he deculed and ov deined this order of the garter, with such a polic, where by he fignified, that his nobles tudged otherwise of him than the truth was. Though some may thinke, that so noble an order had but a meane beginning, if this tale be true, yet manie honozable degræs of e flates have had their beginnings of more bale and meane things, than of love, which being orderlie bled, is most noble and commendable, sith nobilitie it felfe is covered under love, as the poet Ouid aptite faith, Nobilitas sub amore sacet. Milliam de Pontacute carle of Salisburic king 300 fffs. of Pan, and marthall of England, was to butto at Adam Mi the iusts holden here at CAinosoze (as before ye have much, so beard) that he departed this life, the more was the ptitis life, in this life, the more was the ptitis life, the ptitis lif tie, within eight baies affer. The king about the fame time, to wit, in the quindene of Candlemalle, held a conneell at London, in the which with good aduife and found beliberation had boon the complaint of the commons to him before time made, be gaue out fireid commandement, that no man, on paine of impalonment and death, thould in time to come. present or induct anie such person or persons, that mere fo by the pope promoted, without the kings a græment, in prejudice of his roiall prerogative. Pareupon, he directed allo write to all archbifhops, bilhops, abbats, priors, deanes, archdeacons, officials and other ecclefiafficall persons, to whome it amer. teined, inhibiting them in no wife to attempt anie thing in preindice of that ordinance, bnder pretert of anie bulles, or other writings, for fuch manner of prouttions to come from the court of Rome . Dther writs were also directed to his sonne the prince of Walcs, and to all the thiriffes within the realme, for to arrest all such as brought into the land any such buls or writings, and to bring them before the kings councell or his fulfices, where they might be punithed according to the trespalle by them committed.

About the same time, the king ordelned a certeine coine of fine gold, and named it the flozen, which 20 coine was denifed for his warres in France, for the gold thereof was not fo fine as was the noble, which in the fourt enth peare he had caused to be coined: but this coine continued not long. After the feat of the holie Trinitie, the king held a parlement at London, in the thich he alked a tenth of the cleargie. and a fift earth of the laitie, about which demand there was no finall altercation, but at length he had it granted for one yeare. At the same time, the archbi thop of Canturburie held a convocation of all the cleargic at London, in the which manie things were in talke about the honest demeanoz of churchmen. which fildome is observed, as the addition to Nicholas Triuet faith. About the feaft of the Affumption of our ladie, the king disanulled the florens, to the great commoditie of his kingdome, ordeining a gwater flozen of halfe a marke, and a letter of thee thillings foure pence, and the leaft of all of twentie pence, and these were called nobles, and not without

This yeare, on the feauententh daie of Pouem. ber, the pope in Auinion created the load Lewes de Spaine, amballador for the French king , prince of the Iles called Fortunata, for what purpose it was not knowne, but it was boubted, not to be for anie god meaning towards the kingdome of England, the prosperitie whereof, the same pope was suspected not greatlie to wish. About the beginning of Anno Reg. 19. Lent the same yeare, the said pope had sent an arche bishop and a bishop, ambastadors to the king, who met them at Dipping in Bent, and to the end they honlo not linger long within the realme, he quick, lie dispatched them without effect of their message. This yeare, Choatlie after Gaffer, the duke of Bais taine, that had beene beteined paisoner by the French king, and escaped out of prison, came ouer into England. And about the same time, the king ordeined the exchange of monies at London, Canturburie, and Poske, to the great commoditie of his people.

About Pidlummer,02(as other haue)Pichaelmas, the carle of Derbie, with the earle of Penbroke, the loed Kafe Staffoed, the loed Walter de Pannie, the lord John Graie of Codnore, and diverse other lords, Inchanded knights, and elquires, to the number of five or lit hind farines, building, and eightees, to the manife archers, safled we thous thous builded men of armes, and as manife archers, safled who thoused men of armes, and as manife archers, safled who thouse the kings subjects there oner into Balcoine, to allist the kings subjects there land Frontiard, against the Frenchmen. This earle of Derbie, being generall of the armie, after his arrivall in Galcoine, about the beginning of December, wan the towne, of Bergerat by force, having put to flight the earle of Lille, as then the French kings lieutenant in Cascoine, who late there with a great power, to defend the passage: but being dituen into the towne, and having loft the suburbes to the Englishmen, he fled out in the night, and fo left the towns, without Froillard, anie fouldiers to defend it, so that the townshinen yelded it buto the carle of Derbie, and fivare thems felues to be true liege men bnto the king of England. After this, the earle of Werbie patted further into the countrie, and wan dincree castels and towns. as Lango , le Lake, Poundurant , Ponguife , Punach, Laliew, Foglath, Pondair, Beaumont in La. illois, Bounall, Auberoch and Liborne, part of them by affault, and the relidue by furrender. This done, he returned to Burdeaur, having left capteins and fouldiers in such places as he had wone.

This yeare, the king fent forth a committion but o certeine persons in enerie countie within the realme, to inquire what lands and fenements cuerie man, about fine pounds of pærelie renenucs, being of the laie fee, might dispend; bicause he had given order, that everie man which might dispend five pounds and aboue, but o ten pounds of fuch yearelie remenues in land of the late fee, thould furnith himfelfe, or find an archer on horstebacke, furnithed with armour and weapon accordinglie. He that might dispend ten pounds, Chould furnith himfelfe, or find a demilance or light hordeman (if I shall so terme him) being then called a hobler with a lance. And he that might dispend five and twentie pounds, thould furnish him felfe or find a man at armes. And he that might dispend fiftie pounds, should furnish two men at arms. And he that might dispend an hundred pounds Chould find their men at armes, that is, himselfe, oz one in his fted, with two other. And fuch as might dispend aboue an hundred pounds, were appointed to find more in number of men at armes, accordinglie as they thould be affected, after the rate of their lands which they might pearelie dispend, being of the laie fee, and not belonging to the church.

About this featon, the duke of Britaine, having Additions to with him the earles of Porthampton and Drenford, Nic. Trivet. cause, so, they were a noble coine, of faire efine gold. 40 fir William de Killesvie one of the kings secretaries, and manie other barons and knights, with a great number of men of armes, passed over into Britaine, against the lord Charles de Blois, there they tarried a long time, and did little good to make The dake of anie accompt of , by reason that the ouke, in whose Britaine bee quarrell they came into those parts, Moutlie after his parted this arrivall there, departed this life, and so they returned home into England. But after their comming from thence, fir Thomas Dagworth knight, that had beine before, and now after the departure of those lords and nobles, fill remained the kings lieutenant there, fo behaued himselse against both Frenchmen and Britains, that the memorie of his worthie dwings beserveth perpetuall commendation. Sir John de Che fozo Deinault lood Beaumont, about the same time, changed his cote, and leaving the king of Englands faketh the k feruice, was reteined by the French king.

In this nineteenth yeare of king Coward I find, his feruice, that about the feat of the Patinitie of faint John The king gos Baptist, he sailed over into Flanders , leaving his ethourrinto fonne the losd Lionell, warden of the realme in his Rlanders. ablence. He toke with him a great number of lozos, knights, and gentlemen, with whome he landed at Slufe. The cante of his going over was, to further a practife which he had in hand with them of Flanders. the which by the labour of Jaques Artenelo, meant to cause their earle Lewes, either to do homage bus to king Coward; ozelle if he refuled, then to bile Ia. Mair. herit him, and to receive Coward prince of Wales for their lord, the eldeft fonne of king Coward.

Hing Coward promiting to make a dukedome of the countie of Flanders, for an augmentation of hos Froissard, nour to the countrie, there came onto Slufe to the king, Jaques van Arteueld, and a great number of Mm.tj. other.

Deinault fog: of England

Coine

changeb

Auesburie. Ad Merimuth. Polychron,

Birgerat Bunt.

M connecti Leloch in the lands flip.

other, appointed as connections for their chefelt townes. The king with all his navie lay in the hauen of Slufe, there, in his great this called the Cathar rine, a councell was holden bron this forefaid purpole: but at length, those of the councellors of the chee felf townes milliked the matter fo much, that they would conclude nothing, but required respit for a monoth, to confult with all the communaltie of the countries and townes, and as the more part should be inclined to thould the king receive answer. The king 10 and Jaques Arteuclo would faine have had a Morter daie, and a moze towardic answer, but none other could be gotten.

Derebyon the councell brake by, and Jaques Arteueld tarieng with the king a certeine space, after the other inere departed, promifed him to perfuade the countrie well inough to his purpole, and fuerlie, he had a great gift of eloquence, and had thereby induced the countrie wonderfullie, to confent to manie things, as well in faucur of king Coward, as to his 20 owne advancement: but this fuit which he went now about to bying to passe, was so obious buto all the Flemings, that in no wife they thought it reason to consent buto the disheriting of the earle. At length, imen Jaques Artenelo Mould returne bnto Bant, king Coward appointed fine hundred Welthmen to attend him as a gard, for the prefernation of his perfon, bicaufe he fait, that one Gerard Denife beane of the weavers, an unquiet man, maliciouste purpoled his destruction.

Capteins of these Wiellymen were John May trevers, and William Sturine of Sturrie, and fo with this crue of fouldiers Artenelo returned buto Sant, and earnefflie went in hand with his fuit in king Cowards behalfe, that either the earle should do his homage to the king of England to whome it was ducio: else to forfeit his carledome. Then the forefaid Gerard, as well of his owne mind, as procured thereto by the authoritie of carle Lewes, fire red the whole citic against the said Arteueld, and gas 40 thering a great power buto him, came and befet Ar feurlos house round about opon each five, the furie of the people being wonderfullie bent against him, eris ce engitill him, Bill him that hathrobbed the trefurie of the countrie, and now goeth about to differit our " noble carle.

Jaques van Arteneld perceining in that danger he was, came buto a window, and spake to that inraged multitude, in hope with faire and courteous words to awcase them, but it could not be: wherepon 50 he fought to have fled out of his house, but the same lvas broken vp, and so manie entred vpon him, that he was found out, and flaine by one Thomas Demile (as some write.) But other affirme, that on a lundate in the after none, being the 17 of Julie, a cobler, whole father this Zaques van Arteneld had fome time flaine, followed him, as he was fleing into a stable where his horses stood, a there with an ar clone his head afunder, so that he fell downe farke dead on the ground. And this was the end of the forefaid 60 Jaques van Arteueld, tho by his toffedome and policie had obteined the ichole government of all Flanders. This wofull end was allotted buto him by destinie, whose vecree nothing is able by any thist to auoid, as is notablic faid of the poet in this difficion;

Nil extra fatum est, metiturque omnia summi Asens regis, cuius sine numine fit nihil ofquam.

There were flaine also ten other persons that were of his councell, and diverte of the Welthmen in like manner; but the other eleaped, and got aivate buto king Coward, as pet remaining at Slufe, buto whome those of Bruges, Canell, Curtrike, Opies, Albenard, and other folunes, did affertvards fend their waters to excule themselves, as nothing guiltie nor privile to the death of his frend, and their worthic go uernoz Jaques van Artenclo, reacuring him not to impute the fault buto the whole countrie, witch the rath and buaduiced Santiners had committed, fith the countrie of Flanders was as readie now to do him feruice and pleafure as before, fauing that to the differiting of their earle they could not be agreable, but they doubted not to perfuade him to doubts ho mage buto the king of England, and till then they promifed not to receive him . They put the king alfo in hope of a mariage to be had, betwirt the some of their earle, and some one of the kings daughters. Herewith the king of England (who was departed from Slufe, in great displeasure with the flemings) became somewhat pacified in his mod, and so renewed the league efflons with the countrie of flanders : but the earle would never confent to do ho, mage buto the king of England, but Will Wicked to the French kings part, which purchased him much trouble, and in the end cost him his life, as after thall ameare.

But now to returne onto the earle of Detbic. whome we left in Gascoigne. De thall buderstand, Froisand that Mortlie after he was come backe to Burdraur, from the conquest which he had made of Bergerat, and other townes thereabouts; the earle of Life. tho(as ye have heard) was the French kings lienter nant in that countrie, affembled an armic of twelve thousand men, a comming before Auberoch (a towne Auberoch in Galcoigne) besieged it, soze pressing them within, besieged. in somuch that they were in great danger to have beine taken, if the earle of Derbie, having knowlege in what cale they flod, had not come to their relene, tho with the hunded speares of men of armes, as we maie call them, and fir hundred archers, approdu ing neere to the fiege, law himfelfe closelie within a wod, till the Frenchmen in the evening were at lup. The fire per, & then subdenlie fet boon them in their campe, armit bill and discomfited them, so that the earle of Life was so, and to taken in his owne tent, and fore hurt. There were ale carled the so taken the earle of Walentinois, and other earles, telien. bicounts, and loods of great accompt, to the number of nine, belides those that were flaine. The relidue were put to flight and chaled, so that the Englishmen had a faire fournie, and wan great riches by palloners and spoile of the entimes campe.

Affer this, the carle of Derbie, being returned to Burdeaur, and having put the captives in fafe keeping, affembled his poliver, and marching fouth into County the countrie, towards the Rioll (a towne in those bytheralis parts which he meant to besiege) he wan diverse Dabin towns and callels by the way, as faint Balill, Roch, Million, Montlegure, Aguillon, 4 Segart. At length he came to the towne of the Kioll, which he befieged, and late about it nine weekes per he could win it, and then was the same towne surrendered into his hands, but the castell was still defended against him for the space of eleven weekes, at which time being fore oppelled a undermined, it was perford by them within conditionallie, that they should depart onclie with their armour. After this, the earle of Derbie wan Pontpelance, Paulcon, Tille-France in A genois, Piremont, Chomines, the callell of Damal Inglife len, and at length came before the citie of Angolesme the which made appointment with the earle, that if no fuccous came from the French king within the space of a moneth, that then the citie should be sur rendered to the king of Englands ble: and to affare this appointment, they delivered to the earle foure and twentie of their chiefe citizens as hostages.

In the meane time, the earle laid flege to Blanes, Blome but could not win it . His men rode abroad into the countrie, to Portaigne, Pirabeau, and Annay, but wan little, and so returned agains to the siege of

Ia. Meir. manuflance appointed to teucia for a gard against Grand Des mic.

Jacob Arte: nelva house befet.

Froiffard. la.Mcir.

Jacob ban Arteneld flaine.

M.Pal.in fcor.

Amballadora from the goo townes in -flandera bnto king Coward.

25laues.

Blaves. Now then the month was expired, that they of Angolesme thous yeld, the earle sent his two marshals thither, who received the homage and fealtic of the citizens, in the king of Englands name, and fother were in peace, and received againe their hoflages. At length when the earle of Derbie faw that he did but lofe his time in the belieging of Wlanes, which fir Guilchart Dangle, and fir Builliaume De Rochfort, being capteins within, did so valiantlie de furnished such townes as he had wome in that tournie with convenient garifons of men to defend them against the entimies, and to keepe frontier warre, as they thould fix cause.

The French king being fore mouse at the conquells thus atchined by the earle of Derbie, railed a mightie armic, and fent the fame fouth, bnder the leas citie of Angolesme, which he incironed about with a frong fiege, continuing the same, till finallie, the capiteine named John Pozmell, required a truce to indure for one date, which was granted, and the fame garrifon departed, and left the citie in the citizens hands. The Frenchmen, bicause they had granted the truce to indure for that date without exception.

permitted them to go their waies without let og ber-ation. The citizens in the morning yelded the citie to the duke. After this, he wan the caffell of Damale fen, Thonins, and Port S. Parie; Thonins by fur-render, and the other two by force of affaults. Then belieged, and laie thereat a long feafon. Within was the earle of Penbroke, the lord Walter de Pannie. fir Franke de Halle, and diverse knights and cap teins, which defended themselves, and the place so

Coullie, that the Frenchmen could win little aduan-

Froiffard faith hundaed thous land counterly ding of his sonne the duke of Pozmandie, into Gal that they were coigne, to refift the faid earle, and to recover againe 30 a fix thousand those townes which he had wone in those parts. The norman and duke of Pozmandie being come to Tholons, where generall assemblie was appointed, fet forward with his armie, and winning by the waie Hiremount, Frenchmen. Salougnes F and Aille Franche in Agenois; at length came to the

Annales de Burgoigne,

Ingolisme recovered by the French:

Damaffen. Thomang,

Liguillon belieged.

Gio, Villani.

tage at their hands.

Whilest the slege continued before this fortreste, the fenethall of Bufen departed from the campe, with eight hundred horstemen, and soure thousand fortmen, purpoling to win a castell , belonging to a 50 Chearchde= nethue of the cardinall Della Botte , a twelue constanton, leagues diffant from Aiguillon. The archdeacon of Unfort, owner of that callell, went to the Kioll, where the carle of Derbic with his armic as then was lodged, to whome he made fuit, to have some power of mentorescue his castell. The earle appointed to him a lufficient number, both of horffemen, and also of English archers, with whome the faid archdeacon rode all the night, and the next morning betimes, being the one and thirtith of Julie, they came to the car 60 fell where the Frenchmen were arrived the daie before, and had fiercelie affailed the caffell, doing their best to win it by force. But the Englishmen without anie delaie, immediatlie bpon their comming, set bpon the Frenchmen, and gave them so Charpe and fierce battell, that in the end, the Frenchmen were discounfited : the seneshall with manic other gentlemen were taken puloners, belide those that were flaine. To conclude, the number of them that were flainc, and taken prisoners in the whole, amounted to foure hundred horffemen, and five thouland formen. Sit Godfrey de Parcourt being confircined to flæ out of France, to anoth the French kings displeas fure, came oner onto the king of England, who receis ned him verie foffullie, for he was knowne to be a right valiant and a wife personage. He was brother to the earle of Parecourt, load of faint Saufour le Micount, and of diverse other townes in Pozmandie. A little before that he fell into the French kings displeasure, he might have done with the king of France, moze than anie other logo within that

In this twentish yeare of his reigne, king Coward Tooitions to fend, that he could obteine no advantage of them, he to be possible from any returned but to Burneaur handre ourse bit flore his bourhold for this burneaur handre much. ours of vittels for his houthold (the which buder colour of their committions, abuled the fame, in taking by among the commons all manner of things that liked them, without making patment for the fame, further than the faid commissions did allow them)he caused inquirie to be made of their mildes meanors, and such as were found to have offended, of whome there was no small number, some of them were put to death on the gallowes, and other were fir punified, ned, so to teach the rest to deale more warrlie in their businesse from thenceforth. About the same time, Justices. he caused all the suffices within his dominions to renounce and give over all their pensions, fees, and o ther bubing benefits and rewards, which they beed to receive of the loves and great men of the land, as well prelats, as of them of the temporaltie, to the end that their hands being fræ from giffs, juffice might maze frælie hauc courfe, and be of them oulie and oppightlic ministred. Also this yeare in the Lent Annothing 20. was the date of the Purification of our ladie, on the 30 feafon, the king held a parlement at Westminster, Cardinals, and toke into his hands all the profits, revenues, and emoluments, which the cardinals held within this land: for he thought it not reason, that they which fanoured the pope and the French king, being his adnerfacies, thould intoy such commodifies within his realme.

After this, in the moneth of Julie following, he Froiffard. toke thipping, and failed into Pormandie, hauing es Che king pals fablithed the losd Percie, and the losd Penill, to be ethouer into he came to the Arong castell of Aguillon, which he 40 wardens of his realme in his absence, with the arche Domandie. bilhop of Porke, the bilhop of Lincolne, and the bis thop of Durelme. The armie which he had over with him, was to the number of foure thousand men of faith there armes, and ten thouland archers , belide Irithmen, were 2500 & Wellmen, that folowed the holl on fot. The thee, hortemen, and fest capteins that went over with him were these. 30000 formen first his eldest some Coward prince of Wales, be that passenger ing as then about the age of thirteene yeares, the ucr with the earles of Hereford, Porthampton, Arundell, Come, Is. but when wall, Huntington, Marwike, Suffolke, and Dr. be commethio wall, Huntington, Warwise, Suttoise, and Wer freake of the ford, of barons the load Postimer, tho was after erle battell, he feeof Harch, the loods, John, Leives, and Roger Beaus methio inchampe; alfo the loads Cobham , Dowbaie , Lucie, creafe the Ballet, Barkeley, and Willoughbie, with diverte o. number. ther loads, belides a great number of knights and other worthie capteins. They landed by the adule of the load Godfrey of Harecourt, in the Ile of Con-Chantine, at the post of Pague faint Walt, nière to faint Saulour le Alcount. The earle of Huntington was amointed to be governour of the fleet by fea, having with him a hundred men of armes, and foure hundred archers.

After that the whole armie was landed, the king amointed two marthals, the losd Goofrey of Hares court, and the earle of Warwike, and the earle of As rundell was made conflable. There were orderned Theordering thie battels, one to go on his right hand, following of the hings by the coast of the least and another to mark on his by the coast of the lea; and another to march on his left hand, bnoor the conduct of the marthals; to that he himselse went in the middest with the maine armie, and in this order forward they palled towards Caen, lodging euerie night togither in one field. They that went by the fea, take all the thips they found in their wate, and as they marched fouth thus,

Mm.iii.

Purucierg

Frenchnien.

Darfiere

Thierburge.

Carentine.

that by water a land, at length they came to a fowne called harflew, with was given by, but pet neuer. thelesse it was robbed, and much gods found in it. After this they came to Chierburge, which towns they wan by force, robbed it, and burnt part of it, but the castell they could not win. Then came they to Mountburge Meuntburge and toke it, robbed it & burnt it cleane. Buthis manner they passed forth, and burnt manie towns and villages in all the countrie as they went. The towns of Carentine was delivered unto them ro against the will of the foldiers that were within it. The foldiers defended the castell two daies, and then pelved it op into the Englishmens hands, who burnt the fame, and caused the burgelles to enter into their thips. All this was done by the battell that went by the fea five, and by them on the fea togither.

On the other five, the lord Coofrie of Parecourt, with the battell on the right hand of the king, road forth fir or feuen leagues from the kings battell, in burning and criting the countrie. The king had 20 with him (beside those that were with the marthals) 3000 men of armes, fir thousand archers, and ten thousand men on fot. They left the citie of Con-Kance, and came to a great towne called faint Lo, a rich towne of diaperie, having manie wealthie bur geffes within it: it was some taken and robbed by the Englithmen voon their first approch. From thence the king marched freight to Caen, therein were capteins Rafe earle of Give and Guines constable of France, the earle of Tankeruile. These noble men meant to have kept their defenses on the walles, gate, bridge, and river, and to have left the fuburbes boid, bicaufe they were not closed, but onelie with the river: but they of the towne faid they would fitte forth, for they were frong inough to fight with the king of England.

Then the conflable faw their god willes, he was contenied to follow their delire, and so fouth they went in good order, and made good face to put their lives in hazard: but when they law the Englishmen 40 apport in godorder, divided into the battels, & the archers readie to that, which they of Caen had not fane before, they were fore afraid, and fled awaie to ward the towne without any order or arraie, for all that the constable could do to fraie them. The Eng. lithmen followed, and in the chafe fine manie, and entered the towne with their entinies. The conffable, and the earle of Tankeruile twke a tower at the bridge fot, thinking there to faue themselues, but percetning the place to be of no force, nor able long to hold out, they submitted themselves onto six Thomas Holland. & But here what loener Froiflard douth report of the taking of this tower, and of the yelding of these two noble men, it is to be proued that the faid earle of Cankeruile was taken by one furnamed Peter Legh. Legh, ancesto; to sir Peter Leghnow lining, the ther in the fight or within the tower, I have not to faic: but for the taking of the faid earle, and for his other manlike prowes theweo here and elsewhere in this tournic, king Coward in recompense of his a, 60 greable feruice, gave to him a loodhip in the countie of Chester called Hanley, which the faid sir Peter Legh now living doth intoy and pollette, as fuccello; and heire to his ancello; the forefaid Legh, to whom it was fo firff giuen.

15ut to returne now to the matter where we left. The Frenchmen being entred into their honfes, caft downe boon the Englishmen below in the ffrets, Cones, timber, hot water, and barres of fron, fo that they hart and flue more than flue hundred perfons. The king was so moved therewith, that if the local Coofrie of Parecourt had not allwaged his mod, the tolune had beene burnt, and the people put to the edge of the swood: but by the treatic of the faid lood

Cooffie, proclamation was made, that no man Chouloput fire into any house, not fice any person, not force any woman, and then did the townsimen and fouldiers fubmit themselues, and received the Englishmen into their houses. There was great froze of riches gotten in this towne, and the most which, part thereof lent into England, with the flet which got bith the king sent home with the prisoners, butter the Engineers the king sent home with the prisoners, butter the in one was guiding of the earle of Huntington, accompanied and either with two hundred men of armes, and foure hundred this tage archers.

When all things were ordred in Caen as the king could defire, he marched from thence in the fame ou der as he had kept before, burning and eriling the countrie. De paffed by Gureur &came to Louiers, Louis which the Englishmen some entred and sacked with out mercie. Then went they forth and left Roan, and came to Gilozs, the towne they burnt, but the caffell Gilozs, they could not get they burnt also Ternon, and at Urnon Poillie they repared the bridge which was broken, and to there they passed over the river of Saine. The power of the Englishmen increased bailte, by such Gio Villai numbers as came over forth of England in hope to win by pillage. Also manie gentlemen of Pozmani die, and other of the French nation, which loved not noz olwght any god will buto the French king, came to the king of England, offering to ferue him, so that there were in his armie soure thousand horse men and fiftie thouland formen with the Pomans. and of this number there were thirtie thouland Englith arthers, as Giouan Villani witteth. The Englith marthals ran abroad full to Paris, and burnt S. & Grass Cermans in Late : also Bountiop, and S. Clowd, S. Clowd, and petic Bullongne by Paris, the quenes Burge. In the meane time had the French king allembled a mightie armie vpon purpole to fight with the Englichmen. ¶ The load Goofrey of Parecourt, as he rode forth with five hundred men of armes, and 13 hundred archers, by adventure incountered with a great number of the burgeffes of Amiens on hostle backe, who were riving by the kings commandes ment to Paris. They were quickelie affailed, and though they defended themselves manfallie for a while, yet at length they were overcome, and cleven hundled of them flaine in the field, beside those that were taken. The Englishmen had all their cariage and armour. Thus palled footh the bing of England, and came into Beauuoilin, and lodged neere buto the citie of Beauuois one night in an abbeie called Hel Beautis fene, and for that after he was dislodged, there were that set fire in the same abbete, without any commandement given by him; he caused twentie of them to be hanged that were the first procurers of that Burnes fire.

So long the king of England passed forward, that finallie he approched nære to the water of Some, the which was large and deepe, and all the bridges broken and the passages well kept, wherebyon he caused his two marthals with a thousand men of armes, two thousand archers, to go along the riner, to the end to find some passage. The marthals assaied diverse plas ces, as at Piqueney, and other there, but they could piquing not find any pallage buclofed, capteins with men of warre being fet to defend the same, in somuch that the marthals returned to the hing, and occlared that they had feene and found. At the fame infrant time Etefic was the French king come to Amfens, with more bings at the than a hundred thousand men, and thought to inclose the king of England, that he thould no wate escape, but be confireined to receive battell in some place greatlie to his disaduantage.

The king of England well perceining himselfe in danger, removed from the place where he was in camped, and marched forward through the countries

Saint Lo.

Chere were Caine in all Swithout and towne 5000 men,ag Gio. Villani Sozi= tetb.

Caen taken.

of

An.Reg.20.

of Ponticio and Climeto, approching but othe god towns of Abuile, and at length by one of the pulonersnamed Cobin de Grace, he was told where he might passe with his armie over the river of Some, etal oin the same river, being hard in the bot tome, and verie hallow at an eb water. The French hing uncerstanding that the la. of England fought to passe the river of Some, sent a great baron of pomandic, one fir Codmare du Foy, to befend the passage of the same river, with a thousand men of armes, and fir thousand on fot with the Genowaies. Ehis fir Coomare had with him allo a great number of them of Hutterell and others of the countrie, fo that he had in all to the number of twelve thouland men, one and other, and hearing that the king of England was minded to passe at Blanchetake (which was the passage that Gobin Agace had informed the king of England of)he came thither. When the Englishmen approched, he arranged all his com

panie to defend the pallage.

And werlie when the Englishmen at the lowe water entered the foed to passe over, there was a harpebickering, for diverte of the Frenchmen incountred the Englithmen on hoalebacke in the was ter, and the Genowaies did them much hurt, and The English troubled them fore with their crosbowes: but on the min wan the other five, the English archers shot so wholie togither, that the Frenchmen were faine to give place to the Englishmen, so that they got the pastage and came over, affembling themselves in the field, and then the Frenchmen fled, some to Abutle , some to faint Ris 3 quier. They that were on fot could not escape so well as those on horsebacke, insomuch that a great num. ber of them of Abuile, Putterell, Arras, and S.Ri. quier were flaine and taken, for the chafe indured more than a great league. There were flaine in all to the number of two thousand. When the B. of England had thus passed the river, he acquitted Bobin Agace and all his companie of their ranfomes, and gaue to the same Gobin an hundled nobles, and a god horfie, and so the king road forth as he did before. Crotapburnt His marthals road to Trotaic by the fea fide, and burnt the towne, and twke all such wines and gods as were in the thips and backs which late there in the

Due of the marchals road to the gates of Abuile, and from thence to S. Riquier, and after to the towne of Line faint Ciperit. This was on a fridate, and both the marthal's returned to the kings hoft about tione, and so lodged all togither about Cresse in Pontiew, where having knowledge that the French hing followed to give him battell, he commanded his marthals to those a plot of ground, somewhat to his advantage, that he might there abide his adversaries. In the meane time the French king being come with all his puillance buto Abuile, and hearing how the king of England was passed over the river of Some, and discomfited fir Godinare du Foy, was fore displeased in his mind: but when he understood that his enimies were looged at Cresse, and meant there to abide him, be caused all his people to issue 60 out of Abuile, and earlie on the faturdate in the mozthing, anon after sunnerising he departed out of the towns himselfe, and marched towards his enimies. The king of England binderstanding that his adnerfarie king Philip Will followed him, to gine him battell, a supoling that the same saturdate he would come to offer it, role betimes in the morning, and commanded enerie man first to call byon God for his ath, then to be armed, and to draw with speed into the field, that in the place before appointed they might be fet in order of battell. Beginning his enterprise at inuocation or calling upon God, he was the more fortunate in his affaires, and sped the better in the progresse of his actions, as the thue of the warre the wed. A notable example to everic privat man, to remember to call opon God when he purposeth anic thing, for as the poet faith, and that verie christianlic, mihilest mortalibus agris Ptilius,quàm cœlestem sancteg pieg, Orando sili quarere opem.

Mar. Pal, in sag.

Welide this, he cauled a parke to be made and clofed by the woo five behind his hoft, in the which he oze deined that all the carts and carriages thould be fet, with all the horses (for everie man was on fot.) Then he ordeined three battels, in the first was the prince of Wales, and with him the earls of Warwike, the load Godfrey of Harecourt, the load Staff ford, the lord de la Mare, the lord Bourchier, the lord Thomas Clifford, the lord Reginald Cobham, the Gioud Villand Lood Thomas Polland, fir John Chandos, fir Bar; fatth, that tholomew de Browath, fir Robert Peuill. They Mould come were eight hundred men of armes, and two thous in battell, the fand archers, and a thousand of other with the Welth Englishmen men. In the second battell was the earle of Posth, archers Engahampton, the earle of Arundell, the losds Kos and tithe weith, Millowbie, Ballet, S. Albine, Pulton, and others. befice other The third battell the king led himselfe, having with formen with him feauen hundred men of armes, and two thous ares siauce land archers, and in the other battell were to the fulle 4000 number of eight hundled men of armes, and twelve holdemen. hundred archers. Thus was the English armie mar-Challed according to the report of Froiffard. When e uerie man was gotten into oder of battell, the king leapt boon a thite hobbie, and rode from ranke to Froiffard, ranke to view them, the one marchall on his right The kings hand, and the other on his left, defiring everie man demeaning bea that date to have regard to his right and honour. He fore y battell. spake it so courteoustie, and with so god a counter nance, that even they which before were discomfor ted, twke courage in hearing him fpeake fuch fweet and louing woods amongst them. It was nine of the clocke per ever be had thus bilited all his battels, & therebpon he caused everie man to eat and drinke a little, which they old at their leifure.

The French king, before he approched neere to his enimies, fent forth foure skilfull knights to view the demeanor of his enimies, the which returning againe, made report as they had feene, and that forfor much as they could gelle, the Englishmen ment to abide him, being divided into thee battels, readie to receive him and his pullance, if he went forward in purpole to affaile them. Here was the French king counselled to stay and not to give battell that day, but to admife all things with god deliberation and regard to confider well how and what way he might best assaile them. Then by the marthals were all men The Diseases commanded to frais, and not to go anie further, they among the that were formost and next to the enimies faried, but they that were behind would not abide but rode forth, and faid they would not state till they were as far as the formost: and when they before faw them behind come forward, then they marched on also as gaine, fo that neither the la. not his marthals could rule them, but that they passed forward still without order, or anie god arraie, till they came in light of their enimies : and as some as the formost fato their enimies, then they reculed backe, whereof they behind had maruell, and were abathed, supposing that the formost companie had beine fighting. Then they might have had rome to have gone forward, if they had beene minded. The commons, of thome all the wates betwirt Abuile and Creffie were full, when they saw that they were neere their enimies, they take their fwords and cried; Downe with them, Let vs flea them all. There was no man, though he were present at the tornie, that could imagine or thew the truth of the entil opper that was among the French

Frenchmen.

Cayton

Fronfard.

The number

An.Reg.20.

€ 17 G00°

the water of

Cayton

flunc. Fronfard.

Tare in For.

of Ponticionio Tilmew, appoching buto the god towns of Abuile, and at length by one of the pulonersnamed Sobin de Grace, he was told where he might passe with his armie over the river of Some, at a food in the fame river, being hard in the bots tome and verie hallow at an eb water. The French hing uncerstanding that the la. of England fought to passe the river of Some, sent a great baron of pomandic, one fir Codmare du Foy, to defend the pallage of the same river, with a thousand men of armes, and fir thousand on fot with the Genowaies. This fir Coomarc had with him allo a great number of them of Purterell and others of the countrie, fo that he had in all to the number of twelve thousand men, one and other, and hearing that the king of England was minded to passe at Blanchetake (which was the pallage that Gobin Agace had info, med the king of England of)he came thither. When the Englithmen approched, he arranged all his com

panie to defeno the padage.

And suerlie when the Englishmen at the lowe water entered the food to palle over, there was a tharpebickering, for diverte of the Frenchmen incountred the Englithmen on hoalebacke in the was ter, and the Genowaies did them much hurt, and The English troubled them fore with their crosbowes: but on the other five, the English archers shot so wholie togither. that the Frenchmen were faine to give place to the Englishmen, so that they got the passage and came over affembling themselves in the field, and then the Frenchmen fled some to Abuile, some to saint Mis 30 quier. They that were on fot could not escape so well as those on hossebacke, infomuch that a great num. ber of them of Abuile, Hutterell, Arras, and S.Ki. quier were flaine and taken, for the chafe indured more than a great league. There were flaine in all The number to the number of two thousand. When the B. of England had thus pasted the river, he acquitted Bobin Agace, and all his companie of their ranfomes, and good horfie, and so the king road fouth as he did before. Crotapburnt His marthals road to Trotate by the fea fide, and burnt the towne, and twke all fuch wines and gods as were in the thips and backs which late there in the

> Due of the marchals road to the gates of Abuile. and from thence to S. Riquier, and after to the tolune of line faint Ciperit. This was on a fridaie, and both the marchals returned to the kings host about none, and so lodged all togither about Cresse in Ponticly, there having knowledge that the French king followed to give him battell, he commanded his marthals to those a plot of ground, somewhat to his advantage, that he might there abide his adversaries. In the meane time the French king being come with all his puissance onto Abuile, and hearing how the king of England was passed over the river of Dome, and discomfited fir Godmare du Foy, was fore displeased in his mind: but when he understood that his enimies were lodged at Creffie, and meant there to abide him, becaused all his people to tiffue 60 out of Abuile, and earlie on the faturdate in the mosthing, anon after funneriting he departed out of the towns himselfe, and marched towards his enimies. The king of England binderstanding that his adnerfarie king Philip Eill followed him, to gine him battell, & supposing that the same saturdaic he would come to offer it, role betimes in the morning, and commanded enerie man first to call bpon God for his aid, then to be armed, and to draw with speed into the field, that in the place before appointed they might be fet in order of battell. Beginning his enterprise at imocation or calling upon Goo, he was the more fortunate in his offaires, and sped the better in the progrede of his actions, as the thue of the warre the lved. A notable example to eucric privat man, to remember to call byon God when he purposeth anie thing, for as the poet faith, and that verie christianlie, –mhilest mortalibus agris rtilius,quam calestem,sancteg, pieg, Orando sibi quærere opem.

Mar, Pal, in fag,

Belide this, he caused a parke to be made and clofed by the woo five behind his holf, in the which he azdeined that all the carts and carriages theuld be fet. with all the hortes (for everie man was on fot.) Then he ordeined three battels, in the first was the prince of Wales, and with him the earle of Warwike, the load Goofrey of Parecourt, the load Staff ford, the lord de la Mare, the lord Bourchier, the lord Thomas Clifford, the lord Reginald Cobham, the Gious Villani Lood Thomas Holland, fir John Chandos, fir Bar, fatth, that tholomew de Browash, sir Robert Peuill. They Mould ione were eight hundred men of armes, and two thous in battell, the fand archers, and a thousand of other with the Welsh Englishmen men. In the second battell was the carle of Posth, archers Engage hampton, the earle of Arundell, the loads Ros and lith with, Millowbie, Ballet, S. Albine, Pulton, and others. belide other The third battell the king led himselse, having with fortmen with him feauen hundled men of armes, and two thous ares staues fand archers, and in the other battell were to the fallic 4000 number of eight hundred men of armes, and twelve horaemen. hundred archers. Thus was the English armie marshalled according to the report of Froisfard. When e uerie man was gotten into ozoer of battell, the king least byon a white hobbie, and rode from ranke to Froiffard, ranke to view them, the one marthall on his right The kings hand, and the other on his left, defiring everte man demeaned bethat daie to have regard to his right and honour. He fore & battell. spake it so courteouslie, and with so god a counter nance, that even they which before were discomfore ted, twke courage in hearing him speake such sweet and louing woods amongst them. It was nine of the clocke per ever he had thus visited all his battels. * gauc to the same Gobin an hundred nobles, and a 40 therespon he caused everie man to eat and drinke a little, which they old at their leisure.

The French king, before he approched nære to his enimies, lent forth foure skilfull knights to view the demeanor of his enimies, the which returning againe, made report as they had liene, and that for los much as they could gelle, the Englishmen ment to abide him, being divided into thee battels, readie to receive him and his pullance, if he went forward in purpose to affaile them. Here was the French king counselled to stay and not to give battell that day. but to admise all things with god deliberation and regard to confider well bow and what way he might belt affaile them. Then by the marthals were all men The Disorder commanded to ffaie, and not to go anie further, thep among the that were formost and next to the enimies faried, Frenchmen, but they that were behind would not abide but roce forth, and faid they would not state till they were as far as the formost: and when they before faw them behind come forward, then they marched on also as gaine, so that neither the Is. no; his marshals could rule them, but that they passed forward still without order, or anie god arraie, till they came in light of their enimies : and as some as the formost saw their enimies, then they reculed backe, whereof they behind had maruell, and were abathed, supposing that the formost companie had beine fighting. Then they might have had rome to have gone forward, if they had bene minded. The commons, of whome all the waies betwirt Abuile and Creste were full, when they fain that they were niere their enimies, they take their fwords and cried; Downe with them, Let vs flea them all. There was no man, though he were present at the tornie, that could imagine or thew the truth of the euillogoer that was among the French partie, and yet they were a maruellous great num-

The Englishmen which beheld their enimies thus approching them, prepared themselves at leisure for the battell, which they faw to be at hand. The first battell, whereof the prince was ruler, had the archers flanding in maner of an herfe, and the men of armes in the botome of the battell. The earle of Porthamp ton and the earle of Arundell with the fecond battell, were on a wing in god order, readie to comfort the 10 princes battell if need were. The lords and knights of France came not to the allemblie togither, for some came after, in fuch half and cuill order, that one of Charles Gri them troubled another. There were of Genowaies crosbolves to the number of tivelue or fiffeene thous fand, the which were commanded to go on before, and thon Dona with their that to begin the battell; but they were to of their Geno- were buth going on for that morning fir leagues water, which armed with their crosbowes, that they said to their as Gio. Villani commanded to fight this date, for the be not in cale to dw any great feat of armes, we have more nico of rest. These words came to the hearing of the earle of Alanfon, tiho faid; A man is well at eafe to be charged with such a fort of rascals, that faint and faile now at most ned.

Also at the same instant there fell a great raine,

Katne and an celiple.

Che carte of faith.

Polydor,

Froitfard.

Blanfon.

thouse or Da

thunder with and an eclipfe with a terrible thunder, and before the raine, there came flieng over both armies a great number of crowes, for feare of the tempest com= 30 ming : then anon the aire began to war cleare, and the funne to thine faire and bright, which was right in the french menseies, and on the Englifts mens backs. Then the Genowaies were affems bled togither, and began to approch, they made a great leave and crie, to abath the Englithmen, but thep food fell and frirred not at all for that noise. Then the Genotivates the fecond time made an other leape and huge crie, and flemed forward a little, and the Englithmen remonied not a fot. The third time againe 40 the Genowates leapt, and yelled, and went footh till ther came within thot, and fiercelie ther with discharged their crofbowes. Then the English arthers flept forth one pale, and let flie their arrowes to utolic and lo thicke togither, that it seemed to snowe. Then the Cenowaies felt the arrowes perfing their heads, armes and breafts, manie of them cast downe their crosbowes, and cut the strings, and returned discomfited. Ethen the French king faw them fic awaie, he Che battell w begun.

> cc bs without reason. Then we might have frene the men of armes have dasht in amongst them, and killed a great number of them, and euer the Englishmen thot libere they falv the thickest prease: the tharpearrowes ran into the men of armes, and into their horffes, and manie fell hoeffe and man among ff the Cenowates, and fill the Englishmen that where they faw the thickest prease, and when they were once downe they could not recouer againe. The thiong was such that one ouer: 60 threw another; + also among the Englishmen, there were certeine of the formen with great knines, that went in among the men of armes, and killed manie of them as they late on the ground, both earles, barons knights, and elquires. The valiant king of 130= hem being almost blind, caused his men to fasten all the reines of the budels of their boulles ech to other, and to he being himfelfe among ft them in the formoff ranke, they ran on their enimies.

The lord Charles of Boheme fonne to the fame king and late elected emperour, came in good order to the battell, but when he faw how the matter went awie on their part, he departed and faued himfelfe. his father by the meanes aforefaid went fo far for ward, that joining with his entinies he fought right valiantlie, and to did all his companie : but finalic being entred within the prease of their enimies, they were of them inclosed and flaine, together with the king their maffer, and the nert date found dead lieng about him, and their horses all tied ech to other. The earle of Alanson came right orderlie to the battell, Charles and so did the parts and fought with the Englishmen, and so did the earle of flanders also on his part. These two loads codfied the English archers, and came to the princes bate tell, and there fought right valiantlie a long time. The French king perceining where their banners frod, would faine have come to them, but could not, by reason of a great hedge of archers that frod betwirt them and him. This was a perillous battell and fore foughten: there were few taken to mercie, for the Englishmen had so determined in the more ning.

ng. Certeine Frenchmen and Almaines perforce of Thepical were not past constables; Cese be not well vied, in that we are 20 pened the archers of the princes battell, and came to building fight with the men of armes hand to hand. Then the fed. fecond battell of the Englishmen came to succes the princes battell, and not before it was time, for ther of that battell had as then inough to do, in somuch that some which were about him, as the earle of Porthampton, and others fent to the king, where he Chunks food aloff on a windmill bill, requiring him to ab fondary nance forward, and come to their aid, they being as bing. then loze laid to of their enimies. The king hereup on demanded if his sonne were flaine, burt, og felled to the earth - 120 (faid the knight that brought the message) but he is some matched. Well (faid the king) Theking returne to him and them that fent you, and faie to answer them that they fend no more to me for any adventure, that falleth, to long as my fon is alive, for I will that this fournie be his, with the honor thereof. With this " answer the knight returned, which greatlie incouraged them to do their best to win the spurs, being half abathed in that they had to fent to the king for aid. At length then it drew toward evening, and that the Frenchmen were beaten downe and flaine on ech hand king Philip as it were by confircint departed The fin out of the field, not having as then past three leave pers bing ton fons about him, of thome the load John of Deinault the and was one, by those ner inasion by those ner inasion by was one, by whose persuation he chefelie consented to rive his wate for his owne falegard, when he faw the loffe was such as on that date it could not be recoucred.

The flaughter of the Frenchmen was great and Greatles faid: Slea theferalcals, for they will let and trouble 50 lamentable, namelie for the loffe of fo manie noble mosfin men, as were flaine at the same battell, fought be men. tweine Creffie and Brop on the faturdaie nert fol Canen. lowing the feast of faint Bartholome w being (as Polyde that peare fell) the 26 of August. Annong other which Frontied died that baie, thefe I find registred by name as gotten thefest, John king of Boheme, Rase duke of Lop Com. raine, Charles of Alanso brother germane to hing Abilip, Charles earle of Blois. Leives earle of Flans ders, allo the earle of Parecourt, brother to the lord Settric of Herecourt, with the carles of Ausserre, Aumerle, and faint Boule, befor dinerfe other of the nobilitie. The Englishmen neuer brake out of their battels to chase any man, but kept themselves togic ther in their wards and ranks, and defended themsclues euer against such as came to assaile them. This battell ended about eurning.

When the Frenchmen were clearelie ouercome, and those that were left aline fled and gone, so that the Englithmen heard no more noife of them, hing Co Cheben ward came downe from the bill (on the which he flod England all that day with his helmet fill on his head) and go much ing to the prince, imbraced him in his armes, and his from the fed him, faieng; Faire fonne, God fend you god per: ,, scuerance in this your prosperous beginning, you ,,

baue

Er Geno: wa.cs.

The hing of 111.11

" have noblic acquit your felfe, you are well worthic to have the governance of a realme committed to pour hands for your valiant dwings. The prince inclined himselfe to the earth in honouring his father, as he best could. This done, they thanked God together with their fouldiers for their good aductiture. For fo the bing commanded, and willed no man to make aine boots of his owne power, but to afceibe all the praise to almightie God for luch a noble victorie; fæming herein to be affected as Danio was in the foure and 1 fortith pialine; for healfo referreth the happie fuccesse of warre, and all bidorie, buto almightie God, and not to the arength of a multitude of men, faieng:

Georg. Buch. paraph ingfal.

Tunos ab hoste subtrahis, sternis solo Infensa nobis agmina. Non ergo semper sure te cantalimis Nostra salutis vindicem ?

On the fundate in the morning, there was fucha milt, that a man could not fee an acres breath before him. Then by the kings commandement there depar, 20 ted from the holf fine hundred fpeares and two thous fand archers , to trie if they might beare of anie Frenchmen gathered togither in anie place nære

On the same morning there were departed out of Abuile and S. Requier in Ponticio, the commons of Koan and Beannais, with other that knew no. thing of the discomfiture the date before. These met with the Englishmen, supposing they had borne frenchmen, and being fiercelie affailed of them , at 30 by maiffer Iohn Fox as followeth. ter fore fight, and great flaughter, the Frenchmen were discomfited and fled, of thome were flaine in the bedges & bulbes, more than feuen thousand men. The archbishop of Roan, and the grand prior of France, ignozant also of the discomfiture the day before, & supoling (as they were informed) the French thould not have foughten till that fundate, were like wife incountred (as they came thitherward) by the Englithmen, with whome they fought a fore battell, for they were a great number, but yet at length they 49 The archb. of lucre not able to susseine the putsant force of the Englishmen, and so the most part of them were the loss grand flaine, with the fair archbilhop and grand prior, and france Claine

few there were that escaped. On that lundaie morning, the Englishmen met with diverse Frenchmen, that had lost their waie on the faturdaie, and wiff not where the king nor their capteins were become. They were all flaine in manner, so manie as the Englishmen could most with, informuch that of the commons and formen of the ci- 50 ties and god townes of France (as was thought) there were flaine this fundate foure times as mante as were flaine on the faturbate in the great battell. Then those Englishmen that were fent abroad thus to biew the countrie, were returned againe, and fignifico to the king what they had force and done, and bow there was no more appearance of the entinies, the king to fearth what the number was of them that were flaine, and boon the view taken, it was reported but him, that there were found dead cleuen 60 princes, foure fcore baronets, 12 hundred lanights, and more than thirtie thousand other of the meaner fort. Thus was the whole pullance of France vanquished, and that the flie by force of fuch as were of no reputation amongst them, that is to fap, the Englith archers, by whose tharpe and violent that the vice toric was atchined, to the great confusion of the French nation . I Df fuch price were the English bowes in that featon, that nothing was able to with stand them; whereas now our archers couet not to draws long and frong bowes, but rather to thot compate, which are not meet for the warres, nor greatlic to be feared, though they come into the

The king of England with his armic kept fill his field, untill monoaie in the morning, and then diflodged, and came before Doturcell by the fea, and his marchals ran towards Dedin. The next daie they road toward Bullongne, a at Willam the king and the prince incamped, and farried a uhole date to refresh their people, and on the wednesdate being the thirtith day of August, he came before the arong tolune of Calis, and there planted his fiege, and co reced ballibes betweene the towne and the river, and gev. caused carpenters to make houses and longings of great timber, which were courted with red & bemnie, so manie and in such order, that it seemed a new towne, and in it was a market place appointed of purpose, in the which the market was vailte kept of vittels, call other necessarie things everistic date and faturdais, so that a man might have bought that he would of things brought thither out of Eng. land & Flanders. ABut now, for somuch as we have spoken of this sournie and invasion made by king Coward into France, in this nineteenth piere of his reigne, accordinglic as we have gathered out of Froiflard, and diverte other authors, I have thought good to make the reader partaker of the contents of a letter written by a chapleine of the faid king, and attendant about him in the fame toznic, centeining the successe of his proceedings after his departure from Politie, which letter is inferted with others in the historie of Robert de Auesburie, and Englished

A letter of W. Northbourgh the kings confessor describing the kings voiage into France.

Alutations premiled. The In the ada give you to biderstand, that and monus our soueveryne was the came to the towne of Poissie the Assumption of our ladie, where was our souereigne lozd the king ments.

a certeine bridge over the water of Saine broken downe by the enimie, but the king tarried there so long, till that the bridge was made againe. And whiles the bridge was in reparing, there came a great nums ber of men at armes, and other fouldiers well armed, to hinder the same. But the earle of Porthampton issued out against them, and flue of them more than athouland, the rest sed awaie: thankes be to God. And at another time, our men paffed the water (although with much travell) and flue a great number of the common fouldiers of France, about the citie of Pas ris, and countrie adjoining, being part of the French kings armie, and throughlie well appointed: so that our people have now made other god bridges byon our es nimies, Godbe thanked, without anie lose and damage to bs. And on the morrow after the Allumption of outladie, the king palled the water of Saine, and marched toward Poisse, which is a towne of great defense, and stronglie walled, and a mar-uellous strong castell within the same, which our enimies kept. And when our bauntgard was passed the fowne, our rers gard gaue an affault therebuto, and twke the same, where were saine more than the hundred men at arms of our enimies part.

Calie belie:

Frenchmen

flaine the day

part. And the next date following, the earle of Suffolke, and fir Dugh Spenfer, marthed fourth byon the commons of the countrie assembled and well armed, and in fine discomfited them, and slue of them more than two hundred, a twke three score gentlemen priloners, belide others.

And after that, the king marched toward grand Uilliers, and while he was there in= 10 camped, the kings bantgard was descried by the men at armes of the k. of Boheme: wherepon our men issued out in great half and coined battell with them, but were inforced to retire. Potwithstanding, thanks be buto God, the earle of Porthamptonis fued out, and rescued the horstemen with the other foldiers: so that few or none of them were either taken or flaine, sauing onlie Thomas Talbot, but had againe the 20 enimie in chase within two leagues of A= miens : of whome we take eight, and flue twelve of their best men at armes: the rest being well horsed, twke the towns of Amis ens. After this the king of England marched toward Pountife, bpon Bartholomew day, and came to the water of Some, where the French king had laid five hundied men at armes, and thise thouland fot = 30 men, purpoling to have kept and stopped our pallage : but thanks be to God, the k. of England and his holt entered the same water of Some, where never man passed before, without losse of any of our men; and after that incountered with the enimie, and flue of them moze than 2000, the rest fled to Abuile, in which chase were taken manie knights, esquiers, emen at armes. The same day fir Hugh Spenser twee the towne of Crotaie, where he ahis soldiers flue 400 men at armes, Tkept the towne, where they found great store of vittels.

The same night incamped the king of England in the forrest of Cressie byon the same water, for that the French kings holt came on the other lide of the towne, nære but o our passage: but he would not take the water of vs, & so marched toward Abuile. 50 And byon the fridate next following, the king being still incamped in the faid forcest, our leuriers descried the French &. which marched toward by in foure great bat tels; and having then bnderstanding of our enimies (as Gods will was) a little before the evening tide, we drew to the plaine field, and let our battels in arraie : and imbehaued themselves right noblie. But thanks be given buto God, the victorie fell on our side, & the king our adversarie was discomfited with all his host a put to flight: where also was flaine the king of Boheme, the duke of Lozaine, the earle of Alanson, the earle of Flanders, the earle of Blois, the earle of Parecourt, with his two fons, the earle of Baumarle, the earle de Me uers, and his brother the lord of Tronard, the archbilhop of Ailines, the archbilhop of Sens, the high prior of France, the earle of Saucie, the load of Morles, the load de Guies, le seigneur de Saint Pouant, le seigneur de Kolinburgh, with six earles of Almaine, and diverse other earles, ba rons, knights, and efquiers, whose names are buknowne. And Philip de Cialois him: felfe, with an other marques, which was called lood elector among the Romans, cl caped from the battell. The number of the men of armes which were found dead in the field, befide the common foldiers and formen, were a thouland, five hundred, for tie and two: and all that night the king of England with his holtaboad armed in the field, where the battell was fought.

On the next morrow, before the sunne rose, there marched towards by another great hold mightie altrong, of the French men: but the earle of Northampton, and the earle of Postfolke istued out againg them in the battels, Fafter long and terrible fight, them likewise they discomfited by Gods great helpe and grace (for 0= therwise it could never have beene) where they twie of knights and elquiers a great number, and flue about two thousand, pur fuing the chase the leages from the place where the battell was fought. The fame night also the king incamped himselfe as gaine in the forest of Cresse, and on the morrow marched toward Bullongne, and by the way he toke the towne of Staples: and from thence he marched toward Cas lis, where he intendeth to plant his liege, and late his batterie to the same. And therfore our sourreigne losd the king willeth and commandeth you, in all that ever you may, to fend to the faid stege bittels conuenient. For after the time of our departing from Caen, we have travelled through the countrie with great perill a danger of our people, but yet alwaies had of bittels plentie, thanks be to God therefore. But now (as the case standeth) we partise need your helpe to be refreshed with vittels. Thus fare you well. Wiritten at the fiege before the towne of Calis, the fourteenth daie of September.

But now touching the fiege of Calis, and to refurne where we left, pe thall buder stand, that (as ye have heard)the English campe was furnished with fufficient prouision of meat, drinke, amarell, munition, and all other things necessarie: and offentimes also the soldiers made roads and forrais into the boy ders of France nertadioining, as towards Guines, mediatlie the fight began, which was fore and cruell, Eindured long, for our enimies and fometime to Bullongne. Also the earle of Porth and sometime to Bullongne. Also the earle of Porth lacker ampton fetched a botte out of Arthois, and as he returned toward the hoft, he came to Terrouan, which Terround towns the bishop had fortified and manned, belivering the cuffodie therof buto fir Arnold Dandzehen: for when he heard the Englishmen approched, he burff not tarrie within the citie himselfe, but got him to faint Omers. Sir Arnold Rood valfantlie to his defense, and would not yeld, till by verie force the Englishmen entered the citie, flue the foldiers, and Erricas toke their capteine the faid fir Arnold paffoner. The wondy citie was put to facke, and after fet on fire. And then the Englithmen were departed, there came a number of flemings from the fiege, which they had laid before S. Diners, and began a new spoile, and fired fuch houses belonging to the canons and other, which the Englishmen had spared . Thus were those confines in most milerable cale, for no house noz o. ther thing was in lafegard, but luch as were conteis nco within closure of strong townes and fortrestes. The king of England would not affaile the towne of Calis by giving anie affault to it, for he knew he thould but lofe his labour, and watte his people, it was fo frong of it felfe, and fo well furnished with the towne. The king of England perceiving that this was done of purpole to spare vittels, would not fame, but rather pitied them; and therefore did not praise, and caused manie of his entinies to prate right hartilie for his good fuccelle and prosperitie. A most notable example of pitie and compation, teaching

Foiffard,

men of warre. Capteine thereof also was one fir John de Tlienne, a valiant knight of Burgoigne, having with him diverle other right hardie and ertinne cap: pert capteins, knights, and elquiers. When the faib fir John de Alienne faw the manner of the English hoff, and what the kings intention was, he confired ned all the pore and meane people to depart out of

Cheking of onelic thew them fo much grace to fuffer them to engiands palle through his holf, but also gave them meat and brinke to dinner, and moreover two pence fferling the page. to cuerie person : which charitable beed wan him much other to be in like fort affected, and also to know, that Spernit calorum regem (pretor miferorum.

The horse of giornamoie. lent foz.

The French king meaning to raile the flege from Calis, which the king of England kept there, fent for his some the duke of Pozmandie, which had line long at the fiege of Afguillon, and now by commander ment of his father left it love against his will. In this meane while, the earle of Derbie remained in the citie of Burdeaux, and there had held him du ring all the time that the fiege laie before Aiguillon. When he once boderftod that the liege was raifed, and that the duke of Posmandie had broken by his 4 campe, he fent into Galcoigne for all knights and The carle of equires that held of the English part. Then came to Dervicallin: Burdeaux the lood Dalboet, the lood de Lespare, the bethan armie lood de Rolam, the lood of Pulident, the lood of Paus miers, and a great fort more of the lords and nobles of Galcoigne, so that the earle had twelve hundaed men of armes, two thousand archers, and there thous fand other formen. They passed the river of Baron. betwirt Burdeaur and Blaie, and toke their waie to Zandonge, fo to go bnto Poictiers, and toke by 5 the waie the towne of Wirabell by affault : they wan allo the towne and caffell of Aunaie, Surgieres and Benon . Also they twice Paraunt in Postow by Coms won force, they burnt also the towne of Lufignen, but the castell they could not win . Pozeover, they did win the bulge, towne, and castell of Tailburge, and five all that were found within it, bicause a knight of the English part was flaine in the affaulting. From thence the earle of Derbie went and laid liege to faint John Dangelie, which was yielded to him by 60 composition.

At Piort he made three affaults, but could not win it, and fo from thence he came to Bourge faint Pariment, the which was wone by force, and all that were within it flaine; and in like manner the tolune of Pontrenill Bonin was wone, and the most part of them within flaine, that twie boon them to defend it, which were 200 coiners of monie that wrought in the mint, which the French king kept there. From wence he passed forward with his host, and finallie came before the citie of Politiers, which was great and large, so that he could not besiege it but on the one five. The third daie after his comming thither, he cauled the citie to be affaulted in their places, and the greatest number were appointed to assaile the weakelf part of the citie. As then there were no expert men of warre within Pointiers , but a great multitude of people unskilfall and not used to any feats of warre, by reason whereof the Englishmen entered in at the weakest place. When they within falve the citie wone, they fled out at other gates, but yet there were flaine to the number of feauen hundled persons, for all that came in the Englishmens wate were put to the swood, men, women, and children. The citie was facked and rifled, fo that great froze of The citie of riches was gotten there, as well of the inhabitants 300micrs as other that had brought their gods thither for fafe, won by force. gard of the fame. The earle of Derbie laie there ten or twelve dates, and longer might have laine, if his pleasure had so beine, for there was none that durit go about to disquiet him, all the countrie trembled so at his prefence.

At his departure from Pointiers he left the citie being them backe agains to helps to confume the 20 boid, for it was to great to be kept : his fouldiers and men of warre were so pessered with riches, that they will not what to do therewith: they essemed nothing but gold and filuer, and feathers for men of warre. The earle vifited by the waie as he returned homewards to Burdeaux the towne of faint John Dangelie, and other fortrelles tibich he had towne Dangelie, in going towards Politiers, and having furnished them with men, munition, and vittels necessarie, at his comming to Burdeaur he brake op his holf, and 30 licencing his people to depart, thanked them for their pames and good fernice. All this while the fiege confinued Will before Calis, and the French king among & other denifes which he imagined how to raise the B. of England from it , procured the Scots to make warre into England, infomuch that Dauid king of Scotland, not with standing the truce which yet indured betwirt him and the king of England, opon hope now to bo some great exploit, by reason of the abfence of king Coward, intangled thus with the bes The king of o freging of Calis, he affembled the whole putffance Scots inugof his realme, to the number of fortie or threscore beth Enga thouland fighting men (as some write) and with them Polydor. entered into England, burning, spoiling, and wall, ing the countrie, till he came as far as Durham.

The loads of England that were left at home with the quæne for the fure kæping and defense of the realine, perceining the king of Scots thus boldie to inuade the land, and in hope of spotle to send forth his light horfemen to harrie the countrie on ech five him, aftembled an host of all such people as were as ble to beare armour, both prefts and other . Their ges nerall affemblie was appointed at Pewcastell, and The English then they were all togither, they were to the num, lords allembis bet of 1 200 men of armes, the thouland archers, a power to and feating thouland office with the and office with the and featien thousand other, with the Welthmen, and Scots. issuing out of the towne, they found the Scots reas Froisfard, die to come forward to incounter them. Then everie man was let in order of battell, and there were foure battels ordeined, one to aid another. The first was led by the bishop of Durham, Gilbert de Uinfreuile earle of Ancgos, Henrie low Percie, and the load Henrie Scrwpe: the second by the archbishop of Poske, and the lood Kafe Peuill: the third by the bis hop of Lincolne, John loed Powbenie, and the loed Thomas de Rokebie: the fourth was governed by the load Coward Balioll capteine of Berwike, the archbishop of Canturburie, and the losd Ros: belide thele were M. load d' Cincourt, Robert de Dale, and other. The queene was there in person, and went Tho. Walf. from ranke to ranke, and incouraged hir people in Froiffard. the best manner the could , and that come the depar. The quence ted, committing them and their cause to God the air diligence, uer of all bidoxic.

Shortlie herebpon the Scots fet forward to be-

Saint John

Che Dcots tight with errs.

The English the bictorie. The king of Scots taken. was prifoner to an elquier of Porthumberland, who uants, and refted not till he came to his owne caffell there he divelled, being thirtie miles diffant from the place of the battell. Hect . Boctius. Ri. Southwell. Fife, Sutherland, Wighton, and Menteth, the load William Douglas, the lood Melcie, the archbithop of S. Andrewes, and another bilhop, with fir Thomelin Foukes, and dinerfe other men of name. There were flaine of one and other to the number of 15 thousand. This battell was fought befide the citie of Durham Beuils croffe, at a place called Beuils croffe, bpon a faturdaie nert

Lord 1 3 46. Df this ouerthrow Christopher Ok-land hath berie commendablie weitten, faieng, 30 gin the battell, and like wife did the Englishmen, and therewith the archers on both parts began to thot:

the flot of the Scots ord little hurt, but the archers of England foge galled the Scots, fo that there was an hard battell. They began at nine of the clocke, and continued fill in fight till none. The Scots had tharpe and heavie ares, & gave with the same great and mightic Arolics, howbeit finallie the English men by the helpe of Goo obteined the victoric, aluerfe of the nobles of Scotland Claine, to the number of feuen earles, befide loods. The king was taken in the field fore wounded, for he fought valiantlie. He as some as he had taken him, rode out of the field with him, accompanied onelie with eight of his fer-after the feast of faint Dichaell, in the yeare of our Fabian.

Profflard.

In Angl. pralis Jub Edwarde 3.

-haud omine dextro Iam Scotus intulerat vim Dunelmensibus agris, Ciunformidandum sæuus bellum instruit Anglus, Aggrediturque hostem violantem fædera sacra. Nominus incerti Scotica plebs obuia gentis sternitur, or tristi gladio cadit impiaturba, Frustrà obluctantur scoti e comitéfque ducéfque, Quorum pars incet occumbens; pars catera capta Cuptisuim corpus dedit vincentibus, auro Et pacto pretio redimendum, bellicus ut mos Postulat. At David Scotie rex captus ad vrbem I.ondinum fidei pendens dignissima fractæ Supplicia, adductus celebri concluditur arce. Exiguus numerus volucri pede fisus equorum Esfugit in patrium, testis certisimus Anglos Devicisse suos, tristia funeranarant.

இஸ் in இcot:

We that will fee more of this battell, may find the The that will reconour of the factorial hillogie, as their fame also set fouth in the Secontilly hillogie, as their writers have written thereof. And for formuch as by the circumfrances of their writings, it thould fieme 50 they kept the remembrance of the same battell per feetlie registred, we have in this place onclie spewed what other writers have recorded of that matter, and lest that which the Scotish chronicles write, to be fæne in the life of king Danio, without much abzing ing theref. The Englishmen after this pictorie thus Countries of obteined, twhe the callels of Horburgh and Hermis Scotlad sub- tage, and also without any resistance subdued the countries of Anandale, Galloway, Pers, Tinto vale, and Ethnike forrest, extending their marches 60 forth at that time unto Cokburnes peth, and Sointray hedge, and after unto Crarlinlips, and croffe Caue.

bued by the Englishmen.

Hedor Boct.

John Cops land refuseth to delitter the B.ot Scota.

The quane of England being certeinelie informed that the king of Scots was taken, & that John Copland had conneied him out of the field, no man understoo to what place, the incontinentlie wrote to him, commanding him foothwith to being his pailed ner king Dauld bnto bir prefence : but John Top, land wrote to his agains for a determinate answer, that he would not beliver his priloner the fair king Danio buto any person lining, man or woman, ercept onelie to the king of England, his soucreigns losd and matter. Herebyon the quene wrote letters to the king, fignifieng to him both of the hapie bide rie chanced to his people against the Socots, and also of the demcanoz of John Copland, in deteining the of the demication School of the definition of th where he late at siege before Calis, which with all conuentent speed he did, and there so ercused himselfe of that which the queene had found hirlelfe graved with him, for deteining the king of Scots from hir, that the king did not onelie pardon him, but also gaue to though they lost manic of their men. There were die 10 him fine hundred pounds ferling of yearelie rent, to him a to his heires for ewer, in reward of his god fervice and valiant prowes, and made him efquire for his bodie, commanding him pet byon his returne into England to deliner king David buto the quene, which he did, and to excused himselfe also buto hir, that the was therewith fatiffied and contented. Then the queene, after the had taken order for the fafe keping of the king of Scots, and good gouerne, There was taken also beside him, the earles of 20 ment of the realme, twke the sea and sailed over to the king hir husband Mill lieng before Calis.

Thilest Calis was thus belieged by the king of Ia. Mein. England, the Flemings which had latelie before be- The fle fieged Betwine, and had raifed from thence about the mings, fame time that the battell was fought at Creffe. now assemble togither againe, and dwing what dai mage they might against the Frenchmen on the box bers, they laie flege unto the towne of Aire. Moreo ner, they wrought to for the king of England (ear, Froillard nesslie requiring their frændship in that behalfe that 134 their sourceigne lood Lewes earle of Flanders be. Anno Reg ing as then about fifteene yeares of age, fianced the Checatal ladie Jlabell daughter to the king of England, more flonter by confirmint indeed of his lubicas, than for any good frames will he bare to the king of England: for he would promite often faie, and openlie protest, that he would ner hange er uer marrie hir those father had flatine his : but there lands ta: was no remedie, for the Flemings kept him in mar tir. ner as a prisoner, till be granted to follow their ad-40 nife. But the same weeke that the mariage was appointed to be folemnized, the earle as he was abroad in hawking at the hearon, Cale awaie and fled into France, not fraieng to ride his horffe boon the fours till he came into Arthois, and to diffionogablie difap pointed both the king of England, and his owne na

turall subjects the Flemings, to their high displeas

While the king late thus before Calis, dimerfe lozds and knights came to fee him out of Flancers, Brabant, Beinault, and Almaigne. Amongst other came the losd Kobert of Pamur, and was reteined with the king as his fernant, the king giving him thick hundled pounds ferling of yearelie pension out of his coffers to be paid at Bruges. During the Child time that the stege thus continued before Calis, the Charles loed Charles de Blois, that named himfelfe duke of aniert. Wzitaine, was taken befoze a castell in Bzitaine, called la Roch Darien, and his armie discomfited, theelie by the aid of that valiant English knight fir bir The Thomas Dagwooth, who had beene fent from the Degreen fiege of Calis by king Coward to affif the counteffe Frontal of Montfort and other his frænds against the said Charles de Blois, that with a gret armie of french men and Britains, had the same time belieged the fato calfell of Roch Darien, coareining them within in such forceable maner, that they food in great ned of present success. The said fir Thomas Dagworth & aduertised hereof, with these hundred men of armes, emissional factors. and foure hundred archers of his owne refinues, be heighte Roe corteine Britaines, approched to the liege, and on all mile the 20 of June earlie in the morning, a quarter of an within houre before day, suddenlie set byon the enimies, tho having knowledge of his comming, were readic to receive him as the day before, but being now for pilled thus on the fuoden, they were greatlie amaico : for they that were within Koch Darien, as some as the appearance of date had discouered the matter onto them, so that they might know their frænds from their enimies, they issued forth, and holpe not a litle to the atchining of the vidorie, which was clere. lie obteined before funne-riting , and the French armie quite viscomfited, greatile to the praise of the faid fir Thomas Dagworth and his companie, confi pering their small number, in comparison of their 1 aduerfaries, who were reckoned to be twelve hundied good men of armes, knights, and elquiers, belide fir hundzed other armed men, two thouland croffes bowes, fir hundred archers of the countrie of 1826 taine, and formen of commons innumerable.

There were taken , besides the lood Charles de Blois naming himfelfe duke of Britaine, diverte other loads and men of name, as monfieur Buie de la Claall sonne and heire to the lood la Claall, which vico in the battell, the lood of Rocheford, the lood de 20 Beaumanour, the load of Loiacke, with other loads, knights, and elquiers, in great numbers. There were gaine the fato lord de la Claall, the Aicount of Ro han, the lood of Chasteau Brian, the lood de Maile areit, the lood de Duintin, the lood de Rouge, the lood of Derevall and his sonne, fir Kafe de Montford, and manie other worthie men of armes, knights and elquiers, to the number of betwirt fir and fenen hunbicd, as by a lefter written by the said sir Thomas Dagworth, and registred in the historie of Robert de 30 Auesburie both ameare.

In this meane while, king Philip having dailie more how the power of his enunie king Coward Did increase by aid of the Cafferlings and other na. tions, which were to him alied, and that his men within Calis were brought to fuch an extreme point, that without spécie rescue they could not long keepe the towne, but must of force render it over into the hands of his faid enimie, to the great prejudice of all the realme of France, after great deliberation ta: 40 The french me realme of France, and see some short the formallen. Ben upon this to weightie a matter, be commanded bloth an armic enerie man to meet him in their best arraie for the warre, at the featt of Pentecolt in the citie of Antiens,or in those marches. At the date and place thus apointed, there came to him Does duke of Burgoigne, and the duke of Pozmandie eldest sonne to the king, the duke of Dileance his ponget sonne, the duke of Burbon, the earle of Fois, the lozd Lois de Saucie, the lord John of Hemalt, the earle of Armi nacke, the earle of Forrest, and the earle Walentino, 50 is, with manie others.

These noble men being thus assembled, they toke councell which waie they might passe to give battell to the Englishmen: it was thought the best wate had bene through Flanders, but the Flemings in fauor of the hing of England denied, not onelie to open their pallages to the Frenchmen, but also had levied an armie of an hunozed thouland men of one and of ther, and laid flege to Aire, and burnt the countrie all about. Therepointhere were manie tharpe bicker 60 rings and fore incounters betwirt the Flemings and such Frenchmen as king Philip sent south against them both, now, whilest the French armie laie about Amicus, and also before, during all the time that the fiege lay at Calis. For all the French towns open the frontiers were fluffed with flrong garris fons of fouldiers, as Lifte, faint Omers, Arras, Bullongue, Aire and Monttretill, and those men of war were ever readic byon occasion to attempt sundite exploits. After this, when the armie of the Flemings a cometio was broken op , and returned home , or rather diul water Calia. DCD into parts, and longed along on the frontiers, the Frenchking with two thousand men one and other came forward, taking his way through the countris called la Belme, and so by the countrie of Franke berge, came ffreight to the hill of Sangate, betwirt Calis and Tallant.

The king of England had caused a Grong castell to be made betweene the towne of Calis and the fea, to close up that pallage, and had placed therein there score men of armes, and two hundred archers, which kept the haven in such sort that nothing could come in no; out. Also confidering that his enimies could come neither to fuccour the towne, nor to annote his host, except either by the downes alongs the sea side, or elfe aboue by the high waie, he caused all his nanie to drawe alongst by the coast of the downes, to stop op that the Frenchmen thoulo not approch that waie. Also the erle of Derbie being come thither out The carle of of Buien, was appointed to keepe peivland bridge, Derbie, with a great number of men of armes and archers, so that the Frenchmen could not approchanic wate. buleffe they would have come through the marifhes, which to do was not possible.

Fiftiene hundred of the commons of Tournie wan a tower, which the Englishmen had made and kept for the impeadment of the Frenchmens palfage by the downes, but that not with fanding, when the marchals of France had well viewed all the palfages and freids through the which their armie must palle, if they meant to fight with the Englishmen, they well perceived that they could not come to the Englishmen to give them battell, without the king would lose his people, wherevoon (as Froiffard faith) the French king fent the losd Beffrey de Charnie, the lord Cufface de Ribaumont, Buie de Pele, and The requell the lood de Beantein unto the king of England, which of the french required him on their mailters behalfe to appoint cer-loods to the teine of his councell, as he would likewife appoint king of Eng. certeine of his, which by common consent might aduife betweene them an indifferent place for them to trie the battell bpon: wherebuto the king of Eng. his answer, land answered, That there he was and had beine almost a whole yeare, which could not be unknowne to " his adversarie their maister, so that he might have >> come foner if he would : but now, fifth he had fuffered ,, him there to remaine folong, without offer of bats tell, he meant not to accomplish his delire, noz to de: " part from that, which to his great coff he had brought >> now at length to that point, that he might calilie win it. Therefore if the French ik. nor his holf could not patte those water which were closed by the Enge ? lift power, let them fæke some other pastage (faio be) if they thinke to come hither. In this meane wile came two cardinals fro pope Carbinals fer Clement, to treat a peace betwirt the two kings, to intreat of therebpon commissioners were appointed, as the dukes of Burgoigne and Burbone, the losd Lewes de Sanoie, and the lood John de Deinault, other wife called lood Beaumont, on the French part: and the earles of Derbie and Porthampton, the lord Regt nald Cobham, and the load Walter de Mannie, on the English part. These commissioners and the les gates (as intreators betweene the parties) met and communed the dates togither, but agreed not byon ante conclusion, and to the carbinals departed; and the French king perceiving he could not have his purpole, brake by his holf and returned to France, They bepart, bidding Calis farewell. After that the French king with his host was once departed from Bangate, without ministring anie succour to them within the towne, they began to fue for a parlie, which being granted, in the end they were contented to væld, and the king granted to receive them and the towne on thefe conditions; that fir of the cheefe burgeffes of the tolone flould come forth bareheaded, bareforted, and The condition barclegged, and in their thirts, with halters about furrender their necks, with the keies of the towns and castell in of Calis.

The french t, returneth into France.

Che Fiem:

ings beliege

... Meir.

Fabian.

Pn.j.

their hancs, to inbuilt themselves simplie to the langs will, and the relivue he was contented to take to mercie.

This determinate resolution of king Coward being infimated to the commons of the towne, afterns bled in the market place by the found of the common bell before the capteine caused manie a weeping eie amongst them: but in the end, when it was perceb ned that no other grace would be obtemed, fix of the most wealthie burgestes of all the towne agreed to 10 hazard their lines for the fafegard of the refidue, and so according to the prescript order deuised by the li. they went forth of the gates, and were presented by the losd Walter de Mannie to the king, before whom they knieled downe, offered to him the keies of the towne, and belought him to have mercie bpon them. But the king regarding them with a fell counter nance, commanded freight that their heads thould be Arthen off. And although manie of the noble men bid make great intreatance for them, yet would no grace be thewed, butill the quene being great with obtained their child, came and knæled downe before the king hir hulvand, and with lamentable chere & weeping cies intreated so much for them, that finallie the kings anger was alwaged a his rigo: turned to mercie (for Fleditur iratus voceregante Deus) fo that he gave the railoners onto hir to do hir plea. fure with them. Then the queene commanded them to be brought into hir chamber, and caused the halters to be taken from their necks, clothed them anew, gave them their dinner, and bestowing byon ech of them fir nobles, amointed them to be connected out of the host in lafegard, and let at libertie.

Calin politich England.

dir burgelles of Ca:

iis prefented to the hing.

The queene

parbon.

Thus was the frong towne of Calis yelded bp to the king of into the hands of king Coward, the third of August, in the yeare 1347. The capteine the load John de Mis come, and all the other capteins and men of name were fraied as pationers, and the common foldiers and other meane people of the towne were licenced mor and riches behind them. The king would not have any of the old inhabitants to remaine in the towne, faue onlie a prieff, and two other ancient perfonages, such as best knew the customes, laines and ordinances of the towne. De appointed to feno ouer thither amongst other Englishmen, there to inhabit, 36 burgelles of London, and those of the wealthieff Englishmen. fort, for he meant to people the towne onelie with Englishmen, for the better and more sure defense thereof. The king and quiene were lodged in the car ffell, and continued there, till the queene was deliues red of a daughter named Margaret.

The queine brought to bed in the caftell of Calis. Polydor.

Calismade a colonie of Caxton. Ia. Meir. 3 truce.

women hard to agree.

Sir Imerle be Daute.

The caroinals, of whome ye heard before, being come as legats from pope Clement to move communication of peace, old to much in the matter, that a truce was granted betwirt the realine of England * France, for the terme of twelne moneths, or two peares (as Froislard faith.) But the English chronicle and Iacobus Meir sæme to agræ, that this truce the same was prozoged. To the which truce all parties agreed, Britaine ercepted, for the two women there would not be quieted, but Will purfued the war the one against the other. After that this truce was accorded, the king with the quiene his wife returned into England, and left as capteine within Calis one fir Americ of Pauic an Italian knight, 02 (as o. ther bokes have he was but capteine of the castell, or of some one of the towers of that towne, which feemethinose like to be true, than that the hing thould commit the whole charge of the towne buto his gonernement, being a ftranger borne, and therefore Iacobus Meir is the more to be credited, that writeth how fir Americ of Paule was left but in charge with the castell onclie, and that the towne was committed to the keeping of the load John Beauchampe. and Lewes his brother.

But now that there was a peace thus concluded betwirt the two kings, it seemed to the English peo Thous plethat the summe brake forth after a long cloudie fealon, by reason both of the great plentic of althings, and remembrance of the late glosious bidories : for there were few women that were housekepers within this land, but they had some furniture of house hold that had beene brought to them out of France, as part of the Spoile got in Caen, Calis, Carenten, or some other god towns. And before houshold stuffe, the English maides and matrones were bedecked and frimined up in French womens tewels and apparell, so that as the French women lamented for the loffe of those things, so our women resolled of the gaine. In this 22 yeare, from Diblummer to Chill. Anno p. malle for the more part it continuallie rained, fo that Grange there was not one day and night date togither, by reason whereof great flouds insued, and the ground there with was love corrupted, and manie inconvent ences infued, as great fickenes, and other, in fomuch that in the peare following in France the people of ed wonderfullie in dinerle places. In Italicallo, and in manie other countries, as well in the lands of Anno Res the infidels, as in chaiffendome, this grievous may Agrach talitie reigned to the great destruction of people. The talitie, bout the end of August, the like death began in ob 30 uerle places of England, and especialite in London, continuing to for the space of twelve moneths fol lowing. And opon that infuce great barrenneffe, as well of the fea, as the land, neither of them velding Death fuch plentie of things as before they had done. There bpon bittels and come became scant and hard to come by.

About the same time died John Stretford archbie thop of Canturburie, after whome succeded John Ufford, tho lived not in that dignitie past tenino to depart and boid their houses, leaving all their ar 40 neths, and then followed Thomas Bredwardin, wo deceased within one yeare after his consecration, so that then Simon Mep was confecrated archbishop by pope Clement the firt, being the 53 archbishop that had fit in that feat. Witthin a while affer, William archbishop of Booke died: in whose place suc ceeded John Cooldie, being the 44 archbilhop that had governed that durch. Poseover in this 2; yeare of king Cowards reigne, the great moztalitie in Ippatiti England fill continuing, there was a practle in beimich hand for recovering agains of Calis to the French kings polletion. The load Weffrie of Charnie lieng in the towns of S. Omers, did practife with fir Americ de Panie, to be receined into the towne of Calisby the castell, secretlie in the night season. The Italian gaue eare to the load Geffrie his lute; and to make few words, covenanted for the fumme of twentie thousand crownes to betraie the towne unto him, in such sort as he could best deutle.

There writers varie: for Froisfard faith that king pursuit was taken but for nine moneths, though afterwards 60 Coward had information thereof, before that fir A water merie de Panie bitered the thing himfelfe; but the French chronicles, and also other writers affirme, that the Italian advertised the king of all the drift and matter betwirt him & the lozd Geffrie of Garnie, before he went through with the bargaine. But thether by him or by other, truth it is the king was made prime to the matter at Hauering Wower in Fabin Offer (where he kept the featt of Chiffmaffe) & there bpen beparting from thence, be came to mouer, and Profitte the date before the night of the appointment, made for the veliverie of the castell of Calls (having fe: The Mill crettie made his prouition (he toke thipping, and lan entur ded the fame night at Calis, in to fecret maner, that our ner but few of the towns understood of his arrivall, be brought

of armes, and fir hundred archers, whom he laid in dambers and towers within the castell, so closelte that few or none perceived it, the maner he knew by fr Amerie de Panie his advertisements (according lic as it was agreed betwirt them) that the load Beb frie of Charnic was appointed to come and enter the towne that night, for the king had commanded fir Amerie to proceed in merchandizing with the faid mu.

An. Reg. 23,24.

bay shoure in the which the feat thould be wrought.

The lord Seffrie de Charnie being couenanted 1350 that he should be received into Calis the first night of the new yeare, departed from S. Diners, there he had allembled five hundred speares, the last day of December toward night, and fo in fecret wife he passed footh, till about the middest of the next night after, he approched neere to Calis, and sending an hundred men of armes to take possession of the car fell, and to paie the Italian his twentie thouland 20 crownes, came to the posterne of the castell, where sir Amerie de Paule hauing let downe the posserne hidge, was readie to bring them in by the fame poforne, and so the hundred men of armes entered, and on Coward fir Colward de Rentie delinered to the Italian his twentic thousand crownes in a bag, tho then he had cast the crownes into a coffer (for he had no leisure to tellthem) he brought the Frenchmen into the dungeon of the castell, as it were to possesse them of the dwfest frengthof the fortresse. Whithin this dunge onortower was the king of England closelie late, 30 with two hundred men of armes, who iffued out with Theking trie their fwoods and ares in their hands, crieng Pannie the Hamme to the reletie, for the king had to ordeined, that both he and his sonne should fight binder the banmer of the loid Malter de Mannie, as cheefe of that enterpile.

Then were the Frenchmen greatlie abalyed, in such wife, that perceiving how no defense might adnance them, they yeelded themselves without any great foch of relitance. Herewith the Englithmen 40 tilized out of the castell into the towne, and mounted on horsebacke, for they had the French prisoners hoefics, and then the archers road to Bullongne gate. where the lood Seffric was with his banner before him of gules thee scutchens filuer. He had great defire to be the first that should enter the towne: but hortlic the king of England with the prince his son was readic at the gate, bnoor the banner of the lozd Cherites of Walter De Mannie to affaile him. There were also dealers and other banners, as the earles of Stafford and Sub-dealers, and other banners, as the earles of Stafford and Sub-dealers, and other band so John Pontacute brother to the earle of lates Monta- Salisburie, the lord Beauchampe, the lord Berkley, out. Scriber and the lood de la Ware. Then the great gate was fetopen, and they all issued footh crieng Pannie to the releue. The Frenchmen percetuing that they were betraied, alighted from their hooffes, and put Ele french: themselves in order of battell on fot, determining to fight it out like valiant men of war. The king percoming this, caused his people like wife to be set in ox der of battell, a fent thick hundred archers to pewlund bridge, to distresse those Frenchmen, which he 60 heard thould be there. This was carelie in the moze ling but incontinentlie it was date: the French men kept their ground a wille, and manie feats of armes were done of both parts, but the Englishmen enerincreased out of Talis, and the Frenchmen di minimed, so that finallic they were overcome, as well in the one place, as in the other.

It chanced that in the hotest of the fight, the king te Kibamai was matched with fir Custace de Kibammont, a angul value right Arong and hardis knight. There was a lose incounter betweet him and the king, that maruell it was to behold them. At length they were put alimber, fo, a great companie of both parts came that waie, and there fought liercelie togither. The French. men did behaue themselves right valiantice, and e speciallie fir Gustace de Ribaumont : he strake the theistaken king that daie twife opon his knees, but finallie he prisoner by was taken prisoner by the king himselfe. The lord England. Beffrie of Charnie was also taken puloner, and The lord Gef wounded right fore, but the king of his noble courtes fric de Chara fie caused him to be deelled by furgious, and tender: nie is taken. lie loked buto. There were flaine, fir Penric de logo Charnie, and onelie to make him printe of the logo Charnie, and onelie to make him printe of the number of fir hunged. Ponsicur de Demozancie escaped with great vanger. Froisfard sateth, that this battell was fought in the yeare 1348, opon the last of December, towards the next morning being Dempeares daie : but(as Auesburie & Walfingham have, who begin the yeare at our ladie day) this enters prife chanced 1 3 49, and so consequentlie in the 23 yeare of this kings reigne. All the pilloners were brought to the cattell of Calis, where the la the next night gaue them a luper, & made them right hartie Sir Gullace cheare, and gaue to fir Cufface de Kibaumont a rich De Ribaus chaplet of pearles, which he then did weare on his mont. omne head, in token that he had best deserved it for his manfull prowes thewed in the fight; & belief that in favour of his tried valiancie, he acquit him of his ransome, and sethim at libertie. This fact of the king was rotall in ded, and his clemencie greatlie to be commended; therfore it is well faid to this purpole,

Gloria consequitur reges sic bella gerentes,

Sic certare parit decus immortale duello. About the end of August the death in London ceal Anno Reg. 24) fed, which had bin fo great & behement within that cie The death itie, that over & beside the bodies buried in other ac- ceasieth. cultomed burieng places (which for their infinit num, Aucsdurie, ber cannot be reduced into account) there were buried that yeare dailie, from Candlemalle till Caller, in the Charterhouse yard of London, moze than two hundred dead corples. Also this yeare, by the earnest fute of the two cardinals which were fent (as ye have heard) from pope Clement the firt, a peace was concluded for one yeare. There met nære buto Calis for Commission the treatie of this peace, the foresaid two cardinals, ners met to as mediators; and for the king of England, the bis talke of peace. thop of Porwich treasuror and high chancellor of the realme, with others came thither as committioners; and in like maner for the French king, there appear red the bilhop of Lion, and the abbat of S. Denile. This yeare in August died Philip de Clalois the This yeare in August died Lynny de Clatots the Menboons French king. Here is to be noted, that all those that with sewer were borne, after the beginning of that great moze touth than in talitie thereof ye have heard, wanted foure thethe times palt. teeth (when they came to the time of growth) of those Caxton.
Tho. Walsin. 32 which the people before that time commonlie by Polychron. fed to have, so that they had but 28. In this 24 years of this kings reigne, there was a combat fought in A combat. liffs within the kings palace of Westminster, betwirt the losd John, bastard sonne to Philip king of France, taknight of the towne of Ppics in Flanders; but the ballard had the opper hand, and banquis thed his adversarie. About the feast of the decol Auesburie lation of faint John Baptiff, king Coward aduertie Thom, Walf. fed of a fleet of Spaniaros returning fouth of flanders, that was laden with clothes and other riches, affembled a convenient power of men of armes and archers, eat Sandwich toke the fea with them, fair a spanish ling forth, till opon the coast of Winchellie he met fiet. with the Spaniards, and there affailed them; so that banguist by betwirt him and those Spaniards, there was a fore the B. of Ene fight, and long continued, to the great lotte of people gland by fea. on both parts; but in the end, the bright brame of bics foriethone byon the English failes, so that all the Spaniards were flaine, for they were to prond and obstinat (as Walfingham aftirmeth) that they would not yeld, but rather chose to die, & so they did indeb, Put.

bir Caftace

Thom.Walf.

Auesburie.

either on the Englishmens weapons points, or elle were they distunce there in the fea, fir and twentie of their thips were taken, in the which was found great flore of god ware and riches. And so the king thought himselfe well renenged of the Spaniards, third in the last years about Alhalloutide, had entred into the river of Garons, as it runneth by towards Burdeaux, and there finding manie thips fraught touth wines, fine all the Englishmen they found abood, and twice alwais the thips with them : which in 10 lings. Bicause these neto paces wanted of the furte moned the hing to enterpule this exploit now at this time against them.

Froiffard. Bir Chomas Dagworth flaine.

fentto 192 pope.

About the beginning of August, sir Raoull de Cahoes, and directle other knights and equiers, to the number of fir feore men of armes, fought before a caffell called Aulcon, with fir Thomas Dagworth, and there flue the fame fir Chomas, and to the number of one hundred men of armes with him. Imballadors There were fent folemne mellengers this yeare buto Augmion for the chablifying of a peace, mentio, 20 ned betwirt the king of England and France, at the fute of the pope, to that king Coward thould have refigured his title and claims to the crowns of France, and the French king Could have given over onto him the tihole duchie of Guien, to hold the fame fræs he, without knowledging of relogi or superioritie, or Doing any manner of hemage for the same : but such velates were made, and the lute lo prolonged by the power, that the erale of Mervie, who with others was spire of his purpose for the which he went.

Anno Reg 25. 1351

Froisfard.

In the fine and twentish years of king Edwards refine, the Frenchmen having laid siege unto the towne of faint John Dangeli, the lood Dalbrets fon, having affembled fir hundred men of armes, Gal coizus and Englithmen, meant to worke fome feat for reliefe of them within, wher boon, as he was mare thing through the countrie of Faindonge nære buto Tainets the eighth of Aprill, or (as other have) the first, he was incountered by the loss Quie de Bell, one of 40 mongst the people. In this parlement there were fla him the marthals of France, a other French loads, there at length, the Frenchmen were discomfited, manie also flaine, and diverse taken puloners, of which number was the fato marthall, with his brother the lood Walliam, and fir Arnold de Dandzehen, beside others, to the number of 300 men of armes, but pet the fiege remained, till for want of vittels the towne was rendered to the Frenchmen.

The same yeare in Daober, an English archer of the garifon of Calis, named John of Dancaster, by 50 lought rather their owne commoditic, than the comlicence of the logo deputie of Talis, twice with him threefcore perfons men of armes and archers, and in the night that goeth before the feath date of S. Uline cent, in the last quarter of the same night, he comming to the callell of Guines, found as well the watch as others fast all spe, wherebyon he passed a water that adjoined to the castell, wading by to the girdle, and to came to the wall, where he a his companie rearing by ladders, mounted by the fame to fe cretlie, that flateng the watch, being nothast thice or 60 foure persons that were on the wals, they entred the castell, and finding the Frenchmen allowe, flue those that byon their wakening made any defense, and twice the relique thome they infered to depart : and bothis meanes they wan the callell, finding great Note of vittels within, and so as they found it, they kept it to the king of Englance ble. The French bis ffories declare, that one Guilliam de Beauconrop that was capteine of this castell, betraied the place to the Englishmen, for a summe of monie, and then the French king required reffitution bicaufe the truce was not pet expired, he was thisted off with this for ged answer, that nothing was excepted by the affurance of the truce, concerning things that thould be bought and fold. The Frenchman that betraiedit, was Chortic after put to execution at Amiens.

In this yeare were the first perces of filner called Suggrotes and halfe grotes of foure pence timo pence bet the pare framped, by the kings appointment, through have the counsell of William de Chington bishop of Winchester lood treasurps. Before that time, there were no other coines, but the noble, halfe noble, and quarter noble, with the pieces of filiner called flerweight of the old feeling coine, the prices as well of bittels as of other wares, did dailie rife; and feruants and workemen waring more craftic than before time they had beene, demanded great wages. This peare, boon the cuen of the Allumption of our lodie, fir John Bentlie knight, ac then lost warden and of Britaine, fought with the lord Quie de Dall. marthall of France (latelic ranfomed out of captiuitte) in the parts of Bittaine, niere to a place called Douron, betwirt Kennes and Pluremeil, were the Pour, faid marthall was flaine, togither with the look of Wignebeke the Chateline of Weauuais, and diverse other both Britains and Frenchmen.

In the feuen and twentith peare of his reigne, F. 1 ... Colward held a parlement at Wellminffer, affer the Anno ke feaff of Caffer, in which an ordinance was denifed, Tho. No. that wages forwants and laborers thould be allow India ed, prohibiting them to receive about the rate with flatter they were accustomed to take before the yeare of the shown fent to him about this matter, returned without 30 great mortalitie. Servants and laborers were in point deed growen to be more findall than before time they that parties bad beener, but by reason of the prices of things were rated. inhanced, it is like they demanded greater wages benut than they had done before time : and one cause of the peared dearth was imputed to the new coine of monic, be, bings up ing of leffe weight in the value thereof, than before it has beene to that the bithop of Unincheffer being loed treasures, the has counselled the king to exeme those grotes and halfe grotes, was entil spoken of a tutes also made, that clothes should in length and making in breadth through the realme, beare the fame affile, cohes as was ordeined in the parlement holden at potty meres ampton. Alfo, that all weares, milles, and other lets, milles, Chould be removed footh of rivers, that might be a ny hinderance of thips, boats, or lighters to palle by and downe the fame. But thefe god ordinances twhe little or none effect, by reason of bribes that walked abroad, and freenothip of lords and great men, that mon-wealths.

Shortlie after the feaff of Pentecoff, the carle of Creation Derbie and Lancaster was made duke of Lanca, nobiema fer, and Kafe lood Stafford was created carle of Stafford. Whereas there had beene a treatic betwirt the loads of Butaine, and the king of England, not onclie for the belinerance of the lord Charles de Chetto Blois, but also for the matching of his clos a sonne in Island mariage with one of king Edwards daughters, and fo to intog the dukedome in peace: this matter was to far forwards, that in the yeare last pasted, the faid loed Charles, leaving two of his formes and a daugh ter in pleage for the paiment of fortie thousand so rens, agreed bpon for his ransome; he was permit ted to returne into Britaine to proute that monie: and withall, to procure a dispensation, that his cidest forme might marrie with one of H. Cowards daugh ters, not with francing that other wife they were with in the degrees of confanguinitie, prohibiting them to marrie. Dereupon this peare about Dichaelmas, he returned into England with the same dispensati on:but bicause about the same time the Britains had faken by fealth an Iland with a castell therein, that the Englishmen had kept, a put all those which they

The caffeli

of Guines

Spone.

Polydor.

An.Rig.27,28,29.

sound therein, to the fwood, the faid load Charles, o. therwise buke of Britaine, lost the kings favour, lo that he would heare no more of anie luch aliance, by wate of marriage, as had beene communed of bes fore: by reason whereof the British loads, that were in great number come ouer with the load Charles de Blois, were constreined to returne home, without atching anie part of their purpole, leaving the faio logo Charles and his children behind them fill here in England.

Debite bes twict the takes of

On the fourth day of September, the duke of Bounfwike and the duke of Lancaster Chould have fought a combat in Paris, about words the duke of Lancaffer Chould speake, in derogation of the duke of Brunswikes honor, for the which the said duke had appealed him in the court of France : but inher they were readie to have tried it, and were on hordebacke with their speares in hand within the lifts, at point to haue runne togither, the French king caused them toffaie, and taking on him the matter, made them 20 frands, and agreed them. This yeare the king by abunce of his councell removed the mart of faple of wols from the townes in Flanders, and caused the fame to be kept at Meffminffer , Chicheffer , Line colne, Billowe, Canturburic and Hull . This was done in despite of the Flemings, bicause they held was the notthe cournants and agreements which they had reacol made with the king, in the life time of Jaques Arte, ucld, by whose proussion the said mart or staple had bene kept in fundzie townes in Flanders, to their 30 great aduantage and commoditie.

trought.

3 bearth.

Fabian.

nò

15 d effirmeth that this remo

Sir Walter Bentlie , opon his comming ouer fouth of Britaine, where he had beene the kings lieu. tenant, was committed to the tower, where he remained pilloner for the space of twelve moneths, bis cause he refused to octiver by the cassels within his gonernement, bnto fir John Auenell knight, being amounted to receive the fame, to the vie of the logo Charles de Blois, at the same time when the treatie of agreement was in hand, betwirt the king, and the 40 faid loed Charles . But after , when it was perceiued that damage might have infued by deliverie of those castels, sir Walter was fet at libertic byon suerties pet they were bound for his forth comming, and that he hould not depart the realme: at length, he was received againe into the kings favour . In the fum. mer of this featien and twentith yeare, was fo great adjought, that from the latter end of Parch, fell lit. tle raine, till the latter end of Julie, by reason there of, manic inconveniences infued: and one thing is 50 speciallie to be noted, that come the yeare following wared feant, and the price began this yeare to be greatlie inhanced. Also beenes and muttons wared dere for the want of grade, and this chanced both in England and France, so that this was called the dare summer. The lood William duke of Bautere v. Bauarie, and earle of Zeland, brought manie thips into London, fraught with rie, for relate of Combinish the people, inhootherwise had, through their present fallie pined.

In the eight and twentith yeare of king Cowards reigne, upon a treatic that was holden by committe oners, appointed by the two kings of England and France, after Caffer, they were in maner fullie a greed byon a peace, so that nothing wanted, but put. ting but other scales. In the articles whereof it was conteined, that the king of England thould intoy all the lanes of his outchie of Aquitaine, without holos ing the fame of anic by homage, or refort, and in conlideration thereof he should religne all his claime to the crowne of France . Hierebpon were amballadoes fent from either king, buto the pope, and a truce taken, to indure till the featt of faint John Baptiff in the yeare next following. Ambassadors for the Ambassadors disting of England were these: Henrie duke of Lan, to the pope. caffer, John earle of Arundell, the bishops of Pozs with and London, and the lood Buie of Brian. For the French king, the archbilhop of Rouen load chans collog of France, the duke of Burbon, and others: but when the matter came to be heard before the pope about Christmasse, all went to smoke that had beine talked of : for the Frenchmen denied that the artis cles were drawne according to the meaning of their commissioners, and the pope also winked at the mate ter, so that the English ambastadoes (then they faw that nothing would be concluded) returned home all of them) the bishop of Pozwich ercepted who departed this life there) and so their fournic came to none

Mis peare, the tenth of Februarie, there role a loze debate betwirt the scholers and townslmen of Dr Anno Reg. 29. enford. The occasion role by reason of the falling out Debate be of a Choler with one that fold wine: for the Choler lers & townedperceiving himselfe cuill bled, powerd the wine on men of Drenthe drawers head, knocking the pot about his pate, fo ford. as the bloud ranne downe by his cares. Were bon began a fore fraie betwirt the scholers and towness men, which continued for the most part of two daies togither. There were twentie townelmen flaine, bes five those that were hurt: but at length, there came a great number of countrimen fouth of the villages nert adjoining, to aid the townelmen, entring the towne with a blacke banner, and fo fiercelie affais led the scholers, that they were constrained to fix to their boules and holfels, but their enimies purlaing them, brake by their dozes, entered their chambers, flue diverte of them, and thew them into privies, tare their bokes, and bare awaie their gods. The scholers herewith twie such displeasure, that they departed the Univerlitie: thole of Perton colledge, and other the like colledges onelie excepted.

The bilhop of Lincolne inhibited preeffs to celes beate divine service in presence of anie laic man within that towns of Drenford; and the king fend ing his fullices thither, to take knowledge of this diforderlie riot, there were diverle, both of the townes men and scholers indited, and certeine of the burgels fes committed to ward. Alhis yeare, the first fundaie in Lent, the king held a rotall juffes at Mode foke, for top of the quænes purifieng, affer the birth of hir firt some, the lood Thomas, whome the bishop of Durham(named Thomas)held at the fontitione: be was borne the feauenth of Januarie last past. In the parlement holden at Melliminster this yeare at Thom. Wall ter Cader, the king toke bpon him to make an end Auesburie. of the quarrell betwirt the scholers and townsimen appealed bes of Drenford, and fauing to everie man his right, twirt the pardoned the icholers of all transgressions : and this icholers and he fignified into everie thire, by writs directed to the townsline not Mitiffes, they to proclame the fame for more notice Derntoro. of the thing. And so in the fummer following, the Univerlitie began againe to flourish, Audents refor and Feland, pinching penurie, if not otterlie perithed, pet pitti 60 ting thither from each fide, and falling afresh to their academicall exercises, which they needed not to have discontinued, if either partie, I meane the townes men or Cholers, would have tolerated and borne one with another, and not for alhlie have undertaken the revenge of one anothers wath and inverte; but,

Oderunt pacem stulti & certamina quarunt.

In this parlement, the procede of the judgement had and made against Roger Postimer, late earle of Parch, was revoked, admitilated, and made boid, fo that the losd Roger Postimer was restosed to the title and possessions of the earledome of Warch, as confine and heire to his grandfather the faid erle of March. Pozeouer, to this parlement came the bilhop of Carpentras, and the abbat of Clugnie, being fent Pn.iy.

Etruce be= land and from pope Innecent the firt, to make fute to have the truce projeged betwirt the two kings, of Eng, land and France, to whome the king himfelfe in perfon, made this resolute answer, that he would not a gree to ante longer truce ; for that, when diverfe times at the frenchmens fute, he had confented to have truce by micoration of two cardinals, fent to him about the faine matter, his adversaries in the meane time, whilest such truces indured, had done much harme and damage by subtill practices to pers 1 fons and places beyond the fea, that were buder his rule and gouernement, pet he faid he would delibes ratehoreof with his councell, and after intimate hispleature to the pope, and to them of France by mellengers which he would fend over for that purpole : and to these amballabors within foure dates affer their comming, were thus dispatched with an-Iwer. Herewith in this parlement it was ordeined, that the prince of Males, being as then about foure and twentie yeares of age, Mould passe ouer into 2 Salcoigne, and have with him a thousand men of armes, and two thousand archers, with a great number of Welthmen.

Auesburie. A naute pre= vareb.

Che buke of Lancafter.

Record.Tur.

About the same time the king cansed fortic thips to be pronided, rigged, and made readie at Ruthers hine, furnished with vittels for one quarter of a yeere, and currie of the faid thips had principal freamers of the onke of Lancasters armes, who was appointed with a great power of chosen men of armes and ar there to valle to the fea with the same thips, but few 30 or none of his companie knew whither; horffes they had none. We had with him two of the kings fonnes, Lionell of Antinerpe, and John of Bant, the elder of them being about lirteene yeares of age. Allo, there went with him the earles of Porthampton, Parch, and Stafford, belide manie lords, barons, & knights. On the tenth of Julie, he made faile to Grænewich, and there and at Sandwich he flated, till the Affump tion of our lavic, the wind for the most part continuing all that while at west and fouth, contrarie to his 40 tournie, as it might apeare. At length with much difficultic he came to Winchelfie, after to the Wight. It was thought, that the dukes purpole was to paste into Pomanoie, to foinc with the king of Pauarre, tho was at variance with the French king. But after it was knowen by espials that they were made frænds, the duke of Lancaster doubting croked measures, and having with him no horitenien, returned home without further attempt.

17 of Julie, malter Humfrie Carleton professor of dininitie, and John Carleton the ponger, doctor of the lawes, on the behalfe of the Univertitie of Dr ford, and John faint Fride fwide maior, John Beres ford, and John Porton, burgeffes of the faid towne of Drfogo, on the behalfe of the communaltie of the fame towne, came before the kings councell at Tales minster in the councell chamber there, nere to the ercheker, where the allegations on both parties being heard, and opon request made, that it might 60 please his maiesties councell, acording to the submile fions by both parties made onto the king and to his councell, to take odoer in the matter in controverse betwirt them, concerning the late turnult and buff. nelle which had chanced in the faid towne, by the diforder of the communaltie of the fame, in breaking downe, and burning op of houses, in taking awaie the bokes and other gods of the faid maffers and fcholers, & in committing other transgressions. The councell having confideration thereof, to anoib the decate that might have infued to the faid towne, made this end betwirt them, that the faid towne (John Bereford, being in the kings pulon, and Ropate buto the faid maffers and scholers, damnified in between the faid tumult and bufinelle, for amends, and refor Amurica mation of inturies and losses sustained (death and monoic) maime ercepted) two hundred and fiftie pounds, fort, belide the gods taken and borne awate, to be refto red againe, and this monie to be paid to the faid chancelloz, mafters and scholers, on that five the monbaie next before the featt of faint James, or elfe fuffi. cient fuerties put in for the paiment thereof, at certeine termes, as the parties thould agree bpon : and in respect thereof, the fato John Bercford, and John Porton, thall be releasted out of pulon of the Mar-Challea, at the baile of the faid maioz, and of Robert de Menkes, and John Dimmoks, till the nert fellons of gaole beliverie, with condition, that the faid fummes of monie be palo, or fuerties put in for the paiment thereof, as before is faid, or elfe the bodies of the faid John Wereford, & John de Porton, shall be returned to the faid pailon, within thee daies after the feast of Peter ad Vincula, there to remains in manner as before they did.

It was also ordeined by the councell, with the alfent of the faid Humfrie and John Carleton, that all and cuerie manner of persons of the said towne of Drford, and the suburbes of the same, indited and are reigned of the fellonies and transgressions before mentioned, that should reld themselnes to the kings prison to be tried by law, and also all other that were at that present in prison, which the said Humfrie and John de Carleton Chould name (John de Bereford and Robert Lardiner ercepted) might be let to baile, byon lufficient luerties, that thould bndertake for them, bodies for bodies, to appeare at the nert felli ons of gaole deliverie, there to be tried, according to the order of law . And further it was ordered, that all fuch goods and cattels as were taken and carried awaie from the faid mafters and scholers in the faid tumult and businesse, by the men of the said towne and fuburbes, in whole hands, and in what places foe ner within the fato towne and fuburbes, by inquiliti ons, informations, or other meanes, they thould or might be found, should be delivered to the faid chancelloz, and procurators of the faid Univerlitie, to be by them reflored buts those persons, to whome they belonged. His was the effect of the order taken at that day and place, before the renevend fathers, John archbilhop of Poske primat and chancellos of Eng. land, William bilhop of Wlinchefter lozd treasuroz, Thomas de Brembre lord keeper of the prinie feale, On faint Benelmes daie being fridaie, and the 50 and Dauld de Wolloze matter of the rolles, Henrie de Ingelbie clearke, and other of the kings councell then and there present.

The prince of Wales (as pe have heard) being ap Tho, Wall pointed to palle ouer into Galcoigne, let forward Thepunt? from London the last date of June, and comming to wales gat Plimmouth, where his navie was appointed to be oner into made readie, he flated there, for want of convenient wind and weather a long time after. Finallie, ha ning with him the earles of Warwike, Sonfolke, Saliburies Driord, also the lood John Chandais, fir Robert knols, fir Franke de Hall, the lood James Andelie, with diverse other of the nobilitie, and of men of armes and archers a great number, then in parlement to him alligned, be firtt fet from Plinv mouth on the date of the Patilitie of our ladie. They were in all their hundled faile, and finding the wind profeerous, they passed over into Gascoigne, where of the Balcoignes they were initultie received. In August, the Grighshmen that were in Britame, warring against the Frenchmen, that toke part with the losd Charles de Blots, flue manie of them, e toke the lood of Beaumano, the vicount of Roan, and diverse other. This peare also, about Wichael malle, the king having fummioned an armie to be of the quarrett bert Lardiner onelic excepted) Chould be bonno to

readic

An.Reg.29. readic at Sandwich, passed ouer to Calis with the fame. There went over with him his two somes, Lie onell of Antwerp earle of Alder, and John of Bant carle of Richmond . He found at Calis a thousand men of armes that came to ferue him for wages, forth of Flanders, Brabant, and Almaigne, so that be had about three thouland men of armes, and two thouland archers on horsebacke, belide archers on fot agreat number. The citie of London had fent to him fine hundred men of armes, and fine hundred archers 10 Checitic of all in one fute or liverte, at their owne coffs and darges. On the fecond of Pouember, he fet from Calis, marching forth towards faint Dmers , wa.

Ting the countrie by the wate as he patted. The French king being at the same time within month frace, the towne of faint Omers , fent the lood Boulicant buto the king of England, that buder colour of coms munication, he might view the kings power, who made fuch report thereof, bpon his returne backe to the french king, that he betermined not to fight 20 with the king of England, but rather to palle before him, and to beffrois bittels, that for want thereof. the king of England thould be confireined to returne. And as he determined, lo it came to palle, for the vittels were fo cut off, that the Englishmen for the full daies togither, danke nothing but water. When therefore king Colward had followed his eni-The bing to mies fo farre as Delben , where he brake the parke, man of bit and burnt the houses within and about the parke, although he entered not into the towne nor castell, at 30 length, for default of vittels, he returned backe, and came againe to Calis on faint Bartins Day , being the tenth after his fetting forth from thence.

The morrow after being thursdate, and the twelfe ble of france of Pouember, the constable of France, and other frenchmen, came to the end of the causie of Calis. mith letters of credence, offering battell on tueldate nert following buto the king of England, in prefence of the duke of Lancatter, the earles of Porthy amoton, and the load Walter de Mannie, who in the 40 hings behalfe declared to the constable, that the king of England, to either theoding of bloud, would fight with the french king boote to booie, so to trie their right: and if he liked not of that match, then if he would those thee of four knights to him that were neerest to him in bloud, he should shole the like num ber. But then this offer would not be accepted, the English loads offered battell the nert day, being fri baie, or elfe on faturdate following, at the French, mens thoice: but the constable of France and his companie, continuing in their first offer, refused both those dates. Then the English loods accepted the date by them assigned, with condition, that if they brought not king Coward to give battell that day, they would palo themselnes visioners, so that the Frenchmen would like wife undertake for their king. The constable having no answer readie, Craico a while, and after flatlie refuled to make any fuch covenant. Finallie, then the English lozos perceived their adversaries, tended, they brake off, and both parties returned home. The king of England Naied till the tuefdaie, and paid the ffrangers their wages, and so came Similata: backe into Englapo. Onthe fixt of Pouember, who bridge shots left the king was thus abroad in Picardie, the Scots berie earlie in the morning of that date, came print lie to Werwike, entred by Realth into the towne, and fleaing thee or foure Englishmen , toke it , with all the gods and persons within it, those excepted, which got to the castell.

In a parlement fummoned this yeare, the mondaie affer the feaft of faint Comund the bing, the loods and commons granted to king Edward fiftie hillings of everie facke of woll, that should be cari. ed ouer the fea, for the space of sir yeares next insuing. By this grant it was thought, that the king might dispend a thousand markes ferling a day, such pent of wols had the English merchants in that seas fon. The parlement being ended the king about S. Andrews tide let forward towards Scotland, and beld his Chaiftmaffe at Pewcastell . About which time by letters fent from the prince, the king was advertised of his proceedings after his arrivall in Balcoigne, there being totallic received of the nobles, and other the people of that countrie (as before pe have heard) he declared to them the cause of his thither comming, and take adulle with them how to proced in his bulinelle; and to about the tenth of Dc= tober , he fet forward to palle against his enimics, first entring into a countrie called Juliake, which to gither with the fortrelles pæloed to him, without as nie great refistance. Then he rode through the couns The proces tie Armianac, wasting and spoiling the countrie, and dings of the so passed through the lands of the vicounts de la Ris prince of uiere, and after entered into the countie de l'Effrac, quitaine, and palling through the fame, came to the countie of Commiges, finding the towns of S. Matain boid, being a good towne tone of the best in that countrie.

After this, he patted by the land of the earle of Lib le till be came within a league of Tholouse, where the earle of Armignac, being the French kings lieus tenant in those parts, and other great loads and nobles were affembled. The prince with his armie tarried there two daies, and after passed over the river of Garonne, and after ouer an other river thereas bonts, a league aboue Tholonfe, lodging that night a league on the other five of Tholouse; and so they palled thorough Tholouse, dailie taking townes & callels, wherein they found great riches, for the countrie was verie plentifull. Upon Alhallowes duen, they came to callell Paudarie, and from thence they twhe the waie to Carcasson, into the which a great Carcasson. number of men of armes and commons were with. drawne. But boon the approch of the Englishmen, they flipt awaie, and got them to a frong castell that food neere at hand. The third day alter, the English men burnt the towne, and palling forth, traverled all the countrie of Carcallonois, till they came to the towne of Parbonne. The people there were fled in Parbonne. to the castell, in which the vicount of Parbonic was inclosed, with five hundred men of arms. The prince Two bishops stated there two dates. The pope fent two bishops to spectothe wards the prince, to treat with him of peace, but bis spince of cause the prince would not hearken to anie treatie water. without committion from his father, they could not get anie lafe conduct to approch nærer.

The prince having advertisments here, that his enimics were affembled, and followed him, he turned backe to meet them, but they had no will to abide him: for although the earle of Armignac, the conflable of France, the marthall Cleremont, and the prince of Dange, with diverse other nere to Thos loufe, made some thew to impeach the prince his palnot to meane vattell, as their words at the first pres 60 lage, yet in the end they without most without some lotte, for the lord Bartholomew de Burwalch alids Burgherlch, fir John Chandois, the losd James Audeley, and fir Thomas Felton, being fent footh to view them, lkirmilhed with two hundled of their men of armes, and toke of them five and thirtie. Af ter this, they had no mind to abide the English pow er, but fill thranke awaie, as the prince was readic to follow them, and to be perceiving that the French men would not give him battell, he withozew to. wards Burdeaur affer he had fpent eight wekes in that his fournie, and fo comming thither, he winter tered there, whilest his capteins in the meane time twhe viverle townes and castels abroad in the countrie. And now to the end ye may have moze plains made to him, battell.

The confta=

A partement.

information of the princes doings in those parties, I have it ought god to make you partakers of a letter or two, written by fir John Edinkeheld knight, attendant on the prince there in Cascoigne.

The copie of fir Iohn Winkefields letters.

ploed, as touching the newes in 10 these parts, may it please you to buderstand, that all the earles, barons, baronets, knights, and esquiers, were in helth at the making here= of, and my load hath not loft either knight or esquier in this botage, except the load John Lille, who was flaine after a frange manner with a quarrell, the third day after we were entered into our enimies countrics, he died the fiftenth of October. And please it you to binderstand, that my load hath rid= denthrough the countrie of Arminac, and hath taken many fensed townes, and burnt and destroied them, except certeine which he hath fortified. After this, he marched into the bicountie of Rouergne, where he twice and towns named Pleasance, the chiefelt towns of that countrie, which he hath burnt and destroied, with the coun- 30 trieround about the same. This done, he went into the countie d'Altrike, wherin he twhe manie townes, walted and destroied all the countrie. After this, he entred into the countie of Cominge, and twke manie townes there, which he caused to be defroicd aburnt, togither with all the countrie abroad. He twice also the towne of S. Matain, which is the chafelf towns of that countrie, being as large in compasse as 40 Dozwich.

Afterward, he entered into the countie of Lille, and twice the most part of the fenled townes therin, cauling diverle of them to be burnt and deltroied as he palled. And after entring into the loadthip of Tholouse, we passed the river of Girond, and an other a league aboue Tholouse, which is berie great: for our enumies had burnt all the 50 budges, as well on the one lide of Tholouse, as the other, except the bridges with in Tholouse, for the riner runneth through the towne. And the constable of France, the marchall Cleremont, and the earle of Arminac, were with a great power within the towne the same time. And Tholonse is a great towne, strong, faire, and well walled, and there was none in our host 60 that knew the food there: but yet by the grace and godnelle of God we found it. So then we marched through the feignio rie of Tholouse, a twice manie good rownes inclosed, and burnt and destroied them, and all the countrie about.

Then we entred into the leigniozie of Carcalon, and we twke manie good towns, before we came to Carcalon, which towne we also twke, which is greater, stronger, a fairer than Yorke. And as well this towne as all other townes in the countrie were burnt and destroied. And after we had pass fed by manie journies through the countrie of Carcason, we came into the sein nioxie of Parbon, and we twice mame townes, and walted them, till we came to Parbon, which towne was holden against bs, but it was wone by force, and the faid towne is little leffe than London, and is fi towns is necessary for that the distinct that the distinct that the distinct the dinduction the distinct the distinct the distinct the distinct the stance from the said towns but the Gra- hamme kith lears not past two leagues, and there units is an hauen and a place to arrive at, from whence the water cometh bp to Parbon. And Parbonis not but eleven leagues dis fant trom Mountpellier, Teightæne from Equemozts, & thirtie from Juignion. And may it please you to buderstand, that the holie father fent his mellengers to my lood, that were not past seuen leagues fro him, and they fent a fergeant at armes, that was fergeant at armes attendant on the doze of our holie fathers chamber, with their letters to my load, pracing him to have a lake conduct to come to declare to his highnelle their mellage from the holie father, which was to treat betwirt my L. and his adverlaries of France: and the laid fergeant was two daies in the holf before my lord would fee him, or receive his letters. And the reason was, bicause he had binderstanding, that the power of france was come forth of Tholouse toward Carcason, so that my lozd was driven to turne backe towards them suddenlie, and so did.

On the third date when we thould have come boon them, they had knowlege given before day, and so retiring, got them to the mounteins, halting fast toward Tholouse; and the countrie people that were their guides to lead them that wate, were taken as they thould have passed the water. And bicause the popes sergeant at arms was in my keeping, I caused him to examine the guides that were so taken; and for that the guide which was thus examined, was the constables guide, and his countrieman, he might well see and know the countenance of the Frenchmen boon this examining him. And Plaid to the same sergeant, that he might well declare to the pope, and to all them of Auignion, that which he had heard or læne. And as touching the animer which my lozd made to them that were lent to treat with him, you would be well apaid if you binderstood all the maner-for he would not luffer in any wife that they thuld come nærer bota him. But if they came to treat of any matter, he would that they chould fend to the king his father: for my lozd hime felfe would not do any thing therin, except by commandement from my load his father.

And of my looks turning backe to follow after his enimies, and of the pallage of the river of Garonne, and of the taking of cattles and townes in this fournie, and of other things which he hath done against his enimies in pursuit of them in this fournie, being things right worthe and honorable, as manie know berie well, in the maner

An.Reg.29,30. maneras fir Richard Stafford, effr Idil= liam Burton can moze plainelie declare, than I to you can write, for it were tw much to put in writing. And my lord rode thus abroad in the countrie of his enimies eight whole weekes, and rested not past elenen dates in all those places where he caine. And tinow it for certeine, that lince this warre began against the french king he had never fuch lotte or destruction as he hath had in this fournie: for the countries and good townes which were wasted at this tournie, found to the king of france everie yeare moze to the maintenance of his warre than halfe his realme hath bom belide, except the exchange of his monie which he maketh everie yeare, and the abnantage and cultome which he taketh of them of Poistou, as I can them you by 20 god remembrances, which were found in diverse townes in the receivers houses: for Carcason and le Moignes, which is as great as Carcason, and two other townes in the coasts of Carcason, found to the king of France y crelie wages for a thousand men of armes: and belive that 100000 old crowns to mainteine the war.

And know you, that by the remembran 30 ces which we found, that the townes in Tholouse which are destroied, and the townes in the countrie of Carcalon, and the towne of Parbonne and Parbonnois did find enerie yeare with the fums afore= faid in aid of his war foure hundred thous fand old crownes, as the burgeffes of the great townes & other people of the countrie which ought to know it, have told bs. And fo by Gods affiltance if my lozd had wherewith to mainteine this watre, and tomake the kings profit and his owne honoz, he hould well inlarge the English marches, and gaine manie faire places: for our enimies are greatlie astonied. And at the making hereof, my lozd hath appointed to send all the earles and baronets to abide in certeine places on the marches, tomake roads, and to annote his enimies. Now my loed, at this prefent I know none other newes to send, but you may by your letters command me as yours to my power. Myright honozable lozd, God grant rougodlife, toy, and health, long to continue. Wirittenat Burdeaux, the tuesdaie next befoze Christmasse.

The tenor of an other letter written by 60 fir Iohn Wingfield, directed to fir Richard Stafford knight, who had beenein Gascoigne, and there lexing his familie, was now returned in the Freday. into England.

Ight deare fir, and right louing freend, touching newes after your departure, you may boder without there be taken and pelved fine townes inclosed, to wit, post faint Marie, Cleirac, Tonings, Burgh, faint Pierre, Chaftiell Sacret oz Satrat and Brassake. Also seauentiene castely, to wit, Collier, Bufet, Lemnake, two castely called Boloines, which toine the one nave so the other, Adounce, Airesch, Freches net, Mountender, Pudeschales, Mouns poun, Montanac, Caleclare, Cenamont, Leiltrake, Plassac, Cont Destabilion, and Mountifiell. And will it please you to know that my loed John Chandois, my loed James Andeley, and your men that are with them, and the other Bascoianes that are in their companie, a my logo Baldwine Butetost, a that companie, a my los Reignald Cobham, twhe the faid towne, which is called Challiell Bacret oz Satrat, by affault: and the baltard of Life which was capteine of the faid towne was also Caine there, as they assaulted it, bes ing Ariben with an arrow thozough the head: and my load Reignold is returned backe toward Languedocke: and my lozd Baldwin towards Brassacke, with their companies: and the loads John & James, and those of their companie remaine in Challiell Sacrat, and have bittely plentie of all forts to ferue them between this and Midlimmer, except fresh fish and cabages as they have certified by by letters, wherefoze yæ næd not take care foz your men.

And there be in that towne more than there hundred glaines, and three hundred yeomen, and a hundled and fiftie archers. And they have rid before Agen, and burnt and destroied all their milles, and have burnt and broken downe all their bridges that lie over Garon, and have taken a cas stell without the same towns, and have foztified it. And monlieur John Darminake, and the senethall of Agenois, which were in the towne of Algen, would not once put forth their head, nor anie of their people, and yet have they beene twife before that towne. And monifeur Bulgand was come, Bulcicant! and montieur Ernald de Spaine, and Gris moton de Chambule, with there hundred glaines, and the fergeants Lombards, and they are in the towne of Muchacke, which is in Crestie, and it is but a mile from Chastiell Satrat of Sacret, and a league from Bieslake, and we may well thinke that there will be god companie one with another.

And further may it please you to know, that monsieur Bartholomew is at Coniake with fix score men of armes of my lords house, a six score archers, a the capitall be Buche or Beuf, the L. Monferrant, Ethe The capitall A. of Crotonie, which have with them 300 be Went. glaines, a fix score archers, and two huns died lergeants, belide them which are in Tailbourgh, Tanney, and Rochford, so that when they are togither, they may be well fir hundred glaines, and at the maks ing hereof, they were byon a fournie towards Aniou and Poictou, and the earles of Sulfolke, Oxfoid, and Salifburie, the lord of Museden, monsieur Ellis de Pomi= ers, and other Galcoignes, with the which are well more then five hundred glaives, and two hundred fergeants, and three hunded archers, and they were at the making hereoftoward the parties of Moltredame de Bochemade, and have beene forth aboue twelve dates, and were not returned at the fending of these presents. My lord John Chandois, my low James, and my low Baldwin, and those which be in their companie are also forth boon a fournie toward their parties; my load Reinold and those of the houshold, with the Galcoigns which be in their companie, are also forth boon a fournie towards their parties.

The earle of Warwike hath bæne at Tonings a Clerake, to take those towns, and at the making hereof was gone towards Abermande to destroie their bines, and all other things which he can destroie of theirs. My loed is at Leiboene, and the load of Poincers at Fronfak, which is but a quarter of a leage from Leiboine: and mp 20 lozes people lie as well at faint Milion, as at Leiboine, and monlieur Berard de Biet is there with him, and my load loketh for newes which he thould have, and according to the news that he chall have, he will behaue himselfe: for as it sæmeth, he stan= deth much on his honoz. At the making hereof, the earle of Arminac was at Auig nion, and the king of Aragon is there als 30 so: A of all other parleis which have beene in dinerle places (wherof you know) I can not certifie you at the making herof. Right dære fir, other thing I cannot send buto rou, but that you remember your selfe to fend newes to my load prince as some as in anie wife you may, and so the Lord grant you good life and long. Witten at Leis borne the 21 of Januarie.

These letters have I thought god to make the reader partaker of, as I find them in the chronicle of Robert Auesburie, to the end ye may perceive how other writers agree therewith, fith the same letters may ferue as a touchstone to trie the truth of the matter. And to now I will return to speake of the kings dwings in the north part where we left him. On the fourteenth of Januarie k. Coward having his armic lodged nière the tolone of Berwike, and his name readic in the hanen to affaile the Scots 50 that were within the towne, he entered the cassell which the Englishmen had in their hands, the load Walter de Pannie being their capteine, who had gotten certeine miners thither from the forrest of Deane, and other parts of the realme, which were bus he to make pallage under the ground by a mine, through which the Englishmen might enter into the towne. Derebyon, when the Scots perceived in what vanger they frod, and knew that they could not long defene the towne against him, they surrendered it in 60 mie, being aduertised of these matters, hasted for give the take to his hands without further relitance.

Hellor Boct.

Anno Reg. 30.

The relignation of the realme of Socotland made by the 23 atioll.

In the Scotich historics it is recorded, that when those which were within the towns of Berwike, beard how that an armie of Englishmen came to the fuccours of the cattell, they raced the walles and burnt the houses of the towns, and so departed with all the spotle which they had gotten there. But how focuer it was, king Coward being againe possessed of the fowne, he fet men aworke to repare it, and palling fouth to Rorburge, there met with him the rightfull king of Scots Coward Balfoll, who trans forred a religned all the right, title and interest, thich he had or might have to the crotime and realme of Scotland into king Cowards hands: thich relignatian he confirmed by his letters patents thereof made and given buter his hand and feale, dated the 25 of Januarie 1 3.56, requiring king Colvard to perfeuere in purfete of his title to the bitermoff.

Edward the third.

hing Cowardhaning thus received the relignation and release of the crowne of Scotland, marthed forth with his armie, till he came to Hading ton, burning and defiroleng the countrie on ech fide cound about him, as he passed. And whilest he late 16 there, abiding for his thips, his men of warre were not tole, but ranged abroad in the countrie, and did all the damage to their enimies that they could be nife. At length his armie which he had at the same time on the fea, arrived on that coaff, and landing, spoiled a church of our ladie, called the White hirke: but being returned to their thips, there arose such a tempest and vehement north wind, that manie of their bestels rushing and beating against the banks and fands, were drowned togither with the men that were within them, for displeasure thereof king Co. ward fell to the spoile of the countrie againe, not spar k. Count ring one place more than another: by reason wherof, fore affined as well abbeis as all other churches and religious the Scots, houses both in Padington, in Coenborough, and tho rough all other the parts of Louthian, wherefoeuer he came, were defaced and put to facke. At length when he had accomplished his will, and so fet things in or der, he returned backe into England with the force faid Coward Balioll in his companie, thome he kept with him, for boubt least he should revolt, and procure some new trouble. In the moneth of Julie the duke of Lancaster being sent to the aid of the it. The buked of Pauarre, came into Constantine, thich is a por Läceler for tion of Pormandie, a there foined with the love this of American harfing to the bing of American lip of Pauarre, brother to the king of Pauarre, and with the load Godfrie de Parecourt, the thich being Paulus Acreturned into France, and restozed to the French milius kings fauour, was latelie againe revolted, opon dif pleasure taken for the death of his nephue the lord John de Harecourt, as in the French histories pe may read more at large. They were in all about the Froillaid. number of foure thousand fighting men, and being affembled togisther, they went to Liseur, to Dibec, to Dibec to Dibec up Ponteau, e rescued the castell there, which had beine cuto. belieged by the load Robert de Potetot malter of the crossebowes in France, more than two moneths: but now hearing that the Englishmen and Pauarrois approched, he departed from thence, leaving behind him for half his engins and artillerie.

The duke of Lancaster passed forward buto Bees tueill, which he caused to be relieved and furnished with necessarie things as was convenient. And then leauing the citie of Eureur, which was as then in The citied the Frenchmens hands, latelie pelded to them after Enteur pal a long siege, he went forward with the lood Philip de Frenchusk Pauarre in companie till they came to Aermeill in Perch, and there toke both the towns and castell, Ternucl and robbed the towne and burnt a great part therof. The friend The French king, who had assembled a inightie ar R.commento ward towards the duke of Lancaster, fullie purpo, of Lancaster fing to give him battell. The duke and the load Philip battell. de Pauarre, having knowledge that the French king followed them, withdrew towards the towne of the Cagle, and the king still went after them, till he came to Tuebenf two leages from the towns of the Egle, and there it was thewed to him that he could not follow his entinies any further, by reason of the thicke forrests, which he could not passe with out great danger of his person and losse of his people. Then returned he with all his host, and twhe from the Pauarrois the castell of Thilliers, and also the cas ffell of Bretueill, which was poloco to him after two monethsliege.

About the same time, that is to saie, in Julie, the pince of Wales , hauing affembled an armie of Fenfard, menof warre, to the number of eight thouland, enwelcomma tred into the French dominions, and first palling though America at length because though America at length because through Aunergne, at length he came into the countrie of Berrie, wasting and burning the townes and villages as he went, taking easie tournies for the better relecte of his people, and destruction of his enimics: for then he was entered into anie towne that was sufficientlie Cozed of things necessarie, he 10 would tarie there two or the dates to refresh his foldiers and men of warre, and when they dislodged, they would frike out the heads of the wine vessels. and burne the theat, oates and barlie, and all other . things which they could not take with them, to the in. tent their enimes thould not therewith be fusteined and nourithed. After this, they came before the citie of Burges.

The citie of Burges.

MOETNIS

and there made a great (kirmily at one of the gates, and there were manie feats of armes done. The holf beparted from thence, without doing ante moze, and Indian of comming to a firong castell called Assolvane, they fiercelie affailed it, but could not win it: the gentles men within defended the walles and gates fo manfullie. Then passed they forward, and came to Mierjon, a great towne and a good castell, but it was no. thing aronglie fortified; and therefore was it wone perforce, the people within it being not sufficient to relift the valtant pullance of the Englithmen. Here and hereupon they taried there the vales to refresh themsclues at ease. But before they departed, the prince had advertisement given him that the French king was come to Chartres, with an huge affemblie of men of warre, and that all the townes and pallages about the river of Loire were closed and kept. The pallages Then was the prince counselled to returne and palle by Couraine and Poictow, and fo that waie to Burfelled him, fet forward toward Kemozentine. The French king had fent into that countrie to keepe the frontiers there, the lood of Craon , the lood Boucique ault, and the heremit of Chaumount, the which with the hundred men of armes had followed the Eng. lithmen fir daies togither, and could never find anie convenient occasion to let bpon them : for the Eng. lishmen governed themselves so sagelie, that their enimies could not lightlie affaile them, but to their themselves closelie in an ambulh nere to the towne of Remozentine, at a maruellous firefa passage, by wich the Engliffmen muft needs patte.

On the faine date there were departed from the princes battell, by licence of the marthals, certeine capteins, Englithmen and Galgoignes, as the lood Bartholomew de Burghersce oz Burwalche (as some write him) the lord of Pucident Gascongne, monlieur Petiton de Courton, the lozo de la Mare, the lood Ballet, fir Daniell Pallelew, fir Kichard 60 Ponchardon, ar Poell Lozing, the young lozd Spen. fer, and two of the Danbeeticourts, fir Edward, and another, who having with them two hundred men of Amounting armes, went footh to run before Remorenting, that they might view the place. They pasted forth along & by the Frenchmen which late in ambulh, as yee have beard, and they were not adulted of them, and they were no somer passed, but that the Frenchmen brake out, and gallopped after the Englishmen with great randon, having their speares in their refts.

The Englishmen and the Galcoignes hearing bootics to come galloping after them, turned, and perteining them to be their enimies, food fill to abide them. The Frenchmen conragionalie gane the charge, and the Englishmen as valiantlie befended them, so that there insued a great (kirmilly, which continued a long while, so that it could not be easilie tuds ged who had the better, not on which five the fortw nate iffue of the present conflict would then fall (for mutabilis alea Martis) till that the battell of the English marshals approched, the which when the Frenchmen law comming by a wood fide, they fled freightwates towards He- The french mozentine, and the Englishmen followed in chase so men sed. fall as their horfles might beare them, and entered the towne with the Frenchmen: but the French loads and the one halfe of their companie got into the callell, and to faued themselves . The prince hearing The prince that had happened, came into the tolone, and there lodgeth in the that had happened, came into the towne, and there towne of Reslodged that night, sending six John Chandois to talke more time. with the capiteines of the castell, to know if they would weld: and bicause they refused so to do, on the nert morrow he caused his people to give an affault to the place, which continued the most part of the day, but pet milling their purpose, he commanded that they thould draw to their lodgings, and rest them for that night.

In the morning as some as the sunne was by, the The castell of marthals caused the trumpets to sound, and those Removement that were amointed to give the affault againe, prepar affaulted. red themselves to it. The prince himselse was present personallie at this assault, so that the same was inforced to the bittermost: but when they saw that by they found wine and other vittels in great plentie, 30 affaults they could not win the castell, they deviled It is fet on engines, where with they call wild fire into the bale fier. court, and fo fet it on fire, which increased in such be bement lost, that it take into the covering of a great tower, which was covered with reed: and then they within perceiuing they must either polo or perith They withth with fire, came downe and submitted themselves to submitted the prince, who as prisoners received them. The castell themselves. of Remozentine being thus wone and defaced with fire, the prince left it boid, and marched forth with The prince following their adule that thus count 40 his armie as before defirering the countrie, and approched to Aniou and Louraine. The French king came forwards toward the prince, and at Ambois king foloweth heard how the prince was in Couraine, meaning to wales. returne through Polatow. He was dailie aduertifed of the princes doings by such as were appointed to coaft him euer in his fournie.

Then came the king to Haie in Touraine, and his Froifferd, people were palled the river of Loire at fundate pale somen thous lages, where most convenientlie they might. They land chosen owne disaduantage. One day the Frenchmen laid 50 were in number twentie thousand men of armes; of Tho. Well. noble men there were fir and twentie, onlies and earles, befide a great number of other loads and bas rons: the foure formes of the king were there, as the loed Charles onke of Poemmoie, the loed Lewes af ter onke of Aniou, the load John affer duke of Berrie, and the losd Philip with was after duke of Buc. gongne. The French king doubting leaft the prince thould escape by specie tournies out of his countrie, before he could come to give him battell, removed to Chauuignie, and there palled the riner of Treule by Chauuignie. the bridge, supposing that the Englishmen had beene before him, but they were not. Some of the French. men taried behind at Chaunignie for one night, and in the morning followed the king. They were about two bundled men of armes buder the leading of the lord Craon, the lord Raoull de Coucie, and the earle of Joignie. They chanced to incounter with certeine of the auaunt currours of the English armie, which remoued that day from a little village fall by. Those Englishmen were not past the score men of armes, but well horfed, and therefore perceiving the great number of the Frenchmen, they fled towards the princes battell, which they knew was not farrs off. Capteins of the Englithmen were two knights

Che french the prince of

S latinish,

The lost Raouit de Cout

Frenchmen

niftreacb.

cue taken.

of Heinault, the loss Cufface Damberticourt, and the lood John of Omfielles.

The Frenchmen beholding them in this wife to fle, rode after amaine, and as they followed in chafe, they came on the princes battell before they were a ware. The lood Raoull of Coucie went to far for ward with his banner, that he entred under the princes banner, and fought right valiantlie, but yet he was there taken, and the earle of Joignie, also the bi count of Bruce, the lord Chaunignic, and diverse of 1 ther, so that the most part of those Frenchmen were either taken or flaine, and verie few escaped. De prince understood by the prisoners, that the French king was fo farre aduanced forward in pursute of him, that he could not audid the battell. Then be alfembled his men togither, and commanded them to keepe order, and fo rode that day being faturdate from morning till it was toward night, then came within two leagues of Polatiers: and here with sending forth certaine capteins, to fearth if they could 20 heare where the king was, he incamped himfelfe that night in a frong place amongst hedges, bines, and buthes. They that were fent to discouer the countrie, robe fo far, that they fain where the French king with his great battell was marching, and fetting byon the taile of the Frenchmen, caused all the host to Air: whereof knowledge being given to the king, the which as then was entring into Pointiers, he return neo againe, and made all his hoft to do the like, fo that it was veric late yer he and his people were beflowed in their lodgings that night'. The English currours returning to the prince, declared what they had fene and done. So, that night, the two armics being lodged within a fmall diffance either of other, kept Grong and fure watch about their campes.

his holf to be divided into the battels or wards, and in each of them were firteene thousand armed nien. tell was gouerned by the duke of Dileance, wherein of the French battell. were fir and thirtie banners, and twife as manie per nons. The fecond was led by the duke of Poimans die and his brethren, the lord Lewes & the lord John. The third the French king himfelfe conduced. And while these battels were setting inarraie, the king caused the load Eustace de Ribaumount, and two o ther noble men to rive on before, to fee the bealing of the Englishmen, and to admife of what number they were. Those that were thus sent, rove forth and ber 5 held the order of the Englishmen at good leifure: and returning, infourmed the king, that as they could thoge, the enimies were about two thousand men of

On the morrow after being fundaie, and the eigh teenth daie of September, the French king caused armes, foure thousand arriers, and fiftene hundred of others, and that they were lodged in fuch aftrong place, and fo well fenfed with ditches and hedges, that it would be hard affaulting them therein.

Che carbinal of Diergozt,

The cardinall of Piergost the popes legat, as then lieng in the citie of Poidiers, came that morning to till he might biderstand whether the prince would condescend unto such conditions of peace as he himfelfe thould thinke reasonable, which if it might be brought to passe, the same should be more honorable for him, than to adventure to manie noble men as were there with him at that present in hazard of bats tell. The king was contented that the carbinall thould go to the prince, and fee that he could do with The prince of him. The cardinall rode to the prince, and talked with him till he was contented to come to a freatie. The cardinall returned to the French king, and required of him that a truce might be granted till the next daies fun-rifing: which truce obteined, be frent that baie in riving to and fro betwirt them.

 $\mathcal{A}n.\mathcal{D}om.135$ The prince offered to render into the kings hands Cheffer all that he had wone in that votage, as well townes the paner as castels, and also to release all the puloners, which wakes he or any of his men had taken in that tournie : and further he was contented to have beine fwome not to beare armour against the French king within the french king would not agree therebuto: the bitter kingspa most that he would agree buto, was this, that the samples prince and an hundred of his knights thould pello demand themselnes as prisoners onto him, otherwise he would not have the matter taken bp. But it was the French kings hap after (notwithstanding his hau. times) to be taken captine, as Okland noteth, fateng, _ seruilia sub inga missus

Disceret ut domino regi parêre Britanno. But the prince in no wife cold be brought to any fuch bureasonable conditions, and so the cardinall could not make them freends, although he travelled earnestlie betwirt them all that date. When it drew to wards night, he returned toward Pointiers.

The Englishmen were not idle, whilest the cardi The Could nall was thus in hand to bring the parties to some men forms god agræment, but call great bitches, and made hed, their came ges, and other fortifications about the place where their archers flod, and on the next morning, being mondate, the prince and his people prepared them felues to receive battell, as they had done before, hauing passed the day before and that night in great befed of necessarie things, for they could not sir a broad to fetch forrage or other provisions without danger to be surprised of their enimies. The carde riall came againe earlie in the morning buto the Frenching, and found the French armie readie in order of battell by that time the funne was by, and though he efflones fell in hand to erhoat the king to an agreement, yet it would not be. So he went to the prince, and declared to him bow he could do no god Theman in the matter, and therefore he must abide the hazard haut, The ordering all muffered and patted for armed men. The first bat 40 of battell for ought that he could fee: there with the prince to as content, and to the caroinall returned on to Polatiers.

Dereis to be remembred, that when (as Thomas Walfingham writeth) this cardinall of Piergort was fent from the pope to trauell betwirt the parties for a peace to be had, and that the pope erhorted him berie earnetflie to fiet his ottermost diligence and indeuour therein: at his fetting forth to go on that medage, the fair carbinall (as was faid) made this o antwer: wort bledet fafter (fato he) either we will The Wil persistate them to peace and quietnesse, either else applies. fpake not of himfelfe as it was supposed, but being a prelate in that time, he proffeted what thould follow; for then the English at overs had bestower all their arrowes byon their entities, they take up pebles from the place where they trob, being full of those kind of Cones and amodernic to their enimies, they threw the fame with fuch violence on them, that light the king, and required him to abiteine from battell, 60 ting against their helmets, armoz, and targets, they made a great ringing notice, to that the cardinals prophelie was fulfilled, that he would either perfuade a peace, or elfe the Rone's thould crie out thereof.

The worthis prince like a couragious chieffcine, The the ichen he faw that he mult needs fight, required his tioneith people not to be available at the great number of their punct enimies, lith the victorie did not conflit in the multitude of men, but where God would fend it: and if it fortuned that the fournie might be theirs and his, they thould be the most honozed people of the world: and if they thould die in that righteous quarrell, he had the king his father and also his brethen, in like case as they had frænds and kinsmen, that would læke their reuenge. And therefore he defired them tentes to come

An.Reg.30.

that daie to them themschies like valiant men of warre : and for his part he truffed in Dod and laut Scorge, they Hould fe in his perfon no default, There or the like words did this most gentle prince fpeake, which greatlie comforted all his people.

p)oble men with the pance of

There were with him of carles, Warwike, Sub folke, Salifburte, Staffoed; of loeds, Cobham, Spenfer, Audeley, Berkley, Battet, Warren, de ia Ware, Bravelton, Burwalch, Felton, Pallow, and directe other: also fir John Chandois, by whome he a was much counselled , fir Richard Stafford , fir 186 thard of Denbuche, and manie other knights and valiantelquires of England. Pozeouer,there was of Galcoigne, the capitall of Buy og Beuf, the loads of Prumes, Burguenrie, Chaumount, de Lespare, Kolen, Ponferant, Landuras , the Souldich of Le. frad of Lefcard, and other: and of Deinault, fir Cu fface Daubzeticourt, fir John De Buffelles , and o. ther arangers. All the princes companie patted not the number of eight thousand men one and other, of 20 the with (as Iacobus Meire faith) the thousand were archers : though Froiflard (as 3 haue rehearled be. fore) reporteth the number of archers to be more, as in one place fir thousand, and in an other place foure thousand.

The namber

The French king having in his armie thice Croze thousand fighting men, wherof there were more than thue thousand knights, made so sure account of bic. torie, as anie man might of a thing not pet had, connumber of his adversaries: and therefore immedia atlie after that the cardinall was departed, he caused his battels to march for ward, and approching to the place where the Englishmen foo readie to receive their enimies, caused the onset to be given . There were certeine Frenchhozaemen, to the number of the bunded, with the Almains also on horsebacke appointed to breake the arraie of the English are thers, but the archers were so desended and compas fed about with heages and ditches, that the horder 40 men of the French part could not enter to do their feat, and being galled with the Charpe Chot of the English bowes, they were overthrowne horse and man, so that the valvard of the Frenchmen, wherein was the duke of Athens, with the marthals of France, the load John de Cleremont, and the load Arnold Dandzehen oz Doenhen, began to disozder within a while, by reason of the thot of the archers, togither with the helpe of the men of armes, among & thom in the forefront was the lord James Audeley, 50 to performe a bow which he had made, to be one of the first setterson.

There was the load Arnold Dandsehen faken pair foner, and the lood John de Cleremont Claine, so that the noble prowere of the faid lord James Audeley, breaking through the Frenchmens battell with the flaughter of manie entimies, was that day most apparant. The locall constancte of the noble earles of Chrarks of Carwike and Suffolke, that fought to Coutlie, to obteand carnefilic, and so fiercelie, was right manifest. And 60 the prince himselfe did not onclie fulfill the office of anoble chécfteine, but also of a right valiant and erpert fouldiour, attempting that soener any other hardie warriour would in such cases have done. Pet ther was this battell quicklie dispatched, noz casilie brought to end; but it was fought out with such ob-Amate earneAnelle, that thic times that date were the Englishmen dividen to renew the fight, through the multitude of entinics that increased and came fill boon them.

Finallie, the marthals battell was quite discomfited: for the Frenchmen and Almains fell one opon an other, and could not passe fouth; and those that were behind, a could not get forward, reculed backe:

and while the marchals battell being on hordebacke thus affailed the English armie with great disaduantage, and was in the end beaten, backe, the two hat tels of the pulses of Point mois and Dileange same forward and like wife affailed the Englishmen, but tould not prevaile. The archers that to fercelie, that to conclude, the Frenchmen behind, under Canding the discomfiture of the marshals battell, and how their The marfellowes before could not enter byon their enimies, they opened and ran to their horses, in whome they did put more trust for their fafegard by galloping on them awaie, than in their manlike hands, for all their late braueric and great boatts. One thing fore dil couraged the Frenchmen, and that was this : belide those Englishmen that were within the closure of their campe, there were certeine men of armes on horlebacke, with a number of archers also on borle. backe, appointed to coast under the covert of amounteine, adjoining to the place, where they thought to Arike into a fide of the duke of Pozmandies battell, The French fo that with the terrour hereot, and wing use comming all thot of the English archers, the Frenchmen not faue themself the County fairs by flight knowing where to turne themselues, sought to save Polydor. their lives by flight.

The prince of Wales, perceining how his enimics (for the more part of them) were fleing awaie as men discomfited, fent out his horffemen as well on the one hand as on the other, and he himselfe with his whole power of formen ruthed forth, and manfullie fibering his great pullance, in regard to the fmall 30 affailed the maine battell of the Frenchmen, there the king himselse was, who like a valiant prince Froiffard. would not flee, but fought right manfullie: so that if cie of the the fourth part of his men had done halfe their parts french king, as he did his, the victorie by likelihoo had refled (as Froiffard faith) on his fide: but he was for faken of his the formes, and of his brother the duke of Dile. ance, which fled out of the battell with cleare hands. Finallie, after huge flaughter made of those nobles men, and other which above with him even to the end, he was taken, and fo like wife was his yongeft fonne The French Philip, and both put in great danger to have beine king taken. murthered after they were taken, by the English men and Balcoignes, Ariving the should have the king to his prisoner, where in ded a knight of Flanders og rather Artois, bogne in faint Dmers, called Ia. Meir. fir Denile Porbecke, toke him, but he was Graight bir Denik wates taken from the same fir Denile by other that Morbecke. came in the meane fcalon, better proutoed (belike) of frength, and lead him awate burelifico. There were flaine in this battell, of noblemen, the Poblemen dukes of Burbon and Athens, the marthall Clere daine. mont.fir Beffrey Charnie that bare the chefe ffan. dert of France, the bithop of Chaalons, fir Gufface de Ribaumont, with diverse other to the number of eight hundred loads, knights, and gentlemen of Is, Meir. name. In all there died on the French part fir thou: fand of one and other . The chale was continued even Polydor. to the gates of Pointers, and manie flaine and bear The chafes ten downe in the Arest before the gates, which the citizens had closed, for doubt least the Englishmen thould enter with them that fled thither for fafegard. There were taken belive the king and his sonne, the lood Jaques de Burbon earle of Ponthieu, hoother Froisfard, to the duke of Burbon that was flaine there, the erle Annales de of Ein the look Tharles his bother earle of I ang. of Ew,the load Charles his brother earle of Long. uile, the archbishop of Sens, the earles of Tandolme, Salefbruch, Mentadore, Canherville, Cffampes, Archembald and Dampmartine: also Archembald Doluglas a Douglas take noble man of Scotland, some to the honorable lord lacob. Meir. William Dowglas that was killed in Spaine, the marshall Dandzehen oz Doenhen (as Iacobus Busoners Meir saith) with others to the number of seventeene hundred earles, loods, knights, and gentlemen, befive those of the meaner lost; so that the Englishmen put to y worlk

D 0.j.

de 15ent.

The battell 13 begun.

The force of Duffalse.

390

had twile as manie prifeners as they fremtelnes were in number : and therefore it was beufed a monglithem, to pittibe wolf part of their puloners to randome there in the fleto, and fo they no for boubt of further danger, the multitude being for great as it

:3881 : l i atte or Doittiers When it was.

Thus was the prince of Wales blast in that no table battell fought in the fields of Beautiof and Balpertule, two leagues from Polaters, the nine tenth day of September being monday, in the perc a thousand, these hundred, fiftie and fir, thirth began mithe mounting and ended at none. But bicaufe the Englithmen were leattered abroad in chale of their entimies, the princes banner was fet by in a bull, to Baw all his men togither. It was almost night per they were all returned from the chale. The prince made a great super in his lodging that night to the French king, and to the most part of his nobles that There taken prisoners, and did all the honour that he could deutle to the king. And where he perceined by 20 his there and countenance, that his heart was full of pentiue græfe, carefull thought and heautnette, he comforted him in the best maner that he might, and faid to him: as followeth.

The meeke and comfortable oration of the English prince to the French king being taken priloner.

Oftnoble king, there is no cause 3 wherefore your grace thould be pensive, though God this day did not consent to follow your will. Tor your noble prowes and dignitie rotall, with the suppeme type of your kinglie mas iestie, remaineth whole and inuivate, and what soener may rightlie be called yours; so that no violent force of time thall blot God hath determined that the chance of war thall reft in his disposition and wilhas all other things. Your elders have arthi-ned both by land a fea manie noble enterprifes. The whole compasse of Europe, all the east parts of the world, all places and countries, both far anære, are full of monuments, witnessing the noble victories atteined by the French people.

The cause of godie living and religion, 50 the dignitie and preheminence of christia= nitie hath beine defended and augmented by you, against the most mightie and puisfant capteins of the infidels, entimies to the faid chillian religion. All ages thall make mention of your worthic praifes, no nation there is but thall confesse it selfe bounden at one time or other for benefits received at your hands nether is there 60 any people but such as hope to behereafter bounden to you for reliefe and benefits, to proceed from you in time to come. One or two battels happilie have chanced among so manie triumphs otherwise than you would have withed; chance would it thould be so, which may inseable and make weake the power of horses, armor, and weapon: pour inuincible courage and roiall magnanimitie lieth in your power to reteine: neither Chall this day take any thing from you ox yours. And this realme of France which bath procreat and brought forth and norimed to many of my noble progenitors, than verceine my good meaning towards hir, as not that thull of mine elders, and toward Pour materite (if you will bouchfafe that I thould glozie of that name) a most humble kiniman. There are manie occations of love and freenothip betweet you and my father, which I trust thall take place, for I know all his thoughts and inward meanings: you thall agree and come to an at tonement right easilie togither, a I maie Bod he neuer take me for his sonne, ercept have you in the same degree of honoz, renerence, and faithfull love, which I owe towards him.

The king (as reason would) acknowledged this to proceed of great courtefic thewed toward him in the vince and thanked him accordinglie. And the prince The for performing in beed that which he spake with word, build have ceaffed from further bling of fire, or other indama, thepana, ging of the French dominions, and taking his waie through the countries of Polaton and Faintonge, by eafie fournies, he and his people came to Blate, and To passed over the water to Burdeaux in good fafette The phing with all their riches and patieners. The paince game returnation to the logo James Audelie (who had received in the Frontage battell manie fore wounds) fine hundred marks of pearelie renenues affigned fouth of his lands in Cn. Cheloth gland. The which gift the knight granted as fredic belie tres as he had received it buto foure of his equiers, which bed, in the battell had beene euer attendant about his person, without whose aid a valiant support, he know well that he had beene flaine fundrie times in the fame battell by his enimies, and therefore thought it a dutie of humanitie and gratifude to make them as mends with some temporall recompense, that had fatted his life, than the which nothing is more dere, out or diminish the same. The almightie 40 nor of greater price in the world, as the poet saith, nihil est vita protiosius ipsa.

Taken the prince heard that he had to done, he mervelled what his meaning was therby, and caused him to be brought before his presence, and demanded of him wherefore he had so lightlic given awaie that reward which he had bestowed upon him, and who ther he thought that gift to meane for him or not. The lord Audelie so excused himselfe in extolling the god feruice done to him by his esquiers, through whome he had to manie times escaped the dangers of beath, that the prince did not onelie confirme the res fignation of the five hundred marks given to the el quiers, but also rewarded the load Andelie with fix bundeed marks more of like pearelie revenues, in maner and forme as he had received the other. When the newes of this great vidorie came into England of the overthrow of the Frenchmen, and taking of the French king, ye may be fure there was great toy Gewed by outward tokens, as bonfiers Bonfiers made, featis and bankets kept, through the thole realme. Likewife the Galcoignes and Englishmen being come to Burdeaux, made great reuell and pas fime there, spending freelie that gold and silver which they had wome in the battell of Polatiers, and elses where in that iournic. This years in Aprill the prince of Wales toke thinging with his prisoners at Annals Burdeaur, and on the fift of Pale arrived at Plim Andrew mouth. On the foure and twentith day of Hair be much was bridgereat honour fosfullie received of the city zens into the citie of London, and fo conucied to the Cheri palace of Westminster, where the king sitting in burge Wellminster hall, received the French king, and al from ter connected him to a lodging appointed for him, control there he late a featon: but after he was remouth to there he late a featon; but after he was rememb to pationers.

Che battell

The prince

An.Reg.31,32.

bic Sauoic, which was at that time a goodlie house, perteining to the duke of Lancaster, though after: wards it was burnt and destroised by Wat Tiler, Jacke Stratu , and their companie. In this place the French king laie, and kept house a long time

a iiiftsholden

In the winter following were rotall futtes holden monorous in Smithfield, at the which were prefent the kings of England, France, and Scotland, with manie the more part of the Grangers were as then pilo, ners. It was reposted, tout the French king could not fo diffemble noz cleake his inward thought, but that there appeared forme tokens of greefe in his countenance, whilest he beheld these warlike pas flines. And when the king of England, this fonne prince Coward with coinfortable words required The French him after luper to put all penfine cares out of his fantalic, and to be merrie and fing as other old, he should make this answer with a smiling counter 20 nance, alluving to the complaint of the Araelits in time of their captinitie binder the gentiles , & faieng, Quomodo cantabimus canticum in terra aliena?

about the fame time there came over into Eng.

land two cardinals, the one called Calirand being bishop of Alba (commonlie named the cardinal of god means they procured a truce betweene the faid hings, and all their amifants, to indure from the time of the publication thereof, but o the feast of S.

John Baptiff, which should be in the yeare 1359:out of the which truce was excepted the L. Philip of Na narre, and his alies, the counteffe of Montfort, and the whole buchie of Britaine.

halm. 137. Hom, Walf hodfard.

Cardinals fent into England.

Pierregost) and the other named Picholas intituled cardinall of S. Aitale og (as Froiflard faith) of Dar, gell, they were fent from pope Innocent the firt, to intreat for a peace betwirt the things of England 30 and France : but they could not bring their purpose to anie perfect conclusion, although they remained here for the space of two yeares: but yet onelie by

A truce for twoycarca

Mennes be=

The Walfi.

Anon after, the French king was removed from king remoted the Sauvic but othe cavell of Univoloz with all his houspolo, and then he went on hunting and haw king there about at his pleasure, and the losd Philip his some with him, all the restone of the prisoners above fill at London, but were luffered to go by and downe, and to come to the court when they would. In the same years the duke of Lancaster besieged the citic of Rennes in Britaine, in the title of the counteffe of Richmond, 4 hir young sonne John of Pont- 50 townes and castels, ransoming the people, and walkfort, that claimed to be duke of Britaine. Phose that were within the citie, as the vicount of Kohan, and Bertham de Claiquin (tho as then was a luftic yong tacheler) and others defended themselves manfallie for a time, but yet at length they were compelled to render the citie into their enimies hands.

barnt at London, for matters of religion. More third, acparted this life the feaven and twentith date of August, and was buried the seaven and twentith date of Ponember, in the church of the friers minors at London, not yet dedicated. Toanio king of Scotland, Mostlie after the truce was concluded betwirt England and France, was fet at libertie, pale Cheking of ring for his ransome the summe of one hundred thousand marks (as Fourdon saith) but whether he meaneth Scotify or feeling monie, I cannot faie.

Shout the same time two Franciscane friers were

Dealle was bound by covenant now open his deliverance, to cause the castels in Piocsoale to be rate sed, which were knowne to be cuill neighbors to the English borderers, as Dunfrife, Dalfwinton, 1902 ton, Dunchere, and nine other.

His wife quiene Jone made such earnes sute to hir brother king Coward for hir hulbands delines rance, that king Edward was contented to release him byon the paiment of so small a postion of mos nie and performance of the concurants, for the rate fing of those castels; although Froisfard faith, that he Froisfard. was covenanted to paie for his deliverance within the tearme of ten peares, fine hundred thouland no bles, and for fuertie of that paiment to fend into great chates of all their time kingdoms, of the which great chates of all their time kingdoms, of the which great chates of the Company have not their miles. glas, Purrey, Par, Sutherland, and Fiffe, the baron of Welcie, and fir William Camoife. Also be couenanted neuer to weare armour against king Coward, within his realme of England, noz to confent that his subjects should so do: and further should by on his returne home, on the best he could to cause the Scots to agree that their countrie should held of him in fee, and that he and his fuccessours, kings of Scotland, should do homage to the king of England, and his successors for the realme of Scot> land. In this two and thirtith years, as witnesseth the French theonicles, fir Kobert Buoiles, James Dipe, Anno Reg. 33. and one Thomlin Foulke, with other capiteins and men of warre as fouldiours to the king of Panarre byon the tenth day of Warch earlie in the morning France. scaled the walles of the citie of Aurerre, and behav ued them so mansullie, that they were mailters of the towne before the funne was up. They got ercee, ding much by the spotle of that citie, and by ransom ing the paloners which they toke there. At length af. Thectic of ter they had remained eight daies in that citie, and by fir Robert taken their pleasures of all things within it, they knows. wrought to with the citizens, that to have possession of their citie againe, and to have it faued from fire, they agreed to give to fir Kobert lanolles, and to his companie, fiftie thousand motons of gold, which a mounted to the fumme of twelve thouland and five hundled pounds Aerling of there about; and yet was 40 it agræd, that the Englishmen should burne the gates, and theolo downe the walles in divers places. In Apaill next infuing, the towne of Daubignie fir le Detre was likewise wone by the Englishmen; and the second date of Pate Chastelon fir Loigné Danbignic fir was taken by the faid fir Robert Anolles, and put to le Weire. fache as the other were. From thence they went to Pewcastell bpon Loire . Thus did the English bpen Loire.

hillogie of France you may read more at large. In this meane while there was talke of peace be. Cake of a twirt the king of England, and the king of France, peace, and arand articles thereof drawne in this forme, that the brawne. whole countries of Galcoine, Buien, Poicou, Tous Caxton. raine, Saindonge, Diergourd, Quercie, Limolin, Angolifinois, Calis, Guines, Bullogne, and Ponthieu. Mould remaine to the king of England wholie over spaces Habell, mother buts hing Coward the 60 without doing homage or paieng anic relate for the fame : but on the other part, he Mould renounce all his right, which he might by anie manner of meane claime to the countries of Pozmandie, Aniou, 03 Haine . And further, that the French king thould paie a certeine fumme of monie for his ransome, and men and other, in title of the la. of Panarre, greatlie indamage the realme of France, dailie winning

ing the countries in most miscrable wife, as in the deliver sufficient pledges for the same, and so depart into France. These articles were sent over into France, that the thic states there might confirme them, thich they refused to do. Therebpon when the truce ended, the warres were againe renined. The king helothis piere the feath of S. Seorge at Winds for, in more fumptuous manner than ener it had bone kept before.

In the fame years also, frier John Lifte bishop of Thom Walk Dout.

Annales de

Acmeallell.

; i. Designation:

Follower,

The billion

Clie being as he twhe it) fomethat wronged by the lavic Planch de Wake, and other that were of hir counsell, then the last yeare against the kings will unto the popes court, where erhibiting his complaint, he caused the pope to ercommunicate all his aductfaries, fending to the bilhop of Lincolne and o ther of the cleargie, that if they know any of them lo excommunicated to be dead and buried, they should draw them out of their graves: which was done.

And bicause some of those that were ercommunicas 10 ted were of the kings councell, the king take such displeasure therewith, that he greenouslie disquieted the piclats. Therebpon there were fent from the court of Rome on the behalfe of the bishop of Clie, certeine persons, which being armed, met the bishop of Rochester load treasuroz, delivering to him letters from the pope, the contents of the which were not knowen, and forthwith they thranke awaie: but the kings fernants made fuch purfate after them, that kings tuffices, opon their arreignement they were

Such as de: intered the popen lettern hanged.

Discord bemigt prielts andfriers.

Th. Walfing. John of Gant marrico.

1359 Anno Reg. 33.

minnfore ca= ftell repared. Woditions to Triner.

21 folemne ults at London.

Caxton. his foure fons are of the chalengers part.

The French B. remoneb. De departed fra Dertfozo the 29 of Tuite. Polydor, condemned, and suffered death on the gallowes. Great discord rose also about this time, or rather afore, betweet the cleargie, and the foure orders of friers, as in the boke of acts & monuments let footh by maffer John Fox ye may read more at large. In this yeare John of Gant earle of Richmond, fonne to the tring, the nineteenth day of space married the lavic Blanch daughter to Henrie duke of Lancafter at Reading; and bicaule they were couling with 30 in the degrees of confanguinitie, forbidden by the durch lawes to marrie, a dispensation was procured of the pope to remove that obliacle and let . In this peare the king fet workemen in hand to take bowne much old bildings belonging to the castell of Wind fore, and caused diverse other faire and sumptuous two his to be created and let bp, in and about the fame casell, so that almost all the masons and carpenters that were of any accompt within this land, were fent for and imploied about the same works, the overfeer 40 thereof was William Wickham the kings thaplein, by those admise the king twke in hand to repare that place, the rather in deed bicause he was borne there, and therefore he toke great pleasure to bessow coll in beautifieng it with fuch buildings, as may appeare even buto this daie. Worcover, this peare in the Rogation wake was folemne tuffs enterpifed at London, for the major and his foure and twentie brethien as challengers did appoint to answer all commers, in whose name and freed the king with his 50 foure fonnes, Colvard, Lionell, John, and Comund, The U. with and ninetæne other great loods, in fecret manner came and held the field with homoz, to the great pleas fure of the citizens that beheld the fame. The have heard how the Frenchmen refused the peace, which was accorded betwirt to. Coward & their king, as then puloner here in England. Therupo k. Coward octermined to make such warre against the realme of France, that the Frenchmen with all their harts should be glad to condescend and agree to reason: and 60 first he commanded all manner of Frenchmen (other than fuch as were patieners) to audio out of England. He also appointed the French king to be removed from the castell of Pertford, where he then remained, buto the castell of Somerton in Lincolnes thire, buder the gard and conduct of the loca Willis am Deincourt, being allowed fourtie Millings the day for the wages of two and twentie men at armes, twentie orchers, tivo watchmen: as thus, for himfelfe and fir John Licketon baronets, either of them foure fullings the vaic; for the knights, fir William Collevill (m place of the loed Robert Collevill, that could not travell himselfe by reason of sicknesse) fir John Deincourt, and fir Sacr de Rochfost, ech of them two thillings the daie; feuentiene efquiers eth of them twelne pence the day, eight arthers on horac backe enerie of them fir pence the day, and twelve ardiers on for the pence, and the two watdimen cla ther of them fix pence the day, which amounteth in the thole but o nine and thirtie thillings the day; and the od twelve perce was allowed to the faid losd Dein court to make by the fumme of 40 thillings. This have I noted the rather, to give a light to the reader to confider how chargeable the reteining of men of war in these daies is, in respect of the former times. Wat now to our purpole.

The hing meaning to palle ouer himselfe in per- The be fon into France, caused a mightie armie to be mut topic for into grance, controlle, and font before him the maken, duke of Lancaster over to Calis with foure hun franc died speares, and two thousand arthers, where the Frontier faid dake isined with fuch firangers as were alread Themse die come to Calis in great numbers, and togither Lancalia fonce of them they twike, and bringing them before the 20 with them entered into the French dominions, and palling by faint Dmers & Bethune, came to Dount faint Cloie, a goodie abbeie and a rich, two leagues distant from Arras, and there the host farried foure vaics, and then they had robbed and wasted all the British countrie thereabout, they rode to Braie, and there faulto, made a great affault, at the which a baronet of Eng. land was flaine with diverse other. When the Englithmen falv they could win nothing there, they departed, and following the water of Some, came to a towns called Cherlie, where they palled the river, and there farried Alballowen daie, the night following,

On the same date the duke of Lancaster was ad The bings uertised, that the king was arrived at Calis the fer armalia uenteenth daie of Daober, commanding him bolet Calis. ters to draw towards him with all his companie. The duke according to the kings commandement of Froiffact beied, and fo returned toward Calis. The king being there arrived with all his power, twke counsell which way he Mould take. Some adulted him first to inuade Flanders, and to revenge the infurious dealing Polylon of the earle and the Flemings: but he would not a: gree to that motion, for he purposed fullie either by plaine force to make a conquell of France, or elle bt terlie to destroie and wast the countrie throughout with fier and floord. Herebyon he fet forwards the fourth of Pouember, and patting through the countries of Arthois, and Mermendois, he came before the citie of Reimes. There went over with him in this fournie, with the duke of Lancaster, his foure Froifield fonnes, Edward prince of Wales, Lionell earle of Ulffer, John earle of Richmond, and the lood Co mund his yongest sonne. Also there was Denric the faid duke of Lancaster, with the earles of Parch, Warwike, Suffolke, Hereford (who also was earle of Porthampton) Salisburie, Stafford, and Drford, the bithops of Lincolne, and Durham, and the loods Percie, Penill, Spenfer, Kirdiffon, Koffe, Pannic, Cobham, Dolubray, de la Ware, Willoughbie, Felton, Ballet, Fitz Mater, Charleton, Andelie, Bur walch, and others, belide knights and elquiers, as lir John Chandois, sir Stephan Coustanton, sir Powell Lozing, fir Hugh Hallings, fir John Liffe, fir Uv thard Dembruge, and others.

The fiege was late before Keimes about faint An Komes & drewes tive, and continued more than feuen weekes: figid. but the citie was so well defended by the bishop and the earle of Poecien, and other capiteins within it, that the Englishmen could not obteine their pur pose, and so at length, when they could not have so: rage not other necessarie things absoad in the count trie for to ferue their turne, the king raised his field, and departed with his armic in good order of battell, taking the way through Champaigne, and so passed by Chaalons, and after to Operic on the river of

Seine.

a onnere

Guillon.

winchellie

french.

Anno Reg. 14. Seine. From Werle he departed and came unto Connere, which towne about the beginning of the foure and thirtith yeare of his reigne was wone by affault, but the castell could not be wome, for there was within it the lood ftennes confable of france, and a great number of other god men of war, which defended it valiantlie.

Affer the king had reffed there flue dates, and that his men were well refreshed with the wines and other fuch things, which they found in that towne 10 in god plentie, he remoued and drew towards Buc. gognie, comming to a towne called Guillon or A. quillon, there he lay from Athwednesday onto Diolent, having god provition of all maner of bittels by the means of an elquier of his called John Alanson. which had taken the towne of Flauignic not farre thence, wherein was great floze of bread and wine and other vittels: and fill the marthals rode forth, and offentimes refreshed the host with new promise on. The Englishmen had with them in their carria, 20 ges, tents, pauillions, milles, ouens, and forges; also boates of leather cumninglie made and deutled, able to receive themmen a piece, and to palle them over The number waters and rivers. They had at the least fir thousand diarriages, carts with them, and for everie cart foure horfes with they had out of England.

In this meane while, the Frenchmen made certeine bessels fouth to the sea, boder the gouernance of the earle of S. Paule, the which opon the fifteenth AdMerimuch. chellie, and before funne rifing entred the towne, and finding the inhabitants unprovided to make anie great relistance, fell to and sacked the houses, slue manie men, women and also children, and after set fier on the towne; and boon knowledge had that the people of the countrie next adjoining were affems bled, and comming to the rescue, he caused his men to draw to their thips, and so they taking their pillage and spoile with them, got them about, not without towns by such as resisted their violence. Whilest the king laie at Aguillon, there came to him Anscaume be Salilans chancelloz of Burgognie, Zaques de 3 Compositio Tienne, and other loads of the countrie, being sent mide to spare from their duke, to agree with the king for the spars throughed ing of the lambs and seignsozies apperteining to the duchie of Burgognie.

The chancelloz, and the other Burgognian lozos found the king so agreeable to their request, that a composition was made betweet him and the countrie of Burgognie, so that he Mould make to them an finks hath affurance for him, and all his people, not to ouerrun les Annales of indamage that countrie, during the space of thee dt Burgognie. Yeares, and he to have in readie monte the fumme of two hundred thousand florens of gold, which of stertwo dunoses about the famme of five and thire and thire and the state of the famme of the and thire and the state of the famme of the state of the s Harethto tie thouland pounds. When this agreement was insale paris groued by in writing, and lealed, the king dillodged, and all his hoff, taking the right waie to Paris, and and at length by easie fournies, bpon a tuesdate being the last of Parch in the weeke before Caster, he came and lodged betweene Mont le Perie, and Chartres, with his people in the countrie there as bouts.

> Here the duke of Pozmandie made meanes for a treatie of peace, which was laboured by a frier called Simon de Langres prouinciall of the friers Jacobins and the popes legat: he did so much, that a treat tie was appointed to be holden on good fridaie in the Malcderie of Longegimew, there appeared for the king of England the dake of Lancaster, the erls of Marwike and Posthampton, with fir John Cambois, fir Walter de Mannie, and fir William

Cheinie knights: and for the French king thither came the earle of Eu constable of France, and the marshall Bouciquant, with other; but their treatie came to none effect: wherfore the king upon the tuck date in the Caffer weeke remourd neerer buto Bar ris, and bpon the fridate following, being the tenth of Appill, by procurement of the abbat of Cluanie newlie come from pope Innocent the firt, the fores faid commissioners essones did meet to treat of an agreement, but nothing they could conclude, the parties in their offers and demands were so farre

Tipon the lundaic nert following, a part of the English as holte came before the cifie of Paris, and immen before kings hofte came before the citie of Paris, and im Paris. battelled themselves in a field fall by faint Parrile les, abiding there fro morning till them of the clocke in the after none, to lie if the Frenchmen would come forth to give battell: but the French would not take of that vellell. For the duke of Pormandie (well confidering that loss had insucd within few yeares past unto the realme of France, by giving battell to the Englishmen, and taught by late triall and fæling of imart to dread imminent danger, for Pulneribus didicit miles habere metum) would not lufter anie of his people to iffue forth of the gates, but commanded them to be readie onelie to defend the walles and gates, although he had a great power of men of warre within the citie, befive the huge multitude of the inhabitants. The English Polydor, Canon. Date of Parch landed earlie in the morning at Win 30 men to provoke their entinies the somer to faile forth, The subburnt diverse parts of the suburbs, and rode cuen to urbso Pars the gates of the citie. Althen they perceived that the risburnt. Frenchmen would not come fouth, about thee of the clocke in the afternome they departed out of the field and withozew to their campe, and then the hing and all the English host removed towards Chartres, and was lodged at a place called Dones . Thither Froiffard. came to him the bishop of Beaunois then chancelloz The bishop of Pozmandie, with other, and to hundled the mat, of Beaucois fome lotte of their companie, which were flaine in the 40 ter with him, that a new date of treatie was appoint ted to be holden at Bretignie, which is little more than a mile distant from Chartres, upon the first day of Paie nert inluing.

In which daic and place appointed, the forefate duke of Lancaster, and the said earles and other commis Coners met with the Card bilhop, and other French loods and spirituall men to him affociate, on the be- A new treatie halfe of the duke of Pozmandie then regent of France, to renew the former communication of peace, in full hope to being it to a good conclusion; bis caule king Coward began to frame his imagination more to accord with his adversaries, than he had done of late, chefelie for that the duke of Lancaster with courteous woods and lage persuasions, adulted The duke of him not to for fake luch reasonable conditions as the fuabeth the Frenchmen were contented now to agrie buto, fith king to agrie. that by making such manner of warre as he had attempted, his fouldiers onelie gained, and he him felfe loft but time, and confumed his treasurer and further palling the river of Ponne, entered into Talkinois, 60 he might warre in this lost all the dates of his life, be fore he could atteine to his intent, and lose perhaps in one date moze than he had gained in twentie peares.

Such words spoken for the wealth of the king and his lubicas, converted the kings mind to fanlie peace, namelie by the grace of the Holie-ghoff chafe worker in this cale. For it chanced on a daie, as he was marching not farre from Chartres, there came Anhibeous fuch a fforme and tempest of thunder, lightening, storme & teme halle and raine, as the like had neuer beene feine by pett of wether anie of the English people. This storme fell so hide. ous in the kings holf, that it fremed the world thould have ended: for fuch bureasonable great stones of haile fell from the skie, that men and horses were

Do.iy.

Claine

B quarie.

Froiffard

394

flaine therewitt, so that the most harvie were abathed. There pertifico thoulands thereby, as some have witten. Then the king remembring what reasona. ble offers of agreement he had refused, bpon remoste of conscience (as by some writers thould appeare) as ked forgivenesse of the damage done by sword and fire in those parts, and fullie octermined to grant bns to indifferent articles of peace, for relate of the that Man inhabitants of that land; and fo Mostlie after, by the god diligence of the commissioners on both 1 parts, an unitie and finall peace was accorded, the conditions whereof were compiled in fortie and one articles, the chiefe whereof in effect were these.

20 peace con-

claped.

The articles. Froillard.

I First that the king of England should have and entop (ouer and beside that which he held alreadie in Salcoigne and Suien)the castell, citie, and countie of Pointers, and all the lands and countrie of Pointon, with the fee of Touars, and the lands of Belleville; the citie and castell of Xainces, and all the lands and countric of Xaondonge on both fives the river of 20 Charent, with the towne and fortreile of Rochell, with their apportenances; the citie and castell of A. gent, and the countrie of Agenois; the citie and car fell of Piergozt, and all the land and countrie of Per rigueur, the citie and castell of Limoges, and all the lands and countrie of Limolin; the citie and callell of Cahoes, and the loodlyip of Cahoelin; the callell and countrie of Tarbe; the lands countrie and countie of Bigoire; the countie, countrie, and lands of Baure; the citie and castell of Angolesme; and the countie, 30 land, and countrie of Angolefmois; the citie, towne and castell of Rodair; and all the countie, and countrie of Rouerane; and if there were in the durite of Buten anvloads, as the earles of Foiz, Arminacke, Lifte, and Perigueur, the vicounts of Carmain, and Limoges, or other holding any lands within the forefaid bounds, it was accorded that they thould do ho mage and other customarie services due for the same unto the king of England. the appurtenances, the lands of Pontrevill on the fea with the countie of Ponthicu, wholie and entirelie thould remaine buto the king of England. All the which countries cities, townes, and castels, with the other lands and feigniories, the fame king thould have and hold to him and his heires for ever, even as they were in demaine or fee, immediatlic of God, and fre without recognizing any maner fouercingtie to any earthlie man. In confideration thereof, king Colvard renounced all fuch claimes, titles and inter 50 rest as he pretended buto any part of France, other than such as were compated within the charter of coucnants of this peace first agreed byon at Bectignie aforefaid, and after confirmed at Calis, as appeareth by the same charter dated there the source a twentith date of Daober, in the peare of our Load 1360.

Komages and

The date of the charter of the peace.

The French Chould paie buto the king of England thirtie hunkings ran= fome.

holtagen.

deed thousand crownes in name of his ransome for covenants afore mentioned, and other agreed byon by this peace, the dukes of Deleance, Anion, Berrie, and Burbon, with diverse other honozable personaacs, as earles, loods, and burgeffes of everie and towne, some were appointed to be fent ouer hither into England to remaine as hoftages.

It was also cournanted, that the French king

The French not to aid the Drota.

4 It was further agreed, that neither the French king norhis fucceffors thould aid the Scots againff the king of England or his fuccestors; nor that king Coward not his heirs kings of England Gould aid the Flemings against the crowne of France.

25 utaine.

And as for the title or right of the outhie of Bris taine, which was in question betweene the earles of 13 lois and Pountfort, it was accorded, that both kings being at Calis, the parties hould be called before them, and if the two kings could not make them frænds, then thould they affigne certeine indifferent perfore to agree them, and they to have halfe a yeares respit to end the matter: and if within that terme those that thould be so appointed to agree them, could not take by the matter betwirt the faid earles, then either of them might make the best purchase for him. felfe that he could, by helpe of frænds, og otherwise: but alwaies provided, that neither of the kings nor their formes thoulo fo aid the faid earles, whereby the peace accorded betwirt England and France, might by any meanes be broken or infringed. Alfo, to tibes ther of the faid earles the duchie of Britaine in the end chanced to fall by fentence of judges, or other, wife, the homage thould be done for the same buto the French king.

All these ordinances, articles and agreements, with manie mo (which here would be to long to rehearle) were accorded and ratified by the infiruments and feales of the prince of Wales on the one part, and of the duke of Pozmandic regent of France on the o ther part, as by their letters patents then fealed further appeared, bearing date, the one at Loures in Pozmandie the firteenth date of Paie in the yeare of Grace 1 360, and the other at Paris the tenth day of the fame moneth, and in the yeare aforefaid. De uer & befide this, both the faid princes twhe on them a folemne oth, to fee all the fame articles and conce nants of agreement throughlie kept, mainteined and performed. This done, king Coward imbarked him felfe with his foure sonnes and the most part of his The him: nobles at Hundeu the twentith daic of Paie, and fo Englants failed into England, leaving behind him the earle of turnething Warwike to have the government of all the men warmis, of warre which he left behind him, either in Saien o, in any other place on that fide the fea.

There died in this fournie diverse noble men of Tho. Walking this land, as the earles of Parch and Drfood, the lood The fin 2 It was also agreed, that Calis and Guines, with 40 John Graie then fleward of England, and the look king gent Beffrie de Saie, with diverle other. The eight of Ju- uer to Ca lie nert infuing, the French king having licence to depart, landed at Talis, and was lodged in the castell there, abiding till the king of England came thither, which was not till the ninth day of Daober nert af ter. On the foure and twentith date of Daober, both The bings the kings being in two traverles and one chamell at recentable Calis, a made was faid before them, and then they temneous thould have killed the par, either of them in signe of fathe par greater frændship killed the other, & there they were performed folemnelie swozne to mainteine the articles of the same peace; and for more affurance thereof, manie loads of both parts were likewise swoone to mainteine the same articles to the ottermost of their powers. Whilest these kings late thus at Calis, there was great banketting and chere made betwirt them.

Also the duke of Posmandie came from Bul The was longne to Calis, to bilit his father, and to lethe hing Popmania affurance of which patment, sperformance of all the 60 of England, in which means time two of king Co wards somes were at Bullongne. Finallie, when thefe two kings had finished all matters in so god order and forme that the same could not be amended nor corrected, and that the French king had delivered his holfages to the king of England, that is to faic, Ar dukes, befide earles, loads, and other honogable personages, in all to the number of eight and thirtic: on the morrow after the taking of their oths, that is The more to faic on the five and twentith daie of October, ber of the first ingline of Acober, ber of the first ing lundaie, the French king was frelie delivered, holists and the favorage before and the fame date before none he departed from Car lis, and rode to Bullongue. The king of England brought him a mile foreward on his waie, and then twhe leave of him in most louing maner. The prince atten:

attended him to Bullongne, where both he and the pulie of Poplinandie with other were efflons fwozne to hold and mainteine the forefaid peace without all fraud of colourable decest : and this done, the prince returned to Calis. Thus was the French king fet at libertie, after he had beene pailoner here in Eng. lanothe space of foure yeares, and as much as from theninetænth daie of September, onto the fine and twentith of October . When the king of England had finished his businesse at Calis, according to his mind, he returned into England, and came to Lons don the ninth date of Pouember.

Chus have ye hard the originall begining, the procoffe, and iffue of fundrie conflicts and battels, and speciallie of two, one of John the French king bu luckilie attempted against England; the other of Daulo the Scotish king as bufortunatlie enden. for both kings were suboued in fight, vanquishes, and taken puloners; with a great number of their noslemen, whereas they were in hope to have gone 20 awaie with the conquest, and to have had renowne for their reward. Of which ouerthrow given to both thefe kings, with the elemencie of king Coward(in whose hunds though their lives lair to be disposed as he lift, yet he was so far from violating the fame, that he thewed himselse a wonderfull fanourer of their effaires, and in fine not onelie put them to their reasonable ransoms, but restored them to their rotals ties, from the which their finister lot had deposed them Christopher Okland hath left this remembero:

Plantageneta duos regesiam illustris babebas Cuptinos tenuit comites custodia mitis Multos ambabus claro regionibus ortos Sanguine, quos seus bello cepere Britanni. Attamen Eduardi viguit clementia regia Tanta, tanta animo virtus innata sedebat, Vt pretio or pacto dimitteret are redemptos Inpatriam ad proprie confunctionitatis amicos.

In this foure and thirtith yeare of king Coward, men and cattell were destroicd in diverse places of this realme, by lightening and tempest; also houses were fet on fier and burnt, and manie Arange and immoerfull fights fæne. The fame peare Coward prince of Wales married the counteste of Bent, which before was wife buto the load Thomas Hole land: and before that, the was also wife but o the erle of Salifburie, and divosfed from him, and wedded to the fame lood Holland. She was daughter buto Co mund carle of Bent, brother to king Coward the fee cond, that was beheaved in the beginning of this lungs reigne, as before per haue heard. And bicause the prince and thee were within degrees of confair guinitie forbioden to marrie, a dispensation was gotten from the pope to remove that let . In this agree death, peare also was a great death of people (namelic of men for women were not so much subject thereto.) This was called the fecond mortalitie, bicause it was the fecond that fell in this kings dates.

This yeare also by the death of Richard fitz Rafe plimat of Aromach, that departed this life in the Francisco court of Kome; and also of Richard Kilminton des 60 ceased here in England, the discord that had continued for the space of them or foure yeares between them of the cleargic on the one part, and the foure ozbers of friers on the other part, was now quieted and brought to end. Poseover, this yeare appeared two casels in the aire, of the which the one appeared in the butterall, and the other in the bouthwest, out of in the loutheast, and the other in the component, succeeding thick castels about the hours of none sundictimes livere fiene hoffs of armed men (as appeared to mans Were fone hotes of armed mentaperson light) issuing fouth, and that host thich failed out of the castell in the foutheast sæmed white, and the other blacke. They ameared as they hould have fought either against other, and first the white had the opper h mo, and affer was overcome, and to vanifhed out of fight.

About the same time, the souldiers which were discharged in France and out of wages, by the breat Froisfard. king by of the warres, affembled togither, and did much hurt in that realme as in the French histories pæ may read. Their chefe leavers were Englishmen and Galcolgnes lubicas to the hing of England. Anno Reg. 35. The king affembled the frates of his realme in par. A parlement, lement at Wellminter in the feast of the Convertion of S. Paule, and there was declared binto them the tenoz and whole effect of the peace concluded betwirt England and France, where with they were Canton greatlie pleased, and herebpon the nobles of the realme, and fuch Frenchmen as were hollages, came togither at Westminster durch on the first sundaie of Lent nert following: and there fuch as were not alreadie swozne, received the oth for performance of the fame peace, in a right folenme manner, having the tensur of their oths written in certeine fcrols; and after they had taken theiroths byon the facrament and made boke, they delivered the fame fcrols buto certeine notaries appointed to receive and regiffer the fame.

The mortalitie pet during, that noble buke Denrie of Lancaster departed this life on the ceuen of the Annunciation of our ladie, and was buried at Leicester. AJohn of Gant the fourth son to the king, tho had married his daughter the ladie Wlanch, as before per have heard, succeeded him in that dutchie as his heire in right of the faid ladie. The fame peere Tho. Wall. also died the load Reginold Cobham, the load Walter Adam Merimuth. fits Marren, and the bilhops, Mozeeffer, London, and Elie. This yeare boon the fifteenth day of Janurie there rose such a passing wind, that the like had Caxion. not bene heard of in manie percs before. It began about evenlong time in the fouth, and that with fuch a mightic force, that it overthrew and blew downe frong and wind. mightie buildings, as towers, freples, houles and chimnies. This outragious wind continued thus for the space of sir or leaven daies, thereby even those buildings that were not outriheowne and becken downe, were yet so chaken, that they without repar ring were not able long to fland. After this followed Anno Reg. 36. a verie wet lealon, namelie in the lummer time and harnest, so that much come and hair was lost and fpoiled, for want of featonable weather to gather in the fame. The load Lionell the kings sonne went over into Ireland, to be deputie to his father there, and was created duke of Clarence, and his brother Comund was created earle of Cambridge ; also Edward Creations of prince of Wales was by his father king Coward tie kings inuested duke of Guien, and did homage butchis founcs to befather for the fame, in like manner and forme as his gres of noncy father and other kings of England were accustomed Hen. Marle. to do for the laid dutchie to the kings of France. And afterwards about the featt of Canelemalle nert infuing, the fate prince failed into Balcoigne, and arriv ued at Burdeaur, taking opon him the government and rule of the countrie. Dozeouer this peare, the fine The prince of first dates of Paie, were kept rotall fulls in Smith, wales palleth field by London, the king and quene being prefent, Guer into with a great multitude of the nobles and gentlemen Thom, Walf. of both the realms of England and France; at which Abditions to time came bither Spaniards, Cipitots, and Arment, Ad. Meria. ans, requiring alt of the king against the infloels, Sauthfield. that fore molefted their confines. The flaple of wols The Staple was this yeare removed to Calis.

Also the firteenth of October, a parlement began, tied to Calis, that was called at CAestminster, which continued A parlement. till the feast date of S. Brice, on which date, the king at that time fiftie peares then paff, was borne; where, byon, as it were in the yeare of his tubile, he she wed of fronte remos

ine Edmards, 3

Strange

Sa Marl.

3 pardon.

2 Chatute a= gainst puro uciers.

3 fublide.

Lawiersto

plead their

Baci miema:

leffons in English.

glifh. Caxton, king, the quiene, and bukes onelie ercepted, thould have any purveters of vittels, not thould take by as ny thing without readic paintent, and those that from thencefooth did contrarie to this ordinance, Chould be extremelie punished. There was granted to the king in this parlement fir and twentie thile 1 lings eight pence of everie facke of woll that was to be transported over the sea, for three yeares nert Furthermoze, at the fute of the commons it was ordeined and established by an act in this parlement deutled, that men of law thould plead their causes, himselse more gratious to his prople, granting par-bon to offendors, and revoking outlawes. Porcover, it was ordeined in this parlement, that no maner of person, of what estate or vegra socier he was, the and write their actions and plaints in the English tong, and not in the French, as they had beene accur Comed to do, cuer fince the Conqueross time. It ca com En= was ordeined also, that scholemasters should teach 2 their scholers to construc their lessons in English, & fters to teach not in French, as before they had beine vico. The is. thewed to much curtefie to the French hostages, that conftrue their he permitted them to go ouer to Calis, and there being nere home, to purchase frienothip, by oft calling on their frends for their deliverance. They were fuffered to ride to and fro about the marches of Calis, for the space of sourc dates togither, so that on the fourth date before funne fetting, they returned into Talis againe. The duke of Aniou turning this liber, 30 losd Charles of Wols was that valiant knight fir tie to serue his owne turne, departed from thence, and went home into France, without making his fellowes privie to his purpole.

1262 Thom.Walf.

Additions to Adam Merimuch. raic against cofflic appa= reli.

Thick kings noda enaig bulin: le with M. Edwaro.

Anno, Reg.38.

the French king,

Fabian.

This yeare a parlement was called by the king. Anno Reg. 37. Which began the ninth of Datober, from the Which none of the noble men could obteine licence to be ab. fent. In this parlement all rich opnaments of gold and filner vied to be worne in knives, girdels, outhes, rings, or otherwise, to the setting forth of the bodie, A flatute of as were prohibited, except to luch as might dispenden 40 thew Cournie. The third the earle of Mountfordhin pounds by yeare. Dozouer that none should weare as no rich clothes or furres, except they might difvend an hundred pounds by yeare. I Porcouer it was enacted, that labourers and hulbandmen Chould not ble any deintie dithes, or collie brinks at their tables. But these, and such other acts as were devised and e-Nablifhed at this parlement, twhe none effect, as ab ter it apeared. In this yeare, there came into Engcomeinto En land to speake with hing Coward concerning their France, the king of Scotland, the king of Cypics: they were honorablic received, and highlic feaffed.

The king of Scotland, and the king of Typies af ter they had dispatched their businesse for the which they came, turned backe againe; but the French king fell licke, and remained here till he died, as in the nert peare pe thall heare. Be arrived here in Eng. land, about the latter end of this yeare, and came to Eltham (where king Coward as then late) on the foure and twentith day of Januarie, and there dined. 60 After diner, he take his holle and rode toward London, and bpon Blacke heath, the citizens of London clad in one kind of liveric, and verie well horffed, met bim, and conucied him from thence through to London, to the Sanoy, where his lodging was prepared. About the beginning of Parch, in this eight and thire tith years, the forenamed French king fell into a The death of granous lickenelle, of the thich he died the eight day of Aprill following. His corps was conucied into France, and there buried at S. Denile : his erequies mere kept here in England in diverse places right folemuclic, by king Cowards amointment.

This yeare, by reason of an extreme sore frost, continuing from the fenen and twentith pay of Septeme ber last passed, buto the beginning of Appill, in this eight and thirtith peace (or rather from the feuenth day of December till the ninetenth day of Parchas Wallingham and other old writers do report) the ground late butilo, to the great hinderance and ground late unity, to the earth. This years loffe of all growing things on the earth. This years the before the eaffell of Aulrov, not on Pichaelmalle day, before the callell of Aulroy, not of Julia far diffant from the citie of Mannes in Bittaine, a fore battell was fought betwirt the lord Charles de Blois, and the load John of Mountfoad. For when there could be no end made betwirt thefe two loids, touching their title onto the ouchie of Britaine, they renewed the wars verie hotlie in that countrie, and Froidad procured all the aid they might from each fide. The king of France fent to the aid of his confine Charls de Blois a thouland speares; and the earle of Mount, ford fent into Balcoigne, requiring fir John Chandois, and other Englishmen there to come to his fuccour. Sir John Chandois gladlie confented to this request, and therebpon got licence of the prince, and came into Britaine, where he found the carle of Mountford at the flege of the foresaid castell of Aul rop. In the meane time, the losd Charles de Blois. being provided of men, and all things necessarie to give battell, came and lodged fast by his enimics.

The earle of Mountford advertised of his apport, by the adulc of fir John Chandois and other of his capteins, had chosen out a plot of ground to lodge in, and meant there to abide their enimies. With the Werthram de Cleaquin or Guesclin (as some write him) by whose adule there were ordeined three bate tels, and a reregard, and in each batteli were apoin That was ted a thouland of god fighting men. Dn the other fand andir part, the earle of Pountford divided his men like ing min. wife into thice battels and a reregard. The first was Wallington led by fir Robert Knols, fir Walter Dewet, and fir Richard Brulle or Burlie. The fecond by fir Dliner de Cliston, fir Custace Daubzeticourt, and fir Datfelfe guided, and with him was fir John Chandois al fociat, by whom he was much ruled : for the king of England, whose daughter the earle of Mountsod hould marie, had written to fir John Chancois, that he thould take good heed to the businesse of the said earle, and order the fame as lagelie as he might de uise or imagine.

In ech of these thee armies were flue hundred are med men, and foure hundred archers. In the reregard weightie affaires, the kings, to wit, the king of 50 were appointed fine hundred men of warre, under the gouernance of fir Hugh Taluerlie. Befide fir John Chandois, a other Englishmen recited by Froisfard, there was the lood William Latimer, as one of the thiefe on the earle of Mountfords side. There were not past sirteene hundzed goodfighting men on that side, as Thomas Walsingham plainelle writeth. Pow when the hofts were ordered on both lides (as before we have faid)they approched togither, the French men came close in their order of battell, and were to the number of five and tiventle hundred men of armes, after the manner of that age, belide others. Querie man had cut his speare (as then they bled, at what time they should some in battell) to the length of five fot, and a thost ar hanging at his five. At the first incounter, there was a soze battell, and trulie the archers that right flercelie, howbeit their that did litle burt to the Frenchmen, they were to well ar med and furnished: the archers perceiving that (be the first ing big men and light) cast awaie their bowes, and admitt entered in amongs the Frenchmen that bare the arcs, and plucked them out of their hands, wher with they fought after right hands. they fought after right hardlie. There was done may nie a noble feat of armes, manie taken, and receued againe.

Againa

gu (Jagh

Janutic.

Against the earle of Pointsons battell, sought the battell which the lood Charles de Blois ruled, and at the first, the earle of Pontfords part was fore oppressed, and brought out of order in such sort, that if fir Hugh Calucilie had not in time releved them, the loffe had runne on that five , but finallie fo long they fought, that all the battels affembled and toined each to other, creept the reregard of the English men, wereof (as is faid) fir Hugh Caluerlie was chafe. He kept alwates his battell on a wing, and i enersucconred where he faw need. At length, the Frenchmen not able to indure the valiant doings of their aducrfaries, began to breake. First the earle of Aurerres batell was discomfited, and put to flight, Therefore anothe falocarle fore wounded, and taken prisoner, but the battell of fir Wertheam de Cleaquin as pet flod manfallie at befense, howbeit at length the Englishmen perforce opened it, and then was the on Bartha faid fir Bertham taken paloner , binder the baumer Kekagam, of the John Chandois.

Herewith also, all the other battels of the French men and Britaines, on the part of the load Garles de Blois, were cleane discomfited, and put out of ars raie, so that fuch as relifted, and find at defense, were flaine and beaten bolune, and among fothers, the low Charles was there flains himfelie, and all other either taken or flaine, except those that escaped by light, amongst the which there were not manie of the nobilitie . Fox (as Thomas Walfingham faith) there were flaine about a thousand men of armes, 3 and there were taken two carles, seven and twentie lords, and fifteene hundred men of armes. The chafe was followed to the citie of Reimes, eight great leagues from the place where the battell began . Af. ter his vidorie, the earle of Pontford conquered munic tolunes and castels in Britaine, thereof the frenchking being advertised, sent his brother the dake of Anion, buto the wife of the lood Charles of Blois now deceased, to comfort hir in such an be thought expedient, untill further prouision might Shortlie after, there were fent unto the earle of finto baile Bontford, the archbiffiop of Reimes, the marshall of Pontique Description and the load of Cran, as commission ners, to commune with him of a finall agreement. The bringer Cherebpon, affer he had fignified the matter buto the king of England, and binderstood his pleasure therein, this treatie was so handled, that peace there neth of Appill nert infuing. This yeare (as fome have written)king Coward finished his warres op-Amo Reg 39. on S. Stephans Date, and began the foundation of S. Stephans chappell at Wellminster in memorie thereof, which chappell was afterwards finished by king Richard the second that succeeded him. In the nine and thirtith years of king Cowards reigns, and in the moneth of Februarie, in the citie of Angoles me, was borne the first some of prince Coward, and was namedatter his father, but he departed this life 60 the fenenth years of his age.

Also this yeare, the seven and swentith of Julie, Canemari Ingeram de Guines lood de Coucie a Frenchman, noticiting of married the ladie Flabell daughter to Li. Coward. The folemnization of the marriage feath was kept at Windler in most rotall and trium pant wife. The faid lood Concie was created earle of Bedfood, with an perclic annuitie of thirtie markes, going fouth of the illnes and profits of that countie, once and befive athousand marks by yeare, affigued to him and his faid wife, and to the heires male of their bodies begotten, to be paid forth of the exchecker. About this time, there was a treatic also for marriage to be had, compact the logo Comund carle of Cambridge, and the ladie Pargaret, daughter and heire to the earle of Flanders, which treatie went to far, that the earle came over to Dover, where the king was readie to receive him, and there the earle promifed by words of affiance, to give his faid daughter buto the faid lood Comund in marriage: and after that the earle had beene at Douer, the space of thee daics, palling the time in great folace and banketting, when he had finished his businesse, he returned backe againe o into his countrie.

Whilest the king was thus at Doner with the earle of Flanders, the lood Latimer came from the timer. loed John de Bontfoed, to understand his pleasure, fouching the offers that were made for peace, bpon whose returns with answer, the peace was conclubed as before we have heard. This yeare was Poter The bing of king of Castile chased out of his realme, by his bas Castile chased Mard boother Henrie, which was afted in that enter, out of his realme. prife by fir Berthram de Cleaquin latelie delinered, Froiffard. 20 and other Frenchmen; to that the faid Denrie was crowned at Burgus, opon Galler daie : wherefore the faid Peter was constrained to fle, and so came to Burdeaux to fue for aid at the hands of the prince of Wales. This yeare by the kings commandement, a refraint was ordeined, that Peter pence fould not be from thenceforth anie more gathered within this realine, not anie such paiment made at Kome, with had beene bled to be paid there, ever lince the daics of Ine, king of Wellfarous, which experies this pale Inching of ment toward the maintenance of a libole for Enge welltarong, lift scholers. But howfocuer this paiment was absogated at this time by king Colward, it was after renelwed againe, and the moniegathered in certeine thires of this realme, till the daies of king Henrie the eight, so greatlie pseuailed the blurped power of that bealf of Kome, which had poisoned the princes of the world with the dregs of his abhomination, whose glorie thall end in thame, his honor turne to horror, and his ambitious climing op aloft about all princis beaute case, and to take order for things as should 40 palitic (to be compare with God) shall have an irrea coverable ruine; as long agone, and of late like wife hath beene and now is prophetied of him, that he may readilie read his owne downefall into hell:

In rapidas acherontis aquas, qui gloria mundi Papa fuit,lapsu corruet ille graui : Corruet ve rapidum descendis ab athere fulmen, Corruet in flygios tempus in omne lacus.

In this yeare fell great abundance of raine in the Arainte time of hair harnest, so that much come and hair was barnete. of followed, and the parties were agreed in the mo. 50 loft. There was also luch fighting amongst spare Caxion. rowes in that feafon, that they were found dead on the ground in great numbers. Also, there followed great mortalitie of people, the ficknesse being so tharpe and behement, that manie being in perfect health oner night when they went to bed, were found dead in the morning. Also, manie died of the small pocks, both men, women, and children. 9 Poseouct this yeare, Simon Illep archbilhop of Canturburie departed this life, and Simon Langham bishop of Clie succeded in his place. This yeare at Burde, B. Bichard aur, was borne the fecond fonne of prince Coward named Richard, on the third date of Appill; his godfather at the fontitione was James B. of Paiothe. Peter the hing of Spaine, who (as pee haue heard) was expelled out of his realme by his ballard bio> ther, made such earness sute to the prince of Walcs for aid to be reffored home, that finallie the prince aduertifing his father king Coward of the whole matter, by adulte from him, actermined to bring home Froiffard, the faid king Peter, and to reffore him agains to his kingdome, by force of armes, in despite of all his adner faries.

The prince inded was berie defirous to take this enterpile byon him, both of a certeine pitifull affecThe caric of Flanders.

The lord Las Deter pence.

the fecond

Englands laughter.

combinations.

tion to relicue the miserable Cate of king Peter, and alloef an ardent defire which he had to purchale a glorious fame thorough martiall deeds, and noble ads of chualric. Therfore having this occasion to implote his time in fuch exercises, and now commans ded thereto of his father, he was ercedinglic glad in his mind, and with all speed that might be, made his provision both of a sufficient armie of men of warre, and also of all other things necessarie for the furniture of luch an enterpole; but first, he twhe god als 1 furance of king Peter, for the paiment of the foldiers wages : so the king left at Baionne thice of his daughters , Beatrice , Conffance, and Flabell as pleages, for performance of all the covenants agreed betwirt him and the prince.

1367

The prince fetreth for = Megattic. to Maunire.

Cheking of Dauarre ta-

Frenchmen.

Sir Martin

Saint Ma:

Che king of Spaine fen-beth to the chaule.

Dainec.

De Care.

Thus when the prince, by the adule and coun-Anno Reg. 4t. fell of fir John Chandois, and fir Robert Emols (by inhome he was much ruled) had taken direction in his businesse, for that his fournie into Spaine, in each condition as was thought behouefull, he with 2 the king of Spaine in his companie, passed forth with a pullant armie, and came to the freids of Koncevalle, at the entrie into Pavarre, and obter ning to much freenothip of the king of Pauarre, as Decentrations to have the passages of his countrie opened, they env tered into his realme through the fame, as freends, without finding any relistance. In this meane time, Benriching of Spaine, having knowledge that the prince of Wales was thus comming against him, to restozehis brother king Peter to his former de- 30 gre, by abuile of fir Berthjam de Cleaquin, got a great number of foldiers out of France, by whole aid he might the better defend himselfe against his e mimics.

Powit chanced, that whilest the prince of Wales was palling thorough Pauarre, toward the entrie of Spaine, certeine of those Frenchmen, buder the leas ding of fir Oliver Mannie, twhe the king of Pauarre pulsener, as he was riding from one towne to an other. Panie maruelled at that chance, and some 40 there were that thought he luffered himselfe to be taken for a cautele, bleanle he would not aid the prince of Calales any further, no: conduct him through his realme as he had promised to two. But the prince no thing difmaid herewith, passed forward, by the gut ding of a knight of Panarre, called fir Martin de Care, and finallic came to the confines of Spaine, and lodged at Ulaccia, not far from his enimies. For king Denrie of Spaine, understanding which waie the prince drew, came forward to incounter 50 him, and pight dolune his field, not far from the box ders of his realme, at a place called faint Buchaule: and thus were both the holis lodged within a finall di-

Chance the one against the other.

Bing Denrie had fent to the prince an herauld of armes with a letter, requiring to know of him for what cause he moved warre against him, sith he had neuer offended him. The prince taking deliberation for answer of this letter, kept the messenger with ward, but late fill at faint Huchaule, ffronglie in camped, he remoned from Tlicoria, and came to a towne called Cliana, where he flated two dates to refresh his people, and after went forward, and passed the river which divide th the realmes of Castile and Panarre, at the bridge of Groigne. Ling Henrie ad. nertifed hereof, departed from faint Duchaule, and came before the towns of Panacret, fituat on the famoriner . Pot manie dates before the prince pal fed the river at Groigne, king Henrie had fent fouth timo of his bietheen, the earle Dom Teille, and the lood Sanches, with fir hundred hooffemen, to view the princes boff.

They chanced to incounter two hundred English

bollemen, thom after long and tharpe fight Sep of Arelled, & fluc fir William Felton, one of the chiefe on leaders of those Englishmen, and toke fir Thomas Feltons felton bis brother, fir Dugh Dallings, and diverte home other, both knights and elquiers. Whether that king Henrie was greatlie incouraged by this god lucke in the beginning, or that he truffed through the great multitude of his people, which he had there with him, to have the oper hand of his entinies, true it is that he coneted fore to give them battell; and although he might have wearied the prince, and confireined him for want of bittels to have returned, or to have fought with him at some great advantage, if he had deferred the battell, as the marthall of France Dan bichen gaue counfell, yet he would needs fight in all the half, and therefore did thus approch his coimics.

The prince perceiving that his adversaric came forward to incounter him, dispatched the herauld with an answer to the letter which he had of him received, conteining in effect, that for great confiderat tions, he had taken bpon him to aid the rightfull it. of Spaine, chaled out of his realm by violent wrong, and that if it might be, he would gladie make an agræment betwirt them; conditionallie, that king Henrie of necessitie must then forsake the admini-Aration, and all the title of the kingdome of Spaine, which by no rightfull meane he could infoy, and there fore if he refused thus to do, he was for his part resolv wed how to proceed. The herauld departed with this answer, and came there with but o king Henrie, and delinered it buto him, as then lodged with his pull fant armie at Panarre, to that then both parties prepared themselves to battell.

The prince having with him thirtie thousand men The make of Englishmen, Balcoignes, and other Grangers, oy of the pun beined the battels, of the which, the first was led by arms. the duke of Lancaster, and with him was fir John The chat Chandois constable of Guien, fir William Beau tennos the champe fon to the earle of Warwike, the loso Dals fameaning bzet, fir Kichard Dangle, and fir Stephan Coufen ton, marthals of Buten, diverte other. The middle ward was governed by the prince, and with him was the forefaid Peter king of Spaine, and diverle other loads and knights of England, Policou, ando ther countries, as the vicounts of Chatelareault and Rochcoat, the loads of Partnie, Pinan, Taneboton, and others, fir Richard Pontchardon, fir Thomas Spenfer,fir John Grendon, and a great fozt moze, whose names it would be to long to rehearse. The rereward was binder the governance of the king of Halogques, with him were affociat the earls of Ar minacke, Dalbzeth, Piergozt, Bominges, the capi toll of Buetz, fir Robert Buols, and manie other ba liant loods, knights, and efquiers.

On the second day of Aprill, the prince with his battell thus ordered, removed from Groigne, and marching that day two leagues forward, came before Pauarret, and there toke his looging, within a small distance from his enimies, so that both parties him, and perceining that king Henrie came not for 60 prepared to give battell the next day in the morning, commanding that eucrie man at the founding of the first trumpet, should apparell themselves, that they might be readie byon the nert found to be fet in o:der of battell, and to go against their enimies. The Spaniards very earlie in the morning orew into the field, and ordeined three battels in this wife. The first was The com led by fir Werthzam de Cleaquin, wherein were all the prime the Frenchmen and other Crangers, to the number ation of foure thousand knights and esquiers, well armed and appointed, after the manner of France. In the lecond battell was the earle Dom Tielle, with his biother the lood Sanches, having with them fistence thousand men on fot, and on horsebacke. The third battell and the greatest of all was governed by king

Mideria. Miana.

Polydor.

The onke of

The capital!

Henrichtmeelfe, having in that battell seven thow fand horstemen, and threescore thousand fortmen, with croffebowes, barts, speares, lances, and other abilles Ebenimber ments of war: fo in all the battels he had foures Core and fir thouland men on hordebacke and on fot.

The prince of Wales, at the breaking of the date was readie in the field with his people arranged in order of battell, and advanced forward with them toward his enimies, an hosting pace; and as they pak fed a little hill, they might le as they were velcens ding downe the fame, their entinies comming like. wife towards them, in good order of battell . When they were approached neere togisher, and readie to some, the duke of Lancasters battell incountered with the battell of fir Bertham de Cleaquin, which tivo battels verie eagerlie affailed each other, to that there was betwirt them a fore conflict, and well continued. The erle Dom Teille, and his brother the lord Sanches, upon the first approach of the princes bat. tell towards them, fled out of the field, and with them 20 two thousand speares, so that the relidue of their bats tell were Mortlie after discomfited, for the capitall of Bu; otherwise Beuf, and the load Cliston, came bp. on them on fot, and flue and hurt manie of them, fo that they brake their arraie, and fled to faue them.

Mis chance discomforted the hearts of the Spaniards right foze, but pet king Denrie like a balfant gentleman came forward, and incouraged his men and well foughten a long time. For the Spaniards with flings cast stones in such fierce manner, that they clave there with manie an helmet and ballenet, but manie, and overtheew them to the earth. On the The archers, other part, the English archers that freshlie at their enimics, galled and flue the Spaniards, and brought them to great confusion : yet king Henrie nothing abathed herewith, wherefoeuer he perceived his men to theinke, thither he reforted, calling opon them, and outies, fothat by his diligence and manfull incom ragement, there that date did he faie his people.be. ing at point to give over, and let them in the faces of his enimies againe. Peither did the fouldiers alone manfullie behave themselves, but the caps my pater, teins also Coutlie late about them. Ling Peter like alion preffed forward, coueting to meet with his bros ther Penrie, that he might fæke his revenge on him with his owne hands. Crueil was the fight, and tried throughlie with most eger and fierce minds.

At length, when the Spaniards were no longer able to lufteine the force and violence of the English men, Salcoignes, & other which were there against them, they brake their arraie, and fled; so that neither the authoritie nor bold exhortation of king Penrie, could cause them to tarrie anie longer : wherebpon, then he saw himselfe forsaken of his people, and that few above with him to relift his enimes, he also to fave himselfe fled out of the field, being fullie persuaded, that if he had beine taken, no ransome 60 should have lauced his life . The battell that was bett fought, and longest held togisher, was that of the frangers, which fir Berthram de Cleaquin led . Hoz if the Spaniards had done halfe their parts as well as the Frenchmen, other in this battell, the matter had gone harder against the Englishmen than it did: yet finallie, by the noble courage of the duke of Lancaster, and the valiant proweste of sir John Chandois, fir Hugh Caluerlie, 4 others, the French men were put to flight, and their battell quite dis comfited. The flaughter in this battell was great, both of them that were flaine in the field, and of those that were distinct in the river that runneth by the towne of Panarret.

After that the battell was ended and that fuch as had followed the chale were returned, the prince caufed the fields to be fearthed, to understand what nums ber had beene flaine in the battell: they that were appointed to take the view, bpon their returns repos ted, that there was dead of men of armes five hun. Caine at this died and thielcore, and of commons about feauen battellat Pas thouland, and five hundred of the English part : there uarret. were laine of men of name, but foure knights, two Balcoignes, one Almaine, and the fourth an Enge liffman, and of other meane fouldiers, not past fortie (as Froiffard faith.) But others affirme, that there were flaine of the princes part about firtiene hundied; which should seeme to be more like a truth, if the Fabian. battell was fought to foze and ficrcelie, as Froiffard himselfe doth make report. Howbeit, there be that Caxton write, how the duke of Lancaster wan the field by great fortune and baliancie, per the prince came nere to his enimies. But howfoever it was, the Englishmen obteined the vidozie in this battell, fought on a faturbaic being the third of Apzill, in the yeare 1 3 67. There were taken palloners, to the Froisfard number of two thouland, and amongst them the erle of Dene, fir Berthram de Cleaguin, the marchall Dandzehen og Doenhen, and manie other men of Caxton.

After the battell, king Poter went to Burgus, and was received into the citie, and thoutlie after, that is to lay on the weonefoaie following, the prince all that he might, fo that there was a cruell battell, 30 came thither, and there held his Gaster with king Froistard, Peter, and tarried there about their weekes. In the meane time, they of Affurgus, Toledo, Lifbone, Co20 doua, Balice, Siuil, and of all other places of the kingdome of Spaine, came in, and did homage buto king Peter, promiting him to be true to him ever after: for they faw that reliffance would not availe to long as the prince Hould be in the countrie. After this, the prince was in hand with king Peter, for the fonloiers wages, by whose aid he was thus resto. erhosting them to remember their estimations and 40 red into his former estate. Ring Peter went unto Simill, to make thift for monie accordinglie, promie fing to returne againe, within a few weekes, and to fæ euerie man paid, according as he had cowenanted. For when he was orinen out of his realme, and came to Burdeaur to crave aid of the prince, he promiled, that so some as he thould be restored to his kingdome, he would for the fouldiers contented of their wages, and bound himfelfe thereto, both by his oth and writing given buder his feale. But when he obteined his purpose, he forgat all frændlie outie, and was lo farre from performing his promile, that he cloaked his ill meaning with a feigned tale, and fent the prince a mellage spiced with hypocrific and buthankfulnelle, two foule faults in a privat man, much more odious in a prince and great fate, as the poet wifelie and truelie faith in this diffiction:

Omne animi witium tantò conspectius in se Crimen habet, quanto maior qui peccat habetur.

The prince tarried for the returne of king Peter, both wakes and moneths, but could not heare anie tidings of him. He therefore fent buto him, to buders stand the cause of the state: his answer was, that he had provided monie, and fent it by certeine of his men toward the prince, but the companions that ferued binder the prince, had met with it by the way, and taken it from them that had the conveiance of it: he therefore required the prince to rid the realme of those snaphances, and to leave behind him some of his officers, to whome in name of him he would make paiment of fuch monie as was due. This and fiver pleased not the prince, but there was no remevie, for other at that present he could not have, for a nie likeliehoo he faw: and therefore, taking order with king Weter bow the paiment Mould be made,

farr:

. alicai

King Deterd Diffimulation.

he prepared to returne into Galcoigne. De order therefore taken betwirt them, was this. Within foure moneths nert infuing, king Peter Choulo paie the one halfe of the wages due to the foldiers for this tournie, buto such as the prince thould leave behind him to receive the fame, and the other halfe within

Tho. Walfi.

Che prince putto tis fufts for betault of paic.

The prince was compelled to breake his plate, and to make monie thereof to paie his foldiers, name, tie, the companions, which he had called fourth of 10 France, to that he left himfelfe bare of all riches, to kepe touch with them, although king Dampeter failed in his promise each waie forth. For where the prince thould have had in recompense towards his tharges, the countie of Algezara, and other lands, by the faid Dampeters affignement, fo that he fent one of his knights to take feizine of the same lands, he was nevertheles disapointed, for he could not come by any peaceable policition of those lands, and so returned greatlie imponerished, having spent in this tournic all that he could make. In the meane time the baffard Denrie, having escaped out of the field by flight, gothim into France, and there through fauor of the duke of Aniou, so purchased for himselfe, that he got togither a certeine number of Britains and o ther foldiers, t comming to the frontiers of the princes land in Galcoigne, got a towne in Bigoze, called Bannieres, and made war opon the princes fub-

The prince returneth into Galcoigne.

1368

Anno Reg. 42

3 blafing

Polychron.

Polydor.

Froisfard.

ftarre.

The prince obtaining pallage for himfelfe and his men, of the kings of Aragon and Pauarre, returs ned to Burdeaux, and then did the bastard Benrie forfake his garrifon at Bannieres, and went into Arragon, and there got the king of Arragons affifrance: & finallie, in the peare 1 369, returning into Spaine, recouered the kingdome, and flue his bio ther king Peter, as in the hillogie of Spaine it may apeare, which for that it apperteineth not to this his force of England, I do here paffe over. This yeare, in the moneth of Warch, appeared a blafing farre, bes 40 twirt the north and west, whose beames fretched to wards France as was then marked, threatning (as might be thought) that within a finall time after it thould againe be wrapped and let on fire with new troubles of warre, and even then, that countrie was not in quiet, but harried in diverse parts, by such soldiers as had beene with the prince in Spaine, a were now out of wages. The leavers of which people were for the more part Englithmen and Galcoignes, as fir Robert Briquet, fir John Trefmelle, Kobert Cenie, fir Gaollard Aigier, the bourge of Bertueill, the bourge Camois of Cominges, as Denise Sauage thinketh, the bourge of Lespare, Pandon or Pain don of Bargerant, Bernard de la Salle, Ditigo, Lamut, and manie other.

The buke of Clarence go= ethinto Ita=

The lable Cliolant,

In this 42 years of king Cowards reigns, his fecond fon the load Lionell duke of Clarence and earle of Aller passed the sea, with a noble companie of loods, knights, and gentlemen, and went thorough France into Lombardie, there to marrie the ladie 60 Miolant, daughter to the duke of Willane . De was honorablie received in all places where he came, and speciallie at Paris, by the dukes of Berrie and Burgognie, the load Coucie and other, the which brought him to the court, where he dined and suped with the king, and lodged within the palace. On the next day he was had to a place where the queene lodged, and dined with hir, and after was conneied to the court a. gaine, and super that night with the king, and on the morrow following, he toke his leave of the king and quene the which gave to him great gifts, and like. wife to the noble men of England that came oner with him, to the value of twentie thousand flozens and about he was connected from place to place, with certeine of the French nobilitie, till he came to the bozoers of the realine, and then entring into Sauvy, bus ween be came to Chamberic, where the carle of Sauoy tuning was readie to receive him, and there he remained Sauce foure daies, being highlie feasted amongst the ladies and damofels : and then he departed, and the earle of Sauop brought him to Millane, to do him the more bonoz, for his litter was mother to the bride, which the buke thould marrie.

ke thouse matric. To speake of the honorable recessing of him into the citie of Milane, and of the great feast, triump, his man and banketting, and that an affemblie there was in Willane of high flates, at the felemnizing of the mariage betwirthim and the faid ladie Afolant, it were Corona to long a procedle to remember. The gifts that the far hillogical ther of the bride, the load Galeas gave onto such ho. Anilance nozable personages as were there present, amounted in value to an inestimable summe. ¶ The wife ters of the Pillane histories affirme, that this marriage was celebrated on the fift enth date of June, in the yeare 1367, which being true, the same chanced in the 41 years of this kings reigns, and not in this 42 Ia. Mein. yeare, though other authors agree, that it was in the Froiled peare 1368. But to returne to other doings where Caron me left.

De have heard how the prince of Wales could get no monie of the king of Spaine, for the wages of his Froiffed men of warre, which he had reteined to ferue him in the reducing of the faid king home into his countrie: wherfore the prince having beine at great dar ges in that tournie, was neither able to fatifie them, no; mainteine his owne estate, without some great ato of his fubieds, and therefore he was counfelled to raile a subsidie called a fuage, through all the countrie of Aquitaine, to run onelie for the space of fine The pin peares. Lo this paiment, euerie chimnie of fire must walk confirmation fireindish haue bene contributozic, paieng yearely one franke, ombishi the rich to have borne out the pore. And to have this icas with paiment granted, all the frates of the countrie were fore fubility called togither at Piort. The Polaonins, and they of Faindonge, Limolin, Rouergne, and of Rockell, a Comenum greed to the princes requell, with condition, that he beinhamin thould keepe the course of his come Cable, for the margalation terme of leuen yeares.

But diverse of the other parts of Guien refused that ordinance, as the earles of Arminake, and Go minges, the vicount of Carmaigne, the lozds Dab bret, de la Barde, Cande, Pincornet, and dinerle o ther great barons: but pet to depart quietlie from the affemblie, they required a time to take better av uile, and fo they repairing into their countries, deter The des mined neither to returne againe according to their of this man promites, nor to lufter any fuage to run amonged the control of them at all, and were to much offended with the motive Galcoughts or, that they lought occasion forthwith to revolt from the find the English obelfance and fubmission, knowing that hing.

Pastores condere boni haud deglubere cultris villosum assuescunt pecus.

And therefore diverse loods of them went to the French king, and there exhibited into the chamber of the picres of France, their complaints of the gries tions impolitions & wrongs, which the prince went about to late open them, affirming that their relost ought of special outy to be to the crowne of France, and to the king there, as to their losd Peramount. The French king, who would not fæme to breake the peace betweene him and the king of England, dif sembled the matter, and told them that he would peruse the tenoz of the charters and letters of the peace, and so far footh as he might by permission of the fame, he would be glad to do them god. The earles of Arminake, Perigourd, Cominges, and the lord Dal buet, with other that were come thither about this matter, were contented with this answer, and lo

Mil.

An. Reg. 42, 43. Edward gaied in France, till they might bioertrand further, both of the French kings mind, and of the princes doings. This pere in Daober, was Simon Lang. ham archbithop of Canturburie elected to the dignitie of a cardinall, and then William Witlestie, bi. thop of Morceffer, was remoued buto the fee of Canturburie.

About the same time, the earle of faint Paule, one Streament Daule of the hoffages in England, Stale from hence, with out taking any leave, or fateng farewell. At his comming into France, he greatlie furthered the lute of the loads of Galcoigne, & finallie fo much was done on their behalfe, that the French king was conten-The punce of tea that the prince of Males thould be appealed, and water appear summoned to appeare before the French king as intrappeare, subge in that point, for reformation of the wrongs which he offered to them that had made their refort buto him, as reason was they should. This appeale was written, and dulic eramined.

> The tenor of the faid prince of Wales his appeale or summons of appearance be-fore the French king,&c.

aparles by the grace of God king of france, to our nephue the punce of Wales and Aquitaine, so it is, that distance hundred huncests uerle pielats, barons, knights, bniverlities, communalties, and colledges of the marches and limits of the countrie of Gascoigne, and the dwellers and inhabi= tants in the bounds of our realme, belides diverse other of the duchie of Aquitaine, are reforted, and come to our court, to have right of certeine græfes, and bulawfull troubles, which you, by bnaduiled counfell, and limple information, have purposed to dw buto them, whereof we greatlie mar= 40 uell. Therfoze, to withstand, and to redzesse fuch things, we are so consosned to them, that we have thought goo, by our rotall power, to command you to repaire to our citie of Paris, in proper person, and there to thew and prefent your felfe before by, in the chamber of our pæres, that you may be constrained to do right to your people, concerning the græfes which they alledge that you are about to oppielle them with, who claime to have their resort into our court: and that you faile not thus to do. mas spædie manner as yæ can, immediat= lie bpon the light and hearing of these prefent letters. In witnesse whereof, we have to the same let our seale. Leuen at Paris, the fine and twentith day of Januarie.

to beare and present to the prince, which according to that they had in charge, went to Burdeaux, and there getting licence to come before his prefence, they read the letters, where with he was not a little chafed, and Theprinces openlie told them for a plaine answer, that he meant to accomplish the French kings request, for his comming to Paris, but that thould be with his helmet on his head, and theefcose thousand armed men, to beare witnesse of his amearance. The messengers perceining the prince to be fore offended with their inestage, got them awaie, without taking their leave: but before they were passed the limits of the English dominion, they were kaied by commandement of the prince, and committed to prison, within the citie of Agen.

About the same time, the buke of Berrie returned The buke of into France, having licence of king Coward for an Berrie. whole peare; but he bare himselse so wiselie, that he returned not againe at all: for he excused himselfe. till time that the warre was open. In like manner, the more part of all the other hostages, by one meane or other were returned into France, and fome inded were delivered byon their ransomes, or other constderations, so that the French king being delivered of that obstacle, was the more readie to breake with the king of England, and therefore boon knowledge had of the princes answer, to those that he fent with the appeale, by fuch of the mellengers feruants as were returned, and declared how their maisters were delt with, he concertife prepared for the warre. The losd John Chandois, and other of the princes The losd councell forefaw what would infue of leavieng the fuage, and therefore counselled the prince, not to proceed any further in it. But he having onlie regard to the relate of his fouldiers and men of warre, would needs go forward with it. Indeed, if he might haue brought it to palle, as it was denied, that eue, rie houtholder thould have paid a franke for thimmis Chimniage. ace, the fumme would have growne to twelve hundied thousand frankes by the yeare, which had beene a great relæfe, and that made him the more carnett, bicause he might have beene able so to have paid his debts. Pow, when it was perceived certeinlie that open rebellion would therof infue, and that king Coward was certified of the whole flate of the matter, and how diverse of the loods of Aquitaine were with drawne buto the court of France, in manner as before ye have heard, he deviled a letter, which he caufed to be published through all the parts of Aquitaine the effect whereof was this; That where the people of A letter pubthat countrie found themselucs greeved for such ex. lished by the actions as were demanded of them, he meant there prince to apfore boon examination of their full complaints, to coignes. fe their wrongs redrelled. And further, he was contented to pardon all such as were withdrawne to the Frenchking, so that within a moneths space they would returne home; requiring them, that in no wife they Hould Airre anie feditious tumult, but to remember their oths of allegiance, and to continue in the same, according to their bounden duties; and as for him, he would be readie to fee them eafed, that would their by plaine profe how they had beine other wife growued than reason might beare. This was his meaning, and this was the adule of all his coun-cellours. But this courteous letter little anailed, for dailie the Balcoignes renolted from the prince, and furned to the French part . Dozeover, another occasion of Ia. Meir. grudge chanced to renew the malice betwirt the Is. of England, and the French king. For thereas yee have heard, that the earle of Flanders had affianced his daughter and heire to the load Comund of Lang. hand Reg. 43. These letters were given to a knight and a clerke, 60 lie, earle of Cambudge, a this was made, name lie by the carles mother the counteffe of Arthois, who was all French, that not with francing the fame af fiance, the was married to Milip duke of Burgog, 19hilip buke nie, who was furnamed the Pardie, by this occasion, marieth & as I. Meir faith. It chanced, that whilest he was pallo, of flanders ner in England with his father, he was bpon a time baughter. appointed to wait at the table, where his father and the king of England fat togither at meat . And bis cause a noble man of England shat was appointed his surname likelvise to attend at the same table, served first the le tharde. king of England before the king of France, this Philip op with his fift, and toke the English lood a blow on the eare, fairing; Wallt thou ferue the king of England first, where the French king litteth at the

Chandoig.

10 p.f.

The earlest of Erminacke 9 Froiffard.

The L. wake the discomfitting of the lood Thomas Wake scheen Discomfiteb.

Fabian. The French king proces the prince in inderment of the appeale. Froillard.

fame table. The Englishman out with his bagger, trould have Arthen the law Philip, but the king of England Arcialie charged him to the contrarie, and praising the ded of the young Aripling, faid buto him, Fom esles Ihilip le hardie, Thou art (fato he) the hardie Philip. And fo from that date he bare that name euer after. Ehere be other that faic, how he twhe that furname, bicause in the batell of Pointiers he above Mil with his father till the end of the battell, without 1 theiving any token of feare, or faintnes of courage. The earles of Arminacke and Perigoed, with the other loads of Galcoigne, that had made their ap-peale (as pe have heard) to the chamber of the peeres of France, when they understood that the prince had impationed the mellengers, that brought to him the French kings letters, began to make warre on the princes lands. The first enterprise they made, was to the citie of Rodais, with the elears, and two hundred archers in his companie. Also the French king being now provided for the war, and bider fram ding the minds of the people within certaine towns binder the dominion of the Englishmen, in his high court of parlement holden at Paris, proceded in inogement byon the appellation before made by the earles of Arminacke, Perigord, and others, against vince Coward. And mozeover he fent over into fir William Dorman, to fignifie to the king of Eng.

land, bow he thought himfelfe not honozablie bled,

England the earle of Salifbauch, and a knight called 30 thall of Rouergne, as he was riding from Agen bur 20

othat the king of England Did but flenderlie keepe the concurants of the peace, confidering that he did not find meanes to reforme such of his subicas Engliftymen and Galcoignes, as dailie robbed and was fied the countries plands belonging to the crowne of France. These ambassadors were stated for the space of two moneths, & fill they complained of the wrongs 40 that the Englishmen had done, contrarie to the couenants of the peace, but the king made small account thereof, because he perceived it was a forged matter that they alledged, and so in the end fent them awaie. At Douer being bpon their returne, there met them a Britaine that was comming with letters of defiance to the king of England from the French king, and as he had in commandement, he declared to them the effect of his medage, wher byon with all speed they passed over to Bullongne, and 50 were glad they had to escaped. The Britaine came to the court, and delivered the defiance to the king, accoeding to the infructions which he had received. When the king had heard the letters read, and perceined by good view taken of the feale and fignet, that the same were of authoritie, he licenced the mellenger to depart, and fell in councell with the peres of his realme, what he should do in so weigthie a matter. Thereupon it was thought necessarie by them, that he thould affemble his court of parlement, and 60 so he did. In the which (opon declaration made how infurioullie the French king after manie wongfull dealings had now broken the peace, and fent his defiance unto the king in lo despitefull wife as might be) there was granted towards the maintenance of

At the felfe fame time that the defiance was made fathe king here in England, the earle of D. Paule, and Quie de Chatillon mafter of the crosbowes in France, entered into the countie of Ponthieu, toke Abutle, and an Engliff knight calied fir Picholas Louaigne seneshall of that countrie bnoer the king

the warre thus begun, thee fifteens of the temporal tie, and thee diffues of the spiritualtie, to be paled in of England, as then being within it . They toke alfo faint Malerie, Crotoie, Rue, Pont faint Kenie, Their and to be thost, reduced the whole countrie of pont of pont thien binder the French obeilance, which had remaind the condition of the Englishmen for the space of French a hundred and twelve yeares, ever fince Coward the first had the same assigned to him in name of a down rie, with his wife quæne Clianoz, lifter to Alfonse B. of Castile. And yet were the people of that coun. trie readie now to revolt to the French dominion. notivithstanding their former long continued obei fance to the Englithmen : for other wife could not the Frenchmen to eatilie have come to their purpofe, but that the people were commanted before to receine them, and betraie those few Chiglishmen that were amongst them.

About the same time also, it fell so ill for the Eng. lithmen, that the prince of Wales was troubled The prince with a foze fickenedle, that had continued long with watering him, ever fince his being in Spaine, by reason where nells, of his enimies were the more bold to make attempts against him, and bailie went about to allure and intile his lubicas of the marches of Guien to revolt from him, in fomuch that the citie of Cahoas, and dis Chemina uerle other townes thereabout turned to the French Cahous in part. Thus was the peace which had beene so suerlie uduth made, and with so manie solemne oths confirmed, violated and broken, and the parties fallen togither by the eares againe in fundzie places, and namelie in Aquitaine, where fundate armies were abroad in the fields, divers fieges laid, manie townes taken, offen incounters and fairmilles made, sometime to the losse of the one part, and sometime of the other, and the countries in the meane time harried and footled. that maruell it is to confider, and to long a processe it Chould be to rehear fe the tenth part of fuch chances as dailie happened amongst them, so that it might well have beene fait of that fore a tumultuous time:

O quam difficiles sunt sint pace dies.

Ring Colvard lent ouer into Galcoigne the earls Sucolit of Cambridge and Penbroke, with a certeine number of men of armes and archers, the which arriving in Britaine, palled through that countrie by licence of the Duke, and came to the prince as then lieng at Angoleline in Polaton, by whom they were lent to w nerrun the earle of Perigords lands, and so they did, and after laid flege to Burdille, having with Burdille them about their thousand men one and other. There wegen came with them footh of England foure hundred men of armes, foure bundeed archers, and (as Froiffard faith) befide their capteins, thefe earles which he nameth, to wit, the lost of Tabestone (or rather Bradfone as I take it) fir Brian Stapleton, fir Thomas Balafter, and fir John Trivet. Whilest the faid earles went thus to make warre against the earle of Perigord, fir Hugh Caluerlie with two Sir high thouland men of warre was fent also to overrun the Calurius lands of the earle of Arminacke, and of the load Dal beet; fir John Chandols late in the marches of The Chandols loufe at Mountaubon, & afterwards belieged Terrieres, and in the end wan it; and to like wife did the earles of Cambaioge and Penbadie win Bur: Buroll ville, by reason of a saillie that they within made wont forth, and passed to far from their fortresse, that the Englishmen got betwirt them and home.

Sir Robert Unols came from fuch lands as he had his Britaine, to ferue the prince now in thefe warres and Chafestone and Chafe of Walcolgne, and was by him made chefe gouerno: of all his men of warre, who bare himfelfe right wov thilie in that charge. The first tournie which he made at that time, was into Quercie, having with him ber live his owne bands, certeine knights of the princes retinue, as fir Richard Pondardon, fir Stepan Coulenton, fir Poell Loging, fir Dugh Baffings, fir affeinbleb. Chic fifteins and three tenths gran= Fabian. Froiffard thice veares.

3 parlement

Polydor.

The French king fent to befie the king of England.

Dir Dichos las Louaigne

John Triuet, fir Thomas Spenfer, fir Thomas Balaffer, fit Picholas Bond, fit William le Poine seneschall of Argenois, fir Baldwin de Freuille, and others. At their comming into Duercie, they be, ficged a frong fortreffe called Durmell, within the which were binerie capteins of the companions, as Amon d'Ditigo,the little Wechin, Jaques de Bap, Perot de Sauoie, and Arnaudon de Pons, the thich fo valiantlie defended the place, that although the lord Chandois, accompanied with fir Chomas Fel 10 ton, the capitall of Beuf, fir John de Pommiers, fir Thomas Percie, fir Gufface Daubzeticourt, and others came with their retinues from Montaubon, to reenforce that fiege, yet could they not obteine their purpole, but railing from thence after fine weekes fiege (confiremed thereto through want of vittels) they marched freight to a towne called Domme, which they besteged, having in their armie fifteene hundred men at armes, belide two thouland archers and brigands, fo called in those daies, of an armoz 2 which they ware named brigandines, vied then by formen, that bare also targets, or pauoifes, and certeine parts of fauclines to throw at their entmics.

The towns and castell of Domme were to strong of themselves, and so well provided of men of warre that were amointed to the gard of the same, with the lord thereof called fir Robert de Domme, that after the English capteins perceived they should but lose time to linger about the winning of that towne, they 3 raised their siege, and marching further into the countrie, wan Gauaches, Freins, Rochmadoz, and Wille franche, bpon the marches of Toulouzain, greatlie to the displeasure of the duke of Aniou that lay at the fame time in the citie of Toulouse, a could not remedie the matter. & But to recite euerie par. ticular enterpile, as the same was atchined by the English capteins and men of warre in that feafon, it should be more than the purpose of this volume things, which I find registred by Froisfard and other witers, onelie advertifing you, that as the Englishmen thus made fore warres against their aduersa. riesabload in those quarters : so the Frenchmen on the other part had affembled great numbers of men of warre, not onelie to defend their frontiers, but alto by invalions to win from the Englishmen towns and castels, and to was such countries as would not turne to their floe. Thus were all those countries in Iquitaine full troubles of warre.

The two kings alwor England and France, fignified to their neighbours the causes of this warre, lateng the fault either to other, and excusing themsclues as cleare and innocent therein. Coward duke of Octoerland, nephue to the king of England, as fonne to his lifter, and the duke of Bulike couline to the kings children by their mother that was daugh ter to the earle of Heinault, twhe great despite that the French king has broken the peace, as they lucre Coward (as before you have heard.) Telhere byon they fent their defiance buto the French king, threatning to be reuenged on him to the ottermost of their powers. Duke Albert of Bauter, was once minded also to have aided king Coward in this warre: but af terwards such persuasions were vsed on the French kingspart, that he chose to remaine as neuter betheirt them both, refusing to take anie part.

Among the foldiers also called companions, which formed the prince in this featon, there were three capteins, right hardie and verte expert men of warre, Diligo, Bernard de Milke, 4 Bernard de la Sale. Thefe this remaining as then in Limolin , hearing hat the subse of Parisons mother, which was also mother to the French quæne, late within the cattell of Belleperch in Burbonnois, with a finall compa, The buke of mie about hir, rode thither in one daic and a night, fo therefore the case in the manning then amorphed the case of the case. that in the morning they approched the castell, scaled it, and twke it, with the ladie within it. And though they were after besieged in the same castell by the duke of Burbon and other Frenchmen, pet they de. fended it, till the earls of Cambridge and Ponbroke, with fifteene hundred speares, and three thousand of other men of warre, came and offered the French. men battell, lodging afore them fiftene daies. And when they perceived that the Frenchmen would not issue out of the bassive (in which they late) to give battell, the earles of Cambiloge and Penbioke cansed all them within the castell to come fouth, and to bring with them the outher of Burbon, whome they led awate in light of hir fonne, leaving the callell boid and free for him to enion.

The French king provided a great number of thips The French to affemble togither at Darflew , and leuied a great reth a nauis. power of men, minding to bestolv them about in the fame thips, that they might faile into England, and make warre against king Coward in his owne countrie. Cheefteine of this armic Gould have beine his brother the duke of Burbon, but this fournie was broken, for the Frenchmen were cased of the paine to come to like the Englishmen at home in England, they comming over into France, and profe fering them battell even at their owne dozes. Foz the king of England having levied a power of arthers, and other men of warre, sent them over buder the leading of his some the duke of Lancaster. There The onke of went with him in this fournie, the earles of Here, Lancalter let food and Salifburie, the load Kos, the load Baffet, the into France South an armie loed Milloughbie, the loed de la Ware, the loed de la Pole, the loss Walter of Mannie, the loss Henrie Percie, the losd Thomas Grantlon, fir Alane Burhul, fir Richard Sturrie, & diverse other. They went ouer about Diolummer. And after they had refted might permit, and therefore I palle over diverse 40 a little the duke let forward and robed footh into the countrie, spoiling and harrieng the same, and when he faw time, returned againe to Calis.

The French king being at Roan, heard of the arrivall of this armie at Calis, and that his countrie of Picardie was in great danger : he changed his purpole therefore of fending an armie into Enga land, and with all speed appointed that his power Mould with his brother the duke of Burgognie turne toward Calis, to refill the duke of Lancalter. Derebpon when the duke of Lancacter heard that the duke of Burgognie was thus comming toward him, he issued forth of Calis, and comming into the vallie beneath the hill of Turneham, there twke his field, and fortified the place with firong hedges and rame The buke of piers, the better to be able to relift his enimies if they Lancafter would affaile him. The duke of Burgognie came fortificth his Aill forward, till he approched verte neete to the duke campe.

The duke of Lancasters campe, and pight downe his field a Gurrogane.

The distribution of Curreham, so that the fronts Fabian. thoughlie persuaded, and that he had defied king 60 of both hosts were within lesse than a mile either Froillard of other.

There was come to the duke of Lancaffer a knight Sir Robert of the marches of Almaine called fir Robert do 40 a. de Hamur. of the marches of Almaine called fir Robert de Das mur with an hundled speares : but yet the duke of Lancalters hold was but one handfull of men, in refped of the huge number of the French armie, wherin were (as Froisfard writeth) soure shouland knights belive others. But pet for all his great puillance and number of men, he would not adventure to affaile the Englishmen in their loogings, as it was thought be would have done, but kept himselfe and his men upon the hill, from the foure and twentith of August. buto the tipelith of September, and then dislodged not much to his honour , howlocuer writers do ex-10 p.tj.

The dailse of

Caxton,

The carte of warwite.

fireight comman ement that in no wife he Gould fight with the Englishmen: and that when he had fent to his brother for commission either to fight, 02 to remone, he was commanded to turne with all fpeed buto Paris, and to breake up his armic for that time. Some there be that write , how that after both thefe hoffes had lien the one against the other along space, to the repewle of both chiefteins, it chanced that the low Thomas Beauchampe earle of Warwike 10 came thitherward by leas to be at the battell, which he heard would mostlie follow betweene the two ars

cuse it , declaring bow his bother had given him

mies: but per he was come to land, the Frenchmen for feare ourst no longer abive, but secrettie in the night departed and fled towards Heldin, and fo to Paris, for the which their flight, the duke of Bur, gognic was after blamed of his brother the French kina.

Froiffard. Englano de parteth this life.

In this meane while, that is to faie, on the even of The quene of the Assumption of our ladie, died that noble prin 20 coffe, the lavie Philip quiene of England. It is faid that when the perceived that the must needs depart out of this transitorie life, the defired to speake with the king hir husband, and when he was come to hir with a forowfull hart to fehir in that fate, the twhe Printhag pe= him by the hand, and after courteous words of indus titions to the ction, the required of him to grant hir thie requests. tung. The first request was, that all such merchants, and other men, with whom the had bargained in any condition, might be answered of all such debts as the 3 owight them, whether they owelled on this five the fea or beyond.

The fecond request was, that all fuch ordinances and promifes, as the had made to churches, as well within this realme, as in the parts of the further five the featmight be performed.

The third request was, that it might please him to chase out none other sepulche then God thould call him out of this world, but befide hir at Westmin-

The praise of colletge.

This quine, to traine the English pout buto vertuous conversation, a to give occasion that they might be brought by in learning and god infructs The queines ons, founded a colledge at Drford, furnishing it with godlie buildings, and a church, that they might both ferue God, and profit in their findics, therebyon it is called the quenes colledge even to this date.

The buke of

B. Riquier.

But now to returne to the duke of Lancaster, De thall binderstand that after the departure of the duke returned to Calis, and there refreshed himselfe and his people the space of thee vales. And then he fet forward againe, with bim as marshals of the Lacalter mas holf, was the earle of Warwike, and the loss Roger ketha courine Beauchampe, with the lords and knights beforere membied. They toke their fournie to S. Dmers, and by Turwin, and then through the countie of faint Paule, fill burning the countrie as they went. Thep rode not pall thee or foure leages in a daic, and kee at the planches under Abuilt passed the river of Some, and then entred into the countrie of Climete, in purpose to go unto Harflew, and there to burne the French kings name. Thus passing forward thos rough Aimew, and the countie of Gwe, they entered into the archbishoppine of Boan, and marching forth bu Depe, came wito Parfiew : but the carle of faint Doule, and the lood of France conflable of France ubich had coaffed the Englith armic in all this four nie, with a great power of men, was gotten before them, and entred into this towne, so that they knew how they frould but lofe their paine, if they did affaile it, and to therefore after they had been before it this vaies, on the fourth day they dislodged, a went backe againe towards Calis, returning through the countrie of Ponthicu, and before Abuile chanced to in Fabin counter a number of Frenchmen, which gave to the Chime counter a number of Arrangement, congruence of the outle battell. In the which was taken for bugh of from outle of from Chatellon, master of the crosbowes of France, with takin other knights, elquiers, and burgeffes of that towne, and about firtiene score of the French part Caine.

There be that write otherwise herof, the wing how Fronte the faid fir Hugh Chatellon was taken by an ambuth laid by fir Picholas Louaine, as the fame fir Hugh was come footh of the towne, with not past ten or twelve with him, to fee how the passage of kio. waie was kept by them that had tharge thereof. Dow loeuer it came to palle, taken he was, t brought to the duke of Lancaster, that refossed greatlie of that god hap: and so marching forward, he passed the river at Blanchetaque, and delv towards the towne of Rew on the fea five, and fo to Pontreuill, and & nallie to Calis. Then were the Arangers licenced to depart: and bicause it was far in the winter, as a bout faint Bartines tide, the duke and the most part of his armie returned into England . In this yeare The thin thanced the third mortalitie, which was exceeding mortality cases. great both of men and beafts, that the like had not Polycie bene beard of. And among tother people that peri Chemit thed of that petitientiall fickenesse, that morthic warming knight and noble capteine the earle of Clariniked partible ed at Calis in the moneth of Januarie, after his returne from Harflew. The countrie of Aquitame was full of trouble in this meane time, either part læking to grieve other to the ottermost of their powers. ¶ John Pattings earle of Penbroke, have rolled uing with him certains bands of men of warre, recovered diverse towns and cassels in those parts:but when he perceived how the entinies that were not far from the place where he was lodged, the wed manifest tokens of feare, in marching one while bucces teinelie forward, and an other while fetching great compattes about, he formethat bnivarilie fetting by on them in their campe, was discomfited and put to flight, so that getting him into a place of the Tem Froidard plers, that was closed about with a wall, he remained there in great danger to be taken palloner of his entimes that affailed him, if the load John Chandois fenelchall of Poictou had not come to the refeue, and pledged him forth.

But Chartle after, the said load Chandois was Thom.W. Channel by the entimes (whom first he had our come) the state of the s whilest without good admile he put off his helmet, and game. Frencharmie beside the hill of Turncham, the said 50 fo receiuing a froke with a glaiue that entered into Fronties his head, betwirt his note and his forhead, he never affer spake wood, not living past a day and a night after he was hurt. The death of this right famous, wife, and valiant knight, was bewailed as well of the Frenchmen as Englishmen. The French king himselfe, when he heard that he was claine, greatlie lamented the michap, affirming that now he being dead, there was not any left alive able to agree the kings and realmes of England and France: to much ping on their waie, they came by faint Riquier, and 60 was be feared, effemed, and beloued of all men. But alas that availed all their mourning and lamenting against the necessitie of death, sith we know that

Est commune mori, mors milli parcit honori. Affer he was thus flaine, fir Thomas Percie was Su I made feneschall of Poicton. By reason of the great mas part wet and raine that fell this geare in more abun Bestith bance than had beene accustomed, much come was Headle lost, so that the price thereof was sore inhanced, in so much that wheat was fold at three Chillings fource pence the bushell. But as concerning the death, the well parts of the realine was fored affliced with this mortalitie, and namelie at Orford there vied a great number of fcholers.

Somewhat before this time, the levie Blanch daughter

An. Reg. 43, 44. daughter to Henrie duke of Lancaster, veparted The enteres daughter and was buried on the north fide of the high altar in the cathedrall church of faint Paule within the citie of London, where hir hulband John of Bant was after also interred. The ordeined for hir husband and for hir felfe a folemne obit to be kept yearelie in that thurth, where the maior being prefent with the thiriffes, chamberlaine, and fword-bearer, thould of fer each of them a pennie, and the maior to take vo a pound, the thiriffes either of them a marke, the chamberleine ten thillings, and the fwood-bearer fir fhillings eight pence, and eueric other of the malozs officers two and twentie pence, and the number of eight officers belonging buto the thiriffes (and by them to be appointed) cight pence a pice. ¶ This peare was granted to the king in parlement allembled at Caestminster of the spirituall mens linings atenth for the space of their yeares, and a fifteenth of the temporaltic during the fame tearme.

Eruce with

Anno Reg. 44. Frouland.

on Kebrit a great fumme of monie, as well by bosowing of the another with clergie as of the laitie, he leuied an armie, & fent the enorme in france. same ouer to Talis about Didlummer, under the gouernance of that worthie cheffeine fir Robert Anolles, accompanied with the L. Fitz Walter, the logo Granson, fir Alaine Burhull, fir John Bourchi cr,fic William Deuille,fir Geffrey Wourfeley,and owerse other noblemen, knights, and worthis capteins. About the fame time, the king of England concluded an abstinence of warre with the Scots for 3 the tearme of nine yeares, yet so that the Scots might arme themselnes, and at their pleasure serue and take wages, either of the English of French, by reason thereof, fir Robert Linolles had in his companie an hundred speares of the realme of Scot

Then this armie had lien and reffed in Calisa bout the frace of featien dates, fir Kobert Enolles caused encrie man to depart the towne, and to take the fields, marching the first daie neere to the castell 4 of Fiennes, and there lodged for that night. The Chenumber thole number of this armie was not aboue twelus elmenot war thouland men. Froissard faith, they were but fifteene hundred speares, t foure thousand archers. Within the castell of Fiennes was the constable of France, that was losd thereof, with fuch a number of foulds ers and men of warre, that the Englishmen thought they thould but lose their labour to affaile it. And so they passed fourth by Aurrouane, and toward Arras, riding not past foure leages a daie, bicause of their 50 cariages and formen. They toke their lodging ever about none, and laie neere buto great billages.

The French king has furnished all his tolunes and fortreffes in Picardie with ffrong garrifons of fouldiers, to octeno the fame against all chances that might happen either by flege or fuoden affault. The Englishmen therefore thought not goo to linger a. bout the winning of anie of the frong townes, but palled by them, walting or ranfoming the countries. the fabrids at Arras they themset themselnes before the barris 60 ers, and when none would iffac to fkirmish with them, they let fier on the luburbs, t departed. From In towners thence they twice the wate by Baupalmes, and fo came into Clermendois, and burnt the towne of Roy. Then went they to Han in Aermendois, into the which all the people of the countrie were with drawne, with luch goods as they might carie with The french them. And in like manner had those done which inti witdaam habited about S. Quintine , Peronne , and other notation desired about S. Littmine, Personne, and little about for Arong townes, so that the Englishmen found little kales arong townies, in that the Linguistics for it was known mies, they would compound with them within frong townes, to spare the countrie from burning and destruction, for such a summe as they agreed by on, by which meanes fir Robert Unolles got in that votage about the fumme of an hundled thousand frankes . For the which he was after accused to the king of England, as one that had not dealt fullie in fo dwing. In this fort patting the countrie, they came before Poion, and after they had refted a while afore the fowne, they went fouth walking and burning the countrie, and finallie patted the river of Warne, and fo entered into Champaigne, and paffe) the river of Aube, and also diverse times they passed to ano fro ouer the river of Saine : at length drawing toward The English Baris, and comming before that citie, they lodged men before there in the field a day and two nights, and thewed Paris. themselnes in order of battell before the citie. This was on the twentie fourth daie of September.

Thus they rode faire and easilie, two or their leages a date, and sometime to reconcrimanie of their ent

The French king was at the fame time within the This yeare, after that the king had gotten fogither 20 citic, a might behold out of his lodging of S. Paule. the fiers and fmokes that were made in Galtenois, through burning the townes and villages there by the Englishmen, but pet he would fuffer none of his people to go forth of the citie, although there was a great power of men of warre within the citie, both of such as had coasted the English armie in all this fournie, and also of other which were come thither by the kings commandement, belide the burgelles, and inhabitants of the citie. Then fir Robert knolles perceived that he should have no battell, he departed and dew toward Aniou, where they wan by fregigth the townes of Maas and Ruellie. But now in the beginning of winter there fell such discord amonast the Englith capteins, through conetoulnelle and ennie, that finallie they divided themselnes in sunder, greatlie to the displeasure of fir Robert Linolles their generall, who could not rule them.

There was a knight among them named fir John Thom. Wall. There was a knight among them named in 3091; Sir Simon Hinterworth, that had the leading of one wing of Munders this armie, a good man of his hands (as we call him) worth, but perverte of mind, and verie deceitfull, and to fix Robert Enolles (to thome he was much beholden) most unfaithfull. This knight, perceining the wisfull minds of certeine young loods and knights there in the armie, that repined at the governement of fir Robert knolles, as the Romans old sometime at the governance of Camillus (the chafe of thome were the losd Brantson, the losd Fitz Walter, and others) did his belt to pricke them forward, founding them in the eare, that it was a great reproch for them being of noble parentage, to ferue buder fuch an oldrascall as he was, ech of them being able to guide their enterpile of themselnes, without his counsell, by which flattering of them, and disgracing of him, the faid Pinsterworth did much milchefe, for Lingua loquax, odiofa, procax, parit omne moleftum. Inded this fir Kobert Unolles was not descended Bermondley. of anie high linage, but bosne in the countie of the Sir Robert fer of meane offpring, neuertheleffe through his va, knottes borne liant prowelle, and good feruice in warre, growne to in Cheffitz. such estimation, as he was reputed worthie of all hos nour oue to a noble and fkilfull warriour, fo that it was thought the king could not have made his choice of one more able or fufficient to supplie the come of a cheffeine, than of him: but yet, although this was most true, his adulte could not be heard, no: the authoritie amointed him by the king beare anie swaie. For there he counselled that they should now byon the apporhing of winter diams south of France into Six Robert Bittaine, and there remains so the winter leason, kindles cours they would not fo agree, not obeic his will. Thereby, fell not folon it came to paffe, that fir Bertham De Cleaquin, lowed, at that time newlie made confable of France, but derifinding this division to grow among & the Eng-

Prij.

liffmen,

tarnt.

Discord what liftimen, and that they were divided into parts, fet upon them fo much to their diladuantage, that he bis frested them, and toke or flue the more part of them: but fir Robert knols with the flower of the archers commeth of it, and men of warre went into Bitaine, and there faned himselfe, and those that followed him. I here you may fee, how those that before through amitie and good agreement were of fuch force as their entimics durft not once affate to annote them, now by ffrife and diffention among themselves were flaine i or taken by the same enimics, and brought to confu fron. To which purpose it is properlie and trulic faid,

Froiffard. The citie of Limoges belieged.

Lu odium gignit, charos concordia firingit. In this meane time that fir Robert Enols made this votage through the realme of France, the prince of Wales laid fiege to the citie of Limoges, with was revolted to the Frenchmen. There were with him at the lateng of this stege, his brethren, the duke of Lancaffer, and the carle of Cambudge, fir Guichard Dangle, fir Lois de Parecourt, the lood of 2 Dons, the losd of Partenaie, the losd of Pinane, the loed of Tannaibouton, fir Percinall de Coulongne, fir Geffrie de Argenton, Poiatouins : and of Cab coignes, the lord of Pountferrant, the lord de Chaw mount, the loed de Longueren, fir Amerie de Tharfe, the losos of Dommiers, Queident de l'Esparre, the Souldich de Leffrade, the lood of Gerond, and manie other :of Englishmen there were, fir Thomas Der cie, the lood Ros, the lood William Beauchampe, fir Michaell de la Pole, fir Stephan Gouffenton, fir Kie a chard Pontchardon, fir Baldwin Freuille, fir Ste mon Burlie, fir Dangouste, fir John Deuereur, fir William Denille og (as some copies haue) Denille, and manie other. There was allo fir Oufface Dame becticourt, and of the companions, sir Perducas Dalbieth, tho in the beginning of these warres being turned French, was by the persuation of fir Kobert Anols procured to returne agains to the prins ces fernice before the flege of Durmelle.

worthic capteins and men of armes, to the number of twelve hundred, befide a thousand arthers and o ther formen, indenoted by all water he could denice to invamage them within. In the end he caused the walles to be budermined, and quite renerled into the bitch, then giving affault, entered by the breach, and made an huge flaughter of them within, in fo much that of men, women, and children (for none were spared in respect of age or fer) there were staine and beheaded that date about thee thousand. The bis 50 Moy with certaine knights and capteins were taken and had their lines granted, though the bishop was in great danger to have lost his head, breause he was a these ower in yelding the citie before but othe

Polydor. Froillard.

Linoges ta=

kenbytozee.

While it the prince late at fiege before Limoges (a little before he wan it) thither came to him his brethien, the duke of Lancaster, and the earle of Cambrioge, the lood Ros, fir Wichaell de la Pole, fir Ro. bert Rous, fir John Saintlo, and fir William Beau, 60 champe, with a faire number of men of war, frears, and archers. The prince then after he had wome Lie moges, and executed some crueltie there to the terrour of other; his maladie which Will continued byon him, rather increased than diminished, so that he was adulted by phylicians to returne into England, in hope that change of aire fooulo restore him to health. For the which confideration and other causes of bullnesse which he had to do with his father, touching cers feine weightie affaires he twhe the fea, and came o ner into England, leaving the government of A quitaine unto his brother the duke of Lancaster, as his licutenant there: he landed at Plimmouth in the beginning of Lanuarie,

Mozeoner in this 44 years of king Coward, the Theken king of Pauarre came ouer into England, and at Panant king of Panarre came once me Charingdon found the king, and there talked with to Charles between him of such matters as they had to conclude between them two. But for that the king of Pauarre could Politic not affure the king of fuch covenants as should have valled betwirt them two, it was not thought mert by the kings conneell to worke to far boon his bare word, that had before time the wed apparant profes of bis inconstant dealing. And suerlie this doubt arose Ebelnot without cause, as his doings houtlie after de: flaure clared: for although he fæmed now at this present to theurth be a verie enimie to the French king, pet fhortlie af prace ter he was reconciled to him againe, and became his great freend for the time it latted. This yeare in the moneth of Februarie was a parlement called, in Armond the which there was demanded of the spiritualties Carre Sublidie of fiftie thousand pounds, and as much of the laitie. The tempozall men some agreed to that pat, I subar ment, but the cleargie excused themselves with faire words and thifting answers : in somuch that the king toke displesure with them, and deposed certeine spiritual men from their offices of dignitic, as the chancelloz, the privile feale, the treasuroz, and such or Spinion thers, in whose romes he placed tempozall men. The bilhop of Winchester, and the bilhop of Beaunois being both cardinals, were put in commission by pope Gregorie the eleventh to treat betwirt the Cartinols kings of England and France for a peace. But al appoints beit they did their indeuour therein, and moued both treatef gre kings to the ottermost of their powers, yet their motions take none effect, and therefore was the warre pursued to the bitermost betwirt the parties, a namelie in Aquitaine, where the fortrelles were fo intermedled one with an other, some English, and some French, that one knew not how to beware of ano ther, not to avoid the danger, to that the countrie of Polaton and other the marches thereabout were in great tribulation. Sir Robert Unols, fir Thomas Polydon The prince being thus accompanied with thefe 40 Spenfer, fir John Triuct, and fir Hugh Hallings, dividing their powers infunder, went to recover townes, some in one quarter, and some in an other, and certeine they affaied, but prevailed not: the inhabitants doubting to be punished for their in truths, made such fout relifance.

After this, the duke of Lancatter appointed fir Robert knols to repaire againe to Calis, and by the waie (if occasion served) to attempt the recoverie of Ponthien. Sir Robert taking his tournie through Chefen France by Paris, came into the marches of Picar mics had die: and bicause in comparison to this man, all the fir isolate English capteins were little feared of the French men, fir Berthiam de Cleaquin, the constable of Su Sin France, leaving the fortrettes in the marches of A, de Circu quitaine sufficientlie Auffed with men of warre and munition, followed fir Robert Unols, Will readie to affaile the hindermoff companies, or else to fet on the fides of his enimies. So that there chanced manie fkirmiches betwirt them, 4 manie men were flaine on both parts; but at length, when fir Robert Linols saw no likelihood to atchine his purposed infent in recoveric of the townes of Ponthieu, as Abuile and other, he drew Arright to Calis, and the constable retired backe into France.

In this 46 years, fir Kobert Alhton was fent into 1373 Ireland as lood deputie there, and in the fame yeare, Anno 19 the duke of Lancaffer being as then a widower, mas ried the ladie Constance eldest daughter to Deter king of Spaine, which was flaine by his baffard bio ther Henrie (as before ye have heard.) Also the loo Emund earle of Cambridge maried the ladic 3fabell, fifter to the fame Confiance. Their other fifter named Beatrice, affianced to Don Ferdinando, fon to Peter king of Postingale, was departed this

The prince teturned into England. Thom. Walf.

In. Reg. 46,47. Edward were all this left as holfages by their father, when the prince went to bring him home into his countrie (as before we may read.) Froissard writeth, that the Duke married the ladie Confrance in Bafcoigne, and that thortic after he returned into England with his faid wife and hir fifter, leaving the capitall De Bueits, and other loods of Galcoigne and Poistou in tharge with the rule of those countries. By reason of that warriage, the duite of Lancaffer, as in right 10 of his wife being the claer fifter, cauled himfelfe to be intituled king of Caffile, and his fait wife quene of the fame realme.

The earle of Hereford being fent to the fea, with certaine thips of warre, was incountered by the flee milhflet, before an hauen in Britaine called the Baic, where was fought a fore battell, and long contimed fer the space of the houres : howbeit finallie the vicesic above with the Englishmen, notwith fluiding that the Flemings were more in number, 20 and better provided for the matter . There were take ken of them five and twentie thips, with their Adme, rall John Peterson. They had bone at Rochell for wine, and now were come to the Baie for falt boon their returne homeward, and hearing that the Eng. lithmen would come that waie, fraied for them, and first caucity onset. For you must remember, that by reason that the earle of Flanders had married his daughter to the duke of Burgognie, which he had first promised to the earle of Cambridge, there was 30 no perfect frænoship betwirt the realme of England, and the countries of the faid earle of Flans

Sir Guidard Dangle a knight of Poidou, that Dingle made was come over with the duke of Lancalter, to procure the king to fend some new aid into Aquitaine, was for his approved valiancie and tried truth to the hing of England, made knight of the garter . And moreover at his instance the king rigged a naute of thips, and amointed the earle of Penbroke as gene, 40 rall, to faile with the same into Aquitaine, and there to remove the fiege which the Frenchmen had laid The carle of to Rochell. The earle according to his commission Probable for twke the sea with a flect of fortie thips prepared for him; but per he could enter the haven of Kochell, he was affailed by an huge flect of Spaniards, and there banquilled taken pilloner, & led into Spaine. The Syaniards had for capteins foure Ikilfull war riones, Ambrole Bouquenegre, Cabelle de Clake oz Cakedent, Dom Ferandou Pion, and Rodigo de 50 la Rochell, who had binder their governement fortie great carranels, and thirteene trim barkes through lis formified and appointed with good mariners and men of warre.

The earle of Penbroke had with him nothing the like number of hips, nor men : for (as Froisford with ted he had not past two and twentie knights with him,02(as other hane)not past twelue, being for the more part of his owne retinue or houthold: and pet those sew Englishmen and Postcouins that were 60 there with him, bare themselves right valiantite, and fought it out to the ottermost. There were flaine fir Simon Houstagre, sir John de Hoztague, and sir John Suchet; and there were taken pulloners, belides the earle himselfe, fir Robert Buffort, fir John Curfon, fir Dihes de Grandfon , fir Guichard Dangle, the lood of Pinane, fir John de Griveres, fir Jaques de Surgieres, the lood of Tannaibouton, fir John de Hardane, and others. This battell was fought on Hislammer even, in this fix and fortish peare of king Cowards reigne. The earle had (as Froiffard witeth) treasure with him, to have waged the houlend men of warre, which never did anie man god, for (as he was informed) the thip therein

he was about, perithed with diverse other being barnt og funke. The English weiters faie, shat it was no maruell though this milhap chanced buto him , bicause he had in parlement spoken against men of the church, in giving counsell that they might be conffreined to paie gravious subsidies, towards the maintenance of the kings warre, and that no leffe heavie paiments and subsidies should be impos fed byon them, than byon the fecular fort. Therein he seemed to belivate a malicious mind against the clergie, who as in no age they have wanted foes, fo in his time they found few frænds, being a general tion appointed and ordeined in their cravels to be confemned of the world, speciallie of great men, of whole fanour and god will it is truelie a rightlie faid,

Gratia magnatum nescit habere statum. By reason of this missortune thus happened to the English flet, the Frenchmen recourred manie townes and castels out of the Englishmens hands, in the countries of Poiston, Faintonge, Limolin, and other the marches of Aquitaine. About the fance time the French king fent foure Froiffard. thousand men to the fea, bnder the guiding of one Yuans a Buans a banished Welsh gentleman , the which tleman. landing in the Ale of Gernelep, was incountered by the captein of that Ile called fir Comund Rous, who Sir Comund had gathered eight hundeed men of his owne fouldf. Rous. ers togither, with them of the Ale, and boldic gaue battell to the Frondymen: but in the end the Engs lishmen were discomfited, and foure hundred of them flaine, to that fir Comund Rous fled into the castell of Counet, a was there belieged by the fato Prans, till the French king fent to him to come backe from thence, and so he did, leaving the cassell of Cornet, and fir Comund Rous within it as he found him. The profps The Frenchmen this yeare recovered the citie of rous fucero Polatices, Rochell also, and the most part of all of the French Poteton, and finallie laid fiege to Towars in Poic, men in Poics tou, wherein a great number of the loods of that countrie were inclosed, the which fell to a composition on with the Frenchmen to have an abitinence of warre for themselves, and their lands, till the feast of faint Dichaell nert infuing, which thould be in the yeare 1362. And in the meane time they fent to the king of England their lovereigne lood, to certifie him what conditions they had agreed buto, that if they were not aided by him, or by one of his sonnes within the faid tearme, then they to yield them and their lands to the obeifance of the French king.

Pot long before this, the capitall of Bueff; was taken piloner, and fir Thomas Percie, with diverte other Englithmen and Galcoignes before Soubife by fir Puans of Wales and other French capteins. to that the countries of Poidou and Laintonge were Comaroting or the countries of Poidou and Laintonge were banger to be in great danger to be quite loft, if fpedie fuccours loft. came not in time. Therebpon king Coward aduers tiled of that agræment which they within Towars Th. Walling. had made, raised an armie, rigged his thips, and in August twice the sea, purposing to come before the day affigued to the fuccours of that fortreffe; but the wind continued for the space of nine weekes so contrarie unto his intent, that he was ftill dinen backe and could not get forward toward the coast of ago chell, where he thought to have landed, so that finallie when the date of relcuing Towars came, he not ante of his fonnes could appeare in those parts, and so to his great displeasure he returned home, and licenced all his people to depart to their houses. By this means was Lowars belivered to the Frenchmen, which ceased not in such occasions of advantage to take time, and follow the Geps of prosperous for tune.

nc. About this featon the duke of Britains being fore Anno Reg. 47. displeased in his mind, that the Englishmen fustet Britaine.

weith gens

pationis Causa dia co fil

ned dailie loccs in the parts of Aquitaine, would gladlic have alved their fide, if he might haue got the nobles of his countrie to have toined with him, but the loods Clisson and de la Male, with the vicount of Roan, and other the loads and barons of Battaine, fo much favoured the French king, that he perceived they would result from him, if he attempted any thing against the Freuchmen. He therefore meaning by one way or other to further the king of Ens gland his quarell, and fearing to be attached by his 10 owne subicas, and sent to Paris, dispatched mes lengers to B. Coward, requiring him to lend some power of men of warre into Britaine, to defend him against the malice of such as were altogither French

The load Me= Wittaine.

Englishmen bilcamfiten bothe con= Cable of France.

Commes wone by him.

Sir Robert Unols.

The buke of 25attaine co: meth ouer into England.

The earle of Salıfburie.

Polydor. The duke of Lancafter fent ouer into France with an armie.

Ia. Meir. Froillard.

Roble men that went that tournic. and entimies to England.

Ring Coward forthwith fent ouer the load Deuill, with foure hundred men of armes, and as manie archers, the which arriving at faint Watthewes de fine Poterne, remained there all the winter. Therespon the Britaines being fore offended there 20 with, closed their townes and fortreiles against their buke, and thewed much cuill towards him. The conftable of France fir Bertham De Cleaquin, laieng fiege to the towne and caffell of Sireth in Poictou, discomfited a number of Englishmen that came to raise his stege, by meanes whereof he got not onelie Streth, but also Pioet, Lucignen, and all other the townes and fortreffes which the Englishmen held till that day within Boicou, Laintonge, and Rochel lois. Sportlie affer this, the conffable returned into 30 France, and was appointed by the king there to go with an armie of men of warre into Britaine, and there to take into his hands all such townes and for The conflable treffes as belonged to the duke of Britaine, bicaufe of Frace fent he had alice himfelfe with the king of England, and into Butaine received Englishmen into his countrie, to the pseindice of the realine of France.

The duke being advertised of the constables comming, was counselled by fir Robert knols (whom the king of England had fent to aid him) that he should 40 palle ouer into England, and there to be a luter in his owne cause for more aid to be fent into Britaine, to relift the Frenchmen that now fought to bying the whole countrie into their pollethon. The duke inclining to this adnife, went ouer into England, and in the meane time the conflable came and wan the most part of all the townes and fortreffes of that duchie, ercept Breff, where fir Robert Unols was, and certeine other. The earle of Salifburie with a great na uie of thips, well furnished with men of armes and 50 archers, late upon the coast of Britaine all that time, and greatlie comforted them within Breff, in fomuch that he came on land, and offered battell to the con-Nable if he would have come forward ; received it.

In the moneth of Julie in this feuen and fourtith yeare of king Cowards reigne, the buke of Lancaffer was fent oner buto Calis with an armie of thir tie theusand men (as some write) but as Froissard faith, they were but thirteene thouland, as their thous fand men of armes, and ten thousand archers. This 60 boinge had beine in preparing for the space of their peares before. The buke of Britaine was there with them, and of the English nobilitie, belide the buke of Lancaster that was their generall, there were the earles of CClarinike, Stafford and Suffolke, the lord Coward Spenfer that was confable of the hoff, the loods Willoughbie, de la Pole, 13affet, and biuerfe others . Di knights, fir Denrie Percie, fir Leines Clifford, fir William Beauchampe, the Chanon Ko bertfart, Malter Delvet, fir Hugh Caluerlie, fir Stephan Coulington, fir Richard Ponchardon, and manic other.

When they had made readle their earlages and o ther things necessarie for such a cournic which they had taken in hand, that is to lay, to palle through the realme of France unto Burdeaur, they fet forward, bauing their armie binided into the Lattels. The earles of Warwike and Suffolks did lead the fore ward: the two dukes of Lancalter and Britains, the middle ward or battell, and the rereward was go, uerned by the load Spenfer constable of the holt, They patted by S. Diners, by Turronane, and coa. fed the countrie of Arthois, and pasted the water of Some at Coobie. They destroied the countries as Thous they went, and marched not past the leages a day, thought they assaled none of the Grong townes, how forthes townes. les. Hor the French king had to stuffed them with one contains notable numbers of men of warre, that they percel ued they hould frauell in baine about the winning of them. At Roy in Clermaneois, they refled them feuen dates, and at their departure let fire on the towne, bicause they could not win the church which was kept against them. From thence they die to: wards Laon, and to marched forward, patting the reuers of Place, Harne, Saine, and Ponne. The Frenchmen coaffed them, but durft not appoor to giue them battell.

Pære to Ribaumount, about 80 Englichmen of fir Bugh Caluerlies band were diffressed by 120 Frenchmen : &likewife belide Soiffons, 120 Eng. Fabin lith speares,02 (as other writers have) little speares, and fiventie archers were banquithed by a Burgo nian knight called fir John de Clienne, that had with him the hundred French speares. Df moze burtby anic incounters I read not that the Englishmensur Chefins steined in this volage. For the Frenchmen kept natio that them alofe, and meant not to fight with their citis with the mics, but onclie to keepe them from bittels, and fet. Englism thing of forrage abroad, by reason thereof the Englishmen lost manie horses, and were in ded briven to great scarsitie of vittels. When they had vased the river of Loire, and were come into the countrie Polydon of Werrie, they biderfood how the Frenchmen laid themselves in sundrie ambushes to distresse them, if they might espie the advantage: but the duke of Lancaffer placing his light horstemen, with part of the arthers in the fore ward, and in the battell the whole force of his formen with the men at armes, divided into wings to concr that battell, wherein he himselfe was, the relioue of the horsemen with the rest of the the built is arthers he appointed to the rereward, and fo causing Lancalus them to keep close togither, marched footh till he armic in came into Poidon, then in revenge of the Poido, marching uins that had revolted from the English obeifanca, he began a new spotle, killing the people, wasting the countrie, and burning the houses and buildings eneric where as he passed, 4 so finallie about Christ personal made came to Burbeaur.

Whilest the duke of Lancaster was thus possing Frontied through the realme of France, pope Gregorie the expansion leventh fent the archbithop of Rauenna and the ble from the thop of Carpentras as legats from him, to treat for a peace betwirt the realms of England and France. They rode to t fro betwirt the French king and his buetheen, and the duke of Lancaster : but the duke and the Englithmen kept on their waie, and to finallie keping forwards about Chiffmaffe came to Burdeaur. The legats pursued their treatic, but the parties were to hard, that no reasonable offers would be taken. The two dukes of Lancacter and Britaine late in Burdeaux all the residue of the wine ter, and the Lent following. The fame yeare that the duke of Lancaster made this fournie thosough France, the king of England sent certeine ambas Contes fadors to the pope, requiring him not to medele with speling the referentions of benefices within his realine of fento England, but that those which were eleast bithops females might into their for my heart for the females. might intog their fas, and be confirmed of their mes berefit tropolitans, on the trail

In. Reg. 18,19. Edward tropolitane and archbilipp, as of ancient time they had bene accustomed.

The pope would not at that present determine a nie thing herein, but commanded them that were fent, that they should certifie him agains of the kings pleasure and further meaning, in those articles and other fouching him and his realme. Also this yeare it was decreed in parlement, that cathediall churches might intog the right of their elections, and that the king thould not hinder them that were chosen, but 10 rather telpe them to their confirmations. In the fame parlement was granted to the king a difine of the cleargie, and a fifteenth of the laitie. 9 Pozeouer at the lute of the popes legats, a respit of war was granted betwirt the kings of England and France, but to that the Englishmen loft in Bascoine a great number of castels and townes, by reason of a compolition made before, that if they were not rescued by the middest of August, they should then peelo themselues French: and bicause the truce was a 20 greed upon to indure till the last of August, the Engichmen toke no hed to the matter. It was further agreed bpon, that in the beginning of September, there hould meet in the marches of Picardie, the duke of Lancaster, and other of the English part, as Commoners commissioners to intreat of peace; and the duke of appointed to Anion and other on the French part, the popes legat mut and come to be there also as mediatoz. Withen this agreement was thus accorded, the duke of Lancatter, and the buke of Britaine, with the earls of Warwike, Sub 30 folke and Stafford, the loods Spenfer, Willoughbie and others, twke the sea at Burdeaur the eight of Julie and returned into England.

Drath of the munt of peace

This yeare the fifth of June, died William Witachbai Can. telley archbishop of Canturburie, after whose death the monks choic to that for the cardinall of Wincheffer, with which election the king was nothing contented, so that after much monie spent by the manks to obtaine their purpole, at length they were mitted to that dignitie, tho before was bishop of London, being the featien and fiftith archbilliop that had ruled that fie. He was chosen by the appointment of the king, and confent of the pope. For alrevie was that decree worne out of vie, whereby the elections of bilhops have refled in the voices of them of the cathediall durch: for not onelie this Simon archbihop of Canturburic, but other also were ordeined bishops from thencefooth, by the will and authoritie of the popes and kings of this realme, till at length it 5 came to pade, that onelie the kings instituted be thops, and the bithops ordeined other governours under them of meaner degrees.

Thus the popes within a while lost all their author ritic, which they had before time within this reline in the amounting of bishops, and other rulers of thurthes; and in like manner also they lost sportle after their authoritie of levieng tenths of spirituall promotions, the which they in former times had vied, to the great detriment of the realme, which lost nothing 60 by this new ordinance : for the English people were not compelled afterwards to depart with their monie buto ffrangers, fo largelie as before, to content the greedinesse of that comorant generation of Romaniffs, those infatiable befires would admit no frint, as infected with the dropfie of filthie auarice, for

Omnia des cupido, sua non perit inde cupido,

Quò plus funt pot e plus striuntur aque. This retraining reformation concerned the bene-This gaining Elis retiraining recommation contest. Delivare the other flames of the thole land berie much: for 18. Odloard the spinning there was the first that caused an act to be made, that none under a great penaltie Could fæke to obteine anie spirituall promotions within this realine of the pope, or bring anie lutes to his court, except by wate of appeale: and that those that were the alvers of any fuch offendors against this act, thould run in danger of the same paine, which are by those hings that succoded was not onelie commanded to be kept, but ale to confirmed with new penalties, and is called the Catute of Perminire.

About Candlemasse there neet at Bruges as commillioners for the king of England, the duke of Lan, Anno Reg. 49. caffer, the earle of Salifburie, and the biffiop of Lons don. For the French king, the dukes of Amon, and Burgognie, the earle of Salebince, and the bishop of at Bruges. Amicus with others. Hinal'ie, then they could not agræ bpon ante god conclusion for peace, they accorded bpon a truce to indure to the first of Daie Atruce callen next influing in all the marches of Calis, and by to betwee Engthe water of Some, but the other places were at li- land & Frace. bertie to be ftill in warre: by report of other writers, Fabian. the truce was agreed byon to continue till the feaff of All faints nert infining. About the same time that Froiffard. the foresaid commissioners were at Bruges intreating of peace, the duke of Britaine did so much with his father in law king Coward, that about the beginning of Apaill he fent ouer with him into 15:16 taine the earles of Cambridge , Parch, Wartinike, In armie fens and Stafford, the lood Spenfer, fir Thomas Poliand, ouer into fir Picholas Camois, fir Coward Twiford, fir Mi taine with the chard Ponchardon, fir John Leffelles, fir Thomas duke. Grandlon, fir Hugh Pallings, and diverse other worthie capteins with a power of their thousand arthers, and two thousand men of armes, all veric well furnished to fight.

They landed at faint Watthews or Wahe de fine Poterne, where they take the castell by force, and the towns by farrender. From thence they went to Cowns from Pole de Lion, and wan it like wife by force of affault, and then went to Brieu de Claur, a tolone ffronglie fensed, and well manned. In hope yet to win it, the duke of Britaine and the English loods laid frege to it, but hearing that an English knight, one fir John Amon Sade dilapointed, and dodo; Simon Sudberie was ad. 40 Deureur was besteged in a fortresse uhich be had Heureup. newlie made, by the vicount of Koan, the L. Cliffon, and other of the French part, they railed from Brien de Claur, and halled forward to the fuccor of fir John Deureur, erneftlie withing to find their enimies in the field, that they might give them battell : but the British loads hearing that the duke and the Englishmen appoched, made no longer abode, but got them with all speed buto Campellie a towne of great Arength not farre off, and therein closed themselves for their more fafetie. The duke of Britaine hearing that they were fled thither, followed them, and laid This truce fregeround about the towne, inforcing himselfe to was common obteine the place, and so had done in deed by all like, to induce from libod verie thoetlie, if at the fame time, by reason of midsummer in a truce taken for twelve moneths, he had not beine bato midfilms commanded by the duke of Lancaffer, without des mer ind peace laie to cease his war, and breake op his campe: as merinfiling. Tho. Walli,

There were fundzie meetings of the commissioners for this treatic of peace, and Mill they twhe longer time for continuance of the truce. And bicause that Writaine and all the other countries of France (as should seeme) were included in this truce, it seemeth that this was some second trace, and not the first truce, which included onclie the marches of Calis, and those parts by to the water of Some. But how focuer it was, the duke of Britaine being in a great forwardnesse to have recovered his dudie out of the Frenchmens hands, and to have reduced his rebellious lubieds binder due obeifance againe, was now by this truce concluded out of time, greatlic difap, pointed, and fo brake up his flege from before Campellie, and fent home the English armie . He went appointed by himselse to Aulroie, where his wife was; and taking the truce.

Caxton. 1:75

The commif= fioners meet

Bir John

00, 25.97 00, 12.97

The take of 25:itaine Dif-

order for the fortifieng and keeping of those places, which mere in his policition, he came backe againe into Engiand, and brought his wife with him.

A little before the concluding of this truce, the Englithmen and others within the fortrelle of faint Sav mour le vicount, in the Ile or rather Close (as they call it) of Constantine, which had beene long besies ged, made a composition, that if they were not resem ed by a certeine date, then thould they yield by the place to the Frenchmen. Pow bicaule this truce 1 was agreed before the date appointed for the relew of that place, with condition that either part Chould intop and hold that which at that prefent they had in pollellion, during the terms of the truce; the English men thought that faint Sautour le vicount Coulo be fauco by reason of that treatie: but the Frenchmen to the contrarie anouthed, that the first covenant ought to passe the last oppinance. So that when the daie approched, the French king fent thither fix thow ple: and bicause none appeared to give them battell, they had the tolune delivered to them.

Thom.Walf. Fabian.

தி. திautour

le vicount

vaided.

The lord Bpenier be= parteth this life.
Polydor.
The earle of Denbroke becealleth.

John Stow.

Froiffard. Commissio: mon of peace.

The bemade

In this 40 yeare of B. Colwards reigne, a great death chanced in this land, and in dinerle other countries, fo that innumerable numbers of people died and periffed of that contagious lickenelle. Amongst other the load Colward Spenfer died the fame peare, a man of great renowine and valiantnelle. Also the earle of Penbroke, having compounded for his ranfome, as he was bpon his returne from Spaine, 3 comming homewards through France, he fell ficke, and being brought in an horffelitter to Arras, he di ed there, on the 16 date of Aprill, leaving a sonne behind him not past two yeares of age, begot of the countesse his wife called Anne, daughter buto the lord Walter de Mannie. Polydor millaking the matter, faith that Barie the counteffe of Penbroke, who builded Penbroke hall in Cambridge, was wife to this John Halfings carle of Penbroke, thereas in deed the was wife to his ancesto, Aimer 40 bout the age of fourteene yeares, foure pence, pope de Malence carle of Penbroke (as Iohn Stow in his fummarie hath trulie noted.) She was daughter to Supearle of faint Pole, a worthic ladie and a vertuous, tendering so much the wealthfull state of this land (a great part wherof confisteth in the good brings ing up of youth, and training them to the knowledge of learning)that for maintenance of fluvents the began the forfaid commendable foundation, about the yeare of Chilf 1 3 4 3, bpon a plot of ground that was hir owne, having purchased licence thereto of 50 not diligent in furthering that lone, he was by the the king, to whom the was of kin. During that greenous mortalitie and cruell peff lence before remembred, the pope at the inflant request of the English cardinals, granted buto all those that died in England, being shatten and repentant of their finnes, cleane remiffion of the fame, by two buls inclosed boder lead. The duke of Lancafier about the feast of All faints met with the French nersetitiones committioners againe at Bruges. There was with him the duke of Britaine, the earle of Salifburie, 60 and the bishop of London. For the French king there appeared the duke of Burgognie, the earle of Salebuch, and the bilhop of Amicus. And at faint Dmers laie the duke of Anion, the archbilhop of Kauenna, and the bishop of Carpentras twie great paine to go to and fro betweene the parties: but they were to far at ods in their demands, and as it were of fet purpose on the French behalfe, that no god could bedome betwirt them. The French king required to have Calis raced, and to have againe fourtene hunbeed thousand franks, which were paid for the ranfome of king John. The king of England demanded to have all the lands reffored to him in Galcoigne and Guien clerelie crempt of all relogts. Souven nothing could be concluded touching a finall peace, the truce was renewed to indure till the feaff of $ John Baptiff next inluing, which thould be in the yeare 1376.

In this fiftith years, king Colvard affembled his high court of parlement at Welfiminster, in the Annual Ann uhich was demanded a subsidie of the commons so: 3 parties the defense of the kings dominions against his entmies. Thereinto answer was made by the common house, that they might no longer beare such tharges, confidering the manifold burthens by them fuffet ned in time paft. And further they faid, it was well knowne the king was rich inough to with frand his enimies, if his monie and treasure were well imploje ed : but the land had beene of long time cuill guided by euill officers, so that the same could not be stored with chaffer, merchandize, or other riches. The commons also declared whom they toke and judged to be Ehelph there causer of this disorder, as the duke of Lanca. fand speares, hinghts, and esquiers, beside other peo 20 feer, 4 the L. Latimer lood chamberleine to the king, parts also dame Alice Perers, whom the king had long ou king time kept to his concubine; and also one named fir Sum. Richard Sturrie, by whose finister meanes and cuil counsell the king was milled, and the land cuill go uerned. Therefore the commons by the mouth of their speaker ar Pers de la Were, required that Chemul those persons might be removed from the king, and mong, other more discreet fet in their romes about his perfon, and so put in authoritie, that they might se to his o honour and weale of the realine, moze than the other had done before them.

Mis request of the commons by support of the prince was allowed, and granted, fo that the faid perfons and other of their affinitie were commanded to depart the court, and other (such as were thought met by the prince, and the fage peres of the realine) were placed in their freds. Shortlie after, the commons granted to the king his whole request, so that be had of euerie person, man and woman, being as people that lived of almette onelie ercepted. Alike wife the cleargie granted, that of enerie beneficed man, the king should have twelve pence, and of ever rie priest not beneficed foure pence (the foure orders of friers onelie ercepted.) But per this monie could be lettied, the king was confiremed to borrow certeine great fummes in fundzie places, and therefore he sent to the citie of London for foure thousand pounds. And bicaufe Adam Staple the maiorivas kings commandement discharged on the 22 daicof Parch, and Kichard Whitington mercer chosen in his place.

On the eight of June being Trinitie lundaie (the The black parlement yet continuing) that noble and famous princeupppince Coward the kings sonne departed this life teththak within the kings palace at Westminster. Dis bocie was conneced to Canturburie with great folemuly tie, and there honozablie buried. He died in the 46 yeare of his age: a prince of such ercellent demeas polydon nour, so valiant, wife and politike in his doings, that the internal the verie and perfect representation of knighthod ap at Camp peared most livelie in his person, whiles he lived, so that the loss as him and that the loss as him and that the losse of him stroke a generall socrow into the harts of all the English nation. For such was his towardnesse, or rather perfection in princelie go uernement, that if he had lived and atteined to the crowne, euerie man sudged that he would sucre lie have excéded the glorious renowne of all his ancestors. This princes death is brefelie touched by C. Okland, who (after mention made of the great victories atchined by his father the king against his enimies, and concluding him to be verie hap pie and fortunate in the titue of his attempts) faith

anchius

Froiffard.

ime.

The trucs prolonged. Polydor.

Eriot.

_inclytus ille monarcha undig ter fælix, nisi quod trux Atropos occat Ante diem gnati fatalia stamina vita.

The French king kept his obsequie in most reue reno wife, in the chapell of his palace at Paris. Af ter his death, the king called to him againe the force faid perfons, that had beene from him remoued , and the fato fir poers de la Pere that was fpeaker in the parlement (as before per haue hard) for his eloquence pir Parsbe thewed in reproving the milgouernment of the fato persons (and namelic of the faid dame Alice Peres) was nowcommitted to prison within the castell of Potingham . About the same time the truce was a gaine prolonged till the first date of Appill nert following . Thing Coward, affer the deceaffe of his fonne prince Coward, created the lood Kichard, fonne to the lato prince, as beire to him, prince of Wales, and gaue to him the earledomes of Cheller & Come. wall. Popozeouer, bicaufe the king wared feble and the death of his sonne, he appointed the rule of the reline to his sonne the duke of Lancatter, ordeining him as governour boder him, and so be continued during his fathers life.

Agreat riot hamened betwirt the fernants of the earle of Warinike, and the tenants of the abbat of Quesham, so that manie of the fato abbats feruants were flaine and hurt . The filly-ponds and warrens belonging to the abbie were broken and spoiled, fo that areater burt would have followed thereof, if the 2 hings letters had not beene fent downe to the earle, commanding him to fair his men from fuch milde meanours. All the nobles of the realme were canfeo to fweare, that after the kings deceafe they fhuld admit and mainteine Richard prince of Wales for their king and fouereigne load. And bpon Chailf. malle day, the king caused him to fit at his table aboue all his owne children, in high effate, as reprefenting the personage of the heire apparant to the crowne.

This yeare being the one and fiftith and last of king Cowards reigne, there were fent againe to Bruges as commissioners to treat of peace on the part of Comfliences king Coward, John loed Cobham, the bishop of He. the Hugest reford, and the mater of London. And for the French part thither came the earle of Salebauch, monfieur de Chatillon, and Phillibert Lespoit. And still the two legats were prefent as mediatours betwirt the par. ties, mouing a mariage to be had, betwirt Kichard r Chat the facrament of the altar, after conspicuo of Wales, and the ladic Parie, daughter to 50 focration, was not the bodie of Chiff, but a figure cheby wis a three front king. But then deported in fundants the French king. But they departed in funder for his time without anie conclusion. But sportlie after Comfliences in Lent following, there was a fecret mæting apkinto Mons pointed to be had at Pontreulli by the sea, whither came from the king of England, fir Richard Dans glea Poidouine, fir Hichard Stan, & Geffrie Chaw cer. For the French king there ameared the lood Coucie, and others. These commissioners treated a long feason concerning the mariage, and when they had understanding and felt each others meaning, 60 they departed and made report of the same to their mailters. The truce was againe prolonged till the first date of Paie.

And in the meane time, the earle of Salifburie, the bishop of faint Davie loss chancellour of England, and the bishop of Hereford went over to Calis. In like case the losd of Coucie, and six William Doman chancelloz of France came to Pontrenill. But they durff not meet at anie indifferent place on the frontiers, for the boubt that either partie had of other, for anie thing the legats could fair or do. Thus thele commissioners above in that state till the truce was crpired. And when the warre was open, then fix yugh Caluerlic was fent over to Calis, to remaine bpon safe képing of that towne, as deputie there. The earle of Salisburie, and the other commission ners returned into England, and with them the duke of Britaine. On the twelfth day of Aprill this Tho. Walfi, yeare, one fir John Hinsterworth knight, was fabian. drawne, hanged, headed, and quartered at Tiborne, Bir John being first condemned and adjudged to luffer that er morth he ecution before the maior of London, and other the worth bea kings fulfices in the Buildhall, for treason by him committed, in defrauding fouldiers of their wages: for where he had received great fummes of monie to make paiment thereof to them, he reteined the fame to his omne hie.

Moreover (as in the forthe foure yeare of this king Thom, Wall pe have heard)he was the cheefe procurer and fetter forward of the diffention that role in the armie, which bnder the leading of fir Kobert Unolles was fent into France. And when in that fournie be had loft most of his men , and was escaped himselfe into Eng. fichlie through langer (as some supose) conceived for 20 land, he late all the blame on fir Robert Brolles, acculing him to the king of heinous treason; to as the king toke no small displeasure against the said six Robert, insomuch that he durst not returne into England, till he had pacified the kings weath with monie, and that the knowne fidelitie of the man had warranted him against the malicious and butrue fuggestions of his enimies . Wherebpon the faid Pinsterworth perceiving his craft to want the wie thed fuccesse, he fled to the Prench king, and confple ring with him to annote the realme of England by bringing the Spanish naute to inuade the fame, at length he was taken in the towne of Pampilona in Pauarre, and brought backe into England, where he talled the deferued fruit of his contriued treason (as before pée baue heard.)

About this featon, there role in the butuerlitie of Thom, Walfi, Drenfoeda learned man John Wiclife, boene in John wiclife the north parts, who being a fecular preft, and a ffudent in divinitie, began to propone certeine conclu-Cons greatlie contrarie to the doctrine of the church in those daies established, speciallie he argued as gainst monks, and other men of religion that iniois ed great riches, and large possessions. There were diverse that gave god eare to him, insomuch that fundate learned men of that butuerlitte preached and let footh the doctrine that he taught. Among & other articles which they held, these were the cheese and principall.

thereof.

2 That the durch of Rome was no moze head of the bniverfall church than any one other, noz moze authozitie was given by Christ buto Pocter, than to anie other of the apostles, and that the pope had no more power in the keies of the thurth than anie other preft that foener.

3 That tempozall loods might both lawfullie and meritoziousie take the tempozall gods and reuenues from the church, if it offended; and if anie temporall look knew the church to offend, he was bound under vaine of Damnation to take from it the tempozalties.

4 That the golpell is lufficient in this life to ob red by rule enerie chaillian man.

5 That all other rules of faints, bnder the obferuing whereof oluers religious do live, ad no more perfection to the golpell, than wathing over with lime doth the wall.

6 That the pope, not ante other prelat of the church, ought to have ante pulous wherein to punith offendors.

Thele and manie other opinions did thele men hold and mainteine, and diverse loads and great men of the land favoured their cause. But when these conclusions were brought before the pope, he condems ncothe number of 23 of those articles as value and hereticall, directing his buls to the archbishop of Tanturburie, and to the bilhop of London, that they thould cause the said Wiclise to be apprehended, and cramined byon the faid conclusions, which they did in presence of the duke of Lancaster, and the load Percie, and hearing his declaration, commanded him to filence, and in no wife to deale with those matters 1 wichte # his from thencefooth, so that for a time, both he and his tened by cer felloines kept filence: but after at the contemplation on of diverse of the temporall loods, they preached and let forth their boarine againe.

Che truce

teine lozde.

The ruke of Danger by the Londoners.

The load Dercie.

The fame day that Wichife was convented thus at London, before the bilhops and other lords, tho. rough a wood spoken in reproch by the duke of Lancaffer buto the bilhop of London, freightwaies the Londoners getting them to armour, meant to have flaine the buke, t if the bishop had not faid them, they had werlie fet fire on the dukes houle at the Sauvie: and with much ado might the bilhop quiet them. A mong other reprochfull parts which in despite of the duke they committed, they caused his armes in the publike firet to be reverled as if he had bene a trais to2,02 fonce noto2ious offendo2. The buke and the lo20 Denrie Percie, whom the citizens fought in his owne house to have flaine him, if he had been found, hearing of this riotous flur and rebellious commotion, forloke their binner and fled to Benington, where the load Richard, some to the paince, togither with his mother then remained, erhibiting before their presence, a grieuous complaint of the opprobate ous ininvies done onto them, by the wilfull outrage of the Londoners. For this and other causes, the citizens were foze hated of the duke, in fo much that he caused the maior aldermen that then ruled to be dif charged of their romes, and other put in their places.

The king being more grienoullie vered with ficknest from date to date, either increasing by the 40 courle therof, or renewed by some new surfet, finallie this peare departed out of this transitozie life at his manour of Sheene, now called Kichmond, the 21 The deceale date of June, in the years or our 2011/3/13 of it. Edward he had lived 65 years, reigned liftie years, fours Shoene by his foure formes, namelie L fonell duke of Clarence, John of Bant buke of Lancaffer, Co. mund of Langlie duke of Poske, and Thomas of Modfoke carle of Cambitoge, with other nobles of the realme, and folemnelie interred within Welf. minster church, with this epitath in his memoriall:

Hic deciu Anglorum, flos regum præteritorum, Forma futurorum, rex clemens, pax populorum, Tertius Edwardus, regni complens iubileum, I nuictus pardus, pollens bellis Machabeum.

this iffue.

Tho.Walfi.

Fabian,pag.

262,263.

He had iffue by his wife quane Hillip 7 fonnes, Coward prince of Males, William of Hatfield that die ed young, Lionell duke of Clarence, John of Gant buke of Lancaster, Comund of Langlie earle of 60 Cambridge & after created duke of Porke, Thomas of Modfoke erle of Buckingham after made duke of Glocester, and an other William which died likes wife young. He had also there daughters, Parie that was maried to John of Mountford duke of Bits taine, Isabell wedded to the lord Coucie carle of Bedford, and Pargaret coupled in mariage with the carle of Benbroke.

Dis praife.

This king, besides other his giffs of nature, was aided greatlie by his fæmelie personage. He had a provident wit, tharpe to conceive and understand: he was courteous and gentle, dwing all things fage. lie and with good confideration, a man of great temperance and sobjectie. Those he chiefelie fauoured and advanced to honour, and romes of high dignitic. which excelled in honelt convertation, modefite, and innocencie of life, of bodie well made, of a conucni ent flature, as neither of the highest nor lowest fort:

manlike, eies bright and chining. ent flature, as nonger of the bright and thining, this part of face faire and manlike, eies bright and thining, this part of face faire and manlike, eies bright and thining thinks and in age bald, but fo as it was rather a fermilineffe to those his ancient yeares than any disfiguring fo bis vilage; in knowledge of martiall affaires veric fkilfull, as the enterprices and worthic acts by him at: chined do lufficientlie witnedle.

In what estimation he was had among Grangers it may aweare, in that he was not onelie made bi car of the empire by the emperour Lewes of Ba. ntere, but also after the occease of the same emperour diverte of the electours, as Lewes marques of Brandenbourgh, Robert of Rupert count Palatine of the Rhene, and the young duke of Saronie, with Benrie archbithop of Mentz, elected him to fuccio in place of the fato emperour Lewes. Deuerthe, lette, he giving them hartie thanks for the honour which they did but bim herein, refused to take the charge opon him, allenging that he could not have time to suplie the rome, by reason of the warres that he had in France, to recour his right which he had to that realme.

This is noted by writers to be a token of great wifedome in this noble king, that would not go a bout to catch more than he might well gripe. Cramples of bountious liberalitie, and great clemencie he the wed manie, and the fame veris notable; fo that in maner he alone amongst all other kings was found to be one subject to none, or at the least, to verielight and small faults. But yet he was not boid of enill haps: for thereas, during the terme of fortic yeares space he reigned in high felicitie, and as one hapie in all his doings : so in the rest of his time that followed, he felt a wonderfull change in fortune (whom writers compare to the mone for hir variablenesse, hustable and often alterations, as neuer at a ffaie, faieng, Vultus fortuna variatur imagine luna, Crescit, decrescit, in codem sistere nescit)

thewing hir felfe froward to him in most part of his proceedings: for fuch is the state of this world, seldome doth prosperitie continue, and guide the sterne of our worldie doings, as it well appeared by this noble prince. For in the first peares of his reigne, af ter be once began to gouerne of himfelfe, he recoues red that which had beene lost in Scotland, by great bidoxies obteined against his adversaries in that land, and passed further into the same, than ever his grandfather king Coward the first had done before him, subduing the countrie on each hand, so that he placed governozs, and best offices, lands, and liv uings in that realme at his pleasure.

Amongst other (as Fremember)there is petremaining a charter bnoer his great feale conteining Iohn Stort a grant made buto John Gure and his heires for his on continu god feruice done in those parts, of a manour called to the Betties in the countie of Forest (Section 1) ketnes in the countie of Forfar (which lieth in the pentals north of Scotland) with a market everie mondale, Count and a faire for thee dates togither at Wichaelmalle, fil. as the even, the date, and the morrow after. Also he granted to the same John Eure, fræ warren thos roughout the same loodship. This John Gure was ancestor buto the lord Qure that now liveth, who hath the same charter in his possession. As for this kings bictories in France, the same were such as might sæme incredible, if the consent of all luxiters in that age confirmed not the same. But as these victories were glorious, so yet they proued not so profitable in the end : for whereas he had sore burdened his subiects with taskes and subsidies, at length they wared wearie, and began to withdraw their forward minds to helpe him with such summes

as had being requilit for the maintenance of the warres, which the Frenchmen prolonged of purpole, and refused to trie their fortune any more in pight ficlos, where when he was confireined to be at contimuall charges in fuch lingering warres, to befend that which he had erff gotten by force, and couenants of the peace; the fine wes of warre, to wit monie, be, gan to faile him , and fo the enimics reconered a great part of that which before time they had loft,

This must needs be a great greefe buto a prince of such a stout and valiant stomach, namelie sith he had beene fo long time before accustomed to find for tune fill to favourable buto him in all his enterpile les. But finallie the thing that most græued bim. was the loffe of that most noble gentleman, his dere fonne prince Coward, in whom was found all parts that might be wither in a worthie gouernour. But his old yeares, might fæme to come to paffe for a renenge of his disobedience thewed to his father in b furning against him, although it might be said, that he did it by confireint, and through the adulte of others. But whether the remorfe hereof, or of his other offenfes moued him, it may freme (as some write) that the confideration of this worlds mutabilitie. which he tried to the full, caused him (as is thought) to have in mino the life in the world to come, and there, ledge of faint Stechan at Westminster, and another at Cambridge called The kings hall, giving therebuto lands and revenues, to the mainter nance of them that would give themselves unto learning.

Lowards the maintenance of his warres, and furnishing forth of such other charges and expenses as he toke in hand to beare out, he had some helpe by the filner mines in Denonthire and Comewall, inlike manner as his grandfather king Coward 40 the first had. For one Watthew Crowthorne keper of his mines in those parts, yelved diverse accounts of the issues and profits of the same, betweene the see cond and fifteenth years of his reigne, as well for the filuer as for the lead, after the filuer was fined from it. Also John Poneron succeeding in the fame office, accomptant of the profits of the fame mines, from Michaelmalle in the nineteenth yeare of his reigne, but the second of Ponember in the three and twentith years, peloco byon his accounts, both the filuer 50 and the lead thereof remaining. Poseouer he let by indenture in the two and thirtith peare of his reigne, buto John Ballancer, and Walter Goldbeater, his mines of gold, filuer, and copper, in the countie of Denonthire, for terme of years. There is an account thereof remaining, and by the same (as it awcareth) was answered for the first years twentie markes. The second yeare the patenties died, and the king then disposed the same to others . In the eight and twentith years of his reigne, he committed by in, 60 denture his faid mines in Deuonshire, to one mais fer John Hanner, and one Herman Kainefhorpe of Boheme, minors, yielding to the king the tenth part of the care, as well of the gold and filner, as of the lead and copper that thould be gotten forth of the faid mines.

In this kings dates, there lived manie excellent men, both in learning, in vertue, and in martiall prowelle, as partlie is touched in this discourse of his reigne; and first, the said noble and most valiant king, the prince of Males his some surnamed the blacke prince, the duke of Lancaster John of Gant fonne to the king, and his father in law duke Henrie, Commo carle of Cambridge, and affer duke of

Porke, the earles of Wartwike, Huntington, Salic burie, Stafford, Porthampton, Arundell and others; the load Reginalo Cobham, the load Battet, the load Thomas Holland, the lood Walter de Mannie and Hennier, the lood Edward Spenfer, the lood John Chandois, the load James Audeley, Sir John Cops land, fir Thomas Felton, fir Robert knolles , tho (as I have faid) being borne in Chethire of meane parentage, through his manlie prowers, and most both on the further five the feas, and likewife in 10 failfull experience in the warres, grew to be right famous.

Pozeouer, fir Hugh Caluerlie bogne in the fame thire, the capitall de Beufe a Galcoigne, fir Thomas Percie, fir Bugh Haffings, fir Balowine Freuilt. fir John Harleston , fir James Pipe , fir Thomas Dagworth, & that valiant English knight fir John Hawkewod, whole fame in the parts of Italie thall remaine for euer, where (as their hillories make mention)he grew to such estimation for his valiant this and other mithaps that chanced to him now in 20 atchined enterprises, that hapie might that prince or common-wealth accompt themselves, that might have his fervice, and foliving there in fuch reputation on, fointimes he ferued the pope, fointimes the lords of Millane, now this prince or common-wealth, now that, and other whiles none at all, but taking one towne or other, would keepe the same, till some liking enterteinment were offered, and then would he fell such a towne, where he had thus remained, to them that would give him for it according to his forcof a pure denotion founded the church and cole 30 mind. Barnabe lood of Millane gave but him one of his bale daughters in marriage, with an honorable postion for hir dower.

This man was borne in Offer (as some write) who at the first became a tailor in London, a afterwards going to the warres in France, served in the rome of an archer, but at length he became a capteine and leaver of men of war, highlic commended and liked of amongst the souldiers, in so much that, when by the peace concluded at Bretignie, in the years 1 260. great numbers of foldiers were discharged out of wages, they got themselves togither in companies, and without commandement of any prince, by whole authoritie they might make warre, they fell to of themselves, and soze harried and spoiled diverse countries in the realme of France, as partlie vée have heard : amongt whome this fir John Hawke, wod was one of the principall capteins, and length went into Italie, to ferue the marques of Montfere rato, against the duke of Pillane: although Free member that some write, how he came into that countrie with the duke of Clarence, but I thinke the former report be true: but it may well be, that he was readie to attend the faid duke at his comming into Italie. And thus much concerning such famous capteins as served this noble king Coward the third, although for brefenelle I palle oner diverse o. ther, no lefte famous and worthie for their high mans hod and tried valiancie to be remembred, than thefe afoze mentioned.

Dflearned men , thefe we find by Iohn Bale re, giffred in the Centuries; John Baconthrop borne in Blackney in Porthfolke, a frier Carmelite, and provincial of his order, so ercellentlie learned, as well in divinitie, as in both the civill and canon lawes, that he proceded dodor in either facultie at Drenford and Paris, and wrote diverse treatifes, to his high and lingular commendation; William Dc. kam, John Blorham a Carmelite frier, Dicholas Artuet boine in Porthfolke , sonne to fir Domas Trinet knight, tone of the kings infficiers, proucd excellentlie learned, and wrote diverfe treatifes, and amongs other, two histories, and one bake of ans nales, he was by profession a blacke frier, and beparted this life about the second years of this king

Miner of

Coward the third, in the years of Chaiff 1328; Will liam Alnewike borne in Porthumberland, in the towne whereof he twhe name, a frier Pinoz; John Tanet borne in the Ile of Tanet, an ercellent mulician, and a monke in Canturburie; Bugh of faint Beot, a Carmelite frier in Bertforothire, a notable dinine as those daies gave; William Alton borne in Dampfhire a blacke frier and a divine.

furthermoze, Richard Stradley borne in the marthes of Wales, a monke and a divine, writing cer, 10 teine treatifes of the fcripture; William Derbert a Welthman and a frier Pinoz, wzote also certeine godlie treatifes of divinitie; Richard Comings ton a frier of the order of the Tordeliers, a preacher, and a writer of divinitie; Milliam Greter a Doc, tor of diminitie, and a prebendarie canon in Gres ter, whereas it is thought he was borne; Lucas Bolden a westerne man, and by profesion a Carmelite frier; Thomas Walleis a Dominike frier a great divine, as by such bokes as he wrote it may 20 borne in Lincolneshire a Carmelite or white frier. appeare, Thomas Pontius a monke of Canturbus rie, John Rivelwall a graie frier , Henrie Costesay oz Costey a frier Pinoz, Gestrie Aleuant bozne in Pockelhire, a frier Carmelite; John Buerfoen, a monke in Burie in Suffolke, an historiographer; Simon Burneston, a dodoz of the Aniuerlitie of Cambiloge, and provinciall of the friers Dominike or blacke friers, as they called them here in England; Malter Burlie a doctor of diuinitie, who in his pouth was brought by, not onlie in Partine college 30 borne, a Franciscane or graie frier; John of Porthe in Drford, but also in the Univertities and scholes a broad beyond the feas, in France and Bermanie, & afterwards for his wifedome, god demeanor & learning, he was reteined with the bilhop of Almes in Suabenland, a region in high Bermanie.

Amongst other treatises which he compiled, being manie, and namelie of naturall philosophie, he wrote a commentarie of the ethikes of Aristotle, and dedicated the fame buto the faid biffon, a worke which hath beene highlie essemed, not onelie in the 40 Univerlities of Italie, Germanic and France, but also here in our Universities of England. To conclude, such was the same of this doctor Burlie, that when the ladie Philip, daughter to the earle of Detnault fould come ouer into England to be married to king Coward, this doctor Burlie was reteined by bir, and appointed to be hir almoner, and fo contimued in great estimation, in so much that after Co ward prince of Wales, eldeft sonne to king Coward commonlie called the blacke prince, was borne, and 50 wrote against the Pelagians; Richard Wether able to learne his bothe, the faid Burlie among o ther was commanded to be one of his instructors.

By reason hereof, fir Simon Burlie, of thom have made some mention heretofore in this kings life, and more intend to speake, as occasion ferueth in the nert king, being sonne to fir John Burlie, nere kiniman to the faid bodo: Burlie, was admitted as mong other young gentlemen, to be scholefelow with the faid prince, by occasion whereof he grew in such credit and favour with the faid prince, that after, 60 treatiles, he was first archdeacon of Lichfield, and wards when his son Richard of Burdeaur, that succeded king Coward his father, was borne, the faid prince for speciall trust and confidence which he had in the faid fir Simon Burlie, committed the gonernance + education of his fon the faid Richard buto him, whereby he was ever affer highlie in favour with the faid Richard, and no leffe advanced by him. when he came to intoy the crowne of this realme.

But now to other learned men of that age. John Barwike a frier Dinoz, and reader to his fellowes of that order in Orford; William Potingham, Roger Blacon, borne in Buntingtonthire, an Augustin frier; John Poleffed borne in Suffolke, a Carme lite frier in Ipswich or Gipeswich as they write it;

Malter Kingham a frier also of the order of those Dominikes, which they called pico friers; Roger of Chefter a monke of that citie and an historiograther; Thomas de Hales a frier Pinoz, Robert Ell that a grate frier, Beffrie Brandfield an Auguffine oz blacke frier, Hugh Wirlie a Carmelite frier of Pogwich, William: Cincourt a blacke frier of Bo. fton, Bugh Ditton borne in Cambridgefhire a frier preacher, Adam Carthulianus a doctor of dininitie, John Luttrell an ercellent philosopher and well some in the mathematicals, Walter Cotton and Thomas Eckleston both graie friers, John Foltham a Carmelite frier in Poswich, Benet of Posthfolke, Will. liam Southhampton to called of the towne where he was borne, a blacke frier.

Mozeover, John Burgh a monke wzote an ble ffozie, and certeine homilies; Abam Pidzard a mafer of art, Comund Albon, Kobert Counton a graie frier, William Liffie a frier Pinoz, John Repingale as they called them; Thattopher Dothulenlis a blacke frier, Kichard Aungeruile bozne in Suffolke, wo was bithop of Dureline, and load chancellog of Eng. land; John Panduith, Walter Peminford a canon of Bilbogne an hilfogiographer, John Dinie bogne in Glocestershire, in an Ile to called, thereof he toke his furname a Chartreur monke; Ahomas Stave haw a frier Dinoz in Brillow, Robert of Leiceller taking that surname of the towns where he was hampton borne in that towne, and a Carmelite frier, an ercellent mathematician.

Adde to the forefaid learned men, Mobert Willow for borne in Porkethire, and a blacke frier in Tic kill; William Brunfard a blacke frier, Richard Chi chefter, a monke of Westminster wzote an excellent chronicle, beginning the same at the comming in of the Sarons, about the yeare of our Lord 449, and continued it till the years 1 348; Richard Rolls alias Dampole an ercellent dinine wrote many treatiles; John Buent a Melfhman, a Franciscane frier, and provincial of the order; Robulth Radiptorius africe Pinoz, Kobert Polcotha blacke frier, boine in Pol thampton, excellentlie learned, and wrote manie works, both of diminitie and other arguments; Wil liam Diluerlie a logician ozrather a foshister, John Teukelburie, Thomas Bradwardin borne in Hart field, a towne within the diocesse of Chichester, arch bishop of Canturburie succeeding John Dfford, be fet , William Breton a graie frier, a Welthman borne, as Bale supposeth; John of faint Faith, borne in Porthfolke, a Carmelite frier of Brumham.

Kurthermoze, John Godwicke bozne also in Posthfolke, an Augustine frier of Lin; William Rothwell a blacke frier, Beffrie Waterton monke of Burie, Richard Fitz Kafe, whom some take to be an Irifhman, but a ftudent in Orfoed, and icholer to John Baconthrope profited highlie, & wrote manie after chancelloz of the Universitie of Drford, and at length archbishop of Aromachan in Ireland; Hi thard Bilington a boctoz of dininitie, William Ori fant a notable phylician, furnamed of the countrie where he was borne Anglicus, he led the later end of his life at Parseilles in Provance, that a son that was abbat of the regular canons of that citie, wo at length was advanced to governe the le of Rome, 4 named Arbane the fift; John Palchall bome in partification to the control of th Suffolke, a Carmelite frier in Gipelwich, and by 16. Coward the third preferred to the bishoprike of Landaffe; Adam Woodham a frier Dinoz, Simon Henton a blacke frier, William De Pagula; of John Wicliffe pe haue beard before.

Moreoutl,

Mozeoner , Beffrie Barbeble a blacke friet of Leiceffer, Milliam Binham , Roger Countivey a Welthman borne in Countrep a grey frier, Richard Billingham, William Dozoch a lawier, John Billingworth an ercellent pilolopher, aftronomer, and pplician; Millam of Couentrie a frier Carmetite, professed and borne in the fame citie; Kanulfe Dia den a monte of Cheffer and borne in those parts, an biffogiographer; John Gastwood alias Afchenton an ercellent wilosopher, Thomas Katchie boene trillef 10 celler, and an Augustine frier in Leicester towne; Bartholometo Glanuille descended of noble paren tage, as of the linage of those Blanuilles that were fometimes earles of Suffolke, as Bale faith; Kobert Computifia a monke of Burie, John Wilton a monke of Westminster, Simon Wichingham a frier Carmelite of Pogwich, John Deir a northerne man borne a notable diuine.

furthermoze, Simon Illep, founder of Cantur, burie colledge in Drenford, wrote diverle treatiles, 20 heinas archbishop of Canturburie, as befoze væ baue heard; George Chadley, John of Tinmouth bi car of that towne in the bilhoppike of Durham, De. ter Babion, Walter Wibozne oz Wimbozne, Die cholas de Lin boone in the towne of that name in Porthfolke, a Carmelite frier by profession, but as excellent an aftronomer as was in those dates: John Rivington bozne in Lincolnethire a friermis noz in Staffozd, Adam a monke of the Cifeaur oz ber, Roger Wihelpedale a mathematician, Simon 30 de Feuertham parlon of Birton in Bent, Patthew Westmonasterienses, who wrote the boke called Flores historiarum ; John Elin a Carmelite bozne in posthfolke, lived in thefe dates, but departed this life in king Richard the feconds dates; Thomas de Sturey an Augustine frier , Sertozious Gualentis a Welchman bozne.

and a gray frier, bimon de Cumilée a gray frier, bosne in Porthfolke, prontuctall of the gran friers in England, Thomas Stubs borne in Porkethire a blacke frier, Robert Langland a fecular priest borne in Salopfhire in Portimers Cliberie, Leives kaerleon's Willhman an ercellent aftronomer and mathema tician, John Garandin, Aicholas Durhama Car-mellte frier of Pewcallell, Ailliam Flex an hero mite wote fundate treatiles, erhosting his countrimen of England to repentance, to anoto the benge ance elle likelie to come ; John Stafford a frier mi noz, bome in Stafford, thereof he toke name; Eho. mas Rugffeed a blacke frier, Rafe Stribe avercels lent logician, William De landa Fine, 02 of faint Faith, so called of the towne in Posthfolke, where he was bome, a Carmelite frier.

To conclude, John Mandeuille knight, that great traveller, lived in those daies, and departed this life at Liege, the feventeenth of Povember in the peare 1372. Thomas of Douer a monke of the abbeie there, Henrie lanighton wrote an historic intituled De geftis Anglorum, John Stokes borne in Soffolke an Augustine frier, John Honnebie a frier Carmelite of Bolton , Henrie Bederike 02 (as other rather will) of Burie an Augustine frier, Simon Alcocke adicine, Afred Balton borne in the marches of Wales a monke of Durham, William Joedan an Augustine frier, John Wilton a frier minoz, Willie am de Lincolne a Carmelite, borne and professed in that citie, whereof he toke his lurname; Adam Sarlingham a frier of the fame order, but borne in Porthfolke; Simon Pepham a prebend of Chiche ffer, and a great dinine; John Bamton a Carme lite, and fudent in Cambridge; John Wichingham a gray frier: and diverse other, which for that we are not certeine in what age they lived, we here palle ouer.

Thus farre Edward the third, sonne to Edward the second and queene Isabell.

Richard the second, the second sonne to Edward prince of Wales.

Divard, called the blacke prince, the founce of king Co. ward the third, a child of the age of eleven yeares, began at o reigne ouer the realine of tith date of June, in the yeare of the world 5344, of our Lord 1377, after the conquett 310, about the two and thirtith pears of the emperour Charles the 50 fourth, and in the foureteenth yeare of Charles the fill king of France, and about the seventh yeare of the reigne of Robert the second king of Scotland:

Fabian

Ichard, the second of that 40 he was named Richard of Burdeam, bicause he name, and sonne to prince was borne at Burdeaur in Galcoigne, whilest his father ruled there. The day before it was understoo, that his grandfather king Edward was departed this life, being the one and twentith of June (on which daie neverthelesse he deceased) the citizens of Lone don having certeine knowledge that he could not The London escape his sichnesse, fent certeine albermen buto ners fent to Kingston, where the prince with his mother the prine K. Richard. celle then late, to beclare buto the fato prince their commending readie god wils, to accept him for their lawfull king themselues to and governour, immediatile after it should please fore fore peath of God to call to his mercie his grandfather, being & Coward, now past hope of recoverie of health. Wherefore they Aq.ij.

befought him, to have their citie recommended unto his god grace, and that it would please him to vilit the fame with his prefence chith they were readie in all forts to homour and obcie him, and to frend both liucs and gods in his caule, if need required; and the Horeover, they belought him, that it might plaste his grace to make an end of the discood betweet the citizens, and the bulle of Wancaster, which through the malice of some bad beine raised, to the commoditie of noncybut to the discommoditie of diverse. Then 10 John Philpot, one of the forefair alvermen, that had the words in all their names, had ended his oration, he was andwered by the prince and his conncell, that he would invenour himselfe in all things to satisfie theirrequests, and so were they sent home to bring a toifull answer of their message to the citie. The mos row after, there were fent to London from the king, the lord Latimer, fir Aicholas Bond, fir Simon Burlie, & fir Kichard Adderburie, knights: to bring them foroivfull neives of the affured death of king 20 Coward, who (as we have faid) deceased the day before; but comfortable newes againe, of the great towardinelle and good meaning of the young king, who promifed to love them and their cirie, and to come to the fame citie, as they had defired him to do. And further that he had spoken to the duke of Lancaster in their behalfe, and that the duke had submitted himfelfe to him in all things touching the cause; where op on the kings pleasure was, that they should like wife fubmit themscines, and he would do his indenoz, that 30 an agreement might be had to the hono; of the citizens, and profit of the citie.

The citizens liked not of this forme of proceeding in the onker matter, bicause the king was young, and could not give order therein, but by fubilitutes : pet at length with much ado, they were contented to furmit themselves, as the duke had done before; though not, till that the knights had undertaken by on their oth of fivelitie and knighthod, that their lub. million Chould not redound to the tempozall oz bodi 40 lie harme of any of them, confenting to the kings will in this point. And so with this caution they toke their tournie towards Shone, where they found the new Limith his mother, the duke of Lancaffer this beetheen, bucles to the king, and diverse bishops, as bout the bodie of the acceassed king. When it was knowen that the Londoners were come, they were called before the king, by whom the matter was fo handled, that the duke and they were made frænds. After this, when the king thould rive through the citie 50 towards the coconation, the faid duke and the local Percie riving on great horses before him, as by vertue of their offices amointed to make way before, by fed themselnes so courteoussie, modestite, and pleas fantlie, that where before they two were greatlie fulperted of the common people, by reason of their great pullance in the realme, and huge rout of reteiners. they ordered the matter to, that neither this day, nor the morrow after, being the bay of the kings corona. tion, they offended any maner of person, but rather 60 by gentle and sweet denieanour they reclaimed the barts of manie, of imome before they were greats lie had in suspicion, and thought evill of. Thut now, fith we are entred into the matter of this kings coronation, we have thought good bræfelie to touch some particular point thereof (as in Thomas Walfingham we find it) though nothing to largelie here, as the author himfelfe fetteth it forth, bicaufe the purpose of this worke will not so permit. The king, in riving thorough the citie towards Wellminster, on the 15 daie of Julie being wednes baie, was accompanied with fuch a traine of the nobilitie and others, as in such case was requisite. Sir Simon Burlie bare the fluord before him, and fir Ale cholses Midne leads the kings hooffe by the buble on fot. The finite of trumpois and other indruments inan marriellous, to that this feemed a day of for and this this paythat had beene long toked for, bicaufe it was hoped, that now the quietorbers and good lawes of theiland, which thosough the flouthfulnette of the a gen hing beceased, and combinishes of those that ruled about him, had beine long banithed, though now be remembed and brought agains in vie. The citic was adopted in all logis most richlie. The water conduits fun with wine for the space of their hours togither. In the opper end of Cheape, was a certeine castell made with foure towers, out of the which ca ffell, by two fides of it, there can fouth wine about Dantlie. In the towers were placed foure beautifull birgins, of flature and age like to the hing, apparelled in white bestures, in enerie tower one, the which blew in the kings face, at his approching neere to them, leaues of gold; and as he approched alfo, they threw on him and his horde florens of gold counterfeit.

When he was come before the castell, they take cups of gold, and filling them with wine at the spouts of the castell, presented the same to the king and to his nobles. On the top of the castell, betwirt the foure towers, flod a golden angell, holding a crowne in his hands, which was to contriued, that when the king came, he bowed downe a offered to him the crowns. But to freake of all the pageants and the wes which the citifens had caused to be made, and set forth in honour of their new king, it were superfluous; e uerie one in their quarters Artuing to furmount of ther, and so with great triumphing of citizens, and toy of the loads and noble men, he was conneced but to his palace at Westminster, where he rested for that night. The morrow after being thursdaie, and the 16 day of Aulie, he was fetcht to the church with procedion of the bilhops and monks, and comming before the high altar, where the panement was cons red with rich clothes of tapiffrie, he there knæled downe and made his praters, whilest two bishops fong the Letanie, which being finished, the king was brought to his feat, the quere finging an antheme, beginning, Firmetur manus tua.

That done, there was a fermon preached by a bithop touching the dutie of a king, how he ought to behave himselfe towards the people, and how the people ought to be obedient onto him. The fermon being ended, the king received his off before the archbilhop and nobles: which done, the archbishop having the loed Genrie Percie loed marthall going before him, turned him to everie quarter of the church, occlaring to the people the kings ofh, and demanding of them, if they would submit themselves but o such a prince governoz, and obcie his commandements: and when the people with a lowd voice had answered that they would obeie him, the archbishop bling ccrteine praires, bleffed the king; which ended, the arch bishop came buto him, and tearing his garments from the highest part to the lowest, striped him to his thirt. Then was brought by earles, a certeine co. nerture of cloth of gold, bnoer the which he remais ned, whilest he was annointed.

The archbishop (as we have faid) having striped him, first announced his hands, then his head, breft, Choulders, and the joints of his armes with the facted oile, faieng certeine praiers, and in the meane time did the queere fing the antheme, beginning, paxorunt regem salomonem, &c. And the archbilhop added and ther praier, Deus Dei films, Oc. Which enoco, he and the other bilhops fong the hymne veni creator firitus, the king knæling in a long besture, the archbishop with his luffraganes about him. When the hymne was ended, he was lift up by the archbishop, and clad first with the coate of faint Coward, and affer with his

John Philo

The buke of the Lödoners fubnit their quarels to the

The maner ? eider of the Ringa cozo= nation.

mantell,

mantell, a stoale being cast about his neake, the arth bithop in the meane time fateng certemepraters av pointed for the purpose Affen this, the archbilhop and bilhops nelinered to him the aword, lateng, Acope gladum, or.

When that praier was ended, time earles girded him with the fwood, which done, the archbifthop gave to him bracelets, faieng, Accipe armillas, coc. After this the archbithop oto put apon him an oppermote beffute, called a pall, faiang, Accipepallium, erc. In 1 the meane time, whilest the archbishop blessed the kings crowne , he to whole office it apperteined bid put ipurs on his beeles. After the crowne was bles fed, the archbithop fet it on his head, faterig, Corones te Dem, Co. Then did the archbilhop deliver to him a ring, with these woods, Acope annulum, Oc. Immedi atlie here with came the lood Furniuall by vertue of his office, offering to him a red glove, which the ardy bishop blessed, and putting it on his hand, gave to bim the Cepter, with thele words, Accipe sceptrum, &c. 20 Then did the archbishop beliver to him in his other band a rod, in the top whereof flod a doue, with thefe mords, Accipe virgam virtues, oc. After this the arche bishop blessed the king, laieng, Benedicat de Dens, Co.

Thefe things done, the king killed the bilhops and abbats, by whome he was lead afterwards buto his feat, the bishops beginning to sing (Te deum) which enoco, the archbilhop faid to him, sta or retine amodo beam, or . Withen these things were finished, they began maffe, the bilhop of Worceffer read the epiffle, 30 and the bishop of Elie the gospell. At the offertozie, the king role from his feat, and was brought to offer. De therfore offered first his fword, and after fo much gold as he would, but no lette than a marke, by reafon of the cultome; for more he might offer to God and S. Peter, but lette he could not. After this, he of fered bread and wine, with which he and the archbishop did after communicate. This done, the earle, to abome it americanes to beare the Award before the king, redeemed the fword which the king had offered 40 with monie, and receiving the fame, bare it afore the king. When malle thould be fong, the king was brought agains to the altar, a there kneeling bowns, mo lating Confiteor to the archbilhop, oid communite cate, and to was brought backe to his feat. The war. dens of the cinque ports by their office, as well in time of the procedion, as then he was announted allo at malle time, and as he returned from the church to the palace to dinner, held over him a large cano. pie of blew beluet, fastened buto foure staves at the 50 fonce comers.

In the meane time, fir John Dimmocke that clais med to be the kings champton, had been at the kings armozie and stable, where he had chosen according to his tenure, the best armour saue one, and the best fied faue one: albeit, fir Baldwine Frenill claimed the same office, but could not obtaine it; so that the faid fir John Dimmocke hauing armed himfelfe, and being mounted on horfebacke, came to the abeng his speare, and the other his Chield, Claicing there till malle thould be ended. But the lood Henrie Pers tie lost marthall, appointed to make wate before the king with the duke of Lancaster lood Steward, the load Thomas of Modficke load confiable, and the lood marthals brother fir Thomas Percie, being all mounted on great horffes , came to the knight, and tolohim, that he ought not to come at that time, but then the king was at dinner, and therefore it Chould be good for him to bnarme himselse for a while, and take his case and rest, till the amointed time were loves riving afore him, was borneen linights thoulbers unto his palace, and to had to his chamber, where he telled a while, being somewhat faint with trauell, and toke a fmall refection. After this, comming into the hall, he created some new carles, before he sa bouine to meat; to wit, his buck the loso Ahomas de Moloolfolie farle of Buckingham; to ubome het grace a thouland marks a peace out of his treasurie. till the provided him of lands to the like value . The lord Builhard De Cagoleline , that has beine his truto; was created earle of Huntington, to whome he gave likewife a thousand marks amuitie, till he were promoed of lands of like value. The lord Bows braie was created earle of Pottingham, and the lord Henrie Percie earle of Porthumberland. De made also nine knights the same baie.

The lunght did as the lood marthall willed him, and so after his departure, the king having those

To thew what rotall fernice was at this feath, if pallethour biderlanding to describe whit to comclude, the fare was exceeding fumptuous, and the fure ruture princelie in all things, that if the faine thould be rehearled, the reader would perhaps doubt of the fruth therof. In the midft of the kings palace was a marble piller ratice hollow byon freps, on the top whereof was a great gilt eagle placed, wider whose feet in the chapiter of the piller, divers kinds of wine came guthing footh at foure feuerall places all the date long, neither was ante forbidden to receive the fame, were he neuer so poze or abtent . On the more row after the coconation, there was a generall pros cession of the archbishop, bishop, and abbats them present, with the loads, and a great multitude of people, to praise for the king and the peace of the kingdome.

At the going footh of this procession, the bishop of Rochester preached, exhorting them, that the dissentions and discords which had long continued betwirt the people and their superiours, might be appealed and forgotten, prouting by manie arguments, that the fame highlie displeased God. He admonished the loads, not to be so extreme and hard towards the people. On the other part, he erhorted the people in nes cellarie caules, for the aid of the king and realme, cheerefullie, and without grudging, to put to their helping hands, according to their bounden duties. He further erhorted those in generall that were aps pointed to be about the king, that they should for fake vice, and fludie to live in cleanesse of life and vertue. For if by their example the king were trained to godnesse, all thould be well; but if he declined through their lufferance from the right wate, the people and kingdome were like to fall in danger to perith. After the fermon and procession were ended, the lords and prelats went to their longings.

But now, bicause the Englishmen thould have their totes mingled with some forrowes, it chanced that the Frenchmen (which about the same time that the kings grandfather departed this life, were was ting on the feas) within fir or feauen dates after his decease, burnt the towne of Rie. Where bon, smme Froillard. beiegates, with two riding before him, the one carrie 60 diatlie after the coronation, the earles of Cambridge this burnt by and Buckingham were fent with a power buto Do. & Frenchmen uer, and the earle of Salisburie buto Southampton: Tho. Walf, but in the meanetime, to wit, the one and twentith of The French August, the Frenchmen entring the Ile of Wight, menspoile burnt diverfe townes in the fame. And though they the It of were repelled from the castell, by the valiant man wight. hood of fir Hugh Tirrell capteine thercof, who late no Eircil, fmall number of them on the ground; yet they con-Arcined the men of the Ale to give them a thousand Froiffard. marks of filver to fave the refione of their houses Tho. Walfi. and gods, and fo they departed from thence, failing Portimouth, fill along the coffs, and where they faw advantage, Dartmouth, & fot on land hurring fundite falung noire for the floor, Plumouth, fet on land, burning fundzie towns niere to the floze, burning the as Portelmouth, Dartmouth, and Plimmouth.

Su bagh

French.

D q.iy.

Dep

Pallings

An ouerthrow gitten by the Frech to the Eng=

Che buke of Lancafter & the earle of Cambridge appointed protectors.

They made countenance allo to have let on South hampton, if fir John Arundell, brother to the earle of Arundell had not bone readie there with a numbed of men of armes and archers, by thom the towne was defended, and the enimies chaled to their thips. from thence the frenchmen departed, and failing towards Douer, burnt Pallings; but Winchellis they could not win, being valiantlie defended by the abbat of Battell, and others. After this, they landed one day not far from the abbeie of Lewes, at a place 1 called Rottington, where the prior of Lewes, and two knights, the one named fir Thomas Cheinie, and the other fir John Fallellic, hauing affembled a number of the countrie people, incountred the Frenchmen, but were overthrowen; so that there were flaine as bout an hundred Englithmen; and the prior, with the tipo knights, and an esquier called John Bzokas, were taken puloners, but pet the Frenchmen loft a great number of their owne men at this conflict, and so with their pulloners retired to their thips and gab 20 ning as he sat alone viewing the castell, and come lies, and affer returned into France.

But now touching the doings about the new k. You thall binderstand, that by reason of his young peares, as pet he was not able to gouerne himfelfe, and therefore John duke of Lancaffer, and Comund earle of Cambrioge, with other pieres of the realme, were amointed to have the administration. He was of and disposition and towardnesse, but his age being readie to incline which way weuer a man thould bend it, those that were amointed to have the governes 3 ment of his person, did that late in them now at the first, to keepe him from all maner of light demcanoz. But afferwards, when euerie one began to Audie more for his owne private commoditie, than for the aquancement of the common-wealth, they fet open the gates to other, which being readie to corrupt his god nature, by little and little grew familiar with him, and dimming the brightnesse of true honour, with the counterfeit thine of the contrarie, to malke readis understanding, that in the end they brought 40 him to tract the steps of lewd demeanor, and so were causers both of his and their owne destruction. This fameth to be touched by C.Okland, who speaking of the ocath of the old king and the erection of the new. faith of him according to our annales, as followeth:

In Angl. prel.

vndecimum puer hic nondum transegerat annum, Cum innenile caput gessit diademate cinclum. Qui postquam princeps iustis adolesserat annis, Dicere non facile est quantum distaret auitis Moribus atque animo, fuit hic quam disparemente, Dissimili ingenio clara matríque patríque.

The Frenchmen not ignozant of luch milchefes as were like to grow in England, suffered no time to valle, but twhe occasions of advantage when they were offered. Among other enterpiles I find, that Mortlie after the decease of king Edward, the duke of Burgognie wan Arde, and two or three other fortrelles in those marches. The Scots this yeare al Berwike ca= so wan the castell of Berwike by stealth one move ning, but thoutlie boon knowledge had, the earles of 60 Porthumberland and Potingham, the lords Demill, Lucie, Graiffoke, & Stafford, with other lords, knights, and equiers, came with their powers in all half thither, and entring the towne, belieged the cas fell, and finallie, affaulting them that kept it, wan it of them by force, and five all those Scotishmen which they found within it, except Alexander Kamfie their capteine. Then the Englithmen had thus recovered the caffell, they entered into Scotland, in hope to find the Scots, and to fight with them whom they knew to be affembled. The English host was thise thousand men of armes, & feuen thousand archers, but they fent forth fir Thomas Pulgraue with the hundled speares, and their hundred archers, to Wenton, to trie if he might binder frand any thing of the Scots in those parts, with whom the carle Doingias, having with In our him feuen hunozed speares; and two thousand of or throw the him feuin hundred them es, and other weapons, britisher called yomen with glaines and other weapons, britisher the called your more with the called your more weapons, but the called your more warmen to be called your more warmen. incountered by thatice and officed by time this come information panie. Sir Momas Quigraue hanfelfe, and fir fcore other, were taken puloners, belldes those that were flaine, the refioue escapes by flight, making the best o thist they could for the micians . The lord Penill, fir Thomas Eriuct, fit William Scrope, and dicerle or ther valiant capteins of England, were fent inti Balcoigne this yeare, which first landed at Burde, aur, on the even of the Patinitie of our ladie, where after they had refred them adule, they went and rate after they had refred them adule, they went and rate adults. fed the frege, which the Frenchmen had belo before railed Moztaigne in Poicton a long time before.

Bermilie ca: Stell recoue= red by the Englithmen.

Covernour of this flege at the first, was Puan or Diven of Wales, but he was murthered one more bing his head, by one of his owne countriemen, which brover colour to ferue him, was become with bim berie familiar. This Diven or Puan whether pe will (for all is one) was sonne to a noble man of Wales, whom is. Coward had put to death for some offenle by him committed, where this Puan got him into France, being as then verie pong, and was brought op in the French court, and provided an erpert man of warre, to that great lamentation was made for his death by the Frenchmen. But the Englithmen, although they milited the maner of his beath, pet they were not greatlie for owfull for the chance, lith they were rid thereby of an extreame enti-

After that the Englishmen had raised the Frendy men from the liege of Postaigne, they returned to Burdeaup, and after recovered lundite castels and fortrelles in the marches of Burdelois, and about Baionne. Also they after the king of Panarre, a gainst the king of Castile, and made a road into the confines of Calile. But hostlie after, a peace was concluded betwirt those two kings, so that the lood Charles of Pauarre Could marrie the daughter of the king of Castile byon certeine conditions : and fo the Englishmen had their wages trulie past them to their full contentation, and therebpon returned. About Dichaelmasse began a parlement that was a parle fummoned at Wieliminster, which continued till the Thom! fealt of faint Anosew. In this parlement the forefaid 50 fir Peter de la Were and other the knights that had beine to earnest against dame Alice Peres in the last parlement holden by king Edward the third, so profecuted the same cause now in this parlement, that the faid dame Alice Peres was banifyed the realme, and all hir gods moueable and bumoueable forfeited to the king, bicanfe contrarie to that the had promised by oth in the said last parlement, the had prefumed to come within the court, and to obteine of the king that foeuer was to hir liking.

There were two tenths granted by the clergie to the king in this parlement, and two fifteenes of the Case tempozaltie, to be paid the same yeare; and two citis zens of London, William Walworth, and John happen Philpot were amointed to have the keeping of that finish monie, to the end it might be imploied to the kings be part necessarie vies, for the vefence of the realme. Sir Hugh Caluerlie being deputie of Calis, comming Caluarity one morning to Bullongne, burnt certeine hips ballani which laie there in the hauen, to the number of fir and time twentie, belives two proper barkes, being beliels of no small accompt: and having spoiled and burnt the most part of the base tolune, he returned to Calis with a great rich botte of goos and cattell.

Allo, where the castell of warke, in absence of the capteine burnt.

Polydor.

Froiffard.

the Scorg.

fanc bate it

John wich:

Ein de Knigh n canon abbat.

S capteine fir Robert de Salle, that was gone ouer in. to England, was loft through negligence of them that were left in tharge within it; the fame fir Bugh Caluerlie made luch speed in the matter, that he reconcred it agains the fame date it was loft, by force of affault, taking the Frenchmen puloners that parketallell were gotten into it , and hanging certeine Picards fipendarie foldiers in the faid caffell, under the faid fir Robert de Salle, for that whilest the Englishmen were gone forth, to lie the thorting of a match which ro they had made amongst themselues, a little off from the castell, those Picards being left within, thut the gates against them, and received in the Frenchmen, with whome they had practiled in treason, keeping the Englishmen forth, to whome the fale keeping of that castell was committed.

This yeare was a bull fent from the pope buto the sminerlitic of Drenford, to apprehend John Wic. lifte, parson of Lutterworth in Lescetterthire, with in the diocesse of Lincolne . Also, there were other 2 bulles to the same effect, fent buto the archbishop of Canturburie, and to the bilhop of London. Likewife to the king were letters directed from the pope, to require his fanour against the faio Wickliffe, fo greeuoudie was the pope incenfed against him, and not without cante, for if his conclusions in doctrine toke effea, he well perceived his papificall authoritie would houtlie decaie. As for the popith cleargie, to them not onclie the feat but also the name of Wicks life was fo odious, that in recording his opinions 30 and fedarics, they exceed the bounds of all modeffie, aggravating such reports as they infer concerning him or his with more than hyperbolicall lies : as appercif by that long and tedious discourse which he wrote, that compiling certeine annales intituled De eventibus Anglia, prefireth this verse in the front of his volume, in letters of red vermilon, as defiring to have his name notozioullie knowne to the world;

Autoris nomen capitales littera pandunt: De(I fay) in that copious treatife having spoken as 40 malicioudie & viperoudie as he might both of Wick. liftes life, which he conclude th to be lewd; of his opto mons, which he anoutheth to be hereticall; and of his fauourers and followers, to whom (at his pleasure) he grueth onreverent epithets (all which to profecute at length, as by him they are in ample fort laid downe, would but defect the mans malignitie, and procure an overthrow of credit to be attributed buto his declarations) he maketh by his mouth with a trillichon of poeticall imitation, to bring Wickliffe 50 and his adherents into perpetuall obloquie and defamation, faleng as followeth in verle and profe;

Si totum membrana folum, calamus nemus omne, Et Thetis encaustum, scriptor omnis homo, Istorum facinus scribere non poterunt. Maledictus conuentus eorum, quoniam pertinax, propterea Dem destruat eos, in finem euellat, & emigrare faciat de sabernaculis fidelium suorum, O radicem corum de terra regni ; & hoc videant sufti, & lætentur ; vt dicere pofsint; Ecce populus qui se exaltauit super electos doctores Do- 60 mini, perauit in multitudine vanitatis sua : confundantur o pereant cum doctrina corum in aternum, &c. But of Mickliffes life and boarine to read at large, Fremit the reader to the aces and monuments of the thurth, published by maister Iohn Fox: and now will we returne to matters of fate and policie. There went fouth this yeare a verie great nauie of thips to the sea, wnder the guiding of the earle of Buckingham, the duke of Britaine, the losd Latio mer, the lood fitz Walter, fir Robert Unolles, and other valiant capteins, meaning to have intercepted the Spanish flet that was gone to Sluse in bracky time. Flanders, but thoseugh rage of tempest, and contrarie winds, they were driven home, although twife they attempted their fortune : but fir Dugh Caluer, Exploits lie beputie of Calis, flept not his bufinesse, doing done bylie bugh Calfill what displeasures he could to the Frenchmen, ucrlic, Shortlie after Christmasse, he spoiled the towns of Estaples the same date the faire was kept there, to which a great number of merchants of Bullongne were come to make their markets, but the fellers had quicke ofterance, for that that might easilie be cari. ed awaie, the Englishmen late hands on, and caused the owners to redeeme the relique with great lums of monie, which they bnoertoke to paie; or else fir Hugh threatned to have burnt all that was left, to. gither with the houses.

Đứ haue heard, how at the first the duke of Lancaffer was one of the cheefe about the young king in gouernement of his person and realme, who paw dentlie confidering, that lith there must needs be an alteration in the flate, & doubting leaft if any thing The dake of chanced otherwise than well, the fault and blame Lancaster might be cheefelie imputed to him, and thanks (how: milliking the focus things went he loked for none, he gave there court, getter fore the flip, obtaining licence of the king to depart, himselfe home and fo got him home to his castell of Billingworth, to & castell or permitting other to have the whole swaie: for before Billingworth his departure from the court, there were with his consent ordeined such as should be attending on the kings person, and have the rule and ordering of mate ters perteining to the flate, as William Courtnie, then bishop of London (though shortlie affer remod ucd to the archbishops fæof Canturburie) Comund Portimer earle of Parch, & diverse other, of whome the people had conceived a good opinion: but yet bis cause the bishop of Salisburie, and the losd Latimer were admitted amongst the residue, the commons murmured greatlie against them.

The earle of Porthumberland religned his office of load marthall, in whose place succeded fir John Arundell, brother onto the earle of Arundell. The duke of Lancaster, although retired from the court, pet decrous to have the monte in his hands that was granted the last parlement, at length obteined it, bpon promise to befond the realme from inuation of all enimies for one peares space: he therefore prouided a great nause to go to the sea, hiring nine thips of Baionne, to affilt his enterpile herein, the which in making faile hitherwards, incountred with the Spanith flet, and toke fouretene bellels laben with wines and other merchandize. But in the meane time, one Percer a Scotilhman , with certeine faile of Scots, Frenchmen, and Spaniards, came to Scarburgh, and there toke certeine thips, and led them awate to the fea, as it were in reuenge of his fathers impallonment, named John Wercer, tho before being caught by certeine thips of the north parts, and delivered to the earle of Porthum. berland, was committed to prison within the castell of Scarburgh.

John Philpot that worthipfull citizen of London, John Philpot lamenting the negligence of them that thould have Autorman of provided against such inconveniences, made footh a teth south a teth south a such south south a such south sou fleet at his owne charges, fronglie furnished with fleet at his men of warre and munition necessarie: the men own charges of warre meting with the fame Percer, accompatione Engnied with his owne thips, and fifteene other Spar hith flips taniards that were newlie idined with him, fet boon benby the them, and so valiantlie behaved themselves, that they Acots. toke the faid Percer with all them that were then in his companie, so recovering againe the thips that were taken from Scarburgh, besides great riches which were found about, as well in the fiftene Spanilly thips, as the other that were of the old retinue, belonging to the same Mercer. John Philpot was alterwards blamed of the loads, for prefuming thus far, as to let forth a name of men of warre, without belivered to the English:

Chierburg

Boditions to Adam Meri-

men.

noth.

the adulte of the kings councell: but he made his answer in such wife buto the earle of Stafford, and others that lato the fault to his charge, that he was permitted to depart, without further trouble for that matter.

Before all fuch prouttion as the duke of Lancaffer prepared for his tournie to the fea could be readie, the earles of Salisburie and Arundell sailed ouer into Pozmandie, where, by luch composition as was taken betwirt the king of England and the king of 10 Pauarre, tho of new was become enimie to the French king, the towne of Thierburg was delivered buto the faid earles, tho fending knowledge thereof backe into England, there were fent over such as thould have in charge the keeping of that towne; and fo the two earles returned. The find, that the king of Pauarre, having bene here in England with the king and his councell, had agreed with the king for a certeine yearclievent, to demile unto him the faid fortresse of Chierburg, whereby the Englishmen 20 might haue fre entrie into Pozmandie, when they would, as well to aid the king of Pauarre in his nes cellitie, as to worke anie enterprise that should be thought expedient to the advantage of the king of England as occasion served. But the obteining of possession of Dierburg brought not so much soy to the English nation, as the mishap that happened at the going forth of the faid earles did cause lamentas tion and heavineffe.

name to ouer: matched and ouercome by the Spanish

Rokefburgh

burnt by the Drote.

For opon the first entring into the sea, it fortuned 30 The English that sir Ahilip, and sir Peter Courtenie, disconcred a certeine number of thips that were entinies, and bre viscrettie entered amongst them, there suddenlie came bpon them the Spanish flet, so that the Eng. lish thips that were in companie with the faid Philip and fir Deter, were not able to make their partie god, in somuch that finallie after that fir Philip had lost diverse of his men that were there saine, he got awaie by flight himfelfe, though greenouflie wound ded, but fir Peter was taken paloner with a few of 40 ther knights that were with him; and the most part of all the valiant equiers of Summer fethire & Deuonthire, being there abread with him, were flaine and drowned, which was estamed no small loss to the whole common-wealth.

Thus were the Englishmen occupied in this first yeare of king Richard with cronbles of warre, and not onelie against the Frenchmen, but also against the Scots. For euch in the beginning of the same insereof the new earle of Posthumberland entered Scotland with ten thousand men, and soze spoiled the lands of the earle of Warch for the space of three dates togither; bicause the said earle of Parch was the thefe author and procurer of the burning of Rokel burgh, a fo for that time th' Englishmen were well reuenged of those enimies. But at an other time, when the Postherne men would needs make a road into Scotland, entring by the west borders, they were incountered by the Scots and put to flight, fothat 60 manie of them being flaine, the Scots twke the more courage to innade the borders, till at length, Comund Postimer earle of Parch came at the Daie of truce, and twike an abstinence of warre betwirt both nations for the time, though the same continued not long.

Anno Reg. 2. The duke of leth into 1521= taine with a great power. abditions to Adam Meri-

Anon after Didlummer, the duke of Lancaffer with a strong power twhe the sea, and landing in 1821-Lacafter fats taine, besieged the towne of faint Ballo de Lifte, a fortrelle of great importance. There went over with him the earles of Buckingham, Marwike, Stab foed, and diverse other of the English nobilitie, the which made their approches, and fiercelie affailed the towns, but it was so valiantlie defended, that in the end, the duke with his armie railed from thence, and returned without atchining his purpole. A About the same time, there was a notable and bainous murther committed within faint Peters church at Wellminster, by occasion of variance between the lood Latimer and fir Kafe Ferrers on the one partie, half the and two elquiers, the one called Robert Hall and the kink other John Shakell on the other partie, about a palo, Grafe ner which was taken at the battell of Pazers in Spaine, called the earle of Deane, who (as some write) was taken by one sir Franke de Pall at the Polyta. faid battell; and bicause he remained in his hands at the death of the fato fir Franke, he bequeathed him bnto his sonne the salo Robert Wall esquier.

But as other write, the faid earle was taken by the fait Robert Hall himfelfe & John Shakell toint Thom We lie, and judged to be their lawfull prifoner, by the fentence of the prince of Wales, and fir John Chandois that was matter to the faid elquiers. Thereupon af terwards the fair earle obteined fo much fanoz, that by leaving his sonne and heire in gage for his ransome, he returned into Spaine, to prouide monicto discharge it; but he was so slow in that matter, after he was at libertie, that he departed this life before he made any paiment, and so his lands fell to his some that remained in gage for the monie with the two elquiers. Therebpon it happened afterwards, that the duke of Lancaster, desirous to have the your earle in his hands (in hope through his meanes the better to accomplish his enterpaise which he meant to take in hand against the king of Castile, for the right of that kingdome) procured his nephue king Richard to require the fair earle of Deane, at the hands of the laid elouiers.

But they refused to deliver him, teeping their piloner forth of the wais, so that none will were he was become: the elamers therefore were committed to the tower, out of the which they escaped but o West minster, and there registred themselves for sandvarie men. The duke of Lancaster was herewith sociof fended, and their enimies the faid load Latinier and fir Kafe Ferrers twke counsell togither, with fir A lane Borhull and others, how they might be reven ged of this despite. This fir Alane Borhull was con-Cable of the tower, and therefore it ground him not a little, that the esquiers had broken from him, and kept themselves thus at Westminster, buder protect tion of that privileged place. Herebvon it was concluded, that fir Kafe Ferrers, and the fato Alane yeare, the Scots burnt Robelburgh, in reuenge 50 Borbull, taking with them certeine men in armour, to the number of fiftie persons, should go and fetch them by force from Wellminster, buto the sower as

> The morrold therefore after faint Laurence daie, being the eleventh of August, these two knights ac companied with certeine of the kings fernants and other, to the number afore mentioned, came into the thurch at Westminster, whilest the said esquiers were there hearing of high matte, which was then in celebrating; and first lateng hands byon John Shakell, bled the matter to with him, that they drew him forth of the church, and led him Arcight to the tower. But when they came to Robert Pall, and fell in reasoning with him, he would not suffer them to come within his reach, and perceiving they meant to take him by force, he drew out a falcheon or thort Swood which he had girt to him, and there with laid to frælie about him, traverling twife round about the monks quier, that till they had befet him on ech live, they could do him no hurt.

Howbeit, at length when they had got him at that the mantage, one of them close his bear at the formation advantage, one of them clove his head to the berie minder braines, and an other thrult him through the bodie bes charch hind with a fword, and to they murthered him among them. They due also one of the monkes that would have had them to have faued the efquiers life. Duch and was about this matter, for the breaking thus of the fanduarie, in fomuch that the archbithopef Canturburie, and fine other billiops his luffragans, openlie pronounced all them that were present at this murder accurifed, and likewife all fuch as aided o2 counselled them to it, theflie and namelie fir Alane Borbuil, and fir Kafe Ferrers, capteins and leaders of them. The king, the quæne, and the duke of Lanca 10 fter were yet ercepted by speciall names. The bishou of London a long time after, everie fundate, wednes daie, and fridate, pronounced this ercommunication in the church of S. Paule at London.

The onke of Lancaffer (though excepted in the faine) pet in behalfe of his freends was not a little offended with the bilhops dwings, in lo much that in a councell holden at Windloze (to the which the bithop of London was called, but would not come, not pet cease the pronouncing of the curse, albeit the 20 king had requested him by his letters) the duke faid openlie, that the bithops froward dealings were not to be borne with, but (faith he) if the king would command me, I would gladlie go to London, and fetchthat disobedient prelat, in despite of those ribaulds (fo: fo he termed them) the Londoners. Thefe words procured the duke much entil will, as well of the Londoners, as of other: for it was commonlie faid, that what societ had beene done at Westminffer, concerning the murther there committed in the 30 durch, was done by his commandement.

About the featt of S.Luke, a parlement was hold den at Gloceffer, for the displeature (as was thought) which some of the councell had concessed against the Londoners, or rather (as some toke it) for feare of them, least if any thing were done contrarie to their minds, they thould be about to hinder it, if the parles ment had beene kept nære them : for manie things (as some judged) were meant to have beene put forth came to palle of those matters that were surmised. faving that it was inaced, that the king Could have a marke of the merchants for everie facke of their ivalles, for this prefent yeare; and for everte pounds worth of wares that was brought in from beyond the leas, and here fold, fix pence of the buters. Alfo, certaine paintleges were granted in this parlement to merchant-Arangers, that they might buie and fell in groffe, or by retaile within this realine, as in the printed boke of fratutes it appeareth.

Anariement

This yeare came mellengers from the new elected pope Arbane, with letters to require the kings allifance and aid against such cardinals as he named schilmatikes, that had elected an other pope thome they named Clement, which cardinals fent likewife their mellengers with letters, to belied the king to aid them with his favourable affiffance: but through perfualion of the archbishop of Canturburie, Ar. bans request was granted, and Clements rejected. Streeke ca. About the faire time, to wit, on thursoaie before the 60 officiant by feast of S. Andrew th apostic, the Scots by ffelth entred by night into the castell of Bertvike, and fine str Robert Bointon, a right valiant knight, that was conflable thereof, permitting his wife, children, and fernants to depart, with condition, that within thee wekes nert infining, they should either paie them the thousand marks, or else yeld their bodies againe

De morrowaffer, the fame Scots fetched a great botic of cattell out of the countries next adioining, but immediatlic after the earle of Posthumberland being advertised hereof, hasted thisher with foure hundred armed men, and affaulting the castell on ech fide, after two houres defense, wan it, flateng of the befendants about eight and fortie, referuing onclie Micrander one of the whole number alive, that he might informe Rambe was the Englishmen thozonghlie of the Scotishmens Froillard faith purpoles. At this enterpite was the carle of Pozthumberlands eldeft fonne, foreading there first his Berwike cabanner, and dwing fo valiantlie, that he deferued fiell recoucred Anner, and budge to varianties, that he veretted by the carle of Angular commendation; as likely if edit for Alane de Morthumber. Heton, and fir Ahomas de Floerton, with those of the land. furname of the Berons, everic of thefe having their quarters alligned to allault. Thus was the callell re. concred the ninth daie after the Scots had entered the same, so that they entoted not long that victorious exploit.

And bicanfe this enterprise was taken in hand as gainst the covenant of the truce, the earle of Poss thumberland, before he attempted to recover the car ffell, fent to the earle of Parch in Scotland, to bn, derstand if he would anow that which his countrimen haddone, touching the winning of that castell, tho fent him knowledge againe, that he neither understod of their enterprise, nor would be partaker with them therein: but if it so pleased the earle of Porthumberland, he would come himfelfe, and helpe to recover it to the la. of Englands ble, out of those Scotishmens hands, which without publike authoris tie had made that exploit. This yeare, fir Robert Sir Robert Rous, capteine of Chierburg, was called home, after Rous a valiat he had taken fir Dliver de Clisson, and atchived ma, captoine. nie other worthie aduentures against the kings enimies. In his place was fent fir John Berleffon , to remaine bpon the gard of that castell. Also, fir Bugh Taluerlie, deputie of Calis, that had so valiantlie borne himselse against the Frenchmen, was like, wife bischarged; and comming home, was made admerall, being toined in commission in that office with fir Thomas Percie.

Sir William Pontacute earle of Salisburie was fent over to Calis, to be the kings lieutenant there, who Mostlie after his comming thither fetcht and concluded in this parlement, albeit few in effect 40 a great botie of cattell out of the enimies countrie adioining, to that Calis was furnified with no imall number of the fame. I Sir Hugh Caluerlie, and fir Thomas Percie, going to fea, toke feauen thips las ben with merchandize, and one thip of warre. The archbishop of Cassis in Ireland, returning from Kome, brought with him large authoritie of bind, ing and loling, granted to him by pope Arbane, in fauour of whome at his comming to London, in a fermon which he preached, he declared to the people, how the French king, holding with the antipape Clement, was denounced accurifed; and therefore now was the time for Euglishmen to make warre in France, having such occasion, as greater could not be offered; speciallie, fith it was like that the er, communicated king should have no courage to make relistance. This is I will not saie the diuinio tie(for what heavenlinesse can there be in such dam, nable doctrine, to let people together by the eares?) of the Romanists; so farre off are they from the flu die of peace and concord betwirt man and man, that they fet whole monarchies and empires up to the mid leg in fireams of bloud, imitating their great grand, father fathan, tho hath beine a makebate and a murtherer from the beginning: renouncing the fotifeps of Chaiff with open mouth, and for wering to follow him either in demeanour or doctrine, and therefore;

Quis nisimentis inops, vt sanctum tale probabit? Haccine mens Christi? Talia nulla docet.

In a parlement holden at Messminster this The sanguapeare after Caffer, it was ordeined, that the prints rie at wells peare after Caller, it was vovened, and the pant in a leges and immunities of the abbete of Wellminster master consequences and those firmed by should remaine whole and inviolate; but yet there firmed by was a proviso against shose that twhe sanctuarie, with purpole to defraud their creditors, that their

I sublidie to be paid by the great men, 4 the commons lands t gods thuld be antwerable to the dicharging of their debts. In the laine parlement was granted to the king a lublidic, to be levied of the great men of the land. To the end the commons might be spaced, the dukes of Lancaster and Britaine paid twentie markes, everie earle six marks, bushops and abbats with miters as much, and everie monke there shift lings four e pence: also, every tuffice, thirstee, highly lings four epence: also, every tuffice, thirstee, highly clouder, parson, dicar, and chapleine, were charged abter a certeine rate, but not any of the commons that to were of the lattic.

Anno Reg.3. I notable craploit done by fir John Harkston,

De have heard how fir John Harleston was fent to Thierburg as capteine of that fortrelle, who illuing abroad on a day, with such power as he might take forth, leaving the fortrette furnithed, came to a place, where within a church and in a mill, the Frenchmen had laid by, as in Mozehouses, a great quantitie of vittels, for proutsion; which wurch and mill the Eng. liffmen affaulted to baltantlie, that not with franding there were within a good number of the enimies, that 20 did their best to defend themselues, yet at length they were taken, and fir John Harleston with his companie, returned with the vittels towards Chierburg, but by the way they were incountred by one fir Will liam de Bourds, whome the French king had appointed to lie in Mountburg with a ftrong power of men of war, to countergarifon Chierburg.

Derebpon infued a foze conflict, and manie an hardie man was beaten to the ground. And although it sémed that the Englishmen were overmatched in number, pet they frucke to it manfullie. Their capteine fir John Harleston, fighting in the foremost preffe, was felled, and late on the ground at his entmies feet in great basard of death. The Englichmen neverthelesse continued their fight, till at length sic Seffrie Woellie, with a wing of armed fotmen with ares, came to the refcue (for to that end he was left behind, of purpole to come to their aid if need required) with whole comming the Frenchmen were so hardie handled, that to conclude, they were bzo 40 ken infunder, beaten downe and wholie banquifbed: there were of them flaine aboue fir scoze, and as mas nie taken prisoners, among which number was their chefe capteine fir William de Bourdes taken, and brought to Chierburg with the relidue, and there put in fafe kæping. This exploit was atchiued by the En. alithmen, on faint Wartins day in winter, in this third yeare of king Richard his reigne.

But least any toy thould come to the English peo. ple in that feason, without some mirture of greefe, 50 one fir 3. Clearke a right valiant knight, fellow in armes with fir Hugh Caluerlie, chanced this yeare to lie in garrifon in a castell in Britaine, where was an haven, towerfe English thips lieng in the fame, whereof the French gallies being advertised, came thither, to let those thips on fire, appointing one of their gallies first to attempt the feat, and if fortune fo would, to traine the Englishmen forth, till they thould fall into the laps of foure other gallies with they laid as it had beene in ambulh. Pow as the eni 60 mics wilhed fo it came to palle, for the Englishmen perceining their veffels in danger to be burnt of the enimies, ran everie man about to fave the thips and gwos within them; and amongst the rest, sir John Clearke their capteine, meaning to take fuch part as his men did, got about also, and freight falling in purfute of the gallie that withozew for the purpofe aforefaid, the Englithmen were thortlie inclosed with the other gallies before they were aware, not know ing what that to make to avoid the prefent danger.

Sir John Clearke, perceiving boto the case food, laid about him like a giant, causing his companie still to draw backe againe, whilest he resisting the entimies, oto shew such prose of his valiancie, that they inere much acconsisted therewith. To be igort, he in manfullie behaued himfelfe, that the most part of his companie had time to recover land; but when he that had thus preferued others thuld leave forth of the thin to faue himfelfe, he was friken in the thigh with an ar, that bowne he fell, and fo came into the enimies bands, being not able to reconcr that burt, for his thich was almost quite cut off from the bodie, so that he bied of that and other hurts presentlie, leaning a remembrance behind him of manie worthie ads through his valiancie atchined, to his high praise and great commendation. The barke of Porke was also loft the same time, being a proper beffell; and now taken suddenlie, sanke with all that were about in hir, both Englishmen, and the enimies also that were entered into hir, thinking to carrie hir alvaie.

About the same time the duke of Britaine retur, ning into his countrie, bnder the conduct of fir Tho mas Wercie and fir Hugh Caluerlie, landed at a have uen not far from faint Palo, the fourth day of An guff being received with buspeakeable ioy of the Britaines, as well loos as commons, fo that the lo uing harts which they bare towards him, might well amearc, although the love which he bare to the king of Thebah England had caused his subjects, in savor of France, Buttonia to keep him manie yeares footh of his dukedome bukedom as a banished vrince, but at length, they being our come with irkeformette of his long ablence, with generall consents sent for him home, so that there were but few of the British nobilitie that withdrew their dutifull obedience from him, and those were onlie fuch as firmelie linked in fernice with the French king, were loth to forgo fuch romes and dignities as bider him they inivied; namelie, the constable of France, fir Werthram de Cleaquin, the lord Cliffon, the load de Rohen, and the load Rochfort, and certeine others.

The load de la Mall amongst other, came to him (as we find in Thomas Walfingham) offering him his feruice as well as the relique. At his landing, he was likelie to have lost all such furniture, as well of bits tels, awarell, hangings, bedding, armour, and other things, which either be or his traine had brought with them. For the French gallies elpieng their time, im mediatlie as he and his companie were let on land, before the thips in which the faid furniture was fraught, could enter the haven, which was somewhat Areight and narrow, came boon them, and had them at such advantage, that if sir Hugh Caluerlie with butter his archers had not caused the master of his thip, e. Caluert uen against his will to returne againe to the relcue, the gallies had taken and gone awaie with the other Chips; but through the manfull prowes of fir Hugh, the gallies were repelled, 4 the thips faued: for accor ding to his wonted valiancie be would not returne, till be faw all other in safetie, a then defending him felfe to well as he might, withozew into the hauen, and landed fafelie with the refidue.

About the same time was an hainous murther an him committed in London, of a merchant Genowes, whom certeine English merchants byon spite and enuie, which they have towards him, caused to be saine one evening in the street before his own gates. The cause that moved the merchants to to procure his death was, so, that he undertwhe to surnish this land, having the staple allowed him at Southhampton, of all such wares as came south of Levant, so plentifullie as was to be had in any place in all the worst parts of driftendome. In the summer of this geare, a greenous mortalitie afflicted the north parts of this land, so that the countrie became almost deformation late. And to the increase of that miserie, the Scots had in the winds and to the increase of that miserie, the Scots had in the winds and to the increase of that miserie, the Scots had in the winds and to the increase of that miserie, the Scots had in the winds and to the increase of the turne, innaded the miserie.

Sir John Clearke a baliant cap:

teine.

3 policie.

the fame, not letting patte any part, of most cruell murthering of the people that were left aline, and not made alwaie by that fore contagious fichnesse. The number of cattell was infinite which they droue out of the land with them , not sparing heards of Swine which they take at this time, where they neuer medled with that kind of cattell before that pre-

Before the Scots made this fournie into Eng. land, whilest the mortalitie was most in force, they calling to certeine of the English borderers, alked of them bow it came to pale, that fo great a death reigned amongit them. The Englithmen, as god. plaine, and simple meaning men, told them, that trulie they knew not the caule, for Bods ludgements were hid from them in fuch behalfe . But one thing they knew, that all calamitie, death, and advertitie that chanced buto them, came by the speciall grace of Sod, to the end that being punished for their finnes. they might learne to repent and amend their wicked 20 liucs . The Scots hearing this, when they hould enter this land , binderstanding lewolie that the Eng. lifthmen had told them concerning the difeate, and the grace of God, denifed a bleffing for foth to be faid enerie morning, of the most ancient person in ene ric familie, as; Benedicite, fato he : Dominus, fato the reffouc. Then began he againe, faieng; Bod and faint Pango, faint Komane and faint Andro, thield bs this date fra Gods grace, and the fewle death that Englithmen dien bpon . Thus the fenfelelle men milconstruing this wood the grace of God, praied for 30 their owne destruction, which if not in this world, pet for their bentith crueltie vied at that prefent, against the milerable creatures, whom the hand of God had spared in time of that greeuous mortalitie, it is to be feared, least in another world it came to them, as the berie words of their praices imported.

About the same time, John Schakell esquier was let at libertie, the king compounded with him for his pilloner, giuing fine hundzed marks in redie monie, 40 and lands to the value of a hundred marks by yeare. When he thould bring forth his prisoner, and deliver him to the king, this is to be noted, as a thing verie frange and wonderfull. I or when he Mould appeare, it was knowne to be the verie grome that had fer, ued him in all the time of his trouble, and would ne uer ofter himselfe what he was before that time, has uing ferued him as an hired feruant all that while in prison, and out of prison, in danger of life, when his o ther mailler was murthered, where, if he would have bttered himfelfe, he might haue bene enterteined in such honozable fate, as for a prisoner of his degree had beene requilit, so that the faithfull love and affured constancie in this noble gentleman was highlie commended and praised, and no lesse maruelled at of all men.

About the featt of S. Picholas, in this third yeare of king Richards reigne, there went to fea an armie of men, that thould have patted ouer into Battaine, to the aid of the duke there, onder the conduct of fir John Arundell, fir Hugh Caluerlie, fir Thomas Percie, 60 fir William Elmham, fir Ahomas Pozelvs, fir Thomas Baneffer, a manie other knights and elquires, to long to rehearle, a lufficient power bindoubted lie to have done agreat enterpile: but they were no loner on the lea, but luddenlie there arose such an hideonstempest of wind and stormes, that they lov ked presentlie to be all cast awaie, they were scatte. In English red here and there, and driven they will not whither. The thip therein fir John Arundell was about, nobjecteris thanced to be east on the coast of Freland, and there dimen to forfake his thip, that was readie to be broken in pieces by rage of waves, beating it there as gainst the rocks: he was drowned before he could win to land, in an Nie, nære to the which they had thrust in the thip.

To the like end came fir Thomas Baneffer, fir Aicholas Trumpington, and Ar Thomas Dale, impeaching each others, as they leapt fouth of the thip: allo one Pulard an elquire, a most fæmelie perlonage and a bold; and an other esquier named Denioke, being almost out of danger, were fetched awaie by the furges of the fea, and fo perithed, with manie other. Robert Ruff a cunning feaman, belonging to Blacknie in porthfolke, maifter of the thip there. in fir John Arundell was imbarked, was the firit that got to land, giving example to others how to thist for themselves. But when he saw his thefe cap. teine, the faid fir John Arundell got fouth to the fands, and as one thinking himfelfe paff all danger, to thake his wet garments about him; the faid Ruft wateng the dangerous state wherein the said sir John Arundell yet flod, came downe, and raught to him his hand, inforting himfelfe to plucke him to the shore: but whilest he toke care for an other mans fafetie, and neglected his owne, he lost his life, and fo they both perithed togither; for through a mightie bil. low of the raging leas, they were both over throwne. and with returning of the waves backe, drawne into the dape, so that they could never recover fot-hold a gaine, but were drowned.

The faid Kuff was much lamented, bicause he was not onelie knowne to be a fkilfull maifter, but also counselled the said sir John Arundell in no wise to go to fea, at what time he would needs fet forward. forling the laid Rust and the marriners to hoist by failes and make awate. They that scaped to land in that Ile, found nothing there to relaue their miles ries, but bare ground, to that diverse flarued through cold, wanting fier and other fuccour: the relidue that were luftie and wife withall, ran by and downe, and fometime weefiling, and otherwise chafing them. felues, remained there in great miserie, from the thursdaie, till sundaie at none nert insuing. At what time, when the fea was appealed and waren calme. the Triffmen that dwelled over against this Ile on the maine, came and fetched them thence, and reles ued them the best they could, being almost dead, through travell, hunger, and cold.

The fait fir John Arundeil oft not onelie his life, The excesse but all his furniture and apparell, for his bodie, which and fumptus was verie fumptuous, to that it was thought to fur ous apparell, mount the aparell of any king. For he had two and other John fiftie new lutes of awarell of cloth of gold or tillue, as was reported, all the which, togither with his horse fest geldings, amounting to the value of ten thow fand marks, was loft at the fea . And befices this, there were lost at the same time five and twentie Therewere thips, with men, horfles, and other riches, which atten- bowe at house a thouse bedhim in that bolage. Det fir Thomas Percie, and fandmenin fir Dugh Caluerlie, with fir William Elmham, and one place and certeine others escaped, but cruellie tozmented with other, as the binmercifull tempest : and before sir Thomas Der Ad. Merimuth cie could get to land, affer the fea was quieted, he bottelifie. was affaulted by a Spaniard, against thome he fo defended himselfe, that in the end he toke the Spanish bestell, and brought hir, with all that he found about in hir, but o the nert those, and fold the fame for an hundred pounds, and without long belaic, twhe the fea, a passed over to Brest, of which fortresse he was capteine, iointlie with fir Dugh Caluerlie, and therefore boubting least some inconvenience might chance thereto now in both their absence, he made the more half, not taking rest till be came this ther, notwith anding his valled vaincfull travels. Sir Hugh Caluerlie was never in his life in moze danger of death, than at that time: for all that were in his thip (as Froisfard writeth) were drowned, ere

I notable ex-

Dutragions

Spickennelle

iufflic punta

cept himselfe & feauen mariners. The find that there there drowned in one place 4 other, about a thousand Englismen in that most buluchie botage. & Some writers impute this calamitie to light on the faid fir John Arundell & his companie, for the lascinious and filthic rule which they kept before their fetting forth, in places ithere they late, till their prouision was reas die; who not content with that which they did before they take this, in rauthing mens wices, maids and daughters, they caried them about, that they might 10 Chandois, had beene committed to the faid hatring. have the vie of them whilest they were byon the sea, (Saua libido furens, quid non mortalia cogu Pectora? Quidue tuo non est violabile telo?)

and yet when the tempest rose, like cruell and bumercifull persons they threw them into the sea, et. ther for that they would not be troubled with their las mentable notife and crieng, or for that they thought fo long as they had such women about with them (whome they had abused to long) God would not ceasse the rage of the tempest. But it should appeare 2 that this tempest was generall, for where the Spanith and french fleets were abroad at the fame time, being affembled togither to annoic the coaffs of this land, their thins were likewise tossed and turmoiled, fo as no fmail number of them were lott, in fo much that the bamage which they lufteined, was thought far to passe that which hapned to the English nauic. In this yeare about Chistmaste, fir William de

1380

Bir John made deputie of Calig.

The carle of ated protector.

The archite flien of of anlord chancels

The kings balle fifter marrico the earle of faint Daule.

Montacute carle of Salifburie, after he had rematned tivelue moneths space at Calis, the kings lieute 30 nedie could not come to the effect of his sute in all nant there was called home, afir John Denereur a right valiant knight, and an old man of warre, was fent thither in his place. Also, ar John Darleston mas called home from Chierburg, and fir William Windeshoze a noble hnight was sent thither to be capteine of that fortrelle. After the Epithanie, was a parlement called at London, which continued till the beginning of the kalendes of Darch. Also there as the yeare before there had beene certeine bishops, earles, barons, and inffices appointed, to have the go. 4 uernement and rule about the king; now at the request of the loads and commons in this parlement as fembled; the lood Thomas Beauchampe carle of Warwike was chosen to remaine continuallie with the king, as there governour, both of his person, and to give answer to all strangers that thould come bis ther about any butinesse whatsoever, and further to have the rule and order of all things, in lieu of those that were chosen thereto before: it was perceined that they had fought to inrich themselves, thad done 50 little to the advancement of the kings bonozor fate of the common-twealth, but rather emptico the hings In this parlement also, the losd Richard Scrope gaue over the office of chancelloz, and Simon Sudturburiemade burie archbithop of Canturburie toke it voon him. In this parlement was granted a tenth by the cleargie, and a fixenth by the lattie. with condition that from henceforth, to wit, from the kalends of be in the years 1381, there thould be no moze parle ments, but this condition was not performed, as after appeared. In the octaves of Gaffer, the load Maleran carle of faint Paule married the kings halfe fifter, the lavic Jone de Courtnie: the folemnisation of this marriage was holden at Mindfoze, with great triumphing. I The princelle that was mother to the bride, was greatlie against the marriage, but the bride hir felfe had fuch a liking to the earle, that the king was contented that they thould match togither, and let him free of his ranfome which he thould bane paid for that he had beine taken puloner in the marches of Calis, and further, gave with his lifter by waie of encolument, the township and manour of Wieflet.

En the feuenth of June, a combat was fought afore A comb the kings palace at Wellminster, on the panement tunig there, betwirt one fir John Annelie knight, and one Momas Batrington equier: the occasion of which though Grange and notable triall role hereof. The knight ac cufed the esquier of treason, for that where the for treffe of faint Saulour within the 3le of Conffan tine in Pozmandie, belonging Cometime to fir John ton, as capteine thereof, to hape it against the ent mies, he had for monidialo and delivered it otier to the Frenchmen, where he was lufficientlie proud bed of men, munition and vittels, to have defended it against them; and fith the inheritance of that fortresse and landes belonging thereto, had apperteined to the faid Anneflie in right of his wife, as næreff confine by affinitie buto fir John Chandois, if by the falle conveiance of the faid Matrington, it had not bane made awaie, and alienated into the enimies hands: he offered therefore to trie the quarrell by combat, a. gainst the faid Hatrington, wher boon was the same Batrington appehended, and put in pulon, but thort. lie after let at libertie againe.

Whilest the duke of Lancaster, during the time that his father king Colward late in his laft fickenelle, did in all things what liked him, & fo at the contemplation of the load Latinier (as was thought he released hatrington for the time, so that fir John Ang the meane time, till now. Such as feared to be than ged with the like offenses fraied the matter, till at length, by the opinion of true and ancient knights it Crial b was befined, that for luch a forren controuerlie that bat in the had not rifen within the limits of the realme, but tou, cafe lands thed possession of things on the further side the sea, it was lawfull to have it tried by battell, if the cause were first notified to the constable and marshall of the realme, and that the combat was accepted by the parties. Herebpon was the day and place amointed, and all things provided readie. With lifts railed and made fo substantiallie, as if the same should have in dured for ever. The concourse of people that came to London to le this tried, was thought to erced that of the kings coconation, to defirous men were to behold a light to Grange and bnaccufforned. The king, his nobles, and all the people being Chemin come togither in the mouning of the daie appointed, the come to the place where the lifts were fet by, the knight being armed and mounted on a faire courfer fæmelie trapped, entered first as appellant, stateng till his aduerfarie the defendant thould come. And thootlie af ter was the elquier called to defend his cause in this forme: Thomas Batrington defendant, come and appeare to faue the action, for which fir John Annels lie knight and ameliant bath publikelie and by with ting appealed thee. He being thus called thise by an herald at armes, at the third call old come ar med likewise; and riving on a courser trapped with Harch, to the feath of S. Pichaell, which then thould 60 traps imbrodered with his armes, at his approxima to the lifts he alighted from his horffe, left according to the law of armes the constable should have that lenged the horse if he had entered within the lists. But his thisting nothing auxiled him, for the horse after his maifter was alighted belive him, ran bp f bowne by the railes, now thouting his head oner, and now both head a breat, so that the earle of Buch and kingham, bicause he was high constable of Eng. damed land, claimed the horte afterwards, twearing that he has would have so much of him as had appeared over the railes, and fo the horffe was adjudged buto him.

But now to the matter of the combat (for this challenge of the horse was made after, as some as the esquier was come within the lifes) the inventure was brought forth by the marthall and constable, with had beene made and fealed before them, with consent of the parties, in which were conteined the articles erhibited by the knight against the esquier, and there the same was read before all the assemblie. The clouier (whole conscience was thought not to be cicare, but rather guiltie, and therefore fæmed full of troublesome and gradging pastions, as an offendo? alreadie conninced, thought (as full well he might) Multamiser timeo,quia fecimulta proterue) went about to make exceptions, that his cause by fome means might have fæmed the founder. But the bulie of Lancaffer hearing him to faic at the matter, fware, that except according to the conditions of the combat, and the law of armes, he would admit all things in the indentures compalled, that were not made without his owne consent, he should as guiltie of the treason swithwith be had swith to execution. The duke with those words wone great commendation, and audided no small suspicion that had beine 20 conceined of him as parciall in the elquiers cause. The equier hearing this, faid, that he durft fight with the knight, not onelie in those points, but in all other in the world what focuer the fame might be: for he trusted moze to his strength of bodie, and fauour of his frænds, than to the cause which he had taken bpon him to defend . De was in ded a mightie man of Cature, where the knight among those that were of a meane flature was one of the leaft. Frænds to out through their affiliance, were the lords Latimer and Baffet, with others.

Before they entered battell, they take an oth, as well the knight as the equier, that the cause in thich they were to fight, was true, and that they delt with no withcraft, noz art magike, whereby they might obteine the victorie of their adverfarie, no; had about them any herbe or Cone, or other kind of experiment with which magicians ble to triumph over their enimics. This oth received of either of them, and there 40 with having made their praters devoutlie, they began the battell, first with speares, after with swozds, and lafflie with paggers. They fought long, till final, lie the knight had bereft the equier of all his wear pons, and at length the esquier was manfullie o vertholone by the knight. But as the knight would have fallen byon the elquier, through sweat that ran downe by his helmet his fight was hindered, fo that thinking to fall boon the esquier, he fell bowne fiveling himselfe, not comming niere to the esquier, 5 who perceiving what had happened, although he was almost overcome with long fighting, made to the knight, and threw himfelfe bpon him, fo that manie thought the knight Gould have beene overcome: other doubted not but that the knight would recover his fat againe, and get the bidozie of his adverfarie.

The king in the meane time caused it to be proclamed that they should state, and that the knight thould be railed by from the ground, and so meant to take op the matter betwirt them . To be thort , fuch 60 were fent as thoulo take by the esquier; but comming to the knight, he belought them, that it might please the king to permit them to lie Mill, for he thanked Goothe was well, and mistrusted not to ob, teine the victorie, if the esquier might be late opon him, in manner as he was earle. Finallie, when it would not be so granted, he was contented to be raise led by, and was no lonce let on his feet, but he cheers fullie went to the king, without anie mans helpe, there the elanier could neither Cand noz go without the helpe of two men to hold him by, and therefore was let in his chaire to take his eale, to lee if he might recover his Arength.

The knight at his comming before the king, be-fought him this nobles, to grant him fo much, that he might be efflones laid on the ground as before, and the elquier to be law aloft byon him: for the knight perceived that the elquire through excelline heat, and the weight of his armoz, did maruelloullie faint, so as his spirits were in manner taken from him. The king and the nobles percetuing the knight lo couragioussie to demand to trie the battell forth to the ottermost, offring great summes of monie, that fo it might be done, decreed that they thould be reffer red againe to the same plight in which they late when they were raised by: but in the meane time the esquire fainting, and falling downe in a fluone, fell out of his chaire, as one that was like to yold by his The clauser last breath presentlie among them. Those that stop fainteth. about him cast wine and water bpon him, sæking so to bring him againe, but all would not ferve, till they The knight had plucked off his armor, this whole apparell, which is induced the thing proued the knight to be vanquillier, and the ef vanquiller. quier to be banquilbed.

After a little time the equier began to come to himselfe, and lifting op his eies, began to hold op his head; and to cast a ghosflie loke on everie one a: bout him : which when it was reported to the knight, he commeth to him armed as he was (for he had put off no piece fince the beginning of the fight) and freaking to him, called him traitor, and false periored man, asking of him if he durch trie the battell with him againe: but the elquier having neither lense the clouice, in whom he had great affiance to be borne 30 nor fpirit whereby to make answer, proclamation was made that the battell was ended, and everig one might go to his lodging. The efquier immediate lie after he was brought to his longing, and laid in bed, began to war raging wood, and so continuing Aill out of his wits, about nine of the clocke the next day he yielded by the ghoft . I This combat was fought (as before ye have heard) the feventh of Time to the great reinfing of the common people, and oil couragement of traitours.

About the fame time, or rather fomethat before, the losd Dliver de Cliston, with a number of thips and gallies of France and Spaine, twhe the fea, and comming on the coast of England, landed in diverse places of the west countrie, and also in the south The French parts, spoiling and burning fundate tolones, taking men spoile a fuch thips and vettels as they might laic hold byon, burne ducris and to continued to indamage the English people townes in the that inhabited neere to the fea lide, all that fummer well count te. following. In the beginning of the fourth years of Anno Reg. 4. this king, Thomas of Woodfoke earle of Bucking. ham, bucle to the king, with an armie of feauen of Froiffard. eight thouland men of armes and arthers, was fent The carte of ouer to Calis, that he might inuade France, and Buckingham passe through the same to come into Britaine unto taine ward the establishment of Markey Learn Learn Land to the coals the alo of the duke there. Poulane heard how the the duke as French king had leized into his hands the moze part gainst the of the duchie of Bittaine, bicause that the duke had French king. toined himfelfe in league with the king of England: but yet there were diverse of the good townes, and also manie of the barons and nobles of the countrie which kept themselves as neuters a long season; but at length, longing to lee the recurne of their naturall load and duke , fent for him into England , requiof the troubled fate of his countrie. The duke being thus earnesslie desired to returne home, by the adule of the king of England' and his councell granted to their request that had for instantlie required him, both by letters and sufficient medengers: whereboon he toke the fea, and failing forth, arrived in Britaine, having with him fir Kobert knolles, and a certeine number of Englishinen both armed men and archers (as before væ hanc heard.) The king also promised to send him a new ring him to repaire home, and to lee to the quieting

Kr.f.

Supa

fuplic verie footlie, wich was not forgotten . But fortune was fo contrarie, that fir John Arundell generall of those that were sent, and manic of his companic, were drowned by force of tempest, and the other dittien backe againe into England (as bifoje pe have heard.) In the meane time, though the buke of Britaine with aid of his lubicas, did manfullie des fend his townes and countrie against the Frenchmen, yet he was in doubt to be oppelled by the great puillance of the Frenchmen, if aid came not the low 1 ner . Which being fignified ouer into England, mos ued the king and his councell to appoint the earle of Buchingham to take bpon him this botage. He land ded at Calis the daies before the feat of Parie

There went ouer with him in that armie, the earls of Stafford and Deuonthire, the lord Spenfer confable of the hoff, the losd Fitz Walter marshall, the loed Ballet, the loed Bourchier, the loed Ferrers, the lord Morlie, fic lord Darcie, fir William Windlore, 2 fir Hugh Caluerlic, fir Hugh Hallings, fir Hugh ve la Bente, fir Thomas Percie, fir Thomas Eriuet. fir Dugh Circli,fir William Farrington, fir John and fir Aicholas Daubitticourt, Thomas Camois, Bafe Cenill fonne to the lood Deuill, fir Benrie baflard ferrers, fir Dugh Booc, fir Oeffrie Wourdie, fir William Clinton, fir Juon fit; Warren, and Diuerle other . After they had reffed them at Calis two daies, they remoued the third day out of the towne, and came to Warqueignes, where they re- 3 mained thie daies, till all their companie, cariages, and providions were come to them out of Calis: from thence they removed and came before Arde. there the earle of Buckingham made knights thefe that follow: the earle of Deuonthire, the losd 9001ie, the fon of the loid fit; Malter, fir Roger Strange, fir John Jpic, fir John Colle, fir James Direll, fir Thomas Ramffon, fir John Peuill, and fir Thomas Boso: Bollie, as some copies haue. Dele persons were made knights, bicause they went in the var 40 order of battell for the space of two houres, and then ward, which was fent to win a firong house called Follant, which the owner had fortified against them. But though he desended himselfe manfallie for a time, vet in the end both he and all his companie were taken puloners.

After this the duke palled by faint Dmers, thew ing himselfe (about a mile off) with his boff in order of battell aloft bpon a mounteine. Some of the Englishmen rode to the barriers, requiring that some of them within would come fouth and breake 5 stanes with them, but they could not be answered. The same day that the Englishmen thus came before S.Omers, the earle of Buckingham made againe new knights, as fir Hafe Beuill, fir Bartholomein Bourchier, fir Domas Camois, fir foulke Coabet, fir Domas Danglure,fir Bafe Petipas, fir Lewes faint Albine, and fir John Baulie og rather Paulet. Thefe Englithmen robe through the countrie, Des manding justs and deds of armes, but they could not be answered. In deed the townes of the frontiers 60 inere well replenished and stuffed with men of war, and fill were the Englithmen coafted, but they kept themselves so close rogither, without breaking their order, that their enimies could find them at none ad-nantage.

They passed by Cirwine and by Betwine, where they lodged one day. They made but ceffe fournies, and famed to require nothing but battell. They pass fed by Arras, by Diramont, and fo to Clerie on the water of Some, and faried there thee daies, and in other places about in that countrie. The fourth day they disloged, and diely towards Cambraic, and fo to S. Quintines, taffer by towards Reimes. They found little riches, and finall flose of vittels absoad in the countrie, for the French king had abandoned all to his men of warre, the either wafted or conuch ed all things of any value into the fortreffes and walled townes . The Englishmen therefore fent to them of Reimes, requiring to have some vittels fent to the holf, for the which they would spare the countrie from wasting : but they of Reimes would not confent herebnto. Wher bpon the Englithmen beganto light them such candels, as their cies within the citie aucd to behold the fame a far off.

Dozeover, the Englithmen approched to niere to the walles and diches of the citie, that they brought a waie twentie thousand head of cattell, which the citie sens had gotten within the compatte of their diches; and further fent to them within, that if they would and further fent to them within, that if they would also have been been to the box in The control of the box in The contro not fend bread and wine forth to vittell the hoff, in o. King that behalfe they would burne all their come : for fancilla boubt thereof, the citizens lent footh to the holl fir forther charets laden with as much bread and wine as they from the might carie. Thus was their come faued from de ding bin fruction, and the Englishmen by soft and case four tothe c nies drew towards the citie of Trois, in the which lubba, was the duke of Burgognie, with the dukes of Bur bon and Bar, the earle of Cive, the lood Coucie, fir John de Aien high admerall of France, and a great number of others of the French nobilitie. They had made a basside without the folune able to receive a thousand men of armes, but bpon the Englishmens approch to affault it, they did for fahe that firength, o and withdrew to the towns. Sir Chomas Crimet Artin was here made a baronict. Also there were certaine to show now knights made, as fir Poeter Verton, for John new knights made, as fir Peter Berton, fir John and fir Thomas Paulie of Paulet, fir John Still knicht gulie,fir Thomas Doztingues,fir John Classecoque, atto. fir Thomas Brafie, fir John Brauin, fir Benrie Etenny Mernier, fir John Colenile, fir William Cucrat, fir Bernot, Picholas Stiugulie, and fir Hugh Lunit.

The English host perceiving the Frendymento withdraw into the towne, drew togither, and find in returned to their lodgings. The nert day they remoued to Maillerois le vicount nære unto Sens, and there they remained two daies, and after diewinto Sallinois, and lo into Beaule. They were coalled all the wate by a great power of men of war, as may ny or more in number as they were themselues. But the French king being a politike prince, wiselie confidered what loffes the realme of France had fuffet ned afore time, by gining battell to the Englithmen, and therefore was fullie resolved, that in no wise he would give licence to his people to fight with the Thep' earle of Buckingham; but thought better (as he had bing. learned by god experience) to keepe his townes close against his enimics, and so in the end to wearie them, than by giving battell to put things in hazard, where as he knew they could not take from him his countrics by this kind of warre, though they fore indamaged the fame for a time.

There chanced manie small skirmiches amongst those that rode fouth to discourr the countrie, but no notable incounter at all. For the Englishmen in those dates were cats not to be eathed without mit tens (as Iacob Meir in one place faith) a againe the French men were as warie how they aduentured to come nære them, peraduenture for feare, as in the reigne of king Coward the 3,85 C.O. noteth, faleng, Contra aciem mag nam tremebundo corde Valesus In campum adiunctum & vicina coegerat arua, Non tamen Angli genas aduersium est ausus aperto Tendere Marte fern confligere fortiter arms.

Dnelie they lought how to inclose them op in the countrie, and to family them, that they might then fight with them at some great advantage; but fill the English bost passed forward, bolding on their

Enights made be the bingbam at his entrie into Emights a: gaine made.

The fournie of the Englifb armie to:onah France.

volage towards Britaine by Amdolnie, Pont To, The reals of laine, and to ouer the river of Sartre. In this meane Christines igne the French king Charles the fift was taken grach bing with a fore ficknesse, whereof he departed this life the fame daie that the English armie passed ouer the riuer of Sartre, which was on the fir and twentith of September , his brethren the bukes of Aniou, Berrie, Burbon, and Burgognie were at Paris with him at the houre of his death, where as a little before they had beene abroad in the countrie with their 10 powers, to defend the cities and townes of impostance against the Englishmen , and meant indeed (if tice could have espied their advantage, and gotten licence thereto of the king) to have given their ent. mics battell. But now they were otherwise occupico : howbeit they had left their men abroad in the countrie to coast the Englishmen as they had done before. All the French power was affembled in the citic of Pans, buter the leading of the duke of Bar, the lord Coucie, and others.

Tho. Walfi.

In this meane while that the earle of Bucking. ham was palling through the realme of France, the French and Spanith gallies did much milchefe on the coast of England : but about the latter end of Chefrench Junchy a flect of Englishmen of the west countries Chefrench part of them were forced to retire, and take harbour glineafine in an hauen in Ireland called Lingsale, there being tomberous affailed of the Englishmen and Irithmen, they were et England vanquished; so that to the number of source hundred vanglatin as Confalue de Clerfe, and his brother John Bartin be Motrigo, Turgo load of Mogants; also the load of Reith, Ders Partin of Mermelu, John Modit of Acrmew, the fenethall of Wargarie, the fenethall of S. Andrew, Cornelis of S. Sebaffiano, Palchale be Billicy, John Partinis, Sopogozge of S. Seballia, no, and diverse other.

There were taken foure of their barges with a ballenger, and one and twentie English bessels recoucred, which they had robbed and taken awaie from 40 he might. their owners. There scaped pet foure of their notable capteins fro the hands of our men , Partin Grantz, John Peris Pantago, John Husce Gitario, and one Barcias of S. Sebastiano, so that the malice of those robbers ceased not. For they with the French townesson the gallies fill lieng on the leas, when they espico anie Englishcolly advantage, would land their people, and do what mile these they could, in taking preces, and burning townes and villages, although now and then they came thost to their veffels againe, lofing fomctimes 5 anhunosed, sometimes sourescore that were overtaken by the Englishmen that came footh against them. But among other invalions which they made and mre this lummer on the coalis, we find that they burnt the towns of Minchellie, 4 put the abbat of Battell to flight with his people, comming to fuccor that towne and twhe one of his monks that was there in armoz with the abbat. Some write also, that they burnt Rie, Hallings, and Postlinouth. Finallie, their bolds nelle fo farre increased, that in August they entring 60 with their gallies into the river of Thames, came by to Gravelend, where they burnt the most part of the towne, and on the other five of the river, as well in Offer as Bent, they burnt and spoiled diverse places, and with their puloners and boties returned without receining anic hurt, bringing with them to France, both rich spoiles and good prisoners.

But to returne to the earle of Buckingham where weleff. The English armic dies Will towards Bittaine, but with so small doubt of their adversaries, that they laie thee or course value control one place. At their approfiting to the marches of Both modificant taine, they came to alitrie, a towne fituate at the first entring into that countrie, and from thence went to Chateau Bulant, and there reffed, ichither came to them certeine knights fent from the buke of Britaine, which fignified to the erle of Buckingham what the dukes meaning was . Indeed by the death of the French king, the dukes malice was greatlie abated towards the Frenchmen, so that he had not much passed if the Englishmen had beene at home againe. Dozeouer, his townes were not determined to receive the Englishmen, as enimies to the crown of France: so that he was in a perpleritie how to order his bulinelle. At length, to thew himselse a feed fall frend to the Englishmen, and one that was no changeling, he betermined by their support, to force all those to allow the league which he had established with the Englishmen, who had dented to beare are mouragainst the crowne of France. And first, bi. Pannts belle cause they of Paunts were the ringleaders of that Englishmen. rebellious demeanour, he appointed first to besiege their citie. They having knowledge thereof, fent into 20 France for aid .

The dukes of Aniou, Berrie, Burgognie, and Burbon, brethren to the late king, and bucle to his forme the young king, having the governance of the realme under him, fent fir hundred speares with all speed to strengthen them of Paunts, which desended the citie in such wise from the pullance of the Englishmen, who environed the same with a strong flege, that in the end, bicaufe the duke came not to them (according to his promife) the flege was raifed The flege at relation of them were flaine, and their chafe capteins taken, 30 the morrow after Dew yeares daie, two moneths Paunts broad and foure dates after the fame was first laid . The kenby, duke of Britaine would gladlie have come to the fiege of Paunts, in frengthening of the English host, but he could not persuade his loods to aid him in anie such enterprise. And therefore now that the earle of Buckingham had broken op his siege, he caused him to be lodged in the citie of Mannes, this men abroad in the countrie, some here, and some there, acquiting himselfe as well towards them as

But suerlie the hearts of the Britains were wone derfullie changed, and in no wife would confent to have anie warre with the Frenchmen, if anie reason nable veace might be concluded. For manie that has ted the father, bare god will and heartic lone to, wards the forme, those young yeares and great to wardnesse allured the hearts of manie to wish him well. Perboon was meanes made for a peace, which by the duke of Anion his consent (this bare the great twirt the tell rule in France in that feafon)a finall accord was French bing made, betweet the young king and the duke of Bit, and the duke taine, so that the duke Chould come and do his ho, of Butaine. mage onto the French king, and sweare to be true and faithfull buto him: also that he should rib the articles of the grant of his countrie. Englishmen out of his countrie, and helpe them with thips and bellels to transport them home into England. The earle of Buckingham, when he under from of this peace, was not a little displeased in his mind, confidering that the duke of Britaine had delt fo bri tufflie with him and his nemue the king of England . But the duke fill excused him by his subjects, as though if he had not thus agreed, he thould have beene in danger to have lost his heritage of that countrie. Finallie, the earle after he had thips prout ded for his pallage, the eleventh of Aprill departed out of Mannes, and came to the haven where his thips laie, and to went about in like maner as other of his men did from other havens, and thoutlie after (when the wind ferued) toke the fea, and returned into England, fore displeased with the duke of Bil Checarled taine for his great ontruth and diffimulation (as he returned into twhe it) notivithitanding all creuies to cloake the England. matter by him allebged.

Granifend

Whilest

The Scots

English boz=

ipoile whole countries car-

riena awaie great bwties.

inuanc the berg and

warres against the Frenchmen (as before ye have heard the Scots could not reft in quiet, but in renenge for a thip, which the townslmen of pewcas stell and Pull had taken on the fea, knowing them to be pirates, determined to do what mischese they could but the English borders : for the losse of that thip grieuco them, bicaufe it was effemed to be berierich, the good that were in it being valued at fer uen thousand marks. Herebpon the Stots entring 1 by the well borders, invaded t spoiled the countries of Westmerland and Cumberland, and comming into the forrest of Inglewoo, they take awaie with them such a number of beasts and cattell, that they were reckoned at fourtie thousand heads of one and other. Befides this, they cruellie flue all fuch as they could late hands boon, and burnt by all the townes, villages, and houses as they passed: and not content herewith, they stale boon the towne of Penreth, when the faire was kept there, flateng, taking, and 20 chasing awaie the people, and after gathering togither all the goos and riches there found, toke it as waie with them, whereof there was such plentie as might have fatilified the couctous defire of a most gradic armic. They returned by Carleil, but hearing that there were gotten into it a great number of men out of the countries adjoining, they durit not state to make any attempt against that towne, but compassed their waie to escape with their boties home into their countrie, which they did, although 30 they loft some of their companie as they passed by an ambulhment of certeine archers of Weltmerland and Cumberland, that were laid for them of purpofe. When the earle of Porthumberland would have gone forth to revenge those injuries done to the countrie by the Scots, he was written to from the king and his councell, to forbeare till the date of truce, at what time it might be knowen what was

Whileif the Englishmen were thus occupied in

In armie lin: gering in the north parts uerificth the Zaditions to Adam Merimuth.

Ereafon in ferrers to certeine French lords.

further to be done in the matter. About Dichaelmalle the onke of Lancaster, the 40 earles of Warwike, and Stafford, with other lords and men of honoz, having with them a great power of fouldiers and men of warre, went into the north parts, and comming to the bodoers, they laie there till they had consumed no small summes of monie, and indamaged the countrie as much as if the Scotilh armie had invaded the fame. The good they did, was, that after long treatie with the Scotish commillioners, a truce was agreed opon till Caffer following, which being concluded, they returned home 50 without any more ado. For the space of halfe a score peares togither now last past, the Englishmen eucrie yeare had one or two fuch treaties with the Scots about the incursions and rodes which they yearelie made into the English boxders, fore indamaging the inhabitants of those north parts of the realme, notwithstanding any truce of abstinence of warre that might be concluded.

Whilest the armie (as ye have heard) laie tole in the north parts, there were certeine letters found by 6 a poze man about London, the delinered them bri to the worthie citizen John Philpot, the calling buto bim certeine other worthipfull citizens, opened one of them, in with was conteined matter of high treat fon : and perceiving by the scale that it belonged bn to fir Kafe Ferrers knight, one of the kings printe councell, delivered that letter with foure other letters closed with the same scale, first to the lood chancelloz, and after to the king, the which being read and the feale knowne to be the fair fir Rafe Ferrers his feale, manie greatlie maruelled that so ancient a knight, and one in whom to great truft was put, thould go about any fuch treafons.

Due of the letters was directed to fir Bertram de

Cleaguin, an other to the load de la Riuer the cham: berlaine of France, an other to the logo Chillon, and an other to the patrone of the gallies, and to the cap. teine of the armie of Frenchmen and Spaniards, which at the fame time wasting along the coasts, did much hurt in diverse places of the land. Forthwith the faid Philpot and others were fent in post from the king to the duke of Lancatter, that for fomuch as the faid fir Kafe Ferrers was then in the north parts withhim, intreating with the Scots, he thould are rest him and put him in fafe keeping, which comman dement the duke did accomplish, and committed him to be fafelie kept in the caffell of Durefme, but thoit lie after in the next parlement he was fet at libertic, foure barons being bound for his footh comming, till time that he might more eutoentlie beclare his innocencie.

About the feath of S. Partine, was a parlement I parlement bolden at Posthampton to the mose trouble of them at Bother that came to it, bicanfe in that season of the years ton, they were confreined to come where there was no flore of fewell to make them fiers: and belide that, lodgings were verie freid for lo great a multitude. But the cause that moned the conneell to amoint this parlement there, was to the end that they might the moze frælie proceso to the triall of John Birkbie John kirk a citizen of London, that had murthered the Geno excuso in mais (as before ye have hard) which kirkbie was con- murch man demned at this parlement, and dealwne and hanged dranger in the fight of the Londoners that were come the ther, which execution if it should have beene done at London, the loads doubted leaft some tumult might hauc beine raised by the citizens, tho were reckoned in those dates verie rath and presumptuous in their dwings.

But now to the effect of this parlement. There was a new and frange subsidie of talke granted to be le. I main vied for the kings vie, and fowards the charges of fublion. this armie that went over into France with the earle of Buckingham; to wit, of enerie pacel fecular or regular fir thillings eight pence, and as much of euerie nunne, and of euerie man & woman married or not married being 16 yeares of age (beggers certenlie knowne onlie ercepted) foure pence fo, eueric one. Great grudging & mante a bitter curfle follow ed about the leuteng of this monte, a much mildhefe role thereof, as after it appeared. In this fourth peare of king Kichards reigne, immediatlie after Thom. Was Christmaste, Thomas Brantingham bilhop of Greter and lood treasuros, was discharged of his office of treasuroalhip, and sir Kobert Hales load of S. Johns was advanced in his place, a right noble and manlie knight, but not beloved of the commons.

About this time Did John Wicliffe chieflie fet wichthis footh his opinion touching the facrament of the al nion. tar, denieng the doctrine of transubstantiation, and that it ought not in any wife to be worthimed in such fort as the church of Kome then did teach. There were amballadors fent into Bermanie, to treat with the emperour for a marriage to be had, betwirt the king of England, and the emperours litter. About the beginning of Parch they returned, bringing with them the cardinall, intituled of faint Praced, and the duke of Tarlilia, and other nobles that came from the emperoz to treat with the king & his count cell about the fame marriage . This cardinall, the Theather ther he patted the bounds of his committion and an of plant thozitte to him granted by the pope (as forme write)0? whether he was furnished with fuch faculties, he was bery liberall in bestowing of them absode on all such as would come with monie. Indulgences, which the pope had vied onelie to referue for himfelfe to beflow, this man granted the same liberallie, both bis ennals and triennals. He gave allo letters confel Entant tionall,

Sonall, to all those that would paie for them, admit-The month ting alwell beneficed men as other, to be the popes dapleins . De made notavies for monte, and benied not alters portative to anie that would pay for them.

pereceived fortie pounds, belides other gifts, of the monks of the Ciffeaur order, to grant to them a generall licence to eat flesh indifferentlie; as well abroad, as they had beene accustomed to do at home within their monasteries. To those that were ercome municate begaue absolution: those that had bowed to go in pilgrimage to Kome, to the holie land, or to faint James, he would not first release them , till he had received to much monte, according to the true baluation, as they fould have fpent in their tornies: and to be breefe, nothing could be afked, but for monie he was readie to grant it. And when he was requefeo to their by what power he dio all thefe things. with great indignation he answered, that he would let them understand at Rome, if they would needs were fo filled with filuer, that his fernants distained to make them anie answer, except they brought gold fairing Bring bs gold, for we are full of your filuer. But at his departure he toke all awaic with him, both gold and filuer in fuch abundance as was maruellous . This hath beene the practife of the Romanifes from time to time, where vpon grew this come mon by wood (taring the polling and having thiffs of that execrable for, gaping gulfe, and infatiable fea)

Curia Romana non quarit ouem sine lana.

But now to returne to other matters concerning the flate of the realme. After the returne of the earle of Buckingham, it was ordeined by adulfe of the councell, that the duke of Lancaster Gould effones go as amballadoz from king Kichard into Scotland, to be if he might renew the truce (which shortlie would have bene expired) for the yeres longer . Al. fo thereas there was variance and open war main. teined, betwirt John king of Callile, and John king of Postingale, the earle of Cambridge, the losd Will 40 liam de Beauchampe, the lozd Botreur, and fir Dat-Inarmic lent thew Cournic, were fent into Postingale with five into Portin- hundred armed men, and five hundred archers to aid gole io all the the king of Postingale against the king of Castile, tho was some to the bastard Denrie: for the duke of Lancaster resossed greatlie, that he might have such afrend as the king of Postingale, to foine with him in ald against the king of Castile; meaning (as some as opportunitie would serue) to go ouer with an armie to chalenge his right, and pursue his 50 claime to the crowne of Talfile and Leon, against the blurper, in right of his wife quene Conffance, closif daughter to the late lawfull king Deter, ubom Henrie the baffard as before (pe haue heard) dio Will perfecute, till he had bereft from him both his life and kingdome.

It was meant therefore that if the duke of Lancaster could compasse his purpose, for the which he went at that time into Scotland, to the honour of low his brother of Cambridge with a great power, to trie what chance God would fend to him, againft his adnerfarie the king of Castile. In the meane time other incidents fell within the realme in the fourth years of king Richard, fore to the disquieting of the same, and otter disamointing for that time of the duke of Lancasters intent. The commons of the training training for repining, not onclie for the pole grotes that were demanded of them, by reason of the grant the great fub: made in parlement (as pichame heard) but also (as the and other forme write) for that they were fore ownelled (as they were fore ownelled (as they expedions twine wine process may they toete to be a first demanded to the matter) by their land-loods, that demanded to the matter) by their land-loods, that demanded to the matter of of them their ancient cuffornes and fernices, fet on by some divelish instinct a persuation of their owne beautic intentions, as men not content fulth the Nate wherefore they were called, role in diverle parts of this realine, and affembled togither income panies, purpoling to inforce the prince to make them fræ, and to release them of all feruitude, where Aillaines. by they flood as bonomen to their loods and superio

There this rebellion of the commons first began, diverle haue waitten diverlie. Dne anthog writeth, that (as he learned by one that was not farre from The begins the place at that time) the first beginning Gould be ning of theres at Dertford in Lent : for when those pole chillings, belion at Des orrather (as other have) pole grotes, were to be col. leace, no finall marmaring, curffing, and repining among the common people role about the fame, and the more indeed, through the lewed demonder of some budifcretofficers, that were affigned to the gather ring thereof, infomuch that one of those officers beting appointed to gather by that monie in Dertford know the authoritie which he had. At length his males 20 aforefaid, came to the house of one John Tiler, that had both fernants in his house, and a faire your maid to his daughter. The officer therefore demanding monie for the faid. Tiler and for his wife, his feruants, and daughter, the wife being at home, and hir huldand abroad at worke in the towne, made and fiver that hir daughter was not of age, and there, forethe denied to pale for hir.

Polo here is to be noted, that this monic was in common speech said to be due for all those that were bindergrowne, bicause that young persons as well of the man as of the womanking, comming to the age of fouretiene or fifteene yeares, have commonlie haire growing forth about those printe parts, which for honesties take nature bath taught be to cover and kæpe fecret . The officer therefore not fatiffico with the mothers excuse, said he would fale whether hir daughter were of lawfull age or not, and theres with began to milule the maid, and learth further than honestic would have permitted. The mother Areightwaies made an outcrie, fo that hir husband being in the towne at worke, and hearing of this a. do at his house, came running home with his las thing staffe in his hand, and began to question with the officer, alking who made him to bold to keepe furth a rule in his house: the officer being somewhat prefumptuous, and highminded, would forthwith have flowne opon this Tiler; but J. Tiler anothing the officers blow, raught him luch a rap on the pate, that his braines flue out, and so presentlie he died.

Great noise role about this matter in the ffrets. and the pope folks being glad, enerie man arraied himselfe to support John Tiler, & thus the commons beew togither, and went to Paideltons, and from thence to Blackheath, where their number fo increas fed, that they were reckoned to be thirtie thousand. And the fato John Tiler twke byon him to be their cheefe capteine , naming himselfe Jacke Straw. Others write, that one Thomas Baker of Fobhings was the first that procured the people thus to the king and realme, then thould be thoutlie after fol 60 affemble togither : and that one of the kings feruants named John Lcg, with the of his fellowes, practited to feeley wing matos whether they were bis dergrowne (as ye have hard the officer did at Wertford) which dishonest and unsæmelie kind of dealing did let the people ftreight in fuch a rage and bp202e, that they cared not what they did to be revenged of fuch injuries.

But Thomas Wallingham affirmeth, that the first The common sparkes of this rebellion kindled in Offer, where the of Effer begin inhabitants of two townes onelie at the first, that the commonio were the authors and first stirrers of all this mise as Wal, south. thefe, did fend buto enerie little towns about, that all manner of men, as well those that were aged, as others that were in their luffiest time and youthfull

Rr.fij.

bellion at Des

yeares,

peares, thoulo come to them with speed, letting all ere cules apart , in their best arrate and furniture for warre, threatening to fuch as came not, that their gods thould be spoiled, their houses burnt or call bowne, and they to lose their heads when they were taken. The terror of this threatning caused the ignorant people to flocke to them by heaps, leauing all their bulinelle, letting plough and cart ffand, forfaking wife, children, and houses, so that in a short time there were fine thousand gotten togisher of those 1 commons and hulbandmen, of which number manic The armor of were weaponed onelie with flaues, some with ruffie Electrobels fwoods and billes, and other with fmohie bowes, more ruddie than old yuorie, not hauing past two or the arrowes, and the fame hamilie with one feather a pæce.

Among a thouland of thole kind of perlons, ye thould not have frene one well armed : and pet by reason of their multitude, when they were once got togither, they thought the whole relime had not beene 20 able to relift them; and supposed that they could with facilitie (in respect of the adverse part) make the flates of the land stope to them, and by their permission to reteine or compultion to religne their romes of dignitie. But the fond conceited rowt confidered not the event of this infurrection, that the world would be their owne; for the old faieng is true, namelie, Laditur a stimulo quicung, fricatur ab illo.

Mozeouer, to make their part the ffronger, thefe Offermen fent ouer into Bent, aquertifing the peo. 30 ple there of their enterpile, and therefore willed them to make them readie to foine with them for their obtaining of libertie, and reforming of the euill customs of the realme . Whether the Bentithmen through perfuations of their neighbors of Eller, by occasion of that which had chanced at Wertford (as before vie have heard) or (as it may be) the same chancing at that felfe time, they being moued as well by the one as the other, op they got (as yee have heard) and gathering their power out of the nert quarters 4 abioining, by the like policie which has beene practifed by the Offermen, they fitred by the most part of the countrie to joine with them, and forthwith Coping the waie that led to Canturburie, and arresting all fuch as passed by the same, they caused them to swere that they thould be true to king Richard, and to the miltred by the commons, a neuer to receive anie king that Chould be called John. And this was for the envie which they bare to John of Bant the duke of Lancaffer, who in right of his wife Constance, that was daughter to 50 king Peter of Castile, did name himselfe king of Castile.

Also they caused them to sweare that they thould be readic to come to them when some they fent for them, and induce all their neighbours to take part with them. And further, that they thould never pelo to anie tar to be levied in the realine, ercept a fil tonth onclie. Thus it came to palle, that after it was speed abroad what four these Ester and Bentishmen The common kept ; the commons allo in the counties of Suller, 60 Hertford, Cambridge, Suffolke, and Porffolke, and other thires about, builled op and ran togither on heapes, so that the number of those burulie people maruelloudie increased, in such wife as now they feat red no reliffance, and therefore began to thew profe of those things which they had before conceived in fices aurous their minds, beheading all fuch men of law, tuffices. and lurous as they might catch, and laic hands bpon, blockam feat without respect of pitie, or remorfe of conscience, alby the rebeis. ledging that the land could never enjoy hir native and true libertie, till all those losts of people were dispatched out of the waie.

This talke liked well the eares of the common bplandiff people, and by the leffe conneieng the more, they purposed to burne and destroic all records, cub bences court-rolles, and other minuments, that the remembrance of ancient matters being remoned out of mind, their landlords might not have whereby to chalenge anie right at their hands. Their number fill increased: for all such as were in bebt or banger of law for their unidemeanors and offences, came out of all coasts onto them, to that when the Eller men, and other of the hither five the Thames, were Inhances, palled over and joined with the Bentilhmen, a thole that were assembled on that side the river book Fabin, Blackbeath; they were effemed to be an hundred Capting thouland, having diverle capteins belides the faid the Chi Jacke Straw, as William Wraw, Mat Tiler Bong Jacke Shepheard, Tom Milner, and Dob Carter. Whilest they were lodged on Blackheath, the king fent to them certeine knights, to understand of them the cause of their gathering thus togither, to blome answer was made, that they were come togither to fpeake with the king, about certeine causes and but freake with the king, about certeine causes and our finelle, therefore they bad the mellengers returne, finding the control of and declare to the king that there was no remedie to come for but he must needs come and speake with them.

When this tale was told to the king, there were Illimit some that thought it best that he should go to them, and know what their meaning was : but Simon de Sudburie the archbilhop of Canturburie, that was logo chancellog, and also fir Robert Hales logo of S. Johns, and as then load treasuroz, spake earnessie as gainst that adule, and would not by anie meanes that the king thould go to such a fort of barelegged ribalos; but rather they withed that he thould take some order to abate the prive of such vile rascals. Af ter the commons understood that the king would not come to them, by reason of the contrarie adulle given to him by thole two persons, the load chancel loz and the lozd treasuroz, they were maruelloustie moued against them, and sware that they would not rest till they had got them, & chopped off their heads, calling them traitors to the king and realme.

Peuerthelesse there be that write, that the king (to Froffin cut off the branches of luch milchefe now in the first budding thereof) to fatilite in part the delire of those rude people, went downe the river in his barge to Kethereth, and there neere the those keeping himfelfe fill on the water, talked with a great number of them that came bowne to the riner five . But foilo much as he would not come forth of his barge to them on land, which they fæmed most to defire, they were in a great rage', and fo for that they could not have him amongst them (as they wished) in furious wife they can to the citie, and at the first approach, Cherthe had they spoiled the burrough of Southwarke, brake by footh the prisons of the Parihalles, & the Kings bench, let all prisons the prisoners at libertie, admitted them into their atlarge companie.

Mis was on Coopus Chiffi daie, as the same au thors write, that the king thould thus talke with them: but their first entring into Southwarke, was on Coapus Chaisti euen, as Thomas Walfingham faith, palling at their pleasure to and fro the batoge who come all that night : for although the lord maior, and other of konto of the best citizens would gladie have closed the addressin gates against them, yet they burst not do it, for feare rebels. of the commons of the citie, the fæined to favour the cause of the revels so apparantlie, that they threat ned to kill both the load maioz, all other that would take byon them to thut the gates against the commons . The Londoners liked better of the come guirding mons, for that they protested the cause of their as continu fembling togither, was not but to fæke out the trat to but to safe the manufer together and the trate to but to fæke out the trate to fæke out the trate to but to but to fæke out the trate to but to b tous of the realine, and when they had found them fourth, and nuntified them forth, and punished them according to that they had or king defecued, they ment to be quiet. And to give the more country credit rebels to all pallengers.

Che oth mi:

bearing of the fur in Bent & Effer,rife in libe maner.

Lawiers,iubrought to

The next way to extinguilly right.

credit to their falengs, they fuffered none of their companie to rob or spoile, but caused them to paie for that they toke.

On the morrow being Corpus Chiffi day, on the which pay it is reported that the king Chould talke with them at Rethereth (as before ye have heard) after that they saw that they could not have him to come and talke with them on land, as they withed, and that now they had filled their heads full with the fume of fuch wines as they dranke in everie mans 10 celler that was let open for them, enter who would: they fell in talke with the Londoners of manie lewd deutles, as of the appehending of traitors, and speciallie concerning such milithing as they had of the duke of Lancaster, whom they hated about all other persons. And herebpon agreeing in one mind, after diverse other of their outragious doings, they ran The Sanoic the same day to the faid dukes house of the Sauoic, to the which in beautie and flatelinesse of building, with all maner of princelie furniture, there was not 20 brite realine comparable, which in despite of the duke, whom they called traitoz, they fet on fire, and by all wates and means indevoured otterlie to acffroie it.

The Chamefull spoile which they there made was monderfull, and pet the scale of fulfice, truth, and bpright dealing which they would feme to thew, was as nice and frange on the other part, speciallie in fuch kind of milgouerned people: for in that fpotling of the dukes house, all the fewels, plate, and other rich 30 and fumptuous furniture which they there found in great plentie, they would not that any man thould fare the better by it of a mite, but threw all into the ling of the re- fire, so to be consumed; and such things as the fire could not altogither destroie, as plate and iswels, they brake and crafted in pieces, throwing the fame into the Thames. One of them having thrulk a faire filuer pece into his bosome, meaning to conucie it awaic, was espied of his fellowes, who toke him, and cast both him and the piece into the fire; sateng they 40 might not lufter any luch thing, fith they profested The inflice of themselves to be zealous of truth and suffice, and not theues no; robbers.

There were 32 of them, that being gotten into the celler of the Sauoie, where the dukes wines late, dianke so much of such sweete wine as they found there, that they were not able to come footh, but with stones a wood that fell downe as the house burned, they were closed in, so that out they could not get. They late there thowting & crieng feuen dates 50 togither, and were heard of manie, but none came to helpe them, and so finallie they perithed. Powal ter that these wicked people had thus destroised the duke of Lancasters house, and done what they could deutle to his reproch; they went to the temple, and burnt the men of lawes lodgings, with their bokes, wittings, and all that they might lay hand boon. Also the house of saint Johns by Smithfield they set on fire, so that it burned for the space of seven dates to gither. On Friday a great number of them, esses 60 med to 20 thouland, went to the manoz of Heiburie that belonged but othe load of faint Johns, and fetting fire on it, fought otterlie to destroie the whole buildings about it.

They were now divided into the eparts, one but der the leading of Jacke Straw, twhe in hand to ruinate that house, and an other number of them lay on mile endgræne, and the third companie kept bpon the tower hill, and would not fuffer anie vittels to be conneied into the tower, where the king at that fine was lodged, and was put in such feare by those The land chan rung people, that he luffered them to enter into the io and the tower, where they fought so narowlie for the load his weather chancelos, that finding him in the chamell, they drew him forth togither with the lord treasurer, and on drawns out of the tower hill without renerence of their effates and the tower and begrees, with great notice and fell cries, they firoke by the revels. off their heads. There were also beheaded at the same time by those rude people, one of the kings servants that was a fergeant at armes called John Leg, who had bled himfelfe fomewhat extremelie in gathering up of the pole monie, as by one writer it aweareth. Allo to make by the mette, they beheaded a Francis Thom, Wall cane Frier, whom they had taken there at the fame time, for malice of the duke of Lancaffer, bicause he was verie familiar with him. Some write that this frier was confessor, and other say that he was phylician to the king; but what socuer he was, the commons thopped off his head, to beare the other companie, not sparing for anie respect that might be alleoged in any of their behalfes.

On the same day also they beheaded manie others, as well Englithmen as Flemings, for no cause in the world, but onelie to fatisfie the crueltie of the commons, that then were in their kingdome, for it was a sport to them, when they gat any one amongst them, that was not fwome to them, and femed to millike of their dwings, or if they bare but never so little have revels make a tred to him, freightwates to plucke of his hod, with passing to kill such a yelling noise as they toke op amongst them, men. and immediatlie to come thronging into the Arets, and frike off his head. Peither had they any regard to facred places; for breaking into the church of the Augustine friers, they drew forth thirteene Fle- No respect of mings, and beheaded them in the open freets; and place with the out of the parith churches in the citie, they twke forth feventiene, and likewife Aroke off their heads, with out renerence either of the church of feare of God.

But they continuing in their militiefous purpole. thewed their malice speciallie against strangers, so that entring into everie fret, lane, and place, where they might find them, they brake up their houses, murthered them which they found within, and spoiled their gods in most outragious manner. Likewise they entered into thurthes (as before pe have heard) The outragia into abbeies, monafteries, and other houses, namelie ous dealing of of men of law, which in semblable fort they ransace ked. Aley also brake by the prisons of newgate, and of both the counters, defiroted the boks, and fet pris foners at libertie, and also the sanduarie-men of faint Partins le grand. And fo likewife did they at Welfminffer, there they bake open the efchequer, and destroied the ancient bokes and other records there, dwing what they could to suppesse law, and by might to beate downe equitie and right, as it is faid,

Tunc sus calcatur violentia cum dominatur.

They that entered the tower, vied themselves most vielumptuoullie, and no lette bureuerentlie againft the princelle of Males, mother to the king : for thrus fting into hir chamber, they offered to hille hir, and Swallt downe opon bir.bed, putting hir into such feare, that the fell into a flowne, and being taken bp and recovered, was had to the water live, and put in to a barge, a conucied to the place called the quenes wardzobe, or the tower riall, where the remained all that day and the night following, as a woman halfe dead, till the king came to recomfort hir . It was Arange to confider, in what feare the logos, knights e gentlemen food of the cruell proceedings of those rude a base people. For where there were fir hundred armed men, and as manie archers in the tower at that present, there was not one that durst gainclais their dwings.

Finallie, when they had eased their stomachs, with the spoiling, burning, and defacing of fundate places, they became more quiet, and the king by the adulle of fuch as were then about him, boon good beliberas fereth theres tion of counsell, offered to them pardon, and his bels pardon.

the rebels.

The lawiers

Che bing of

Froiffard

peace, with condition that they thould cease from burning and ruinating of houses, from killing and murthering of men, and depart euerieman to his home without more abo, and there to tarrie for the kings charters confirmatorie of the same parbon. The Ellermen were content with this offer, as they that were defirous to fee their wines and children, being waren wearie of continuall travelland paines which they were constrained to take. The king went forth unto Mile end, and there declared unto the 10 commons that they should have charters made to them of his grant, to make them all free. And further that cuerie thire, towne, loodhip and livertie thould have banners of his armes delinered onto them, for a confirmation of his grant. Herebpon they fæmed well appealed, and the king rove to the quanes wardrobe, otherwise called the tower rotall, to wist his mother, and so did comfort hir so well as he could, and taried with hir there all night.

The Effermen latisfied with the kings promises, 20 immediatlie departed homeward; howbeit they ap pointed certeine of their companie to remaine fill and tarie for the hings charters. The Bentithmen al foremained, and were as buffe in maner the nert day bring faturdaic, in all kind of mildhiefous deas lings, as they hav beene before, to wit, in murthering of men, overtheowing and burning of houses. The king therefore fent buto them fuch as beclared in that fort their fellowes were gone home well fatififorme of peace he was contented to grant to them, if it liked them to accept the same. Herebpon their chefe capteine Wlat Tiler, a verie craftie fellow, and induce with much wit (if he had well applied it) fair, that peace invoco he wilhed, but yet to, as the conditions might be indited to his purpose.

De was determined to drive off the king and his councell (bicause he was of greater soice than they) with caulls and thitis till the nert date, that in the night following he might the more easilie haue com 4 palled his resolution, which was, having all the power fort of the citie on his five, to have sported the citie, and to let fire in foure corners of it, killing first the hing and the losds that were about him: but he that relisteth the proud, and giveth his grace to the humble, would not permit the pugratious deulles of the naughtie and lelvo lossell to take place, but inodenlie bilamointed his milchæfous daiff. For icherens die uerle formes of charters had beine drawne according to the effect of the agreement with the Gler, 50 men, and none of them might pleafe this loodie rebell, at length the king fent to him one of his knights called fir John Deluton, to request him to come to him, that they might talke of the articles which he stwo upon to have inserted in the charter, of the which one was to have had a commission to put to death all lawiers, clineaters, and other which by any office had any thing to do with the law; for his meaning was that having made all those awaie that understoo the the will and disposition of the common people. 3t ivas reported in deed, that he thould faie with great pride the day before thefe things chanced, putting his hands to his lips, that within foure dates all the lawes of England Hould come forth of his mouth. The weether had biterlie forgotten all law, both of uine and humane; otherwise they would have beine content to line under law, and to do buto others as they would be done buto, as the berie law of nature (than which there cannot be a better guide) teacheth, Qued tibi vis fieri mihifac, qued non tibi, neli, Sic potes in terris vincre inre poli.

Then therefore the faid fir John Dewton called bpon him to come awaie to the king, he answered as it were with indignation: If thou (faith he) half fo much half to returne to the king, thou mail depart, " I will come at my pleasure. Then the knight there ... fore was come from him, he followed indeed, but fomwat flowlie. And when he was come neere to the place in Smithfield where the king then was, with certeine loods and knights, & other companie about him , the faid fir John Dewton was fent to himagaine, to binder frand what he meant. And bicause the knight came to him on horffebacke, & dio not alight from his hoelle, Wat Tiler was offended, & faibin his furie, that it became him rather on forthan holf. backe to approach into his prefence. The knight not able to abloe such presumptuous demeanour in that vioud and arrogant person, shaped him this answer: It is not amide that I being on horffebacke, fould » come to the fitting on horfebacke.

With which words Wat Ciler taking indiana." tion, drew out his dagger, menacing to arike the knight, calling him there with traitoz: the knight oil. daining to be miluled at the hands of luch a ribald, told him that he lied fallelie, and with that vlucken forth his dagger. Wat Tiler being among his men. thewed that he would not beare that injurie, and forthwith made towards the linight to run boon him. The king perceining the knight in banger, bad him alight from his hoofe, and deliver his dagger to Wat Tiler: but when that would not pacific his proud and high mind, but that he would need fle by ed, from thenceforth to live in quiet, and the fame 30 on him, the maior of London William Walliam, williams and other knights and elquiers that were about the worthmen bing, told him that it thould be a thame for them all, of London tf they permitted the knight in their prefence before group man the eies of their prince to to be murthered: therfore they gave counfell to fuccos him forthwith, and to appreheno the vile naughtie rivalo. The king though he was but a chilo in yeares, yet taking courage to him, commanded the maioz to arrest him. The maioz being a man of incomparable bolonette, foothwith rode to him and arreffed him, in reaching him luch a blow on the head, that he loze affonied him there with: and fireightwaies other that were about the king, as John Standilly an elquier, and divers more of the kings feruants drew their frieds, and thruff Cheut him through in diverse parts of his bodie, so that he captured fell presenties from his bootle downe to the earth, and risks. died there in the place.

When the commons beheld this, they cried out; Dur capteine is traitozonflie flaine, let be fland to." gither and die with him : let be Got and revenge his > death manfulice: and to bending their bowes, made them readie to thot. The king thewing both harding nelle and wisedome at that instant, more than his age required, fet his spurs to his hoose, and rode to them, fateng; What is the matter my men, that meane you? Will you that at your king? We not state troubled not offended at the death of a traited and perfuelt ribald; I will be your king, capteine and leader, fol the rites low me into the fields, and you thall have all things lawes, all things should then be endered according to 60 that you can defire. This did the king, to the end he might appeale them, least they should have let fire on the houses there in Smithfield, and have attempted some further mischese, in revenge of the displeasure which they twice for the death of their chafe leader. They mound with these the kings words, followed him and the knights that were with him, into the o' pen fields, not yet resolued whether they should set bpon the king and flea him, or elfe be quiet, and returne home with the kings charter.

In the meane time, the load maioz of London was returned into the citie, with one man onelie attende ing opon him, and cried to the citizens; Dh pie god was and vertuous citizens, come fouth out of hand, and mained helpe your king readie to be flaine, & belpe me your bonione

Brrogant and proug mores

The wicked purpole of the rebels.

Ethe rebels

all law abou lifhed.

Inarmie without a (apicine.

An. Reg. 4. Kichard read against helpe me for some faults committed by me against you, pet for fake not your king, but helpe and fuccour him in this present danger. When the worthipfull ci fizens and other, that in their lotall hearts loued the hing, had heard these woods, incontinentlie they put themselues in frong and sure armoz, to the number of a thouland men, and gathering themselues took ther into the fræts , tarried but for some lord or bright that might conduct them to the king : and by chance there came buto them fir Robert Buolles, thome all of them requested that he would be their leader, least comming out of arraie and order, they might the soner be broken, who willinglie led one part of them, and certeine other knights led other of them, clad in faire bright armour buto the kings pres fence. The king with the loads, knights and efquires, not a little reioised at the comming of those armed men, and areightwates compatted the commons as bout, as they had beene a flocke of thepe that thould 20 baue bene closed within some fold , till it pleased the thepheard to appoint footh, which thould be thant into passure, and which taken to go to the shambels.

Cherebels quite Dilcous raged threw bowne their of the king.

There was to be fone a maruellous change of the right hand of the load, to behold how they thatwing bowne france, bils, arcs, fivords, bowes and arolves, humblie began to fue for pardon, which a little before alonied to have the life of the king and his fernants wholic and altogither in their hands, power, and difpolition. The pore wretches fought to hide themfelnes in the come that grew in the fields, in ditches, hedges, and dennes, and therefoeuer they might get out of the way, to to fafe gard their lines. The knights that were with the king would gladie have beene doing with them, and requested licence of him to firthe off the heads of some one or two hundred of them, that it might be a witnesse in time to come. that the force of the order of knighthwd was able to do somewhat against the carters and ploughmen: but the king would not luffer them, alledging that 40 manie of them were come thither by compultion, and not of their owne accord, and therfore it might come to palle that those should die for it, that had nothing: offended: but he commanded that there should be proclamation made in London, that the citizens thould have no dealings with them, noz fuffer anie of them to come within the citie that night, but to cause them to lie without owes.

In the report of this commotion chronogramers do somewhat varie, as by this present extract out of ton canon of Henrie Knighton canon of Leceiffer abbeie, liuing at the time of this turnult may appeare: which Abraham Fleming hath faithfullie and trulie translated out of the annales of the fair canon written in parche ment in old Latine letters as followeth . Upon a far turdaie, these malcontents [to wit, Thomas Baker the first mouer but afterwards the principall leas Ders, Jacke Straw, Jacke Wiler, Jacke Carter, Jacke Trewman, and their tredierous traine met togither in Smithfield, whither also the bing repaired 60 in the morning, who although in peaces he was but yong, yet in wifedome and discretion he was well growne. The ringleader of this tumultuous rowt, those right name was Wat Tiler, which he had now hanged into Jacke Straw, approched neere the king, in so much that he might in a marier touch him, being the mouth of all the relidue, and having in his hand a drawne dagger, which he tolled from hand to hand, bop-like placing with it, a watching due time therewith, if not to trab, yet suddenlie to smite the king, if he denied their requells. Therebpon they that were nert and about the king were greatlie ab feard, least his pretended mildere thouse come to patte.

pow he craved of the king that all warrens, was ters, parks and woods thould be common, fo that as well pope as rich might freelie in any place wherefoeuer practife fifting in ponds, poles, rivers, or any waters, and might hunt dere in forreffs and parkes, and the hare in the fields, with diverte other requests, which he would have granted without contradiction or gainefateng, and exercise without controlment. Pow when the king in the grant hereof by delibera, tion bled fome delate, Jacke Straw brew never bnto him, and speaking but ohim certeine thetening words, take hold of the horffes bridle whereon the king rode, bpon what prefumptuous enterprife 3 ivot not. Which John Walworth a burgede of Lone don beholding, and fearing present death to hang o uer the kings head, caught a weapon in his hand, and ther with thauft Jacke Straw through the throte, which when another that was by being an elauter. named Kafe Standily did fæ, with his weapon alfo ran him through the lives; in lo much that he fell flat on his backe to the ground, and beating with his hands to and fro a while, at last he gave up his unhaps

Then a great clamoz and lamentable outerie was made, and heard a great while togither, faieng: Duc guide is dead, our capteine is dead. And indeed to he was, being dragged by the hams and feet in a vilo and contemptible fort into faint Bartholomewes thurth hard by. Then did manie of the burulie multitude withdraw themselves, and vanishing awaie betoke them to their heles, being about the number (as it was thought) of ten thousand. Then the king minding to make amends and to requite received courtefie, knighted the faid John Walworth, & Kafe Standish, with foure burgelles more of the citie, namelie John Philpot, Picholas Bzembze, John Laund, and Picholas Twiffeld, girding them about the walt with the girdle of knighthod, which was the maner of their graduating. Then the king having ordeined and made the forelaid fir knights, commanded that the relique of the curled crue Choulo depart and get them into the field, that meeting togs ther in a companie, he might fall buto a treatie of a græment with them.

The rowt being there allembled, behold a multifude of armed men ran rulling out of the citie, fir Robert knols being their capteine, who with thefe his foldiers compated a hedged in the paze cattines distressed in the field like thepe that have lost their Mévheard. Then the king of his accustomed clemencie, being pricked with pitte, would not that the wetches thould die, but spared them being a rath and folith multitude, and commanded them everie man to gethim home to his owne house; howbeit manie of them, at the kings going awaie luffered the danger of death. In this milerable taking were reckoned to the number of twentie thouland . Thus faith Knighton, not as an eie-witneffe, but as taught by heare-faie, thereby he compiled the greatest part of his annales, as he himfelfe confesteth, feeming fozrie that he was to confireined, as by part of the odafliction at the fot of the first page, intituled Lamentum compilatoris, appeareth in maner and forme following:

Sum cacus fuctus subita caligine tactus, Nec opus inceptum iam corrigo forsan ineptum, Me metuo dubium pro veris sape locutum,

All the forelate villances not with francing against the king and the state, tending wholie to the subverfion of law and equili governement, albeit the weet. thes beforced no sparke of favour, but ertreame la ucritic of ladgement to be executed byon them ; pet (as pæ hatie heard) belides the great clemencie of the king, erhibited buto them in remitting their offenle, offense, and acquiting them from the rigor of the law, he granted and gaue to them the charter, which they had requested, faire written and fealed, to auoto a greater mischiefe, a commanded it for a time to be beimered them, knowing that Effer and Bent were not so pacified, but that if they were not the somer contented, and that partlie affer their minds, they mould op againe. The tenor of the charter which was gotten thus by force of the king was as followeth.

The forme of the kings charter of Manumission.

The like enere wis granted to them of other countrice as foelt as to thele of thert forefhire in y fame forme, the names of the counties changed.

The townef:

Mihons not per quieted.

presentes littera peruenerint, salu-tem. Sciatis quod de gratia nostraspeciali manumisimus universos ligeos & singulos subditos nostros 20 & alios comitatus Hertfordia, & ipsos & corum quemlibet abomni bondagio exuimus, & quietos facimus per presentes, ac et iam perdonamus eifdem ligeis ac subditis nostris omnimodas felonias, proditiones, transgressiones, & extortiones, per ipsos vel aliquem corum qualitercunque factas sine perpetratas, ac etiam vilagariam & vilagarias, si qua vel que in ipsos, vel aliquem ipsorum fuerit vel fuerint hijs occasionibus promulgata vel pro-mulgata, & summam pacem nostram eis & eorum 30 cuilibet inde concedimus. In cuius rei testimonium, has litteras nostras fieri fecimus patentes. Teste meipso apud London 15 die Iuny. Anno regninostri quarto.

The commons having obtained this charter departed home, but ceased not from their riotous des meanour in fundric parts of the realine, and especis allie at faint Albons, there after the townesmen 4 were returned home, they kept fuch a coile againt the abbat and monks, to have certeine ancient charters delinered them that concerned their liberties, and to have such new made and delinered to them as might ferue their purpofe; that bicaufe fuch old charters as they requested were not to be had, the abbat and monks loked enerie houre when their house Should be fet on fire and burnt over their heads. The prior and certeine other as well monks as late men that were fernants to the abbat, fled for feare of the 50 rage of those misgouerned people, knowing that they hated them deadlie, and therefore loked for no course telic at their hands. They had obteined the kings letters buto the abbat, commanding him to deliver bu to them such charters as they had given information to be remaining in his hands, so that buder colour thereof, they called for those writings in most importunate wife, threatning fore, if they were not brought to light, otterlie to destroie the house by setting it

Wut to speake of all the burule parts of those burulie people, it were twlong a processe : pet at length after they binder flood how their grand capteine and chefe ringleader Mat Tiler was flaine, they began somewhat to allwage their presumptuous attempts, the rather for that there came a knight with the kings letter of protection in behalfe of the abbat and his house, and yet they were not so calmed, but that they continued in requiring to haue charters made to them by the abbat, of the like forme and eff feato that which the king had made, concerning the infranchifing them from bondage, whereby they that obteined fuch charters toke themfelinen to be, bis charged of all fernices and accultomed labors, forthat they meant not to do any further works, nor rold fuch cultomes as before time they blualite had bane accustomed to do and yeld buto their lanclords.

Reither did the townslinen of S. Albons, and the tenants of other townes and billages thereabout, that belonged to the abbeie of S. Albons, thus butra giouslie mistemeane themsclues, but euerie where else the commons kept such like four, so that it was rightlie called the hurling time, there were fuch hur. Chehate 10 lie burlies kept in everie place, to the great banger tinc. of overtheowing the whole Cate of all gwd govern ment in this land. For cuen the felfe fame faturdaie after Corpus Chrifti day, in Suffolke there were not togither to the number of fiftie thouland men, by the fetting on of John Waraw, a naughtic lewd prieff. that had bone first among the Estermen at London, and was lent downe in all post hast from Wat Chang Don, and was tent vowine in those parts to commit our training of the Action heavy about 11 on at the second the like missibe eas he had seene begun about Lon folking don. These fellowes therfore, after they were affem bled togither, fell to the destroiong of the manage and boules of men of law, & fuch lawiers as they caught they flue, and beheded fir John Cauendith lood chiefe sit 3th tustice of England, and set his head byon the pillozie Comming in the market place in S. Comundfburie.

Also fir John of Cambatoge the palos of faint Co hand, munosburie, as he would have fled from them, was taken not far from Dildenhale, and likewife behen Chemind bed, his bodie being left naked in the open field, and & Commis no man presuming to burie it, during the space of burtelung five dates, for feare of the cruell commons. His bead was let opon a pole, and carried before John Wiralo and other of those wicked people; the which comming to Buric, and entring the towne in maner of appoint cellon, when they came into the market place where the pillozie flod, as it were in token of the old friendship betwirt the load thiefe instice, and the faid prior, they made sport with their heads, making them formetime as it were to kille, other whiles to found in either others eare. After they had taken their pallime inough herewith, they let both the heads againe aloft bpon the pillozie. After this, they beheaded an other monke called Dan John de Lakinghuith, whole hed was likewise set by the other two upon the pillogic. Moreover, they caused the monks to come forth and being buto them all such obligations, in which the townelmen floo bound buto the monasterie for their god abearing; likewife fuch charters of liberties of the towne of Burie, which king Ennte the founder of the faid monasterie, and his successors had granted to the same : which writings when they had brought forth, and protested that they knew of no more, the commons would fearfelie belowe them, and there fore called the tolonelinen forth; and bad them lie if that there were all such writings as they thought and with their advantage to have brought to light. The townesmen seigned as though they had bank forie to fee fuch rule kept against the monks, were in deed they had fet the commons in hand with all these things. To conclude, the commons take this order with the monks, that if the tolenelmen might not obtains their aucient liberties, by the having of those writings, they should declare what the same li berties were, which they were want to intoy, and the abbat of Burie, Comund Brumfield, being then in mills prilon at Potingham whom they purpoled to deliver field but (so that he thould sclebat duine service in his mor musterie on Addummer date next) within source for the first source for the dates after his comming bome fixed confirme with forther his scale such charter as was to be beuised and made until concerning the fame liberties of the faid townel the thin men, and the covered bould Highlife put therebuty their common Coult their common feale. Poscouer, they confireined the montes to believe onto the townesmen, a crosse and a chalice of fine golo, and other telvels that belonged to the abbeie, being in value about the worth of a thouland pounds in monie, the which was to remaine in the hands of the townimen, opon this condition, that if Comund Bumfield being beliuered out of pallon infoice the dignitie of abbat there, and with all put his scale to. gither with the couent feale within the time limited. puto a writing that thould conteine the liberties of the towne, that then the fame croffe, chalice, and or 1 ther tewels thould be reflozed onto the monafferie. or elfe the fame to remaine for euer to the towner men as forfeited. Such were the dwings of those rebels in and about the towne of Burie: and the like disorders & breach of peace followed by the commotions of the commons in Cambridgelhire, and in the He of Clie, resembling the others in Caughters of men, bestroteng of boules, and all other forts of mil

John Litte= of fapfolke

Che earle of

The Antolk the noblemen to be fmorne to them.

Dir Bobert Balle flaine

feruchum at an huge number of those burulie countric people, which binder the guiding of a dier of cloth, commons lie called John Litteffer, that had owelt in Porwich, attempted and did all fuch ongratious feats, as they had heard that other did in other parts of the realme, pea and greater allo, putting forth their hands buto rapine and robberie. And thereas they were wholie conspired togither, and bent to commit all kind of milchefe, pet estéming their owne authoritie to be fmall, they purposed to have brought William Be 2 ford earle of Suffolke into their felowthip, that if ale terwards they might hamilie be impeached hereas ter, for such their naughtie and most wicked dos ings, they might have had some thadow or colour, as it were through him, while they had delt in such burns lie fort . But the earle aduertised of their intention, Suddenlie rose from Super, and got him awaie by bn= knowne wates, still fleing from the commons, till at length he got to S. Albons, and fo from thence to the king. The commons milling of their purpole for the ha tibils compell uing of him , laid hold byon all luch knights and o. ther gentlemen as came in their waie, and were found at home in their houses, compelling them to be sworne to them, and to ride with them through the countrie, as the load Scales , William load Poalie, fir John Biewes, fir Stechan Pales, and fir Kobert Salle : which fir Robert continued not long alive a mong them, for he could not diffemble as the relidue, but began to reprome openlie their naughtie dos 50 ings, for the which he had his braines datht out by a countric clowne, one that was his bondman, and fo be ended his life, who if he might have come to have tried his manhod and frength with them in plaine battell, had been able to have put a thousand of those villaines in feare, his valiancie and prowelle was such. The residue taught by his example that they must either distemble or die for it, were glad to currie favour, praising or dispraising all things as they fato Che capteine with their cheffeine John Litteffer , that named himselfe king of the commons, they were preferred locathehenos to serve him at the table, in taking the affaic of his meats and drinks, and dwing other ferulces, with niamento knæling humblie before him as he fat at meat, as fir Stechan Pales tho was appointed his carner, and others had other offices affigned them.

At length, when those commons began to war wearie of taking paines in cuill dwings, they toke counsell togither, and agreed to send two knights, to wit, the lord Porlie, and fir John Brewes, and three of the commons, in whom they put great confidence, unto the king, to obteine their charter of manumilli on and infranchifing, and to have the fame carter moze large than those that were granted to other countries. They delivered great summes of monie buto those whome they fent, to bestow the same for the obtaining of pardon, and such grants as they su ed for, which monie they had got by force of the citis zens of Pozwich to faue the citie from fire and facking. Thefe knights as they were on their fournie, at A warlike Ichingham not farre diffant from Detomarket,not bichop. loking for anie such thing, met with sir Benrie Spenfer bilhop of Pozwich, a man moze fit for the flelo than the church, a better failled (as may appere) in arms than in divinitie. This bishop had aductife. ments at his manoz of Burlie nere to Dkam in the parties about Stamford, of the flurre which the commons in postfolke kept , and therebpon refolued Areight wates to fee that rule there was holden. He had in his companie at that time, not palling eight lances, and a finall number of archers,

The bithop meeting thus with the knights, era-In like maner in postfolke there was affembled 20 mined them freightwaies if there were anie of the traitours there with them. The knights at the first were doubtfull to bewrate their affociats: but at last imboldened by the bishops words, declared that two of the chafe dwers in the rebellion were there prefent, and the third was gone to provide for their dinner. The bithop ffreightwaies commanded those tivo to be made thorter by the head, and the third he himselfe went to sæke, as one of his shepe that was loff; not to being him home to the fold, but to the flaughter-house, as he had well deserved (in the bis Mops opinion) lith he had to milcherfoullie cone as Araie, and alienated himfelfe from his dutifull allegte ance. These persons being executed, and their heads pight on the end of poles, and fo fet by at pewmars ker, the bilhop with the knights twhe their waic with all speed towards Northwaltham in Northolke, Spenfer bish, where the commons were purposed to state for an spectage coupling orthogogap were from the king: and as he passed through the terms against countrie, his number increased, for the knights and the rebits. gentlemen of the countrie, hearing how their biffor had taken his speare in hand, and was come into the field armed, foined themselnes with him.

When therefore the bishop was come into the place The fortifia there the commons were incamped, he perceived eng of the rea that they had fortified their campe verie fronglie with ditches, and fuch other fruffe as they could make thiff with, as dozes, windowes, bozds, a tables, and behind them were all their cariages placed, so that it fæmed they meant not to flie. Derewith the bifbou being chafed with the prefumptuous bolonelle of fuch a lost of disordered persons, commanded his trum, pets to found to the battell, and with his speare in the the first man rest, he charged them with such violence, that he that chargeth went over the oitch, and laied to about him, that the revels in through his manfull dwings, all his companie found their campe. means to palle the bitch likewife, and fo therewith followed a verie loze and terrible fight, both parts do. ing their best to banquish the other . But finallie the commons were overcome, and define to fæke their folke rebeis the commons affected, and so comming into credit 60 lategard by flight, which was love hindered by their banquilbed. cariages that awd behind them, over the which they were forced to clime and leave fo well as they might. Ichn Littesfer and other cheefe capteins were taken aliuc. The bishop therefore caused the said Litte. Her to be arreigned of high treason, and condemned, and to he was drawne, hanged, and headed according to the judgement.

The biffing heard his confession, and by vertue of his office absolued him : and to thew some parcell of forrowing for the mans mischance, he went with bim to the galowes. But it feemed that pitie wrought not with the bishop to quench the seale of inflice : for he caused not Littester onclie to be erecuted, but fought for all other that were the cheefe owers in that rebellion.

The bilhon is

rebellion, causing them to be put buto death, and so by that meanes quicted the countrie. I To recite what was done in eucrie part of the realme in time of those hellish troubles, it is not possible : but this is to be considered, that the rage of the commons was bninerfallie luch, as it might feme they had general. lie conspired togither, to do what mischefe they could deutfe. As among fundzie other, what wickednesse was it, to compell teachers of children in grammar Idholes to fiveare never to infirma any in their art: 10 Againe, could they have a more mischesfous meas ning, than to burne and deffroie all old and ancient monuments, and to murther and dispatch out of the tonie all fuch as were able to commit to memoric, et ther any new or old records? Hor it was dangerous among them to be knowne for one that was lerned, and more dangerous, if any men were found with a penner and inkhozne at his fide : for fuch feldome or nener escaped from them with life.

Anno Reg. 5.

The capteine once fleine the foldiers

In armie of fortie thou: fand hoaffe=

The Rentifh: men ettlones rcbell.

Tack Stram and his adhe= rents erecu=

But to returne to faie forneithat more concerning 20 the end of their rebellious enterpiles, you must but derstand, how after that Wat Tiler was flaine at London in the presence of the king (as before pe have heard) the hope and confidence of the rebels greatlie decaied: and pet nevertheleffe, the king and bis councell being not well affured, granted to the commons (as ye have heard) charters of manumic fion and infranchisement from all bondage, and so fent them awaje home to their countries : and forth with here byon he affembled an armie of the Londo 30 ners, and of all others in the countries abroad that bare him goo will, appointing none to come, but fuch as were armed and had horfics, for he would have no formen with him. Thus it came to palle, that within the daies he had about him fourtie thousand horse men, as was effemed; fo that in England had not bone heard of the like armie affembled togither at one time. And herewith was the king advertised. that the Bentichmen began efflones to ffir, where with the king and the whole armie were to grieuous 40 lie offended, that they meant freight to have fet opon that countrie, and to have wholie destroied that rebullious generation. But thozough intercession made by the loads and gentlemen of that countrie, the king pacified his mod, and fo refolued to proceed against them by order of law and instice, causing sudges to lit and to make inquisition of the maleface tors, and especiallie of such as were authors of the milchéefes. And about the fame time did the maioz of London 50 fit in indgement, as well byon the offendors that were citizens, as of other that were of Bent, Eller, Southler, Porffolke, Suffolke, and other counties, being found within the liberties of the citie; and fuch as were found culpable, he caused them to lose their heads, as Jacke Straw, John Mirkbie, Alane Tredera, and John Sterling, that glozied of himfelfe, for that he was the man that had flaine the archbishop. This fellow (as it is written by fonc authors) ffreight ivales after he had done that inicked deed, fell out of 60 his wits, and comming home into Effer there he owelt, tied a naked fword about his necke, that hong boinne before on his breff, and likewife a bagger naked, that hanged downe behind on his backe, and fo went by and downe the lanes affrets about home, erieng out, and protesting, that with those weapons he had dispatched the archbushop; and after he had remained a while at home, be came to London againe, for that he fluid receive (as he faid) the remard there of the act which he had committed : and fo inded, when he came thither, and boldlie confessed that he was the man that had beheaded the archbishop, he lost his head in fleed of a recompense: and diverse other both of Offer and Bent, that had laid violent hands byon

the archbiffop came to the like end at London, where they did the deed, being beweated by their owne confellions.

Here is to be remembled, that the king, after the citie of London was delivered from the danger of the rebels (as before ye have heard) in respect of the great manhod, and affured lotaltie which had appear red in the maioz, and other of the albermen, for fome part of recompense of their faithfull affiffance in that dangerous feason, made the said maio: Milliam Them orngerous reason, much some aldermen his bie and his other aldermen his bie and his driven thren, to wit, Picholas Beamble, John Philpot, 121 angles cholas Tiviford, Robert Laundze, and Robert Calton, also John Standish, that (as pe have heard) helpe tollaie Wat Tiler. Pozeouer, the king granted, that there should be a dagger added to the arms of The stage the citie of London, in the right quarter of the flield, of London, in the right quarter of the flield, of London, of the fame armes, and for a re-augmentation of the fame armes, and for a re-dominant of the fame armes are dominant of the fame armes. membrance of this mater his valiant act, as doth ap the cases peare bnto this daie; for till that time, the citie bare onelie the croffe, without the bagger.

Although the kings authoritie thus began to their it felfe, to the terror of rebels; yet the commons of Gler effones allembled themselnes togither, not of efferte far from Hatfield Peuerell, and fent to the king to bellatinh know of him if his pleasure was, that they thould in top their promifed liberties: and further, that they might be as fræ as their loods, and not to come to a ny court, except it were to the great let, twife in the peare. When the king heard such presumptuous requells, he was in a great chase, & dispatched the melfengers awaie, with a fore threatning antwer, lateng that bonomen they were, and bonomen they thould be, and that in more wile manner than before, to the terrible example of all other that thoulo attempt any the like dilorders : and forthwith, the earle of Buc kingham, and the load Thomas Percie, brother to the Thereis: earle of Porthumberland, were fent with an armie Elicante to represe those revels, whome they found fortified teres fin within woos, hedges and ditches berie fronglie, but with small adouthey were put to flight, about five hundred of them flaine; the relique faned themselves as well as they might, by fuccour of the woos. There were eight hundred horffes also taken, which those rebels had there with them, to drain and carrie their

Those of therebels that escaped, were not yet so tamed by that overthrow, but that affembling themfelues togither in a rolut, they made towards Coltheffer: and comming thither, would have perfuaded the townslmen to have foined with them in a new rebellion. But when they could not bying their purpole to palle, they marched towards Sudburie. The lood Fitz Walter, and fir John Parlesson, under franding which waie they toke, followed them with a companie of armed men, and suddenlie setting bpon them as they were making their proclamations, due of them so manie as it liked them, and the other they faued, and fuffered to depart, ozelle committed them to prison. After this, the king came to Hauering at the bowse, and from thence to Chelmissos, where he appointed fir Kobert Trifilian to fit in indgement of the offendors and revels of that countrie, where upon an inquest being chosen, a great number were indited, arreigned, a found giltie, fo that byon some one gallowes there were nine or ten hanged togither.

An euerie countrie were like inquiries made, and Ete tital the thefe offendors apprehended and put to death in executed enerie loodhip through the realme, there anie of enerclast them were beteded, byten, twelve, twentie, fritte, Dip. yea and in some places by fortic at once; so that the whole number grew to littene hundred and about. At the first, when the kings instices began to sit in Offer, Kent, and at London, by reason of the multitude that were to be executed, they onelie chopped off their heads, but afterwards ichen that kind of death semed twelose and secret for so open offenses, they proceeded according to the accustomed law of the realine, by condemning them to be drawne and hanged, and according therbuto they were executed. Etrhing cale In the meane time, the king by the adule of his Eteking cas souncell, directed his letters revocatorie into everie countie there, to be proclamed in everie citie, box trachidus row, towne, and place, as well within the liberties as control of without in the which lefters be recently without; by the which letters he revoked, made void and frustrate his former letters of infrauchising the bondmen of his realme, and commanded that fuch as had the same letters, thould without delate bring them in, and reffore them to him and his councell to be cancelled, as they would answer boon their faith and allegiance which they owght to him, and opon paine of forfeiting all that they had. The date of which letters renocatorie was at Chelmelford, the second date of Julie, in the fift yeare of his reigne.

An. Reg.5.

She king re=

franchiling

andmen.

Then the king had quieted the countie of Offer, and punished such as were the cheefe fourcers of that inicked commotion in those parts, he went to faint Albons, to le instice done opon such as had demcas ned themselves most presumptuouslie against the kings peace in that towne, namelie against the abbat and his house, tho lought to defend themselves under a colour of frænothip, that they trusted to find in some persons about the king . But that trust occeined them, and procured the more displeasure as gainst them, for that they would not sue for fauour 30 at the abbats hands in time, by fubmitting them felucs buto his will and pleasure. To be biæfe, the hing came thither with a great number of armed men and archers, and caused his suffice sir Robert Trifilian to fit in juogement opon the malefactors, that were brought thither from Hertford gaile.

John Ball.

Thither was brought also to the king from Couen, tric, John Ball preff, whome the citizens of Couentrie had taken, and now here at faint Albons they presented him to the kings presence, wherebyon he was arreigned and condemned, to be drawne, hange ed, and headed for such notable treasons as he was there connicted of. He received judgement opon the faturdaic the first daie that the faid fir Robert Trist. lian lat in ludgement, but he was not executed till the mondaic following. This man had beene a preather the space of twentie yeares, and bicause his doe. time was not according to the religion then by the bishops mainteined, he was first prohibited to preach in anie church or chamell; and when he ceasted not for all that, but let forth his doctrine in the freets t fields where he might have audience, at length he was committed to prison, out of the which he propheticd that he should be veltuered with the force of twentie thousand men and even so it came to valle in time of the rebellion of the commons.

Colhen all the pulons were broken by, and the pri foners fet at libertie, he being therefore fo belivered, followed them, a at Blackeheath when the greatest multitude was there got togither (as some write) 60 he made a fermon, taking this fating or common proverbe for his theame, therebpon to intreat,

John Ball bis fermon to the rebels.

When Adam delu'd, and Eue span,

Who was then a gentleman? and so continuing his fermon, went about to prove by the words of that proverbe, that from the beginning, all men by nature were created alike, and that bondage of servitude came in by infust oppession of naughtiemen . For if God would have had anie bonomen from the beginning, he would have appointed who thould be bond & who free. And therefore he erhorted them to confider, that now the time was come appointed to them by God, in which they might

(if they would) cast off the yoke of bondage, frecouer libertie. He counselled them therefore to remember themselves, and to take god hearts but o them, that after the manner of a good husband that tilleth his ground, and riddeth out thereof fuch enill weeds as thoke and deffrois the god come, they might deffrois first the great loads of the realme, and after the indges and lawiers, quest mongers, and all other whom they bindertoke to be against the commons, for so might they procure peace and fuertie to themselves in time to come, if dispatching out of the waie the great men, there hould be an equalitie in libertie, no difference in degrees of nobilitie, but a like dianitie and equall authoritie in all things brought in among them.

When he had preached and let fouth such kind of doctrine, and other the like fond and folish toics buto the people, they extolled him to the farres, affirming that he ought to be archbishop and losd chancellour, where he that then enioied that rome, meaning fir Simon de Sudburie that then was alive, was a traitor to the king and realme, and worthis to lose his head, where soeuer he might be appehended. Pas nie other things are reported by writers of this John Ball, as the letter, which bnder a kind of darke ride dle he wrote to the capteine of the Eller revels, the copie thereof was found in one of their purifes that was erecuted at London.

The tenor of the said seditious preests letter.

Ohn Schwepe Sangaru parasipother, Pozke, and now of Colcheller, græteth well John namelelle, and John the Miller, and John them that they beware

Carter, & biddeth them that they beware ofguile in Bourrough, altand togither in Gods name, abiddeth Piers ploughman go to his worke, and chaltile well Hob the robber, etake with you John Trewman and all his fellowes, and no mo . John the Miller Eground imall, imall imall, the kings fonne of heaven thall paie for all. Beware or yee be wo, know your frænd from your to, have inough and late ho, and do well and better, the linne and læke peace, and hold you therein, and so biddeth John Trewman and all his fellowes.

This letter he confessed himselfe to have toxitten. as Thomas Walfingham aftirmeth, with mante o ther things which he had done and committed, to the disquicting of the realme, for the which he was John Ball drawne, banged, and beheaded at faint Albons, the fifteenth of Julic, being monday, in this fift yeare of king Kichards reigne. On the same daie, the kings inflice fir Robert Trifilian fat opon the revels of faint Albans, and other of the countrie of Pertford, afoze thome, by ludy policie as he vied, there were a great number indiced, and diucrfe being arreigned, were found guiltie, as William Brindecob, Willis am Cadindon, John Barboz, and certeine others, which were hanged and drawne, to the number of fiftone persons in all; diverse thefe men of the towne were committed to pailon, as Kichard Wallingford, John Barleke, William Berewill, Thomas Putoz and others of the countrie about . There were committed to prison to the number of fourescore perfons, the which neverthelette, by the kings pardon, were released and dismissed.

The hatred which the townslmen had conceived DI.i. againts $.Albong.

The king calleth in by proclamation ati uch let: 3 lbons han as ainst the abbat and convent of S. Albons, was le crite great, and manie veules they had to have fas und those that were executed. And there as well the townelmen, as other of the abbats and connents tenants, both of Hertfordibire, and Buckingham thire, had gotten of the abbat and conuent letters of discharge, from doing anie bound service, the king directed his letters bato certeine commissioners, as to John Ludowicke, John Wieffwicombe, John Benting, Bichard Berers, Walter Saunford, Ele 10 thard Ciffeed, Chomas Cidon, and William Co. ciethail, commanding them to cause proclamation to be made in all fuch townes and places as were ters of manus thought necessarie, through the whole countries of milion, as the Buckingham and Pertford, that all and energy persabat of faunt fon and perfons that ought and had beine accustomed granted to his to ome; gold ante manner of feruices, cultomes, oz duties, tweether they were bondmen or free, buto the faid abbat and concut of S.Albons, thould do and pold the fame feruces, cuftomes, and duties, in fuch 20 I he forme I manner, as they had beene vied to do, before the time of the late troubles, a not to chalenge of claime amplibertic of privilege which they infoiced not before the same trauvies, upon their faithe allegis ance in Lind, they it advound to him, and by on vaine to forfait all that they might forfeit: and in cafe anie were found to ow contrarte therbuto, the fame comminioners had authoritie, and were commanded to arreli and impulon them, till for their further punitly behaire accordinglie.

thire fwoine to the king.

Du faint Bargarets daie, the king being readie to take his courne to Berkhamsteb, in the great The commes court of the abbite of S. Albons had all the commons of the countie of wertford before him, that had fumnisms there to appeare, all that were betwirt filte in and the alcose years of age, where they toke an oth together from thencefwith, to be faithfull fub. teas but him, and never to rife or make ante commotion, to the billurbance of his peace, and rather to 40 bie, than to confent buto anie rebellious persons, whome they should to the vitermost of their volvers do their best, to apprehend and deliner them to the kings pulon, that they might be footh comming. Af ter they had received this oth, they were licenced to depart, and the king rove to Workhamsted, where he remained for a time, and went to Cahamfied to recreate himselfe with hunting, there be was informed, that wore with were hanged at S. Albons, were taken from the guiloives, and removed a god wate from the fame; with with prefumption he was fo urreo, that he cent twith with his letters to the bais liftes of the cowne of D. Aibons, commanding them upon the light of the same, to cause themes to be made, and to bring the faid bodies backe buto the gallowes, and to hang them in those chaines boon the fame gallowes, there to remaine, fo long as one precentight flicke to another, according to the forme of the subgement gruen. The test of this writ thus di recred to the balliffes of faint Albons , was at Eff. 60 hamilied the chird of August, in the sist yeare of this kings reigne, and in the years of our lood a thousand there hundred foure feare and one.

The townstmen of S. Albons durff not disobeic the langs commandement, and so hanged by againe in chaines the sead bodies of their neighbors, great. lie to their flame and report, when they could get none other for anie wages to come nere the ffink, ing carcalles, but that they were confiremed them, felues to take in hand to vite an office. And fuch was the end of the timults at S. Albons, where as well as in other places, the varialic commons had placed their parts. Co conclude and make an end of thefe dinehry troubles, to the end it may appeare, in what danger as well the B. as the Wole fate of the realine foo, by the nulchefous attempts of the virulie perple, I have thought good to declare the contestion of Backe Straw one of their chefe capteins (and nere in reputation among them onto Colat Eiler then he came to be executed in London, according to indiciali fentence paffed against him.

At the fame time (faid he) that we were affembled The man byon Plackeheath, and had fent to the king to come and had byon Blackeheath, and navient course uning to tour words but bs , our purpose was to have flaine all find Strange une claime at the claim of the claim can be seen to the claim of the clai knights, elquiers, and gentlemen, as should have give death uen their attendance thither byon him; and as for the king , we would have kept him among ft vs , to the " end that the people might more bololie have repaired to be, fith they thould have thought, that what focuer >> we did, the same had beene done by his authoritie. I inally, when we had gotten power inough, that we needed not to feare anie force that might be made ,, against vs, we would have saine all such noble men, as might either haue given counsell, or made anie >> relifiance against bs, speciallie the knights of the Rhoves; and lattic we would have killed the king? and all men of postessions, with bishops, monks, that nons, and parlons of churches, onelie friers Pendi cants we would have spared, that might have fuffi, ced for ministration of the facraments. And when we had made a riddance of all those, we would have denifed lawes, according to the which the subjects of this realme floudo have lived, for we would have " ment,000er inight be taken and agreed bpon in that 30 created kings, as Wat Tiler in Kent, and other in other countries. But bicaufe this our purpose was disappointed by the archbishop of Canturburie, that would not permit the king to come to be, we fought by all meanes to dispatch him out of the waie, as at >> length we did. Posouer, the same evening that Wat Tiler was killed, we were determined, having the " greatest part of the commons of the citie bent to toine with be, to have let fire in foure corners of the citie, and to to have divided among it is the speile of ,, the cheefest riches that might have beene found at our pleasure. And this (said he) was our purpose, as God ,, may belye me now at niv laft end.

Thus may you fee, after that fort they were conspired to the destruction of the realme, and to have aduanced and inriched themselves; not considering 02 forelæing the evill successe of their translations broile, and that it would fend but little to their profit in the end, by a common spoile to amend their state, and to become mightie and rich with gods evill got ten, which though for a time (if lucke had ferued them to have possessed they had ensoied, yet could they not long prosper nor bring god onto the possesses: for Non habet euentus fordida præda bonos. And left this one mans confession might seme in fufficient, diverte other of them confessed the fame, or much what the like in effect, when they faw no remedie but present death before their eies. To declare the occasion whie such mischeses happened thus in the realme, we leave to the inogement of those that may confecture a truth thereof, by conferring the manners of that age & behaviour of all fates then, fith they that wrote in those dates, may hamilic in that behalfe mille the trueth, in confirming things according to their affections. But truclie it is to be thought, that the faults, as well in one degree as an The calls other, speciallie the sinnes of the whole nation, procus the lett " red fuch vengeance to rife, whereby they might be mults. ivarned of their cuill dwings, and lake to refound the same in time convenient. But as it commeth fill to passe, when the danger is once overshot, repentance like wife is put ouer, and is no moze regar ded, till an other scourge commeth efficiencs to put men in reniembrance of their duetie; so in like mans ner (as femeth)it chanced in this kings dates, as by that which followeth may more plainelie appeare.

An.Reg.5.

In this meane time that these troubles were at the hottest in England, the duke of Lancaster being in Scotland, to behaved himfelfe (in the treatie which he had in hand with the Scots) distembling the mats ter fo, as if he had not bnoerstood of any trouble in England at all, that finallie before the Scots had knowledge thereof, a truce was concluded to indure Biruce With for two yeares, or (as other have) for three yeares. Then he had made an end there, and that all things were agreed byon and palled, for the confirmation of that accord, he returned to Berwike, but at his comming thither, the capteine fir Patthew Redman would not luffer him to enter the towne, bicaufe of e Strouke a commandement given to him from the earle of posthumberland, losd warden of the marches: Limeller to injerefore the duke was glad to returne into Scots tate into the land againe, obteining licence of the Scots to res maine amongst them, till the realme of England was reduced to better quiet. Per opon, the commons 2 in England that fauozed him not, twike occasion to report the worst of him that might be deutled, calling himnowintime of their rebellious commotions, a traitor to the realme, declaring that he had foined himselfe to the Scots, and meant to take part with them against his owne native countrie.

The king indeed had fent commandement, during the time of the rebellious troubles, buto the earle of Posthumberland, that he should have good regard to the fafe keeping of all the towness castels under his 30 rule, a not to lufter any person to enter the same, has uing forgotten to ercept the duke of Lancaffer being then in Scotland : wher bpon the duke twke no small dipleasure with the earle of Porthumberland, as as ter he well the wed at his comming home. Wut be fore he returned forth of Scotland, he wrote to the king to bioerstand his plesure, in that fort he should returne humbling himfelfe in such wife, as he made offer to come with one bright, one equier, and a grome, if it should please the king so to appoint him; 4 or if it so were that by his presence it was thought the realme was like to fall in any trouble, he was readie to depart into exile, never to returne into his countrie againe, if to be that through his abtence the king and realme might intop peace and quietnelle.

The king hearing such offers, wrote to him, that his pleasure was to have him to returne home, with all his whole traine; and if the same were not thought lufficient to gard him, he should take of everte tolune by the which he passed, a certeine number of men to 50 attend him buto the next towne for his lafegard, and foit was done, the king fending him commission to that effect, and thus comming to the court, he was of the king right honozablie received. Within fein daies after his comming, he exhibited a grieuous complaint against the earle of Porthumberland, for abuling him in diverte forts, in time of the late trous bles, so as his honour was greatlie thereby touched, tikel for thich the earle was lent for, and commanded to but fundic come but o Berkhamsted, there all the loads in mas 60 parties. ner of the land were affembled in councell.

Here, after the duke had late diverte things to the earles charge, for his disobotionee, unfaithfulnesse, and ingratitude; the earle after the manner of his countrie, not able to forbeare, brake out into reprochfall words against the duke, although he was conv manded by the king to cease, where the duke kept sie lence in humble maner, at the first wood, when the Ik. commanded him to hold his peace, so that by reason of the earles disobedience in that behalfe, he was are refled. But yet the earls of Marwike and Suffolke undertaking for his appearance at the next parle ment, he was suffered to depart, and so the councell biake up. About the feath of All faints the parle ment began, to the which the buke of Lancaffer came The buke of bringing with him an creeding number of armed the carle of men, and likewise the earle of Posthumberland Posthumbers with no leffe companie came likewife to London, land come to s was lodged within the citie, having great friend: the parlement thip the wed towards him of the citizens, tho promise trops of are fed to affift hint at all times, when necessitie requis med men. red, so that his part seemed to be overstrong for the The Londoduke, if they should have come to anie triall of their ners, frants o forces at that time.

The duke laie with his people in the fuburbs, and Morthumbers everiedate when they went to the parlement house at Meftminfter, both parts went thither in armour, The loads fit to the great terroz of those that were twise and grave in armour in personages, searing some missisfe to fall fouth of the parlement that bnaccustomed manner of their going armed to house. the parlement boule, contrarie to the ancient blage of the realme. At length, toquiet the parties and to The B. maauoid such inconveniences, as might have growen keth an agrees of their diffention, the king toke the matter into his met betweene of their diffention, the bing come the matter into his the duke of hands, and so they were made freends, to the end that the duke of Lancafter $ fome god might be done in that parlement, for refor the earle of mation of things touching the frate of the realine, Acathania for which cause it was especiallie called: but now as beriand. ter it had continued a long time, and few things at all concluded neives came that the ladie Anne fifter to the emperour Mentlaus, a affianced wife to the king of England, was come to Calis, wherepon the parlement was prozoged till after Christmas, that in the meane time the marriage might be folemnized, which was appointed after the Epithanie: and forth with great preparation was made to receive the brive, that the might be conncied with all honor but to the kings presence.

Such as thoulo receive hir at Douer repaired this The empes ther, where at hir landing, a maruellous and right rours liter ther, where at his canoning, a mathemotic and takes of affianced to be frange from the papened, for the was no fource out affianced to be of hir thip, and got to land in safetie with all his company, as received at pante, but that foothwith the water was fo troubled Douce. and shaken, as the like thing had not to any mans 3 waters remembrance cuer bene heard of : so that the thin thate. in which the amointed queene came over, was terris blie rent in pieces, and the relidue to beaten one as gainst an other, that they were scattered here and there after a wonderfull manner. Befoze hir comming to the citie of London, the was met on Blackbeath by the major and citizens of London in most honozable wife, and to with great triumph conveies to Wellminster, where (at the time amointed) all the nobilitie of the realme being affembled, the was tot- The kings ned in marriage to the king, and crowned quene by marriage the archbifhop of Canturburie, with all the glorie and perors liter. honor that might be deviced. There were also bold ben for the more honour of the same marriage, so lemne infics for certeine dates togither, in which, as well the Englishmen as the new quanes countries men theived profe of their manhod and valiancie, whereby praise a commendation of knightlie proivelle was atchined, not without damage of both the

After that the folemnitie of the marriage was fi nished, the parlement estiones began, in the which many things were inacted, for the behofe of the commonivealth. And amongst other things it was order ned, that all maner manumillions, obligations, releaffes, and other bonds made by compultion, dures, and menace, in time of this last tumultand riot as gainst the lawes of the land, and good faith, should be otterlie boto and adnihilated, And further, that if the kings faithfull liege people bio perceine any gathe. ring of the comons in suspected wife, to the number of fir or feaven, holding conventicles togither, they Should not traic for the kings writ in that behalfe for their warrant, but forthwith it should be lawfull for

Lancafter &

1382

with the ema

The buke of them

The fubben

Death of the carle of Sul=

folbe.

them to appehend fuch people, affembling togither, and to late them in parlon, till they might answer their dwings. These and manie other things were established in this parlement, of the which, the most part are fet footh in the printed boke of fatutes, there pe map read the fame more at large.

In time of this parlement William Ciffoed the earle of Suffolke, being chosen by the knights of the thires, to pronounce in behalfe of the commonwealth, certeine matters concerning the same: the 10 veriedaie and houre in which he thould have ferued that turne, as he went by the Caires, towards the by per house, he suddenlie fell downe and died in the hands of his fernants, buffe about to take him bp, thereas he felt no grafe of lickenelle then he came into Wellminster, being then and before merrie and pleafant inough, to all mens lights. Of his lubben ocath, manie were greatlie abalhed, for that in his life time, he had the wed himfelfe courteous and amiable to all men. The parlement shortlie therewon 20 take end, after that the merchants had granted to the king for a sublivic certeine customes of their wols, which they bought and fold, called a maletot, to endure for foure peares. The lord Richard Scrove was made lood chancellos, the lood Bugh Segrane loro treasurer.

The carle of March his geob fernice whilest he was bevutie wichtes doc= trine.

About the same time, the lood Comund Mortimer earle of Parch, the kings lieutenant in Ireland, des parted this life, after he had brought in manner all that land to peace and quiet, by his noble and pen 30 bent gouernement. In this feafon, Wifcliffe fet forth dinerle articles and conclusions of his doctrine, which the new archbishop of Canturburie, William Courtneie, latelie remoued from the le of London, buto the higher dignitie, did what he could brall thists to suppelle, and to force such as were the fetters fouth and mainteiners thereof, to recant, and otterlie to renounce. That he brought to passe, in the boke of ace and monuments let footh by matter the featt of faint John Post latine, an other parfement began, in which at the earnest fute and requell of the knights of the thites, John Waraie prieft that was the chiefe ower among the commons in Suffolke, at Burie, and Pildenhall, was adiudged to be draiven, and hanged, although manie believed. that his life thould have beine redemed for some great portion of monie.

A lewd fellow that twice boon him to be skilfull in thylicke and altronomie, caused it to be published 50 thorough the citic of London, that boon the Accention even, there would rife fuch a peffilent planet, that all those which came abroad forth of their chambers, before they had faid fine times the Lords praier, then commonlic called the Pater notter, and did not eate somewhat that morning, before their going forth. should be taken with sicknesse, a suddenlie die there. of . Panic foles belieued him, and observed his ozver; but the next day, when his prefumptuous lieng could be no longer faced out , he was fet on horffe, 60 filthie bomit of corruption and naughtineffe , for backe, with his face towards the taile, which he was compelled to hold in his hand in freed of a bridle, and fo was led about the citie, with two forden pots as bout his necke, and a whetifone, in token that he had well deserved it, for the notable lie which he had made.

a colepiophet feruto aright.

Ships of Bie wing god price.

About the same time, certeine English thips of Ric, and other places, went to the fea, and meeting pirats, fought with them, and ouercame them, taking fenen thips, with their hundred men in them. One of those thips had bene taken from the Engliffmen afore time, and was called the falcon, belonging to the lood Colilliam Latimer. They were all richlie laden with wine, war, and other god merchandise. This yeare the maior of London John de Posthampton, otherwise called John de Comber John ton, did punish such as were taken in adulteric, be Ment ric extremelie: for first be put them in the putfon, cal led the funne, that then flod in Cornehill, and after punisher caused the women to have their haire cut, as theres butters: in those dates were served that were appearhers of time others, and so were they led about the freets with trumpets pipes going before them . peither were the men spared more than the women, being put to manie open thames and reproches. But bicause the punishment of such offenses was thought rather to amerteine buto the spirituall surifoiction, than to the temporall, the bishop of London, and other of the cleargie, twhe it in verie euill part : but the maio; being a fout man, would not forbeare, but vied his app thoritie herein to the ottermost.

About the same time also, when the archbishop of Canturburie sate in sudgement opon a processe that was framed against one John Aston, a maister The Land that was framed against one Avynization, a mainter of art, that was an earnest follower of Wichitles of wichtig boarine, the Londoners brake open the dozes, there boaring, the archbilhop with his divines late, and caused them to give over, fo that they durft proceed no further in that matter. The fame piere were the fishmongers of London fore disquieted by the foresaid maior, who The filmen fought to infringe their liberties, granting licence gers form to foreners to come and fell all manner of fifth, as bled bythe freelie and more freelie than any of the companie of fithmongers: for they might not bute tt at the forces ners hands to fell it againe by any meanes, and fo that companie which before had beene accompted one of the chiefest in the citie, was now so brought downe, as it femed to be one of the meanest, being compelled to confesse, that their occupation was no craft, noz worthie fo to be accompted amongst other the crafts of the citie.

In this yeare, the one and twentith of Paie being wednefoate, a great earthquake chanced about one ffer 1. Fox, ye may find at large. The twelday next af, 40 of the clocke in the affer none; it was fo behement, Agustical throwen to the ground. On the faturdate after, bes by the cents ing the fours and twentith day of Wate, earelie in quake. the morning, chanced an other earthquake, og(as some write) a watershake, being of so behement & violent a motion, that it made the thips in the hauens 3 water to beat one against the other, by reason wherof they quake, were fore binsed by such knocking togisher, to the great wonder of the people, who being amazed at such frange tokens, food a long time after in more awe of Gods wath and displeasure than before, for these so Arange and dreadfull wonders thus the wed amongst them: bowbeit when these terroes were for gotten, they followed their former distolutencs, from the which for a time they were withdrawne through feare of Gods heute hand hanging oner their heads; but afterward like fwine they wallowed afresh in their puddels of pollutions, & as dogs licked by their Sordida natura semper sequitur sua iura. About this featon, the lood Richard Scrope lood Anno Rega chancellor was deposed from that rome, and the king receiving the great feale at his hancs, kept it a certeine time, and fealed therewith fuch grants and writings as it pleased him: at length, it was deline. The billing red to Robert Braibroke bishop of London, who Londo man was made look chanceflor. The cause they the look chance for the contract the contract for in the look Scrope was remoued from that dignitie, was this. Scrope Ethen the king bpon certeine respeas had granted rame certeine gentlemen the lands and pollettions that belonged to the late earle of Parch, and other that were deceased (which he, during the time of their beires minorities, ought to intop by the laives of the realine) the fair lost chancellog refused to seale such grants, alleoging that the king being greatlie in grand, thich he was to dildjarge, find in need of luch profits him felic, and therefore (as he faid) he twke not them for faithfull formants, nor dutifull subiects to his grace, that respecting their owne patuat commo, vitic moze than his oz the realmes, did fue foz fuch grants at his hunds, admining them to hold them felics contented with such other things, as it had pleased of might please the king to bestow upon 1 them : for sucrlie he would not consent, that they hould intoy such gifts as those were. They that were thus relected, made their complaint in fuch fort to the hing, that he taking displeasure with the faid load scrope, depoted him from his office, to the great offense both of the nobles and commons, by those confent he was preferred unto that dignitie. About Wichaelmale this yeare, certeine naugh tie disposed persons in Possfolke, not warned by the fucceste of the late rebellion , went about ancie 20 commotion, intending to murther the billyop of Pozwith, and all the nobles and gentlemen of that counemphasic be trie. And to bring their wicked purpole the better to paffe, they octermined to have affembled togither at s. Faithes faire, and to have compelled all those that thould have beine present at the same faire, to haue taken part with them, or elfe to haue loft their lines; and this being done, they would have taken S. Benets abbeie at Polme, which they would have kept for a fortreffe, to have withdrawne into bpon as nie force that had boene against them. But per thep could bying their purpole to patte, one of the confpi racie bely airng the matter, they were taken, & lost their heads at Postwich, for their malicious deuiles.

About the fame time a parlement was called, to the which certains commissioners from the countrie of flanders came, to treat of certeine agreements betwirt the king and realme, and the flates of their countrie: but bicause those that came over at this time, seemed not sufficient to conclude such treatie as then was in hand, they were fent backe to fetch Checonflios other moze fufficient, as from eucrie tolune in flanders some such as might have full authoritie to go through, and confirme the agræments then in hand. In this parlement, the maior of London, with a great part of the commoners of the citie, byon fuggestion by them made against the fishmongers, for Insa against bling great occeit in ottering of their filhes, obteis ned to have it inacted, that from thenceforth, none of that companie, nor anie of the vinteners, butchers, 50 groffers, or other that fold anic pronition of vittels, hould be admitted matoz of the citie; and so by this hat they fought to cut off all meanes from the fifty mongers to recover agains their old former degree. And bicause it was knowne well inough of what authoutie fir John Philpot knight was within the citie, and that he famoured those whome the loca major the laid John de Oosthampton favoured not, he was put off from the bench, and might not fit with them that were of the secret councell in the cities affaires, 60 thereas neverthelesse he had travelled more for the preservation of the cities liberties than all the residue. Sir Henrie Spenfer bishop of Postvich, receiucd buls a little before this present from pope Tire bane, to figue all fuch with the croffe, that would take bpon them to go over the feas with him, to warre a Remission of gainst those that held with the antipape Clement, inggrance that toke himselfe for pope, and to such as would renaments to the conferment to pope, and to may an entitle beneficiall sold fish pardons were granted by pope Arbane, as were ac. cullomablic granted buto such as went to fight as gains the Instocls, Turkes, and Saracens, to wit fre remission of finnes, and manie other graces. The bilhop of Poplwich that had the disposing of the benefits granted by those buls, to all fuch as either would go themselnes in person, or else give aniething toward the furtherance of that volage, 4 maintenance of them that went in the fame, the wed those buls in open parlement, t caused copies to be written forth, t fent into everie quarter, that his authoritie & power legantine might be notified to all men, for the better bringing to patte of that he had in charge. And trues lie it thould appeare, there wanted no diligence in the man to accomplify the popes purpole : and on the other part ye must note, that the privileges with he had from the pope, were palling large, to that as the matter was handled, there were directle loods, knights, equires, and other men of warre in god numbers, that offered themselues to go in that voiage, and to follow the frandards of the courch with the bishop, and no small summes of monic were leuico and gathered amongst the people, for the furnishing footh of that armie, as after ye thall heare.

In this means time the earle of Cambridge res The earle of turned home from Portingale, wither (as yechaue Cambridgere heard)he was fent the last yeare, and promise made, turneth out of that the duke of Lancaster should have followed bim; but by reason of the late rebellion, and also for or ther confiderations, as the warres in Flanders betwirt the erle and them of Gaunt, it was not thought convenient that anie men of warre thoulogo forth of the realme : and so the king of Postingale not a. ble of himselfe to go through with his enterprise as gainst the king of Spaine, after some small exploits atchined by the Englishmen, and other of the earle of Cambridge his companie, as the winning of certeine fortrelles belonging to the king of Callile, and that the two kings had laine in field, the one against the other by the space of fifteene dates without bate tell, the matter was taken by, and a peace concluded betwirt them, fore against the mind of the earle of Cambrioge, who did what in him laie, to have brought them to a let field : but when there was no remedic, he bare it so patientlie as he might, and rea turned home with his people, fore offended (though he faio little) against the king of Postingale, for that he dealt otherwise in this matter than was loked for. De had affianced his fonne, which he had by the daughter of Peter, sometime king of Castile, unto bis son actions the king of Postingales daughter, now in the time ced to the king of his being there: but although he was earnefflie of Postingals requested of the faid king, he would not leave his daughter. sonne behind him, but brought him backe with him againe into England (togither with his mother) doubting the flipperie faith of those people.

In the Lent leason of this firt yeare of king Klo tharbs reigne, an other parlement was called at London, in the which there was hard hold about the buls sent to the bishop of Porwich from pope Are bane concerning his fournie that he Goulo take in hand against the Clementines (as we may call them, for that they held with pope Clement) whome the Clementines. Arbaniffs (that is, fuch as held with pope Arbane) twie for ichilmatikes. Dinerse there were, that thought it not good that fuch frammes of monie shuld be levied of the kings subjects, and the same togither with an armie of men to be committed buto the guiding of a prelat bulkilfull in warlike affaires. Other there were that inould needs have him to go, that the mimics of the church (as they toke them) might be subdued.

And although the more part of the lords of the toper house, and likewise the knights and burgeiles of the lower house were earnealie bent against this fournie; yet at length those that were of the contrarie mind, prenatled, foit was decreed, that it should forward, and that the faid bithop of Porwich thoula have the fiftenth granted to the king in the last par-S. Liy. lement, Poztingale.

The earle of Urbanifig.

thopitue,

m jenffolke

The croffed

fouldters.

lement, to paie the wages of fuch men of warre as thould go over with him : for foldiers without monie palled not much of pardons, no not in those dates, ercept at the verie point of death, if they were not alfured how to be answered of their wages, og of some other confideration wherby they might gaine. The tenth that was granted afore by the bilhops at Dr ford, was now in this same parlement appointed to remaine to the king for the keeping of the leas, whi lest the bishop should be forth of the realme in follow 10 ing those wars.

Thefe things being thus appointed, the billop fent forth his letters firmed with his seale into everie province and countrie of this land, giving to all parfons, vicars, and curats, through this realme, power and authoritie to heare the confessions of their paris thioners, and to grant buto those that would bestow any parcell of their gods, which God had lent them towards the advancing of the fournie to be made by the croffed fouldiers against pope Arbans enimies, 20 the absolution and remission of all their sinnes by the popes authoritie, according to the forme of the bull before mentioned. The people budgerstanding of so great and gratious a benefit (as they toke it) thus of fered to the English nation, at home in their owne houses, were desirous to be partakers thereof, and those that were warlike men, prepared themselves to go forth in that fournic with all speed possible. The relidue that were not fit to be warriogs, according to that they were exhalted by their confessors, be 30 flowed liberallie of their gods to the furtherance of those that went: and so, sew there were within the thole kingbome, but that either they went, or gaue fomewhat to the advancing fouth of the billion of Dorwich his boiage.

This bithop chole diverte to be affociat with him.

as capteins that were expert in warlike enterprifes.

The first and principall was sir Hugh Caluerlie an

The capteing the bilhon of Dozwich a= gainft the ans tipape.

Froiffard.

old man of warre, and one that in all places had boine himselse both valiantlie and politikelie; nert 40 unto him was fir William Farington, who foutlie spake in the bishops cause, when the matter came in question in the parlement house, touching his going ouer with this croifie. Welides thefe, there went diuerle noble men and knights of high renowine, as the lood Benrie Beaumount, fir William Elmham, and fir Thomas Trivet, fir John Ferrers, fir Bugh Spenfer the bilhops nethue by his brother, fir Datthew Redman capteine of Berwike, fir Picholas Tarenson o: Traidon, fir William Farington, and 50 manie other of the Englith nation : & of Galcogne there went le fire de Chasteauneuf, and his brother fir John de Chaffrauneuf , Kaimund de Parfen, Suillanet de Paur, Gariot Aighier, John de Cachi tan, and diverte other. Sir John Beauchampe was amointed marthall of the field, but bicaufe he was at that present in the marches of the realme towards Scotland, he was not readie to passe over when the bishop did. The dake of Lancaster liked not well of the bishops fournie, for that he faw how his votage 60 that he meant to make into Spaine was hereby for the time disappointed, and is could have beine better contented (as appeareth by writers) to have had the monie imploied bpon the warres against the king of Caffile that was a Clementine, than to haue it bestowed upon this votage, which the bishop was to take in hand against the French king, and other in these nærer parts. Herebpon there were not manie of the novilitie that offered to go with the billion.

But to face somewhat of other things that were concluded in this last parlement, we find, that the fishmongers, which through meanes of the late lord maio: John of Porthampton and his complices twere put from their ancient customes and liberties.

which they intoled aforetime within the citie, were now restored to the same againe, saving that they might not kepe courts among themselues, as in times past they bled, but that after the maner of or ther crafts and companies, all transgressions, offenles, and breaches of lawes and cultomes by them committed. Honlo be heard, tried, and reformed in the majors court. All this winter the matter touch ing the gathering of monie towards the croific, was earnesslie applied, so that there was levied what of the difine, and by the douotion of the people for obter ning of the pardon, so much as drew to the summe of five and twentie thouland franks.

When the bishop therefore had let things in god forwardnesse for his fournie, he drew towards the fea five, and was so desirous to passe ouer, and to in Bounds uade his adverfaries, that although the king fent to teh form him an expecte commandement by letters to re, with his is turne to the court, that he might conferre with him mic. before he toke the leas; yet excusing himselfe, that the time would not then permit him to fate longer, he passed over to Calis, where he landed the 23 of A prill, in this firt years of king Richards reigne. The armie to attend him in this tournie, rofe to the num Polydon ber of two thousand horstemen, and fifteene thousand formen (as some write) though other speake of a far Froisfard lesser number. But it sould seeme that they went 115 other not over all at one time, but by parts, as some before the bilhop, some with him, and some after him.

pow when he and the capteins before named, were come ouer to Calis, they toke counsell togither into what place they thould make their first inuation; and bicause their commission was to make warre onelic against those that held with pope Clement, the more part were of this mind, that it should be most erpedient for them to enter into France, and to make warre against the Frenchmen, whom all men knew to be chiefe mainteiners of the faid Clement. But the bilhop of Porwich was of this opinion, that they could not do better than to inuade the countrie of Flanders, bicause that a little before, earle Lewes having intelligence that king Richard had made a confederacie with them of Baunt, had on the other part expelled all Englishmen out of his dominions and countries, to that the merchants which had their gods at Bruges, and other places in Flanders, lufeined great loffes. Howbett there were that replied The billion against the bishops purpose herein, as sir Hugh Cal Rowin uerlie and others; pet at length they pelded thereto, flandris and so by his commandement they went streight to Grauelin,the 21 day of Paie, and immediatlie wan it by affault. Wher boon Bruckburge was peeloed Ia. Mein buto them, the lines and goods of them within faucd. Then went they to Dunkirke, & without any great Dunbirke refiffance entred the tolune, and wan there erceding won a letter much by the spoile, for it was full of riches, which the highman Englithmen pilfered at their pleasure. The earle of Flanders lieng at Lifle was advertised how the The cant Englishmen were thus entered his countrie, there flavers in bpon be fent ambassadors buto the English host, to beth to the binderstand they they made him warre that was a with tober nabt Arbaniff.

The bishop of Posivich for answer, declared to his inustra them that were fent, that he toke the countrie to ap perteine to the French king, as he that had of late conquered it, whom all the whole would knew to be a Clementine, or at the least he was assured that the countrie thereabouts was of the inheritance of the ladie of Bar, which like wife was a Clementine : and therefore, ercept the people of that countrie would come and foine with him to go against fuch as were knowne to be enimies to pope Arbane, he would fuerlie fæke to deftrois them. And whereas the earls ambaffators required fafe conduct to go into Eng-

Che ftatute against filb: mongers re: pealed, they are restored to their liber= ties.

el Borwich

Lind by Talis, to uncerstand the kings pleasure in this mater, the bithop would grant them none at all; wherefore they went backe agains to the carle their maister with that answer.

The Englishmen after the taking and spoiling of Dunkirke, returned to Grauelin and Bauckburge, with places they fortified , and then leaving garrie fons in them, they went to Paroike, and toke it, for it was not closed. In the meane time, the countries men of well flanders role in armour, and came 1 to Dunkirke , meaning to refit the Englithmen: thereof when the bishop was certified, with all speed he marched thither, and comming to the place where the Flemings, to the number of moze than twelve thousand were ranged without the towne, he fent diamissient an herald binto them to know the truth, of thether tifficulty pope they held; but the rune people, not understand. ing that aperteined to the law of armes, ran boon the herald at his approching to them, and flue him before he could begin to tell his tale.

The Englithmen herewith inflamed, determined either to revenge the death of their herald, or to die for it, and therewith ordered their battels readie to Thom Walf. fight, and being not about fine thouland fighting men in all, the bishop placed himselfe amongst the horses Thronder of men, and fet the fwimen in a battell marshalled hand, and the the towner in a vatient marthalled modewise, broad behind and tharpe before, having butil against with them a banner wherein the crosse was beaten. the flemings The archers were ranged on either fide: the fand dard of the church went before, the field gules, and two keies filuer, fignifieng that they were fouldioss of pope Arbanc. Pozeouer, the bishop has his penon there filter and asure quarterlie, a freat gold on the mure, a bend gules on the filter: and bicaufe he was pungelt of the Spenfers, he bare a border gules for a difference. At the approching of the battels togither the trumpets blew by, and the archers began to thot against the battell of the Flemings, the which valiantlie defended themselnes, & fought egerlie a long time, but at length they were to galled with arrowes 40 with the archers that at them a flanke, that they were not able to indure, but were compelled to give backe.

They were divided into two battels, a vaward, and a rereward. Then the vaward began to theinke, the rereward also brake order, and fled, but the Engengliffmen, liftmen pursued them so fast, that they could not ele cape, but were ouertaken and flaine in great nums bers. Some faie, there died of them in the battell and thase five thousand, some fir thousand; and others wite, that there were nine thouland of them Caine: and Thomas Walfingham affirmeth twelve thou land. Panic of them fled into the towns of Dunhirhe for fuccour, but the Englishmen pursued them loegerlie, that they entered the towne with them, and fine them downe in the freets. The Klemings in diverse places gathered themselnes togither as gaine as they fled, and the wed countenance of des fense, but fill they were driven out of order, and brought to confusion. The præsis and religious men 60 thistons men that were with the bithop fought most egerlie, some bridge lobers one of them flateng firtiene of the enimies.

There died of Englishmen at this battell about foure hundred . The Flemings had no horffemen as mongst them, noz anie number of gentlemen, foz they flush in such decad of English bowes, that they durff not come to anie battell with them, but keeping themselues out of danger, set the commons of the countrie in hand to trie what they against the Eng. lichmen were able to do without them. This batte!! was fought boon a mondate being the fiffeenth of Baie. The countrie was put in a twonderfull feare by this our throw, so that the tolunes and fortresses were ingreat doubt, and some poloed themselves to the Englithmen, as Berghen and others; fome were wone by force, as the castell of Drinchan, and the towne of S. Menant. To be thoat, the Englithmen became maifters of all the countrie alongit the fea Che Englishfide, euen from Grauelin to Sluis, and got luch rie me fubbuc bis thes by pillage and spotle, as they could not with for uerse towns greater. They prevailed to much, that they wan in in flanders, maner all the close towns within the bailiffeweites and spoile the countrie. of Castell, of Popering, Dellines, and Furneis, with the towness of Newport, Blankberke, and die uerle other.

Also entring into the woods Peple and Kutholt, they found a great bottle of thepe and beaffs, and take a great fort of priloners of the countrie people, which were fled into those wood for feare of the enimies: but the Englishmen, plateng the part of god bloudhounds, found them out, fent all their botics and preie buto Brauelin and Bruckburge. On the eight date of June they came before the towne of B' Chetowne of pres, and laid liege thereto, thereat they continued ypres beliged, the space of nine weekes. Thither came to their aid twentie thousand Gauntiners under the leading of Francis Akreman, Peter Wood, and Peter Winter: so that they within Przes were Arcialie besse. ged, but there were within it in garrifon diverfe har The maner of liant knights capteins, which defended the towne fortifieng right manfullie: it was fensed with a mightie ram: townes in pire, and a thicke hedge, trimlie plathed and wond old time. with thomes, as the manner of fortifieng townes was in ancient time amongst them in that countrie (as Strabo witnesseth.)

During the time that the liege laie before Ppres, the Englishmen swarmed abroad in the countrie, for when it was once knowne what good successe the first companie that went over had found, there came Bope of gaing dailie forth of England great numbers to be parta, incorrageth kers of the gaine . Sir John Philpot that fauoured the foldier. the bilhops iournie, provided them of bellels for their passage, till the bishop bnoerstanding that the moze part of those that came thus over were bnarmed, and brought nothing with them from home, but onelie swords, bowes and arrowes, did write buto the said fir John Philpot, that he thould fuffer none to passe the feas, but fuch as were men able and likelie to do feruice: where a great number of those that were come to him, were fit for nothing but to confume bittels, much like the popily chanelings and the Ro. mith ralcalitie, of whome the like is spoken thus:

Nos numerus sumus & fruges consumere nati. The multitude of Englithmen and Gauntiners at this slege was great, so that diverse thirmithes thanced betwirt them, and such as were amointed by the earle to lie in garrisons about in the countrie as gainft them: but fill the bidozie abode on the Eng. lith live. Also there was an English prest, one fir Ia Meis. John Bozing that went to Baunt with fine hundzed English archers, by whose aid Arnold Hans one of the capteins of Gaunt ouercame his enimies in bat. tell, which were late in a castell nære to the haven of Alloft, and stomed that no bittels might fasclie come out of Holland or Zeland to be conneied to Baunt. The earle of Flanders was not well contented in his mind, that the Englishmen were thus entred in. Anno Reg. % to his countrie, and therefore earnestie laboured to the duke of Burgognie (that had married his daughter, and thould be heire of all his dominions and feigniozies after his deceaffe) to find fome remedie in the matter.

The duke, whome the matter touched to neere, did to much with his nephuc the French king, that efflones he raised his whole puissance, and came downe into Flanders, so that the Englishmen perceiving themfelues not of power to incounter with this buge and mightie armie, were confiremed after a great al

Ehr fle:

Le Meir

The liege at ypica bioken bp.

Gauntinerg.

Thom.Walf.

couragious # Warlike bi= thop.

fault, which they gave the eight of August, to raise their fiege from Ppacs the mondaic after, being S. Laurence baic, and to withdraw into Bruckburge, Berghen, Dirinew, Dewport, Callell, Dunkirke, Cranelin, and other places which they had won. But at Pewport the townslmen fet up the earles banner, and affailing those that were come into the towns. Aue dinerfe of them. The Englishmen being fore offenced therewith, came running thither with certeine Cauntiners, and made great flaughter of them that had so murthered their fellowes. The towne was facked, and all the gods aswell thurth tewels as other were fent awaie, partlie by fea into England, and partite by waggons buto Berge. Af ter this, they let fire in more than thirtie places of the towne fo that there remained nothing buburnt. The Englishmen & Sauntiners that were withdrawne into Berge, got togither all the luaggons in the countrie about, placing the fame bpon the diches and rampiers, to fortific the fame against their entinies. 20

Some write, that after the breaking of the fiege at Ppics, the bithop of Portwich would gladite have perfuaded the loads and knights that were there with him, to have entred into Picardie, and there to have offered the french king battell, before his whole puillance had beene allembled : but fir Thomas Trinet and fir William Elmham with other, would in no wife confent therebuto, fo that the billyop taking with him fir Dugh Caluerlie, that did never for fake him, bad the other farewell; and first making a road 30 into Picardie, he after withdrew into Granelin, miles the other went to Buckburge. But by Frois fard, and other writers it appeareth, that fir Dugh was certeinlic at Berge, with other that were retired thither, in purpose to desend it against the French king, who ftill followed them, and recovered dinerte places out of their hands by force, as Mont Caffell, the castell of Trincham, and other. Also at his come ming to Berghen, the faid fir Bugh Caluerlie, and other that were within it, perceiving that they were 4 not able to defend it against such a puissance as the French king hav there with him, being greater than ener fir Dugh Caluerlie that ancient capteine wold have thought that France had beine able to have fet forth, departed, and left the towne to be spoiled of the Bittons, and other French fouldiers, which executed there all kinds of crueltie. The moze part of the Em glithmen went to Bruckburge, but fir Bugh Cal uerlie went to Granelin, and fo to Calis, as one fore displeased in his mind, for that his counsell could not so be regarded in all this voiage, which if it had beine followed, would have brought it to a better iffue than now it was, as was lumoled.

The French king with his hage armie @nglifhmen out of flan=

2Bruckburge French.

The butte of 2Britaine a

The French king following the tract of good for tune, that guided his sterne, marched forth to Bruck burge, so that the valuard of his armie came before that towne on Polic roo date in September, onder the leading of the earle of Flunders, the duke of Britaine, the lord Oliver de Clicton high constable of France, and the lood Claleran earle of S. Paule, 60 the which demeaned themselves in such sort, that als though the Englishmen within valiantlie defended the Frenchmens affault; yet the third date after the Frenchmens comming thither, the Englidhmen by composition that they might depart with bag and bagage, poloco up the towne, which on the ninetenth of September being faturbaie, as that peare came about, was abandoned to the French fouldiers, to rifle and spoile at their pleasure, in the which feat the Bittons bare the bell awate, owing more milchafe buto the pose inhabitants, than with tong can be recited. The duke of Butaine holpe greatite to make the composition, that the Englishmen might Englidmen. depart in fafetie: for the which doing he was in great hatred and obloquie of the fouldiers, the affirmed that he was not onelica friend to the Englishmen, but an enimie to his countrie, and a traitour to the common-wealth.

The Englishmen comming to Granelin, fet it on fire, and departed freight to Calis, leaving the countrie of Flanders to the Frenchmen, and fo returned into England, where they were not greatlic commended for their feruice, but were put fo farre in blame, that fir Thomas Triuet, & fir William Clm ham were committed to pailon within the tower of London, as men inspected of entil dealing in the deliuerie of Buckburge and Granelin to the French Granding mens hands: for immediatlie after that they had left tificobribe mens hands:for immediatue auer war wer yao en frechen Grauelin, the Frenchmen came thither, and fortified for account it for a countergarison to Calis. There be that ganionto write how the French king offered to give the bi. Cala. Hop of Porwich fifteens thousand marks to race the Thommes. towne of Granelin, and so to leave it buto him, the bithop having libertie with all his people and gods to depart in fafetie. The biffop required to hauelle bertie for certeine daies, to make herebuto a full and deliberate answer; which was granted, and in the meane time he fent into England to aductife the king in what flate he flod, and how the French king late before him with a mightie armie: and therefore if he meant ever to trie battell with the Frenchmen, now was the time.

In the same summer, the king with the quane Cheking went abroad in progresse, disting in their waie the quantum rich abbeis of the realme, as Burie, Abetford, Por Program. with, tother; going about a great part of the realme. And when these newes came to him from the bishop of Porwich, he was at Dauentrie in Porthampton thire, and being the same time at super, he put the tar ble from him, and rifing with all half, got him to hose backe, and rode in post that night, changing booste diverletimes, with fuch speed that he came to S. Ale bons about midnight, and making no fface there lone ger than he had bosowed the abbats gelding, halled fwith till he came to Westminster: so that it appear red he would never have refted till he had paffed the fea, and given battell to the Frenchmen . But after his comming to Wellminster, wearied with that hav Aie fournie, he got him to bed, and liked so well of eafe, that he thought good to fend a lieutenant in his Agreethe fead to passe the seas, to deliver the bishop from dan somewin ger of his entinies.

Herebpon was the duke of Lancacter fent for, that he might with such power as was readie to palle the feas, go over with the fame, and give battell to the French king: but he protraced time, till the respit granted to the billiop to make answer was expired, and to the billyop when he fair no fuccour come footh of England, raced the towne as the coucnant was: but monie he would not or did not receive, bicaule he thought in so doing he thould offend the councell. At his comming backe into England, he found the buke of Lancaster at the sea side with a great power The bar of men readie to have come over : although some flought that has been found with the beautiful the sound with the soun thought that he deferred time of purpole, for that he England milliked of the bithops whole enterprise; and now bis of flanding cause it had thus quailed, he blamed the bishop for his cuill gouernement therein: but fir Bugh Caluerlie he refeined with him a time, doing him all honour, by reason of the old approved valiancie, that had beine cuer found in him. And this was the end of the bishop of Poswich his tournie.

The Scots in the meane while fate not Will, but made roades into England, toke and burnt the car warke fell of Clarke. Poseoner, whilest the siege laie ber benriter fore Popes, the Frenchmen armed certeine vellels, gross and fent them to the fea, namelie five balengers, as well to intercept such as should passe betweene Eng.

enghilhmen.

3 parlement a: London.

The tempo

land and Flmders, as also to fop such as were appointed to go ouer into Galcoine, that were foldiers also of the croise, amointed thither under the leas bing of the load Battrigale de la Beet, and certeine others. Then they of Postelmouth understood that these fine thips were abroad, they made fouth to the fea, and morting with their adverfartes, fought with them a fore a cruell battell, and in the end flue all the enimics, nine ercepted, and toke all their bestels. An Smith hips other flet of Englishmen twie eight French flips, 1 risin brite which had about 1500 tuns of god wines, that comforted the Englichmen greatlie.

About the feath of All faints was a parlement holden at London, in which was granted to the king one moitie of a fifteenth by the laitie, and thoutlie at ter a moitie of a tenth by the cleargie. Dozeouer, the king toke into his hands the temporalties that belonged to the bilhop of Postwich , bicause he obeied not the kings commandement when he was fent for tango hands at the time when he toke the leas to palle into Flans 20 for the bulbops deers. The knights also that had not the wed such obetilbedience. dience to the bishop as was requisit in that fornie, were committed to pailon; but thoatlie after they were fet at libertie bpon fuerties that undertoke for them. It was also decréed in this parlement. that the crie of Buckingham the kings oncle fould go to the bodders against Scotland, with a thousand lances, and two thouland arthers, to repress the prefumptuous attempts of the Scots, who advertised thereof, fent ambassadors to treat of peace; but they 30 were dispatched home againe, without obteining that which they came to fue for.

At the motion and instance of the duke of 1526 taine, immediatlie bpon the returne of the English armie out of Flanders, there was a meeting of certeine commissioners in the marches of Calis, at a place called Lelleghen, for the treatie of a peace to be concluded betwirt the two realmes of England and France. There appeared for king Kichard, the duke of Lancafter, and his brother the erle of Buckingham, 40 fir John Holland brother to the king, fir Ahomas Percie, and a bishop. For the French king, thither came the dukes of Berrie and Burgognia, the bithop of Laon, and the chancellog of France. There were also the duke of Britaine, and the earle of Flanders. Also there came a bithop with other commissioners from the king of Spaine: for the Frenchmen would do nothing, except the king of Spaine might be also compiled in the treatie and conclusion. They were Imertaken the weekes in commoning of an agreement : but 59 then nothing elfe could be brought to paste, they con-England and cluded a truce to indure till the feath of S. Pichaell, which thould be in the years 1384.

The earle of Planders was ludged most in blame, for that no peace could be accorded, bicause he would not that the Sauntiners thould be compated therin, but the Englishmen would not agree either to truce apeace, ercept regard might be had of the Bauntt ners, as their frænds and altes. The kings of Spaine and Scotland were compatted in this truce as confe 69 derats to the Frenchmen, which thould have lignified the fame into Sootland, but did not, till great harme followed through negligence vied in that matter, as after yee thall perceine. The same years in the night of the feast of the Purification of our ladie, great lightenings and thunders chanced, which put manie in no finall feare, so buge and biocous was that tempelf, Shortlie affer, there role no finall abo in the citie of London about the election of their maj And contain the following as favoured the late motor John of the contain the following and an artistic and the contains and contains an facin of the Porthampton, other wife called John de Combers ton, food against fir Picholas Brambe knight chat was thosen to succeed the sato John de Posthamp ton, informuch that a thomaker this was one of the fame John de Porthamptons partakers, prefumed through a number of voices that were readie to fanour him, to take upon him as maio: but through Sir Robert the counsell of fir Kobert knolles knight, he was suddenlie apprehended, drawne, and beheaded, as a rebell and troubler of the kings peace.

In the Lent feason, the duke of Lancatter with his bother the earle of Buckingham went towards Lancatter me the borders, having with him a mightic power of undeth scoro knights, equiers, and archers, and after he had re- land with an mained a certeine time boon the bosocrs, about @a, armie. fer he entered Scotland, and comming within the miles of Coenburgh, he flated there the dates, in Coenburgh which meane time the Scots conveted all their gods left defolace, out of the towne over the water of firth : so that when the armie came thither, they found nothing but bare walles, which graved the foldiers not a little. The Scots would not come forth to give anie bat. tell to the Englishmen, but got them into boos and mounteines, or else patted ouer the riner of firth, luffering the Englishmen to fight with the behes ment cold wether that then fore annoted those parts, in so much that on Caster date at night, through fnow that fell, and such extreame colo and boisterous formes as fore affliced the armie, being incamped within the compatie of a marth ground for their more suertier there died aboue fine bundred horses. to let passe the loss of men that perished at the same fime, of thom we make no mention. To conclude, men in the affer the duke and his brother the earle had remais English hoft, ned a time thus in Scotland, and burned certeine by reason of townes, they returned into England.

About the fame time, to wit, in the quindene of aparlement, Caffer , a parlement of the nobles was holden at at Salifburie. Salisburie, during the which an Irish frier of the or der of the Carmelits, being a bacheler in dialnitie, An Irishfrier erhibited to the king a bill against the duke of Lan, appeacheth the caffer, charging him with heinous treasons: as that the oftreason. he meant upon a sudden to destroic the king, and to blurpe the crowne, thewing the time, the place, and circumstances of the whole contriued matter. The king being young both in yeares and discretion. then he had heard the friers information, called two of his chapleins buto him, one fir picholas Slake, and an other, and alked their adulle what they thought god to be done in luch a weightte cause. Powas they were buffe in talke about the same, the ouks of Lancaller came into the kings chamber after his wonted manner, not briderfranding ante thing of the matter wher of they were in talke. The king with a sterne countenance beheld the duke , not dwing him the honor that he was accustomed. The oute suspecting that the king had somewhat in his head fulpeating that the unity you controlled the theants of the second not that couched his person, withdress. In the theants of the control with the king fraring hamilie the dukes power, or elle wort god will they have towards him, perfusoed the king that in anie wife he thould call hint, to fee ano hears that was laid to his tharge.

The duke, after he had reso the bill of his artulatte on, made fuch antwer, and to ercuted himfelfe in dei tlaring his innocencie, that the hing gaus overit to his words, and received his ercufe. Herewith the buke belought the king, that the frier might be kept in fate gard, till the time come that he might purge himselfe of that he had charged him with; and him the lord John Holland the kings halfe brother might have the cultodie of him, till the day appointed that the duke thould come to his full triall. The night before which day, the fair loss Holland, and fir Benrie Greene knight came to this frier, and putting a cood a miscrable & about his netke, tied the other end about his printe cruell tozture, members, after hanging him op from the ground. laid a forte spon his bellie, with the weight whereof,

Great death of horffen ann

B. 35 A onn A - ชิตริกั unto Arri a to thant of a .53556 erickeringer Filmmoorek un ens nolligg mercan and diright.

R combat.

Tholyallin.

3 robe into Drotland.

afacth ano= ther.

Anno Reg. 8.

The bulle of Läcefter fent to treat of a meace.

filcated.

3.11

and prife of his bodic withall, he was frrangled and tomented, fo as his verie backe bone burff in funper therewith, believes the ffraining of his printe members: thus with their kind of formentings he enordhis weethed life. On the mosow after, they caused his dead corps to be drawne about the towne, to the end it might appeare he had luffered worthlie for his great fallhoo ttreason. Which extreame punithment and exquitite kind of execution, had it not bane meritorioullie inflicted bpon fo impudent an offendoz, had deferued perpetuall record of bnaccu Comed crueltie, with this vehement exclamation,

Ofera barbaries au non nota priori,

Sed nec apud fauos inuenienda Scythas.

But now to the parlement. At length, when the 18. had obteined of the laitie a grant of an halfe fiffeinth the fame parlement was diffolued. In the fummer following the borderers of England and Scotland made rodes ech into others countries, to the great that the Englithmen made, Choullie after Caffer (as Froiffard faith) the earles of Porthumberland and Nottingham, railing an armie of 2000 speares, and fir thouland arthers, entered Scotland by Rockel burgh, burnt the countrie euen to Conburgh, and so returned without damage. In the meane time came medengers from the French king, to advertise the Scots of the conclusion of the truce. But the Scots pronoked with this last invasion made by the Englishmen into their countrie, would not heare of 3 any truce, till they had in part renenged their difple, One mifchief fure bpon the Englishmen: and fo with certeine men of armes of France, that latelie before were come thither, not pet understanding of any truce, they roocd into Posthumberland, doing what milchiefe they might: fo that for the fummer featon of this yeare, either part fought to indamage other (as Wallingham faith) though Froiflard waiteth, that through the earnest trauell of the messengers that came to intimate the abilinence of war taken, the parties now 4 that their fromachs were well cased with the interchange of indamaging either others confins, agreed to be quiet, and so the truce was proclamed in both realmed, and accordinglic observed,

About the beginning of August in the eighth piere of this kings reigne, the duke of Lancacter went o wragaine into France, to treat of peace; but affer be host emained there a long time, a fpent no fmall Note of treasure, he returned with a truce, to indure quelie till the first date of Waie then next insuing. 5 While the duke of Lancaffer was forth of the relme, John de Moz- John de Mozthampton, that had bozne fuch rule thampton lare in the citie of London, while if he was major and al don codemned to after (as partite ye have heard) was accused by a to perpetuall chaplains (that he bad in his house) of seditious thurs, which bewent shout, to that being arreigned thereof, beimas in the endeandeusued to perpetuall prifon, ond the fame not to be within the space of one hundied miles at the least of the citie of London. All his grow were conflicated, and to the was fent to the ca- 60 fiell of Amtagill in Comeinall, and the Kings, offe cers feierd byon his goods a cattels . About the feats of faint Partine, a parlement was called at Loni boir, in which, monie transcemended of the cleargie and frampopaltic, towards the maintenance of the

During this parlement allo, a combat was fought within life betwirt an English elquier, named John Walth, and an elquier of Bauarre that accused the faid Walth of treason, though not fullite, but mos ned through displeasure, conceined of an inturie done to him by the same Edalth, whilest he mas one dep-captoine or vicedeputic (as we may call him)of Chierburgh in abuling the Pagarrois wife, Therei byon then the Panarrois was banquilled and cons The appe byon then the granact our days companies and considerable fested the truth, he was adjusted by the king to be last king days based on the place of execution and hanged, not withframbing that the quarte and diverse other made to the considerable with the considerab fute for him. Henrie Knighton maketh report Abrahan hereof in forneld; at a differing maner: but the iffue minering of his tale falleth out to be like to the other. On a final to the control to the falleth out to be like to the other. wednesdate (saith he) at S. Andrews tide, John Wal Luchte life of Grimseie fought in lifts with Partilet of abbeit, Pauarre efquier, at Wellminffer, in prefence of la. Richard of John the good duke of Lancaffer: in fo much that the faid John Wallife fine his adner farie, therbuon at the kings commoment being made knight, he was inriched with manie gifts, as well of the kings and the dukes bellowing, as also of other great men and pæres of the realme. As for Martilet, after he was flaine, he was prefentlie drawne, han gcd,and headed.

Furthermore before the faid parlement was bil disquieting of both the realmes. Among other rodes 20 solued, newescame footh of the north parts, that the Scots had wone the callell of Berwike: for which Bermike the the earle of Porthumberland, that was capteine achimond thereof, was put in high blame, for that he had not the Books. committed the keeping thereof to more circumfped persons. The duke of Lancaster, who bare no god will to the fair carle, was well spaid that he had fo god matter to charge his adversarie withall, so that through his meanes the earle of Porthumberland was fore accused, and had much ado to escape the danger of being reputed a traitoz. Therebpon great occasion of malice and displeasure grew between those two noble personages, as after it well appeared. But howfoever the matter was handled, the earle was licenced by the king to go into his countrie, and lake to recover possession of the castell thus latelie lest. Wherespon railing an armie, & belieging the Scots Berwike in that were within the castell, he so constreined them, by the conta that for the fumme of 2000 marks they furrended Hotham the fortrelle into his hands, their lives and gods fas berland, ned: and fo the earle of posthumberland recourred the castell out of the Scotishmens hands, being taught to commit it to more warie keepers than the other before. . The king being incensed against the duke of Lancaffer, meant that he should have beene arrested and arreigned of certeine points of treason before fir Kobert Trimilian thefe inflice (as Thomas Walfingham faith) and peraduenture there might be some fuch report, that such was the kings meaning: but pet how this may fland, confidering he was to be tri ed by his pares, in case that any the like matter had beene pretended, I fe not. But how focuer it was, Thebabl he being warned thereof by forme of the councell, got Landalorgh him to his castell of Pointret, which he fortified, and his castell of Pointret, which he fortified, and his castell banded himfelfe fo with his freends, that it appeared Domfirt, all he would defend his cause with force of armes, ra something ther than to come to his triall by order of law store fuch a ludge ! and by reason hereof, it was greatlie doubted, least forme civill warre would have broken footh. But through the earnest labour of the kings The puncti mother, that (not took) framoing bir indisposition of bo of walts vie to travell, by reason of hierostpolencie) riding to hethan et and no bet with the mane in agreement betwirt the king his forms and the hing his forms and the the king his forme, and the onker to his great comfort king and the and contentation of mino, and no lette fuertie of qui dake el Lap etnelle to the thelerraime. ' (15) and

About the fame time the French king has a great fleet of thips in Klanders, to that it was doubted leaff he meant fonce mualion into Ongland. There bpon there was fent to the lea the leed of S. Johns, and fir Thomas Petrie with a firing name, but they bid no goo, luffering theiffrench aet otgerfe times to palle by them; and not once offering to let boot them. But the fhipa of Portelinoung Derfemouth, 3 combat.

$ 3145.34 .2011:01

beffirred

College of bestired themselves better: for entering into the rimouth uer of Saine, they drowned foure of their enimies enter the content of the fairest that the the children one of the fairest that was to be found es ther in France of England . In these besiels the Englishmen had a rich piete of wines, and other merchandises. The king bpon some occasion twhe great displeasure against William Courtnic arcipbilhop of Canturburie, to Coming against him, as few durif speake anie thing in his excuse. The loso chancello: Dichaell de la Pole fæming to fauour his cause, was likelie to have run in high displeasure. Sir Thomas Triuet, and fir John Deuereur intreating for him, were fore rebuked at his hands. Det at length, after that the archbilhop was withdrawne. and had kept him close for a time, he was thorough incolation of some freends reconciled to the kings fanour. About the same time the French king sent into

Scotland the admerall of France, with a thouland 20 En french men of armes, bnights, and elquiers, belides croffes tograted bowes and other to loine with the Scots, and to consequent make warres in England. The Scots incouraged with this new aid, fent to them out of France, leuied apower, s lo togither with the Frenchmen , entered into the Englith confines, and began to rob & spoile, and further twhe certeine castels and houses of de-

Fbc &cots frontiers of fense. The king of England advertised hereof, affems bled an huge power of men of warre, and first ient

Elek. gorth before him the duke of Lancaster with part of the 30 buban armic armic, and afterward followed himselfe, with all aguilithe convenient speed that might be. At his comming in-

Clarisateles neo, by reason of variance that fell betwirt certeine persons of the retinue of fir John Holland brother and other of the retinue of the load Richard Stafford Bubara forme to the earle of Stafford.

The cause of their falling out was about a knight of Boheme, called fir Wiles, that was come to fee the quanc. This knight kept companie most an end with the lood Richard Stafford : and chancing to be at words with two of fir John Hollands scruants, there came two archers perfeining to the loso Stafford, which blamed them, that were so about to misuse the Aranger in woods, as they twke it: the Artife here, 50 Chiloso the by grew to that point in the end, that one of the are thers that at one of fir John Hollands fernants, and duehim . This mithap being reported to fir John Holland, let him in luch a furie (by reason of the love which he had to his forwant) that immediatlie he ruthed forth of his lodging, to revenge his death, and through millior tune meeting with the lord Stafford, Auchim, and doubting in what fort his ded might be taken, fled Greight buto Benerlie, and there twhe ture right heavilie, as reason was : yet bicause he would not trouble the host, not off appoint the fournie which they had in hand, upon the kings promise that he would do breight inflice in the matter, as should be thought meet and convenient, he bare his greefe fo to the parts about Poske, he was informed that the Scots and Frenchmen were withdrawne byon the duke of Lancasters apport towards them, but the hing thought to keepe on his tournie. Whilest he was lodged in those parts, a great mischance hame, praise for his wisedome therein the wed. The king advancing forwards with his armie, cance to the borders, and entring into Scotland, pale fed thorough Hers and Louthian, walting and spote ling all the towner, houses and villages in his waie. The abbeies of Pelros, Driburgh, and Pewbottell were burnt, and those monks and other people that were found in the fame were flaine. At his comming to Coemburgh, he found all the prople fled out of the Coenburgh towne, but the houses and buildings he consumed burat by king with fire, togither with the church of faint Oiles. At the bumble lute of his oncle the duke of Lancaster, Polie rod house was preserved from hurt, for that the same buke in time of the rebeliton of the commons here in England, was longed in that house, and found much gentlenette and fremothip in the ab. bat and convent; so that he could do no less than requite them with kindnelle, at whose hands he found kindnesse; for we are bound in conscience to tender them by whome we have bene benefited (unlesse we will be counted uncivill, according to the old adage)

Arbor honoretur cuius nos umbra tuetur.

Thus when the king had revenged the displeasure afore received at the Scots and Frenchmens hands. (and remained in Coenburgh fine baies) he returned without proffer of battell, or anie notable incounter. The admerall of France was carnefile in admerall perhand with the Scotish loads to persuade them to have suaderh the given battell to the Englith armie, till he and divers scots to other knights of France were brought to the top of fight with the a mounteine, from whence they might behold all the English holf. English armic, as the same passed binderneath them by a pallage that laie by the fot of that mounteine: for affer that they had viewed the pullance of the Englishmen, and (as nære as they could) numbered them, they had no luch eger minds to fight with them as before, for they esterned them to be six thousand men of armes, and theescore thousand archers, and other men of warre; where the Scots and French men were not past a thousand speares, and thirtie thousand of all other forts, and the most part of those but entil armed. Therefore they determined byon an other point, which was, to inuade England in an o. ther quarter, whilest the Englishmen burnt op their countrie, and so they set forward towards the west borders, and passing over the mounteins that divide Porthumberland from Scotland, they entered into Jointal persons of the carle of facult and halfe brother to the king, 40 Cumberland, doing much hart in the lands that be Cumberland longed to the lord Polibrate, to the earles of Po fore spotted by tingham, and Stafford, to the baron of Graiffeche, the Scots. and to the Pulgranes.

Lastlie, they came to Carleill , and boldlie asial, Carlett asial= fed the citie: but fir Leives Clifford, and fir Aromas ted by the Pulgrave, Davie Holgrave, and diverse other wo. thie capteins being within it, so defended the watter and gates, that their enimies got small advantage: and finallic hearing that the English armie was returning homewards, the Scots and Frenchmen decho backe into Scotland, doubting to be inclosed by the Englishmen, as they had bene in derd, if the duke of Lancaster and his brethren (uncles to the king might have beine beleued, who counfelled God counfell the king to purfue the entimies, and flop the passages through which they must needs passe in their comming backe. But the earle of Drenford being most in favour and credit with the king in those daies, as one that ruled all things at his pleasure, did adulle landuarie. The crie of Stafford toke this miladuen, 60 him to the contrarie, by putting him in belæfe (as was faid)that his bucles went about to being him in danger to be loft and furpifed of his enimies, where, beon he take the nert way home, and so bake by his iournie.

When the Scots and Frenchmen were returned Polydon into Scotland, the Scotiff king having conceined a full displeasure towards the French admerall, for that by his meanes the realine of Scotland had full cined luch damage in that scalon, caused him and his Frenchmen to be despoiled of the most part of their gods, and fent them to awaie out of his count a noble rea trie, that the Scots might receive some comfort by uenge. those warres. In this yeare was the battell of Algeberota in Postingale, where king John of Postin patientlic as he might, so that he wan himselse much ha.Bectius.

Richard.

Chere were . English: m who with grand grads author trap= pcareth.

Che king of Dozangale fenbeth fir gallies to la. Richards aib.

ric of them of Calis against the French fat.

ton cation of Leicelte:

abbeie. The Califi= ans # others make a robe # Win great botics.

Fabian.

Creation of Duken and earles at the parlement.

Denrie of Molling: broke carle of Derbie afterwards king.

The law

gale discomfited a great hoff of Spaniards and Frenchmen by the helpe and policie of certeine Englithmen which he had there with him, bnder the leas Did great fers bing of two efquiers porberie and Hartell. Dere ince as by one were flaine diversearls a great loads of Spaniards, but fo; that our writers do not rightlie note the Spanith names, but write them corruptlie as arangers ble to do, we here omit them. The king of Portingale (after this bidozie obteined againft his enimics) fent fir gallies buto the king of England to aid 10 him against his adversaries, the which were well received and highlie made of by the Londoners and o ther, so that the Portingales had no cause to repent of their comming bither.

The French king this years belieged and wan the towne of Dam, after he had bene at great charges about it. Whilest his nanie returned from Scluis, where the same had laten at anchor along time, the thips by tempest wore feattered & wether-driven, fo that in the feast baie of the eraltation of the croffe, 20 two of their gallies, a great thip, a barge, and feauen valengers were cast on those about Calis, & the Cas lifians toke fine hundred frenchmen and Pormans that escaped to land. Another day 72 French ships (as they were comming from Scluis, to palle by Ca. lis, were met with by them of Calis, tho behaued themselves somanfullie, that they take 18 of those French thips, and a great barke, in thich thee score armed men were flaine before it could be taken. Within thee daies after this, the Califfans met 45 other French thips, and after fir houres fight obteined the victorie, taking thee of the most principall bellels, thereof one being a hulke of Caliland was hired by the Normans, to gard the relidue. Ele other two that were taken were of such mold, that they could not enter into the hauen at Calis, and therefore were fent to Sandwich, the one of them being a new thip, which the lood Clisson has bought at Abr. Fl. out of Scluis, pateng for hir 3000 franks. Henrie Knigh-Henrie Knight ton faith it was prifed or valued at 20000 florens, it 40 was so tall, big, and large a beliell; and therefore of great capacitie.

On faint Denise daie the foldiors of Calis and o. ther Englith fortrelles thereabouts , made a lecret iournic into France, and got a botic of foure thous fand thepe, and the hundred head of great cattell, which they drove towards their holes; and as the lord de Rambures governour of Bullongne would have recoursed the preis, he was unhorsed with the rencounter of an English speare, and being relieved by 50 his companie, and mounted againe, withorew himfelfe, not attempting to trie any further maffertes, and to the Englithmen fafelie paires forth with their botte of cattell, and aboue a hundier good pitoners which they had taken at this rode. In this greate as bout the feat of S. Wartine, the bing called his high court of parlement at Wellminster, in the which as mongst other things there concluded, he created two bukes, a marques, and fine carles. First Comund Langlic earle of Cambridge the kings whele was 60 created duke of Porke, Thomas of Telodfoke his other bucle carle of Buckingham was created duke of Cloceffer, Robert Were earle of Orford was made marques of Deuelin, Benrie of Bollingbroke fonne and heire to John of Saunt buke of Lancafer was created earle of Derbie: Coward Plans tagenet fonne and heire to the Duke of Pocke was made earle of Kutland, Dichaell loed de la Pole chancello: of England was created carle of Suffolke, i fir Ihomas Donbiaic earle of Potingham was made earle marthall.

Also by authoritie of this parlement, Roger loed Sportimer earle of Harch, sonne and heire of Ed tik of Warch mund Postimerrarie of Warch, and of the ladie Ab lip eldest daughter and heire buto Lionell duke of pieces Clarence, third forme to king Colvard the third, was time; Clarence, third ionic to using Country the country that the crowne of this tank the classic of this close that the country the third close the country that the country the third close the country that the country the third close the country that the country tha realme, and thortie after to proclaimed. The with earle of March, anon after the end of the fame par, lement, failed into Freland to his loodhip of alifer, thereof he was owner by right of his faio mother: but whilest he remained there to pacifie the rebelli Thereis ons of the wild Trith, a great number of them togic by the same ther allembled, came opon him and flue him, togither Tith with the most part of his companie. This Roger earle of Parch had iffic Comund , Roger, Anne, Cheiffer earle of Hard had tute Comun, Auger, anne, Commen.

Ales, Cleano, thich Cleano; was made a nume, the fortes and Anne the al Ehe two sonnes vied without issue, and Anne the ele spart, delt of the daughters was married to Kichard earle of Cambridge, sonne unto Comund of Langlie before remembred: the which Richard had iffue by the faid Anne, a fon called Richard, that was after duke of Porke, and father to king Coward the fourth; also a daughter named Ifabell, afterwards married to the load Bourcher. This Richard earle of Cambridge was put to death by Dencie the fift, as after pe thall beare.

Poscover, in this yeare Benrie of Bollingbooke earle of Derbie married the daughter and heire of Humfrie Bohun carle of Hereford, in thole right he was after made duke of Hereford, and by hir he had iffue Penrie that after him was king of this reline, the ladie Blanch duches of Bar, and the ladie Philip o married to the king of Denmarke: also Thomas duke of Clarence, John duke of Bedford and Dumfrie duke of Bloceffer. The Bauntiners fill main feined warre against the earle of Flanders during his life, and after his deceaffe against Whilip duke of Burgogne, by luch aid and comfort as they had from time to time of the king of England, till finallie this yeare about the eightenth daic of December, a peace was concluded betwirt the faid duke and the towne of Saunt: and fir John Bourchier that had laine a long leason there, as capteine under the U. of England, and Peter de Bois one of the chefe capteins of the Sauntiners (before the concluding of this peace) were fafelic conduced to Calis by bertue of the duke of Burgogne his lafe conduct, and lothey came Froillet. over into England, and the king gave bnto Peter be Bois a pension of an hundred marks Gerling, pearelie to be paid to him out of the Caples of the wolles in London.

Mis yeare king Richard holding his Chillmalle The bing ! at Eltham, thither came to him Leo king of Armes Armenacia nia, whose countrie and realme being in banger to meth into be conquered of the Aurks, he was come into those and against an against well parts of chillendome for ald and fuccour at the the Cuit. bands of the chailtian painces here. The king honorablie received him, and after he had taken counfell touching his request, he gave him great sommes of monie and other rich gifts, with a tripend (as fome write) of a thousand pounds yearely to be paid to him during his life. After he had remained here two Thom Wil moneths space, he toke leave of the king and depart ted. The chiefest point of his errand was, to have procured a peace betwirt the two kings of England and France, but deffinie would not permit fo god a pur pole to take effect: for the hatred which either nation bare to other, would not lutter their lottie minds to yeld in any one point, further than fæmed god in their owne opinions.

In this ninth years of king Richard (though by Thom. Thom other waiters it thould ferme to be rather in the yeare Froffit following) the duke of Lancaffer with a great pow, la Mes er of men of warre went into Spaine, and lead with a be Dusta him thither bis wife the ladie Confrance, ca baugh Lancoun ter which he had by hir named Batharine, and two or goth in ther daughters which he had by his former wife. We specified bao an armit had been about the preparing of an armie, and all furniture necessarie for this tournie two or three pares before, and therefore having now feaven galhes and eighteene thips fent to him out of Portin gale(which arrived at Brillow) he caused all such bes fels as he had promoed to refort likewise thither. where making his generall affemblie, then all his men of warre were come togither, he bestowed them about, with all their horites and purveiances, and cauling failes to be housed by , let forward on his 10 long withed tournie. This was in the moneth of Daie, when the feas were calme, the aire fwet, and the winds pleafant and agreeable to his purpole. He appointed for admerall of his whole fleet fir Thomas Perciesand fir John Polland that was after created carle of Quintington and had married one of his paughters was orderned constable of the hoast; and fir Thomas Horeaux having married his baffard caughter was one of his marthals.

There were that attended him in this fournie ma, 20 nic other loads and knights of honoz, as the load Lucie,the loed Taibot, the loed Ballet, the loed Willloughbie, the load Fitz Walter, the load Poinings, the losd Braditon, the losd of Pomiers a Galcoigne, the lord Donne fit; Warren, Benrie lord Beau mont, William lood Beauchampe, fir Richard Burtie that was another of the marthals of the armie, fir Bugh Spenfer,fir William Windloze,fir John Daubzeticourt, fir Hugh Haftings, fir William Farrington, fir Domas Trefham, fir Pauburin 30 oc Liniers, fir Thomas Wocceffer, fir John Sow tric, fir Kobert Clinton, fir Philip Tirrell, fir Lewes Rocheffer, Duguelin Caluerlie, Danid Holgraue, Chomas Alerie, Pobequin Beauceffer, and diverse other : they twere in all to the number of fifteene hunand men of armes, thereof a thousand at the least were knights and elquiers, belides foure thouland archers, and other men of warre, to perfectle amoin. ted and arraico, as could be thought meet and conues nient. Of this chosen companie attendant bpon the 40 duke of Lancaster, tof this his voiage into Spaine, the faid C. Okland speaketh no leffe trulie & accord ding to the report of our annales, than honorablic:

ocous instructa pro bello classe futuro, Milite stipatus generoso trajcit aquor Fluctifonum, cum vxore pia natifq, duabus, c.

Henric Knighton reporteth of this voiage as fol-Enackingh loweth, in somewhat a differing fort from this alread die laid downe. On Gaster daie (saith he) John the duke of Lancatter with his wife came to the king, 50 to take their leave : to the which duke the king gave acrowne of gold, and the quiene likewise gave an o ther crowne of gold to the duchette. Befides this, the king commanded his people that they should call him hing of Spaine, and do him honour in all things. De had with him a power of 20000 chosen men; of which number noted in the marihals bill or feroll, 2000 were men of armes, and 8000 were archers.

As they passed by Britaine, they landed at Brest, the capteine whereof, at that time named fir John 60 Roche, finding himselse greatlie annoice by the Freudmen that were lodged in two ballides erected before the castell, declared to the duke in what flutche flow. Thereupon he caused the said bassives to be affailed, which was done by the love fit; Walter, and others, two bare themselves so mansulite, that the ballides were wone, broken downe, and a great piece with pilloners obteined, although not without losse of dinerse valiant personages. Thus Acc. 10, lucre they within Beeff castell delivered of their bufrendlieneighbours by the duke of Lancaster and his people. Tho having done their feat twke the feas, and failed footh till they came on the coalisof Callis, where on S. Laurence wuen, they arrived in the haven of Groigne, otherwife called Cogon, and Le George there they buildined all their proutitions, be termining to inuade the countrie on that fide. I were, bicaufe it is not unprofitable to know the absolute truth of Henric Knighthings done, by the collection of writers, I have concanenot translated the beloging of Breff, as the same is set Leiceber downe by Henrie Knighton in his annales, in a lar abbrie. ger and more ample fort, with a fuller certificat of circumstances than bath bitherto bene veclared. At the fame time (faith he) the duke of Britaine had laid fiege both by fea and land, to a certeine fowne in Butaine, in old time subica to the king of England, which was called Breft, with a great multitude of Frenchmen and Britains. Pow on the twelsth of the kalends of Julie, he began to build a fort before the faid towns of Breft, of a wonderfull bignette, the walles thereof being ten fot thicke, and feauen towies About it. A thousand workemen did worke date by date byon it, and to defend the laid worker men (that they might not be hindered in their buffnesse by the citizens) ten thousand fighting men were appointed. So that this fort was begun and ended in ninetiene daies space, and called the Dones house, bicause a douchouse stood in the same place before. Furthermore he ffored this fort with all necessaries, as vittels, armour, guns, and other engins, and he placed therin as capteine of the warriogs the logo John Paletret with a hundled and fiftie armed men, and as manie other foldings, the thole number being thie hundred.

The good duke of Lancaster having knowledge hereof directed his fleet or nanie towards the hauen of Breft, where when he had arrived, they all fled from the flege, both by fea and land, those onlie, which were in the fort, remaining behind. Pow the prior of S. James in Talis desired the good duke that he might give the first assault against the fort; who tax king the repulle with his retinue, he cealed and gaue ouer. In like fost did manie mose give the affault to the same for the space of two dates and more: in so much that some digging boder the wals, and boders mining the foundations of one towe, the fame fell downe voon sir Robert Swinarton a valiant knight of Staffordthire, and manie more, among thome was John de Bolton a couragious gentleman and an elquire by degree of Dockelhire . As for those that were boon the towie, they also came tums bling downe, and were presentlie flaine.

In the meane time the lood Waletret gardian of the fort, sent word to the duke of Lancaster, that he would paid and furrender the hold into his hands byon condition, that he and all his might freelie bepart with fuch armour, gods, chatels and victuals as they had repoled and laid by in ffore for their inceffarie prouttion: therebuto the good duke (as he was als wates god) verte gentlie agreed; byon condition also, that before their departure, they should ruinate the faid fort, and laie it eeuen with the ground; and should likewise allow and paie him towards his coffs and charges defraied in the fiege of the fame, twentie thouland leutes of gold. Then might you le the people flocking from all parts of the countrie, fome with beires, some with cabbins, some with carts, and some with crutches to fetch awaie the dead and the wounded: in so much that there was not one, either flaine outright, or deadlie mainned, for theme his freends ofd not mone and lament. Dea, the lood Waletret himselfe was so mangled and hurt, that he could not go on his legs, but as he leaned on mens Choulders, and was borne by on either fide. It was reported, that manie dead bodies were hidden in heaps of falt, to the end that the Englishmen thould not glozie and triumph in the multitude of the flaine, of thome [in light] the number amounted to aboue

Abr. Fl. out of

Ct.j.

Limenter lan tat palpota

la ingl. prely.

13htlip the

the king of Dortingale.

Othe king of Portingale &

unuade Ca:

Clariance

amongst waters.

150. Aus farre goeth Henrie Knighton, whele re, port giueth no imall light to the matter binder hand. Affer the duke had remained a moneth at Groigne, he went to Compostella, and there solourned for a fealon, during the which, his constable fir John Hole land wone owerse townes and sortrelles which the enimies kept: diverse pæloed to the duke with better will, for that the duchesse his wife was there with him, whom they knew to be right inheritour to the realme. At Mouson a towne on the confines be- 10 twirt Spaine and Postingale, the king of Postingale and the duke of Lancaster met, there they communed and twhe counfell togither for the more sper die proceding in their enterpille against their adnerfaries of Caffile. Also there was a mariage conbude of Lan- cluded betwirt the faid king of Postingale, and the cafters bough ladie Philip daughter to the faid duke, which marris age Mortlie after was wholie confummated, the faid ladic being first married by procuration at Compo-

The duke continued at Compostella all the wine fer scason, till towards Warch, and then (according to appointment taken betwirt him, and the king of Portingale, at their being togither at Poulon, for their tournie to be made into Castile) the said king affembled an armie of a thousand men of armes, and ten thousand other souldiers, with the which entring Lancasteriot the confines of Castile, he first twhe the towne of thies together Feronle, and after forming with the duke, who had 30 in the meane while by his marthall taken the towns of Ruelles, Tille Lopes, Pouncevoide, Dighos, Watonne in la Paroll, Aibadan, Paures, Befanfes, and Drans, with others in the countrie of Gallis, they marched forth with their whole powers both togic ther, and palling over the river of Dure, entered into the countrie de Campo.

Ihere the English witters make mention of a battell, which the constable of Castile should give to fide, and the Spaniards chased out of the field. But Froiffard (tho lined in those baies, and learned that which he wrote of those that were with the buke in his fournic) maketh no remembrance of any fuch thing, but that contrarilie the king of Caffile folows ing the adulte of such Frenchmen as were fent into Spaine to aid him, caused all the riches of the countric to be brought into the walled townes and for treffes, which he fluffed with men of warre, to befond them from the Englishmen and Portingales, and 50 further to cut off their vitels, and to kepe them from having forrage abroad in the countrie, buleffe fuch as were fent were garded with the greater trops for their fuertie and defenfe.

Aus bestowing the most part of all such men of warre, both Frenchmen and Spaniards, as he could make in places most connenient for that purpose, he fullie determined not to gine battell till his enimics had wearied themselves in keeping of the fields, and France, which he dailie loked for. 139 which means it came to palle, that the Englishmen not vied to fuch hot aire as they found in those parts in that season of the yearc (for it was about Histummer) fell dailie into manie perillous diseases, whereof no small num ber died; and other became fo faint, that they were not able to helpe themselves, that to consider the mis ferie in which they were, it would have rued the harts of their veric foes. Herebpon was the duke confireis ned to fall to a communication for a peace, which in the end was accorded, though not at this infant.

Howbeit a truce was granted, in fuch wife as it might be at the Englishmens choise to returne into their countrie either by fea or by land, thorough

France. Such as polled through Spaine to France, had fafe conducts fealed and figured by the king of Spaine; but scarle the halfe of those that came out of England with the duke, returned thither againe, they died to fall, aswell after the breaking by of their campe, as before. Amongst other, there died before the breaking bp of the campe, one of the greatest bas Troined rons of all the companie, named the load fitts cetal fusting ter; and afterwards within the towne of Tille Ar pent, there died (as Froillard faith) the great barons I thinking of England, and men of great possessions : fir 1312 hone of the doing thard Burlie a knight of the garter, tho had being barons but as it were high marchall of the armie, the loss poor contenting nings, and fir Benrie Percie coufine germane to Dominge, the earle of Porthumberland.

In the towne of Poic deceased fir Manburin de Liniers a Poictoum, and in the telone of Ruelles died the lood Talbot, and so here and there (faith Froisfard) there died in all twelve great loods, foure froze Ebrohus fella, and after fent into Postingale right honozablie 20 knights, two hundred esquiers, and of the meaner Lanchurg fort of fouldiers about five hundred. After that the Penngal armie was broken up, the duke of Lancaffer and the into Sal duchelle his wife went into Portingale, and there re- coigne mained a fealon, and then taking the fea, failed to Batonne in the marthes of Salcoigne, where he refled a long time after. In this meane while, there was communication and offers made for a marri age to be had betwirt the duke of Berrie, bucle to the French king; and the ladic Batharine baughter to the duke of Lancaster, and of the ducheste his wife the ladie Constance.

When the king of Spaine buderfood of that treatie, he began to doubt, least if that marriage twice place, it might turne to his disaduantage; and theres fore to be at quietnelle with the duke of Lancalter, mose pullance he doubted, and whose wisedome he perfectlie understod, by politike meanes and earnest fute, at length concluded a peace with him on this 3 marrier wife; That his eldeft fon Henrie thould have in mas concluded the duke, and that the victoric remained on the dukes 40 riage the ladie Batharine daughter to the duke of twenthe Lancaster, begot on his wise the ducheste Constance, pune d'and be intituled prince of Austurgus. In considerat the duck of th tion of which marriage to be had, and all claimes to Lancalus ccase, with the duke in right of his wife might that daughter lenge or pretend; it was agreed, that the faid buke thould receive yearclie the fumine of ten thousand Fabian. marks, to be paid to him, or to his affigues in the citie of Baionne in Galcoigne, during the terme of the lives of the faid duke and duchelle; and further to hand in hand the fumme of two hundreth thousand Ab. Fl. and nobles. Henrie Knighton in his relation of this Henricking composition betweene these persons of great estate, Leichte douth fay, that it was told him by one of the good duke abbeil. of Lancasters owne houshold, and attendant upon him in this volage into Spaine, that the Spanish king did send seven and fourtie mules loden with coffers full of gold for the fecond paiment icherebpon they were agreed. As foughing the first paiment (laith Knighton) alked no question of the partie. So that that a new power was come to his aid out of 60 (belides the annuitie, which mine author reportesh to be 16000 marks, during the parties lives fointlie, and 1 2000 marks, if it fortuned that the dukes daughter thould furniue and outline hir husband) it should seeme there were other large allowances, which if they were (as it is likelie) after this rate, it was a right rotall munificence. And to this report of Knighton both Ch. Okland make a kind of alluft on, who speking of the conditions of peace betweene the duke of Lancaster, and the bing of Spaine, faith: Caus a diffidens extemplo Hispaniu, az ebat De pace acceptio er conditionibus, offert Argenti ac auri plaustrorum protinus octo Iustum onus, argentique decem soluenda quotannis Millia nummorium, Coc.

Great beath in the Eng: lish host in Spain: bp reafen of the great heat of that countrie.

In Anglass

(No Rich

The aforciaid agreement and marriage was not concluded, till about the thirteenth years of king Kie dards reigne, so that in the meane while manie incidents chanced in England and in other regions, which in their time and places shall be touched, as to purpose serueth.

And first it is not to be forgotten, that the French menneuer theired more vanitie than they did this peare, fince the linage of the Capetes began first to rule in France. All the thips that they could prouide 10 from the confines of Spaine, unto the mouth of the Rhene, all along ft the coaff, they affembled at Sluis and thereabouts, and made to great preparation for the warre, that the like had not beene heard of (meaning, as they boaffed, and made their bants) to paffe ouer into England, and to benoure the whole countric, in doing facultice to the foules of their cloers with the blowd of the English people. Holwbeit thefe mords were wind, to them accorded the proverbe,

Parturiunt montes, nascetur ridiculus mus. There were numbled in the moneth of September about Sluis, Dam, and Blankberke 1287 fhips. belives those which were rigged in Britaine by the Antoniups conffable, who had caused an inclosure of a field to be poling to ins made of timber, like railes or barriers, that when nate Englad, they were landed in England, they might there, with inclose their field, and so lodge more at suertie, and when they removed, it was so made with joints, that they might take it by in pieces and ealilie con-ncie it with them.

Chebelerip:

This inclosure or wall of wood was twentie fot in heigth, and conteined in length or in compatte, then it was let by, thee thouland pales, and at the end of cuerie tivelue pales frod a turret able to receiue tenmen, that was higher than the rest of the wall by ten fot at the least. There were appointed to have valled ouer in those thips twentie thousand men of armes, twentie thousand crosbowes, and twentie thouland other men of warre. To have force the great awarell, furniture and provision, the thipping, 40 truffing, bearing, and carrieng to and fro of things neofull for this fournie, a man might have meruel. led; for sucrlie the like hath sildome bæne remem= bied. All that was done there on that fide the fea by the frenchmen, was notified into England, fo that the Frenchmen were not more occupied to prepare themselves to invade England, than the Englishmen were to make themselves readie to desend their countrie from all danger of enimies; so that everie haven towne, especiallic alongst the west, south, and 50 ealicoalts, were kept and warded with notable num;

Frenchmen. Laceller

relig & great

bers of armed men and archers. Potwithstanding the great considence which the Elout of French king repoted in the fortification which he had kinde kingh imbarked, thinking thereby to have wrought great wonders, to the discomfiture of the English: pet (contraric to his expectation) it so fortuned, that as bout Michaelmas, the losd William Beauchampe capteine of Calis twhe two thips; whereof one was loden with a piece of the faid inclosure or wall of food, and in the same thip was the maister carpen. ter of the inclosure, being an Englishman bozne, but banished his countrie before that time for some of fense. He also twke another thip, wherein were engins, guns, gunpowder fother infiruments of war. Not long after this, two moze thips were taken like wife, whose burthen was parcels of the foresaid frame or inclosure: so that them thips were met withall and leized byon, each of them loven with one kind of Auffe. Whereof king Kichard hearing, he cansed the salo inclosure to be reared and set by about Minchellie towne. In the means wite, namelie in beptember, the forefair armie came into Flanders, and arrived at the haven of Sluis, intending to make their progresse into England : but by prolongs ing of the time there, they were dituen to great dif treste and want of vittels: for it was reported that a loafe of bread, fold in England for a penie, was fold there for eighteene pence; and a hens eg for a pes nie: fo that in the end of Pouember they returned to France, milling their purpole as much as if they had never ment it.

There were readie within the realme at that leav fon, in one part and other 100000 archers, and ten thousand men of armes, bestdes those that were gone into Spaine with the duke of Lancaster . All this preparation lasted for the more part of the summer, even till the beginning of winter: and fill the French king that was come downe into flanders, Stated for the comming of his bucle the duke of Werrie: who at length in the moneth of Ponember came to Sluis, having protracted time, of purpole, that he might by the excule of winter, cause this to? 20 nie to be put off till another scason. Therin he shew ed more wit than all the councellors which the French king had about him: for if he had not politikelie shifted off the matter, the king had landed here in England, to the great danger of his person and losse of his people. And pet if we thall beliene writers that lived in those dates, by reason of the brute that was spred through the realme, of that huge preparation which the Frenchking made to inuade this land, no small fcare entered into the harts of manie, namelie of the The Londo-Londoners, who (as if the enimics had beene alredie ners specialite landed) bestirred them, in making that provision afraid of the they might for their defense, though it sæmed by their Frechforces. manner of dwings, they food in doubt leaft the thole realme had not beene able to make sufficient reuf

In ded diverle were the moze afraid, for that they Diffention as perceived how the barons and great loads agreed not mong the noin manie points among themselues, and so being not blemen. of one mind, the wifer fort doubted least through their dilagreing in that troublesome time, some danger might grow to the flate of the whole realine. Potwithfanding, no small number of others withed nothing more, than that the Frenchking in going forward with his purpole, might have come over, not doubting but that he thould have found such a welcome, as would have been elittle to his ease. About Tho. Walfin. the feast of faint Dichaell, a parlement was called I parlement and holden at London, and withall great numbers at London. of men of armes farchers were appointed to come and lie about London, that they might be readie to march forthwith against the enimies whensoener it thanced them to land. Thus all the townes and billages twentie miles in compasse round about Lone bon were full of men of armes and archers, lieng as it had been in campe; and wanting both vittels and monie, they were driven to spoile and to take by bio. lence what they might get. At length, after they hav laine thus to finall purpole a long scason, they were licenced to depart home, with commandement to be 60 readie to returne againe byon the first summons. Manie of them were confired through necessitie. to fell their horics, and armour, and some to spoile and to rob as they went homewards, not sparing that they might laie their hands opon. Although the ming. The losd Robert Ter earls of Orenford, Wome Robert Tice the king in the last parlement had made marquelle marquelles of Dubline, was now in this parlement created Dubline cres or Bustine, was now in this partituent treated according to bush according to bush accordi preferment in a man that fo little descrued, as thep twhe it. For by reason of the kings great affection

Tt.u.

men of warre were difinifed home, the parlement

pet continued, and the loads Will remained at London, hearkening Will for the French kings come which he bare not onclie to this noble man, but also to the low Withaeil de la Dole, in om he had latelle created earle of Suffolke, and after aduanced him to the office of loed chancelloe (as before pe haue heard) not onelic the loos, but also the commons sore grude ged at such their high preferrement, in somuch that in this present parlement, the knights & burgeffes in the lower house, erhibited a bill against the lood thancollor of diverfe crimes which they laid to his charge, and so vice the matter, with the helpe of the loops, 1 that in the end in some respect they had their willes against him, contrarie to the kings mind, as after may appeare.

And where the king had demanded a reliefe of mos nic towards the maintenance of his estate, and tharges of the warres, it was answered, that he needed not any tallage of his subjects, fith he might furnish himselfe with such a summe at the hands of the said earle, that was inflic indebted buto him therein, as they were able well to proue. But the king was no 20 bnoer him. thing herewith contented, conceining no small dife pleasure, aswell against them of the lower house, as against the loods in the opper, for favouring them in the lower, in matters that went fo fore against his mind. Derebpon (as was faid, whether trulie 020: theristle, the loss knoweth by a conspiracie begun betwirt the king fluch as were most in favour with him, it was deuised, that the duke of Gloceffer as principall and fuch other loods as fauored the knights folke, and were other wife against the king in his demand of monie, should be willed to a super in Lon-Don, there to be murthered.

But the duke comming by some meanes to buders fland of this wicked practife, had no defire to take part of that lumer, where fuch tharpe fauce was proutded, and withall gave warning to the relidue, that they likewise thould not come there, but to content themselnes with their owne supers at their lodge ings. It was law, that fir Nicholas Bember, who 40 had beene maior the yeare before, had promifed his al listance in the execution of this horrible fact : but tho rough the commendable constancie of Richard Cr Richard Cre con that was major this yeare, being moused by the con mattic cos king for his furtherance therein, and denteng flattle to consent to the beath of such innocent persons, that hemons practife was omitted. Dis matter being brought to light, the hatred and malice which men bare to fuch councellors of the king greatlie increaled, and the duke of Cloceffer and fuch as withflood 50 the king, dailie grew more and more into the peoples fauour.

3 Inblidie granted and eppointed to be ipint ac-Diferetion of the nabilitie.

Powbeit at length, through the carnelf lute of some of the great loids, there was granted to the hing balte a tench and balfe a fifteenth, which thould not be spent at the pleasure of the prince, but by the erder and amountment of the faid loods, t fo at length the earle of Arundell was appointed to receive it, to furnifh him with a name to the feas. But before this paiment might be granted, there was much adm, 60 a hard bold: for where the faid earle of Suffolke then topo chancello:, at first had bemanded of the commons in the kings name, foure fifteens for with leffe (faid be) the king could not mainteine bis effate and the werres which he had in hand the whole bodie of the parlement made answer thereto, that without the bing were pictent (for he was then at Cliham) they could make therein no answer at all : and here: with they take occasion at length to say further, that ercept the faib earle of Suffolke were remoued from the office of chancello: they, they would meddle no further with any act in this parlement, were it no ucr of to finall importance.

The king being aduerfiled hereof, fent againe to the commons, that they thould fend onto Citham Differ (where he late) fortie of the wifest and best learned of ber-(where he late) to the wind in the name of the well known the common house, the which in the name of the well known their minus. And then house should be clare into him their minds. And then book the house was in no small feare, by reason of a bute that was raised, how the king sought meanes to m trap and destroic them that followed not his purpose. Lecrebyon aswell the loops of the ower house as the commons of the lower affembled togister, and a greed with one consent, that the duke of Sloceller, There and Thomas Arundell bishop of Clie, thould in the Glerite name of the whole parlement be fent to the king but the billing name of the whole parlement be tent to the army on to Clickam: which was done, and the king was well to Clickam the document the document to Clickam the document the document to Clickam the document contented that they thould come. Then they came trothes before his prefence, with humble reuerence they be, botte dig clared their mellage, which confided in these points : parlament, clared their menage, with commons aftembled at that pre-Ehat the loids and commons aftembled at that pre-fent in parlement, befought him of his lawfull fa-quality nour, that they might line in peace and tranquilling the hard

They further declared, that one old Catute and laudable custome was appourd, which no man could Denie, that the king once in the yeare might lawfullic and the and the furnmen his high court of parlement, and call the nadranne loos and commons thereinto, as to the highest court of his realme, in which court all right and equitie ought to thine as the funne being at the highest, thereof pore and rich may take refreshing; where al to reformation ought to be had of all oppessions, conducted and burgelles in their fate, against the earle of Sul 30 wiongs, ertoitions, fenomities within the realine; apartment, and there the king ought to take counsell with the wise men of his realme, for the maintenance of his effate, and confernation of the fame. And if it might be knowen that any persons within the realine or without, intended the contrarie; there must also be deniled how luch enill weds may be deffroied. There must also be Audied and forestene, that if any charge do come byon the king and realme, how it may be honocablic borne and discharged.

Further, they declared that till that present, his subjects (as was thought) had louinglie demeaned themselves towards him, in aiding him with their fubstance to the best of their powers, that their defire was to biderstand how those gods were spent. And further they faid, they had one thing to beclare buto him, how that by an old ordinance it was enaded, that if the king thould absent himselfe fourtie Dates, not being fiche, and refuse to come to the parter ment, without regard to the charges of his papels him from ment, without regard to the charges of his people, parlement and their great paines, they then may lawfullie re-thelpands furne home to their houses: and therefore sith he had dans, bæne ablent a long time, and yet refuled to come a mong them, it was greatlie to their discomfort. Eo This was this the king (as we find) made this answer: Welell, answer we do perceine that our people and commons go as bout to rife against vs : wherefore we thinke we can. " not do better than to after aid of our couline the ... French king, and rather fubmit be bnto bim than to ,, our owne subicas.

The loods answered, that it should not be good for bim fo to do, but a waterather to bring him into er freame danger, fith it was plaine inough, that the French king was his ancient enime and greatell adversarie, who if he might once set fot in the realme of England, he would rather despoile and disposselle the king of his kingdome, than put his helping hand to relieve him. He might (they faid) call to comembrance, bowbis noble progenitone king Ca ward the third, his grandfather, and prince Coward his father had travelled in heat and cold, with great anguith and troubles incellantlie, to make a conquest of France, that rightfullie apperteined unto them, and now to him, in which wars he might likewife remember helv manie loods, neble men, and

An.Reg.10.

p. ple 13 the tiple of the artic of his rance and pattement.

Che earle of

poullie char:

god commons of both realmes had lost their lines, and what charges both the realmes likewife bare in mainteining those warres: and now (the more pitie) greater burthens were laid upon the necks of the English subjects for the supportation of his charges, by reason whereof, they were so low brought (said they) that they have not to pate their rents, and so by fuch meanes was his power decated , his loads brought behind hand, and all his people fore impoue, ridy people, fo cannot be be rich that hath pope commons. And as he toke hurt by such inconveniences chancing through enill councelloss that were about him, to the loads and noblemen fuffeined no leffe hurt each one after his chate and calling And if remedie were not in time proutoed through his helping hand, the realme mud needs fall in ruine , and the default thould be imputed to him and to those his euill coun-

By these and the like persuations the king was 20 induced to come to the parlement, and according to his appointment he came indeed . Some after his comming was John Fortham bishop of Durham Change of of. discharged of his office of lost treasures, and in his place was appointed one John Gilbert bilhop of Hereford, that was a frier of the order of preachers. aman moze eloquent than faithfull, as fome repozted of him. Alfo the earle of Suffolke was bilchar. ged of his office of lood chancellos, and Thomas Arundell bishop of Elie placed in his rome, by 30 mole confent of parlement. The fame earle of Suffolke was charged with manie & veric great enos mious crimes, frauds, fallhods, and trefons, which he had practifed, to the great prejudice of the king and realme, and therespon was committed to ward in Suffolke gree the castell of Windloze. Potwithstanding they ad. indged him not to death (as some write) not difaraded him of the honoz of knighthod, but condemned house for sun- him to paie a fine of twentie thousand marks, and which he had purchased.

But other write, that not with famoing the king was loze offended for the acculations brought as gainst the said earle of Suffolke and others, whome he loued, and was loth to heare ante cuill of : yet he was confireined at length, after he had thifted off the matter by fundzie deuises, to appoint certeins persons with full power and authoritie to heare, and in indgement to determine those matters. The duke appointed as ludges; which while A the king as yet was absent, who got him footh of the wate of purpose, bicause he would not be veesent at the condem, nation of those whome he most entierlie loned and favoured) went earnesslie in hand with their businesse, and so at length (as Walfingham saith) the earle of Suffolke was convided, a found giltie of fundate crimes, trespasses, and naughtie parts: for which it was thought that he deserved to lose his life a goods, faith) to go abroad under fuertie, certeine great men being bound for him in great lums of monie. But that order focuer was taken for the punishment of him, sure it is he was displaced from his office of chancellorship, as before per haue heard.

Furthermore, the loods, and other estates in this parlement, confidering that through covetousnesse of the new deposed officers, the kings treasure had bene imbezeled, leivolie wasted, a prodigalitespent, nothing to his profit: there were in this parlement thirtene loods chosen, to have overfight under the hing of the whole government of the realine, as by dicir commission in the statutes of the tenth yeare of this king it outh in the boke of Catutes at large ap, peare. Of those thirteene there were this of the new officers named, as the billyop of Clie losd chancellos, the bishop of Hereford lood treasures, and Picholas abbat of Waitham losd keeper of the privic scale: the other ten were thefe, William archbishop of Canturburie, Alexander archbithop of Popke, Co. mund Langlie duke of Porke, Thomas duke of Gloceffer, William bithop of Winchester, Thomas bithop of Exceller, Richard earle of Arundell, Rie with ofthe rifted. And as that king cannot be pose that hath 10 thard lood Decrepe, and John lood Debereur. But this participation of the government fell out to be inconvenient, as by processe of the frozie shall appeare, even to those buto whome it was allotted: fo that no limall a do happened among them and their partakers: according to the old proverbe, which faith;

Va sibi quando canes veniunt os rodere plures.

Poseover at the kings instance and carnell sute it was granted that Robert de Tær late marquelle of Dubline, and now newlie created duke of Ireland, should have and receive to his owne vie thirtie thousand marks, that the Frenchmen were to give for the heires of the lood Charles de Blois, that remained here in England , which Charles in times past chalenged as his rightfull inheritance the dut. thie of Britaine, against the earle of Bontfort. Alis grant was made to the duke of Ireland, with condition, that being furnished with this monie, he should palle over into Ireland, before the nert Caffer, there to recover such lands as the king had given to him. For aswell the loads as the commons were so desirous to have him gone, that they withen the realme rather to spare so much treasure, than to have his prefence about the king, to allure him to follie. The fame The king of time the king of Armenia lued for a fafe conduct to eth for a fafe come againe over into this land, to speake with the conduct to king as it had been about the mouing of some peace come into king as it had been about the moung of torne peace England betwirt the two realms of England and France, but which is des fith his meaning was suspected to be to no good end, nied him, but to benefit himselfe by receiving of some great allo to forfeit one thouland pounds of yeelie rents 40 giffs at the kings bountifull hands, his fute was not

In this meane time allo, whileft the French king with fuch a companie of oukes, earls and other loads, as had not biene heard of , Will continued in Fland ders, stateng as well for a convenient wind, as for the comming of the duke of Berrie; it chanced that certeine English ships, as they wasted the leas, met Two of the with two of the French thips, that were failing to frech kings wards Soluis, and fighting with them, toke them, thips taken with a great of Clocester therfore, and the earle of Arundell were 50 and brought them both to Sandwich. There was price in them. found about the fame flips, a mailler gunner, that fometime had ferued the Englishmen at Calis, then fir Hugh Caluerlie was lieutenant there; also diuerle great guns and engins to beat downe wals were found and taken in the fame thips, with a great invented little quantitie of powder that was moze worth than all moze than fix the rest.

About the fame time, or rather somewhat before, the Englishmen also toke certeine hulks and fir cabut yet he was suffered (as the same Walfingham 60 riks of the Genowais, laden with great riches : but bicanse they were merchants, they found such fanoz at the kings hands through means of Michaell de la Dole then losd chancellos (whome they had made their freend) that they had their bellels and all their Resistution gods reffored, and Areightwales they passed with the gods taken. fame buto Sluis, where the chimies laie, tomake fale of their wares there. Wherebpon much murmu ring role among the kings subjects, taking it in cuill part, that they Choulo be inffered to go their wates to releve the enimies of the realme, with fuch goos as were once brought into the Englishmens possels fion, and speciallie the lood chancello; was verie ex uill thought of, for thewing to much favour onto those Arangers.

Gung were earce before this time to Wit, In. 1380.

of merchants

Thirteine ds appoins the governer tialmi under the bing.

Œ t.iff.

The

forward to:

The kings

teaton to:

marbs the land and the folke.

incidinate af:

The French king Mill remaining in Flanders, tarieng for the comming of the duke of Berrie, and ale to for a convenient wind, at length on the cuen of The French All faints, the wind came about bery fauourablie for the Frenchmens purpole: wherebyon they weicd anchors, and lanched from the hauen of Sluis, but land to better they were not past tiventic miles forward on their backe by con- way, when the wind suddenlie turned contrarie to trarie winds. their course againe, and brought them backe with fuch violence, that diverse of them as they should en 1 ter the hauen, were broken and bruled, and lo by this occasion, and the counsell of the duke of Berrie togis ther, the French king brake op his fournie for that yeare, and returned into France. The have heard what was done by the states assembled in parlement against the earle of Suffolke, whom the most part of the realme so greatlie hated, but yet neverthelette, the king had such an affection towards him, that immediatlie after the varlement was discoured. he bnoid all that had beine cnaded against him, re- 2 celuing him into more familiaritie than before, and caused him to continue with the buke of Ireland, and Alexander Penill archbishop of Dozke, which two loads travelled most carnellie to move the king a gainst the other loos, and to disamull all that has beine done in the last parlement. earle of Buf:

There increased therefore in the king an inward hatred, which he conceined against the loads, these men putting into his eare, that he was like no king but rather resembled the shadow of one; fairing, it 30 would come to passe that he should be able to do no. thing of himselfe, if the logos might intoy the author ritie which they had taken bpon them. The king gaue credit to these tales, and therefore had the lords in great gelousie, notwithstanding they were thought to be his most true and faithfull subjects, and the other craftie, deceitfull, and butruffie; but fuch an affer dien had the king to them, that no informations, no: acculations, though never to manifestic prouce, could bring them out of his favour, in so much as at 4 the feath of Christmasse next following, he caused the earle of Suffolke to fit with him at his owne table, in robes accustomablie appointed for kings to weare, and not for meaner effates, which was much noted, and no little increased the envis against him.

About the beginning of Parch in this tenth yeare, Richard carle of Arundell, being appointed losd ad-The earle of merall, & Thomas Powbraie earle of Potingham. the earle of Denonthire, and the bithop of Porwich eth to the fea (as Froisland saith) went to the sea with a warlike 50 of armes and power of men of armes and archers, to well trimmed a thousand are and appointed as was possible. For the lood admerall chers as Froif- understanding that the duke of Glocester, and manic other noblemen would fe the muffer of his men, bled all diligence, and spared for no costs, to have the most choilest and pikeost fellowes that might be gotten, not following the cuill example of others in times pair, which received tag and rag to fill by their # great abufe numbers, whom they hired for small wages, and referued the residue to their pursies. And when to the 60 advancement of the realms commoditie they fould have incountered the entinies, they thifted off all occalling therete, and onelie prolonged time, without atchining any enterprise anaileable, to the end they might receive the wole wages, and hope themselves from danger, which they should hardle have another ded, when they had not about them such able men as were like to match the enimies : but the earle of A. rundeli contrarilie got the ableit men be might, not sparing his owne purse, to the end that by their fernice he might atchine some worthic enterprise, to redound onto the commoditie of his countrie.

After the duke of Gloceffer had beheld fo faire and wates appointed to get them on thipband, to being imbarked, the whole name palled forth to the Thams mouth, where they flaich to watch for the fleet of Flanders, that was readie to come from Rechell with wines. At length, opon a fundate, being the reuen of the Annuntiation of our ladie, the flemily fleet was discourred a good way off, by one that was mounted into one of the tops of a thip of the Cng. lith fleet. The earle of Arundell greatlie retoiling at those neives, faithwith with his whole fleet made to the lea. When the Flemings approched nere to our natic, they made faile, as if they would fet boon the 3 good his fame; and our men of purpose made countenance line, as if they would have retired, as militrufting them sclues to be able to match their adversaries, who co. Agreety ucting rather a fafe passage than battell, passed by. toucothe but the Englishmen bauing once got the wind fit for me against their purpose, suddentie set byon the Flemish thing, the firms and fought with them right fiercelie : at length, affer fat. a lose conflict which induced foure houres, the victoric Thoward fell to the Englishmen.

There were taken fourescore thips, with diverse capteins and men of armes, namelie their chiefe admerall,named John Buicke, a perfed god feaman, and one that had aforetime done much hurt to the Englith nation. Diverte of their thips were bouged, and some escaped from the battell . But the earle of Arundell purfued them to egerlie for the space of two daies togither, that at length he toke them, and brought them backe to his naute, so that what in the battell and in the chase, there were taken of great and finall, to the number of an hundred vellels, all fraught with wines, so that there was found about the fame nine thousand tuns, or rather (as other la.Meit. faie) nineteene thouland, thich togither with the bef Thom Wall fels were freight fent buto Dewell haven, and to o ther havens abroad in the realine, befide that which fell to the kings thare, as due to him by his prerogatine. Part of the flemithflet elcaping (as before pe have heard) was purined but the haven of Sluis and Blankerke.

The citizens of Piddleburgh came to the earle, and requested him that they might bute those wines of him, and paie for the same after the rate of an hundzed thillings the funne, alledging how they were the kings frænds, and frod in næd of wines: but the earle of Arunvell, thinking it more reason that those which had borne the charges of his fournie, to wit, the commons of the realme of England thould have the commoditie thereof than any other, he denied their The libral lute. But pet to thew them some pleasure as his ricof threak freends, he gave them twentie tuns to make mer- of Trundell. rie with. As for that which fell to the earles thare, he bled fuch bountifulnesse in bestowing it among his freends, that he left not to himselfe so much as one tunne. He wan therefore no small praise, that forbear ring his owne commoditie, which he might have reas ped in felling those wines to Arangers, he had more regard to the profit of the commons, whereby they might binderstand, that that which they had laid forth towards the fetting forward of his fournie, was not altogither low nozcast awaie. By this meanes (besides the commendation which he drew to himselse) he also wan the harts & good will of the people, whose frændship is purchased by gifts and good deds, lith they make profit the metrod of amitie, 4 bound in benevolence with received benefits, as the poet faith,

Vulgus amicitias viilitate probat. All the countrie of Flanders nere to the fea coalls, Dimensional was in great feare : for the Englithmen lanced, and mate into cuerie day went abjoad into the countrie, burning flambra-diverse tolures and villages, as Hude, Diburge, men, a cra Poucham, Ponadhacedam, a chicago di pude, wen, a cra Douckam, Ponachacedam, & others. And at length, fpoleton after they had taken their pleasure in the countrie, thosen a power of men of warre, they were Greights in choise of fard noteth.

on the space of ten dates togither, they hostled by failes, and returned with all their preie and boties, which being fold, and ottered absoad in the realme, made wine to plentifullie here in England, that it was fold for thirtiene fhillings foure pence the tun, and twentie fhillings the best and choises. The earle of Arundell not latisfied with this hapie atchined enterpule, but minding to do moze feruice to the bes nefit of his countrie, gathered his thips together, and hiring new fouldiers to suplie the romes of them that were hurt, maimed, og flaine, turned his failes towards the castell of Brest, which seemed to be a heie to the leffe Britaine, and being (as per haue heard) in the Englishmens postession , the French men were about to raife by and build farre greater and fronger bastillions, than those were that the unino kolle duke of Lancaster had taken and destroico, as he marpower. lailed forward on his tournie toward Spaine.

One of these two new battiles the earle of Aruns delliponeby force from them that kept it: and bi= 20 cause it semeo necessarie to be kept for a befense to the castell, if it were in the Englishmens hands, he committed it to the cultodie of certeine English men. The other being not pet finished , but begun in funntions wife to be builded, he fet on fire and burned. This done, furnishing the garison with sufficient vittels and munition to serve them for one tholopeare, he returned home into England, with great praise and commendation of the commons for his doings. But the duke of Ireland, the earle of Suffolke, fir Simon de Burlie, and fir Kichard Sturrie, that fill continued about the king, fremed rather to ennie the earle of Arundels god name, than otherwise to commend him and others to the ta sprowelle king, that had beine forth in that fournie, in so much that when the earle of Aottingham, other wife called earle Parthall, that had beine euer the kings plate fellow, and of equall age to him, came now to the court, hoping to be right welcome, and to receive countenance thewed but ohim, neither of the king, no; of the duke of Freland, tho dilbaining once to talke with him, feemed to enuie the worthie prom. elle in other, which he knew defective and wanting in Shortlie affer, by the counsell of those loads and knights that remained about the king, the load Henric Percie, sonne to the earle of Posthumberland, was fent to the feas, to beate backe the attempts of the enimics, but he was stenderlie appointed to at 50 thine anie great enterpile. This was done of some enulous purpole, bicaule he had got a name amoni gelf the common people, to be a verie hardie and valiantgentleman, as well among Englichmen, as Scots. But he either ignozant, or not much wateng of that which they craftilie had imagined against him, bololic and valiantlie executed the businesse in loined him, and having remained abroad, during the thele time of his appointed feruice, returned fafelie bome. A about the same time, a frice Carmelite, nas 60 med Malter Diffe, that had beine confessos to the duke of Lancaster, obteined in fauour of the same duke, at pope Arbans hands, certeine faculties, to be diffributed to such as would praise & pair for them. Among other of those faculties, one was, to make all those thome he thought god, the popes chapleines, according to forme of law, and the cultome vied in the court of Kome.

Pow bicause such as obtained this favour, infoiced great liberties, manie were glad to bestow largelie, to be to preferred, the frier being redie to admit those that offered moff . Among other, one Peter Pate. hall, a frier of the Augustines order, was made by him the popes chapteine, a man not bulearned, and one that favoured Wiclisses bodrine, and there by on forfaking his private profession, gave himselse to a publike trade of life, which might some to him more holie, commendable, and fure. Herebpon, he twhe boon him to preach against his cione eader, namelie in a fermon which he made in faint Chillo. thers thurch in London. He inucted to earnefilie as gainst the abuses and heinous crimes which the frie ers, fometimes his brethren, bled to put in practife, that it was an horror to heare. There were prefent an wichleulites hundred at the least of Wiclistes opinion at his fermon. Powin the meane while that he so laid forth what he knew against his late brethren, some perfons there were that can to the Augustine friers, and declared the whole matter; where woon a dozen of the hardiest and lustiest fellowes among them came to the church, where this Patethull was preaching, and hearing what was faid, they began to be fore nime ned, infomuch that one of them more realous in his religion than the other, fremed fouth, and gainefaid those things which the preacher proponed.

When the Wiclevills perceived this, they fet by on him that so disquieted the congregation, and lais eng hands on him, thee bim downe, trode him on ber their feet, and lent him manic a good buffet : and thaling all theother friers awaie, they were fullie bent to have killed them, and let their house on fier, crieng out with lowd voices; Let be destrois these murtherers, let vs burne thele Sodomits, and hang 30 by such traitors of the king and realme. And run' ning thus with luch a furious noise and outrage, they purposed verelic to have set fire on the friers lodgings, but that through the humble prater of frier Thomas Alhborne, and one that was his fellow, be= ing reputed for two god men, and doctors of divini, tie, they were flaied. The comming also of one of the thirifes of London holpe much to appeale them, lo that by his persuation, they returned home to their houses. But Peter Patelhull, being mainteined as great thankes at the kings hands, he had no god 40 mong them, was counselled, sith he was intercupted in his fermon, to let dolwne in writing all fuch matters as he was about to intreat of ,4 what he kinely I libell by lets further. He therefore deviled a libell, in which he accuse against his fed dinerle of his brethren, of murthering fundric of brethren. their fellowes.

And for more profe to be given to his fatengs, he told the names of them that were made awaie, and the names also of the murtherers, and the wed where those that were murthered were buried. He aftirmed further, that the faid friers his brethren of late, were Sodomits and traitors, both to the king and realme, and manie other things he beclared (to to bad) in that his writing or libell which he fastined upon the church doze of S. Paule in London, that the moze confulion might thereby redound onto his late brethren, the friers aforefaid. In the beginning of the fame libell be protested, that he was got fouth of the divels dungeon, and through the grace of God escaped from amongs wicked and filthie persons; by reason were, of, and for that he was an anouther of the veritie, he faid, he was fure to fuffer great advertities at the friers hands, if they might late hold on him. But he thanked pope Arbane, for that through his grant he had obteined fuch libertie, that by help of his freends, he might lawfullie withogaine himselse from the hands of his enimies.

There were diverse men of god worthip that mainteined this Patelhull, and caused a transcript of this libell to be written forth, affirming all to be true that was therein mentioned. Amongst other Chefauotie that thus fauoured this cause, were diverse knights, vers of fries as fir William Pouill, Sir Lewes Clifford, fir John Parchant Clambowe, fir Lichard Sturrie, and fir Thomas La timer, and the chelest of all was one fir John Hone file Bate:

Che lorn

taeute.

tacute, who caused all the images to be taken downe and let after in corners, which John Aubreie, and his faccellour fir Alane Burbull, or any their ancestors had let up in their chamell of Cheneleie. About the fame time, the duke of Ireland fought to be dinorfed from his lawfull wife, a trim pong lavie, daughter to the ladie Jlabell, that was one of king Colvard the third his daughters; and twke to wife one Lance grone a Bohemer one of the quanes maios; by reafon thereof, great occasion of flander and reproch grew, and diverte loos, speciallic the duke of Gloce fter, that was buck to the ladie that was forfaken, toke great displeasure herewith. But fith the king allowed of all the duke of Irelands dwings, the duke of Cloceffer diffembled fuch inturies bane to his nece for the time, till opportunitie might ferue to reuenge the fame.

The duke of Ireland buderfood all these things, and therefore was the more circumfred for his owne fafetie, and fludied how by some meanes he might 20 dispatch the duke of Glocester out of the waie, as the man whom he most feared; least his life thould be his beffruaion, by one means of other. Caffer was now pall, the time (as we have heard) appointed before the which the duke of Ireland thould have transported or ner into Ireland, s pet was he not fet forward. But least somewhat might be thought in the matter, and fer feare of some thir to be raised by the lords of the realise, that withed him gone, according to the order preferibed at the last parlement, the king as it were to bring him to the water five, went with him into 3 Wales, where being out of the wate, they might deuife how to dispatch the duke of Cloceffer, the carles of Arundell, Marwike, Derbie, and Potingham, with others of that faction. There were with the king, befide the duke of Ireland, Wichaell de la Dole earle of Suffolke, Bobert Erifiltan lood chiefe inffice, and diners other, which doubtfull of their owne fafegards did what they could (as writers report) to move the king forward to the destruction of those noblemen. After the king had remained in those parties a god ubile, he returned, and brought the duke of Freland backe with him againe to that it fremed his votage mio Freland was now quite forgotten.

About the same time, Robert Driftian loid chiefe inflice of England came to Couentrie, and indiaed there two thouland persons. The king and the quene came to Grobie, and thither came by his commandes ment the inflices of the realme. There were also with bun at the fame time, Alexander archb. of Poske, 1300 bert Acre buke of Ireland, Dichaell de la Pols earle of Suffolke, Robert Criffitan, a bis fellowes; of uhom it was demanded, if by the lawes of the realine the hing might renoke the ordinances made in the last parlement, to the which had given his confent in manner or confraint; and they made ans fiver that he ninght. Then were the inflices commanded to come unto Bonngham, where the king appointed to mert them, and thither he came according to his amountment, and held a folemne councell in the eastell of Neungham, the mercowafter S. Bars 60 tholometus day.

In this conneell there the aforefaid archbifhen of Pothe, the buke of Ireland, the earle of Suffelke, Robert Driffilian miftee, Robert Bramble muice, and fundric other, all which inflices were command bed to fet their hunds but othe question buder buits ten, that by meanes thereof, those persons that were about the king thought they night have god eccafion to put the onke of Olocoffer, and other looks that were his complices unto death, which in the last parlement were orderned to have the governance of the real net and all fuch as were confenting to the fame. Dinerfe of the indices refused to subseribe, but pet they were confirmined to do as the rest old, emong the which was John Welknap, who otterlie refuled, Julia till the duke of Ireland, and the earle of Suffolke Sithers till the duke of Eretano, and the early of Landing police compelled him thereto; for if he had perfifted in the police compelled him thereto; for if hands and net there refusall, he had not escaped their hands, and per til en he had fet to his feale, he burft out into these words: Dow (faid be) bere lacketh nothing but a rope, that 3 3 3 might receive a reward worthic for my defert, and 3 work know, if I had not done this, I might not have eleaped your hands, to that for your pleasures and the " kings I have done it, and descrued thereby death at " the hands of the loods. Thich indeed thoutte follows ed, for in the next parlement he was condemned and " executed. All this remained in record.

An act of councell touching this matter, in manner as followeth.

Emorandum that on the fine and 3 bolings twentith day of August, in the 11 Polychica twentith day or the twentith day or the treigne of king and the callell of chard the fecond, at the callell of aforelaid, Robert Trillian aforelaid, Robert Beland Potingham afozesaid, Robert Trislian load chiefe inflice of England Robert Belknap lozd chiefe inflice of the comon' plas, John Holt, Roger Fulthorpe, accidliani Bosough, knights and affociats of the faid Robert Belknap, and John Lockton one of the kings fergeants at the law, being personalie required in presence of the lords and other witnesses under written by our faid souereigne load the king, in that faith and allegiance in which to him they were bounden, that they thould trulie answer to certeine questions boderwzitten, and bpon the same by their discretions, to saie the

I first, it was asked of them, whether suchiman the new statute, ordinance, and commission law timens of the users made in the last parlement held at Telestminster, be hurtfull to the kings pierogatine. Tetherebuto all of one mind answes red, that they were hurtfull, and speciallie bicause they be against the kings will.

2 Item, it was inquired of them, how they ought to be punished, that procured the laid statute, ordinance, and commission to be made. Tiberebuto with one affent they answered, that they deserted death, ercept the king of his grace would pardon them.

Item, it was inquired, how they ought to be punished, which moved the king to consent to the making of the said statute, ordinance, and commission. Cetherebuto they answered, that unless the king would gue them his pardon, they ought to lofe their lines.

4 Item, it was inquired of them what punishment they deserved, that compelled the king to the making of that statute, or dinance and commission. Tetherebuto they gaue answer, that they ought to suffer as

5 Item, it was demanded of them how they ought to be punished that interrup ted the king so, that he might not exercise those things that appertened to his regalitie and pierogatine. Telberebnto an fwer was made, that they ought to be pueadin

Diffention betwirt the bing I the nobles.

1388 Anno Reg.11.

Grafton.

Certeine queftions in taw bemanbed of the infices.

A connects Bonngham.

niched as traitoes.

6 Item, it was inquired of them, whe ther that after the affaires of the realme, and the cause of the calling togither of the states of the parlement, were once by the sings commandement declared and opened, and other articles on the kings behalfe limited, byon which the lozos and commons of the realme ought to intreat and proceeds if the lords nevertheles would proceed by on other articles, and not medble with those articles which the king had lunited, till time the king had answered the articles proponed by them, notwithstanding the king infomed them to the contraric: whether in this case the king might rule the parlement, and cause them to placed byon the articles by him limis ted, before they proceeded any further: To 20 which question it was answered, that the hing thould have in this part the rule, for order of all fuch articles to be profecuted, pittill the end of the parlement. And if any prefumed to go contrarie to this rule, he was to be punished as a traitoz.

7 Item, it was asked, whether the king when locuer it pleased him might not dis folice the parlement, and command the lows and commons to depart from thence ninot! Tetherebuto it was answered that be might.

3 Irem, it was inquired, that for somuch asit was in the king to remove such indices and officers as offend, and to punith them for their offences; whether the loads commons might, without the kings will, impeach the lame officers and inflices, bpontheir offenses in parlement of not? To 40 this answer was made, that they might not, and he that attempted contrarie, was to luller agatraitoz.

9 Item, it was inquired, how he is to be punified, that moved in the parlement, that the statute wherin Edward, the sonne othing Toward, great grandfather to the bing that now is, was indicted in parlement, might be lent foz; by inspection of 50 which flatute, the faid new flatute oz ozdis nance and commission were conceived, and devised in this partement ?

Co which question, with one accord, as in all the relidue they answered, that as well be that so summoned, as the other, which by force of the same motion, brought the faid statute into the parlement house, heas publike effendoes and traitoes to be 60 punithed.

10 Item, it was inquired of them, whe ther the indgement given in the parlement against Michaell de la Pole earle of Suffolke, were erronious and renocable,

To which question likewise with one as sent they said, that if the same indgement were now to be given, the inflices and fer= geant aforefaid would not give the same: bicause it seemed to them, that the said indgement is renocable and erronious in cuerie part.

In witnesse of the premises, the infices a lergeant aforesaid to these presents have let their scals, these being witnesses; Alexander archbilhop of yours, Robert archbishop of Dubline, John bishop of Durham, Thomas bishop of Chelker, John bishop of Bangoz, Robert duke of Ireland, Michaell erle of Suffolke, John Kipon clearke, and John Blake.

Pow belide thele inflices and lergeant, there were Thom. Wall, called at that prefent buto Dotingham, all other inflices of the realme, and the thirifies. Also, diverse of the citie of London, which the king knew would incline to his will, the rather; for that some of them. having aforetime confessed treaton against the king by them imagined, and obtaining pardon for the fame, were readie at his commandement, to recome penfe fuch favour, in the accomplishment of what for cuer they knew might trand with his pleasure. Herebpon, they being impanelled to inquire of certains treasons that were supposed to be committed by the loads, which in the last parlement had to caused things to palle, contrarie to the things pleasure, indiaco the The logos fame loods of manie crimes informed against them, indiced efficiently affect of the Londoners indeed were call reported of in those daies, by some writers, for their bustablenesse, one while holding on the kings part, and with fuch as were cheefe in counful about him; and an other while on the loads five that twere of a contrarie faction : according as the Areams of their effections drawe them, and as they were carried awais perforce by the floud of their variable willes, whereby they were dis ulocd into differing passions, as they were assaulted by fundie and bucerteine defires: which is the nature of the people, as the poet noteth, faieng:

Scinditur incertum studia in contraria vulgus.

But now, as concerning the cause whie the this why the this riffes were called hither, it was cheffic to under tiffes of all fland what power of menthey might affaire the bing fent 102 to the of to ferne him against the loads and barons, it ome court. he toke to be his enimies: and further, that where he meant to call a parlement beric Mostlie, they Hould so ble the matter, that no knight might be chosen, but such as the king and his councell should name. But answer was made herebuto by the thiriffes, that the loods were so highlie beloved of the commons, that it late not in their powers to affemble any great forces against the loods, and as for chosing the knights of the thires, they faid that the commons would budoubtedlie ble their ancient liber, ties, and privileges, in choling luch as they thought matelf. But yet, after that the indiaments were found, according to the defire of the king and his councelloss, and that those which had beene called a: bout this matter, were licenced to depart home; the king and the duke of Ireland fent messengers into cuerie part of the realme, to reteine men of warre Seldfers reto affift them in the quarell against the logos, if net trined on all were. Panie made answer, that fish they knew the fices by the loads to be faithfull and locall to the king, cuen from the loads. the bottome of their hearts, and were readie to fine vic, to denile, and to dwall things that might fend to his honoz, and wealth of the realme; they might not by ante meanes beare armour against them. But a great number of other, that twke it that they were refeined for a god and necestarie purpose, promised to be readic, when we wer it should please the king to

The loods being in this meane while advertised of thefe doings, were firthen with great beauticffe, for that not knowing themselves (as they toke it) giltie of anie offense, the king fhould thus lake their des Arnaion. Herewith the date of Cloceller, meaning to mitigate the kings displeasure, received a solemne oth before the billiop of London, and diverse other lords, protesting by the same oth, that he never imagined, not went about any thing, to the kings him becance, but to his power had almaics bone what he might to advance the kings honor, prosperous flate and good liking, except one lie that he had given no god countenance to the duke of Ireland, whom the king so much loved. And sucrice for that the said duke had dishonored his kinswoman, and the kings 1 also, he was firmelie determined to revenge that inturic opon him; and here with he belought the bilhop of London to declare that his words were onto the

The take of Glacefters procestanion bpon his oth.

The billiop comming to the king, made report of the duke of Cloceffers proteffation, confirmed with his oth, m such wise, as the king began somewhat to be persuaded that it was true. But when the earle of Suffolke perceiued that, fearing leaft the reconcilia. tion of the king and the buke his bucke thould turne 20 to his bnowing, he began to speake against the buke, till the billion bad him hold his peace; and told him. Stout woods that it nothing became him to speake at all. And when the carte affect the fo: Bicaule fait the biffion thou ce waff in the laft parlement condemned for an enill person, and one not worthie to live, but onelie it plear c feth the king to thew the favour. The king offended with the billious presumptuous words, commmecohim to depart + get him home to his church, the forth with departed, and declared to the duke of 30 Cloccifer what he had heard and fene. Herebpon, the great millibing that had bone afore time betwirt the king and the loves, was now more behementile increased, the cute of Ireland, the earle of Suffelke, the archbishop of Pocke, the lood chiefe tuflice Robert Trifilian, and others, ftill procuring, Airring, and confirming the kings heavie displeas fure against the lords.

The duke of Cloceffer confidering to what conclusion these things tended, came secretlie to confer 40 rence with the earles of Arundell, Warwike, and Derbie, who were in like banger, if they provided not more specific for their safetic, wherebpon be dis perus pretens courted to them the perul wherein they all frod in common, to that when they weied what was the most expedient meane to fafe gard their lives, they gathered their power togither, octermining to talke with the king with their armour bpon their backes, for their more sucrtie, as well concerning his vietense to bring them to their deaths, as for the fauour 50 which he bare to those whom they reputed to be train toes, both to him, and to the whole state of the realme, whereby the same could not avoid speedie ruine, if remedie were not the loner provided. The king on the other part toke adule, how he might appehend thele loods (thom he take to be plaine traitors) echone as part, before they might gather their arengths about them; and first, he fent the earle of Porthumberland and others, but othe castell of Resgate, to take the earle of Arundell, who laie there at that prefent. But 60 both of the king and realine. howfocuer it fortuned, the earle of Porthumberland came backe, and failed to accomplish that which he had in commandement.

Affer this, a great number were fent by night, to have law hands on him, and to have brought him to the kings prefence; or in case he resisted, to have flaine him, if by any meanes they might; but he being warned by a mellenger, that came to him from the duke of Cloceffer, conucied himfelfe awaie, and Brundell tois with fuch bands as he had got togither, rode all that neth with the night, so that in the morning having passed thirtie miles, not willout great trauell, and all speed polite ble, he was in the morning advanced to Parmaie parke, there he found the duke of Cloceffer, and the carle of Marwike, with a great power of men about them. At the fame time the king was about to fet ferward towards Canturburic, there to performe some bow of pilgrimage, with he had undertaken to make buto the Chaine of Thomas Becket. But a brute was railed, and a flancer belike contriued, to bring him in further hatred of his lubicas, that be meant to feale ouer into France, bnto the French hing having promised to beliver by into his hands the towns of Calis, with the callell of Curres, and all the fortrelles which his predecellors had policiled in those parties, either by right from their ancenois, o: by warlike conquest.

Howbeit this his iournie to Canturburie was fundenlie faicd, bpon knowledge had of the gather ring togither of the loods in Waringie parke, where with the king being fore amazed, called tegither fuch as he truffed, to bider fand that their opinion was of the matter; and binderstanding that the purposed intention of the locos, for which they were to attem. bled, was to this end (as they pretended to bring him unto a better trade of life, and more profitable oy der of governement, he was Arright Arthen with no finall feare, demanding of them their adune, what Councilis was best for him to do in such troublesome state of beating the things. Some were of this mind, that it thould be thelipts. bell to lake to appeale the loos with faire promiles, affuring them, that they theulo have their defires. Of ther thought it better to attemble the hings friends, and foining them with the Londoners, to go forth and trie the hazard of battell with the loids. Among them that were of this mind, the archbillyop of Poche was the chiefest. But other that were thought to but derstand more of the world than he did, judged it not wiledome to to do, confidering that if the king lost the field, then should great harme and dishonocfole low; and if the victorie fell to his five, yet could he game naught, but lose a great number of his sub-

This was in Pourmber, at what time the king, bp: on his returning from Canturburie, meant to baue helden a parlement; but through thole firs, neither his fournie to Canturburie, no: the parlement went forward : yet he caused order to be given, that no ci tizen of London thous fell to the duke of Cloceller, the earle of Arundell, or any other of the lords, any armour, bowes, arrowes, oz other munition, oz mate fer that might tend to the furniture of warre, been a great paine. But notwithfanding, the looks went forward with their vulincile; and before they appooly end the citie of L ondon, they fent to the king the archy billion of Canturburie, the look Take. bishop of Canturburie, the lood John Louell, the lood king. Cobham, and the lood John Deuereur, requiring to have delivered onto them such as were about him, that were traiters and feducers both of him and the realme, that lought nothing elfe, but to trouble both pope and rich, and to fow discord and variance betwirt the king and his nobles. And further, they declared that their comming was for the hono; and wealth

15ut the king being ruled altogither by the buke of Ireland, the earle of Suffolke, and two or three or ther, was fullie persuaded that the loods intended to bring him under their government, and therfore he was counselled to make the French king his sure friend in all vigent necessities. And to be afforce of him, it was reported, that those councellors aduled him to render up into the French kings hands the towne of Calis, and all that he had else in possession, on the further fide of the fea. How foeuer this matter went, truth it is, that the king fent for the maior of London, requiring to know of him bow manic able for often men they thought the citie could make. The maio: maio; of answered, that he thought verely the citizens might London

The loads topseuet the tuem.

The earle of land fent to apprehend the earle of 3 aundell.

other loads.

ners retule to

An.Reg.11. make in time of need, fiftle thouland men, within an houres respit. Well faio the king , then I befæch you go and prove what will be done. But when the maio? began to attempt the matter, he was answered ge nerallie, that they would never fight against the hings frends, and defenders of the realme (as indeed they take the losos to be) but against the enimies of the king and realine they would alwaies be readie to fight, and thew what reliffance they were able. This answer the maior reported to the king.

At the same time there was about the king the lood Rafe Ballet, tho fait thus to the king flatlie " and plainelie: Sir, I haue beine, and euer will be co pour true liege man, and my bodie and gods thall ener be at your graces commandement, in all inflice encearle of and trueth. But neuertheleffe, hereof I affure you, The earle of Abothumbers that if my hap be to come into the field, I will with ind safets out faile alwaics follow the true partsand it is not 3 motostothe that will aduenture to have my head broken for the duke of Irelands pleasure. Likewise, the earle of 20 Posthumberland, being at that time in the court, hake thefe woods to the king; Sir, there is no doubt ce but thefe losos, who now be in the field, alwaies have bene your true and faithfull fubicits, and pet are, not ce intending to attempt anie thing against your state, wealth, thonog. Deuertheleffe, they feele themfelues ce fore molested and disquieted, by the wicked deuises ce of certeine persons about you, that sæke to oppeste them. And verelie without faile, all your realme is ce fore ground therewith, both great and small, as well loids as commons; and I fee not the contrarie, but ce they mind to aduenture their lives with the losds that are thus in armes, speciallie in this case, which they reckon to be yours and your realmes . And fir, co now ye be in the chefe place of your realine, and in the place of your coconation, ococr your felfe now d therefore toffelie and like a king. Sond to them to " come before your presence in some publike place, there they may occlare onto you the intent and pur " pole of their comming, accompanied with lo great a 40 conumber of people into these parts, and I belieue it covereine, they will thew such reasons that you will hold them excused.

The archbishop of Canturburie, and the load chancello; bithop of Elie, and other of the bithops also there present, affirmed the earles adule to be and. And the king confidering wifelie the cafe as it flod, began to be amealed, and accorded to follow their aduile, desiring the archbishop of Canturburic, and the bilhop of Clic, to advertise them of his plesure, which 50 was, that he willed them to come to him to TACA: minster, on sundaie then nert following; and so thep repairing to the loads, made report to them of the kings mind and purpole. But the duke of Gloceffer, and the other loads, were fo fullie bent in their opini. on, that they swoze all whole togisher, that they would thur purposed never give over their enterprise, so long as they had apenie to spend, in maintenance of their cause: and if it chanced anie of them to depart this life, the o ucrliners should persist therein, butill the time that 60 they had brought their purpose to some good effect.

And bicause they doubted least the king might firre the citie of London against them, they determined first to advertise the major and the citie, bow their comming was onlie to reforme certeine great enormities, which they fet downe in writing, & fent if to the major and citizens, befeething them of their favour and counsell therin. This done, they determis ned yet to keepe their date on the fundate following, to appeare before the kings presence: but this was not got of them, till that the lost chancellos, with diuerse other noblemen of good credit, had undertaken bpon their oths for the kings behalfe, that no fraud not deceipt, no perill not eaill pretente Gould be put in practife against the loods, whereby they might come to lotte either of life , limme , or goos , or otherwise, through the kings means; but that if he should go as bout anie fuch things, the faid load chancellog, and other the inediators should forwarne the lords theref.

When therefore the loads were readie, according to covenant, to come buto Wellminster, they were In ambush fecretlie aduertifed, that there was an ambufh laid at Mewes. in a place called the Delves, and fo they flated, and came not at the appointed houre. Wherebpon, when the king demanded, how it fortuned that the loads kept not promise, the bishop of Glie lord Chancellor made him this answer; Bicause saith he, there is an ambulh of a thouland armed men or more laid in fuch a place (and named it) contrarie to couchant, and "? therefore they neither come nor hold you for faithfull >> of your word. The king hearing this, was affonted, and faid with an oth, that he knew of no fuch thing, & withall font to the thiriffes of London, commanding them to go to the Dewes, and (bpon fearth made) if they found ante force of men there affembled, to take and kill all fuch as they could late hands byon. But fir Thomas Triuet, and fir Aitholas Brambre, knight, that had in ded affembled such a number of men, when they binder food what order the king had given therein, they fent their men backe to London.

The loads, after this, receiving a fafe conduct from the king, and perceiving all to be fafe and cleare, came unto Westminster with a strong power of o men about them. The king, when he heard they were come, apparelled himselfe in his kinglie robes, and with his scepter in hand came into the great hall The loads at Westminster. The loads as some as they had sight come before of him made to him their humble obcifance, a went the kings pres fouth till they came to the nether steps, going by to minster hall. the kings feat of fate, where they made their fecond obeifance; then the king gave them countenance to come never to him, they lo did, knæling dolune before him, t forthwith he role from his place, and los ninglie welcomming them, take each of them by the hand, and that done fate him downe againe. Herc, with the bishop of Clie load chancelloa, as mouth to the king, declared buto these losos in effect as followeth. Apploads (faidhe) our foucreigne load the king, hearing that you were allembled in Paringie Chelorochas parke, in other maner than was convenient, would relor freaketh not farthwith run boon you with force to destroic you, as he might calille have done, if he had not wis thed your fatetie; for no man doubteth, but if his plea, ?? fure had beene to gather an armie, he might haue had more people than you could have got to have taken part with rou against him, and so happilic much bloud might have beine spilt, which thing certeinlie >> our fourreigne load the king ofterlie abhoareth: and therefore vling patience and mildnelle, he hathras ther chosen to talke with you in peaceable wife, that he may bnoerstand the cause whie pe have astembled fo great a number of people togither. The loads for antwer herebuto faid, that they al The antwer fembled their forces togither, for the profit both of the of the loads bing and realme, and speciallie to take awaie from their grees, him such traitors as remained continuallie about him; to wit, Robert de Clærduke of Ireland, Aleran, per Penill archbifhop of Porke, Michaell de la Pole erle of Suffolke, Robert Trifilian that falle inflice, and fir Picholas Brambre that diflotall knight of 22 London: for fo they tearmed them all. And to prome their accusations true, they threw downe their >> glones, protesting by their oths to profecute it by bats tell. Paie (faith the hing) not fo, but in the nert parle, ment, which we do appoint before hand to begin the ,, mozow after the Parification of our ladie, both they and you amearing, shall receive (according to law) > all that thich reason thall amount. And now to you >> the leads.

Ehe lozber take an oth

Elelozan

Ihom.Walf.

The king res my loods I speake, by what meane or by what reason proueth the turff you so presumptuousie take byon you within this my land to rife thus against mer Did you thinke to feare me with fuch your prefumptuous bolonelle? ce Dane 3 not armed men fufficient to hane beaten you cowne, compassed about like a fort of dere in a toile ? If I would: trulie in this behalfe I make no more account of you, than of the bilest skullions in my kitchen.

Che king ta: ties tito his protection,

Grafton.

When he had faid thefe woods, with much more, he liff up the duke of Cloceffer that all this while knie led afore him, and commanded the relique to rife alfo. After this, he led them courteoullie to his chamber, where they fate and dranke togither. And finallie it was concluded, that they thould all met togither as gaine at the nert parlement, and ech one to receive according to inflice : and in the meane time the king twice aswell the duke of Glocester, as the duke of Ireland into his protection, to that neither part in the meane time thould hart the other, not prefame to 20 make any gathering of people butill the time prefire ed : and fo this councell brake op, and the loods departed. These things put were done in absence of the forenamed persons thom the lords accused, for they durst not appeare in presence of the lords; for if thep had beine espied, they had smarted for it, as was thought, without any respect that would have beine havof the kings prefence. And now, for formuch as it thould be well knowne through all the citie, that thefe losds had nothing offended him with their comming, the king caused a proclamation to be made, the tex 3° nour inercof was as followeth.

A proclamation clearing the lords of treason.

Ichard by the grace of God, ac. Tele will that it be knowne to all our liege people throughout Sour realme of England, that whereas Thomas duke of Glocester, Ktchard earle of Arundell, a Thomas earle of Illarwike, have beene defamed of treafon by certeine of our councelloss; we as it apperteineth, diligentlie fearthing the ground a cause of this defamation, find no fuch thing in them, not any suspicion theres of: wherfore we declare the same defamation to be faile, and butrue, and dw receive 5 the same duke and earles into our speciall protection. And bicause these accusers thall be notociouslic knowne, their names are Alexander archbishop of Yorke, six Robert Clare duke of Ireland, Michaell de la Pole earle of Suffolke, Bobert Crifilian low chiefe inflice, and fir Aicholas Brambic of London knight, who in like case thall remaine till the next parlement, and there hall fland to their answers. But in the 60 means time we likewife take them into our protection, streictlie charging and commanding that no maner of person charge any of the forenamed, either prinitie or a= pertile, in word or died, to hurt them, or cause any hurt to be done to them, but all quarels ademands against them to be remitted, butill the next parlement prefixed.

Poin to have all things in more perfect readinelle and remembrance when the effaces thould be affem, bled, certeine of the logds were appointed to fit in the meane time, to denife how they might proceed orders lie in redieffe of fuch matters, as fæmed to require some speedie reformation: neither did they thinke it god to depart in lunder, for feare to be intrapped through the malicious practile of their advertaries. Which doubt of theirs fæmed afterwards to fland them in fled of great wisedome. Ho: immediatlic after, their faid adverfaries came to the king, and beclared how they were dailie in danger of their lines. by reason of the malice which the losos had conceiucd against them onelie for the kings sake, and not for a ny matter of their owne. And whereas the king had promised that they should appeare at the next parle ment, which was at hand, they told him plainelie that they neither ourst norwould put their bodies in such manifelt danger. The king confidering hereof, with drew himselse from the companie of the lords that were alligned to fit at London, to deliberate of mat ters that were to be talked of and ordered in the parlement; and fo that councell was deferred and laid alive: and the kings councelloss that food in danger of their lines through the malice of the loads confede, rated with the duke of Glocester, got them from the court, and withdrew some into this place and some into that.

Among other the earle of Suffolke fled ouer unto Che carted Among other the earte of a unight called Suffish.
Calis in secret wife, by the helpe of a unight called Suffish.
Bathouth fir calillam Hw, who holpe to connece him thither, Cana, De had changed his amarell, and Chauen his beard, and fo disguisco, counterfeited himselfe to be a poul ter, and to fell certeine foule which he had gotten, by which means he was not knowne, till at length comming to the gates of the castell (wherof his brother lie Comund de la Pole was capteine) he discouered to him (scarselie knowing who he was, by reason he was to disguised the whole occasion of his repairing thither, requiring him to keepe his counsell, and that he might remaine with him in printe maner for a time, till he might heare more how things went in England, from whence he was thus fied, to avoid the bloudie hands of his enimies, that fought his life. his brother doubting what might be laid to his charge if he chuld conceale this matter from the lood Milliam Beauchampe lord deputie of the towne, ffreightwaies advertised him thereof, who take or der that the earle thould foothwith be fent backe a gaine into England to the bing, uho receiued him Graiton with small thanks to them that brought him over, so that (as some write) his brother being one, was committed to pillon for bilclofing him. But pet bis cause it should not sæme that he impassoned him for that cause, he was thortic after set at libertie, and returned againe to his charge at Calis. The earle was allo permitted to go whither he would, although the king had undertaken to prefent him and others at the nert parlement to answer their offenses, as the same might be laid to their charge.

¶ But here it may be doubted by the uncertentie of writers, whether the earle of Suffolke thus fled ouer to Calis, before the tournie at Ratcote briege, or al ter. But whether it chanced either affer or before, it is certeine that fince the time that the loads had forced the king to promife to exhibit him and others at the nert parlement to abive their trials, he durif not o penlie remaine in the court, but taking leave of the king departed from him. Cherbpon the king being out of quiet for the absence of him and other his best beloued councellors, whom he so much essemed, and namelie of the duke of Ireland, and the faid earls of tothe finds Suffelhe, he ameinted one Chanas Bolineurcon of Chang stable of the castell of Chester, a man of high valian to safeting cie, and great power in the parties of Chellire and the tubed Lancalhire, to raise an armie of men, with the ally the lanes of the third see of Chellire. fance of the Christe of Chechire, to thom his come gielerei.

million

In.Reg.11.

isse to ltop

Smillion of authoritie in that behalfe, bnoer the great feale was directed, to the end that they might conneie the duke of Freland in all fafetis but o the kings presence.

The thirtiffe having received this committion, to gither with the foresaid Thomas Polineur raised a power, and luch as refuled to lerue, in respect of such god will as they bare to the loads, he committed to pilon, commanding the gailors to keepe them fireit in irons with bread and water till his returne. Hores 10 uer, the king fent to fir Kafe Hernon, & fir Kichard Ratcliffe, willing them to affif the other. And so thus they let forward with the number of fine thousand men. Then the loads binder food that the duke of Free land was marching towards London, with fuch a power of men, meaning to some with the Londo ners, and so to make as it had beene an inmincible ar mie, they bestirred themselves, and fell in hand to armetheir men, and to erhort one another, that now they should not be negligent in their owne defense, 20 but make half for the dispatching of those that crastilie had gone about to conspire their deaths. And so thefe loos, to wit, the duke of Bloceffer, the earles of Derbie, Arundell, Marinike, and Potingham, alfembled their powers out of all quarters, to incounter with the bulke of Ireland; and when they had got their companies togither, they forelated all the water by which he was thought to come.

But the duke of Freland having with him Polis neur, Clernon, and Ratcliffe, rode forward in fatelie 30 and glogious araie, with an armie (as pe have heard) of flue thouland men, supposing that none durst come forth to with frand him. Peuerthelesse when he came to Katcote brioge, not patt foure miles from Theping Poston (which bridge if he could have patted, he had bene out of the danger of all entinies) he luddenlie espied where the armie of the loads laie, not far difant from him, readie in the midft of a vallie to a. bioc his comming. Some of the earle of Derbies companie had broken the bridge, a fo stopped his pal 40 face. De therefore perceiving his enimies intention, faied, and caused the kings banner to be spred, and began to let a good countenance of the matter, and to erhoot his people to their themselves valiant; and hereinith caused the trumpets to sound. But when it appeared that as some were readie to fight in his quarell, so there were other that quite forloke him, and faid flatlie they would not fight against so may nienoblemen, in so buiust a cause: he being thereof aduertifed, began to war faint-harted, and to prepare 50 himselfe to escape by flight; and declaring no lesse o penlie buto them, saio: Before we come to soine, 3 will læke to withozaw my felfe out of the waie, and cane my felfe if I can; for me they onlie fæke, againft you they have no quarell, so that I being thifted as ce waic, you thall easilie be preserved. Perewith one of the knights faid to him; Dou have brought vs out of " our countrie, pou have procured bs to give you our " promise, you have caused by to take this sournie in c hand : here therefore are we readie to fight & win the 60 bidoxic with you, if our hap be luch; or if fortune will The bank of action from the favour be, we are readie to spend our lives are readie to spend our lives Industrieth with you. Ho fair he, ye thall not to do, and forth with firiking his hooffe with spurs, he fled from them for feare which had let wings on his beles, as one faith:

-pedibus timor addidit alas Herebpon manie that were with him, curling this his demcanour, prepared to pold themselues to the loods. But Thomas Polineur determined to fight it out, lith the losos were not yet all come togither to that place, but onelie the earle of Derbie and certeine others. Peuerthelesse, after he had fought a while, and perceived it would not availe him to tarie longer, as one despairing of the victorie, betwhe him likewife to flight, as the duke of Ireland had led him the waie: and plunging into the river, which was at hand, it chanced that fir Thomas Postimer being prefent amongst other at the fame place, will cohim to come out of the water onto him; for if he would not, he threatened to that him through with arrowes in the river where he flod. If I come (faid Wolf: >> near) will pe faue my life ? I will make the no fuch promise (sato fir Thomas Portimer) but notwith " flanding, either come op, or thou thalt presentlie die for it. Well then (faid Polincar) if there be no other remedie, lucer me to come bp, and let me trie with , hand-blowes, either with you or some other, and so die like a man. But as he came by, the knight caught >> him by the helmet, plucked it off his head, a freight waies drawing forth his dagger, froke him into the Chomas braines, and so dispatched him. This was the end of Molineux fir Thomas Polineur, which through his bold and ralhaduenture, in a most dangerous and desperat cale, he pulled byon himfelfe; and might as well have auotoed as incurred, if the same pronident care of fafetie had taken him in the head that moved the duke of Ireland to take flight for his indemnitie: wherein he feemed to remember that there is no fafe attempting of any perilous enterprile without dread of danger: for he that can tell when a thing is to be feared, can tell in like fort when it is to be binder. taken; as the wiseman verie sententiouslie faith:

Animus vereri qui scit, scit tutò aggredi. In the meane time, the duke of Ireland (as ye have heard) feeking to escape by flight, came to the rivers lide; but finding the bridge broken, he galoped till he found an other bridge, where he found a number of archers readie to flop his passage. When he fam that he was thus inclosed with his enimies on the one lide, and the river of Thames on the other, he thought to put all in adventure; and calling awaie his gantlets, and floord (to be the more nimble) gane his horte the spurres, and lept into the river; but misfing the food, and not able to land with his horffe on the further live, he forloke him, and fwimming oner so well as he might, got to the banke, and so escaped. It was now night, and therefore his enimies has uing no knowledge of the countrie, followed him not; but his hoofe, helmet, curaffes, gantlets, and fwo2d being found, it was thought verelie that he had beine drowned. The nert newes beard of him, was The dake of that he had palled the leas, and was got into Holland, Ircland fleth there he had no great frændlie welcome, by reason into Polland. that Albert duke of Bauiere, who was lood of that countrie, bare luch good will to his colins of Ena land, the dukes of Lancaster, Porke, and Bloccster, that he commanded this duke of Ireland to depart forth of his countrie, as immediatlie therebyon he did, from thence reforting to the bishoppike of Atreia, and after into other countries, till finallie he ended the course of his life, as after in place convenient thall appeare.

But now to returne to the armies where we left them. After the duke was fled, and Thomas Polis neur flaine (as before pe have heard) the armie of the loods let upon the people that were come with the duke of Ireland (as hath beene laid) forth of Chelthire, Lancathire, and Wales; and taking them as enimies, spotled them of their hoose, armoz, bowes and arroines. The knights and elquiers had their are moz and horfes againe to them reflored, and were reteined with the loods to serve them: but the commons without either armoz or weapon were fent home, and had no other harme done onto them. The Letters foud duke of Irelands cartage being taken, letters were in the dake of found in his trunkes or males, which the king had trunks. witten to him, erhorting him with all speed to repaire bnto London, with what power he might make, and there he foould find him readie to live and tie with him. Such was the conclusion of this battell. which happened nere unto 13urford, fair by Bablake, to the great recoiling of manie through the realme, for that the enumes thereof (as they toke the matter were thus overtheornic. But pet the eleas ping awaie of the buke of Ireland did somewhat mis tigate their ion, for what was become of him it was vincerteine. After this the duke of Glocoffer, and the other loads went to Drived, being forie that their for tune was not to have taken the duke of Ireland.

U b.j.

Warfeid.

Tho.Walfi.

to yald by Calis into kings hands.

At the same time, or rather before, the archbishop of Pocke, and the losd chiefe inflice fir Robert Trb filian, fearing the indignation of the loads, withdrew out of the wate, and durft not be fone. But now the loids, who after the journic at Radcote bridge, were come (as ye have heard) to Orford; we find that the I benterailed same time a bente was raised (thether of truth or that bing 181= not, the have neither to affirme nor denie how there was a messenger taken being sent from the French 20 king with letters, in which was confeined a licence of fafe conduct, for the king of England, the duke of Ireland, and others, to come to Bullongue, with a certainenumber limited, where they thould find the French king come downe thither readie to receive them, to the end that for a certeine fumme of monte, with the French king thould give to the king of England, the towne of Calis, and all the fortreffesin those parts, which were in the Englishmens hands, thould be delivered to the Frenchmen; and further 30 that the king of England thould do his homage to the French king, for the lands which he held in Sal coigne, and so to have acknowledged himselse his liege man. The loods (as was reported) having got thefe letters, and taken counfell togither how to proend in their bufinelle, to bring the fame to god end, remoued from Orfoed, and on Chaffmas even thep came to S. Albons, and there fraied that daic and the

The lorder come to Lon= bon with a great armic.

li. Bichard keepeth his Chaillmas in the Cower of London. Che lords fend to the Dato: and ci= tizens of Lonstand their meaning.

ners in great perplexitie which part to take.

These doubts with all the circumstances being The Londo: ners incline to well weied and confidered, the Paio: Pitholas Cr. ton, and certeine of the chiefe men in the citie, went the logge.

On faint Stechans daie they toke their waie to 40 London with an armie of fortie thouland men, as fome write; a comming into the ficlos befides Cler, kenwell, muffered their men, being divided in thee fenerall battels verie well appointed with armo; and iveapon, that it was a beautifull üght to beheld them. The king kept his Chaffmas, not at Welfminster, but in the Lower; not douting but there to be defended what chance focuer should happen. The loads mistruffing the Londoners, lodged them with their people in the fuburbs. They fent yet two knights, and 500 was fet in a pauillion richlie arraied; and after their Thom.Will. two elquiers, buto the Paio: and Albermen of the citie, to understand whether they were minded to bon to boders take part with them, or with the duke of Freland, and his adherents, traitoes (as they tearmed them) both to the king and the realme. The Londoners were now in no finall feare and perpleritie, not knowing well that waie was best for them to take, weieng dis uers perils; as first the kings displeasure, if they opes ned their gates onto the loods; and if they that them fwith, they feared the indignation and wiath of the 60 The Londo: commons that were come thither with the loeds, and were readic to breake downe their wals and gates, if they were never fo little provoked. 15 choes this, they finde most in doubt, least if the wealthiest citizens thould not give their confent to receive the loods into the citie, the meaner fort, and fuch as withed rather to fee some burlie burlie than to continue in peace, would feeke by force to fet open the gates, and make wate for the loods and their people to enter, that they might make hanocke, and spoile what socuer might be found of value in the rich mens houses.

fourth to the loads, and offered them to loage in the ci tic at their pleasure, with all things necessaric as they should denife. The Pator caused also wine, ale, bread, and chefe, to be distributed among the armic, so as echone had part, which courtefic turned greatile afterwards to the commoditie of the citie. The loos bpon fearth made, perceining that there was no Thebre guile meant by lateng of men in ambuthes within tring to the citie to intrame them , or otherwise , but that all don, 10 was fure inough and cleare without ante fuch cuil meaning, they entred the citie and there above quietlie. Then went the arthbithop of Canturburic and o thers betwirt the king and the loos to make peace betwirt them. But the king at the first læined little to esteme the matter, saleng to the archbishop; Wiel The high let them lie here with their great multituds of people words we hardlie till they have spent all thep have, and then 3 thing th bardie in they will return e pose inough and needle, and longs, trust they will return e pose inough and needle, and longs, then I doubt not but I shall talke with them, and vie the matter fo as inffice maie require.

The loods being informed hereof, were marueloudic mouse, and sware that they would not depart till they had spoken with him face to face, and forth with they fent part of their companies to watch the Thames, for feare the king thould feape their hands, and then laugh them to frome. When the king then perceiued himfelfe to be inclofed on ech fide, he tale ked efflones with the archbishop and his associats that were medlengers betwirt him and the loads, will ling them to declare to the loods that he would be contented to treat with them in reasonable order; therebpon they required that he Mouldon the morow nert infuing come onto Westminster, where he thould understand their demands. When the king heard that, he refused to come unto Westimmiler, but willed that they thould come to him there in the Cower. The loads fent him wood againe, that the Cheloten Lower was a place to be suspected, for that they suic occur might there be furpaffed by some guilefull practife moy cien betufet to intrap them. The king herebuto made feath mar answer, that they might send some two hundred they conchis men, o: to manie as they thould thinke good to make ther to the a through fearth, whether they needed to feare anic hings per fuch things and this accompanie to a house that. fuch thing; and this accordinglic was done: they have uing the keies of the gates and of all the firong chambers, turrets, and places within the Cower fent bnto them.

Du the fridaie, the duke of Gloceffer, the earls of R. Grafton humble falutations bone, and fome talke had betwirt Chelods them, they went at the kings request with him into pen thu his chamber, where they recited buto him the confpis grains to racie of their aducrlaries, through which they had the king been indiced. They also the wed forth the letters which he had sent to the duke of Ireland, to leavie an armie unto their destruction . Likewise the letters, which the Frenchking had written to him, conteining a fafe conduct for him to come into France, there to confirme things to the diminishing of his honoz, to the occase of his power, a lotte of his fame. During the time of this communication allo, the earle of Derbie desired the king to behold the people that were affembled in light before the Tower, for the prefernation of him ano his realme: which he did, and maruelling to fee such a godlie armie and Arength, as he declared to them no lette, the duke of Cloceffer faid buto him; Sir this is not the tenth part of your willing subjects that have risen to de-Aroie those falle traitors, that have milled you with their wicked and naughtie counfell.

The king being brought to his wits end, aswell with those things which the loods had charged him with, as otherwise with the light of that great mul-

K.Grafton.

An.Reg.11.

titude of people, somed greatlie amazed. Where up. on the lozos, whoer condition that the next vaie he thoulocome to Westminster to heare more of their minds, and to conclude further for the behave of the common-wealth of the realme, began to take leave of him, meaning to to depart: but the king defired them to tarrie all night with him and the queene. The onke thinking to make all fure, made excuse that he burff not be absent from all those folks , which they had brought with them, for feare that some visorer 10 might arife, either in the armie, or in the citie: pet at thekings instance, the earles of Potingham and Derbie tarted there all night . The king before his The Walling going to bed, was quite furned concerning his des termination and promile made to go the next date to Welessminister, through such whispering tales as was put into his earcs, by some that were about him, tel, ling him that it food neither with his fafetie, nor honour, folightlie to agree to bepart from the tower, to ferue more for their purpose than for sucreic cf his person.

Tithen the loads therefore understood that he would not keepe promise with them, they were greatlie of fended, informuch as they fent him flat wood, that if he would not come (according to promile) they would fuerlie chose another king, that would and ought to The Brisco. Obete the faithfull counfell of his logos. The king with pilio to const this message being touched to the quicke, to satisfie loos requelt. nert morning buto Westminster, where the loods comming before his presence, after a little other talke, they occlared but o him, that aswell in respect of his owne honour, as the commoditie a wealth of his kingdome, it was behouefull, that fuch traitors, and most wicked a flanderous persons, as were no thing profitable, but hurtfull to him and his louing subjects. Could be removed out of his court; and that other that both could and would ferue him moze hos notablic and faithfullic were placed in their romes. 40 The king, although fore against his mind, when he faw how the loads were bent, and that he wanted power to withstand their pleasures, condescended to do that they would have him.

So when he had granted thereto, they judged that Alexander Deuill archbishop of Pocke, John Fourd ham bishop of Durham lood tresuroz, Thomas Kuhoke a frier of the order of the preachers, bishop of be avoided the court. But the archbishop of Poske, 50 and the bishop of Chichester would abide no reckonings, but got them out of the waie, and fled, it was Continepers not knowne whither. The loads of expell out of the los parone court the load Zouch of Paringwoath, the load Burnell, the lord Beaumont, Albrey de Ter, Baldivin de Bereford, Kichard Aderburie, John Wlorth, Thomas Clifford, and John Louell knights. These were

Chichester, and confessor to the king, were worthie to dismissed out of the court, and removed from the king, but not discharged, for they were constrained to put in suerties to appeare at the next parlement. 60 There were also certeine ladies expelled the court, as those that were thought to do much harme about the B. to wit, the ladie Poinings, wife to John Morth of Powen, and the ladie Poulinge, with others, which also found sucrties to answer at the next parles ment, to all such things as might be objected against them. Poseover there were arrested and committed to senerall pissons, fir Simon Burlie, William Climbam, John Beauchampe of Holt Neward of the kings house, sir John Salisburic, sir Thomas

Trivet, fir James Barneis , fir Picholas Bag. worth, and fir Aicholas Brambre knights. Also Kis thard Clifford, John Lincolne, Richard Wittend the kings chapleins, and Picholas Sclake deane of the kings chapell, whose word might to much in the court. Where was also appehended John Blake an appentile of the law: all which persons were kept in Arela ward till the next parlement, in with they were appointed to stand unto their triall and ans Shortlie after, to wit, the morrow after the Burt Cheparlemet fication of our ladie, the parlement began, the which that wrought was named the parlement that wrought wonders. wonders. The king would gladie have proroged the time of this parlement, if by anic meanes he might . The R.Grafton. loads came to the fame parlement, with a fufficient Thom Wallin. armie for their owne fafetics. On the first day of this R. Grafton. parlement, were arrefted as they fat in their places, all the inflices (ercept fir William Shipworth) as The inflices fir Roger Fulthapp, fir Robert Welknap, fir John arrefted & fent Caric, fir John Holt, fir Milliam Broke, and John Alocon the kings fergeant at law, all which were fent to the tower, and there kept in severall places. onto fuch place as the losos had thus appointed him, 20 The cause whie they were thus apprehended, was for that, where in the last parlement, diverse looks were why the instimade governours of the realme , both by the affent prehended. of the same parlement, and also by the adule and counsell of all the suffices then being, and indentures tripartite thereof made of the with one part remained with the king, an other with the loads to cholen to governe the realme, and the third part with the infile ces: and yet not with francing, the faid inflices at a councell holden at Dotingham (as yee have heard their minds, and to anoid further perill, remoued the 30 before did go contrarie to that agreement. Thereby on it was now betermined, that they should make answer to their doings.

Pozeouer, in the beginning of this parlement, The buke of were openlie called Robert Cler duke of Freland, Ircland this Alexander Penill architchop of Pocke, Dichaell de tainted of trela Bole earle of Suffolke, fir Kobert Triflian loed fon by this thefe tuffice of England, to answer Thomas of partement. Modfoke duke of Gloceffer, Kichard earle of A. rundell, Denrie carle of Derbie, and Thomas earle of Potingham, bpon certeine articles of high treafon, which these loads did charge them with. And forlo, much as none of thele appeared, it was ordeined by the whole affent of the parlement, that they should be banished for ever, and their lands and gods moveable and hummucable to be forfeit and leized into the kings hands, their lands intailed onelie ercepted. Shortlie after was the lord chefe luftice, Robert Tris Trilitian filian found in an apothecaries house at Westmin, chefe infice first to the first open content by the definition of the parlement is the was described by the described by the sum of the parlement is the was described by one executed at of his owne men, and so taken and brought to the Tiburne, date to be had to the tower, and from thence drawne to Liburne, and there hanged.

On the morrow after, fir Picholas Brambre, that fometime had beene maioz of London, was brought forth to indgement and condemned, although he had manie frænds that made lute to laue his life. This manhad done manie oppellions within the citie of London(as was reported.) In his maioraltie, he caufed great & monttruous focks to be made to impallon men therein, and allo a common are to Grike off the heads of them which should resist his will and pleasure, for he was so highlie in the kings favour, that he might dowthat he would. And the report went, that he had caused eight thousand or more to be indiaco, which before had taken part with the loads, intending to have put them all to death, if God had not Chortened his daies. Pante other cuill fauoured reports went abroad of him, as that he meant to have changed the name of London, and to have named it little Troie, of which citie baptiled with that new name, he purposed to be intituled duke . But these were forged rumors devised and spredabroad duke of Glocester, who caused him forthwith the same

Certeine la:

Bir Michoexecuted with an are of ing owne ocuite.

in these daics, as mante other were partie by the vaine imagination of the people, and partie of purs pole, to bying those whome the king fauoured further out of the peoples liking. But now touching fir Ph ias Brambre choias Brambre: in the end being thus called to ans fwer his transgressions, he was found giltie, and had inogement, neither to be hanged, not dialone, but to be beheaded with his owne are which before he had ocused: ferning him herein as Malaris the typant fometime ferued Derillus, the inventor of that ers 1 quifite torment of the brafen bull, wherein the offenboy being put (and the counterfet beaft by force of fier made glowing het) having his twng first cut out, through extreamitie of paine made a bellowing als wates as he cried, as if it had beine the verie noise of a naturall bull. Of which Grange toment Perillus himselfe first tasted, suffering death by an engine of his owne denifing, which he thought thould have purchased him a good living, whereof the poet faith:

Ouid.li, 1.de art.

Pt Phalaris tauro violentus membra Perilli

Torruit, infelix imbuit autor opus.

Ditterfe that frod against the lordsex: centeb.

The duke of Giocester a

Leuere mail

Sir Simon Burke.

After this, fir John Salifburic, the James Berneis, both huights and luffic young men, were by indogement of variement drawns and hanged. Then foldwed John Beauthampe of the Holt, lood Reward of the kings house, that had served king Coward the third, and his forme Lionell duke of Clarence: tho likefulle by decree of this parlement was dratune and hanged. Also John Blake clauier, who in an infortunate houre thod against the loads in the coun- 30 cell at Potingham, was now batwe and hanged, and to was one Thomas Tilke. Last of all (or as some hold first of all) was fir Simon Berlie beheaded, although the earle of Derbie did that he could to faue his life, by reason thereof, great diffention rose betivirt the laid earle, and the duke of Glocesfer: for the duke being a fore and a right fenere man, might not by any meanes be remoued from his opinion and purpole, if he once resolved byon any matter. Some spite he bare (as was thought) towards the 40 faid fir Simon Burlie, both as well for the faithfull frænothip, which was growne betwirt the duke of Freland, and the faid fir Simon, as also for that he loked to have had such offices and romes which sie Simon infoicd, by the kings gratious favour and grants thereof to him made, as the Wardenthip of the cinque posts, and conflableship of the castell of Doner, and the office of high chamberleine.

I But now, bicause of all these which were condemned and executed at this parlement, in our common 50 chronicles there is least written; and in Proiffard, and diverse private pamplets Thave read most of this fir Simon, I have thought good to fet downe fome part of his life, to largelic as this bolume may well beare, although a great beale more briefe than there Z found it. This fir Simon was the fon of fir John Burlie knight of the garter, and brought by in his youth bnoor his kiniman doctor Walter Burlie, who (as in the latter end of bung Coward the third you have heard) was one of the chiefe that had charge in 60 in any condition their equals in authoritie. the bringing by of the Blacks prince, civel some to the faid king Coward. By this occasion he grew in to fuch favour with the prince, that afterwards the faid prince committed but bim the governance of his some Richard of Burdeaur, tho as he was of a gentle and courteous nature, began then to conceine to great love and liking towards him, that when he came to the crotone and was king, he advanced hint highlic to great honours and promotions, in formuch that at one time tother he was made knight of the garter, conffable of Doner, lood Warben of the cinque ports, lord chamberleine, * carie of Hunting Henric Knight tongand also one of the printe councell to the bing.

Abr Flout of ton, fol, 191,

Dether was there any thing done concerning the affaires apperfeiring buto the flate without his counsell, appointment, and direction, therein he formuch favoured and leaned to the partie of the duke of Ireland, that he was fore envired, and greatlic ha ted of diverse of the rest of the nobilitie, specialized the kings buck the buke of Glocester, tho bpon malice that he bare to the man, not fo much for his ofone demeanour, as for his alies, and peraduenture for defire of his romes, more than of his life, caused him to be accused of diverse offenses against the crowne, realme, and church; namelie, for that he had (as they furmised against him) spoiled and wasted the kings treasure, and withholden the paie of the souldiers and men of warre, whereboon he was arrested, called to account, thaning no clerke allowed him to make by the fame, was found in arrerages 25,0000 franks. And although for one part thereof he demanded allawance of monie, which be had defrated and late out in Almaine, and in Boheme, about the kings mar 20 riage, and for the relidue defired dates of paintent, vet he could obtain eneither. Further, he was accused that the buke of Ireland and he had gathered great fummes of monie, conucied the fame to Douer, and from thence fent it in the night by fea into Germanie.

Lattlie, the archbiffop (for loth) and the monks of Canturburie charged him that he fought the means to remove the theme of the archbilhop Thomas, 60 therwise called Thomas Becket, from Canturburie bnto Doner, bnocr a colour of feare, least the French men being allembled in Flanders to innade England, should land in Bent and take Canturburic, and spoile it, where inded (as they surmised against him) he meant to lend it over the leas but othe king of Boheme. Herebyon he was first committed to the tower, and before the king or his other friends could procure his deliverance, he was without law or in fice, before any of the relidue (as some hold) brought forth and beheaded on the tower hill, by commande ment of the duke of Bloceffer, and other of his facts on, quite contrarie to the kings will or knowledge, in somuch that ithen he understood it, he spake manie fore words against the duke, afterning that he was a wicked man, and worthie to be kept thorter, fith but ber a colour of dwing instice, he went about to des Aroic cuerie god and honest man. The king was al so offended with the duke of Porke, for his brothers prefumptuous doings, though the faid duke of Porke being verelie a man of a genfle nature, withed that the fate of the common-wealth might have beine redielled without lolle of my mans life, 02 other cruell dealing: but the duke of Gloceffer, and diverse of ther of the nobilitie, the leffe that they passed for the kings threatening speach, so much more were they readie to punish all those whom they take to be their enimies. Indeed the faid fir Simon Burlie was Thom Wil thought to beare himselse more lostie, by reason of the kings favour, than was requilite, which procured him envie of them, that could not abide others to be

It should ameare by Froisfard, that he was first of all, in the beginning of these firs betwirt the king and the loods, committed to the tower, and not with standing all the this that either the king, or the duke of Ireland, or anie other of his frænds could make for him, by the duke of Gloceffers commandement he was cruellie beheaded, so greatlie to the offense of the king, and those that were his trustic councelloss, that therespon the king caused the duke of Freland the foner to affemble an armic against the fair oute and his complices, therby to refraine their prefamps tuous proceedings. But whether he was thus at the first or last executed, to please the king the better, now at this parlement, amongst others that were con-

Demined

An.Reg.11,12.

denned in the fame: his lands were given to the hing, a great part ichereof he afferwards disposed to diucife men as he thought expedient. But yet in the parlement holden in the one and twentith yeare of this kings reigne, the act of atteindor of the faid fir Simon was repealed: and at an other parlement holoen in the second yeare of king Henrie the fourth, all his lands which then remained bingranted and bin old, were reflozed to fir John Burlie knight, sonne and heire of fir Roger Burlie, brother to the faid Sie 10 mon, of uhom lineallie is descended Thomas Eins equier, now secretarie to the quænes maiesties councell in the north parts. And thus far fourhing fir Simon Burlie, of wom manie reports went of his diffoiall dealings towards the fate, as partie pe baue heard, but how trulie the lood knoweth. Among other flanderous tales that were fixed abroad of him, one was that he confented to the delivering of Do ner castell by the kings appointment to the French menfor monie. But as this was a thing not like to 20 betrue, so (no doubt)manie things that the persons aforefait, which were executed, had beene charged with, at the least by common report among the peos ple, were nothing true at all; although hamilie the substance of those things, for which they vied, might be true in some respect.

Sir William Elmham that was charged also for withdrawing of the foldiers wages, discharged himfelfe therof, and of all other things that might be laid tohis charge. As touching the tuffices, they were all 20 condemned to death by the parlement, but such Theinflices meanes was made for them onto the quæne, that the condemned to obteined pardon for their lines. But they forfeited their lands and goods, and were appointed to remaine in perpetuall crile, with a certaine postion of monie to them assigned for their dailie sustentation: the names of which inflices to condemned to erile were thefe, Robert Belknap, John Polt, John Craie, Koger Fnithoppe, William Burgh, and John Lokton. finallie, in this parlement was an oth required and 40 obteined of the king, that he should stand unto and as bide such rule and order as the lords should take: and Cheking ta: this oth was not required onelie of the king, but also kith anoth to propose the of all the inhabitants of the realme. In these from loops opers. bles was the realme of England in these dates, and the king brought into that case, that he ruled not, but was ruled by his buckes, and other to them affociat. Irandellsent earle of Arundell sent to the sea with a great nauie to the feature of thips and men of warre. There went with him in 50 bake of 1521=

Grafton.

perpetgall

a great name, this fournie, of noble men, the earles of Potingham Deuonihire, fir Thomas Percie, the load Cliffoad, the lood Camois, fir William Elmham, fir Thomas Porteur, fir John Daubzeticourt, fir Milliam Shel lie, sir John Marwike oz Berwike, sir Stephan de Amdueture Liberic, fir Kobert Sere, fir Weter Montberie, fir Beinere,it Lewes Clanbow, fir Thomas Coque 02 Coke, fir merte Agen: Milliam Paulie 03 Paulet, 4 diuerse others. Ahere were athousand men of armes, and thee thousand are thers. The purpole for which they were fent, was to 60 hauc aided the duke of Britaine (if he would have rerefued them) being then efflones run into the French kings displeasure, for the imprisoning of the loed Cliffon conffable of France.

In the latter end of this eleventh years was the Anoreg 12. But after that (contrarie iverpeasion, of Bitaine was come to an agreement with the French king, the earle of Arundell drew with his name alongst the coasts of Poicton, and Laintonge, till at length he arrived in the haven that goeth by to Rochell, and landed with his men at Marrant, foure leagues from Rochell, and began to pilfer, spoile, and fetch boties absoad in the countrie. The Frenchmen within Rochell issued fouth to skirmish with the Englithmen, but they were easilie put to flight, and folow ed even to the bariers of the gates of Rochell. The: rot le Bernois a capteine of Gascoigne, that made warre for the king of England in Limolin, and lay in the fortreffe of Galufet, came forth the fame time. and made a roade into Berrie with foure hundled spears. The earle of Arundell, after he had laine at The carle of Darrant fifteene daies, returned to his wips, and fis Brundell renallie came backe into England, and Perotle Ber, turnethout of nois likewife returned to his fortreffe. About the fame time was a truce taken betwirt the parties English and French on the marches of Aquitaine, to begin the first date of August, and to induce till the first of Paie nert inluing.

In this yeare 1388, in Lent, the Scots entred in Abr. Fl. out of to the westerne bodders, suhat with killing as also Henrie Knighwith burning they did much mildhiefe. Posequer they ton canon of Accounce abthewed extreme crueltie against young children and beic. fuchlings, against women bigge with child and in D Scotish travell, against weake and werriff men and croked cruckie and with age, in the countrie of Gilvilland, within the warbarons loodhip of the lood Dacres, gathering them togither bloodigithts into houses, and thutting them by, and locking the nette. dozes, they burned without mercie or pitie to the number (as it was faid) of two hundred and aboue.

This years in August, the Scots invaded the cours. In oursette of Posthumberland, and at Otterburne overs throw given threw a power of Englishmen, which the earle of influen by Porthumberland and his formes had leavied against the Scots them. In this battell the earle Dowglas chiefe of at Otterthat armie of Scots was flaine, and the load Benrie burne. Percie, and his brother fir Kalle, sonnes to the said earle of Porthumberland, were taken prisoners, as in the Scotish chronicles ye may read more at large. After the feast of the nativitie of our ladie, a parles Fabian. ment was holden at Cambridge, in the third dis Caxton. A parteneut uerse katutes were ordeined; as For the limiting at Camof fernants wages; For puniforment of vagarant bridge. persons; For the inhibiting of certeine persons to weare weapons; For the debarring of bulawfull games; For maintenance of thoting in the long bow; for remounig of the stayle of wolles from Middleburgh onto Calis; Horlabourers not to be received, but where they are inhabiting, ercept with licence buder feale of the hundred where they dwell. There was also an act made, that none should go footh of the realme, to purchase ante benefice with cure or without cure, except by licence obtained of the king; and if they old contrarie herebuto, they were to be excluded out of the kings protection. There was granted to the king in this parlement, a tenth to be leuted of the clergie, and a fitteenth of the lattie. Pozes ouer, during the time of this parlement, as fir Tho Sir Thomas mas Trivet was riving towards Barnewell with Trivet flaine with the fall the king, where the king lodged, by forcing his horde of his horde. to much with the spurs, the horstefell with him so rudelie to the ground, that his entrails within him were so burst and perished, that he died the next date after. Manie rejoiled at this mans death, as well for that men sudged him to be ercéeding haultie and prono; as also for that he was suspected not to have bealt justlie with the bishop of Pozwich, in the jours nie which the bilhop had made into Flanders: but speciallie men had an ill opinion of him, for that he food with the king against the loads, counselling him in the yeare last past to dispatch them out of the way. Sir John Holland, the kings brother on the mothers five, that was latelie returned out of Spaine, there he had beene with the duke of Lancaffer, was now made earle of Huntington. ¶ In Julie, whiles the king was at Shiene, there 1 2 8 9 Swarmed togither in his court great multitudes of Abi. Flout of flies and gnats, infomuch that in maner of fkirmi. Henric Knight thing they incountered ech other; and making great Leicelier abs flaughters on both fides, were in the end fwept as beie.

U v.iy.

Inttell and flaughter be= tweene flieg.

wate from the place there they lay dead, with bite thes and become by heaps. This was demed an bru luckie prognosticat of some milchiefe like to fall vpon the neclie of the land.

Commillio: ners fent to treat a truce betweene England, France, and cottanb.

Froiffard.

Also in this twelfth years, were commissioners appointed to met at Balingham, betwirt Calis and Bullongne, to treat a truce to be had betwirt the realmes of England, France and Scotland. Walter Skirlow bishop of Surham, that had bene latelie before remoued from Bath onto Durham, from 1 whence John Fordham had beine translated unto Clie, was fent as head commissioner for the king of England, and with him were toined fir Ihon Clanbow, and fir Nicholas Dagworth, knights, and Riv thard Rowhale clearke, a dodoz of law. By Froiffard it appeareth that the earle of Salifburie was one, 4 fir Thomas Beauchampe load deputie of Calis appointed likewise as an affistant with them. The bis thop of Bateur, the lood Maleran earle of S. Woule, fir Guillam de Delin, fir Picholas Bracque, and fir 20 John le Percier came thither for the French king. And for the king of Scots there appeared the billion of Aberdeine, fir James and fir Dauid Lindley, and fir Walter Sankler, knights. After long treatie, and much a do, at length a truce was concluded to begin at Midlummer next, and to last thee years affer. In this yeare of Grace 1389, in the Lent time, there fprang a pitifull ffrife in Drford, the variance in the peare before being not fullie allaico, but both fides alwaics pronoking ech other. For the Welth 3 scholers being enermore quarelous, and having the foutherlie scholers taking their parts, rose against the scholers of the north, so that to and fro manie a deadlie mischiefe hamened betweene them. In the end, this strife did so increase, that there was a daisof fairmith appointed and agreed byon by both fides to be tried in the field. But by the meanes of Tho mas of Modfoke duke of Bloceffer all this flurre was apealed, and manie of the Welfh icholers bas nithed from the univertitie. In the thursdaie bes 40 fore Caster (being mawndaic thursdaie) the lord Beaumont gardian of Carleill in the west marches entred Scotland fortie leagues, & fpoiling Fowike, made walt at his pleasure, and brought awaie with him manie Scots priloners & captines. About this time a truce of their years was taken betweene king Richard, the kings of France, Scotland, Spaine, Postingale, and of Manarre. This truce began on the first date of August in the nærer parts of the realme both by fee and land; and on the fifteenth of 50 August in the further parts, because knowledge could not be given thereof without some long time.

Abr. Fl. out of Henrie Knigh-ton canon of Leccifter ab= Scholers of Drfozd togi= careg.

The Drots tuthe time of treatic fpoile the countrie of Cruce of 3.

pears be:

kings.

tweene lip

The Scots hauing prout= ded an armie to invade England are pardiv per= fuaded to ac= length they agreed. cept the truce.

Whilest the commissioners were occupied in the marches betwire Calis and Bullongne about this truce, the Scots entring into Posthumberland, vid Porthumber: much milchiefe , leading awaie manie prisoners, men and women, besides other great bottes and preies which they got abroad in the countrie. The lord Domas Polibraic carle of Potingham was fent with fine hundred spears to revenge those attempts 60 of the enimics : but for that his power was fmall in comparison to theirs, he prevailed little or nothing as gainft them . Sir John Clanbow , and fir Richard Rouale clerke, twhe the French kings oth; and the carle of faint Paule that had marted the ladie Daud Courtnie with other noblemen, came into England, and received the kings of here for the confirming of this laft mentioned truce. The Scots might not without much adm be persuaded to accept this truce, being readie the fame time with an armie to enter into England, but pet through the viligence of fuch Frenchmen as went thither for that purpole, at

This yeare the king by counfell of fome that were about him, called the nobles and great men of the realme togither, and as they were fet in the conneel chamber flaieng till he came : at length be entring into the fame chamber, and taking his place to fit a mong them, demanded of them, of what age he was Chebing now? Whereto answer was made, that he was full queftion now? Thereto answer was mave, wat ye was tun twentie years old. Then (said be) I am of years sufficiently others may cient to gouerne mine owne house and familie, and countings also my kingdome: for it sæmeth aginst reason that ber, the fate of the meanest person within my kingdome thould be better than mine. Querie heire that is once come to the age of twentie years, is permitted, if his father be not living, to order his butinette himfelfe: then that thing which is permitted to eneric other person of meane degree by law, thy is the same dee nied buto me ? These woods betered he with the courage of a prince, not without the infligation and letting on of fuch as were about him, whose dust was by discountenancing others to procure preferment to themselnes, abuting the kings tender years and græne wit, with ill counsell for their advantage: there as it had beine more mete to have ginen him those precepts which Claudianus bath in his trac of the inflitution of appince; and among others this:

Non tibi quid liceat, sed quid fecisse decebit Occurrat, mentémg, domet respectus honesti.

When the barons had hard the woods of the king, being therewith affonied, they made answer, that there should be no right abridged from him, but that he might take boon him the gouernment as of read fon was one . Wiell faid he, yet know that I have beine a long time ruled by tutors, to as it hath not beine lawfull to me to do anie thing, were it of neuer fo fmall importance, without their confents. Pow therefore I will, that they meddle no further with matters perfeining to my government, after Chekingin the maner of an heire come to lawful age , 3 will bing books call to me councell fuch as ploofeth are a 2 will the gound call to my councell fuch as pleafeth me, and 3 will ment of all deale in mine owne bulinelle my felfe. And therfore things bille I will first that the chancellog resigne to me his scale, cerb diagrad. When the archottyop of Poske (who in the years last teth others and has home remained from Alia tothe date. palt hab bene remoued from Clie onto Dothe, and their wome. Alexander Meuill displaced) had delivered unto him the feale, the king receiving it of him, put it in his bosome, and suddenlie rising, departed forth of the chamber, after a little thile returning, fat bowne againe, and deliucred the leale to the bithop of Win withhan thefier, William Wickham, and to made him chan hopofun cellog, although foze against the same bishops will. chistermen he made also manie other new officers, remouning L. chanceles. the old, and bled in all things his owne discretion and authoritie. The duke of Bloceffer, the earle of Warwike, & other honozable and worthie men, were difcharged and put from the councell, and others placed in their romes, fuch as pleased the king to apoint.

At the fame time he made fine new tuffices. Df this assuming the regiment to himselfe, as Di. Abr. Fl. and a uerle diuerflie report : fo Henrie Knighton a man li using in those dates, and committing to writing the Leacher occurrents of that tumultuous time, faith as follow abbit. eth. In the moneth of Paic, the king held a councell at Wellminster, and in the feats of the Invention of the croffe, comming personallie to the councell house he remotied all the great officers (contrarie to expectation and thinking) from their offices, and at his pleasure placed in their romes whome he list. He remoned the archbishop of Poske losd chancellos, and put in his place the bithop of Mincheller ; he remoued the bilhop of Hereford lord treasuror, and put an other in his place : he removed the clearke of the punie feale, and all other: to like wife did be the inflices of either bench . But least the affaires of the realme Chould in the meane while be hindered, he commanded the inflices of law to follow and profes cute things requilife as they were wont, till fuch firmed, till a little before his returne now into Engtime as he was better aduited touching the proufland. About the fame time the king had called a coun. I councel hot land. About the same time the lung had called a course cell of his nobilitie at Reading, to the which the duke where y duke ding of other tuffices. The erle of Arundell like wife, unto whome the government of the parlement was of Lancafter made the more half to come, bicaufe be of Lancafter committed, and the admeraltie of the fea, was remoknew that the king would them no good countenance reconcileth ued; and the earle of Huntington put in his rome. to some of the noblemen; and therefore he doubted the bung and In like fast dealt the king with the refidue of his offileast malicious offenses might arise betwirt them, the logds. cers, fairing that he ought not to be inferioz in beare which to appeale he meant the best he could, and his t of lette account than an other ordinarie heire what travell came to god effect; for he did so much, that as focuer within the realine of England; fith the law 1 well the king as the loads departed from the councell and cultonic of the realme of England anerreth, that as freends, the loads taking their leaues of him in lo eneric heire being in the gardianship of anie lozd, uing maner, and he courteoullie bioding them face. when he is growne to be one and twentie yeares of well: and to each of them reforted unto their homes age, ought presentlie to intoy the inheritance left well pleased for that present. The king held his him by his father, and is lawfullie to posteste his par Chiffmalle this piere at Modfoke, and the cuke of trimonie, and frælie to dispose and order his owne Lancacter laie at his castell of Wertford. gods and chattels to his liking . But now it is come At the fame time the lood John de Halfings earle to palle, that I thus manie yeares have lined binder pour counfell and governement; and now first to Cod, second lie to you, I give manifold thanks, that 20 pou have gouerned and supported me, mine inheris tance, and my realme of England, as well within as without, a speciallie against our ensmies round about us, all renowme of honour and praise to us and our kingdome alwaies fafelie referued . But of Benbroke, as he was practing to learne to tuff, The earle of through mithap was Artken about the printe parts, Penbroke as by a knight called fir John S. John, that ran against be was lears him, to as his inner parts being perithed, death pacing to mit is wounded fentlic followed. The loffe of this earle was greatlic to death, bemoned by men of all degrees, for he was liberall, gentle, humble, and courteous to each one, aboue all the other young losos in the land of his time. Of this earles anceffors this is reported for a thing france and maruclous, that from the dates of Aimer de Mas lence earle of Penbroke, that was one amongs o ther that fat in sudgement of Thomas earle of Lan, caffer, there was not anie earle of Penbroke fucces both our felues and our inheritance; and we will 30 ding the same Aimer de Clalence, unto the dates of this young earle by missortune thus staine, that ever fawhisfather, not yet anie of their fathers might resoile in the light of anie of their fonnes, being fill called hence, before the time came for them fo

Claudian.

A Pow here, bicause this John Hallings, being the laft of that furname and armes of the whole blod, out of discrete which of that line intoice anie title of honoz, I thinke ancient moit not writt for this place (fince other occasion will numents benot be given therefore) to talke of the Haffings some longing to the what higher than this man: though not from the others. thell to vervetuate the memorie of them, the which I have now done, least otherwise by ingrate oblinion it might neuer hereafter come to light . In which 3 will not begin from the first honourable Hallings, those bloud by manie descents continued, is thought by most ancient monuments, which I have seene and read, to have beene a baron before the comquest in this land, and to have borne the fame cote in the field, which this now flaine earle of Penbanke old: thereof hereafter in my descriptions and lines of the earles of Penbroke I will make more ample biscourse in a new boke (if God give god successe therein) onelie at this time making some small repe tition from that Henrie Hallings, from whome the Hallings " respect of the mariage of Alda daugh ter to Danie . arle of Huntington , brother to Wil liam king of Scots) did descend : tho (amongst o. thers) in the reighe of Coward the first, made title to the kingdome of Scotland. The original of which name in this treatife I will neither flatteringlie des fend, no cobstinatlie reied, to have growne from Da ffings the Dane, who in the reigne of Alured (long before the conquett, about the yeare of our reormytis on 890) came with Rollo into England, and for a certeine space infested this nation, departing alide to France. And now to the purpole.

Henrie lord Hallings who bare for his armes gold amanche gules) married Alda (oz Ada) the fourth daughter of Dauld earle of Huntington , the being one of the heires to John Scot earle of Cheffer, fof Huntington (which died without illue) fon of the faio David, and brother to the laid Ada. To this Benrie there was not one that went about to breake him of his will, but they all glozified God, tho had prout 40 ded them luch a king, as was likelie to proue discreet In this lealon, the followers of Mickliffes docwickleuilts mercafe.

trine maruelloudie increased, speciallie in the dio celle of Sarum, where they had manie that twke ppon them as ministers, both to preach the word, and to dispense the facraments. This they did in secret: but they were discoucred by one that had beene of their fellowthip, tho declared to the bithop of Salisburie athis man or of Sonning, all the whole circumstan. 50 ces thereof, as he knew. There were of them that preached in those dates earnefflie against pilgrima. ges, calling such images as the people had in most beneration, as that at Talalungham, and the rod of the north done at Paules in London, rotten focks, and worms eaten blocks, through which the wistile full people being mocked and deceived, were compelled most maniscillie to commit idolatrie. The bihops (faith Thomas Walfingham) hearing, behole ding, and knowing these things with much moze, to 60 be true, dio little or nothing to redrefte the fame, faue onlic the bishop of Poetwich into Airred coles, swear ring and flaring, that if anie of that led prelumed to preach anie peruerle doctrine within his diocelle, he would cause them either to hop headlesse, or to frie a fagot for it: he was therefore not a little praised and ertolled by the monks and other religious men (as now God hath fo dealt for be, that we are of full age, to that we are two and twentie yeares old at this present: and we require that we may freelie and at libertie from this time forward rule and governe have our kingdome in our owne hands, and officers and feruitoes of our owne appointing at our pleas fure; fecondie, as thall fæme to be more anatleable, by Cods grace, to elect, choie, and preferre buto offic ces such as we do well like of, and at our pleasure to remone such as be presentlie restant, and in their romes to substitute and fet others wherefoeuer and whomfocuer we lift. The king having thus spoken, should appeare) for that his zeale. In Ponember, the duke of Lancaffer came fouth of Calcoigne into England, after he had remained Grafi forth fiell in Spaine, and affer in Balcoigne, there peares Catoigne, togither. Pfhis successe in Spaine is spoken before, ilikewise of the agreement betwirt the king of Cafile, the faid duke, which was not in all points conand Adabid Henrie the third king of England, in the two retwential of his reigne (in place of the position of his beothers lands, which flyould have defeended to his as parcell of the earledome of Cheffer, for that the king would not have the fath earledome biulded as monost distance) give in exchange certains lands mentioned in this day following.

Lancafter re-

The grant of Henrie the third, to Henrie Hastings and Adahis wife, for the exchange of lands for hip part of the earledome.

Mnibus, ad quos, & c: falutem. Sciatis quòd concessimus pro nobis & haredibus nostris , Henrico de Haftings , & Ada vxorieius , pro rationabili parte sua , qua pradictam Adam contingent , de hareditate Iohannis quondam comitis Cestria fratris ipsius Adain Cestershire, faciedo eis rationabi- 20 le excambium, ad valentiam prædictæ partis ipsam Adam contingentis de prædicto com. Cester-Shire.Et admaiorem securitatem cocessimus eidem Henrico & Ada manerium nostrum de Bremefgraue cum pertinentibus in comitatu Wigornia, manerium nostrum de Bolisoure cum castris & pertinentibus in com. Derby, manerium nostrum de Mountesfeld cum Soka cũ pertinentibus in comitatu Notingham, manerium de Worffeld cum pertinentibus in com. Salop. manerium 30 Strattondale. de Stratton cumpertinentibus in eodem com. manerium de Wiggutton cum pertinent in com. Stafford,& maneriü de Woluerhamton cü pert .in eodë com.intenentiam. Tenendum eisdem Henrico & Ada & haredibus ipsius Ada, quo vsg, predicta pars ipsam Adam contingens & de prædicta hæredıtate extenta fuerit , & rationabile excambium in predictis terris vel alias eis assignauerimus. In cuius,&c. Testerege apud Ditton 11. Innij, anno 40 regni nostri 22.

> The which manours the fato Henrie and Ada dio holoduring the life of the faid Ada, in peaccable and quiet policiion. After hir death the laid Henrie goeth into Salcoigne, where he remained ffem ard untill the comming of Henrie the third, at what time the faid Henrie surrendered his office, but the king importunate with him ftill to reteine the fame. he flattie denied it, and would no longer remaine there, suddenlie returning into England without li cence of knowledge of the king, for which contempt the king grauoullic incensed, in revenge and for fatissaction of the same, made the same lands to be er, tended by Thomas Pallew and others, tho by the kings processe extended part thereof to a treble bar lue, after which extent returned into the chancerie, the king feised the manour of Bernefgraue, Boles foure, Strattondale in Porton , & left in his hands the manours of Lierton, Diwardbecke, Cundoner, Womfeld, and Wigutton, whereof the faid Penrie died leized. Two yeares before which grant of the Lines before faid to this Henric, to wit, in the twentith years of Penrie the third, the said Penrie Bas flings made his petition to ferne in the pantre (as he was bound by tenure) at the coronation of euc rie prince, the record whereof in the ancient written bake of the earls of Huntington, is in these words

The record by which Henrie Hastings executed the office of the panteller.

V Icelimo Henr tertij quo coronata fuit regina Elionara filia Hugonis comitis Prouincia apud Westm. fact a funt contentiones magna de feruitifs ministralibus, & de iuribus pertinentibus ad eorum ministeria, fed respectuatur, iuribus singulis saluus, vit tumultus requice ceret vise, ad quindena Pascha sequictis, & c. Et Henricus de Hassinges, cuius officium serviendi de mappis à veteri vendicauit officiu illud, & habuit. Nam quamuis Thur stanus vendicauit officium illud, assernas suum esse debere à veteri, tamen rex repulsat, & admisit Henricum de Hastinges, ea die assernas eisdem diem de contentione sinienda ad pradiction terminum. Extractas verò post prandium mappas tanquam suas ad officium pertinentes recepit.

This Henrie had by Ava his wife, his sonnes heire Henrie Hallings, from thome Buchanan doth fair that Henrie Hallings now earle of Penhioke is descended, thereof I will not now have dispute.

Benrie Baffings knight, fonne of Benrie, affer the death of his father, finding himfelfe greened that the inheritance, with thould have descended buto him from his mother, was so withholoen from him for the offense of his father, contrarie to law and in frice, and without judgement, but by the kings power er, purfued a bill against the king, therby to have re. medic and restitution, for the supposed false returne of the extent which was made against his father; and bpon the fame bill, this Benrie Baffingsobteined a new weit to make a fresh ertent directed to maiffer Thomas of Minundham, Robert de la Laic, Ro. bert de Solham, Bugh Perche, & Momas de Braie, to biderstand if the remnant of the lands to him def cended, believe that by the king extended, would countervaile the value of such lands as he should have by descent from and of the earle and earledome of The ffer, which matter never being ended in histime, was afterward profecuted of the Haftings from parlement to parlement, butill the thirtie fourth yeare of Coward the first, as more plainelie thall after appeare, Dfthis Denrie, Hollingshed intreateth much in the reigne of Henrie the third: this man (being he that in the time of Coward the first, made title to the crowne of Scotland) maried Jone one of the daugh ters of William Cantulpe logo of Aburgauenie, in the right of Eua, one of the daughters and heires of William Bewla oz Bzewcula, foz I find both with ten, of which Jone this Henrie had iffue John Haflingshis sonne and heire, Comund which maried Ilabell, that great polletions in Wales: Adafirit maried to Robert de Champane: Loza maried to fir Thomas the sonne of ar John de Latimer, and Jone which was a nun at Potingham.

John Halfings knight, fonne of the last Henric, was borne at Alleghe, in the parc of our Lord 1 262, and in the fir + fortith years of the reigns of Henrie the third. This man after his fathers death old (in the yeare of our Loid 1274, and the fecond yeare of the reigne of Coward the first, being the kings 60 ward) demand the execution of his office of the pantrie, at the coronation of quæne Elianor wife to Coward the first, but could not execute the same by reason of his nonage, and also for that he was in ward to the fatoking. After, when he was growne to full yeares, there arose in the years of our Lord 1305, and in the thirtie third yeare of the reigne of Edward the first, great contention betweene Antonic Beake bithop of Durham, this John Hallings, John Balioll, and Robert Baufe, for the manors of Penrith, Cattlesoure, Salgkill regis, Lange Worth bie, Carlaton, and of Werkine Tinehale, whereof Henrie king of Scots (kinsman of the said Robert Brufe, John Balfoll, and John Haffings, whose heire they were) died feized in his demelne of fæ. In mid

An.Reg.13. ninch lutes affer manie belaics made, and manie funmons against the faid bishop, the piece went with out daie, bicause the bishop must go to Kome. But after his returne the fute being revined and continu ed, it went once more without date, bicause the king fesco the fame into his hands, and held it all the time of his reigite. Chefe things thus done, and Edward the first departed, this John Hastings as pet not have the to renew his lute of the land, but rather to crecutchis right of the pantrie, did in the first yeare of Coward the fecond, demand the erecuting of that of fice, at the coronation of the faid Coward the fecond and Nabell his wife at Westminster, with he obteined, and laid the clothes and napkins in the great hall by him and other his knights, one the tables thereat the king, the quene, and other great fates foodlo dine, which (according as I have forme noted) was in this fort.

> The order and number of clothes laied 20 at the kings table, and how Ichn Hastings had them for his fee.

D altam sedem ipsius regis tres mappas, & Juper alias mensas in eadem A aula 28 mappas, unde qualibet pecia continebat 4, & in parua aula coram regina, & alibi in illa parua aula 14, quavu qualibet pecia continebat 3 . Et dum fuerut ad comestum, mappas per se & suos custodiebat, & pest comestum illas trahebat, & deferre faciebat fernientes ad ferniendum, & istas cum suis loquelis habebat sine voluntate vel cum voluntate, & eas detinebat per totum festum coronationis, licèt petitaerant deliberatione, primo à senescallo regis, postea ab ipsorege, per quod idem rex precepit dominoWilliclino Marin, & alys senescallis suis, quòdplenam& celerem insticiam ei facerent, & deliberationem de mappis prædictis si fuerit faci-40 endum. Qui inde postea nihil facere voluerunt, aut non curauerunt toto festo coronationis pradicta, nec postea in congregationibus. Per qued posteadominus Iohannes de Hastings fecit petitiones suas domino regi, & concilio suo, quòd feodum suum mapparum prædictarum ei deliberaretur , pro vtei de iure fuerit deliberandum. Et quòdfecit seruttium suum debito modo, prout antecessor suus fecit longo tempore Henrici regis , quando habuit feedum suum, tempore quado desponsauit Elionaram filiam comitis Provincia, tanquam pertinens ad manerium suum de Asheley in comitatu North pro ut patet in Memorandum ipsius regis in camero suo de seaccario dinersis locis in istis

* Williame de Hastinges tient demye see de chiualer in Albdey dursy a fayre le service per seriante deessree panetre le roje, which is found in the fourth leafe of Chether beginning, Le counte Roger le Bigot, in the title of cliptes of seriantie in the countre of Porthfolke. Couching which it is thus further found in the same place. : Henrie de Haftingstient en Asheley du roye per sogiaate de la panetre, fo. Syesme . 🔅 Henrie de Hastings tient un seriante de la panetre le roy en Asheley, O vaute per an G fol fol.9. & Williame de Hastings tient un fee de chitaler en Afreley seriante deestree despenser en le des spons levoy so. 4. 2: Henriede Hastings tient un terr en la videde Asheley per le service deestree le despenser.

Which petitions and all other petitions for his part of his land in the kings hands, by the censure made in the time of Penrie the 3, the fair John Pastings lood of Aburgauentate did purfue from parlement to warlement, butill the parlement holden at Postic alcer Wichaelmas, there suplication was made to the king, by him and others, that he might remaine with the king in Galcoigne, as his fectuare or marshall: which if he would performe, all his forfait per titions and all other petitions which were reasonable, thould be granted but him. By occasion whereof he granted buto the kings and the nobles request: fo that the king would find him pleages due therefore, and that he might obteine infice in his inheritances, and those his lawfull futes, which had beene hitherto denied but him, which thing the king faithfullie promiled in enerie respect to be performed towards him: therebpon he failed into Gascoigne, in the yeare of Chaiff 1302, being the 31 of Edward the first, the wednesdate after the scalt of S. Lucie. But for this faire thew, it fæmeth he sped neuer the better : for which cause not being restored in the 34 years of Co= ward the first, he pursued his sute afresh, and had from the king at Booke this definitive fentence, delinered by the mouth of Walter Langhton, then the kings treasured (as I find by such notes as I have fone) that he should sike the records of the chance rie, and bying them to the next parlement, which the faid John did. At what time he brought forth the for mer grant of Denrie the third, of the faid lands giv uen in recompense of his part of the earledome of Chefter. After which pet it was agreed by the king and his counsell for diverte confiderations (and mothe lie (as Flupole) because he had resuled to serve in Galcoigne, and onelie went as it were inforced not withfranding all that the faid John could alledge, that he Moule take nothing for his petition, but fur ther to be in the kings mercie for his falle claime: the whole processe whereof I have some in an ancient watten monument of French. All Wich (as I gatherewas done in the life of Edward the first (not withstanding that I have a little vnozderlie before treated of the executing of his office of the pantrie at the coronation of Coward the fecond, some to Coward the first) as may be confirmed by Piers Longtoft in these verses:

Et pour peril escheuer toutz apres promist Ke Iean de Hastin cheualier e lit Emerie de la Bret barone ne pas petit Alant in Gascoigne touz sans contredit Pour la terme attendue del trevis quant dit.

This John married two wives both called Isabelt, thereof the first was Isabell of Clalence, one of the vaughters and heirs of William Halence earle of Denbroke + lord of Aburganennie, but how the faid Mil. Malence came to the honor of Aburgauennie, fince William Cantelupe before named was once loed thereof, and much about that time, I can not yet certeinlie learne. But pet I following god authori Registrum comitie have fet downe this Malence to be lood of Abur tion de Huntinggauennie, 4th at he gave the fame to one John Hai ton. flings, which must needs be this man, mariting his daughter. The other wife of this John Hallings, was Isabell the daughter of Hugh Spenser carle of Mucheffer. By his first wife he had fir children, to wit, John Hallings his beire, William Hallings that maried Eliano: the daughter of fir William Martin, which died without heires; Penrie Hallings that was a clerke, and Clizabeth Halfings maried to Roger Greie lozd of Buthine sonne of fir John Breie, of whom is descended Genrie earle of Bent now lining. Jone maried to Comund Postimer, by thom the had no iffue, being after maried to With liam be Huntingfield, by thom the had Roger de Duntingficlo: and Margaret Hallings maried to William the sonne of William Partin lood of Remmies. By Habell Spenfer his fecond wife he had thick children, to wit, High Pattings loot of Folltot, Folliet, of whom thall be more intreated, when we come to the last John Hastings erle of Penbioke flaine at tilt, as before. Thomas Haftings, and De lagia de Quntington. Die firft wife Jabell Walence died 1305, being the 31 of Edward the first, and was buried at the frier minoes in Couentrie. this fecond wife overliving hir hulband, was after maried to fir Rafe Donthermer, for which mariage the faid Kale was fined by Coward the fecond at a thousand marks, as appeareth in the rols of the chancerie of 13 of Coward the fecond: the died the 9 of Coward the third, a was buried in the frier minoss of Salisburic. This John Hallings departed this life 1313, the firt yeare of the reigne of Coward the John Hallings loed Hallings and Aburgauennie, was borne in the fifteenth yeare of Coward the first, in the reare of Chailf 1 287. Hoz at the death of his father, witch happened (as before) in the firt peare of fir twentic years, which if it be added to the yeare of our Lord 1287, make by the full number of 1313, in which his father died. This man in the eight yeare of Edward the fecond at the parlement holden at Low don in the Carmelite friers, being about the yeare from the birth of Thist 1314, renewing the fute to the king (after the death of Antonie Beke bishop of Durham, which happened in the yeare of our Load 1310) for the lands, whereof his father had the faid billyop in late, and which were after feized into the 30 kings hands, as before appeareth, in the life of his father. It was then found opon fearth, that fir John Ballioli (tho was partie to the fato fute before) had the realine of Scotland by award: by reason of certeine lands that he gaue to fir Antonie de Beke the bishop of Durham: for which cause it sæmed king Coward the first leized the fame lands into his hands as forfeit to him, in that they were after the maner of a bathe given to the faid bilhop, to support the sute crowne of Scotland. And for that cause this John Hallings was counselled by such as willed him well, that he Chould furceaste his fute, and so he did. This John Haftings maried Julian the daughter of Thomas lood Leiburne the fonne of William lood Leiburne, and had by hir Laurence de Haffings : after which this John Hallings died in the eighteinth peare of Edward the fecond, and in the yeare of our Lood 1325. His wife Julian lined manie pærs after, and furrendzed hir life in the fortie one yeare of Bo. 50 ward the third, and in the years of our Load 1366.

Laurence Haffings lood Haffings and Aburga, uennie, was also afferivard earle of Penbroke, he was borne about the thirteenth years of Coward the fecond, being also about the yeare of our redemption 1320: which is proceed by this, that the faid Laurence was five yeares old at the death of his father, which (as before is faid) happened in the yeare 1325, and in the eighteenth of Coward the fecond, at what time he was feized as the kings ward, and committed to 60 the government of tutoes, appointed him by the laid Edward the fecond. This Laurence Hallings for the nobilitie of his race, the activitie of him felfe, the largenesse of his possessions, and his familiaritie with the king, was created earle of Penbioke, a bout the one and thirtish years of the reigns of king Coward the third. He maried Anne og Agnes the third daughter of fir Roger Postimer the first earle of Harch, by whom he had iffice John Hallings.

John Hallings earle of Penbroke loed Hallings Aburgauennie and Weiffood in Ireland, the fonne of Laurence Halfings the first earle of Penbroke of that name, did in the fortie one yeare of Coward the third, being about the years of our Lord 1369, infeoffe diverte persons of the manoz of Lidgate in Suffolke, of which towne was John Libgate the monke of Berie and famous poet of England furnamed. After which in the fortic fir years of Colvard the third, and in the years of our Lood 1371, when the Frenchmen besieger Rochell, he was fent with an armie of men to the rescue of the same. But being fet boon by the Spanish naute in the hauen of tiothell, they flue and toke manic of the English, burnt their naule, and carred the earle with fundate other priloners into Spaine; where this earle a long time remained puloner. Which milfortune was inflic suposed to have fallen opon him, because he was a man of cuill life, given greatlie to lecherie, an infinger of the liberties of the church, and a perfuader of the king that he thould (for his warres) more gries noufficerat manie sublivies and contributions byon the clergie than boon the laitie. Affer that he had bene long paloner in Spaine (by the space almost Edward the fecond, he was found to be of the age of 20 of the yeares)he was ranfomed for a great fumme of monie by Bertram Cleikine, and died (as I conteaure by fome fufficient profe) betweene parisand Calis, as he came into England, in the fortie ninth peare of Coward the third, in the years of our Lord 1374: so that he never fullie paico his ransome. He had two wines, Pargaret the daughter of Coward the third, Anne the daughter of fir Walter Pannie and of Pargaret Segrane made dutcheffe of Porth folke in the time of Kichard the second: but when he maried these wines, I can not certeinlie find. And in the earle of Bents bake (which treateth of the contention of the Halfings and the Greics, for bear ring of the armes of Halfings) there is no mention made (as farre as my memorie ferueth) of the faid Pargaret; the reason whereof Tsuppose to be, so, that this John Haftings had no iffue by hir : and that boke onclie ferued to conneie a lineall descent from the Hallings to intitle the Greics. This John Hav ffings had by his fecond wife (Anne) a sonne called of the faid John Baltoll for the obteining of the 40 John Haftings, which after fucceded his father in all his inheritances.

But befoze I faie ante moze of the Haffings, I thinke it not amille to give fome warning of an erro? in Polydor of Vrbin, waiting that Anne the countelle of Penbroke (wife to this man, for none of the earles of Penbrokes had anie wife to named with in the compatte of pears therein Polydor appointeth this time) descended of a noble house of S. Paule in France, awoman of great vertue, and a louer of learning and of learned men, founded a house in Cambridge, to this bate called Penbroke hall: which in truth was not builded by hir, but by Parie the wife of Odomare or Aimer de Talence earle of Denbroke, who was flaine at tilt in the one a twentie yeare of Coward the third, in the yeare of our Loid 1374: which was thirtie feaven yeares before the death of this John Haffings earle of Penboke: which Parie was in verie deve the daughter of Guie earle of S. Paule, the kinfwoman of Coward the third, and a French woman. This woman being in one date (+ that the date of hir martage) a maid, a wife, & a widow(hir hulband being that day flaine at tilf) did in hir widowhod (in the one & twentith years of Edward the 3, in the yeare of our Lord 1374) erect that house in Cambridge upon hir owne ground, and appointed the same to be called the hall of Parie Ta lence, or penbroke hall : by meanes thereof it was long affer called Aula Valentia Maria.

Pow to returne (where I left) to the last wife of this John Haftings called Anne, the (after the death of hir hulband) did at the coronation of Richard the fecond, in the yeare of Chatte 1 382, being about the fift years of the reigns of the faid Richard, fue by petition to crecute by hir deputie the office of the panteler by reason of the mands of Athley, which the has odd hir cointure, whereinto the was admitted, the hir deputie fir Thomas Wount knight did performe the same: as this record doubt restifie, in which is set both hir petitions, and the sudgement thereof in this founc.

The record whereby dame Anne Hastings clameth she office of the pantrie.

le duc de Lancast. & senescall d'Angliter supplie Anne que fuit le femme Iohn de Hastinges nadgares countie de Penbroke, qui come le mannor de Asheley in le com. de Northfolke soit tenens de nostre seigneur le roy par le seruice de faire le office denapperie al coronement le roy, quel mannor soel tient en dower del dowement son dit baron. Ore plest luy accepter del faire son office person deputie, a cestie coronement nostre seigneur le roye, pernant les fees du dit office ceastascauoir les nappes quant il sont sustreytz. Et quia post ostensionem verisimilium euidentiarum & rationum ipsius Anna, ac proclamationem in curia prædicta debitè factam, in hac parte nullus huiusmodi clamor ipsius 30 Anna contradixit : consider at um fuit quòd ipsa ad officium pradictum per sufficientem deputatum suum faciendum admitteretur, & sic officium illud per Thomam Blunt militem, quem ad hoc deputauit, dicto die coronationis in omnibus perfecit, & peracto prandio mappas de mensis subtractis pro feodo suo recepit.

Thus this much touching this John Hallings earle of Penbroke and dame Anne Mannie his wife. John hallings (the sonne of John Hallings last recited) was earle of Penbroke lord Haffings Aburgauennic i Meisson, who being verie youg at the time of his fathers death, was ward first to Coward the third, and then to Richard the second, but never fawhisfull age of one and twentie yeares, no; ever possessed the lands wherebut o he was borne; for not long after that he had married Philip the fecond baughter of Comund Postimer (earle of Parch Illster and lood of Migmoze) he was [about the nines tenth yeare of his age, the fifteenth yeare of king Rithard the second, and the yeare of our redemption 1391, being a youthfull and luftie young gentleman (but tender and flender) in the Christmaste time, when the la held that feat at Mooftoke in Drfoedhire willing to learne to inst, wher byon in the parke then incountring with a knight called John faint John (a valiant and front person) he was slaine when they rantogither, as the faid knight did cast his speace 60 from him, and so the said earle receiving this manner of death, no man knew whether it happened by mile hapoz of purpole. To which John Hallings now flaine, Pargaret Segraue ducheffe of Porthfollie his grandmother (by his mother the daughter of Ar Walter Mannie) was executrix and disposer of all his substance. After his death, his widow the ladie thilip was married to Richardearle of Arundell, Caffer that to John lood faint John, being the fame man (as I lumole) which flue hir first hulband this John Pallings. But here before the death of this John I must not forget, that though he were within age at the coronation of Richard the second, as not being past nine of ten yeares old; he sued to crecute at the fair coronation, the offices which his ancestors had afore performed. But bicause his mother had the mannor of Alpley in dower(as is before expressed) he did not sue to secure in the pantrie, but leaving that, demanded the earsens of the second swood and the golden spurs before the king. The records of both which I have here set downe.

The petition for the fecond fword which the earle of Arundell also claimed to beare, was in this fort.

duc de Lancastre & seneschall d'An-gleterre, Iohn sitz & heyre Iohn de Hastinges counte de Penbroke, que come il tient le Chaftell de la ville de Tynbye, le grange de Kingswood, le .co-20 mote de Craytrath, le mannor de Chastell Martin, & le mannor de Traygaire per seruice de porter le second espee deuant le roy a son coronement : qui pleast a luy, accepter a son dit office a faire ore a ceste coronement. Et super hoc Richardus comes Arundell & Surrey exhibuit in curia quandă aliampetitione in hac verba. A roy de Chastell & de Lion duc de Lancastre & senescall d'Angleterre, supplie Richard counte de Arundell & Surrey, de luy receuer afaire son office, a porter le secondespee deuant le roy ore a son coronement, que luy appertient de droit pur le countie de Surrêy. Quibus petitionibus intellectis & auditis, & hine inde dictorum tomitum rationibus, pro eo quod dictus tohannes comes Penbrochia (qui infra atate in cuftodiaregis existit) oftendit curia meliores & verisimiliores rationes pro se, quàm pradictus comes Arundell pro ipso monstrauit. Dominus rex declarata coram eo materia prædicta, præcepit Edmundo comiti mariscallo, quòd ipse gladium predictum istă vice în nomine iure predicti comitis Penbro-chia deferret, saluo iure alterius cuiuscung. Qui quidem mariscallus gladium illum ex hac causa die coronationis gestabat calcaribus deauratis.

The other bill exhibited for the golden spurs, is registred in this order.

Ohannes filius & hares Iohannis de Haftings nuper comitis Pébrochia exhibuit in curia quandam petitionem in hac verba. A treshoner seigneur le roy de Chastell, & c. Et seneschall d'Angsterre, supplie Iohne fitze heyre Iohne Hastings nadgares counte de Penbroke, de estre receue a son office de porter les grandes esperon, d'oores deuant le roy nostre seigneur ore a son coronement, en mannor come William le marischall son ancester les porta il coronoment de roy. Edw. audita & intellecta billa prædicta,pro eo quod Iohannes est infra ætatem & in custodia domini regis, quanquam sufficientes ostendit curia recorda & euidetias, quòd ipse seruitium prædictum de iure facere deberet; consideratum extitit, quòd esset ad voluntatem regis, quis dictum seruitium ista vice in iure ipsius Iohannis faceret. Et super hoc rex assignabat Edmundum comité mariscallum, ad deferédum dicto die coronationis pradicta calcaria in iure ipsius haredis, Saluo iure alterius cuiuscunque, & sic idem comes mariscallus illa calcaria pradicta in dicto die coronationis coramipso domino rege deferebat.

In this John Halfings ended all the honozable ti tles of the Hallings, bicaufe this man dieng without issue, his inheritances were dispersed to diverse persons, so, the honour of Penbroke came to Frans cis at court by the kings gift, the baronies of ha Aings and Weilford came to Reinold Greie of Kuthine, the baronie of Aburgauennie was granted to William Beauchampe of Bedford: for all which lands, and for the bearing of the armes of this same John Hallings without difference, great contentio on grew betweene ar Coward Hallings knight (belcended of Jlabell Spenfer) and Reinold Greie load Greie of Ruthine, fonne of Reinold Greie, fonne of Roger Breie, that married Blizabeth daughter of Habell Malence, for both the fait lord Greie and fir Coward Haffings were descended by two benters (as partie before and partie hereafter thalbe thew, co) from one man John Hallings, hulband to both faid Ifabels. Forthe explanation thereof, and lines all pescent to conucie the faid fir Coward Hallings 2 from the laid John Pallings, first load of Aburgauennie of that furname; I must here repeat a little of that which I have alreadic written : which is, that the faid John Baltings first load of Aburgauennie, having two wives, both Jlabels, by his firff wife Jlabell Malence had Elijabeth maried to Roger Breie, and by his fecond wife Ifabell Spenfer, he had iffue fir Bugh Paffings knight, from thome we are to ocouce the fato fir Coward Haffings in this fort. Hugh Haffings knight lood of Folliot (in the right 3 of his wife) being sonne of the second wombe of Ilas bell Spenfer, and John Hallings fonne of Henrie Haffings married Pargerie the daughter and heire of fir Richard Folliot, by whom he came to be land of Folliot, and alwaies bare the armes of Hallings with a difference of a fecond brother of a fecond bens ter. This marriage was procured and made by Ilabell his mother, who purchased the said ward for him. This Dugh vied in the yeare of Chaff 1 3 4 7, in the one and twentith years of Coward the third, and 40 was buried in the church of Elling, in Elling in Porthfolke which he builded; his wife Pargerie died in the yeare 1349, being the thie and twentith yeare of Coward the third, and was buried in the chappell of Fornewell. This Hugh had issue by his wife Hugh Hallings his heire, and a daughter married to fir Robert de la Pare.

Hugh Hastings knight, the sonne of Hugh and Pargerie Folliot did marric the daughter of Adam oc Eueringham, by whom he had Hugh Hallings 50 his forme and heire, and two daughters, the one married to Wlinkfield, and the other to a knight called Elmham. This Hugh died at Calkewelhell o; Owines, and was buried in the friers of Doncaffer, in the yeare of our Lord 1369, about the foure & for tith piere of Coward the third. This man for him and his heires in difference from the other Waltings, earles of Penkroke his kinfmen by the halfe blod, bid beare the Hallings armes with the labell, quartered with the armes of Folliot. Hugh Haftings 6 knight the sonne of Hugh and Pargaret Guering. ham married Anne the daughter of Coward Spenfer earle of Glocester, by whom he had issue Bugh Hastings and Coward Hastings, which contended with Reinold Greie lood of Ruthine. This Bugh toke his pilgrimage to Jerufalem & died in Spaine, affer thole death dame Anne Spenfer his wife was maried to Thomas lord Dorleie. Bugh Daffings eldelf fon of Hugh Haffings and dame Anne Speni fer, married the daughter of fir Will. Blunt knight; this Bugh died at Calis at the mariage of Richard the second, to Isabell the daughter of the king of France, about the 19 years of the reigns of the lato Richard, being the years of our redemption 1395, tho vieng without iffue, all his right and title came to his brother Coward.

Coward Pattings knight brother of the latt Bugh began the contention with Keinold Greie lood of Kuthine, for the right of the lands, honors, and armes mithout difference of the last John Pallings carle of Penbroke. This fute began about the eight yeare of Denrie the fourth, and continued at least butill the fift yeare of Penrie the fift, if not longer; but in the end (notwithstanding manie falle pedegres count terfetted by this Pastings, and his bucke Henric bishop of Pozwich, one of the house of the Spensers) pet it was adjudged against the faid fir Coward hav flings in the marthals court, that the lands, honors, and armes without difference, as the last John Ba flings earle of Penbioke old beare them, with the armes of Milliam Malence carle of Penbroke. Mould be onelie borne by the faid lord Breie of Ruthine and his heires, as being of the whole blod, and nert heire to the faid last John Hastings earle of Denbroke : and that the faid Coward Hallings Mould otterlie be barred to beare the armes of ha flings, but quartered with the armes of Folliot, as onelie bescending of the halfe blood to the said last earle of Penbroke of that name. And that all other pedegres that fo eucr(ercept this) are falle, and of purpose contriued, as appeareth by a notable boke and monument thereof remaining in the bands of Denrie Breie now earle of Bent (descended of the faid Reinold Breie of Ruthine) conteining all the proceffe, eraminations, witneffes, pedegræs & indge ments thereof, more plainelis maie apeare. In which contention there was thewed a matter by the pepolition of fir William Ho knight not bnworthie to be remembred (though it touch not the Hallings) concerning armozie and bearing of differences in armes, which was, that the faid fir William faid on his oth in the tenth peare of Penrie the fourth, that before the times of Edward the third, the labell of the points was the different appropriat and appurtenant for the cognizance of the next beire; but the fame king made his fons to beare the entire armes with labels of the points, with certaine differences in the fato labels, to be known the one from the o ther, except his sonne the duke of Blocester, who bare a border about the armes of France and England. And thus, this much Francis Thin touching the name of Hallings.

In this yeare Thomas earle of Lancalter, for the opinion which had beene conceined of him, by reason The unit of miracles and other respects, was canonized for a Lancalant faint . The mondate nert affer the feat of faint 196, font larie, a parlement was begun at Welfminster, in fami, which there was a bill erhibited by the commons, 3 bill again that the loads and great men of the realme thould wearing a not give to their men badges to weare as their cog. badges. nizances; by reason that through the abuse thereof, manie great oppettions, imbraferies, bulawfull maintenances, and wrongs were practice, to the hin berance of all god orders, laives, and inflice. The loods would not confent altogither to laie downe former their badges; but yet they agreed that none should badges to treat any luck cognizance except their forwards of boulded. houthold, and fuch as were in ordinarie wages by the yeare. In the fame parlement, certeine persons that had gone about some new rebellion in Bent, being appehended, were condemned, and so were dialone and hanged. There was also an act made against such as should passe the leas, to purchase proutions (as they termed them) in any durch or thur do, he should be reputed and taken as a rebell. Also and there was an advanced thes. And if any from thenceforth attempted to to there was an act provided against those that come wildling mitten and provided against those that come wildling mitted any wilfull murder, that none thould prefume orms.

An. Reg. 12,14. to luc for their pardon. A duke or an archbilhop that fo fued, thould forfeit to the king an hundred pounds. Likewise an earle of a bishop, an hundred marks, tc. Hogeoner, in this parlement it was granted, that the king should have of everie sacke of woll fortie hillings, of the which ten Chillings Chould be applied presentlie to the kings vies, and thirtie Chillings resi ous of the fourtie Hillings Hould remaine in the hands of the treasuroes, towards the bearing forth of the tharges of wars when any chanced. Allo there was a subsidie granted of sir pence in the pound, foure pence to the ble last mentioned, and two pence to be imploied at the kings pleasure. In the same parlement, John duke of Lancaster was created onke of Aquitaine, receiving at the kings hand the rod and cap, as investures of that dignitie. Also the duke of Poske his sonne and heire was created earle of Rutland. In the fift of Parch a loze and terrible wind rose, with the violence inhereof, much hurt was done, houses ouer theolone, cattell deffroied, and tres 20 onerturned. After this infued great moztalitie by peffilence, so that much youth died everie where, in citics and townes, in palling great numbers. Here-Guat bearth, with followed a great dearth of come, so that a buthell of wheat in some places was fold at thirtiene pence, A.H. out of which was thought to be at a great price. About Head Maight the feath of S. Peter ad Vincula, John duke of Land caffer caused a great meeting of the nobles and peres of the realme to hunt at Leiceffer in the fors rest and all the parkes there to him apperteining. On 30 the faturdate the king and quene were prefent, the archishop of Booke, the duke of Pooke, Momas Modfoke duke of Gloceffer, the earle of Arundell John of Holland, the earle of Huntington, with o ther bilhops, lords and ladies a great manie, and on thursdaic next following the king departing from thence towards Potingham lotourned with the load of Beaumont belides Loughborrow. Lionente a:

Lancafter

Jantaine.

Steat tem

Leicefter

3 rotali hun:

ting.

made duke of

In this thirteenth yeare of king Richards reigne, the chistians toke in hand a fournte against the Sai 4 racens of Barbarie, through fute of the Genowais, fothat there went a great number of loads, knights, and gentlemen of France and England, the duke of Burbon being their generall. Dut of England there went one John de Beaufort bastard son to the duke of Lancaster (as Froisfard hath noted) also fir John Ruffell, fir John Butler and others. They fet forward in the latter end of this thirteenth yeare, and came to Genoa, where they remained not long, but that the die to passe them oner into Barbarte. And so about Piolummer in the beginning of the fourteenth yeare of this kings reigne, the whole armie being imbar. the English of this alongs religive, we assess of Barbarie, there within any ked, falled footh to the coasts of Barbarie, there neare to the citie of Affrike they landed, at which infant the English archers (as some write) stood all the companie in god fread, with their long bowes, beat ting backe the entimes from the those, which came bowne to reaft their landing.

After they had got to land, they inuironed the cir 60 tie of Affrike (called by the mozes Wahemedia) with a Grong fiege: but at length confrained with the intemperancie of the feating gire in that hot cours tric, breeding in the armie fundrie difeales, they fell to a composition byon certaine articles to be performed in the behalfe of the Saracens, and fo 61 daics affer their first arrivall there, they toke the seas a gaine, a returned home, as in the histories of France and Italic is likewise expected. Where, by Polydor Virgilit may feme, that the losd Henrie of Lancafer earle of Derbie, Hould be capteine of the Eng. lish men, that (as before ye have heard) went into Barbaric with the Frenchmen, and Genowais. It hould otherwise amears by other writers, tho affirme that the faid earle made a fournie in deed the same time against the miscreauts, not into Barba, Thom. Wall. rie, but into Prutzenland, übere he fhewed god Sche carle of viole of his noble and valiant courses for initial Derbie his profe of his noble and valiant courage : for toining exploits in with the matters and knights of the Dutch order his journie there, the armie of the Lithuanians that came a against the gainst the salo order was vanquished, and source insidels of thicfe leaders of the Lithuanians were taken pails ners, thee other being flaine, with thee hundeed of their thiefest and best approved solviers. Through the policie also and worthie manhoo of the earle of Deri bie, there was a certeine citie taken, where the faid earle and his men first entring bpon the walles, did fet by his banner: other being Couthfull, or at the leaft bulkilfull bow to deale in fuch exploits. There were taken and flaine foure thouland of the common people, and amongs them that were found dead, the king of Polognies brother was one. The castell of the same citie was belieged fine weekes space : but by reason of sickenesse and such instrmities as chanced in the armie, the matters of Pautzen, and Life, land would not tarie any longer, but brake up their fiege and returned. The mafter of Lifeland led with him into his countrie thee thouland pelloners.

In the meane time, whilest the christians were thus occupied, as well against the infidels in Barbaric, as in the east parts towards Littaine, a rotall insts and martiall turnament was proclaimed to be hole a roiall infis den within Smithfield in London, to begin on fun: boiden in Daie nert after the featt of faint Dichaell . And bis Smithfield cause this triumphant pastime was publiched, not at London. onelie in England, but alfo in Scotland, in Almaine, in Flanders, in Babant, in Beinault, in France, manie Arangers came hither fouth of diverle countries, namelie Maleran erle of faint Paule, that had married king Kichards lifter the ladie Pauld De Courtnie, and William the young erle of Diferuant, fonne to Albert de Bauiere earle of Holland and Peinault . At the daie appointed, when all things inere prepared, there issued forth of the tower about the of the clocke in the after none firtie courlers awarelled for the infles, and bpon enerte one an elquier of honoz, riding a loft pace. Then came footh foure and twentie ladies of honour (the lease faith of the manner Froiffard)mounted on palfries, riding on the one lide smithfield. richlie apparelled, and eneric lavie led a knight with a chaine of gold . Those knights being on the kings part, had their armor and apparell garnified with white hearts and crownes of gold about their necks, Silner faith gallies and other bellels of the Genowais were reas 50 and to they cameriding through the Arets of Lone Froisfard. don onto Smithfield, with a great number of trunv pets and other infruments before them.

The king and the queene, with manie other great states were readie placed in chambers richlie adoze ned to fee the infis: and when the ladies that led the knights, were come to the place, they were taken downe from their palfries, and went by into chambers readie prepared for them . Then alighted the esquires of honoz from their coursers, a the knights in good order mounted byon them. And to when their belinets were fet on their heads, and that they were redie in all points, after proclamations made by the beraults, the futs began , and manie commendable courses were run, to the great pleasure, comfort, and recreation of the king, the queene, and all other the beholvers. The prife that date on the answerers part was given to the earle of faint Paule; and on the chas lengers lide, to the earle of Huntington . On the mondate, the king himfelfe, with dukes, earls, lords, and knights, came to the fulfs, he bring theefe of the inner part. That daic the prife was given to the erle of Diferuant, for the best ower of the otter part: and of the inner part, to a knight of England called fir Hugh Spenfer . On the tuefdate , all manner of es

Aasi.

Pautzenland.

The king keptopë hous fhold in the Boling Qd od church.

The duke of featteth the ftrangers.

squiers infect, and like wife on the wednesday all ma. ner of knights and esquires that would, on which daie was a fore and rude fulls, enduring till night. And so mante a noble course and other martiall feats were atchived in those foure daics, to the great contentation and pleasure of manie a young batches ter defirous to win fame, fallo highlie to the kings honour, tho by all that scason held his court in the bithops palace by Paules thurth, keeping open houthold for all honest persons that thither resorted, el. 10 uersarie ouersthew him to the ground: the behold bithopotion= peciallic cuerie night after the infis were ended, a right fumptuous and princelie fumer was prepared for the Arangers and other, and after lumer, the time was spent in danking and reuelling after the most The K. festeth courtlike maner. On the thursdaie, the king made a the Arangers. super to all the loods, knights, and gentlemen Aran. gers, and the quene to all the ladies and gentlewo. men. On the frivaie the duke of Lancaffer feaffed at dinner all the faid loads, knights, and gentlemen Arangers, in most sumptuous and plentiful maner. 20 rous horsemen, how they did tose, hoise by, and Du the faturdaie, the king and all the whole companie Departed from London unto Wlindloze, where new feating began, and speciallie the king did all the honour that might be demifed onto the earls of faint Paule and Offernant. The earle of Offernant, at the earnest request of the king, received of him the neder of the Barter, for the which he was euill thought of afterwards by his frænds, namelie the French king and others. Finallie, after the king had each man toke leave of the king, the quene, and the kings bucles, and other loads and ladies, and fo departed, the ftrangers into their owne countries, and other home to their houses, or whither they thought

Angl. prel. fub Rich. 2.

Abr. Fl. out of AThis folemne iufis or tomement being touched, og rather in ample maner deferibed by Ch. Okland, is revolted of him to have beine kept for admitte fake, and to fet the youth & luftie blouds of the court on worke, two other wife (bicause the king was yong 40 ternos. and loued to live in peace and cafe, feats of armes and warlike prowesse both abroad and at home languiffed and late as it were a fainting) through tole nells and want of exercise, degenerating and grow, ing out of kind from their wonted warlike valiant nelle Chould give themselves to filthie lecherie, riot, flepe loitering pallines, and flouthfulneffe, all which dogreatlic impaire prowelle. Therebpon (faith he) Rege prins de re confulto, ludicra diri

Martis opus fimulatum inter fe bella mouebant, Mig, dies totos viginti quattuor haslis Assumptis, studio statuunt decurrere fixo. Deinde idem numerus procerum pars primalacessens Mittit ad externas gentes qui talia pandant. Indus ab Angligenis mense exercebitur vno Haftscus. Vrbi harens * fabrorum dictus * agellus Extra Londini muros, spatiosus & amplus Est locus : hie stadium cursuris, certág, meta Ponitur buc veniant quacung es gente creati . Sanguine magnerum heroum. Certamine victor Qui fuerit, terris prosternens corpora plana; Aut plures hastas frangens, donabitur auri Multa vi scapiet quam pherma ditta dona Pramia virtutis, Richardo hac dante braban, O.c.

Haning thus described the place where the infis Mould be kept, with the rewards, and other circum-Chances; he foucheth the countries from whence the forcen nobilitie came, that thould bendertake triall of chivalric with these foure, and twentie challen gers: tho at the date appointed (faith he) came prans fing out of the Towns byon their great varoed hope fes through the broad freets, and their ladies of honor with them gozgionilie decked with bracelets, owe ches, cheines, iewels, spangles, and verte fumptuous attire: a goodie light for the people to behold. At last. when they were come to Smithfield, and althings readie, the trumpets founded to the exercise; and both parties, as well the English as the outlanoish theua liers ran togither, and tried their Arengths till thep did fweat and were tired, their hooffes panting and brateng with the violence of their bodilie motion, their flaues being craft in funder, fine op into the aire, and the broken focke or fampe hitting the ab ers with top of heart gaue a thout thereat, as great. lie delighted with the light. Then came the night and brake off the first vaies tornement. On the next daic when they should renew and fall afresh unto it as gaine, they thewed themselves in courage equall to their ancestors, and handled their matters so well, that they got them great renowme. The third date came, and the multitude of people Will gathered tout ther wondered at the right valiant decises the valor wind their speares, and with what force they wied their armes what courage appeared in their ffatelie horfes, and how the verie heavens rang with the ratling of their armoz, and the firokes given to and fro. Euerie daie brought with it his portion of pleas fore, both to the contenders, and to the beholders. When the time was expired of this tried chivalrie, necessarie occasion moved the king of England to fet his mind on other matters, fo that commending thus feasted the Arangers and others at Mindloze, 30 the prowesse of the outlandish lords, he bestowed by on them matile theines of gold, & loding them with other gifts of great valure, difimiled them into their countries . But the English challengers requirednothing but renowme for their reward, being allured onelie with the love of praise; and thus when thefe pallimes of chinalrie were quite ended, cueris man got him home to his owne house. Thus farre Christopher Okland, touching the description of this Hippomachia ludicra inter concertatores Anglos & ex-

Amballadors were fent from the Frenchking, 1391 buto the king of England, to make an overture of Thom. Wil peace to be had, and to indure for ever betwirt the Imballana two realmes of England and France, fith that by from the warre it was aparant inough, that neither realine, for a price could greatlie benefit it selfe, but rather soze inda malyes. mage either other, as afoze time it had come apar Froillad rantlie to passe. Therefore the matter being well confidered, both parts fæmed well affected towards 50 some good conclusion by treatie to be had of a full mo perfect peace. About the same time, by the king with the adulte of his councell, proclamation was made and published at London, that all beneficed mena biding in the court of Rome, being Englishmen Appodant borne, thould returne home into England before the that all England featt of S. Aicholas, under paine to forfeit all their inh bentialite benefices; and fuch as were not beneficed, under a months paine like infection. paine likewife limited. The Englishmen hearing in Englishmen fuch a thunder clap a farre off, fearing the blow, left 60 the popes court, and returned into their native foile.

The pope troubled with such a rumbling noise, Cheparts Sent in all has an abbat as his nuncio buto the king both bers of England, as well to understand the cause of this proclamation, as of Catutes denifed and made latelie in parlement against those that provided themselves of benefices in the court of Rome by the popes buis, which seemed not a little presudiciall to the church of Kome: in confideration thereof the faid nuncio res quired that the same statutes might be repealed and abolithed, to farre as they tended to the derogation of the church liberties: but if the same statutes were not abolithed, the pope might not (faidhis nuncio) ivity a fafe confeience other wife do than proceed a gains them that made those fratutes, in such order as the canons div amoint. Poseouer the laid nuncto des clared to the king certeine dangerous practifes bes twirt the antipape and the French king, as to make the duke of Couraine the French kings brother king of Tuscane and Lombardie, and to establish the duke of Anion in the kingdome of Sicile.

"Smithfield, "

An.Reg.14,15.

Che popes cincio ope

Canclo-

sporeoucr, he gave the king to bnder fand, that if the French king might compatte by the antipapes meanes to be cholen emperour, he would feeke to be frich hings king of England chieflie in hand to provide against such practices in time. And as for the treatie of peace which the Frenchmen læmed to much to fauour, it was to none other end, but that bpon agreement once had , they might more convenientlie compate their purpose in the premisses. Furthermore the nuncio carnefflie befought the king of aid in the popes behalfe against the French king, if (as he threatned to do) he thould inuade him in Italie with open the nuncio, and after adulfe taken, appointed to faie till affer Dichaelmaffe, at what time a parlement was appointed to be affembled, wherein fuch things as he had proponed thould be weied and confidered, and some conclusion taken therein.

About this time of in the years 1391, according to As Flout of hone with the period of the peri no comon of fatute made against the church thurchmen; names lie, that no eccletiasticall person or persons should schill. possession pos fatherheighe, reuenues of rents whatfoeuer, at the hands of the feoffer, without the kings licence & the chiefe loads. Anothis statute extended it selfe, as well to parish, churches, chamels, chanteries, as abbeies, priories, sother monafteries that loeuer: like wife to citizens of cities, to farmers, & burgeffes, having luch rents or pollettions for the common profit. For men in those dates, that would bestow land or livelod byon thurth, fraternitie, or convent, and were not able for cost and charges to procure a mortmane, buder the 40 kings licence and chiefe loads; were want to feoffe fome speciall men, in whom they had confidence and truff; under whose name and title, churchmen, 02 anie other fraternitie og convent might intog the profit of the gift, and might have the commoditie thereof in policilion. And it was provided by that flatute, that all and everie as well persons ecclesiasticall as paris thioners, both citizens, burgeffes, and farmers, or a nic other what soener, having such rents, postessions, manois, or ante revenues what soever, in the hands 5 of luch fcoffers, without the licence of the king and thicfe loads; that either they Moulo obteine and get a licence of the king and the thiefe loods to make it a mortmaine, or else set such things to sale, a raise profit of them, on this five or before the feast of Dichael malie next inluing: 02 the laid feast being past and expired, that then the king and the chiefe loads, in things not ordered and disposed accordinglis, may enfer and feize upon the fame, and them have and holo at his and their pleasure.

About the fame time, the duke of Gloceffer went into Poutsenland, to the great gricke of the people, that made account of his departure, as if the funne had beene taken from the earth, doubting some mishap to follow to the common wealth by his absence, those presence they thought sufficient to stay all des triments that might chance, for in him the hope of the commons onclic rested. In his returne home, he was fore formented with rough weather and tempes fluous leas. At length he arrived in Porthumbers land, and came to the castell of Tinmouth, as to a fananarie knowen to him of old, where after he had refreshed him certeine daies, he twhe his tournie homewards to Plashie in Over, bringing no small toy for his fafe returne to all the kingdome. In the Anno Reg. 15. ninth of Julie the funne feemed darkened with cers teine groffe and euill fauozed clouds comming bethrist it and the earth, so as it appeared rudoie, but gave no light from none till the fetting thereof. And afterwards continuallie for the space of sir waks, as bout the middeft of the daie, clouds cuffomablie role, and fometimes they continued both daie and night, not vanishing awaie at all. At the same time, such ang the furpe oportech mans right, and therefore it food the to a mortalitie and death of people increased in Posthaling of England chiefle in hand to proute against follows: folke, and in manie other countries of England, that it seemed not bulike the season of the great pesti lence. In the citie of Popke there died eleven thou: A great death home from that charge, and created warden of the places. marches against Scotland, and Robert Powbrate was fent to Calis to be the kings lieutenant there.

fand within a thort space. I Penrie Persicearle of in yorke and Posthumberland lieutenant of Calis, was called fundzie other On friday nert after All foules day, the parlement a parlement force. The king fæmed to give favourable eare buto 20 began at London, in which the knights would in no at London, wife agree, that the statute made against spirituall men, for the proutoing themselves of benefices in the court of Rome Mould be repealed: but yet they as greo thus much, that it should be tollerated, so as with the kings licence such spirituall men might purchase to themselves such benefices till the next parlement. In this parlement aforfaid, there was Abr. Flout of granted but our load the king one tenth of the cler: Henrie Knighgie, and one fifteenth of the people towards the expension can seles of John duke of Lancaster, who in Lent next folder. become lowing went over into France to the citie of A She duke of mices for a finall peace betweene the kingdoms of Lancaster England and France: where the king of France amballacez met him with a thew of great pompe and honoz, son right honozas ding before him first of all to welcome him thither blie received the citizens of the same citie on horsebacke in a ver into France, rie great number. Then afterwards, he fent earles and barons a great manie to the same end, then his two vncles, last of all went the king himselfe to meet him, and faluting him called him by the name of The most worthie warrioz of all christendome, the inuincible worthinesse of the king onelie ercepted. And the duke had seauentene daies (by couenant) to compate this treatie of peace: at last he returned. having attendant opon him in his traine the bishop of Durham, and the sonne of the duke of Poske the earle of Kutland, with a thouland hordemen, fer footh in a wonderfull fumptuous fort with goodie farnis ture. Also conditionallie a whole tenth and a whole fifteenth were granted to him, if it chanced that he made anie tournie that yeare against the Scots. In this yeare, the duke of Gelderland fent to the Abr. Fl. out of king of England letters of commendation a paile, Henric Knight there also were provocations and fivrings up to Leicefler warre and warlike activitie, and to the exercise of above.

The tenor of the faid dukes letter to king Richard.

kinglie nablenesse, the tenoz whereof followeth:

Agnifice princeps, innata vobis probitas, & prudentum consilia (vt opinamur) simul agerent in officium, quòd fingula hæreditaria iura, quæ ex natalitio vestram magnificant regiam maiestatem, temporibus vestra discretionis altisima providentia munirentur illasa; et si quauis oppugnaret violentia, clypeo militari studeat regalis industria fortiter defendere sua iura. Et quod vestram regiam personam coting amus in affinitate, ni vetet Deus ipse, quin semper parati erimus vobis in vestris iuribus defendendis aßiftere cum duobus milibus lancearū, Aaaij.

quando

Gittelter his Corne into Pint3:n The onite of Olecefter in he thehe comguando & quotiens disponemini ad bellica conuo-lare. Nec perire debeant iura propter verba aut premissa, quomodolibet ad hoc laborat versutia Gallicorum. Sanè serenisime princeps in orbem volat fama, nec ambigitur quòd propter lanam & innumerabilia vestra singularia commoda, sine quibus non viuit oriens neque auster, regna singula in pecunis vos salutant. In comparatione igitur ad alios reges volus confert Deus ipse dinitias centuplatas. Probitas etiam militaris, & arcuum asperitas, fine pari, taliter hue vsque extulere gentem magnanimam occidentis, quòd timor non paruus vestros inuadit aduersarios; & ad hunc diem impariter victoriosè dimicauit cum Gallicis Angliæ gens austera. In pufillanimitate igitur (potensißime princeps) contra naturam non obdormiat cor Iconis; sed & quales vebis contulit vires natura, ipsas applicare dignemini actibus bellicosis, in defensionem reipublice, iuris hereditary sustenta- 20 thereby it was procured, and of the notable meanes tionem, augmentumque meriti, & incomparabiliter chronicabilem probitatem cordis magnanimi tanti regis.

The same letter in plaine phrase verbatim Englished by A.F.

Oft mightie prince, your roiall proweffe and the counfels of the 30 Me fage, should altogither (as we thinke) moue you in dutie, by the most profound & deepe foresight of your discretion in time to mainteine and defendall and fingular your rights & inheritance vnharmed, which by birth doo magnifie and make great your roiall maiestie, and if anie violence what soener gainst and & assault the same, your kinglie diligence should indeuor with the Thield of a warrior valiantlie to defend your title and right. And bicause we are neere you, & doo as it were touch your roiall person in aliance, vnlesse God himselte doo forbid and hinder vs, we will alwaies be readie in all your rights to affift and aid you with two thousand pikes, when and how often focuer you shall be disposed to rush out to battell. Your right ought not to be lost for words and promises, howfoeuer the craftinesse of the French labor to this purpose. 50 Trulie most excellent prince, your renowme doth flie into the world, neither is it doubted but for your wooll fake, and other your fingular commodities being innumerable (without the which the east and the fouth can not line) all realmes with their coines doo greet you. In comparison therefore of other kings God himfelfe hath bestowed vpon yourichesa hundred fold. Your warlike proweffe also, & the rough- 60 nesse of your bowes, being peerelesse, haue hitherto to extolled the couragious nation of the weit, that no small feare dooth inuade your adverfaries; and to this day the sterne people of England haue (none like them) victoriouslie incountered with the French. Therefore ô most puissant prince, let not the hart of alion fleepe in cowardlinesse against nature: but what force and valiantnesse nature hath given you, the same vouchsale to put in practise with feats of armes in defente of your common wealth, the maintenance of your right by inheritance, the increase of your defert, and the peerelesse prowesse of so great a kings couragious hart right worthic to be chronicled.

The price of come that had continued at an high Theirs rate, almost for the space of two yeares, began to fall tonby a immediatlie after harness was got in, to the great fine here reliefe of the poze, which before through immoderate cating of nuts and apples, fell into the difease called the flir, whereof manie died, and fuerlie as was o thought) the death and dearth had beine greater, if the commendable diligence of the losd mator of Theloder London had not being, in relieuting the commons by lord London had not being, in relieuting the commons by formation as he made for come to be brought to fellips on the best of the common to the common London, from the parties of beyond the feas, there halfored otherwise neither had she countrie being able in once decords. thing to have lufficed the citie, not the citie the countries in the trie. H. Knighton referreth this scarsitie to the yeare time of 1390, and maketha large discourse both of the miles drank ries which it brought with it, as also of the cause

In this yeare (laith he) was a great dearth in all Abr. Alouted parts of England, and this dearth or learlitie of Henne Kage. parts of Engiand, and this seems, to the feaft ton cannot come began binder the fielde, and lafted till the feaft ton cannot be the first of nein becomes of faint Deter ad vincula, to wit, till the time of new beer come. This learlitic did greatlie oppelle the people, and chieflie the commoners of the poper fort. For a man might fie infants and children in freits and houses, through hunger, howling, crieng, and cras uing bread: whose mothers had it not (God wot to breake buto them. But vet there was such plentie and abundance of manie yeares before, that it was thought and spoken of manie housekepers and have bandmen, that if the feed were not sowen in the ground, which was houded by and floged in barnes, loffs, and garners, there would be inough to find and fusteine all the people by the space of five yeares solve lowing. But the cause of this penurie, was thought The could to be the want of monie in a great manie. For mos the feet nie in these dates was verie scant, and the principall was not beauty cause hereof was, for that the woll of the land lay a come Acepe and hong heavie in some mens hands by the space of two yeares; and in others this yeares, with out a chapman. For it was enacted in a certeine parlement, that the merchants of England Mould not passe out of the land with woll and other mer, thandize, but thould bring the fame unto twelve plas ces within the realme appointed for the same pur pole, that the merchants strangers might have recourse thither with their commodities and so by er change thould transport our merchandize for theirs. 139 meanes whereof the merchants of England did forbeare to buy woll and other wares untill the nert parlement infuing, wherein it was granted them to traffike whither they would with their commodities. In these dates woll was dog cheape: for one fone of woodland god woll of the diolen and piked fort, was fold for together the dome. three thillings, and in Leicester and Bent at some the flows. times for two shillings or two and twentic pence. This scarsitie of victuals was of greatest force in Leicelfer thire, a in the middle parts of the realme. And although it was a great want, yet was not the price of come out of reason. For a quarter of wheat, when it was at the highest, was fold at Leiccisser for 16 Chillings 8 pence at one time, and at other times for a marke or fourtene Chillings: at London and or ther places of the land a quarter of wheat was fold for ten thillings, or for little more or lette. For there arrived eleven thips laden with great plentie of vier tuals at diverse places of the land, for the reliefe of the people. Belides this, the citizens of London laid Profile out two thouland marks to buy fodout of the common theft of opphans: another foure and twentical tremen, energy of them put in his twentic pounds pace for necessarie provision, for feare of famine, likelie to fall upon the citie. And they laid up their fore in fundric of the fittest and most concenient places they could chose, that the needie, and such as were wiming with want, might come & bup at a cers teine pite fo much as might suffice them and their familie: and they which had not readie monie to paie downe presentlie in hand, their word and credit was taken for a yeares space nert following, and their turne ferued. Thus was prouision made that people 10 should be relieved, and that none might perith for ton bytoge.

An.Reg.15.

fint to the

On Chilimaffe day, a dolphin that came forth of the lea up the Thames buto London-bridge, was el pied of the citizens as he plated in the water, and being followed & purface, with much ado was taken. We was ten fot long, and a monttrous growne fift, fo as the fight of him was ffrange to manie that beheldhin. De was thought by his comming to farre into the landivard, to foretheir fuch fromes and tem- 20 pells as within a weke after bid raginglie follow. De have heard how the matter for a treatie of 1392 peace had beine first broched by the French king, by fending ambassadors to the king of England, to move the fame. Which motion being throughlie confivered of the effates affembled in this last parlement, it was occred, that it should go forward (as Imballadors before ye have heard) and to about Candelmaile, the lord Thomas Perfie, fir Lewes Clifford, and fir Ko. fruchtung bert Buquet, with diverte other in their companie, 30 were fent ouer to the French king, and comming to Paris, found him lodge in his house of Loure, where they occlared to him the good affection of the king their maiffer toward peace. And the better to bying it to palle, they thewed that king Richards defire was to have some place and time appointed for commillioners to meet, with authoritie to treat and concluve upon articles, as should be thought expedient. The French king greatlie honozed these ambasta. boss, in feating and banketting them for the space of 40 fir daies togither, and for animer, concluded with them, that he himfelfe, with his vincles and other of his councell, would be at Amiens by the middelf of Parch next infuing, there to abide the king of Eng. lands comming, and his bucles, if it should please them thither to come.

The English ambalfadors faid there was no boubt, but that either the king himselfe, or his uncles thuld bethere at the day affigued, with full authoritie to conclude anie agreement that thould feme reasona, 50 ble, and so those ambassadous returned with great giffspiesented on the kings behalfe to ech of them, du kobert lie kobert Bziquet ercepted, buto thome it læmed frenchmanal the French king bare no great good will, for that being a frenchman borne, he had ener ferued the Par uarroiso: Englishmen, and was now one of king Richards punie chamber. The king of England (as foinc write) was once minoco to have passed the seas Chebukes of himselfe, to have met the French king at Amiens, at Ancaler 3 the time amointed, but finallie the duke of Lancas 60 corts of Der. Arer, the bithop of Durham, and others, were fent this be and thun, ther with a traine neere hand of a thousand horses. motor, the At their comming into France, they were rotallie The Chomes received: for the French king had made no leffe preparation for the duke of Lancasters comming, than Cachamany if he had beene emperor. The duke of Lancaster veand were relie was efficience to be a veric mightic prince, and one of the wifest and lagest princes in all chistens dome, in those dates; so that it seemed the French 3 realisms hing reioifed greatlie, that he might come to have conference with him. There were with the French Chebuked conference with him. There were with the Frency king here at Amiens, his viother the duke of Mousinceofaceat teigne; his bucles, the dukes of Berrie, Burbon, and Burgognie, & a great number of earles, loods, and other nobles of the realine of France. Before the Englishmens comming, for anothing of strike and debate that might arise betwirt the English and French, a proclamation was let forth conteining certeine articles, for the demeanor which the French men fould observe towards the Englishmen.

Whilest they there remained, all the English mens tharges were borne by the French king, from their fetting fouth from Calis, till they came backe thither agains. As touching their treatie, manie things were proponed, diverte demands made, and forme offers, though to finall purpole, for they toke not effect, infomuch as they departed without conclubing anie thing, further than that the inuce with was to end at Widlummer nert, was prolonged to The trace continue one yeare moze, that in the meane time, the apeare. loads and effaces of the realme of England might af Thom. Walf. femble, and with good adults deliberate, whether it were more expedient to agree buto a determinate peace, or to purfue the doubtfull chances of warre. And such was the end of that rotall ambassage, to the furnishing forth whereof, the king demanded an ard as well of the abbats and priors, as of the cities and good townes through the whole realme.

Anon after the returne of the duke of Lancaffer, and other the amballadors that had beene at Amiens, a councell of the loods and chiefe frates of the realme a councell at was called at Stamford, the which (as if it had beine Stamford. buto a parlement)there came footh of everie god towne certeine persons appointed to deliberate and take aduite in to weightie a matter, as either to conclude byon peace, or elfe byon warre. But in the end they brought little or nothing to palle, fauing that they agreed to have the truce to indure for twelve moneths longer: both kings (ware to observe the same, afore such as were amointed to le their othes received. About the fame time came the duke of Gel Gelberland verland into this realme, being the kings confine, a commeth into right valiant and hardie gentleman : he was hono: England. rablic received and welcomed of the king, and of his uncles, the dukes of Lancaster and Clocester. This buke of Geloerland counselled the king not to conclude peace, either with the Frenchmon og Scots, er, The dake of cept opon fuch conditions as might be knowne to be biffuadeth both profitable and honorable to him and his realme, the king from promiting that if he had occasion to make twarre as prace with the gainst either of those two nations, he would be reas french and die to ferue him with a convenient power of men at Scots. armes of his countrie. After he had bene here a time, and highlie feasted and banketted, as well by the king as other great estates of the realme, he reture ned home, not without diverle rich giffs.

The king about this feafon fent to the Londoners, The London requesting to borrow of them the summe of one ners refuse to thouland pounds, which they becourteouslie refused athousand to lend : and mozeoner they fell bpon an Italian or pounds. Lombard (as they termed him) whom they beat and nere hand flue: bicause he offered to lend the king that monie. Whereof when the king was advertised, he was fore mouce against them, and calling togs ther the most part of the pieres and noble men of his realme, beclared buto them the froward dealings of the Londoners, complaining fore of such their prefumption. The lords and great men, fæming not greatlie to favour the Londoners, gave counsell that the incolent prive of those presumptuous perfour might with freed be repressed. The citizens of London in those daics (as thould appeare) bling their authoritie to the ottermost, had deuiled and let forth diverse orders and constitutions to abridge the libers tie of forreners that came to the citie to otter their commodites. Religious men that wrote the dwings of that age, fæmed also to find fault with them, for that they fanozed Wiclistes opinions, a therefore did

Gelberland

g aa.iy.

diarge

charge them with infibelitie, and mainteining(I know not how) of Lollards & heretikes : but howfo. ener the matter, went they fell at this prefent into the kings heavic displeasure.

a reat by the

Londoners

buries men.

waiter 200 mane.

Some there be that write, how the king piked the first quarell against the maioz and thiriffes, for a riot tunded about committed by the burulic citizens, against the fernants of the bilbop of Salifburie : for that where one of the fame bilhops fernants had taken a horde-lofe fro a bakers man, as he patted by in flettiret with 1 his balket to lerue his matters cultomers, and would not deliner it againe, but brake the bakers mans head, when he was earnest to have recovered the lofe, the inhabitants of the Aret role, and would have had the bithops man to prison for breaking the kings peace: but he was relcued by his fellowes, and elcaped into Salifburie house, that floo there within the allie, and as then belonged to his matter the bilhop of Salisburie, being at that time high treasuroz of England. The people being fet in a rage for the re- 2 icue fo made, gathered togither in great multitudes about the bishops palace gate, and would have fetch How at thatte ed out the offendor by force.

Co conclude, such a harling was in the firet, that the majoz, with the hiriffes, t divers aldermen came tither with all speed, to take order in the matter, and to let the peace kept; but after the coming thither of the main, the commons of the citie relocted to the place in far greater numbers than before; and the more they were, the worste they were to rule, and 30 would not be persuaded to quiet themselves, except the bilhops fernant, whose name was Walter Komane, might be had out of the house, and committed to willon: but at length, after manie allaults.lifts.* other inocuours made to have broken bp the gates of the house, the maior albermen, with other biscreet commoners amealed the people lo, as they brought them to quiet, and fent euerie man to his houfe.

The bishop was then at Windeld; where the court lair, who being informed of this matter, by a gree 40 uous report, and hamilie in worke manner than the thing had hamened indeed, twke such indignation therewith, that taking with him Thomas Arundell archbithop of Poeke, then loss chancellos of Engi land, he went to the king and made an heinous complaint against the citizens for their mistemeanor, so that his displeasure was the more kindled against the citizens, in fo much that, whether in refpect of this laft remembred complaint, or rather for their bicourte ous deniall to lend him the thouland pounds, and mil 50 uling the Lombard that offered to lend the same, I cannot fair; but fure it is, that the major and thiriffe, and a great lost mose of the citizens, were fent for to come to the court, where diverse milbemeanors were objected and laid to their charge: and notwithfanbing, what ercuse they pretended, the maior and this riffes with diverle other of the most substantialicitizens, were arrefted. The maioz was committed to the castell of Tambeloz, and the other, but other cas fiels and holds, to be fafelie kept, till the king, by the admile of his councell, thould determine further what thould be done with them.

The liberties of the citie were feized into the kings hands, and the authoritie of the maior otterlie ceasted, the king amointing a warden to gonerne the citie, named fir Coward Darlingrug knight, that thould nerne the citie both rule the citic, and fæthat cueric man had inffice ministred, as the case required. This fir Coward Darlingrug began to gouerne the citie of Lonbon by the name of lood warden, the one and twentith of June, on which day the king entered into the 16 years of bis reigne : by reason it was thought that the fato fir Coward Darlingrug was overfavourable to the citizens, he continued in his office buttill the first of Julie, and being then vischarged, Dathren one fir Baldwine Radington, a right circumfped temour one fir Baldwine traoury on, a cryst strainer and different hinght, was put in that rome, who kinds Radings Radings how both to content the kings mind, and to comfort make in the citizens, and put them in hope of the kings favour barond in time to be obteined, to the reliefe of their forom London and heavineffe.

At length, the king, through fute and instant la bour made by certeine noble men, speciallie the buke of Glocefter, began somewhat to relent and par cifie himfelfe, as touching his rigozous displeasure a gainst the Londoners, calling to mind the great bo. nour he had diverse wates received at their hands, with the great gifts which they had like wife bestowed boon him, whereboon he purpoled to deale the more mildle with them, and to fent for diverse of the thiefe citizens to come buto Waindeloz, where he then kept his court, there to thew forth the printleges, li berties, and lawes of their citie, as well the new as old that with the adule of his councell, he might determine which should remaine in force, and which thould be abolithed. Herebpon, when the faid print The library leges, and liberties were laid footh, to the view of of London; leges, and liverties were into tweig, to the view of the fluid performs as had to confider of them, some were particular the fluid f ratified, some permitted by tolleration, and some bis contental terlie condemned and absogated.

Beither might they recouer at that prefent, either the person or dignitie of their malor, nor obteine the kings entire favour, till they had fatisfied the king of the damages and inturies by them done, either to him or his people. And where he had beene at great charges, in preparing forces to chaffile them, as he was determined, if they had not submitted thems felues buto him, they were fure that their purifes must answer all that he had laid fourth about that matter. They therfore with humble fubmillion, in recompenie & falisfaction of their trespalles, offered to give him ten thousand pounds, but they were for this time fent home, and appointed to returne againe at a certeine day, not binderstanding what they must pay, till the king with the adulte of his councell had taken further order for them . At length, through such vailie lute as was made for the quieting of the kings hot displeasure towards the Londoners, he was contented to pardon all offenles paff. But first, the citizens were told, that the king meant to come from his manoz of Shene, to the citie of London, and then bindoubtedlie, bpon knowledge had of their god meanings, hereafter to beare themselves like louing subleas, they should obteine his fauour.

The citizens advertised hereof, old not onelie pre 3 fmails pare themselves to meet him, and to present him with critica gifts in most liberall manner; but also to abome, becke, and trim their citie with fumptuous pages ants, rich hangings, and other gorgeous furniture, in all points like as is bled at ante cozonation. At the day appointed, there met him (beside other) source hundred of the citizens on horsebacke, clad in onelly persunt tierie, presenting themselves in that order, bpon the with profes heath on this live Shene, and in most humble wife, on aftich crauing pardon for their offenles pall, belought him thep atter to take his waie to his palace of Wedminter, the ges chair rough the citie of London. This fute made by the res boutputs corder, in name of all the citizens, be grationlie granted, and so held on his tournie, till be came to Gillatti London brioge, where unto him was prefented a pale to total fing faire feed, white, faodled, briveled, and trapped in bythe land rich cloth of gold, parted with red and thite. And like classes with cloth of gold, parted with red and thite. And like classes with a classe luile to the quæne was ginen a milke white pallite, pleatant fandled, briveled, and traped in the fame fort, as the countries other was. These presents were thankefullie accep them ted, and to both the king and the queene patting for status to ward, entered the citie, prepared and hanged with neutrily rich clothes (as before you have heard) the citizens non.

The bilhop of Salifburic uous coplaint of the Londoners to the king.

Ebe maier & thiriffes of London fent fore to the king, there imprifoned.

The liberties of London feigeb.

3 gardian ap: pointed to co: of London.

Anno Reg. 16. Darlingrug of London.

flatoing on ech live the Arets in their liveries, cris eng, king Richard, king Richard.

At the Candard in Cheape, was a right lumptuous fage ordeined, on which were fet diner le personages, and an angell that put a rich crowne of golo, garnis theo with stone and pearle upon the kings head, as he patted by , and like wife an other on the queenes bead. This done, the king rode to Paules, and there officed, and to twhe his horfe againe, and rode to Meliminifer, where the maior and his companie ta-Gurgitis by king their leaue, returned to London. Dn the moz-tie Lobours row, the maior and his brethren went againe to Westminster, and there presented the king with two balens gilt, fin them two thouland nobles of gold, belieching him to be good and gratious load to the citie; he receiued their prefent in courteous manner. and gave them manie comfortable words. The third Theiberties baie affer, they received a new confirmation of all di London ras their old liberties (at the least fuch as might be an aid nambe hing to the citic, and no detriment to forceners) wherefore, 20 by counsell of their frænds, they ordemed a table for an altar of filuer and gilt, ingraven with imagerie, and inanteled in most curious wife, conteining the florie of faint Coward, it was valued to be worth a thouland marks. This was presented to the king, the which he thouttle after offered to the thrine of faint Coward within the abboie. The Londoners belie. ned, that by these gifts they had beene quite rid of all banger; but yet they were compelled to give the king after this, ten thouland pounds, which was collected of the commons in the citic, not without great of fence and grudging in their minds. Abo. Flout of Pou have heard hitherto, what means was made Hanne Knigh by the matoz, albermen, and whole bodie of the com. monaltie of London to procure the kings materies Emillerab: (in those distanour they were deplie drowned) grati ous reconciliation. Therein though there hath beine large matter delivered; pet to fet footh the dignitie thereof the fuller, take here by the waie the report of Henrie Knighton. In the yeare (faith be) 1 392, the king called a great councell on the morrow after Trinitie fundaie at Stamford, about certeine alfaires concerning the Frenchmen, in which councell he allembled togither all the old foldiers of his relme, that by the adule of the elder lost he might lie what were best for him to do in the premistes. The king alto belo a great councell at Potingham, on the feat of S. John the Baptiff, whereat he caused the maio? of London with the foure and twentie aldermen, the two thiriffes, and foure and twentie of the best commoners of the citie in the second degree to be conuented before him. Here he charged them that they had forfeited a certeine bond of 9000 pounds to the king, belives the lotte of their liberties and priviles ges. Which obligation or bond they had made in former time to the king, their deferts requiring the fame. Pow the king, after rehearfall made of their new offences & faults, vilcharged the maioz, the two thiriffes, and the rest of his officers of their offices, and fent the major and the tipo thiriffes to certeine places of cultodie as his prisoners, defeating the ci. 60 tie of London of the honour of all their privileges; in so much that a citizen or freeman should have no more prerogatine than a forcener or Aranger . He appointed also the load Edward Balerige to be gouerno: therof, to been and fe kept the kings lawes and his liege people within London in due order, but till such time as the king hav otherwise provided for them. And he fet them a day to answer the king and his councell to certeine interrogatories on the feat of S. Parie Pagdalen then next infuing, at TAmb love. In the meane while, at the mediation of certeine frænds and welwillers, the kings indignation was lomethat mitigated and allwaged towards them; in formuch that at length he releases the major and the thiriffes, and fent them home to their houses; setting ouer them not with francing a new keper or go uernour of the citie, and referuing in his hand all the privileges of the citie. In the meane time, on the fundate nert after the feat of the Assumption of the blef fed virgin Parie; all the wealthieft and worthieff commoners of the citie came to the king, and fubmitted themselves and all their gods to his grace, and then did he first receive and take them into his favour. On the wednesdate insuing the king was purpoled to come into London, and the citizens in multitudes innumerable met him on horfebacke : # they that had no hortes went out on fot to welcome him thither; women also and infants thewed them, felues buto him; likewife the bithop of London, with all the clergie, no order, degree, condition, cliate, or fer of ecclefiafficall dignitie being ercufed, went out in procession to meet the king and the quene with great retoiling. It was reported how in that proces fion there were aboue five hundred boies in furplife fes. Pozeover, the citizens of London trimmed the outlides of their houles and chambers in everie freet through which the king and the quæne were to palle, from S. Beorges to Westminster . As for the houfes of the welthter fort, they were brauclie garnished with cloth of gold, filmer, tiffue, beluet, tother fumpe tuous fruffe what focuer by any possible means could be gotten. In Cheaplide there was a conduit, out of the which two wouts ran with read wine & white, and opon the conduit flod a little boie awarelled in white like an angell, having a golden cup in his hand, tho presented wine to the king and quene to drinke as they patted by. In the meane time they offered to the king a golden crowne of great value, and another golden crowne to the quene; and a while after palfing forwards, they presented to the king a golden tablet of the Trinitie, to the value of eight hundred pounds; and to the quæne another golden tablet of S.Anne, thome the had in speciall denotion and reuerence, bicaule hir owne name was Anne . Such, and fo great, and fo wonderfull honozs did they to the king, as the like in former times was never done to ante king of this realme: and fo going forward, they brought the king and the queene to Westminster hall. The king fitting in his feat rotall, all the peo. ple franding before him; one in the kings behalfe as his speaker gave the people thanks for the great hos nour and princelie prefents which they had bestowed bpon the king; and being bloden to fall enerie man to his businesse and affaires, it was told them that in the next parlement they thould have their finall answer. At the same time, the bake of Blocester, having res The bake of ceiucd monie to leavie an armie, which he thould have Biocetter conneted over into Ireland, of thich countrie, a good made buke of thile before that prefent, the king had made him Ircland. duke was now readie to fet forward, then fundenlie this fournie through the malice of some printe betractours about into Ireland the king, he was contermanded, and so his fournie buluckulie was fraied, to the great hinderance and prefudice of flaich. both the countries of England and Ireland: for co uen bpon the fame that was bruted of his comming into Ireland, in manner all the Irith loads beformis ned to submit themsclues buto him so greatlic was his name both loued, reuerenced, and feared, euen a. Cliére, late mong those wild and sauage people. This yeare Ro. duke of Irebert Cere, late carte of Drenford , and duke of Ire, land, with st land, beparted this life at Louaine in Babant, in great anguish of mind , a milerable necessitie: which pong gentleman (doubtlesse) was apt to ail commendable exercises and parts fit for a noble man . if in his ponth he had beine well trained and brought by in necessarie discipline.

1 3 9 3 Luo Walli.

@ he chance: ricand kings ued to Londo.

Eures.

The Fle of Mail.

The dukes of Lancafter & Glocefter to treat of a peace.

Che Grench comittioners would have

The demand of the English comillioners.

Dider taken, that the be= mands on either fide fhould be fet bowne in wii= ting, the bet : ter to be con:

This yeare after Chiffmaffe, a parlement was called at Windhester, in which onelie a grant was 3 parlement made by the cleargie, of halfe a tenth, for the expense achomehelier les of the buke of Lancalter & Olocester, that were amointed to go ouer into France, to treat of peace, betwirt the two kingdoines. The courts of the kings bench and chancerie, which had beine remoued from Welfminster to Poske, either in disfauour onelie of bench kept at the Londoners, of in favour of the citizens of Porke, youthe and fro for that the archbishop of that citie, being load than 10 thence remos cellos, wither to advance (fo farre as in him late) the commoditie and wealth thereof, were neverthelesse about this feafon brought backe againe to Mestminffer, after they had remained a small time at Pothe, to the displeasure of manie . This yeare, the lord Auberie de Awre, bucle to the late duke of Ireland, was made earle of Orenford. The two and twentilh of Februarie, John Eures, conffable of Doner caffell, & lood felward of the kings house Derfie that before was vicechamberlaine was cre, ated lood feward; and the lood Thomas Beaumont was made constable of Douer, and losd warden of the chique ports: and the lord Telilliam Derwpe was made vicedamberlaine, who about the fame time, bought of the losd Milliam Pontacute the Ile of Dan, with the regalitie therof, for it is a kingdome; as Thomas Walfingham affirmeth.

The bukes of Lancatter and Gloceffer went or fent to Frace dukes of Berrie and Burgognie. These noblemen were sufficientlie furnished with authoritie, to conclube a perfect peace, both by fea and land, betweene the two realmes of France and England, and all their alies. The place appointed for them to treat in, was at Balingham, where tents and paullions were pight op for the ease of both parties. They met there tivile or thrife a weeke, in a faire tent prepared for the purpole, about nine of the clocke in the forenone. entered first into communication, and had fiene each others authoritie, one of the first demands that the Frenchmen made, was to have Calis raced, in fuch to the ground, wife, as there thould never be anic habitation there after that time. The dukes of Lancaffer and Bloce, ffer answered herebuto, how they had no authoritie to conclude fo farre, but that England thould hold Calis Itill, as in demelne, and true inheritance; and therefore, if they purposed to enter any further in the treatie of peace, they thould ceasife from that bemand 50 and speake no more thereof. When the dukes of Ber, rie and Burgognie heard their two coulins of Eng. land answer so roundlie, they spake no more of that matter.

Then the dukes of Lancatter and Gloceffer des manded to have restitution of all such lands as had bone deliuered, either to king Richard, og to king Coward the third, or to anie their deputies or commillioners, and also to have fullic paid the summe of florens that was left unpaid, at the time when the 60 warre reutued betwirt England and France : and this the English lawiers promed to stand with equitie and reason. But neverthelesse, the loods and chancellos of France argued to the contrarie, and fo as græthey could not, infomuch as the Frenchmen re. quired that if the Englishmen meant to have anie conclusion of peace, they thould draw to some nærer points. At length, the foure dukes tobe order, that all their dem mos on either fide thould be fet bowne in writing, and delivered to either partie interchangeas blie, that they might be regarded at length, and fuch as thould be found unreasonable, to be raced orres formed. After they had communed together dinerfe times, and remained there fiftiene dates, they appointed to aductife the two kings of their whole do. ings, and after nine daies space to met againe. The French dukes rode to Abbeuile, where the French king then late: and the English dukes returning to Talis, wrote to the king of England, of all the whole matter. The buke of Gloceffer was harder to deale with in each behalfe, concerning the conclusion of peace, than was the duke of Lancaffer, for he rather defired to have had warre than any peace, except fuch a one as thoulo be greatlie to the advantage and hos nour of the realine of England; and therefore the commons of England understanding his disposition on, agreed that he thould be fent, rather than anie other. For where in times past the Englishmen had Che Englishmen had Children greatliegamed by the warres of France, as well the maintine, commons, as the knights and equires, who had by the fring the same mainteined their estate, they could not warms, give their willing confents, to have anie peace at all with the Frenchmen, in hope by reason of the wars, Departed this life, in whole rome the load Thomas 20 to profit themselues, as in times past they had done. The French king a nobles of France were great. lie inclined to peace, and fo likewife was the king of the inclined to peace, and to income was the august Che louds

England, the duke of Lancaster. But the French of the find men were fo subtill, and bled so manie darke and co men, loured words, that the Englishmen had much a do to understand them : which offended much the duke of Gloceffer. But neuertheleffe, at the daie prefixed. thele foure dukes met againe at Balingham, and The come with the French loads came the king of Armenie, Concreman uer unto Calis, and doivne to Bullongne came the 30 newlie returned into France forth of Grecia, for in: again, to his owne countrie he durck not come, the Turkes having conquered it, the ffrong towns of Could, thich the Genowates held, excepted.

The king of Armenie would gladlie that peace Thekings might hang, beine established betwirt France and England, in hope to procure the somer some aloof the kings to recouer his kingdome. But to conclude after that the dukes, and other with them affociat as allifants, had diligentite perufed and cramined Obligania This was about the beginning of Paie. Then they 40 the articles of their treatie, they would not palle not boubted feale to anie, till all darke and obscure woods were words toke clerelie declared, opened, and made perfect, so that opened. no generall peace might be concluded. Potwith standing, as Froissard saith, a truce so; source yeares fourcement space, bpon certeine articles was agreed to be kept between as well by fea as by land. It was thought, that then England 12 they were at point to have growne to agrament Franch concerning manicarticles, if the French king had not newlie fallen into his former difeale of frenlie, there had better effect followed of this treatie; but by occasion of his sicknesse, each man departed, before that anie principall articles could be fullie ordered and made perfect. The fame time, fir Thomas Peri he the yonger was made lood warden of Burder aur and Aquitaine. In Sepermber, much hurt was done, thosough Anno Res erceding great thunder, lightening, and tempelis, pelis. which chanced in manie parts of England, but fpecis allie in Cambriogeshire, where manie houses were burned, with no small quantitie of come. Great in undations and flouds of water followed thoulie al continue ter in Daober, which did much hurt at Burie, and touter ste Dewmarket in Suffolke, where it ouerthrew wals flontoin of houses, and put men and women in great danger of destuning. In Offer also in September, great Agent mortalitie fell by pestilence amongst the people, whereof manie died. The towns of Thierburg was reflored agains to the king of Panarre, tho had in gaged it to the king of England, for two thousand markes. A parlement was holden at TCleffmin's ster, which began in the octaves of faint Hilaric. The king purpoling to go over into Treland. requi reda lublidie, the cleargie granted to him a wole tenth, toward the furnishing fouth of that journie, if he went himselfe; if he went not, yet they agreed to give to him the mottie of a tenth. In time of this par, lement, there appeared great enill will to remaine betwirt the duke of Lancaster and the earle of A grante be rundell, for the duke imposed to the earle, that about the Craftation of the croffe, he late with a companie of armed men in the castell of Holt by Chester, the constitution that the countrie there role against the duke, with their capteine Picholas Cliffon, and his complices, whome he ment (as the duke alledged) to 10 haue alded against him : but this the carle flatlie benied, and with probable reasons so excused himselfe, as the quarrell at length was taken up, and the parties for the time well quieted.

Ehebeath of

This yeare on Whitlimoaic being the seauenth cant Inne. of June, quiene Anne departed this life, to the great greefe of hir hulband king Richard, who loved hir intirelie . She deceaffed at Shene, and was buried at Meliminiter, ppon the fouth fide of faint Cowards the house Spene, where she departed this life, that he caused the debutter buildings to be throwne downe and defaced, there. as the former kings of this land, being wearie of the citie, view customablie thither to refort, as to a place of pleasure, and serning highlie to their recreation. Elius the king, the buke of Lancaffer, and his fonne the carie of Derbie, were widowers, all in one feafon : for the lavie Confrance ducheffe of Lancaffer daughter to Peter king of Spaine, deceased the was at the treatic in France: at the same time also deceased the countesse of Derbie, wife to the lood Benrie earle of Derbie. Dozeouer, in this yeare 1394, Isabell duchelle of Porke departed this life, that was halfe litter to the duchelle of Lancalter, being boine of one mother. She was buried at Lang.

This yeare in August, was a proclamation let Ipodamais forth, that all Triffmen thould anoto this land, and returne home into their owne countrie, before the 40 feaft of the Patinitie of our ladie, on paine of death. thercountric The occasion of which proclamation was, for that such multitudes of Irishmen were come over into this region, in hope of gaine, that the countries in The English Ireland, subject to England, were in manner lest eskin Irolad boid of people, so that the entimies spoiled and wasted those countries at their pleasure, finding felv or none to withfrand them . And where king Edward the third had placed in Freland his bench and ludges, with his ercheker, for the god administration of iu- 50 ffice and politike government to be bled there, he received from thence pearelie in reuennes and prohts. comming to his ofone cofers the fumme of thir Engrandic tie thousand pounds: the king now laid forth no lesse alumme to repell the enimies, thich by ablence of those that were come over bother, could not other: wife be relitted, fith the power of the revels was fo increased, and the soice of the countries subject, thos rough lacke of the former inhabitants, so diminithed. About the feast of the Patiuitie of our ladie, 60 the king fet forward to passe into Ireland, having made such preparation for that fournie, as the like for Ireland had not beene heard of at anie time before. There went out with him the duke of Gloceffer, the carles of Darch, Octingham, and Kutland, the loed Thom as Perfie loed Activard, and diverte other of the English nobilitie.

The duke of Lancaffer, that in the thirteenth years of hing Kichards reigne had beene created by authoritic of parlement, duke of Aquitaine, was about Challeng this prefent time fent thicker, with fine humored material were farmes, ta thousand archers, to take polled hand a comme with fion of that duchie, according to the bings grant, by his letters patents thereof had, made, and confirmed with his feale, in prefence of the most part of all the nobles and great loads of England, to hold all that countrie to the faid duke and his heires for ener in as large manner and forme, as his father king Colward the third, or anie other kings of England, or cukes of Aquitaine before time had holden, and as king Kichard at that feafon had & held the fame, the homage alwaies yet referued to the kings of England for ever. But all this not with francing, at his comming thither , lo farre were the Galcoignes, The Galand other people of those marches from receining coignes flattice him with joy and triumph, that they plainelie fold refuse to achim, they would not atturne to him, not be buser of Lancafter his inriforation at ante hand, although he had brought for their for ouer with him commissioners sufficientlie authoris ucreigne. fed, both to discharge them of their former allegiance to the king, and to inuel him in polletion of that dus thie, in maner and forme as before is faid.

But now to returne to king Richard, ye shall but This dela shine the finds to the such a conceit with the house of 20 derstand, that when all his provision and rotal are mie was readie about Dichaclmas, he toke the fea, R. Bichard and landed at Waterford the fecond of Daober, and palleth over fo remained in Ireland all that winter: his people into Ireland were lodged abroad in the countrie, and lay so warry the armse. lie as they might. For although the Iriffmen durff not attempt anie exploit openlie against the Engi liftmen, after the kings arrivall with fo puiffant an armie, pet they would feale sometimes byon them, where they espice anie advantage, and disquiet them only over the frequency while it is halband the duke of Lancatter 30 in their lodgings. But when the English fill presented the treatie in France: at the fame time also untiled, diverse of the greatest princes among them came in, and submitted themselves. Amongst other, Froisfard. foure kings are mentioned, as the great Dnell king foure Irish of Heth, Brine of Thomand king of Thomand, Ar themselves to thur Pacmur king of Lineifter, and Conhur king K. Richard. of Cheueno and Darpe: thefe kings were courteout lie interteined and much made of by king Richard, tho kept his Christmas this peare at Dubline. And after that feast was ended he held a parlement there, a parlement to the which all his subjects of Ireland, buto whom it holden in amerteined, resorted, as well those that had contis Ireland. nucd bnoer the English governement aforetime, as those that were latelie vælded.

Also at the same time, after the octaves of the Co virbanie, the duke of Porke, lord warden of Eng. A parlement land, now in the kings absence, caused a parlement at westmin-to be called at Wessminster, to the which was sent chard being forth of Areland the duke of Gloceffer, that he might in Freiand. beclare to the commons the kings necessitie, to have fome grant of monie to suplie his want, having fpent no small quantitie of treasure in that fournie made into Ireland. The dukes words were fo well heard and believed, that a whole tenth was granted by the clerate, and a fifteenth by the lattic; but not without protestation, that those paiements were granted of a mere god will, for the love they bare to the king, and to have his bulinelle go forwards, which because it required great expenses, both for that his owne rotall person was abtoing in Ireland about the subduing of the rebels, as also because his retinue and power coulo not be mainteined without ercelline charges; they fæmed to be no leffe defirous to have the fame ended, than they which were dailie agents in the same, not without feare of missortune likelie to befall them, having to ocale with a people of fuch barbarous and rebellious behautoz.

At the same time, those that followed Wickliffes The wickles opinions, let by publikelie on the thurth doze of nilts wrote as Paules in London, and the church dozes of Well, gainst the minffer, certeine wittings, conteining acculations clergie. of the clergie, and conclutions, such as had not come montie bene heard, against ecclesiasticall perfons, and the vie of the facraments, as the church then maintemed. They were incouraged thus to do, as it mag

The clerate the king of the wicalcuille, and their fauozers.

In. IRichard knighteth the foure Briff aings, and Froiflard.

R. Richard of Ireland.

M. Michards bealings as gainft the fatiozers of the wickleuifts.

ton canon of Leicefter was faid, by fome noble men, and knights of great worthip, as fir Richard Sturrie, fir Lewes Clifford, fir Thomas Latimer, fir John Pontacute, tothers, who comforted & pricked forward those kind of men, then called heretikes & Lollards, to the confounding of monks, friers, and other religious persons, by all wates they might. Herevpon, the archbithop of Porke, the bilhop of London, and certaine other as mellengers from the whole fate of the clergie, paffed over into Ireland, where, to the king they made a re grienous complaint, as well against those that had framed and let forth luch writings, as against them that mainteined them in their dwings, and therefore befought him with spied to returne home into Enge land, there to take fuch order, for the reffreining of those misozocreo persons, as unto the reliefe of the thurch might be thought expedient, being then in great danger of fusteining trrecoverable losse and bamage, if god reformation were not the foner had. thing Richard hearing thefe things, byon good deli- 20 beration had in the matter, determined to returne home, but first on the day of the Annuntiation of our ladie, he made the foure about remembred kings, to wit, Dnell, Brine of Momond, Arthur of Back. mur, and Conhur, knights, in the cathedrall church of Dublin, and one likewife fir Ahomas Diphen, fir Joatas Pado, and his coffne fir John Pado.

This done, and now after that they were let in quiet in that countrie (the revels not being so hardie as to Airre, whilest such a mightie armie was there 3 readie at hand to affails them) the king about Car returneth out fer came backe into England without anie moze as ow, fo that the gaine was thought nothing to counterualle the charges, which were verie great: for the king had over with him in that fournte, foure thoufand men of armes, and thirtie thouland archers, as Froiffard faith he was informed by an English el quier that had beine in that fournie. The king at his comming over, bid not forget what complaint the archbishop of Poske, and the bishop of London had 40 erhibited to him, against those that were called Lollards, and heretiks, wherebpon immediatlie, he called before him certeine of the noble men, that were thought and knowne to favour such kind of men. threatning terriblie, if from thence forth they thould in anie wife comfort and relicue them . De caufed fir Kichard Sturrie to receive an oth, that he Mould not mainteine from that day forward anie fuch erronious opinions, menacing him, and as it were, co uenanting with him by an interchangeable oth, that 50 if ever he might binderstand, that he did violate and breake that oth, he thould vie for it a most shamefull

The the report of H. Knighton it should feme. that this fed (as he calleth them) mightilie increased. to the no small offense of the losos temporali and spis rituall, where bon after fundzie complaints, and fee rious folicitations for the supplanting of them, commillions were granted, and the tenure of them (as ecuted. Now therefore liften what mine author faith, whose addition, though by his owne suputation of peares it require to be placed elfembere; yet for the confonancie of the matter, and because writers varie greatlie in their accounts of time, I have here inferted the fame, as in a verie convenient place of the Abr. Fl. out of historic. The noblemen and the commons (faith Hen-Henricknigh- rie Knighton) freing the thiv of the church, with thefe t other innumerable errors, t berie lews opinions as it were on all fides from day to day with ceaffe, telle violence and force to be thaken; befought the king in the parlement, that rediede might be had herof; left the arke of the faith of all the church by fuch violences and inforcements given in those dates, should through want of government be battered without remedie, and the glozious realme of Eng. land by corrupting of faith thould by little and little be drawne into a diffreste of grace and lost of hono; Wherefore the king vling the found counsell of the whole parlement, commanded the archbishop of Canturburie, the reft of the bilhops of the realine, to execute their charge and office, all and everient them in his and their diocelle, according to the canon lawes, more fenerelie and realouflie; to correct the offendors, to eramine their English boks more ful lic and substantiallie, to rot out errors with all their indenoes, to being the people into an unitie of the right faith, to weed by out of the church all netles. thilles, and brambles where with the is difgraced; and to beautifie hir with lillies and roles; and thould cause an establishment of his rotall power more bololie and foutlie. And the king forthwith commanded, without belaie, that his letters patents Chould be fent abzoad into all and everie thire of his hingdome; and appointed in everie thire certaine fearthers for such books and their favourers; tharging them to applie a specie remedie onto these disorders. and to lay by the rebels in the berte nert gaoles, till the king fent buto them. But berie flow erecution or none at all followed, because the houre of correct tion was not yet come. [Howbelt, to prepare and make an entrance to the purpoled reformation and correction of those enormities, he gave out a commit fien against the Wickleuists, a copie whereof followeth both in Latine and English. Whereby the world may be how the springing thurth of Chilk was hated and abhorred of the antichristian rout.

Copia regiæ commissionis aduer-sus Lollardos & Lollardorum sequaces.

Tichardus Dei gratia rex Anglia & Francia, & dominus Hibernia, dilectic fibimagistro Thoma Brightwellin theologia doctori, decano collegij noui operis Leicestria, & Gulielmo Chesulden prabendario prabenda eiusdem collegij, ac dilectis & fidelibus nostris Richardo de Barow Chinall, & Roberto Langham, salutem. Quia ex insinuatione credibili certitudinaliter informatur, quòd ex insana doctrina magistrorum Iohannis Wickliffe dum vixit, Nicholai Herford, Iohannis Liston, & suorum sequaciu, quàm plures libri, libelli, schedula, & quaterni, haresibus & erroribus manifestis in fidei catholica la sionem, & sana doctrina derogationem,expresse,& palàm,& notorièredundantes, frequentius compilantur, publicantur, & conscribuntur, tamin Anglico quamin Latino, ac exinde opiniones nefaria sana doctrina contrariantes, oriuntur, crescunt, & manutenentur, ac prait should sæme though not absolutelie, vet in part er, 60 dicantur, in fider orthodoxa eneruationem, ecclesia sancta subuersionem, & ex consequenti (quod absit) quamplurium incredulitatem, corúmg, ani-marum periculum manifestum. Nos zelo sidei catholica, cuius sumus & esse volumus defensores in omnibus (vt tenemur) moti salubriter & inducti, nolentes huiusmodi hareses aut errores infra terminos nostra potestatis, quatenus poterimus, oriri, seu quomodolibet pullulare: assignamus vos conunctim & diuisim, ad omnes & singules libros, li-bellos, schedulas, & quaternos huiusmodi doctrina dictoru Iohannis, Nicholai, Iohannis, & fociorum sequacium, seu opinionum aliquam minus sanam continentes, vbicung, & in quorumcung, mani-

An. Reg. 18.

bus,possessione, seu custodia inucniri poterunt, infra libertales vel extra, inuestigandum, capien-Ja wermer, capten-dum, & arrestandum, & penes concilium nostrum cumomni celeritate possibili deferri faciendum, vt tunc ibidem de ij sdem ordinare valeamus, prout de aus amento concily nostri pradicti fore viderimus faciendum: ac etiam ad proclamandum, & ex parte nostra firmiter inhibendum, ne quis cuiuf-cung, status, gradus, seu conditionis fuerit, sub pænaimprissionamenti & forisfacturationum, qua nobis forisfacere poterit, aliquas huiusmodi pranas & nefarias opiniones manutenere, docere, pertinaciterque defendere, clam vel palam, seu huiusmodi libros, libellos, schedulas, & quaternos detinere, scribere, velscribi facere, aut emere vel vendere prasumat quouis modo ; sed omnes & singulos huiulmodi libros, libellos, schedulas, & quaternos secum habitos & inuentos, ad mandatum nostrum vobis reddat, seureddi faciat indilate. Et ad om-20 nes illos, quos post proclamationem & inhibitionem pradictis contrarium inueneritis facientes, & huiusmodinefarias opiniones manutentes, cor àm vobis priefato Thoma decano & Gulielmo euocandum, & diligenter examinandum: & cum inde legitime cuicti fuerint, ministris proximisq, prisonus committendum, in is sdem det inendum, quoufque à suis erroribus, hære sibus, & prauis opinionibusresipiscant, seu nos pro deliberatione eorundem 3 aliter duxerimus ordinandum. Et ideo vobis mandamus, quòd dicta pramissa cum omni diligentia & efficaciaintendatis, & ea faciatis & exequamini in forma prædicta. Damus autem tam vniuersis & singulis viris ecclesiasticis, quam vicecomitibus, maioribus, balliuis, ministris, & alijs fidelibus & subditis nostris, tam infra libertates quamextratenore prasentium sirmiter in mandatis, quod vobis, & cuilibet vestrum, in pramisis faciendis assistentes sint, consulentes, & auxiliantes, prout decet. In cuius rei testimonium has literas nostras fieri fecimus patentes. Teste meipso apudWestmonasterium vicesimo tertio die May, anno regni nostri undecimo.

A copie of the kings commission against the Lollards or Wickleuists and their followers: Englished by A.F.

Ichard by the grace of God king of England and France, and lord of Ireland, to his beloued, maister Thomas Brightwell doctor in diuinitie, deane of the college of the new worke, of Leicester, and to William Chesulden prebendarie of the prebend of the same college, and to our beloued and trustie subjects, Richard of Barow Chinall, and Robert Langham; greeting. For fo much as we are certeinelie informed by credible report, that by the vnfound doctrine of maiiter Iohn Wickliffe, whiles he lived, of Nicholas Herford, Iohn Lifton, and their followers, many bookes, libels, scheduls, & pamphlets expresselie, euidentlie, and notoriouslie warming with manifest heresies and errors to the hurt of the catholike faith, & the abolishment of sound doctrine, are commonlie compiled, prislithed, and written, as well in English as indicatine, and therevpon wicked opinions contradic to found doctrine, doo fpring, grow, and are mainteined and preached to the weakening of the right faith, the ouerthrow of holie church, and confequentlie (which God forbid) the misbeleefe of a great many, & the manifest danger of their foules. We being moued with zeale to the catholike faith, whereof we are, and will be defenders in all things, as we are bound, vnwilling that fuch herefies or errors within the limits of our inrifdiction, so far as we are able, should grow, or by any meanes spring vp: doo assigne you iointlie and seuerallie, all and singular the books, libels, scheduls, & pamphlets conteining such doctrine of the said John, Nicholas, John, and their fellow-followers, or any of their corrupt opinions, wherefoeuer, & in whose hands, possession, or keeping socuer they shalbe found within the liberties or without; them to fearch, take, arrest, and cause to be brought before our councell with all possible speed, that then and there we may take order for the same accordinglie, as by the aduife of our foresaid councell we shall see requisite to be doone. And also to proclaime, and on our behalfe firmelie to forbid all and euerie one, of what soeuer state, degree, or condition he be, vnder paine of impri-forment and forfeitures, which to vs he shall forfeit, any of these wicked and lewd opinions to mainteine, teach, obstinatlie to defend, priuilie or openlie, or any of these bookes, libels, scheduls & pamphlets to keepe, write, or cause to be written; but all and euerie fuch booke and bookes, libels, scheduls, and pamphlets with them had & found, at our commandement vnto you to deliuer, or cause to be deliuered without delaie. And all them, whome after proclamation and inhibition you shall find dooing contrarie to the premisses, and such lewd opinions mainteining, to call foorth before you the faid Thomas the deane, & William, and them to examine: & when they shalbe lawfullie conuinced therein, to commit them to the next officers & prisons, there to be kept, till they have recanted their errors, herefies, and wicked opinions; or till we for their deliuerance shall otherwise thinke order to be taken. And therefore we command, that you intend the faid premisses, with all diligence and effect, and the same doo and execute in forme aforesaid. We doo also gine in streict commandement and charge, to all and euerie as well churchman & churchmen, as shiriffes, maiors, bailiffes, officers, and other our trustie subjects, as well within the liberties as without, by the tenor of these presents, to affist, counsell, and helpe you and euerie of you in doing the premisses, as it is conuenient. In witnesse whereof, we have caused these our letters patents to be made. Witnesse our selues at Westminster the twentie third day of Maie, and the eleuenth yeare of our reigne.

About this time, og (as Henrie Knighton faith)in the yeare 1392, matter William Courtenic archite thop of Canturburte, brother to the earle of Deni thire visited the discelle of Lincolne, and on the feat of faint Faith-the virgine he visited maister John Archbishop Bokingham bilhop of Lincolne in the cathedrall of Canturbia thurth of Lincolne, with the chapter, and an hundred rice bilitatio. of the canons, and he came to Leiceffer abbeie in bis litation, the lundate before the featt of All laints, there he above all the tueldate, and on the œue also wicklenifts ercommuni: çated.

2 ribiculous

" for the pa-mile fair that picit is the maker of his maker, name:

He Bob.

venance.

of All faints being mondale, calling togither all the canons of the faid monafterte, with the chaplines of his owne chappell, everic of them having in their hands burning candels. The same archbishop confirmed fentence of ercommunication against the Lole lards or Caickleuists, with their fauourers, which either now mainteined or caused to be mainteined, orhereafter did mainteine or thould mainteine the errours and opinions of matter John Wickliffe, in the dioceste of Lincolne. On the morrow nert after All faints, the fame bithop flathed out his fentence of ercommunication like lightning in open light, with a croffe fet upzight, with candels burning bright, and with bels rong alowo, and namelie against those of Leiceffer towne that had to to much defiled and infected the faid towne and countrie. The archbilhop departing from thence, went to faint Peters church, to a certeine anchozette named Patilois there kept as in a closet, whom he reproving about the foresaid errors and opinions of the Lollards, and finding bir 20 them, but appeared to them as it were a far off. In answers scarle aduscedic made, cited hir that the thould appeare before him, on the fundaie next infuing, in faint James his abbeie at Porthampton, to answer buto the foresaid erronious and prophane points. Pow the appeared at the day appointed, and renouncing hir errours, and having penance iniois ned hir, the went awate reformed. But till the fc. cond day before the feast of faint Lucie, the kept hir felfe out of hir closet, and then entred into the same as gaine . Other Lollards also were cited, and appear 3 red at Drford, and in other places, as the archbilhop had commanded them : who renouncing their fuper. fitious errours, and for fivearing their promane out. nions, dio open penance. Also one William Smith ivas made to go about the market place at Leice: fer, clothed in linnen for in a white theet | holding in his right arme the image of the Crucifir, and in his left the image of faint katharine, bicause the said Smith had fometimes cut in peeces and burned an image of faint Batharine, whereof he made a fire to 40

boile him hearbes in his hunger.

In those daies there was a certeine matrone in London, thich had one onclie daughter, thome manie daies the infirmated and trained by to celebrat the malle, and the let up an altar in hir privile or lecret chamber with all the omnaments therebuto belonging, and to the made hir daughter manie dates to attire hir felfe like a prieft, and to come to the altar, and after hir maner to celebrate the maffe. Pow when the came to the words of the facrament, the 50 cast hir felfe flat on hir face before the altar, * made not the facrament; but riling bp, dispatched the rest of the malle even to the verie end, hir mother helping hir therein, and dwing hir denotion. This errour a long time laited, till at last by a certeine neighbour that was fecretlie called to fuch a malle, it was told abroad, and came to the bilhops cares, the cauting them to appeare before him, talked with them about that errour, and compelled the young woman openlie to thew the priestlie thaning of hir haire, whose head 60 was found to be all bare and baid. The bithop figh ing and foreieng that fuch an errour thould happen in the durch in his time, made manie lamentations, and having infoined them penance, dispatched and fent them away. Thus far Henrie Knighton. [It is not to be doubted, but that in these daies manie of the female for be medling in matters impertinent to their degree, and inconvenient for their knowledge;

debating fleanning in their prinat conventicles of fuch things as wherabout if they kept filence, it were for their greater commendation; prefuming, though not to celebrat a malle, or to make a facrament; pet to undertake some publike peece of service incident to the ministerie: whose over-sawcie rathuesse being bolffered and borne by with abbettors not a few, whe, ther it be by ecclefiafticall discipline corrected, 3 wot not; but of the bulogmed prelbiterie 3 am lure it is lamented.]

A certeine thing appeared in the like nesse of sier and in manie parts of the realine of England, notice and the parts of the realine of England, notice and the parts of the realine of the parts of the par one fathion, now of another, as it were eneric night, were the but yet in dinerte places all Pouember and December. ber. This fierie apparition, offentimes when any bo. die went alone, it would go with him, and would Cand Will ichen he food Will. To Come it appeared in the likenesse of a turning whele burning; to other. fome round in the likenette of a barrell, flathing out flames of fier at the head; to othersome in the like. neffe of a long burning lance; and to todiner fe folks at diverse times and seasons it spewed it selfe in diverte formes and fathions a great part of winter, speciallie in Leicestershire and Porthamptonthire: and when manie went togither, it approched not note a parlement time there was a certeine head of war a head of in made by the art of necromancie (as it was reported) wrought h which head at an houre appointed to speake, bitered necromand thele words following at three times, and then ceal, fpeaketh, fed to speake any moze. These be the words; first, The head thall be cut off; feconolie, The head thall be lift by aloft; thirdlie, The feet thall be lift by aloft about the head. This happened in the time of that varies ment which was called the mercilelle parlement, not long before the parlement that was named the parlement which wrought wonders. In Appill there I fiere his was fiene a fierie diagon in manie places of Eng. gonfann land; which dieadfull fight as it made manie a one amazed, so it ministred occasion of mistrust to the minds of the maruelloss, that some great mildrese was imminent, whereof that burning apparition was a prognoffication. In this kings daies (as Abr. Fl. mi faith Thomas Walfingham) whole report, bicaule 3 in Richard am here dealing with certeine prodigious accidents 344 importing some strange events, I am the more bold to interlace) about the trouble some time when discord a contents sprang betweene the king and his pouthlie companis of Jupini ons with the duke of Lancaster, in the moneth of Saurra Maie, there happened a confunction of the two great telk planets, namelie Zupiter and Saturne, after the which did follow a verie great commotion of The French king about this time lummoned a schlink connocation of the French cleargie, to decide and mainting fearth out the power of the two popes, which of them populated had fuller right and authoritie in S. Peters chaire, digmarks for the chilme and division betweene the two popes was not yet ended. The French clergie wrote in the behalfe of Clement their pope, a coffrmed their leript or writing with the univertitie feale of Paris. Which writing Charles the French king fent over to Riv chardking of England, that touching these doubts and difficulties he with (the councell of his cleargic might deliberat. Wherefore king Kichard summo ned a connocation at Orford of the lerneder dinines as well regents as not regents of the thole realmit; tho wrote for and in the behalfe of Urbane their pope of Rome, and confirmed their writing with the buluerlitie feale of Drford, fent it ouer fea to Par ris buto the French king. But nothing was done further in the premises, both popes, onder the theodo or thelter of thisme premailing between them, in Aiffieng their title interest. [This is the last record found in Henrie Knighton, who for that thich he hath done touching thronographie, bath written (the blind nelle of the time wherein he liucd, and his order confidered) though not so well as the best, yet not so ill as the world; and whole collections, if they were laid togither, kingdoms, as in the procede of this hillorie may ap peare.

25oldneffe of women in ec= clelialticall taped.

An. Reg. 18, 19.

on the feas.

togither, would afford a large augmentation to mar ters of chronicle: but D spite that so absuptlie he breaketh off, and continueth his annales no further than this yeare, 1395.]

This pare, the Danes that laterouing on the leas blomuch hart to the English merchants, taking and robbing manie English thips, and when the hauen townes along the coafts of Porthfolke, made forth the Eng. anumber of thips, and ventured to fight with those merchans arread from those formand from the first those formal pirats, they were vanquished by the Danes, so that 10 othe Engmanie were flaine, and manie taken prisoners, which were constrained to paie great ransoms. The ent-Grat pulca mies also found in ransacking the English thips, trant by the twentic thousand pounds, which the English merchants had about with them to buy wares with, in on or the place whither they were bound to go. In the fame peare, William Courtneie archbishop of Cantur, burie, having more regard to his owne prinat commoditie, than to the discommoditie of others, purchas fed a bull of the pope, thereby he was authorised to 20 leavie through his whole province foure pence of the pound of ecclesiasticall promotions, as well in plas ces crempt, as not erempt, no true noz lawfull caufe being the wed or pretended, they he ought to to do, and to lee the execution of this bull put in practile, the ardibilhop of Postic, and the bilhop of London, were named and appointed. Manie that feared the censures of such high eres cutioners, choic rather to pate the monie forthwith, than to go to the law, and be compelled happilie, mau 30 ger their god willes. Some there were that appear led to the fee of Rome, meaning to defend their cause and to procure that so unlawfull an eraction might be renoked. Specialtie, the prebendaries of Lincolne flod most stiffelie against those bishops, but the death of the archbishop that chanced Chootlie after, made an end of those so passing great troubles . This yeare, John Waltham bishop of Salisburie, and load treas hopol Balif: furor of England departed this life, and by king Kie thard his amountment had the honoz to have his bo, 40 die interred at Meliminster amongst the kings. Af terthis deceale, Roger Walden that before was fecretarie to the king, and treasuroz of Calis, was now made load treasuroz.

De have heard, that in the yeare 1392, Robert Anno Reg. 19. Cleer duke of Ireland departed this life in Louaine in Brabant. Ling Richard therefore this yeare in Pouember, caused his coaps being imbalmed, to be conveted into England, and to the priorie of Tol-Ebebaked nie in Effer, appointing him to be laid in a coffine of 50 to have their matter fped, they returned. Irilad scopps coppelle, and to be adorned with princelie garments, conanco from having a chaine of gold about his necke, and rich England, and rings on his fingers. And to thew what love and als fection he bare unto him in his life time, the king caused the coffine to be ovened, that he might behold his face barco, and touch him with his hands: he ho noted his funerall erequies with his prefence, accompanied with the counteffe of Drenford, mother to the said duke, the archbishop of Canturburie, and manie other billiops, abbats, and priors: but of no. 60 ble men there were verte few, for they had not yet digetted the envis and hatred which they had conceiv ued againff him.

In this meane while, the duke of Lancacter was in Salcoigne, treating with the loads of the countrie, and the inhabitants of the gwo townes, which otterlie refused to receive him otherwise than as a lieutenant or substitute to the king of England, and in the end addressed messengers into Englino, to fignific to the king, that they had beene accustomed to be governed by kings, and meant not now to become subjects to ante other, contrarie to all reason, fith the king could not (fauing his oth) alten them from the crowne. The duke of Lancaster vsed all waies he might deutle, how to win their god wils, and had fent also certeine of his trustic councellors ouer hither into England, as fir William Perreer, fir Peter Clifton, and two clearkes learned in the laine, the one called mailler John Huech, and the o ther maister John Richards a canon of Leicester, to plead and follicit his cause.

But to be bræfe, such reasons were thewed, and fuch matter unfolded by the Galcoignes, whie they ought not be separated from the crowne of Eng. land, that finallie (not with framoing the duke of Olos ceffer, and certeine other were against them) it was decreed, that the countrie and duchie of Aquitaine should remaine still in demesne of the crowne of the buchie of England , least that by this transporting thereof, it Aquitaine to might fortune in time , that the heritage thereof the buke of Chould fall into the hands of some franger, and ent unest. mie to the English nation, so that then the homage and fourreigntie might perhaps be loft for cuer. In deed, the duke of Glocester, being a prince of an high mind, s loth to have the duke of Lancalter at home, being so highlie in the kings fauoz, could have beine well pleased, that he Moulo have enioied his giff, for that he thought thereby to have bosine all the rule as bout the king, for the duke of Porke was a man ras ther coueting to live in pleasure, than to deale with much businesse, and the weightie affaires of the realme. About the fame time, or fomothat before, the king fent an ambassage to the French king, the archbis Imbassadors thop of Dublin, the earle of Rutland, the earle Par fent into Mall the lord Beaumont, the lord Spenfer, the lord France to Cliffoed named Lewes , and twentie knights with treat a marrie fortic elquiers. The cause of their going oner, was to hing is chara intreat of a marriage to be had betwirt him, and the athe french ladie Habell, daughter to the French king, the bes k. daughter. ing as then not past eight yeares of age, which before had beene promifed buto the duke of Britaines forme: but in confideration of the great benefit that was likelie to insue by this communication and as liance with England, there was a meane found to bnow that knot, though not presentlie. These Eng. lift loods, at their comming to Paris, were foifullte received, and lo courteoullie interteined, banketted, feasted, and cherished, and that in most honorable fort, as nothing could be more: all their charges and erpenses were borne by the French king, and when they thould depart, they received for antwer of their message, verie comfortable words, and so with hope

But note then the ouke of Lancaster had, by late Thom, Walf, eng forth an inestimable maste of treasure purchafed in a manner the god wils of them of Aquitaine, and compated his whole defire, he was suddenlie countermanded home by the king, and so to satisfie the kings pleasure, he returned into England, and comming to the king at Langleie, where he helo his Chiffmaffe, was received with moze honor than love, as was thought; where by on he rode in all half that might be to Lincolne, where katharine Sivin, ford as then late, whom Chortlie after the Epithanic, he twke to wife. This woman was borne in Helnault, daughter to a knight of that countrie, called fir Paou de Ruet : the was brought by in hir youth, in the duke of Lancacters house, and attended on his first wife the duchesse Blanch of Lancaster, and ricth a ladie in the dates of his fecond wife the ducheffe Cont of a meane fance, be kept the forefato katharine as his concu- chair, whoms bine, who afterwards was married to a knight of he had kept as England, named Swinford, that was now beccal, his concubire fed . Wefore the was married, the duke had by hir three children, two formes and a daughter; one of the fons was named Thomas de Beaufort, a the other Henrie, who was brought op at Aken in Almaine, 35 bb.f.

1396

The buke of Lancafter me

maitham bis briffard.

The Galbnio & Rich. tohim, that i er aught in tob: Die mort com provide a good lawyer, and was after bithep of Iline cheller.

for the love that the buke had to thefe his thilbeen, be married their mother the faid Batharine Swinferd, being now a widew, whereof men mar. nelled much, confidering hir meane effate was farre bunnat to match with his highnesse, and nothing comparable in honor to his other two former wines. And indeed, the great ladies of England, as the du thes of Cloceller, the countelles of Derbie, Arundell and others, descended of the blood rotall, greatlie dis deined, that the thould be matched with the duke of of Lancaster, and by that means be accompted fecond person in the realme, and preferred in rome before them, and therefore they faid, that they would not come in anie place where the thould be prefent, for it thould be a thame to them that a woman of fo base birth, and concubine to the duke in his other mines paies, Chould go and have place before them. The buke of Cloceffer also, being a man of an 20 high mind and fout fornach, milliked his brothers matching to meanlie, but the duke of Porke bare it well inough, and verelie, the ladie hir felfe was a woman of fuch bringing by, and honorable denicanor, that ennie could not in the end but give place to ivell deserving . About this scalon, the doctrine of of John Wlickliffe Will mightilie fpied abroad here in England. The schisme also Will continued in the thurth, betwirt the two factions of cardinals french place.

In this eightænth peare also was a wonderfull tempelt of wind in the months of Julie and August, and also most speciallie in September , by violence thereof, in fundate places of this realme, great and wonderfull hurt was done, both in churches and houses. The ambassadors that had beine latelie in France, about the treatie of the marriage (as before pre have heard went thither againe, and so after that marchall affic the two kings by fending to and fro were growne ethy french to certeine points and covenants of agræment, the ter, in sname earle marihall, by letters of procuration, married the lanie Flabell, in name of king Richard, so that from thenceforth the was called quene of England. Anno Region. Among Cother covenants and articles of this marriage, there was a truce accorded, to indure betwirt the two realms of England and France, for tearme of thirtie yeares. The pope wrote to king Kichard, belæching him to allist the prelats against the Lob lards (as they tearmed them) whom he pronounced to be traitors, both to the church and kingdome, and therefore he besought him to take order for the punishment of them, whom the prelats should ocnounce to be heretikes.

> At the same time, he sent a bull renocatoric concorning religious men, that had either at his hands or at the hands of his legats or nuncios purchased to be his chapleins, and accompting themselves there. bucrempt from their order; so that now they were by this renocatoric bull amointed to returne to their 60 order, and to observe all rules thereto belonging. This liked the friers well, namelie the minors, that fought by all means they might deutle, how to bring their brethren home againe, which by fuch eremptions in being the popes chapleins , were fegregated tois uided from the relidue of their fraternitie or brother, how. The king in this twentith yeare of his reigne, went over to Calis with his uncles the ounces of Dorke and Cloceffer, and a great manie of other loods and ladies of honour, and thither came to him the duke of Burgognie, and so they communed of the peace. There was no entinie to the conclusion thereof but the duke of Cloceffer, tho thewed well by his words that he willyed rather war than peace. in formuch as the king frod in doubt of him, teaff he would procure some rebellion against him by his fubients, whome he knew not to fauour greatle this new aliance with France.

The king after the duke of Burgognie had tal ked with him throughlie of all things, and was be parted from him, returned into England leauing the ladies fill at Calis) to open the couchants of the marriage and peace buto his subjects, and after he had finished with that businesse, and biderstood their minds, he went agains to Calis, and with him his tivo bucles, of Lancaffer and Cloceffer, and diverfe piclats and loods of the realine; and shortlie after came the French king to the ballide of Arde, accompanied with the dukes of Burgognie, Berrie, By taine and Burbon. Chere was fet up for the king of England a right faire and rich paullion a little be. The many pond Guilnes within the English pale; and and between the ther the like paulion was pight up also for the lautaness French king on this five Arde, within the French the french dominion; so that betweene the fato paullions was king. the diffance of the escape ten pales, and in the mid Fabian waie betwirt them both, was ordeined the third pa, uilion, at the which both kings comming from either of their tents fundite times thould most and have communication togither.

The distance betwirt the two tents was beset on either five in time of the interview with knights ar be dead, but that they opened an other in his 30 on the one fine for four and it is to fay, on the one five frod foure hundred French knights Froiler in armor with swords in their hands, and on the o ther fide foure hundred English knights armed with fwords in their hands, making as it were a lane betwirt them through the which the two kings came and met, with such noble men as were appointed to at Fabia. tend them. And a certeine distance from the two first paullions, were appointed to fand fuch companies of men as either of them by appointment had coue nanted to bring with them. The two kings before Through their meeting, received a folemne oth for afforance the two of their faithfull and true meaning, to observe the fai hings. cred lawes of anntic one toward another in that their interview, so as no damage, biolence, molesta tion, arrest, disturbance, or other inconvenience should be practifed by them, or their friends and subteds: and that if anie disorder rose through anie mishame, arrogancie, or arife moued by anie person, the same should be reformed, promising in the words of princes to affilf one an other in suppelling, the malice of such as thould prefume to do or attempt anie thing that might found to the breach of friendlie as mitie, during the time of that affemblie eight baies before, and feuen daies after.

On the fir and twentith of October, the king of England removed from Calis toward the cassellof Cuilnes, and with him the duke of Berrie, who was fent to take his oth. The mozow after, being the even of Simon and Inde, the kings nect, and the loods of France, to wit, the buke of Berrie, Burgogne, D: leans, and Burbon, the earle of Sanoie, the vicount of Peaur, and others conveied the king of Englanc; and from him were lent to conduct the French king diverse of the English loads, as the two dukes of Lancaffer and Gloceffer , foure earles; to wit, of Derbie, Kutland, Potingham, and Posthumbere land. After the two kings were come togither into the tent for that purpose prepared, it was first accorded betwirt them, that in the same place where they thus met, hould be builded of both their coffs a that The chapt pell for a perpetual memorie, which thould be called of our land The chapell of our ladie of peace. On faturdaie ber peace ing the feast daie of the apostles Simon and Jude, the kings talked togither of certeine articles tou-hings daughof king lai-A truce for 30 peares be=

The carle

wickleniffs inercafe.

twent Eng: France. Tho.Wallin.

The popes Rich, againft

R Richard goethouer to Calis.

An.Reg.20.

ding the treatic of peace, and having concluded by on the fame, they received either of them an oth opon the holie Guangeliss, to observe and keepe all the couenants accorded opon.

On the mondaie the French king came to the king of England his pauillion, and the same time Ett frinch was brought thither the young queene Nabell daugh ter to the French king, tho there ac livered hir buto ter to the Henry ting , who there delivered hir diction hing Kichard, who taking hir by the hand killed hir, take to hir father areas thanks for the father deep thanks for the father gaue to hir father great thanks for that so honogable 10 and gratious a giff, openlie protesting, that byon the conditions concluded befloirt them, he did receive bir, that by such affinitie both the realmes might contime in quietnesse, and come to a god end and perfeaconclusion of a perpetuall peace. The quiene was committed to the ducheffes of Lancaffer & Gloceffer, to the countelles of Huntington and Stafford, to the marchionesse of Dublin daughter to the losd Cow cie, to the ladies of Pamure, Poinings, and others; with with anobie traine of men and horffes, con 20 neied hit to Calis: for there were twelve charrets fall of ladics a gentlewomen. This done, the kings came togither into the king of Englands pavillion to dinner. The French king fate on the right fide of the hall, and was rotallie ferued after the maner of his countrie, that is to faie, of all maner of meats appointed to be ferued at the first course in one mighs tie large dith opplatter, and likewife after the fame fort at the fecond course. But the king of England was ferued after the Englith manner. When the 30 tables were taken op, and that they had made an end of dinner, the kings killed ech other, and take their holdes. The 12. of England brought the French hing on his waie, and at length they toke leave either of other, in thaking hands and imbracing on horfes backe. The french king rove to Arve, and the king of England returned to Calis.

Tue have omitted (as things superfluous to (peake of) all the honozable demenoz and courteous interteinement vied and theined betwirt thele prin- 40 ces and noble men on both parts, their fundric feaflings and banketings, what rich apparell, plate, and other furniture of cupbonds and tables, the princelie gifts and rich tewels which were presented from one to another, Ariuing (as it might fæme) who thould thew himselfe most bountcous and liberall : beside the gifts which the king of England gave buto the Frenchking, and to the nobles of his realme (which amounted about the fumme of ten thousand marks) the B. of England spending at this time (as the same 50 went) about thick hundred thousand marks. After The martage the kings returne to Calis on wednesdaie next infilmmiscoat luing, being Allhallowes vaie, in solemne wise he married the faid ladie Isabell in the church of faint Pidolas, the archbishop of Canturburie doing the office of the minister. The thursdaic after, the dukes of Deleance and Burbon came to Calis to lie the king & the quiene: and on the fridaic they take their leave and depart ted, androde to faint Omers to the French king. 60 On the same date in the morning the king and the quene twice their thip, and had faire passage: for within thee houres they arrived at Doner, from whence they fped them towards London, whereof the citizens being warned, made out certeine horse men well appointed in one liverie of colour, with a deulle imbiodered on their Aceues, that euerie companie might be knowne from other, the which with the mater of the mater and his brethren, clothed in fkarlet, met the tonon and king and quene on Blackeheath, and there dwing their duties with humble renerence attended byon their maiesties till they came to Newington: where the king communded the major with his companie to returne, for that he was amointed to lodge that night at Bennington.

Shoztlie after, to wit, the thirteenth of Pouember, the rong quene was conveied from thence with great pompe onto the Tower, at which time there was fuch pacale on London bridge, that by reason Certeine thereof, certeine persons were think to death: a, think to death mong the which the prior of Tiptrie, a place in Es on London set man one and a morthinsul matrice in Touchinsul fer was one, and a worthipfull matrone in Cornehill bringe. an other . The mozow after the was connected to Iohn Stow. Westminster with all the honor that might be deui. The quans sozonation, and finallie there crowned quanc byon sun. date being then the feauenth of Januarie. On the The buke of tivo and twentith of Januarie was a parlement be: Lancaker his gun at Weliminster, in which the duke of Lancatter bestards made caused to be legitimated the iffue which he had begot legitumate by of Batharine Swinfort, before the was his wife. At parlement, the same time Thomas Beaufort sonne to the said duke, by the faid Matharine, was created earle of Summerlet. There was an ordinance made in the fame parlement, that inffices should not have ante to lit with them as allifants. Apozeoucr, there was a tenth granted by the clergie to be paied to the kings ble at two feuerall termes in that prefent yeare. In The inflices this yeare the king contrarie to his oth renoked the renoked out of inflices fouth of Ireland, whom by confirmint (as be, crite, fore pe have heard) he was inforced to banish, there, by to fatisfie the noble men that would have it so.

In this twentith yeare of his reigne king Richard receiving the fummes of monie (for the which the Arong towne of Breft was ingaged to him) by enill Breft petbed counfell (as manie thought) delivered it into the bytothe duke duke of Britains. duke of Britaine, by reason whereof no small sparke of displeasure arose betwirt the king and the duke of Gloceffer, which kindled by fuch a flame (as it was easie to do) finding matter inough to sed opon in both their breffs, that finallie it could no longer be kept downe, not by anie meanes quenched. In the moneth of Februarie, the king holding a sumptuous feast at Wellininster, many of the foldiors that were netwite come from Breft prealed into the hall, and painte kept a rome togither. Thom as the duke of Gloce grudge bester beheld, and inderstood that they were, to resting anothe member how that towns was given by contrarts buke of Gloce. to his mind and pleasure, it grieued him not a little: cefter. and therefore as the king was entred into his cham. ber, and few about him, he could not forbcare, but brake forth, and faid to the king. Sir, faw ye not those The talke befelowes that fate in fuch number this Daie in the hall, twirt the king at such a table? The king answered that he saw of Glocester. them, and afked the buke that they were . To thom the duke made this answer: Sir, these be the soldiors >> that came from Breff, and have nothing now to take to, not yet know how to thist for their livings, and ?? the worle, for that (as I am informed) they have beenc euill pated. Then faid the king; That is against my will, for I would that they thould have their due was ges; and if anie have cause to complaine, let them thew the matter to the treaturoz, and they thall be >> reasonablie answered: and herewith he commanded that they hould be appointed to foure certeine villa, Ont of a ges about London, there to remaine, and to have french pams meate, drinke, and lodging boon his charges till they were paico. Thus as they fell into reasoning of this matter, the duke faid to the king : Sir, your grace ought to put your bodie in paine to win a frong hold or towne by feats of war, yer you take boon you to fell or beliner anie towne of Arong hold gotten with great aduen. ture by the manhod and policie of your noble proges nitours. To this the king with changed countenance >> answered and said: Uncle, how say you that? And, the duke boldie without feare recited the same as gaine, not changing one woodin anie better foat. 33 Wher upon the king being more chafed, replied ; Sir, ,, 13 bb.tf.

meete the B. Glacke:

les of hing

Michard at this inter=

ce thinke ponthat 3 am a merchant, or a verie fole, to fell my tande 13y faint John Baptift no; but truth it cis, that our coune the duke of 132ttaine hath latilhed bs in all such summes of monie as our progenitors lent unto him, and to his ancestors, bpon gage of the faid towne of 132eff, for the which reason and conscience will no lesse but that the towne should thereec opon be to him refforco. Apon this multiplieng of words in fuch prefumptuous maner by the buke as gainst the king, there kindeled such displeasure bes 1 twirt them, that it never ceased to increase into flames, till the buke was brought to his end. The earle of faint Paule at his last comming in: to England to receive king Richards oth for obler. his council to using the truce, had conference with the king of dis ucrle matters. The king by waie of complaint, the wed buto him bow fliffe the duke of Giocester was in hindering all fuch matters as he would have go forward, not onlie faking to have the peace broken betwirt the realmes of England & France, but also 20 profining trouble at home, by firring the people to rebellion. The earle of faint Panle hearing of this fout bemeanor of the bake, told the king that it should be best to proude in time against such mile chefs as might infue thereof, and that it was not to be fuffered, that a subrea should behaue himselse in fuch fort toward his prince. The king marking his words, thought that he gave him good and faithfull countell, and therebpon determined to suppelle both diligent regard to the fairings admings of the buke than before he had done. And as it commett to paffe that those which suspect anie cuill, do ever deme the worlf; to be toke everie thing in evill part, infomuch that he complained of the duke buto his brethren the dukes of Lancaster and Poske, in that he should fland against him in all things and seke his destruction, the death of his counselloss, and ourth, ow of his realme.

The earle of Caint Daule E. Michard.

The bubes of Lancafter & yorke exense the take of the bing.

Polydor.

225....

The two dukes of Lancaster and Poske to deliner 40 the kings mind of impicion, made aniwer, that they were not ignozant, how their brother of Gloceffer, as a man fometime rath in words, would speake oftentimes more than he could or would bring to eb fed, and the same proceeded of a faithfull hart, which he bare towards the king, for that it grieved him to binderstand, that the confines of the English dominions thould in anie wife bediminithed: therefore his grace ought not to regard his words, fith he thould take no hart thereby. These persuasions quie, 5 teo the king for a time, till he was informed of the practife which the duke of Sloceffer had contriued (as the fame went amongst diverse persons) to imprison the king. For then the duke of Lancaster and Booke, first reproving the duke of Slocester for his to liberall falking, bifering bnadmicedie words that became not his person, and which to have concealed had tended more to the opinion of vertue, than to lath out what locuer his buitaicd mind affineded,

Eximia eft virtue prastare illentiarebue,

At contra gravis est culpa tacenda loqui) and percenting that he fet nothing by their words, were in boubt least if they thould remaine in the court fiell, he would boon a peclumptuous mind, in trust to be borne out by them, attempt some outragious enterpaile. Etherefore they thought best to depart for a time into their countries, that by their abfence he might the somer learne to fate himseise for ponut of further displeasure. But it came to palle, that their departing from the court was the casting awaic of the duke of Cloceffer . For affer that they were gone, there ceased not such as bare bim enil will, to procure the is, to dispatch him out of the way.

The duke in beed love fromached the matter, that his counfell might not be followed in all things, and speciallie for that he saw (as he toke it) that the king was milled by some persons that were about him, otherwise than food with his hono: for refermation whereof, he conferred with the abbat of faint Mation intereor, gerbiniere Cleffminffer. Cheabbat Albons, and the prior of Ecleffminffer. Abeabbat and anna on a state of the confesion of th was both his coline and goolather: and haning on a business bate both the buke and the prior at his house in faint buke de Albons, affer binner be fell in talke with the buke tifter, Albons, auer vuines ge ter communication requi charant prior, and amongst other communication required that are the band aris to the state of the band aris to the state of the band aris to the red of the paio; to tell truth, whether he had ante be fron the night before or not. The prior formed both to South make a direct answer; but at length being carnellic fine requested as well by the abbat as the buke, he orthe principal red that he had a vision in deed, thich was, that the realme of England thould be defiroied through the milgouernement of hing Richard. By the virgine " Parie, said the abbat, 3 had the verie same vision. , The duke herebpon visclosed onto them all the secrets of his mind, and by their betales peclentlic coltrived an attemblie of diverte great loads of the realme at Arundell cassell that baie fortnight, at what time he himselfe appointed to be there, with the earles of Derbie, Arundell, Parthall, and War wike: also the archbishop of Canturburie, the abbat of faint Albens, the prior of ecceliminater, with of uerse others.

These estates being come to Arundell castell at the buke and other of his complices, and toke more 30 the baie amounted, about the verte beginning of the Annology. one and twentith peare of king Richards reigne, they sware ech to other to be assistant in all such matters as they thould betermine, and there with recoined the facrament at the hands of the archbillion of Canturburie , tho celebrateo malle before them the mozow after. Tahich done, they withozew into a chamber, and fell in counfell togither, where in the end they light bpon this point; to take king Richard, The parts the dukes of Lancaller & Docke and commit them to of the imp prison, and all the other loads of the hings conneel talvis they determined thuld be dratume and hanged. Such was their purpole which they ment to have accomplished in August following. But the earle marshall that was lood deputie of Calis, and had married the earle of Arundels daughter, discouered all their counfell to the king, and the verie date in which they thould begin their enterpile. The king bad the carle mare The unit thall take heed that behad faid, for if it proued not marchille true, he thould repent it : but the earle constantlie confinence hereforto an wered, that if the matter might be proned otherwise, he was contented to be drawne and quartered.

The king herebpon went to London, where he bined at the house of his brother the earle of Huntington in the first behind All hallowes church opon the banke of the river of Thames, which was a right faire and statelie house. After oinner, he gaue his councell to understand all the matter; by mole which is agreat fault (as in effect the poet noteth: 60 forthwith what power he might convenientitie make adule it was agreed, that the bing thould affemble of men of armes ; archers , and ffreightwates take boile, accompanied with his brother the earle of Huntington, the earle marthall. Herebpon at fir of the clocke in the affernouse, the inft house when they bled to go to lawer, the king mounted on holde backe, and rode his waie; whereof the Londoners had great marwell. After that the hing began to ap proch the bukes boule at Plathic in Cifer, where he then late, he commanded his brother the earle of Huntington to ride afore, to know if the duke were The mil at home, and if he were, then to tell him that the Budenfeld hing was comming at hand to speake with him.

The earle with ten persons in his companie amen ding his pale (for the king had made no great half

An.Reg.21.

all the night before, as thould appeare by his fournie) cante to the house, and entering into the court, asked if the dulie were at home, and binderstanding by a gentlewoman that made him answer, that both the duke and duchesse were pet in bed, he besought hir togo to the duke, and to thew him that the king was comming at hand to speake with him, and swithwith came the king with a competent number of menof armes, and a great companie of archers, riding in to the bale court, his trumpets founding befoze him. 1 The duke here with came downe into the base court, where the king was, having none other apparell byon him, but his thirt, and a cloke of a mantell cast about his houlders, and with humble reverence faid that his grace was welcome, asking of the loads how it chanced they came fo earlie, and fent him no wood of their comming . The king herewith courteoullie requeled him to go and make him readie, and appoint his horte to be ladled, for that he mult needs ride with The duke went op againe into his chamber to put boon him his clothes, and the king alighting from his horse, fell in talke with the buchesse and hir las dies. The earle of Huntington and dinerle other followed the duke into the hall, and there flaied for bun, till he had put on his raiment. And within a while they came forth againe all togither into the base court, where the king was oclifting with the dudelle in pleasant talke, whom he willed now to relonger, and to twhe his boote againe, and the duke likewife. But shortlie after that the king and all his companie were gone forth of the gate of the base Thebuke of court, he commanded the earle marthall to amies Gioretter are heno the duke, thich incontinentlie was done according to the kings amointment.

thould appeare, the king commanded first, that this ment to commen with him, a not in any other place: but neverthelesse, the king sportlie after appointed, that he thould be fent to Calis, as in the same pam= plet is also conteined. Other write, that immediatlie byon his apprehention, the earle marthall conveied him buto the Thames, and there being fet aboud in a this prepared of purpose, he was brought to Calis, where he was at length dispatched out of life, either strangled or smothered with pillowes (as some do Out of an old write.) For the king thinking it not god, that the 50 french pains duke of Glocester should stand to his answer opens lie, because the people bare him so much goo will, fent one of his inflices called William Kikill, an Je rithman borne, over onto Calis, there to inquire of the duke of Glocetter, whether he had committed any such treasons as were alledged against him, and the earles of Arundell and Warwike, as after thall be specified. Justice Kikill hearing what he confessed bpon his cramination, wrote the same as he was commanded to do, and there with specialic returned 60 to the king, and as it hath been reported, he informed the king whether trulie or not, I have not to fay) that the duke franklic confessed cuerie thing, where with he was charged. Tubere byon the king fent onto Tho mas Dolobiate earle marthall and of Potingham, to make the duke secretlie awaie.

Pere we find some variance in writers. For as by an old French pamphlet (which I have feene) it

The earle prolonged time for the executing of the kings commandement, though the king would have had it done with all expedition, whereby the king conccined no small displeasure, and sware that it should coff the earle his life if he quickly obvied not his commmbement. The earle thus as it feemed in maner inforced, called out the duke at midnight, as if he hould have taken thip to patte over into England, and there in the lodging called the princes In, he caus fed his fervants to cast featherbeds byon him, and so fmother him to death, or otherwise to ffrangle him with towels (as some write.) This was the end of that * noble man. flerce of nature, baffie, wilfull, and given more to war than to peace : and in this great. " For he was lie to be discommended, that he was ever repining fonto a king, against the king in all things, that sever he inside and uncle to a to have forward. He was thus made awate not fo o some as the brute ran of his death. But (as it should appeare by some authors) he remained althe till the parlement that nert infued, and then about the fame time that the earle of Arundell suffered, he was dis patched (as before ye have heard.) His bodie was af terwards with all funerall pompe conneied into England, and buried at his owne mano; of Plathic within the church there, in a sepulchie which he in his life time had caused to be made, and there creded.

The same evening that the king departed from him a little waie, and conferre with him of bulinelle. 20 London towards Plathie, to appehend the duke of Glocester, the earle of Rutland and the earle of Bent The earle of were fent with a great number of men of armes Arundell aga and archers to arrest the erle of Arundell; which was prehended, done calilie inough, by reason that the said earle was trained with faire words at the kings hands, till he was within his danger: where other wife he might have beene able to have faued himselfe, and delivered his frænds. The earle of Warwike was taken, and committed to the tower the same day that turne to hir lodging againe, for he might ffaie no 30 the king had willed him to dinner, and the wed him berie god countenance. There were also appehene bed and committed to the tower the same time, the loed John Cobham, and fir John Cheinie knights. The earle of Arundell was fent to the Ile of Wight, there to remaine as prisoner, till the next parlement. in the which he determined to provide, that they monly be all condemned, and put to death. And for doubt of some commotion that might arise amongst the commons, he caused it by open proclamation to duke thould be conneited onto the tower, where he 40 be lignified, that these noblemen were not appehended for any offense committed long agone, but for new trespasses against the king, as in the next parles ment Mould be manifestlie declared and promed. Shortlie after, he procured them to be indicted at The names Potingham, suborning such as thould appeale them of the appele in parlement, to wit, Coward earle of Rutland, Thos lants: mas Powbraie earle marthall, Thomas Holland earle of Bent, John Holland earle of Huntington, Thomas Beaufort erle of Summerfet, John Dontacute earle of Salisburie, Chomas lood Spenser, and the losd William Scrope losd chamberleine. In the meane time, the king fearing what might be attempted against him by those that favoured these noblemen that were in burance, fent for a power of a gard of Chefhire men, that might day and night keepe watch Chefhire men and ward about his person. They were about two should make the sundand arther unit makelie as high any local street units makelie as high any local street. thousand arthers, pato weekelte, as by the annales of Britaine it appeareth. The king had little truft in as ny of the nobilitie, except in his brother the earle of Huntington, and the earle of Kutland sonne to the duke of Porke, and in the earle of Salifburie: in these onelie he reposed a confidence, and not in any other, ercept in certeine knights and gentlemen of his privie chamber.

In the meane time, whiles things were thus in brotle, before the beginning of the parlement, divers other, befroe them of whom we have spoken, were apprehended and put in fundrie prisons. The parles The toros ment was summoned to begin at Westminster the appointed to 17 of September, and writs there be of bing with them and the fallength of a the fallength of the fallengt a sufficient number of armed men and archers in their best arrain: for it was not knowen how the dukes of Lancaster and Poske would take the death 25 b b.ig.

Polydor.

Lancafter & yoghe affem= ble their powers to re: fift the kings bealings.

of their brother, nor how other peres of the realme would take the apprehension and impusionment of their kindemen, the earles of Arimbell and Warwike, and of the other puloners. Suerlie the two dukes when they heard that their brother was to fudbenlie made awaie, they will not what to faie to the matter, and began both to be followfull for his death, and doubtfull of their owne flates : for fith they faw how the king (abused by the counsell of eaill men)abs ffeined not from such an heinous ad, they thought he 10 would afterwards attempt greater miloeders from Chebukes of time to time. Therefore they affembled in all haff, great numbers of their feruants, frends, and tenants, and comming to London, were received into the citie. For the Londoners were right forie for the death of the duke of Olocester, who had ever sought their fauour, in somuch that now they would have being contented to have joined with the dukes in fee king renenge of fonoble a mans death, procured and brought to passe without law or reason, as the com= 20 mon binte then walked; although peraduenture he was not as pet made awaie.

Here the dukes and other fell in counfell, and manie things were proponed. Some would that they thulbbe force reuenge the buke of Gloceffers death, other thought it met that the earles Harshall and Duntington, and certeine others, as thefe authours of all the mildhefe thould be purfued and punished for their demerites, baning trained by the king in vice and cutil customes, even from his youth. But the 3 dukes after their displeasure was somethat allivaged determined to coner the flings of their gricfes for a time, and if the king would amend his maners, to forget also the injuries past. In the meanetime the lung late at Oltham, and had got about him a great power (namelie of those archers, which he had fent for out of Chelipire, in whome he put a fingular trust more than in any other.)

There went medlengers betwirt him and the dukes, which being men of honour did their indeuour 40 to appeale both parties. The king oilcharged himfelfe of blanie for the duke of Cloceffers death, confides ring that he had gone about to breake the truce, which he had taken with France, and also ffirred the people of the realme to rebellion, and further had fought the destruction and losse of his life, that was his souce The king and reigne loed and lawfull king. Contrarilie, the dukes adamied, that their brother was imongfullie put to death, having done nothing worthie of death. At men that went to aw fro betwirt them, they were accoeded, a the king promised from thenceforth to do nothing but by the affent of the dukes : but he kept finall promise in this behalfe, as after well appeared.

Caxton

conciled.

Caxton.

Fabian,

Polydor.

Ethen the time came, that the parlement thould be holden at Ellestminster, according to the tenour of the fummons, the looks repaired thither, furnithed brid great retinues both of armed men and arthers, as the earle of Derbie, the earle Parthall, the earle of Rutland, the lord Spenfer, the earle of 1903- 60 thumberland, with his fonne the lood Genrie Perfie, and the leed Thomas Perfie the faid earles brother, allo the load Serope trealures of England, tomerle other. All the which earles and loods brought with them a great & ffrong power, energe of them in their beffaraic, as it were to ftrengthen the king against his entinies. The dukes of Lancaffer and Poske were likewise there, guing their attendance on the king with like furniture of men of armes & archers. There was not halfe lodging fufficient within the citie f luburbes of London for ludy copanies of men as the loods brought with them to this parlement, called the great parlement in fomuth that they were confiremed to be in villages abjoad ten of twelve miles on ech lide the citie.

In the beginning of this parlement, the bing The greatlie complained of the milbemeanour of the great peres and looks of his realine, as well for the things pares and looks of his realine, as well and pleafure whiles he was done against his will and pleasure, whiles he was young, as for the Areit dealing, which they had the wed towards the quæne, who was the houres at one time on hir kness before the earle of Arundell, for one of hir elquiers, named John Caluerlie, who never the leffe had his head fmit fro his shoulders, a all the answer that the could get, was this : Padame, praie for your felfe, and your hulband, for that is best, and let this lute alone. Those that set footh the bings That let this fute alone. Apple upar feet twent up unings grounders, as prolocutors in this parlement were writing a thele: John Buthie, Calilliam Bagot, and Chomas or them 3 Orene. The king had caused a large house of time Gran. ber to be made within the palace at CCleffnunffer, ul ich he was called an hall, courred about head with 3 mg ulish he was called an gan, concrevation of the same tiles, and was open at the ends, that all men might the gland the galacter. for through it. This house was of so great a come wellman palle, that fearle it might fand within the rome of forthere the palace. In this house was made an high thone month to the king, and a large place for all estates besides by the king. to fit in. There were places also made for the appellants to famo on the one fide, and the defendants on the other, and a like rome was made behind for the Tobicosci linights and burgeffes of the parlement. There was Polycran a place denifed for the speaker, named fir John ben & 34a thie, a knight of Lincolnethire, accompted to be an o erceding cruell man, ambitious, and conetous be: speaker, vond measure.

Immediatlie affer, ech man being placed in his rome, the cause of assembling that parlement was thewed, as that the king had called it for reformation of diverse transgressions and oppositions committed against the peace of his land by the duke of Cloces ffer, the earles of Arundell, Warwike, and others. Then fir John Bulhie Gept forth, and made requelt on the behalfe of the communaltie, that it might please the kings highnesse so; their heinous acts at tempted against his lawes and rotall maiestic, to ap point them punishment according to their defer Theath tiings, and speciallie to the archbishop of Canturbus shoped Ca ric (who then fat nert the king) whome he accused of turbunal high treason, for that he had enill counselled his main ment is ment in ment is ment in ment is ment in ment i teffie, inducing him to grant his letters of pardon fed of media to his brother the earle of Arundell, being a ranke by the figures

Ethen the archbishop began to answer in his clime length, by the intercession and meanes of those noble 50 before, the king willed him to fit downe againe and to hold his peace, for all thould be well. Here with fir John Buthie besought the king, that the archbishop hould not be admitted to make his answer, with if he did, by reason of his great wit and god viterance, he feared leaft he thould lead men awaie to belieue him: so the archbishop might be heard no further. Sir John Bushie in all his talke, when he proponed any matter buto the king, did not attribute to him titles of honour, due and accustomed, but invenfed buuled termes and fuch frange names, as were rather agreeable to the dinine maieffic of God, than Imputer to any earthlie potentate. The prince being delle flattera rous inough of all honour, and more ambitious than was requilite, senied to like well of his speech, and game good care to his talke.

Thus when the archbishop was conscreined to hope filence, fir John Buthic proceeded in his putpole, requiring on the behalfe of the commons, that the charters of pardons granted buto the traitors, to wit, the duke of Cloceffer, and the earles of Arundell and Caarwike, should be revoked by consent of all the effaces now in parlement affembled. The king also for his part protested, that those pardons were not voluntarilie granted by him, but rather exterted

Ebe great Pariemene.

by compulsion, and therefore he belought them that eneric man would thew forth their opinions what they thought thereof. There were two other persons of great credit with the king, bestocs sir John Bu thie, that were, as before you have heard, berie ear, nest to have those charters of pardon renoked and made void, to wit, fir Millfam Bagot, and fir Aho, mas Græne.

But bicause this matter seemed to require and peliberation, it was first put to the bishops, who with 1 finall ado gave fentence, that the faid tharters were renocable, and might well inough be called in : yet the archbishop of Canturburie in his answer herebuto faid, that the king from whome those pardons came, was so high an estate, that he durst not fate, that anie luch charters by him granted, might be renoked : notwithstanding, his brethren the bishops thought otherwise: not considering (faith Thomas Walingham) that such revoking of the kings char, ters of pardon thould found highlie to the kings dife 20 hono2: forfomuch as mercie and pardoning trans gressions is accompted to be the confirmation and effablishing of the kings feat and rotall effate.

The temporal loods perceining what the bishops had done, oto like wife give their confents, to renoke the fame pardons : but the sudges with those that were toward the law, were not of this opinion, but finallie the bishops pretending a scrupulositie, as if they might not with fase consciences be present ted a laie man to be their prolocutor to serve that turne. To conclude, at length all maner of charters the charters of pardon were made boid, for that the fame femed to impeach the fuertie of the kings person. When six John Buthic and his affociats had obtained that reuscation, it was further by them declared, that the earle of Arundell had vet an other speciall charter of pardon for his owne person, which he had obteined affer the first . And therefore fir John Bushte ears nefflie requested in name of the communaltie that 40 the fame might like wife be renoked.

The question then was asked of the bishops, who beclared themselves to be of the like opinion, touch ing that charter, as they were of the other. At that selfe time the archbishop of Canturburie absented himselfe from the parlement, in hope that the king would be his freend, and frand his verie good load, for that he had promifed nothing thould be done againft The archb, of burn in the parlement whilest he was absent. But Commission neverthelesse, at the importunate sute of the said 50 incomed to fir John Bushie and others, the archbishop was conbenned but perpetuali erile, and appointed to auoid the realme within fir tweekes. And there with the king imporation. Lent feccestie to the pope for order that the archbilhop might be removed from his fee to some other, which lute was obteined, and Roger Walden lood treasus recives executed archbishop in his place, as after thall appeare.

Onthe feath daie of faint Patthew, Richard fitz Aleine, earle of Arundell, was brought footh to 60 lweare before the king and whole parlement to luch articles as he was to be charged with . And as he find at the bar, the lood Penill was commanded by described the duke of Lancaster, which sat that daic as high femare of England, to take the hood from his necke, and the girdle from his waste. Then the duke of Lancoffer declared buto him, that for his manifold rebels lions and treasons against the kings maichtic he had beine arrefled, and hitherto kept in ward, and now at the petition of the loads and commons, he was called to answer such crimes as were there to be obteded against him, and so to purge himselfe, or else to luffer for his offenles, such punishment as law ap-

First, he charged him, for that he had traitoreullie rid in armour against the king in companie of the duke of Gloceffer, and of the earle of Warwike, to the breach of peace, and disquieting of the realme. His answer hereonto was, that he did not this boon The carle of anic euill meaning towards the kings person, but Frundell his rather for the benefit of the king and reline, if it were answers to interpreted aright, and taken as it ought to be . It his indictuet, was further demanded of him, thie heppocured letters of pardon from the k. if he know himfelfe gilts leffer He answered, that he did not purchase them for anie feare he had of faults committed by him, but to state the malicious speach of them that neither los ned the king nor him. He was againe asked, whether he would denie that he had made anic fuch rode with the persons before named, and that in companie of them be entred not armed buto the kings prefence against the kings will and pleasure ? To this he and swered, that he could not denie it, but that he so

Then the speaker sir John Bushie, with open , mouth, belought that indgement might be had as gainst such a traitour: and your faithfull commons 39 (faid he to the king) alke and require that fo it may 33 be done. The earle turning his head alide, quietlie faid to him; Pot the kings faithfull comons require " this, but thou, and what thou art I know . Then the >> eight appellants francing on the other fide, caff their ,, gloues to him, and in profecuting their appeale (which thereingement of bloud thould patte, they appoint 30 alreadie had beine read) offered to fight with him " man to man to fulfific the fame. Then faid the earle, If I were at libertie, and that it might fo fland with the pleasure of my sourceigne, I would not refuse to prove you all liers in this behalfe. Then spake the buke of Lancaster, saleng to him; What have you further to fair to the points before late against you? De answered, that of the kings grace behad his let: >> ters of generall pardon, which he required to have allowed. Then the duke told him, that the pardon was renoked by the prelates and noble men in the parles ment, and therefore willed him to make some other answer. The earle told him againe that he had an >> other pardon binder the kings great feale, granted him long after of the kings owne motion, which also >> he required to have allowed. The duke told him, that the same was likewise renoked. After this, when the The carle of carle had nothing moze to fate for himfelfe, the duke Arundell cons pronounced sudgement against him, as in cases of demised.

treason is bled. But after he had made an end, and pauled a little, he faid: The king our soucreigne lood of his mercie and grace, bicause thou art of his blond, and one of the peeres of the realme, both remitted all the other paines, fauing the last, that is to faie, the beheading, and so thou thalt ouclie lose thy head; and forthwith he was had awaie, + led through London buto the Tower hill. There went with him to lie the execution dome fir great loods, of inome there were the earles, Potingham (that had marri ed his daughter) Kent (that was his daughters fon) and Buntington, being mounted on great horffes, with a great companie of armed men, and the fierce bands of the Chelhire-men, furnished with ares, fluords, bolives and arrowes, marching before and behind him, who onelie in this parlement had licence to beare weapon, as some have written. When he should depart the palace, he desired that his hands might be loved to dispose such monie as he had in his purife, betwirt that place and Charingcroffe. This was permitted, and so he gave such monte as he have in almes with his owne hands, but his armes were fill bound behind him.

When he came to the Tower hill, the noble mers that were about him, moved him right carneallie to

Lom. Walf.

Chi carle of tranocti az tagno, andinos.

acknowledge his treason against the king. But he in no wife would so do, but mainteined that he was never traitour in wood or deed; and herewith perceis uing the earles of Potingham and Bent, that food by with other noble men bulie to further the erecutiv on(being as ye have heard) of kin and alied to him, he wake to them, and faid: Trulie it would have bece femed von rather to hane bene absent than here at ce this businesse. But the time will come per it be long, then as manie hall meruell at your missortune as 10 do now at mine. After this, forgining the crecutios es ner, he befought him not to toment him long, but to Arthe off his head at one blowe, and faling the edge of the fword, whether it was tharpe inough or not , be ce faid; It is verie well, ow that thou half to dwquicks lie, and so knieling downe, the executioner with one The execution throne, frake off his head; his bodie was buried to, of the earle of gither with his head in the church of the Augustine friers in Breadfret within the citie of London.

The death of this earle was much lamented at 20 mong the people, confidering his fudden fall and mi fcrable end, where as not long before among all the noblemen of this land (within the which was such a number, as no countrie in the world had greater Noze at that prefent)there was none more effæmed: fo noble and valiant he was, that all men fpake ho. nour of him. After his death, as the fame went, the king was fore vered in his flepe with borrible dreames, imagining that he faw this earle appeare buto him threatning him, sputting him in horrible 30 feare, as if he had faid with the poet to king Kichard;

Nunc quoq factorum venio memor vmbra tuorum, Infequor or vultus offer formatuos.

With which villous being lose troubled in fleepe, he curffed the daie that ever be knew the earle. And he was the more buquiet, bicause he heard it repor ted, that the common people toke the erle for a martyz infomuch that some came to visit the place of his sepulture, for the opinion they had conceived of his holineffe. And where it was bruted abroad as for a 40 miracle, that his head should be growne to his bodie againe, the tenth daic after his buriall, the king fent about ten of the clocke in the night, certeine of the nobilitie to lie his bodie taken by, that he might be certified of the truth. Which done, and perceiving it was a fable he commanded the friers to take downe his armes that were fet by about the place of his bu riall, and to coner the grane, fo as it thould not be perceived where he was buried.

The earle of warwike ara treafon.

Quid.

But now to returne to the parlement. After the 50 death of this earle, the lood Thomas Beauchampe earle of Warwike was brought forth to abide his triall by parlement, and when his accusers charged him in like points of treason, such as before were imposed to the earle of Arundell; he answered that he never meant cuill to the kings person, not thought that those roses and assemblies that were made in companie of the duke of Glocester, the earle of A. rundell, and others, might not be accompted treason. But when the judges had the wed him, that they could so thefe noble men, whome he had thus advanced to not be otherwise taken than for treason, he humblie befought the king of mercic and grace. The king then alked of him whether he had rio with the duke of Gloceffer, and the earle of Arundell, as had beene als ledged ? De answered that he could not denie it, and wified that he bad neuer fæne them. Then faid the king, Do po not know that you are guiltie of treas fon ? De answered againe, Jacknowledge it; and with sobbing teares besought all them that were present, to make intercession to the kings matestie for him.

Then the king and the duke of Lancaffer communed, and after the king had a while with filence considered of the matter, he said to the earle; By faint John Baptiff, Thomas of Warlvike, this confeffion that thou haff made, is buto me more avalla. ble than all the duke of Glocefters and the earle of Warwikes lands. Herewith the earle making fill intercellion for pardon, the lords humblic be fought the king to grant it . Finallie the king pardoned bim of life, but banithed him into the 3le of Ban, which then was the losd Scropes , promiting that both he, and his wife, and chilozen, thould have good interteinment . Which promife notwithstanding was but flenderlie kept, for both the earle and the counteffe liucd in great penurie (as fome waite) and pet the load Scrope, that was load chamberleine, had allowed for the earles diet foure thousand nobles perelie paid out of the kings coffers.

On the mondaie next after the arreignement of the earle of Warwike, to wit, the foure and twentie of September, was the logo John Cobham, and fir John Cheinie arreigned, and found guiltie of like treasons for which the other had beene condemned before: but at the earnest instance and sute of the no, bles, they were pardoned of life, and banified, or (as Fabian faith) condemned to perpetuall pation. The king delirous to fee the force of the Londoners, cap fed them (during the time of this parlement) to mu fer before him on Blacke heath, where a man might have fene a great number of able perfonages. And now after that the parlement had continued almost till Chrismasse, it was adjourned butill the quin Thepating den of S. Pilarie, then to begin againe at Spewel adiounion burie.

The king then came downe to Lichfield, and there The king held a roiall Chailmalle, which being ended, he toke kapethis his tournie towards Shewelburie, where the parle. Chulmate ment was appointed to begin in the quinden of faint at Lithfuth, Pilarie, as befoze pée haue heard. In which parle, 1398 ment there holden bpon prozogation, for the love that the king bare to the gentlemen and commons of the thire of Thefter, he caused it to be ordeined that from thenceforth it should be called and knowne by the name of the principalitie of Theffer: and herewith Cheffett he intituled himselfe prince of Chester. He held allo made appar a rotall feath, keeping open houthold for all honest cipalitie. commers, during the which feat, he created five & Richer bulkes and a ducheffe, a marqueffe, and foure earles minter of The carle of Derbie was created duke of Pereford, Chilin. the earle of Potingham that was also earle mar, Creational Mall duke of Posfolke, the earle of Rutland duke bukes and of Aubemarle, the earle of Bent duke of Surrie, and tarks. the earle of Huntington duke of Excesser; the ladie Pargaret marthall counteste of Porfolke, was created duchelle of Porfolke; the earle of Summer fet marques Dorfet, the lord Spenfer carle of Gloceffer, the lord Penill furnamed Daurabie earle of Westmerland, the load William Scrope load thanv berleine earle of Wiltshire, and the load Thomas Perfie losd felvard of the kings boule earle of

And for the better maintenance of the chate of higher degrees of honour, he gave buto them agreat part of those lands that belonged to the duke of Glo ceffer, the earles of Warwike, and Arundell. And now he was in goo hope, that he had roted op all plants of treason, and therefore cared lesse two might be his frænd og his fo, than before he had done, efter ming himfelfe higher in degree than anie prince li uing, and so presumed further than ever his grand father did, and twke byon him to beare the arms of k. Bichard faint Coward, foining them buto his owne armes, beareth To conclude, that soeuer he then did, none dars comme speake a word contrarie therebuto. And yet such as there chose a state of the contraries therebuto. were chafe of his councell, were estained of the commons to be the world creatures that might be,

Worcever.

as the dukes of Aumarle, Posfolke and Erceffer, as we earle of Wilthire, fir John Buffie, fir William Bagot, and ar Thomas Greene: which three last rememberd were knights of the Bath, against whom the commons bindoubtedlic bare great and printe

But now to proceed. In this parlement holden at hatred. En & large Shreinsburie, the lood Reginald Cobham, bringa verie aged man, simple and bezight in all his dear lings, was condemned for none other cause, but for that in the eleventh yeere of the kings reigne he was apointed with other to be attendant about the king as one of his governours. The acts and optimances allo deuised and citablished in the parlement holden in the cleucith yeare were likewife repealed. Poge. over, in this parlement at Sheewelburie, it was oe. tred, that the lood John Cobham fould be fent into the Ble of Gernefie, there to remaine in erile, hauing a fmall postion affigned him to line bpon . The king fo wought & brought things about , that he obteined 20 the whole power of both houses to be granted to certeine persons, as to John duke of Lancaffer, Co. assurance mand butte of Poste, Comund buke of Anmarle, Chomas duke of Surrie, John duke of Erceffer, John marqueste Dorfet , Roger earle of March, John carle of Salifourie, and Henrie carle of Pos thumberland, Momas earle of Bloceffer, and Willb am earle of Wiltithire , John Huffe , Denrie Chei: mefwike, Robert Teie, and John Bonlofer knights. or to feauen or eight of them. Thefe were appointed 3 to heare and determine certeine petitions and mate ters pet depending and not ended : but by vertue of this grant, they proceeded to conclude byon other things, which generallie touched the knowledge of the whole parlement, in derogation of the Cates there of, to the disaduantage of the king, and perillous erample in time to come.

When the king had frent much monie in time of this parlement, he demanded a difine and a halfe of lie a generall pardon was granted for all offenfes to all the kings subjects (fiftie onelie excepted) whose names he would not by anie meanes expresse, but referred them to his owne knowledge, that when as nic of the nobilitie offended him, he might at his ples fure name him to be one of the number excepted, and to keepe them fill within his danger. To the end that the ordinances, indgements, and ads made, promounced and effabliffed in this parlement, might be wo to the perpetual trength and to tee, the king bid against purchased the popes buls, in which were conteined gravous centures and curffes, pronounced againft the datute, all fuch as did by anie means go about to breake and violate the statutes in the same parlement ordeined. These buls were openlie published a read at Paules croffe in London, and in other the most publike places of the realme.

Panic other things were done in this parlement, to the displeasure of no small number of people; namelie, for that diverfe rightfull beires were diffe. 60 rited of their lands and livings, by authoritie of the fame parlement : with which wrongfull doings the people were much offended, so that the king and those hat were about him, and chefe in councell, came into great infamic and flander. In deed the king after he had dispatched the duke of Gloceffer, and the other noblemen, was not a little glad, for that he knew them Will readic to disappoint him in all his purpoles; and therefore being now as it were carelelle, did not behaue himselse (as some haue written) in such discret ower , as manie wished : but rather (as in time of prosperitie it often hameneth)he forgot himfelfe, and beganto rule by will more than by reason, threatning death to each one that obcied not his inozdinate delires. By means thereof, the losos of the realme began to feare their owne effates, being in danger of his furious outrage, whome they twhe for a man destitute of sobzietic and wisedome, and there fore could not like of him, that so abused his autho-

Herebpon there were fundic of the nobles, that lamented thele mildhefes, and specialtie the wed their greefes buto fuch, by whose naughtie counsell they under floo the hing to be miled; and this they did to the end that they being about him, might either turne their copies, and give him better counfell; 02 elfe he having knowledge what emil report went of him, might meno his maners milliked of his nobles. But all wis in vaine, for lott fell out, that in this parlement holoen at Shewfourie, Henrie onlic of Bereford ap-Hereford acculed Thomas Powbrate buke of Por pealeth the folke, of certeine woods which he thould ofter in talke had betwirt them, as they robe togither latelie before folk of trefon, betwirt London and Brainford, founding highlie to the kings bilhonos. And for further profe thereof he presented a suplication to the king, wherein he appealed the duke of Porfolke in field of battell, for a traitoz, falle and diffoiall to the king, and enimie bro to the realme. This supplication was red before both the dukes, in presence of the king : which done, the buke of Possolke take boon him to answer it, beclaring that whatsoener the onke of Deresord had faid against him other than well, he lied falselie like an untrue knight as he was . And when the king af ked of the duke of Bereford what he faid to it : he taking his hoo off his head, faid; Py fouereigne load, euen as the suplication which I toke you importeth, >> right to I faie for truth, that Thomas Mowbrate buke of Porfolke is a traitour, falle and diffoiall to 22 pour rotall materie, pour crowne, and to all the fates of your realine.

Then the duke of Porfolke being asked what he faid to this he answered: Right dere load, with your the clergie, and a fifteenth of the tempozaltie. Final 40 fauour that I make answer buto pour cofine here, I faie (your renerence faned) that Benrie of Lan >> caller dake of Hereford, like a falle and dillotall trais toz as he is, both lie, in that he hath or thall fay of me ?? other wife than well. Po more fato the king, we have heard inough: and herewith commanded the duke of Burrie for that turne marchall of England, to ar. The duke of rad in his name the two bukes: the buke of Lancather father to the duke of Hereford, the duke of Porkc the duke of Aumarie constable of England: and the marie con-Erichpeans and ablde in perpetuall Arength and force, the king 5° duke of Survie marchall of the realme budertoke Cable of Engs as pleages bodie for bodie for the duke of Hereford: land. but the duke of Porthfolke was not luffered to put in pledges, and fo under arrest was led unto Mindloz caffell, and there garded with keepers that were appointed to le him fafelie kept.

Pow after the dissoluting of the parlement at Shiewsburie, there was a date appointed about six weeks after, for the king to come buto Windlog, to heare and to take some order betwirt the two dukes, which had thus appealed ech other. There was a great The order of scaffold erected within the castell of Windsoz foz the king to lit with the loops and prelats of his realme: and so at the date appointed, he with the said loads epielats being come thither and fet in their places, the duke of Hereford appellant, and the duke of Porfolke defendant, were fent for to come a apeare before the king, litting there in his feat of inffice. And then began fir John Bulhie to fpeake for the king, beclaring to the losos bow they should buderstand, that where the duke of Pereford had prefented a fupplication to the king, tho was there let to minister fulfice to all men that would demand the fame, as awerteinco to his rotall matellie, he therefore would now heare what the parties could say one against buke of Doz-

Thom, Walk

Burrie mara tuke of Au=

in this endistant.

an other, and withall the king commanded the dukes of Aumarle and Surrie, the one being conffable, and the other marthall, to go buto the two dukes, appeltant and defendant, requiring them on his behalfe, to grow to some agreement : and for his part, he would be readie to pardon all that had beene faid 02 done amille betwirt them, touching anie harme oz bishonor to him or his realme : but they answered both affuredlie, that it was not possible to have ante peace or agræment made betwirt them.

When he heard what they had answered, he commanded that they thould be brought forthwith beforchis prefence, to heare what they would fay. Here, with an herald in the kings name with lowd voice commanded the dukes to come before the king, ci ther of them to thew his reason, or else to make peace togither without more delaie. When they were come before the king and loods, the king spake himselfe to them, willing them to agree, and make peace togis ther: for it is (faid he) the best waie pe can take. The 20 duke of Porfolke with due renerence herebnto ans Apered it could not be so brought to passe, his hos nor faued . Then the king afted of the duke of Deres ford, that it was that he demanded of the duke of ec Posfolke, and that is the matter that ye can not make peace togither, and become friends?

Then floo fouth a knight; tho afking and obteining licence to speake for the duke of Dereford, faid; The objection Right deare and fourreigne lood, here is Henrie of Lancaffer duke of Hereford and earle of Derbie, 30 who faith , and I for him like wife fay , that Thomas Dobwiaic duke of Porfolke is a falle and distoiall traitor to you and your rotall matellie, and to your ec thole realme : and likewise the duke of Bereford faith and I for him, that Thomas Powbraic duke of ce Porfolke hath received eight thouland nobles to pay the fouldiers that keepe your towne of Calis, which he hath not done as he ought: and furthermoze the faid duke of porfolke hath brine the occation of all the treason that hath bone contriued in your realme 40 apperteined. cc for the space of these eightene yeares, tby his false fuggeftions and malicious counfell, be bath caufed to se die and to be murdered your right dere busle, the duke of Bloceffer, sonne to king Coward. Wozeo. uer, the buke of Dereford faith, and I for him, that > the faid duke of Porfolke within lifts. The king ce herewith wared angrie, and alked the duke of Berei ford, if these were his words, who answered: Right ce dere lood, they are my woods; and hereof I require 50 in a tower that belonged to fir William Bagot) to right, and the battell against him.

he will proue this with his bodic against the bodie of

There was a knight also that asked licence to speake for the duke of Porfolke, and obteining, it began to answer thus: Right dere sourceigne loed, here is Thomas Powbraie duke of Porfolke, who cc answereth and saith, and I for him, that all which Genrie of Lancafter hath faid and declared (fauing ce the renerence due to the king and his councell) is a lic; and the faid Henrie of Lancaffer hath fallelie and wickeblie lied as a falle and billotall knight, and 60 both hath bene, and is a traitor against you, your crowne, roiall maiestie, & realme. Ehis will 3 proue ce and defend as becommeth a locall knight to do with comp bodie againft his : right dere loed, 3 belech pou therefore, and your councell, that it maie please you cin pour rotall discretion, to confider and marke, what cc Benric of Lancatter duke of Bereford, fuch a one as he is, bath faid.

The king then demanded of the duke of Porfolke. if these were his words, and thether he had anie more to faie. The duke of Porfolke then answered forhimselfe : Right bore fir, true it is, that 3 haue received fo much gold to paie your people of the towne of Calis; which I have done, and I do anouch that your towne of Calis is as well kept at your commandement as ever it was at anie time before, and that there never both beene by anie of Calis anie complaint made buto you of me. Right dure and" my fouereigne lood, for the voiage that 3 made into France, about your marriage, I neuer received et ther gold or filner of you, nor yet for the votage that the buke of Aumarle & I made into Almane, idiere we fpent great treasure : Parie true it is , that once >> I laid an ambufh to have flaine the duke of Lancar fter, that there litteth: but nevertheleffe he hath par, >> doned me thereof, and there was god peace made betwirt bs, for the which I yeld him hartie thankes, This is that which I have to answer, and I am readie ,, to defend my felfe against mine aduerfarie; I beferch you therefore of right, and to have the battell agains? him in opzight iudgement.

After this, when the king had communed with his councell a little, he commanded the two onkes to frand fouth, that their answers might be heard . The B. then caused them once againe to be alked, if they would agree and make peace togither, but they both flatlie answered that they would not: and withall the duke of Gereford cast downe his gage, and the duke of Porfolketwke it bp. The king perceining this de meanog betwirt them, fware by faint John Bautiff. that he would never feeke to make peace betwirt them againe. And therfore fir John Buthie in name of the king & his councell beclared, that the king and his councell had commanded and ordeined, that they Mould have a date of battell appointed them at Co' The combin ventrie. There waiters dilagree about the daie that appointed in was appointed : for some saie, it was boon a mone be bont at date in August; other voon saint Lamberts date, being the seventhenth of September, other on the cleventh of September; but true it is, that the king as figned them not onlie the date, but also appointed Fabian. them likes and place for the combat, and therebpon great preparation was made, as to luch a matter

At the time appointed the king came to Coventrie, Anno Mg. 11 where the two dukes were readie, according to the order prescribed therein, comming thither in great arraie, accompanied with the loads and gentlemen of their linages. The king caused a sumptuous scale fold or theater, and roiali liftes there to be created and prepared. The fundate before they thould fight, after dinner the duke of Hereford came to the king (being lodged about aquarter of a mile without the towns take his leave of him. The mozolo after, being the date appointed for the combat, about the spring of the Date, came the duke of Porfolke to the court to take leave likewife of the king. The onke of Hereford are med him in his tent, that was let op nære to the liffs, and the duke of Porfolke put on his armor, betwirt the gate the barrier of the towne, in a beautifull house, having a faire perclois of woo towards the gate, that none might lie what was done within the bouse.

The duke of Aumarie that date, being high cone Chronick fable of England, and the duke of Surrie marthall, the combi placed themselves betwirt them, well armed and appointed; and when they faw their time, they first en tered into the liftes with a great companie of men amarelled in filke fendall, imbrodered with filuer, both richlie and curioullie, enerie man hauing a tip ped faffe to keepe the field in order. About the houre of prime came to the barriers of the liftes, the duke of Dereford, mounted on a white courser, barded with greene & blew beluet imbzodered fumptuoulie with fwans and antelops of goldfiniths worke, at nicd at all points. The constable and marshall came to the barriers, demanding of him what he was, be enimered;

The bulte of Morfolke hig answer for bimfelfe.

A 193

An.Reg.21.

antwered; Jam Benrie of Lancaster duke of Be reford, which am come hither to do mine indenor as " gaint Thomas Dowbraic Dulie of Porfolke, as a traito ontrue to Bod, the king, his realine, anome. then incontinentlie be sware voon the holie quant geliffs, that his quarrell was true and just and opon that point he required to enter the litter Apen he put top his fword, which before he held naked in his hand, and putting downe his viloz, made a crosse on his horse, and with spears in hand; entered into the lists, a and bescended from his bootle, and let him downe in a haire of græne veluet, at the one end of the lifts, and there reposed himselse, abiding the comming of his aduerfarie.

Some after him, entred into the field with great triumph, king Kichard accompanied with all the peres of the realme, and in his companie was the earle of faint Paule, which was come out of France inpost to lie this challenge performed. The king had there aboue ten thousand men in armour, leaft some 20 fraie or turnult might-rife amongst his nobles, by quarelling or partaking. When the king was fet in his feat, which was righte hanged and adopted; a bing at armes made open proclamation, probibis ting all men in the name of the king, and of the biah conflable and marthall, to enterpaile or attempt to approchang part of the lifts bpon paine of death, except fuch as were appointed to order or marthall the field. The proclamation ended, another hec ralo cried; Wichold here Penrie of Lancaffer duke 3 of Hereford appellant, which is entred into the lists "roial to do his devoir against Thomas Powbraie conte of Rosfolke defendant, byon paine to be found « false and recreant.

The duke of Porfolke houered on horstebacke at the entrie of the lifts, his horde being barded with crimosen veluet, imbrodered richlie with lions of filuer and mulberie tres; and when he had made his othbefore the constable and marshall that his quare rell was full and true, he entred the field manfullie, 40 " faieng alowd: God ato him that hath the right, and then he departed from his hoalle, & fate him dolune in his chaire which was of crimolen veluet, courtined about inith white and red damaike. The lock marihali viewed their speares, to see that they were of equall length, and delivered the one speare himselfe to the duke of Vereford, and fent the other but o the duke of Possolke by a knight. Then the herald proclamed that the traverses & chaires of the champions Chould be removed, commanding them on the kings ber 50 halfe to mount on hortebacke, t addrete themfelues to the battell and combat.

The duke of Hereford was auticklie borted, and clofeohis bauter, and cast his speare into the rest, and then the trumpet founded fet forward couragiouslic towards his enimie fix or feuen pales. The duke of Porfolke was not fullie fet forward, when the king call downe his warder, and the heralds cried, Ho, ho. Then the king caused their speares to be taken from them, and commanded them to repaire agains to 60 at the hart therebuto serveth the poets allusion, their chaires, where they remained two long houres, while the king and his councell deliberative confulted what order was best to be had in so weightie a cause. Finallic, after they had deutsed, and fullie determined that should be done therein, the heralds tried filence; and fir John Buffie the kings fecretas rieread the fentence and determination of the king ch singles and his councell, in a long roll, the effect wherof was, be between that Henrie duke of Hereford Mould within fiffæne dates depart out of the realnie, and not to returne before the terms of ten years were expired, except by the king he spould be repealed againe, and this byon paine of death; and that Momas Powbzaie buke of Possolbe, bicause he had solven sedition in the relme by his words, thould like toile anoth the realme, and neuer to returne againe into England, noz approch the borders or confines thereof byon paine of death; and that the king would flate the profits of his lands. till he had louied thereof fuch fummes of monie as the duke had taken op of the kings treasuror for the wages of the garrison of Calis, which were still but

When these sudgements were once read, the hing called before him both the parties, and made them to Sweare that the one thould never come in place where the other was, willinglie; not keepe any companie to gither in any forcen region; which oth they both received humblie, and to went their inaies. The duke of Postolke departed fosowfullie out of the relime into Almanie, and at the last came to Tlenice, where he for thought and melancholie deceased : for he was in hope (as writers record) that he thould have beene borne out in the matter by the king, which then it fell out otherwise, it graved him not a little. The duke of Hereford twhe his leave of the king at Eltham, who there released soure yeares of his bas nishment: so he toke his fornte over into Calis, and from thence went into France, where he remained. A wonder it was to lie what number of people ran affer him in euerie towne and ffret where he came. before he take the fea, lamenting and bewailing his The duke of departure, as the would faie, that then he departed, thereford beathe onelie fhield, defende and comfort of the common nearly o wealth was vaded and gone.

At his comming into France, king Charles head ring the cause of his banishment (which he esteemed The duke of to be verte light) received him gentlie, and him hono. Decetord is rablie interteined, in so much that he had by favour honozablie inobteined in mariage the onelie daughter of the duke terreined with of Berrie, bucle to the French king, if king Richard king. had not beene a let in that matter, who being the reof certified, fent the earle of Salisburie with all speed into France, both to furmise by untrue luggeliton, Froiffard, beinous offenfes against him, and also to require the French king that in no wife he would fuffer his cous fine to be matched in martage with him that was fo manifest an offendoz. This was a pestilent kind of proceeding against that nobleman then being in a forren countrie, having bene so honorablie received as he was at his entrance into France, and byon view and god liking of his behaviour there, so for ward in mariage with a ladie of noble linage. So tharpe, to feuere, fo beinous an acculation, brought to a ffrange king from a naturall prince, againff his subject, after punishment inflicted (for he was banis thed) was inough to have made the French king his fatall fo, a boon suspicion ofassaieng the like treches rie against him, to have throwne him out of the le mits of his land. But what will envie leave bnattempted, where it is once fetled. And how are the malicious tormented with egernes of revenge against them whom they maligne, wringing themselves in the meane tinte with inward pangs gnawing them

Inuidia Siculi non inuenêre tyranni Maius tormentum

On pelveares day this yeare, the river that palfeth betwirt Suellecton oz Snelcton, and Harewoo, two billages not far from Bedford, ludenlie ceaffed his course, so as the chanell remained drie by the space of thee miles, that any man might enter into, and palle the fame drie fot at his pleafure. This die uision, which the water made in that place, the one part læming as it were not to come nære to the o ther, was ludged to lignifie the revolting of the lubieds of this land from their naturall prince. It map be, that the water of that river fanke into the ground, and by some secret passage of chanell take Hor.lib. epist. 1.

1399

course till it came to the place there it might rise a gaine as in other places is likewife feene.

Pabian.

Bianke char=

De have heard before, how the artifulpop of Cani turburie Thomas Arundell, was banifitthe relivie, and Roger Malden was made archbilhop of that fie, who was a great fanourer of the citie of London, the which was efflones about this featon faller into the kings displeasure; but by the diligent labour of this archbishop, and of Robert Beatbroke then bis Mop of London, byon the humble suplication of the 10 citizens, the kings whath was pacified. But vetto rontent the kings mind , mante blanke charters were deutled, and brought into the citie, which manile of the substantial and wealthie citizens were faine to feale, to their great charge, as in the end appeared. And the like charters were fent abroad into all Thires within the realme, thereby great grudge and murmuring arole among the people : for when they were fo fealed, the kings officers wrote in the fame that liked them, as well for charging the parties with pale 20 ment of monie, as other wife.

The death of Lancalter.

Tho.Walfi.

In this meane time, the duke of Lancaffer departed out of this life at the bilhop of Clies place in Bolbonne, and lieth buried in the cathedrall church of faint Paule in London, on the northfide of the high altar, by the ladie Wlanch his first wife. The death of this duke game occasion of increasing more hatred in the people of this realme toward the king, for he feized into his hands all the gods that belonged to him, and also received all the rents and revenues of 30 his lands which ought to have descended but othe duke of Bereford by lawfull inheritance, in renoking his letters patents, which he had granted to him before, by vertue therof he might make his attorneis generall to fue liveric for him, of any maner of inheritances or possessions that might from thence forth fall but o him, and that his homage might be refpitco, with making reasonable fine: whereby it was euldent, that the king meant his ofter bnowing.

bilitie, and cried out against of the meaner fort : but namelie the duke of Porke was therewith fore mos ned, who before this time, had borne things with fo patient a mind as he could, though the fame touched him verieneere, as the death of his brother the duke of Blocester, the banishment of his nemue the said duke of Hereford, and other mo infuries in great number, which for the Aipperie youth of the king, he palled ouer for the time, and did forget aswell as he might. But now perceining that neither law, tuffice 50 nor equitie could take place, where the kings wilfull will was bent boon any wrongfull purpole, he confibered that the glozie of the publike wealth of his countrie must needs decate, by reason of the king his lacke of wit, and want of fuch as would (without flatteric) admonth him of his dutie : and therefore he thought it the part of a wise man to get him in time to a reffing place, and to leave the following of fuch an unaduised capteine, as with a leden swood would cut his owne thoat.

The bulce of Reththe come let to farme by the king.

hereupon he with the duke of Aumarle his fonne went to his house at Langlic, retotling that nothing egoeth home, had mithappened in the common-wealth through his deutle or confent. The con mon brute ran, that the king had fet to farme the realme of England, but to fir William Scrope earle of Wilthire, and then trealuro: of England, to fir John Bufhie, fir John Bagot, and fir Penrie Greene knights. ¶ About the fame time, the earle of Arundels sonne, named Thomas, which was kept in the duke of Ereters house, escaped out of the realme, by meanes of one William Scot mercer, and went to his bucle Thomas A. rundell late archbishop of Canturburie, as then so iourning at Cullen. Thing Richard being beiff

Tho. Walfi.

tute of trealure to furnify fuch appraiselie port as he mainteined bourdwed great fammes of monic of manie of the great loods and persuof his realine both fricatual and temporall, and liketulo of other meanspectons, manufaction in good corned, by believing to them his terrers patents for affurance, that he monitorepate the monte to borrowed at a date appointed: which not with transing he never paid.

Moreover, this peaks he sauled leventene hires Comme of the traine by water pitting them to their fines 10115 to pate 100 finall fummes of monte, for redenning their offeined; that they had alved the duke of Gloce. fice, theeneles of Arribbell, and Warrothe, then they rofe in armog against him. The nobles, gentlemen, Che par and commons of those thires were inforced also to of this ex receive a new oth to alline the king of their fidelitie was the In time to come; and withan certeine prelate and o pleane ther honogable personages; were sent into the same the hi thires to persuade men to this paintent, and to see the to things ordered at the pleasure of the princerand sure inspirators things ordered at the pleasure of the special than the fines which the nobles, and other the meaner that we think the state that the state th estates of those thires were constrained to paie, were ned to pai not finall, but erceding great, to the offense of ma gant its nic. Pozeotier, the kings letters patents were fent billes, into everte thire within this land, by vertue whereof, info everte three within this tame, by vertile university, an off was demanded of all the kings liege people confirmity for a further affurance of their due obedience, and of alternative of the forms in the first of the first of the forms in the first of the forms in the first of the first they were confireined to ratifie the fame in writing anchybis bnder their hands and feales.

Moreover they were compelled to put their hands and feales to certeine blankes, wherof ye have heard before, in the which, when it pleased him he might write what he thought god. There was also a new oth denifed for the thiriffes of everte countie through the realme to receive: finallie, manie of the kings liege people were through spite, enuic, and malice, acculed, apprehended, & put in prifon, and affer brought Indica before the constable and marthall of England, in the Dralings. court of chinalrie, and might not other wife be delines This hard dealing was much milliked of all the no. 40 red, except they could luftiffe themfelnes by combat and fighting in lifts against their accusers hand to hand, although the accusers for the most partivers lustie, young and valiant, where the parties accused were perchance old, impotent, maimed and fichlie. Therespon not onelic the great defiredion of the realme in generall, but also of everte fingular perfon in particular, was to be feared and loked for.

About this time the billiop of Calcedon came into Abr. Floated England, with letters apostolicall of admonition, Thom Wil that the faithfull and locall of the land Chould of their page39% gods disbursse somewhat to the emperour of Confrantinople, who was extremelie bered and troubled by the Tartars, and their capteine called Pozen. And to the intent that the pæres of the land might be made the more willing and toward to bestow their contribution in this behalfe, the pope granted buto all benefactors (trulie contrite and confessed) full remillion, and wrapped in his bitter censures all such as hindered those that were willing to bestow their be-60 nevolence in this case; considering, that although the emperour was a schismatike, yet was he a chief frian, and if by the infidels he thould be oppelled, all chaffendome was in danger of ruine; having in his mind that faleng of the poet full fit for his purpole, Tunc tuares agitur paries cum proximus ardet. In this peare in a manner throughout all the Abr. Please realme of England, old baie trees withered, and af Thombes ferwards, confrarie to all mens thinking, grew grane againe, a Grange fight, and supposed to import some unknowne event. In this meane time the polyco king being advertised that the wild Irish dailie was fied and beffroised the fownes and villages within the English pale, and had flaine manie of the fould ers which late there in garifon for defense of that countrie.

3 mits at 111134107.

The duke of the being be=

main Irre

H.a.Marl.

Out of a matter John

Mamur.

countric, octormined to make efflones a botage this ther, t prepared all things necessarie for his passage now against the spring. A little besore his setting fwith, he caused a tusts to be holden at Mindeloz of fourtie knights and fourtie efquiers, against all commers, they to be amarelled in greene, with a white falcon, and the queene to be there well accompani-The hing fats co with ladics and damfels. When thefe tuffs were finished, the king departed toward Bristow, from icho ier into Betarowith thence to passe into Ireland, leaving the quæne with 10 bir traine Mill at Mindelog: he appointed for his lieutenant generall in his absence his uncle the duke of Porke: and to in the moneth of Aprill, as diverte yokinani authors write, he let forward from Mindeloz, and fis nallie toke thipping at Pilford, and from thence with two hundred thips, and a puillant power of men of armes and archers he failed into Freland. Thefridaie nertaffer his arrivall, there were flaine two hundred Irithmen at Fourd in Kenlis within the countie of Bildare, by that valiant gentleman 20 Jenico Dartois, and such Englishmen as he had there with him: and on the morrow nert infuing the citizens of Dublin inuaded the countrie of Dbzin, and flue thirtie and the Frithmen. The king also after he had remained about seucn baies at Waterfood, marched from thence towards french pams hitt that be- Bilkennie, and comming thither, faied thereabout fourtene daies, loking for the duke of Aumarle that was appointed to have met him, but he failed and fet forward againe, marching freight towards the countrie of Macmur the paincipall rebell in that feafon within Ireland, tho keeping himfelfe among wods with three thousand right hardie men, seemed to passe little for any power that might be brought a. gainst him. Det the king approching to the skirts of the lowes commanded his foldiers to fier the houses and billages: which was executed with great for waronelle of the men of war. And here for some bas liant act that he did of some other fauourable respect, 4 which the king bare to the losd Henrie sonne to the duke of Hereford, he made him knight. This Henrie was after king of England, succeeding bis father, and called by the name of Penrie the fift. There were nine of ten others made knights also at the same time.

Dioners feta

Poseover, there were two thouland & flue hundsed wishers cut pioners let a worke to cut downe the wods, and to make pallages through, and to then the Englithmen entred, and by force got through : for the Brithmen 50 fore feared the English bowes, but yet now and then they espicing their advantage, affailed oftentimes Englishmen with their darts, and flue diverse that went abroad to fetch in forrage. The bucle of Pacmuchaning a withie or with about his necke, came in and submitted himselfe, and likewise manie other naked and bare legged; so that the king seming to pitie their milerable frate, parboned them, and after ward he also sent onto Pacmur, promising that if he would come in and require pardon as his bucle had 60 done, he would receive him to mercie: but Pacmur binderstanding that for want of vittels, the king must needs retire within a short time, he refused the kings offer. The king with his armie remaining in those parts 11 dates, was in the end constreined to come backe, when all their vittels were spent: for more than they brought with them they could not get. They lost manie hortes in this tournie for want of promition and forrage.

As the king was withdrawne towards Dublin, through k, marching through the countrie, in ocloite of his entmics, that houered fill about his armie, Pacmur fent to the king, offering to talke of an agreement, if it thould please him to send any noble man to meet him at a place appointed. The king herebpon commanded the earle of Gloceffer to take with him two bundeed lances, and a thousand arthers, and to go to trie if he might by perfuation cause him to come in and lubmit himselfe. The earle went, and comming The carle of to talke with him, found him fo obstinate, that their Glocelter. parle freightwaies bake off: so taking leave cach of other, they departed, and the earle returned to the king, to advertise him what he had done and perceiued by the communication which he had had with Macmur.

The king was fore offended with the obstinatnes of the rebell, that would not agree otherwise: but so as he might remaine fill at libertie, without danger to lufter anie maner of punishment for his passed of fenses. Thereopon the king after his comming to Dublin, and that the armie had refted there, and in Anno Reg. 23. the countrie nære to the citie, for the space of fifteene De came daics, he divided his people into three parts, and sent Dublin the them abroad into the countrie to purfue the enimies Henric Marl. and withall made proclamation, that the fo cuer faith, could bring Pacmur onto his presence, thould have for his recompense a great reward: for he octermined not to depart the countrie, till he had him either bead or aline. But he knew full little then what incidents to hinder his purposed intention would after follow.

The same date that he sent abroad his armie thus The duke of into the feuerall parts, the duke of Aumarle with Aumarie, came not, where boon the king on Midlummer even 30 an hundred faile arrived, of whose coming the king was right foifull; and although he had vice no finall negligence in that he came no loner according to or der before amointed, vet the king (as he was of a gentle nature) courteoullie accepted his excuse: the ther he was in fault or not, I have not to faie; but berelie he was greatlie suspected, that he dealt not well in tarreng lo long after his time affigned . But now whilest the king rested at Dublin, his people so demeaned themselves, that the most part of the rebels, what by manhod and policie were subducd, and brought under subjection, and (as is to be thought) if no trouble had rifen in England to have called him backe he meant to have rio op the woos, and made some notable conquest at that time opon the rebels that pet held out. Pewerthelesse, during the time of his above there, such was the prowesse of him and his, that the Frish were well tamed, and forced to submit themselues: and pet the kings power made no great flaughter of them, if it be true that Christ. Okl. faith, speaking hereof in few words as after followeth:

Pergit ad indomitos princeps Richardus Hibernos, Inq, potestatem multo sine sanguine, sauo Marte reluctantes.

Pow willest he was thus occupied in denisting how to reduce them into lubication, and taking orders for the goo fraise and quiet government of the countrie. diverse of the nobilitie, aswell prelats as other, and likewife manie of the magistrats and rulers of the cities, townes, and communaltie, here in England, verceiung dailie how the realme diew to otter ruine, not like to be recovered to the former fate of wealth, whilest king Richard lived and reigned (as The buke of they toke it) deuiled with great deliberation, and Lancaster for confiderate aduite, to fend and fignifie by letters but ticited to exto duke Henrie, whome they now called (as he was pell king Ris in ded)duke of Lancatter and Hereford, requiring take boon bin him with all convenient speed to conveie himselfe the regunent, into England, promiting him all their aid, power and allifance, if he expelling It. Kichard, as a man not meet for the office he bare, would take boon him the scepter, rule, and diademic of his native land and region.

He therefore being thus called opon by mellen. gers and letters from his freends, and cheflic through fub Rich.2.

Bringe fens existing a

The duke of Britaine a great friend Lancatter.

The duke of Lamatter & ins adirerents England.

Identions ro. Polycinon.

Thom. Wall.

Chron. Bric.

Froiffard

te arrient perination of Chamas Arundell, late atchiuthop of Canturinurie, who as before per haue brardinad hene amound rom his ie, modanithed the waitine by ting Augards neiths. Jordim downe to Butaine ogither with he aid are puthop, were he was offulte weether it he rine no morele. and dunding remains it he nines tands, but there vere cerreme hips aggen, mo nave radio to, nin, ar dylace in date Butaine allen Le popr blanc is being nite monicies if Butaine; mo when all remaintion has note radie, te loke he featogither with the aid argorithop of Contribute rie, mains neppue Domas Armord, ionne monerc to the care earlier Armoud, sevenored with Lawer full, as counsue cears. There were allowith our, Reginald ow Louism ir Domas Erpingham, and ar Homas Kamifon inignis. Join Populi rie, Rovers Waterron, & Francis Count enquires: few elle were there . do. as ome with he had her paul affrene lauces, as they courned them in those 10 dates, that is to fate, menor armes, dirmitted and ipointed is the nie then was. Ger inher mite, har the duke of Britaine beitnered anto nin bace housancmen of voice. To attenount, mo that he had eight thips well dirnifed of he parre, mere Fronfara per spenketh but it three. Dozenner, mere Provilara and allo the anomicies of "Butaine auducy, that he chould cano at Alimmouth, op our English writers it femeth otherwise: for it appeareth up their affared separe, that he approximate othe hore, no not Tho. Wailing freight take tand, burtap douering alone, and thew o immieife now in this place, no now in that, to ite mat countenance was made up the people, mether hep meant enuloulite to refill him, as it enotie to rezeinemm.

Then the 1020 governor Edmund duke of Borke was advertised, that the duke of Lancater kept thill the lea, and was readle to arrive (but where no ment arif to fer for un cand, there was not any that under And the certemne) he fent to the toto chancellog all 40 mund Statford buthop of Exceller, and for the tord creaturo: Milliam Scrope earle of Millithire, and other of the sings prime councell, as four Buibie, Altiliam Bagor, Denrie Græne, ino John Kullell funghts of their de required to anow war they hought goo to be done in this matter, concerning the oute of Lancaifer, being on the teas. There are anodk. & crnc, noonel more tragge of land and there cogather an armie to relift the onne in his anding, but to how imail purpose their counsell ferred, he conclusion thereof plannie beclared, for he not part that were cailed, wen they came thither, iolotic protected , that they would not light against he dune of Lancarter, wome they know rove emil Dealt mithail.

The lood treaduros, Buthie, Bagor, and Græne, perceiting that the commons would cleave onto, and take part with the onke, liped awaie, caning the ford governour of the ceatine, and the toro chancellog to make what ignife they could for themselves: 30 Bagot gorium to Chrifer, mo to eleaped mro fres land; the other flev to the cailed of Buttow, in hope there to be in fatette . The buile of Lancaiter, after that he had coalted along it the those a certe une time, had got tome intelligence how the propies minos vere affected rowards him, ameed about the veginning of Julie in Doublhre, it a place comemine called Kamenipur, berwirt Guil and Budington, and with him not pail threefcore persons, as some write: but he was wionfullic recented of the foros, anights, magentlemen of those parts, that he found means by their helpe forthwithto affemble a great numder of veople, that were willing to faue his parc. The first mat came to him, were the logos of Linconcedure , and other countries amounting, to the lows Williamynnie, Kos, Darcie, and Braumont.

At his comming onto Doncater the earle of Durthumvertano and instimme ile Henric Derfie, parvens of the narmes against Scottano with the parbens of the marches against secondary mines is carried in Walliamer and came onto him mere is called the court of the carried that is the carried to the carried that is the carried th more with the same that were to him betteauteauthally put we perstance from no father, and an right it us wife, was Descouer he ondertone to caute the paintent of ar. as no inlages to be and downe, so bring the ting anyou government, to remove from minister age thremen, with were much of name to that he ting effection them more than of ance other; law vitte, neanie they were moze faithfull minin ban other, readie in all riperts to obete ins communde, nents and pleature. From Doncatter latting tom gorarmagnie armie about nin. je narmed with with all three through the countries, comming in (3) tetham into Berneite within the vace it have dates all be ungocatiets in bote dares veredur, ænded unto min.

Lie wie of Posse, mome sing Almardiableif is governour of the realine in its abience hearing har me remuerhe wise or Lancaiter was his are atted, and having athered an armie, we also alsembled a guillant power of men of armes and armers (as we. Armin ore new neard purall was in same or there be comme Das from a man that willing the boold divide out one other characters. arrowagains the miss of Lancater, 12 its parte Lancater sers, or in time wife offeno pun or pis frænos. Die tuke it 902ke heretore willing with omains . Water to meet the rang at his comming with it Freiand, was received into the caited or Berneile, mothere remained, til the comming hither of the duke of Lancauter (mom men de verceived that he bas not avie to reliff on the lumbate, after the least if faint James, which us that yeare came about, led opon the iridate, je came with into the murey that two without the called, and there communed with cheonice of Lancaiter. With the onne of Posne were the vilhops or Mozimin, the 1020 Libernette, the 2020 Deimour, and other: with the oune or Luncatter were there, Chomas Arunoed archithov of Tab curvurte that had væne vanilhed, the abbat of Acice fer, he enries a postbumveriano uno Meitmer iano, Domas Arunoeil fonne to Afcharo face sarie of Arundeil, the varon of Grentone . the 1020s All .augubre and Ros, with orner to other to cos, amiguts, and other people, which dattie came to him from ener cie part of the realme : those that came nor, were sponed or all they nad, to as they were wener note to cecouer hemielues agame, to, their goes being then taken awaic, were never restored. Inditions abar for ione, and what for feare of lotte, they came docking onto him from succespart.

At the same present there was arrested, and commiteo co tale conforte, the villion or Pozwich, it Milliam Elmam, mo iir Maiter Burile, unigots, Laurence Diem., mo Jonn Goiorer eigniers. On Thrent be morowatter, the fortillo onnes with their power. Lancautt vent towards Bristow, where (at their comming) marchine her themed themselves veroze the rowne z caucil, seing an juge muititude of people. Orrewerend closed within the carfeil, the 1000 William Scrope earte of Wallfithire and creatures of Ingiano, it Henrie Cræne, and itr John Buthie anights, wo prepared to make resillance; but upen it wond not prevaile, they were taken and prought touch cound as priloners into the campe, before the onne of Aan caffer. On the mozow nert mining, they were arrais sarout gned before the contable and martial, and found against giltie of treason, or anigouerning the sing and Francis cealine, and imphinith had their yeads innit off. Dir :mid.

The commos benie orelit the ounc of

The duke of Lancafter ia: beth in Jozus

Induttona to Polychron

John Rullell was also taken there, who feining him. felfe to be out of his wits, eleaped their hands for a

In this meane time, king Kichard advertised, bow the duke of Lancaffer was landed in England, and that the loods, gentlemen, and commons affeme bled themselves to take his part, he forthwith caused the losd Wenrie, fonne to the faid buke of Lancaffer, and the load Dumfrie, fonne to the duke of Blocefer, to be thut op fast in the castell of Erimine, and re with all fpeo made haft to returne into England, in hope with an armie to incounter the ouke, before he thould have time to affemble his frænds togither. But here you thall note, that it fortuned at the fame time, in which the duke of Hereford og Lancaffer, Cutdmafter thether ye lift to call him, arrived thus in England, community the leas were to troubled by tempetis, and the winds bett blew to contrarie for anie vallage from of England to the king, remaining Will in Ireland, that for the space of fir weeks, he received no aduer- 2 tilements from thence : yet at length, then the leas became calme, and the wind once turned anie thing favourable, there came ouer a thip, twereby the king understood the manner of the dukes arrivall, and all his proceedings till that date, in which the thip departed from the coaft of England, there bon he meant fwithwith to have returned over into England, to make refiffance against the onke: but through perfualion of the duke of Aumarie (as was thought) he flaied, till he might have all his thips, and other pro- 30 uilion, fullie readie for his pallage.

In the meane time, he fent the earle of Salifburie ouer into England, to gather a power togither, by helpe of the kings frænds in Wales, and Chethire, with all speed possible, that they might be readie to allishim against the buke, opon his arrivall, for he meant himselfe to follow the earle, within fix dates after. The earle palling over into Wales, landed at Commaie, and fent fouth letters to the kings frænds. both in Wales and Chethire, to leavie their people, 40 s to come with all speed to affif the it. whose request, with great delire, a very willing minds they fulfilled, bowing to have found the king himfelfe at Conwaie, infomuch that within foure dates space, there were to the number of fortie thouland men allembled, reas die to march with the king against his entinies, if he had beene there himfelfe in perfon.

But when they milled the king, there was a baute speed among it them, that the king was suerlie dead, wich wrought fuch an impression, and evill disposis 50 tion in the minds of the Wellbmen and others, that for anic persuation which the earle of Salisburie might ble, they would not go footh with him, till they faw the king : onelie they were contented to faie fouretane daies to le if he thould come or not; but when he came not within that tearme, they would no longer abide, but scaled a departed awaie; wheras if the king had come before their breaking by , no doubt, but they would have put the duke of Heres ford in adventure of a field: fo that the kings linge 60 ring of time before his comming over, gave oppor funitie to the duke to bring things to passe as he could baue withed, and toke from the king all occafion to recover afterwards anie forces lufficient to reliff him.

At length, about eighteene dates after that the king had fent from him the earle of Salisburie, he toke the fea, togither with the dukes of Aumarle, Ercefier, Surrie, and others of the nobilitie, with the bishops of London, Lincolne, and Carleill. They lamed niere the caffell of Barclowlie in Wales, a manathout bout the feast of saint James the aposse, and faied a thile in the same castell, being advertised of the great forces which the duke of Lancaster had got togither against him, where with he was maruellouslie Thom. Wall amazed, knowing certeinelie that those which were thus in armes with the duke of Lancaster against him, would rather die than give place, as well for the hatred as feare which they had conceived at him. De uerthelesse he departing from Barclowlie, hasted with all speed towards Conwaie, where he underfood the earle of Salifourie to be fill remaining.

He therefore taking with him such Cheshire men Additions to as he had with him at that prefent (in thom all his Polychron. trust was reposed) he doubted not to revenge him. felfe of his adversaries, & so at the first he passed with a good courage: but when he binderstood as he went thus forward, that all the castels, even from the boy bers of Scotland buto Briffold were delivered buto the duke of Lancaster, and that likewise the nobles and commons, as well of the fouth parts, as tie north, were fullie bent to take part with the same duke against him; and further, hearing how his trus ffic councellors had loft their heads at Briffow, he became lo greatlie discomforted, that forowfullie las B. Bichard menting his milerable state, he otterlie despaired of in otter bea spaire. his owne fafetie, and calling his armie togither, which was not fmall, licenced everie man to depart to his home.

The fouldiers being well bent to fight in his defence, belought him to be of god chare, promiting with an oth to frand with him against the buke, and all his partakers but o death: but this could not incourage him at all, so that in the night next infining, he stole from his armie, and with the dukes of Erce- k. Richard Her and Surrie, the bithop of Carleill, and fir Stephan Scrope, and about halfe a loose others, he got him to the castell of Conjunctor there he sound the him to the castell of Conwaie, where he found the Beththe castell earle of Salifburie, betermining there to hold him, of flint. felfe, till he might fee the world at some better fraie; for what counsell to take to remedie the mischeefe thus preffing boon him he wift not. On the one part he knew his title tuft, true, and infallible; and his conscience cleane, pure, and without spot of enuic 62 malice: be had also no small affiance in the Welth men, and Chefhire men. On the other fide, he fato the puissance of his adversaries, the sudden departing of them whom he most trusted, and all things turned uplide downe: he enidentlie falw, and manis festile perceived, that he was forfaken of them, by thom in time he might have beine aided and relies ued, where now it was to late, and to farre cuerpalled. This fuerlie is a verie notable example, and not a speciali butworthie of all princes to be well weied, and bilt- note worthie gentlie marked, that this Penrie duke of Lancaster to be well meied. thould be thus called to the kingdome, and have the weter. helpe and affifiance (almost) of all the whole realme, which perchance never thereof thought or yet dreas med; and that king Kichard thould thus be left delolate, boid, and in despatre of all hope and coinfort, in whom if there were anie offenle, it ought rather to be imputed to the frailtie of wanton youth, than to the malice of his hart: but such is the deceivable judgement of man, thich not regarding things prefent with due confideration, thinketh ever that things to come thall have goo fucceffe, with a pleas fant a delitefull end. But in this defecting of the one, a abuancing of the other, the providence of God is to be respected this secret will to be wondered at. For as in his hands Candeth the donation of kingdoms, to likewife the dispoting of them confifteth in his pleasure, which the verie pagans understood right well; otherwise, one of them would never have faid,

Regum timendorim in proprios greges, Reges in ipsos imperium est Ious Cuncta supercilio mouentis.

Sic Thomas Pertle earle of Woccher, lood (feward Ccc.u.

a. Richard en isnicth

Hor.lib.car.3

The carle of worcciter scaucth the in and ficth to the dake.

where for= tunc fanous

reth.thither

fauour fleeth.

The bute of Lancoffer

comming to

Chefter.

manded by the king or elfe topon dipleasure as some mite) for that the king had proclaimed his brother the earle of Porthumberland traitor, brake his witte flatte, which is the reprefenting figne and token of his office, and without belaie went to duke Henrie. When the hings fernants of houthold fair this (for it was done before them all) they dispersed themselv nes, some into one countrie, and some into an other. ues, some into one countrie, and some into an unit.
Then the duke of Lancaster understood that king 10 behind him, hid closelie in two ambushes, behind a the constitution heriog the high maie that less promises the constitution. duke of Poske fill at Briffow, and came backe with his power unto Berkleie; the fecond daie he came to Cloceffer, and fo to 13 ws, after to Hereford, where came to him the bishop of Hereford, and fir Comund Dortimer linight. On the fundate following, he went to Limiter, and there the lood Charleton came tohim. From thence he went to Ludlow, and the nert daie to Shewfburie, where he reffed one daie, and thither came to him fir Robert Leigh, and fir 20 John Leigh, and manie other being fent from Cieifer, to treat with the bulse of Lancaffer, for the citie and countie of Spelter, that were now readic to lub-

There came hither buto him the lord Scales, and the lood Berdolfe, footh of Ireland, haufing beine spoiled of all they had about them in Wales, as they came through the countrie. From Specialburie, he kept on his fournic towards Cheffer, and lodging one night by the waic, in a towne there in the box 30 ders of Colales, he came the fecond night to Cheffer, and flated there certeine dates togither, making a tollie muster of his armie there in fight of the citie. The clergie met, a received him with procession : he fent for this for his forme & heire, & like wife for the Duke of Gloceifers sonne & heire, that were as vet remaining in Ireland, commanding them with all speed to returns home into England. But the duke of Cloceffers wine, though mischance perithed, as he was on the feas to come oner, for whose loffe his 40 mother twice luch greefe, that thoustle after through immoderate fojow the likewife passed out of this Anthis meane time, king Richard being in the raffell of Conwaie lose discoinfited, and fearing left he could not remaine there long in fafetie, byon knowledge had by his truffie freinds John Paulet, and Kichard Seimour, of the dealings and approchof his adversaries, fent the duke of Greeffer to talke with the duke of Lancaster, who in this meane while 50 had caused one of king Richards faithfull and truffic frands, fir Piers a Leigh, commonlie called Perkin a Lee, to lose his head, rcommanded the same to be let by, byon one of the highest turrets about all the citie; and so that true and faithfull gentleman, for his stedfast faith, and assured localtie to his louing fouereigne, thus loft his life . There came to him as bout the fame time, or fomethat before, the ouker of Annarle and Survic, the lood Lonell, and fir John Stanleie, belieching him to receiue him into his fa. 60 of his maiffer king Richard , that is to faie, a white

Derkin a

fent unto duke Denrie from king Richard, and that onke Penric fraied them both, and would not fuffer them to returne to the king againe, keeping the duke the means time was the eastell of Polt delivered to the duke of Pereford, by those that had it in keeping

Coward of the hings house, either being so com-nut themselves but ohim in all things.

transitorie life.

130 fome witers it fould fome, not onelie the Dut of mafter buke of Greefter, but allo the buke of Surrie were of Orceffer Will about him, and committing the ouke of Survic to pulon, within the eastell of Chester. The king berewith went to Beaumaris, saffer to Carnaruan: but finding no prouision either of bittels or other things in those caffels, no not fo much as a bed to lie in , be came backe againe to Contvate, and in therein was great flore of icwels, to the value of two bundged thousand marks, besides an bundged thousand marks in readic coine. After this, the buke, with adule of his councell, leut the earle of flor thumberland but o the king accompanied with four that the hundred lances, & a thouland arthers, two comming blinds himogeoconces, a a mountain to the castellas flint, had it delivered but o him; and the cast from thence he hafted fouth towards Contrate. Lout weller before he approched neve the place, he left his power wholes craggie mounteine, beside the high waie that lead landing

This done, taking not past foure or fine with him, he passed forth, till he came before the towne, and then fending an herald to the king, requested a fafe conduct from the king, that he might come and talke with him, which the king granted, and so the earle of Posthumberland palling the water, entred the care the care fell, and comming to the king, declared to him, that jointeens if it might please his grace to undertake, that there have refer to undertake. fould be a parlement affembled, in the which inflice to the bank might be had, against such as were enimies to the common-wealth, and had procured the destruction of the duke of Glocester, and other noblemen, and here: with pardon the duke of Dereford of all things where in he had offended him, the duke would be readie to come to him on his knees, to craw of him forgues nesse, and as an humble subject, to obeie him in all dutifull fernices. The king taking aduife opon thefe Chellula offers, and other made by the earle of Posthumber unt Court land on the behalfe of the duke of Hereford, upon the callell and he earles off, for affurance that the fame fould be per felfe to be formed in ech condition, agreed to go with the earle enumer. to mete the duke, and here boon taking their horles, they rode forth, but the earle rode before, as it were, to prepare dinner for the king at Butland, but comming to the place where he had left his people, he Stated there with them. The king keeping on his wate, had not rioden vall foure miles, when he came to the place where the ams buthes were lodged, and being entred within dans ger of them, before he was aware, the wed himfeld to be fore abathed. But now there was no remember for the earle being there with his men, would not fulfer him to returne, as he gladic would have done if he might; but being inclosed with the sea on the one five, and the rocks on the other, having his adverte rics to nière at hand before him, he could not thift a wate by any meants, for if he thould have fled backe, they might cafilie haue ouertaken him, per he could have got out of their danger. And thus of force he was then confirmined to go with the earle, who brought him to Rutland, where they dined, and from thence they rode buto flint to bed. The king had be rie few about him of his frænds, ercept onelie the carle of Salisburie, the bishop of Carleill, the loss Stephan Scrope, fir Aicholas Ferebie, a conne allo of the countelle of Salisburie, and Jenico Dartois 3 constant a Salcoigne that fill ware the cognifance of denife fernant. hart, and would not put it from him, neither for perfualions no: thicats; by reason thereof, when the duke of Hereford buderstood it, he caused him to be committee to pulon within the castell of Thester. This man was the last (as fairth mine author) which ware that devile, and theined well thereby his confant hart toward his maister, for the which it was thought he Chould have loss his life, but yet he was pardoned, and at length reconciled to the dukes far uour, affer he was king.

But now to our purpole. Ling Kichard being thus come onto the castell of flint, on the mondaic, the eighteenth of August, and the duke of Hereford bes ing fill advertised from houre to houre by polis,

Dolt caffell Delinered to the duke, bowthe earle of Porthumberland sped, the mozow following being tuefdate, and the nineteenth of Augut, he came thither, a muffered his armie before the hings pielence, which bindoubtedlie made a palling faire them, being verie well ordered by the lord Henrie Perfie, that was appointed generall, or rather (as me maie call him) maffer of the campe, boder the pulse, of the whole armie . There were come alreadis to the castell, before the approching of the maine are mic, the archbishop of Canturburie, the duke of Aumarle, the earle of Morceller, and diverte other. The archbilhop entred first, and then followed the other. comming into the first ward.

the king that was walking aloft on the braies of the wals, to behold the comming of the duke a farre off, might lee, that the archbilhop and the other were come, and (as he toke it) to talke with him: where. byon he forthwith came bowne buto them, and beholding that they did their due reuerence to him on their knes, he take them by, and drawing the arch 20 bishop aside from the residue, talked with him a god tibile, and as it was reported, the archbiffiop willed him to be of good comfort, for he thould be affured, not to have anie hurt, as touching his person; but he prothefied not as appelat, but as a Pilat . Foz, was it no hurt (thinke you) to his person, to be spoiled of his rotaltie, to be depoled from his crowne, to be trans lated from principalitie to prison, to fall from honor into horror. All which befell him to his extreame hart grafe (no doubt:) which to increase, meanes alas 30 there were manie; but to diminish, helps (God wot) but a few, So that he might have faid with the for lome man in the mercileffe feas of his miseries.

Vt fera nimboso tumiierunt aquora vento, Inmedijs lacera naue relinguor aquis.

Some wite (as before in a marginall note 3 have quoted) that the archbishop of Canturburie went with the earle of Posthumberland unto Conwaie, and there talked with him: and further, that even then the king offered, in confideration of his in- 40 lufficiencie to gouerne, frælie to religne the crowne, and his kinglic title to the same, buto the duke of Hereford. But for somuch as those that were contimuallic attendant about the king, during the whole time of his above at Contraie, and till his comming to flint, dw plainelie affirme, that the archbishop came not to him, till this tueldate before his remos uing from flint buto Chefter, it mate be thought (the circumstances well considered) that he rather made that promise here at Flint, than at Conwaie, 50 although by the tenour of an intrument, conteining the declaration of the archbilhop of Dozke, and other commissioners sent from the estates astembled in the nert parlement, buto the faid king, it is recorded to be at Conwaie, as after ye maic read. But there mate be some default in the copie, as taking the one place for the other.

But whereformer this offer was made after that the archbishop had now here at Flint communed gaine, robe backe to meet the duke, who began at that present to approch the castell, and compassed it round about, such downe to the lea, with his people raiv ged in god and feemelie order, at the fot of the mounteins: and then the early of Porthumberland pas ling forth of the calfell to the duke, talked with him a while in light of the king, being againe got up to the walles, to take better view of the armie, being now advanced within two bowe Hotes of the castell, to the small reinising (ve may be sure) of the sozowfull king. The earle of Porthumberland returning to the castell, appointed the king to be fet to dinner (for he was fasting till then) and after he had dined, the duke came downe to the castell himselfc, and entred the same all armed, his bassenct onelie excepted, and being within the first gate, he stated there, till the king came forth of the inner part of the castell buto

The king accompanied with the bilhop of Carleill,the earle of Salifburie, and fir Stethan Scrope knight, who bare the swood before him, and a few or ther, came forth into the otter ward, and fate downe in a place prepared for him. Forthwith as the duke got light of the king, he thewed a reverend dutie as behautour to became him, in bowing his line, and comming for the king at ward, did fo likewife the fecond and third time, till the their meeting. king toke him by the hand, and lift him by, fairing Dere couline, pe are welcome. The duke humblie 33 thanking him faid; Dy fouercigne lood and king, the bemand. cause of my comming at this present, is (your hono; faued) to have againe restitution of my person, my lands and heritage, through your faucurable licence. >> The king herbnto answered ; Dere couline, I am readie to accomplish your will, so that ye may into all that is yours, without exception.

Defing thus togither, they came forth of the car fell, and the king there called for wine, and after they the buke rours had dronke, they mounted on horffebacke, and rode nie togither that night to Flint, and the nert daie buto Chester, towards the third unto Pantwich, the fourth to Pewcastell. London, Here, with glad countenance, the lood Thomas Beauchampe earle of Warwike met them, that had bane confined into the Ile of Man, as before ye have heard; but now was renoked home by the duke of Lancaffer. From Pelucastell they rove to Stafford, and the firt daie buto Lichfield, and there reffed fund date all date. After this, they rode fouth, and lodged at these places infuing, Couentrie, Dantre, Porthe hampton, Dunftable, S. Albons, & fo came to London: neither was the king permitted all this while to change his apparell, but rove fill through all thefe townes amplie clothed in one fute of raiment, and pet he was in his time erceding sumptuous in amas rell, in so much as he had one cote, which he caused to B. Bichard be made for him of gold and flone, balued at 30000 fumptuous marks : 4 fo he was brought the nert waie to Well- in appareil. minffer.

As for the duke, he was received with all the fop and pompe that might be of the Londoners, and was lodged in the bishops palace, by Paules church. It The dukes was a wonder to le wat great concur de of people, receiung into & what number of horfes came to him, on the wate London. as he thus patied the countries, till his comming to London, where (opon his approch to the citie) the mas torrode forth to receive him, and a great number of other citizens. Also the cleargie met him with procellion, and such top appeared in the countenances of the people, ottering the fame also with words, as the like not lightlie bæne fæne. For in cuerie towne and billage where he palled, dillozen reiotled, women clapped their hands, and men cried out for iey. But to speake of the great numbers of people that flocked togither in the fields and Arests of London at his with the king, he departed, and taking his horde a 60 comming, I here omit, neither will Theake of the prefents, welcommings, lauds, and gratifications made to him by the citizens and communalitie.

But now to the purpole. The next day after his The king cocomming to London, the king from Wellminster mitted to the was had to the Lower, and there committed to lafe tower. cultodie. Panie euill disposed persons, allembling themselves togither in great numbers, intended to have met with him, and to have taken him from luch as had the conveieng of him, that they might have flaine him. But the majoz and albermen gathered to them the worthipfull commoners and grave citis zens, by whose policie, and not without much ado, the other were renoked from their enill purpole : albeit, before they might be pacified, they coming to Wells

C cc.iu.

The baken

minffer.

minster, toke maifter John Sclake deane of the hings chamell, and from thence brought him to pewgate, and there laid him fall in irons.

A parlement in the kings name.

After this was a parlement called by the duke of Lancaster, vsing the name of king Lichard in the writs directed forth to the lords, and other frates for their summons. This parlement began the thirs twith daie of September, in the which manie help nous points of milgouernance and injurious deas lings in the administration of his kinglie office, 10 were laid to the charge of this noble prince king Ki thard, the which (to the end the commons might be perfuance, that he was an unprofitable prince to the common-wealth, and worthic to be deposed) were ingroffed by in 33 folemne articles, hemous to the eares of all men, and to some almost incredible, the veric effect of which articles here infue, according to the copie which I have fiene, and is abyloged by matfier Hall as followeth.

The articles objected to king Richard, whereby he was counted worthie to be deposed from his principalitie.

3rff, that king Richard wallfullie fpent the treasure of the realme, and had gi uen the possessions of the crowne to men butworthie, by reason whereof, new char, 30

ges more and more were laid on the pore comunat tie. And where diverse loods, as well spirituall as temporall, were appointed by the high court of pari lement, to commune and treat of diverse matters concerning the common-wealth of the realme, with being bulle about the fame commission, he with other of his affinitie went about to impeach, and by force and menacing compelled the intifices of the realmo at Shiewelburie to condescend to his opinion, for the destruction of the faid loads, in so much that he bes 40 gan to raife warre against John buke of Lancaster. Richard earle of Arundell, Thomas earle of War wike, and other loses, contrarie to his honor and pro-

2 Item, that he caused his bricle the duke of Glo ceffer to be arreffed without fair, and fent him to Calis, and there lotthout judgement murthered him, and although the earle of Arnnoelf opon his arreign ment pleaded his charter of parbon, he could not be heard, but was in most vile and shamefull manner 50 suddenlie put to death.

Item, he affembled cetteine Lancathire and Cheshire men, to the intent to make warre on the fame locas, and fuffered them to rob and pill, without correction or repreene.

- 4 Item, al hough the king flateringlie, and with great diffimulation, made proclamation through out the realme, that the locos before named were not attached of ante crime of tregibit but onlie for erfor tions and oppetitions done in this readine pet he late 60 to them in the parlement, rebellion and manifelt treafon.
- 5 Atein, he hath compelled directs of the laid loods fernants and friends, by menaces sectrome pains, to make great fines to their viter vinowing; and not withstanding his pardon, yet he made them fine h
- 6 Item, where otherse were appointed to commune of the flate of the realme, and the commonwealth thereof, the fame king canfed all the rols and records to be kept from them, confrarie to promife made in the parlement, to his open difficion.
- 7 Item, he untharitablie commanded, that no man byon paine of lotte of life, and good thould once intreat him for the returns of Henrie now oute of Lancaster.

- 8 Item, there this realme is holden of God, and not of the pope or other prince, the fato king Richard, after he had obteined diverte acts of parlement, for his owne peculiar profit and pleature, then he obtets ned bulles and extreame centures from Rome, to compell all men freightlie to keepe the fame, contrarie to the honour and ancient principles of this tealing.
- Item, although the duke of Lancaster had done his denotre against Thomas duke of Porfolke in profe of his quarrell; pet the faid king, without read fon or ground, banished him the realme for ten varg contrarie to all equitie.
- 10 Item, before the dukes departure, he binder his broad feale licenced him to make atturnies to profecute and defend his causes : the said king after his departure, would fuffer none atturnie to av-20 peare for him, but did with his at his pleasure.
 - 11 Item, the same king put out diverse thirifies lawfullie elected, and put in their romes dinerfe o ther of his owne, subverting the law, contrarie to his ofh and hono?.
 - 12 Item, he bosowed great summes of monie, and bound him boder his letters patents, for the repalment of the fame, and pet not one penie paid.
 - 13 Item, be tared men at the will of him and his bnhamie councell, and the same treasure spent in follie, not paieng poze men for their vittels and biands.
 - 14 Item, he said, that the lawes of the realme were in his head, and sometimes in his breff, by reafon of which fantasticall opinion, he destroice noble men, and imponerished the pose commons.
 - 15 Item, the parlement letting and enading ob uerse notable statutes, for the profit and advances ment of the common-wealth, he by his printe frends and folicitoes caused to be enacted, that no act then enacted, should be more presudiciall to him, than it was to artie of his predecestors : through which prouilo he did often as he lifted, and not as the lawdid
 - 16 Item, for to ferue his purpole, he would fuffer the thirittes of the thire to remaine aboue one years oz two.
 - 17 Item, at the fummons of the parlement, when knights and burgettes thould be elected, that the election had beene full proceeded, he put out bluerle persons elect, and put other in their places, to ferue his will and appetite.

18 Item, be had privite espials in enerie thice, to beare the hab of him anie communication; and if he commune of his laccinions liming, or outragious dwings, he fraightwates was appehended, and put to a greenous fine.

19 Item, the fpiritualtie alledged against him, that he at his going into Ireland, eracted manie no. table himmes of monie, belide plate and tewels, without law or cultonie, contrarie to his oth taken at his coronation.

20 Item, where phierie loods and fuffices were Awarne to face the truth of diverse things to them committed in charge, both for the honor of the relme, and profit of the king, the fato king to menaced them with love threatenings, that no man would or burt faie the right.

21 Atem, that without the allent of the nobilitie, he carelled the iewels, plate, and treasure, over into Ireland, to the great impowerilbment of the realme: and all the good records for the common-wealth, and against his extortions, he tauted primite to be imbeli led, and connected aware.

22' Item, in all leagues and letters to be com cluded or lent to the lie of Rome, or other regions, An.Reg.23.

his witing was so subtill and darke, that none or ther prince once believed him, not yet his owne

3 Item, he most tyzannoustie and unprincelie fald, that the lines and gods of all his subjects were inhishands, and at his disposition.

24 Item, that contrarie to the great charter of England, he canted diverte luftie men to appeale of uerfe olo men, vpon matters determinable at the common law in the court Partiall, bicanse that 10 there is no triall, but onelie by battell: therebpon, the faid aged persons , fearing the sequele of the matter, fubmitted themselues to his mercie, thome be fined and ransomed unreasonablie at his will and

25 Item, he craftilie deuised certeine palule othes contrarie to the law, and caused diverse of his subjects first to be two me to observe the same, and as ter bound them in bonds for keeping of the fame, to the great bnowing of manie honeft men. 36 Item, where the chancellos, according to the law, would in no wife grant a prohibition to a certeine person, the king granted it bnto the same, bnder his printe feale, with great threatenings, if it mould be disobeted.

37. Item, he banished the bishop of Canturburie without cause or indgement, and kept him in the par-lement chamber with men of armes.

28 Item, the bishops gods he granted to his lucceller, opon condition, that he mould mainteine all 30 his flatutes made at Spelvelburie anno 21, and the flatutes made anno 22 at Couentrie.

29 Item, bpon the acculation of the faid billipp, the king craftilie persuaded him to make no answer for he would be his warrant, and admited him not to come to the parlement, and so without answer he was condemned and criled, and his gods feized.

Thefe be all the articles of anie effect, which were lawagainst him, saving foure other, which touched onclie the archbishops matter, whose working 40 wing king Richard at length from his crowne. Then for so much as the fearticles, and other hemous and detestable acculations were laid against him in open parlement, it was thought by the most part, that he was worthie to be deposed from all kinglie bono; and princelle governement: and to bring the matter without flander the better to paste, diverse of the kings feruants, which by licence had accesse to his person, comforted him (being with sorrow almost confumed, and in manner halfe dead) in the best wife 50 they could, exhacting him to regard his health, and

Erekingis perfuaded to Fabium.

faue his life. And first, they adulted him willinglie to suffer himselse to be deposed, and so resigne his right of his olune accoso, so that the butte of Lancaster might without murther or battell obteine the scepter and blademe, after which they well perceived) he gaped: by means whereof they thought he might be in perfed affurance of his life long to continue. Withether the duke of Lancatter and his faudurers, 02 of a fincere affection which they bare to the king, as supply ling it most sure in such an extremitie it is bucer feine; but yet the effect followed not, bowfocuer there nicating was : notwithstanding, the king being now in the hands of his entinies, and utterlie despats ring of all comfort, was calille perfusoro to te notate his crowne and princelle prefisminence, lo that in hope of life onelie, he agreed to all things that were of him denimoed. And to (as it thould faire by the copie of an inflrument hereafter following the tenomiced and voluntarilie was depoted from his rolall crowns and kinglie dignitie, the mondate being the nine and twentith date of September, and featt of S. Wichaell the archangell, in the yeare of our Lozd 1399, and in the three and twentith yeare of his reigne. The copie of which intrument here in

A copie of the instrument touching the declaration of the commissioners fent from the states in parlement, voto king Richard.

Hispelent indenture made the nine and twentith date of Seps tember, and fealt of faint Apichaell, in the yeare of our Lozd 1399, and the three and twentith yeare of king Richard the second. Thitnesseth, that where by the authoritie of the lords spiris tuall and tempozall of this present parles ment, and commons of the same, the right honozable and discreet persons here buder named, were by the faid authoritic affigned to go to the Tower of London, there to heare and teltifie fuch queltions and an= fwers as then and there hould be by the faid honourable and discreet persons hard. know all men, to whome these present letters hall come, that we, fir Richard Scrope archbishop of Yozke, John bishop of Pereford, Henricearle of Porthumbers land, Rafe earle of Westmerland, Thos mas lord Berkeleie, Milliam abbat of Weltminster, John prior of Canturburie, Tuilliam Thirning and Hugh Burnell knights, John Markham iultice, Thomas Stow and John Burbadge bottors of the civill law, Thomas Crpingham and Thomas Grey knights, Thomas Ferebie and Denis Lopeham notaries publike, the date and pere about faid, betweene the houres of eight and nine of the clocke before none, were present in the chase chamber of the kings lodging, within the faid place of the Tower, where was rehearled buto the king by the mouth of the forefaid earle of Porthumberland, that before time at Conwaie in Porthwales, the king be= ing there at his pleasure and libertie, promiled buto the archbithop of Canturburie then Thomas Arundell, and buto the faid This promile earle of Posthumberland, that he for in he made at fufficiencie which he knew himselfe to be flutrather of to occurre to prost a charge and to be than Conof, to occupie so great a charge, as to go wate, as by uerne the realine of England, he would that which gladie leaue of and renounce his right and goeth before it title, as well of that as of his title to the concaured, his their perfusion proceded by the fuborning of 80 crowne of France, and his materie rotall, buto Penrie duke of Dereford, and that to dwin such convenient wife, as by the learned men of this land it thould most sufficientlie be deuised a ozdeined. To the which rehearfall, the king in our faid presences answered benignlie and faid, that such promile he made, and to to do the faine he was at that houre in full purpose to performe and fulfills faving that he delived first to have personall speach with the said duke, and with the archbillion of Canturburie his coulins. And further, he delired to have a bill drawne of the faid relignation, that he might be perfect in the rehearfall thereof.

After which bill drawne, and a copie thereof to him by me the faid earle deline= red, we the faid loads and other departed: and byon the same afternone the king los king for the comming of the duke of Lancafter, at the last the said duke, with the archbishop of Canturburie and the perfons afore recited, entered the forelatd chamber, bringing with them the loads Ros, Aburgenie, and Ichilloughbie, with dinerle other. Talhere after due obeisance done by them but the king, he familiarlie and with a glad countenance (as to them and by appered) talked with the faid archbithop and duke a good feason; and that communication finished, the king with glap countenance in presence of be and the 2 other aboue rehearled, laid openlie that he was readie to renounce and religne all his kinglie maichte in maner and forme as he before had promifed. And although he had and might sufficientlie have declared his renouncement by the reading of an other meane person; yet for the more suertie of the matter, and for that the laid relignation thould have his full force and ftrength, 30 on, and giving vp for firme and stable for everhimselfe therefore read the scroll of resign nation, in maner and forme as followeth.

The tenor of the instrument whereby king Richard resigneth the crowne to the duke of Lancaster.

N the name of God Amen: 1 Ri-Englandand of France, &c: lord of Ireland, acquit and affoile all archbishops, bishops, and other prelats, secular or religious, of what dignitie, degree, state, or condition so euer they be; and also all dukes, marquesses, earles, barons, lords, and all my liege men, both spirituall and secular, of what manner or degree they be, from their oth of fealtie and homage, and all other deeds and privileges made vnto me, and from all manner bonds of allegiance,regalitie and lordship, in which they were or be bounden to me, or anie otherwise constreined; and them, their heires, and succesfors for euermore, from the fame bonds and oths I release, deliuer, and acquit, and set them for free, diffolued and acquit, and to be harmeleffe, for as much as longeth to my person by a-nie manner waie or title of right, that to me might follow of the forefaid things, or anie of 60 them. And also I refigne all my kinglie dignitie, maiestie and crowne, with all the lordships power, and privileges to the forefaid kinglie dignitic and crowne belonging, and all other lordships and possessions to me in anie maner of wife perteining, of what name, title, qualitie, or condition socuer they be, except the lands and possessions for me and mine obits purchased and bought . And I renounce all right, and all maner of title of possession, which I euer had or haue in the fame lordships and possessions, or anic of them, with anie manner of rights belonging or apperteining vnto anie part of them. And also the rule and gouernance of the same kingdome and lordships, with all ministrations of the same, and all things and euerie each of them, that to the whole empire and jurifdictions of the fame belongeth of right, or in anie wife may belong.

And also I renounce the name, worship, and regaltie and kinglie highnesse, clearclie, freelie, fingularlie and wholie, in the most best maner and forme that I may, and with deed and word I leaue off and refigne them, and go from them for euermore; fauing alwaies to my fucceffors kings of England, all the rights, privileges and appurtenances to the faid kingdome and lordthips abouefaid belonging and apperteining. For well I wote and knowledge, and deeme my selse to be, and haue beene insufficient and vnable, and also vnprofitable, and for my open deferts not vnworthie to be put downe. And I fweare vpon the holie euangelists here presentlie with my hands touched, that I shall never repugne to this refignation, demission or yeelding vp, nor neuer impugne them in anie maner by word or deed, by my selfe nor none other: nor I shall not suffer it to be impugned, in as much as in me is, privilie or apertlie. But I shall haue, hold, and keepe this renouncing, demissimore in all and euerie part thereof, so Godme helpe and all faints, and by this holie enangelist, by me bodilie touched and kissed. And for more record of the fame, here openlie I fubscribe and figne this present resignation with mine owne hand.

Pow forthwith in our presences and or chard by the grace of God, king of 40 thers, he subscribed the same, and after delinered it buto the archbishop of Cantura burie, saieng that if it were in his power, ozat his allignement, he would that the duke of Lancalter there present thould be his successour, and king after him. And in token hæreof, he tæke a ring of gold from his finger being his fignet, and put it byon the laid dukes finger, defiring and requiring the archbilhop of Porke, 7the bilhop of Dereford, to thew and make report buto the loads of the parlement of his boluntarie relignation, and also of his intentand good mind that he bare towards his coulin the duke of Lancaster, to have him his sucresour and their king after him . ¶ All this doone, euerie man tooke their leave and returned to their owne.

> Ulpon the morrow after being tuefdate, and the last date of September, all the loads spirituall and temporall, with the commons of the faid parlement, affembled at Wellminster, where, in the presence of them, the archbilhop of Poske, and the bilhop of He. reford, according to the kings request, theired buto them the voluntarie renouncing of the king, with the favour also which he bare to his confine of Lancaffer to have him his successour. And mozeouer shewed them the schedule or bill of renouncement, figured with king Richards owne hand, which they caused to be read first in Latine, as it was written, and after in English. This done, the question was first asked of the loads, if they would admit and allow that renouncement: the which when it was of them all this was done accordinglie, for the articles which before you have heard, were drawne and ingrof fed by, and there the wed readic to be read; but fes other causes more nædfull as then to be preferred, the reading of those articles at that season was deferred . Then forfomuch as the lords of the parlement had well confidered the voluntarie refignation (of king Lichard , and that it was behouefull and as they thought) necessarie for the weale of the realme, 20 to proceed unto the fentence of his depoling, there were amointed by the authoritie of all the effates there in parlement affembled, the biftop of faint A. fam, the abbat of Glaffenburie, the earle of Gloces fter the losd Berkleie, William Thirning inflice, and Chomas Grpingham, with Thomas Graie, huights, that they should give and pronounce the o pensentence of the deposing of king Kichard. Ther, ponthe fato commissioners taking counsell togither, by good and deliberate admile therein had, with 30 one affent agrico, that the bishop of S. Alaph thould publish the fentence for them and in their names, as

4n.Keg.23• granted and confirmed, the like question was asked of the commons, and of them in like manner confirs med . Affer this, it was then declared, that not with, flanding the forefaid renouncing, fo by the lords and commons admitted and confirmed, it were necessar ric in ancioing of all fulpicions and furmiles of cuill dipoled persons, to have in writing and registred the manifold eximes and defaults before done by king Richard, to the end that they might first be openlie beclared to the people, and after to remaine of record 10 amongs other of the kings records for ever.

The publication of king Ri-chards deposing.

A the name of God Imen. We John bilhop of S. Alaph, John 40 abbat of Glallenburie, Thomas learle of Glocester, Thomas load Berkeleie, William Thirning iustice, Thomas Expingham & Thomas Graie knights, chosen and deputed speciall com= millaries by the three states of this present parlement, representing the whole bodie of the realme, for all such marrers by the faid estates to be committed: we biderstand: ing and confidering the manifold crimes, burts, and harmes dome by Richard king of England, and mulgouernance of the fame by a long time, to the great decaie of the faid land, and otter rume of the fame thoutlie to have beene, had not the speciall Grace of our God therebuto put the somer remedie: and also furthermoze adverting, that the faid king Richard by acknowledge owns mare volunter and free will, renouncedand given over the rule & governance of this land, with all rights and honours buto the same belonging, and otterlie for his merits bath indged himselfe not bus worthile to be deposed of all kinglie maies the and estate rotall. The the premises well confidering by good and difference liberation, by the power, name, and authoritie to bs (as aboue is faid) committed, pronounce, decerne, and declare the same king Richard, before this to have beine, and to be improfitable, imable, unfufficient, and belowethie of the rule and governance of the forelaid realms and lord bips, and of all rights and other the appurtenances to the same belonging. And for the same caules we deprive him of all kinglie dignitie and worthip, and of any kinglie worthip in himselfe. And we depose him by our sentence definitive, forbidding expresselie to all archbishops, and bishops, and all other prelats, dukes, marquelles, erles, barons and knights, and all other men of the forelaid kingdome and loadhips, lubicits, and lieges whatsoever they be, that none of them from this date forward, to the forefaid Richard asking and load of the fores faid realmes and loadhips, be neither obedient noz attendant.

After which sentence thus openlie declared, the said estates admitted forthwith the forenamed commis fioners for their procurators, to refigne and yold by buto king Kichard, all their homage and fealtie, which in times past they had made and olight buto him, and also for to declare buto him (if need were) all things before done that concerned the purpole and cause of his depoling: the which resignation was respited till the mozow following. Immediatlie as the fentence was in this wife palled, and that by reafon thereof the realme frod boid without head or go nernour for the time, the oute of Lancaffer rifing from the place where before he fate, and franding where all those in the house might behold him, in reuerend manner made a figue of the croffe on his for head, and like wife on his beeff, and after filence by an officer commanded, faid buto the people there being prefent, these words following.

The duke of Lancaster laieth challenge or claime to the crowne.

A the name of the Father, and of the Sonne, a of the Paris the Sonne, Tof the Polic ghoff. I Penrie of Lancalter claime the realme of England and the crowne, with all the appurtenances as I that am descended by right line of the blood comming from that god lord king Henrie the thirds and through the right that God of his grace hath sent me, with the helpe of my kin, and of my frænds, to recouer the same, which was in point to be budwne for default of good governance and due in-Aice.

After these words thus by him bittered, he returned and fate him downe in the place where before he had fitten. Then the loods having heard and well perceiing his owne insufficiencie, hath of his 60 neothis claime thus made by this noble man, eth of them asked of other what they thought therein. At length, after a little pauling of fraie made, the archbis The demand thop of Canturburie having notice of the minds of of the archbithe loads, find up rathed the commons if they would thep of Canadient to the loads, which in their minos thought the turburie to elaine of the who made to be rightfull and uscallage the commons. claime of the duke made, to be rightfull and necessas rie for the wealth of the realme and them all: whereto the commons with one voice cried, Dea, yea, yea. Af ter which answer, the said archbishop going to the duke, and knæling downe before him on his knæ, addressed to him all his purpose in sew words. The Thom. Walf. uhich taken he havenned, herose, * taking the duke The duke of by the right hund, led him dusto the kings seate, the ced in the result of the hundred that have a staken as the ced in the results of the results of the ced in the results of the ced in the results of the resu arabbilhop of Poske allifting him, and with great gall theore. reuerence renerence let him therein, after that the duke bad first upon his knies made his praier in deuout manner bito almightie God. Then he was thus placed in his throne to the great recoiling of the people, the ardbiftop of Canturburie begana bzefe collation, thop preached, taking for his theme these words, written in the first bolic of kings the ninth chapter, pir dominabitur in populo, c: handling the same, the wole tenour of his tale to the praise of the king, whose ferled indgement, grounded wifedome, perfed reason, and ripe difere, 10 tion was fuch (faid he) as declared him to be no child, neither in yearcs, not in light conditions, but a man able and mete for the government of a realme: fo that there was no small cause of comfort ministred to them through the favourable goonelle of almightie Ged, which had provided them of luch a gouernoz, as like a discret judge thall dente in causes by thitfull domes, and rule his fubieds in byzight equitie, fetting apart all wilfull pleasures, and childish incon-Stancie . This is a summarie of his opation. But be- 2 cause the qualitie of this volume is such, as that it hath fet forth matters at large : I will laie downe the archbishops words, as they are recorded by Fabian in ample manner as followeth.

> The archbishop of Canturburie his oration, framed upon this text, Vir dominabitur in populo, &c: written in the first booke of kings and ninth chapter.

Abr El out of Fabian, pag.

Defe be the words of the high, and most mightie king, speaking to Samuel his prophet, teaching him how he chould choose and a hun how he should chose and ozdaine a governoz of his people of Israell, when the laid people asked of him a king, to rule them. And not without cause may these words be said here of our lord the king that is. Foz, if they be inwardlie conceined, they thall give buto by matter of 40 confolation and comfort, when it is faid that a man hall have loodhip and rule of the people, and not a child. For God threat= neth not be as he sometime threatned the people by Claie, saieng: Esa.3. Et dabo pueros principes eorum, & effeminati dominabuniur eis, I thall (faith our Loed) giue childeen to be their rulers appinces, and weake or fearefull thall have dominion over them. But of so tects. For by the discretion of a noble and his great mercie he hath vilited vs. I trust his peculiar people, and sent by a man to have the rule of by, aput by children that before time ruled this land, after childich conditions, as by the workes of them it hath rightlie appeared, to the disturbance of all this realine; and for want and lacke of a man. Noz, as saith the apostle Paule ad Corinthos, 1. capite 14. Cum essem pariulus, 60 loquebar vt pariulus, &c: quando autem factus sum vir, enacuani que erant parnuli, that is to fay, When I was a child, I fauozed and spake as a child, but at the time when I came buto the efface of a man, then I put by all my childish conditions.

The apostle faith, he sauozed and spake asachild, in whomis no ftedfaltneffe, 02 constancie. For a child will lightlie promise, and lightlie he will breake his pronite, and dwall things that his appetite giveth him buto, and forgettethlightlie what he hath done. By which reason it followeth, that nædilie great inconvenience must fall to that people, that a child is ruler and gouernour of: north is not possible for that kingdome to fland in felicitie, where fuch conditions reigne in the head and ruler of the fame. But now we ought all to reioile, that all fuch defaults be expelled, and that a man, and not a child, thall hauclordhip ouer bs. Cowhom it belongeth to haue a fure rane boon his twng, that he male he knowne from a child, or a man bling chil dith conditions : of whom I trust I maie fay, as the wife man faith in his pronerbs, Prouerb. 3. cap. Beatus homo qui inuenit sapientiam, & qui affluit prudentia, that is to say. Blessed be the man that hath sapience of wildome, and that aboundeth in prudence, For that man that is ruled by faptence. o multnæds loue a dredour Lord God, and who so loueth & dreadeth him, it must consequentlie follow that he must keepe his commandements. By force wherof he wall minister true instice buto his subjects, and do no wrong nor inturie to any man.

So that then thall follow the words of the wife man the which be rehearled, Prouerb. 10. Benedictio Domini super caput insti, os 30 autem impiorum operit iniquitatem, that is to face, The bleffing of our Lord God hall light bpon the head of our king, being a full and righteous man, for the twng of him worketh equitie and inflice; but the twng of the wicked a of linners concreth iniquitie. And who so worketh or mini-Areth iustice in due ozder, he not onlie safe: gardeth hunself, but also holdeth people in a fuertie of restfulnes, of the which insueth peace and plentie. And therefore it is faid of the wife king Salomon, Eccles. 10. Beata terra cuius rex nobilis est, vel cuius principes vescuntur in tempore suo, with is to be bndet= standed, that blessed a happie is that land. of the which the king or ruler is noble and wife, and the princes be bleffed that live in his time. As who would say, they may take erample of hun to rule and guide their lub wife man being in authozitie, manie euils be sequestred and set apart, all dissemblers put to filence. For the wife man confidereth and noteth well the great inconveniences which dailie now growe of it, where the child or inlipient drinketh the liwet and des licious words braduifedite, and perceiveth not intorication which they be mingled of mixt with, till he be invironed and wrapped in all danger, as latelie the experience thereof hath bæne apparent to all our fights and knowledges, a not without the great danger of all this realme. And all was for lacke of wisedome in the ruler, which dæmed a taught as a child, giving fentence of wilfulneffe and not of reason. So that while a child reigned, felfe-will a lust reigned, and reason with good conscience were outlawed, with inftice, stedfalls nesse, and manie other bertues.

But of this perill and danger me bedelt uered by the especiall helpe and grace of God, Quia vir dominabitur inpopulo, that is to fale, He that is not a child but perfect in reason. For he commeth not to execute his owne will, but his will that fent him, that is to wit, Gods will, as a man buto whome God of his abundant grace hath given perfect reason and discretion, to dis cerne adame as a perfect man. Wherfore not all onlie of this man we hall faie that he thall dwell in wifedome, but as a perfect 10 man and not a child, he thall thinke, and deme, a have such a circumspection with him, that he chall diligentlie foze-loke and le that Gods will be done, & not his. And therfore now I trust the words of the wife man, Ecclesiast. 10. Chall be verified in our bing: faieng, Index Sapiens indicabit populum jum, o principatus sensatis stabilis erit; that is (asfaiththe wiseman) A wise and distret 20 indge chall now dæme his people, and the dominion of losothip of a diferet wifeman Mall fland fedfaft. Taberespon thall then follow the second berse of the same chapter, faieng, Secundum indicem populi, fic & ministri eius, that is, Like as the head Touereigne is replenished with all lapience and ber tue, in guiding of his people, administring to them law, with due and convenient in lite, so that the subsets againmand be garnished with awe and louing dread, and heare here him neer took and the second dread, and beare buto him next God all honour. truth and allegiance.

So that then it may be concluded with the relidue of the forelaid berles; Qualis rector est ciuitatis, tales & inhabitantes in ea, which isto faie, Such as the ruler of the citie is, such then be the inhabitants of the same. So that consequentlie it followeth, a gwo 40 malter maketh a good disciple. And likewise an euill king of ruler thall lofe his people, & the cities of his kingdome thall be left delolate and buhabited. Wherefore thus I make an end. In fled of a child wilfullie doing his full and pleasure without reason, now thall a man be lozd and ruler, that is revlenished with sapience and reason, and hall governe the people by skilfull dome, 50 letting apart all wilfulnelle and pleasure of himselfe. So that the word that I be= gan with may be verified of him, Ecce quia vir dominabitur in populo. The which our load grant, a that he may prosperoussie reigne buto the pleasure of God and wealth of his realine, Amen.

After the archbishop had ended, wishing that it might to come to patte, and the people antivered, A. 60 men; the king flanding on his feet, faid buto the loods and commons there prefent: I thanke you my colords both spiritual and temporall, and all the states of this land, and do you to wit, that it is not my will " that any man thinke, that I by the wate of conquet a would differit any man of his heritage, franches, a ocher rights, that him ought to have of right, nor to put him out of that which he now insoieth, and hath had before time by custome or good law of this « realme, ercept such privat persons as have beene as ce gainst the good purpose, and the common profit of the realme. When he had thus ended, all the thiriffes and other officers were put in their authorities as gaine, to exercise the same as before, which they could not dwithilest the kings rotall throne was void.

Pozeouer, a proclamation was made, that the Thom. Wall states should assemble againe in parlement on mondaie then nort infuing, being the feast daie of faint Faith, which is the firt of Daober; and that the mone day then next following, being the 13 of the same moneth, and the feath day of faint Coward the king and confessor, the coronation should be solemnized, and that all such as had to claime any service to be done by them at the same by any tenure, they thould come to the White-hall in the kings palace, before the feward and constable of England, on faturdaic next before the fame day of the parlement, and prefenting The parlemit their petitions that were due a rightfull, they thould obteine that to them amerteined. Ercule was alfo made on the kings behalfe, for calling of a parles ment boon to thost a warning, to as the knights and burgeffes were not changed, but onclic amounted to affemble againe, as if the other parlement had ras ther beene continued than distolued. The cause was alledged to be for eating of the charges that would bave rifen, if ech man had beene fent home, and new knights and burgeffes called.

These things done, the king rose from his place, and with a cheerefull and right courteous counter nance regarding the people, went to White-hall, there the fame day he held a great feaff. In the after King henrie none were proclamations made in the accustomed fourth proplaces of the citie, in the name of king Henrie the fourth. On the morrow following, being wednesdate and first of Daober, the procurators above named repaired to the tower of London, and there fignified onto king Kichard the admittion of king Henrie. And the aforefair justice William Thirning, in name of the other, and for all the flates of the land, renounced buto the faid Richard late king, all homage and fealtie buto him before time due, in mas ner and forme as sperteined. Which renuntiation to the depoted king, was a redoubling of his greefe, in fo much as thereby it came to his mind, how in for mer times he was acknowledged & taken for their liege lost and fourreigne, the now (whether in contempt or in malice, God knoweth) to his face for Iware him to be their king. So that in his heumes he might berie well have faid with a greeved plaintife, Heu quanta fortes miseris mortalibus instant! Ah chari quoties oblinia nominis opto! O qui me fluctus, quis me telluris hiatus Pertasum tetrica vita deglutiat ore

Chasmatico? Thus was king Richard deprined of allikinglie K.Richard honour and princelie dignitie, by reason he was so beprined. given to follow euill counfell, and bled luch inconve nient wates and meanes, through infolent milgouernance, and youthfull outrage, though other wife a right noble and worthie prince. He reigned two and twentie peares, the moneths and eight dates. De deliuered to king Henrie now that he was thus der Hall. poled, all the good that he had, to the lumme of thee bundzed thousand pounds in coine, besides plate and icivels, as a pleage and fatifiaction of the infuries by him committed and dome, in hope to be in moze luer. tie of life for the deliverie thereof: but what soever was promifed, he was deceined therein. For Mortlie after his relignation, he was conneied to the castell of Leds in Bent, t fro thence to Pomfret, where he Departed out of this milerable life (as after you thall Dis perfor heare.) De was læmelie of Mape and fanoz, t of na nage. ture god inough, if the wickednesse a naughtie des meano; of luch as were about him had not altered it,

Dis chance verelie was greatlie infortunate, whichfell into fuch calamitie, that he toke it for the best wate he could beutle to renounce his kingdome, for the which mortall men are accultomed to harard

The cozonas tion proclate

T.Watf. Amino

ras querela 5.

Harding.

The noble of king 181= chard.

Excelle in amparell.

ail they have to atteine therebuto. But fuch milfor tune (or the like) oftentimes falleth buto those princes, which when they are aloff, cast no boubt for perils that maie follow. De was provigall, ambitious, and much given to the pleasure of the bodie. He kept the greatest post, and mainteined the most plentifull house that over any king in England did either before his time or fince. For there reforted dailie to his house-keeping court about ten thousand persons that had meat and drinke there allowed them. In his kitchen there 10 were the hundred fernitoes, and everie other office was furnified after the like rate. Df ladies, chamber rers, and landerers, there were about the hundred at the least. And in googlous and cosslie apparell they erceded all measure, not one of them that kept with in the bounds of his degrae. Deomen and gromes were clothed in filkes, with cloth of graine and fkari let, oner famptuous pe may be fure for their effates. And this vanitie was not onelie vico in the court in those dates, but also other people abroad in the towns 2 and countries, had their garments cut far otherwife than had bene accustomed before his dales, with imbioderies, rich furres, and gelofmiths worke, and ener riedaic there was deniling of new fathious, to the great hinderance and decate of the common-welth.

Ignopant preiatg.

Moreover, such were preferred to bishoprikes, and other ecclesialticall livings, as neither could teach not preach, not knew any thing of the scripture of God, but onelie to call for their tithes and outies; fo that they were most on worthie the name of bishops, 30 being leive and most vaine persons disquised in bis thops apparell. Furthermoze, there reigned abune vantlie the filthie finne of leacherie and fornication, with abhominable abulterie, specialite in the king, but most cheefelie in the pictacie, whereby the whote realine by fuch their enith crample, was to infected. that the weath of God was dailie pronoked to ben-geance for the fins of the prince and his people. How then could it continue prosperonstic touth this king? against whom for the fowle encentities wherewith 40 histife was defained, the wasth of God was thetted and take to tharpe an edge, that the fame of then him off from the feepfer of his kingboner, and gaue him a full cup of afficiento ozinke; as he had done to other kings his predecellors, by whose example he might haue taken warning. For it is an heante cale then God thundereth out his reall arguments et ther upon prince or people.

Thus have pe heard what writers do report touch ing the flate of the time and doings of this king. But 50 if I may boldlie faie that I thinke: he was a prince the mbit buthankfullie vied of his lubients, of any one of whom re shall lightlie read. For although the rough the frailtie of youth) he demeaned himselfe more diffolutelie than feemed convenient for his rotall chate, made choife of fuch councelloss as were not favoured of the people, whereby he was the lefte fauoured himfelfe: pet in no kings dates were the commons in greater wealth, if they could have perceiued their hamie fate : neither in any other time 60 celloz of England, was admitted bypope Arbane were the nobles and gentlemen moze therifhed, noz churchmen leffe wonged. But fuch was their ingratitude fowards their bountifull & louing fouereigne. that those whom he had cheesie advanced, were reas viell to controll him; for that they might not rule all things at their will, and remove from him such as they milliked, and place in their romes whom they thought god, and that rather by ffrong hand, than by gentle and courteous meanes, which firred fuch ma lice betwirt him and them, till at length it could not be allwaged without perill of destruction to them

The duke of Glocester chefe instrument of this milchele, to what end be came pe have heard. And ale though his nemue the duke of Percfoed twhe bron him to revenge his death, yet wanted he moderation and localtie in his dwings, for the til ith both he him felfe and his lineall race were fourged afterwards. as a due punishment buto rebellious subicas, was beforued bengeance femed not to faie long for his ambitious crueltie, that thought it not inough to drive king Richard to religne his crowne and regall dignitie ouer unto him, ercept he also thould take from him his guiltlesse life. What bunaturalnesse, o rather what tigerlike crueltie was this, not to be content with his principalitie not to be content with his treasure-not to be content with his depatuation-not to be content with his impationment ; but being fo nærelie knit in confanguinitie, which ought to have moned them like lambs to have loved each other, woluishlie to lie in wait for the distressed creatures life, and rane noutlie to thirst after his bloud, the full ling whereof thould have touched his confcience for as that death ought rather to have beine adventured for his fafetie, than to faungelie to have fought his life after the lotte of his rotalticia. He confideration of the learned : according to our order, I will thew what writers of our English nation lived in his daies, as we find them in John Balescenturies. First Dentie Bederic, other wife furnamed of Burie, affer the name of the comme there he is thought to have bene bone, an Anglitine trier; Simon Alcocke, Cithed Bolton a mightle of Durham, bone in the boders of Endles be bind Severne; Ailliam Jodan a blacke frier, John Wilton a frier Minoz, John Cliptona Carmelite frier in Potingham, Benrie Daniella blacke frier and a good phylician, Kalfe Parham, Idhn Parchelen a grate frier or cordelier as some call them, Thomas Brome a Carmelite frier of London, John Bridlington borne in Porkelhire, Milliam Thome an Augustine frier of Canturbu rie, an hilloringrather, Adam Peremoutha canon of faint Paules durch in London, that wrote two tretiles of hillogicall matters, the one intituled Chronicon 40 annorum, and the other Chronicon 60 annorum; Simon Breban borne in Mindrombe a doctor of theficke and a fatfull aftronomer, John Thompson borne in Porfolke in a village of that name, and a Carmelite frier in Blacknie.

Poze, Thomas Winterton borne in Lincolnthire, an Augustine frier in Stamford; William Pach ington fecretarie fometime to the Blacke prince an ercellent historiographer, Bestrate Hingham a ch uilian, John Botletham borne in Cambriogethice a blacke frier, William Babbie a Carmelite frier, bi thop of Morceller, and confellor to the duke of Lancaffer; Milliam Folleuill a frier Dinoz borne in Lincolnihire, John Bourgh parlon of Collingham in Potinghamihire a doctor of diffinitie, and chancelloz of the Univertitie of Cambzinge; William Sclade a monke of Buckfast abbie in Deuonspire, John Thosesbie archbishop of Poske and loss chanthe fift into the college of caroinals, but he vied be fore k. Richard came to the crowne, about the eight and fourtith yeare of king Coward the third, in the yeare of our Lord 1374. Thomas Ahborne an Au gulline frier, John Altone an earnest follower of Wickliffes doarine, and therfore condemned to perpetuall prison; Casterton a monke of porwich and an ercellent divine, Picholas Kadelife a monke of faint Albons, John Adhivarbie a divine and a fai uourer of Mickliffes doctrine, Richard Baidfione so called of the towns in Kent where he was borne, a Carmelite frier of Ailefford.

Adde to these John Wardbie an Augustine frier, and a great divine; Robert Waldbie excellentlie learned as well in divinitie as other arts, for the withhe was first advanced to a bishopzike in Gas coigne, and affer he was admitted archbishop of Du bline; Alilliam Berton a doctor of divinitie, echan-cellor of the Aniversitie of Drford, and adversarie to Michliffe; Philip Repington abbat of Leicester a notable divine and defender of Wickliffe, Thomas Lombe a Carmelite frier of Lin, Picholas Bere. ford a fecular prieff, a doctor of diminitie, and scholer to Wickliffe; Walter Brit also another of Wickliffes 1 Cholers wrote both of divinitie & other arguments, Benrie Berklie chancellog of the Aniuerlitie of Dr. ford, an enimie to Michliffe, anda great fortiter; Robert Juozie a Carmelite frier of London, and the twentith prominciall of his order here in England; Lankine a Londoner, an Augustine frier, profested in the fame citic, a bodo; of biuinitie, an aduerfarie to Wickliffe.

901e, William Gillingham a monke of faint Saulours in Canturburie; John Chilmarke a fel. 20 lowof Parton colledge in Orford, a great piloso. ther and mathematician; John Sharpe a thilosopher. and a dinine, waote manie treatifes, a great aduer. farie to Wichliffe; Richard Lauingham borne in Suffolke, and a frier of Dipfwich, an ercellent logie cian, but a fore enimie to them that fauoured Wickliffes doctrine; Peter Patethull, of whome ve haue heard before: it is faid that he was in the end confreined for boubt of perfecution to flie into 1800 heme: William Wooford a Franciscane frier, a 30 dolen champion against Wickliffe being now bead, procured thereto by the archbishop of Canturburie Thomas Arundell; John Brompard a Dominicke frier, both a notable lawyer & a diuine, a foze enimie allo to Wicklinists; Parcill Ingelne an excellent thilosother and a divine, one of the first teathers in the Univertitie of Petoelberge, which Robert duke of

Bauier and count & palantine of the Khene had infituted about that featon; Richard Posthall fonne to a mator of London (as is faid) of that name, he became a Carmelite frier in the same citie; Thomas Cowardson prior of the friers Augustines at Clare in Suffolke, John Summer a Franciscane frier at Bridgewater, an enimie to the Wicklinists; Riv chard Withe a learned prieft fan earneft follower of Wickliffe, John Swafham a Carmelite frier of Lin, a Audent in Cambudge, who became bishop of Bangoz, a great adversarie to the Wick-

Finallie, and to conclude, William Egumond a frier heremit of the lea of the Augustins in Stam. ford; John Tillington a Franciscane frier , a mainteiner of the popes doctrine; William Kimston oz Rimington a monke of Salleie, an enimie also to the Wicklinists; Adam Eston well sæne in the tongs, was made a cardinall by pope Gregorie the eleauenth, but by pope Arban the firt he was committed to pillon in Genoa, and at the contemplation of king Richard he was taken out of prilon, but not fullie delivered till the dates of Boniface the ninth, tho restored him to his former dignitie; John Beaufua Carmelite of Porthampton, proceeded boctor of divinitie in Orenford, and was made prior of his house; Roger Twiford alias Godiucke, an Augustine frier; John Trevile a Coznilhman bozne, and a fecus lar prest and vicar of Berklie, he translated the bis ble; Bartholomew De proprietatibus rerum; Polychronicon of Kanulth Digoen, and diverte other treatites, Kafe Spalding a Carmelite frier of Stamfold; John mone an Englishman bozne, but a Audent in Paris, who compiled in the French twng the Komant of the Role, translated into English by Gel frie Chaucer, William Shirbozne ; Kichard Wich: ingham borne in Portfolke, and diverse other.

Thus farre Richard of Burdeaux, whose deprination you haue heard; of his lamentable death hereafter, to wit, pag. 516, 517.

Henrie the fourth, cousine germane to Richard the second, latelie depriued.

the scepter and crowne; Denrie Plantagenet bozne at Bullingbroke in the countie of Lincolne, buke of Lancas ffer and Hereford, earle of Derbie, Leicester, and Lincoine, sonne to John of Bant duke of Lancaster, with generall consent both of the loods a commons, was published, proclamed, and declared king of England and of France, and load of Freland, the latt 5 daic of September, in the yeare of the woold 5366, of our Lord 1399, of thereigne of the emperour Mencellaus the two and twentith, of Charles the list king of France the twentith, and the tenth of Pen king Richard had re: Kobert the third king of Scots. After that king Kingned (as before is specified) 40 chard had surrendered his title, and disposelled himfelfe (which Chr. Okl. noteth in few words, faieng:

post breue tempus Exüst insigni sese diademate, sceptrum Henrico Lancastrensiregalerelinquens)

Bing Henrie made certeine new officers. And Rewofficers first in right of his earledome of Leicetter he gaue made. the office of high feward of England (belonging to the fame earledome) buto his fecond sonne the lood Thomas, who by his fathers commandement erer. cifed that office, being affifted (by reason of his tender age)by Thomas Perlie earle of Thosceller. The earle of Porthumberland was made constable of England: fir John Scirlie lood chancellog, John Popburie efquier lozd trealuroz, fir Richard Clifford DDD.J.

Becord

Emns.

The partemet lord prinic feale. Forfe much as by king Richards renew famoned fignation and the admitting of a new king, all ples in enerie court and place were ceased, and without daie discontinued, new write were made for sum, moning of the parlement bover the name of king Denrie the fourth, the fame to be holden, as before was appointed, on mondaie next infuing. Upon the fourth day of Daober, the loed Thomas fecond sonne to the king fat as load high steward of England by the kings commandement in the White-hall of the 10 and of his towne of Denbigh. Thomas carle of A kingspalace at Westminster, and as belonged to his office, he caused inquirie to be made that offices were to be exercised by anie maner of persons the date of the kings coronation, and what fees were belonging to the fame, causing proclamation to be made, that what noble man or other that could claime anie office that daie of the felemnizing the kings coconation, they hould come and put in their bils copiehending their demands. Therbpon divers wife by speech of mouth, in forme as here insueth.

Claiming of offices at the coronation.

Curtana. The carie of Bummerict.

The carle of Morthum: berland. The Ileof D)an.

Lancaster

The earle of weltmerland,

The ruke of Jo:ffolke.

The earle of marwike.

Dir william Argentine.

Juon fitz: warren.

The lord Furmuall.

Ehe lozo

First, the love Denrie the kings eldest sonne, to whome he as in right of his duchie of Lancaffer had appointed that office, claimed to beare before the king the principall fword called Curtana, and had his lute granted. John erle of Summerfet, to whom the king as in right of his earledome of Lincolne, had granted to be caruer the daie of his coconation, and had it confirmed . Henrie Perfie carle of Pos thumberland, and high constable of England, by the 3 kings grant claimed that office, and obteined it to intoy at pleasure. The same earle in right of the 3le of Man, which at that present was granted to him, and to his heires by the king, claimed to beare on the kings left five a naked fword, with which the king was girded, when before his coronation he entered as duke of Lancaster into the parts of Holderneste, which swood was called Lancasters swood. Rafe erle of Westmerland, and earle marshall of England, by the kings grant claimed the same office, and obteined 40 it, not with flanding that the attornies of the duke of Postolke, presented to the lood feeward their petitis on on the dukes behalfe, as earle marthall, to erer, Sir Shomas cife the faine . Sir Momas Crpingham hnight Erpingham. erereifed the office of lood great Chamberleine, and gave water to the king when he walhed, both before and after dinner, having for his fees, the bason, ewer, and towels, with other things whatfoeuer belongs ing to his office: not with franding Auberic de Cleer earle of Orenfoed put in his petitions to have that 50 office as due unto him from his ancestors. Thomas Beauchampe earle of Cclarivike by right of inheritance, bare the third swood before the king, and by like right was pantler at the coronation. Sir Will liam Argentine knight, by reason of the tenure of his manour of Callmundale in the countie of Hert. ford, served the king of the first cup of drinke which he taffed of at his dinner the date of his coronation: the cup was of filner bugilt, which the same knight had for his fixs: notwithstanding the petition which 60 Juon Fitzwarren prefented to the lord feward, requiring that office in right of his wife the ladie Dand, daughter and heire to fir John Argentine knight. Dir Chomas Beuill lood Furniuall, by reafon of his manour of Ferneham, with the hamlet of Cere, which he held by the courteffe of England affer the decelle of his wife, the ladie Jone decelled, gaue to the king a glove for his right hand, and fuffeined the kings right arme fo long as he bare the scepter. The lord Reginald Craic of Ruthen , by reason of his manour of Athlete in Norfolke covered the tables, and had for his firs all the tableclothes, as well those in the bail, as else-where, when they were taken up;not with franding a petition erbibited by fir

John Draiton to have had that office. The fame look Graffer Braie of Buthen, bare the kings great fpurs before him in the time of his coronation by right of inheritance, as heire to John Haftings earle of Denbioke, John erk of Summerlet, by the kings allignement Ebelies bare the second swood before him at his coronation, land albeit that the faid lood Grate of Ruthen by petition erhibited before the lord fleward demanded the fame office, by reason of his castell & tower of penbiohe. and of his towns of Denvigo, Eyomas carron at Turnell charles butler of England, obtained to ever Three days cife that office the date of the cozonation, and had the fees thereto belonging granted to him, to wit, the goblet with which the king was ferued, and other things to that his office apperteining (the velicls of wine ercepted that laie binder the bar, which were adindged unto the faid lood freward, the faid earle of A. rundels claime not with francing.

The citizens of London cholen fourth by the citie, The chim offices these were claimed, as well by bils as other 20 ferned in the hall, as affiffants to the load these but of London ler, whilest the king fate at dinner, the daie of his coronation: and when the king entered into his tham ber affer dinner, and called for wine, the loso maior of London brought to him a cup of gold with wine, and had the same cup given to him, togither with the cup that conteined water to allay the wine. After the king had drunke, the faid lord maior and the alders men of London had their table to oine at, on the left hand of the king in the hall. Chomas Dimocke, in Chomas D. right of his mother Pargaret Dimocke, by reason mocke. of the tenure of his manoz of Scriucibie, claimed to be the kings champton at his coronation, and had his fute granted; notivithfanding a claime erhibited by Baldwin Frenill, demanding that office by reason Baldwin of his castell of Tamworth in Warwthethire. The Ficult faid Dimocke had for his fæs one of the best courfers in the kings stable, with the kings faodle and all the tramers & harneste amerteining to the same horse or courser: he had likewise one of the best armoss that was in the kings armoste for his owne bodie, with all that belonged wholie therebuto.

John loed Latimer, although he was biderage, The lople for himfelfe and the duke of Porfolke, notwithfians tunt. ding that his possessions were in the kings hands, by his atturnie fir Thomas Graie knight, claimed and had the office of almoner for that date, by reason of certeine lands which sometime belonged to the lood William Beuchampe of Beoford. They had a towell of fine limen cloth prepared, to put in the filter that was appointed to be given in almes; and like wife they had the distribution of the cloth that concred the pauciment and flows from the kings chamber doze, buto the place in the church of Westminster where the pulpit food. The residue that was spread in the church, the ferten had. Tailliam le Aenour, by william h reason he was tenant of the manoz of Liston, class Etenour. med and obtained to exercise the office of making wafers for the king the date of his coronation. The barons of the fine ports claimed, and it was granted The berns them, to beare a canopie of cloth of gold over the B. of the mex with foure flaues, a foure bels at the foure corners, cuerie staffe having soure of those barons to beare it : also to dine and sit at the table next to the king on his right hand in the hall the date of his coronation, and for their fees to have the for faid canopie of gold, with the bels and frames, notwithstanding the abbat of Wellminffer claimed the fame. Comund chame bers claimed and obtained the office of principall lard derer for him and his deputies, by reason of his manour of Skulton, otherwise called Burvellebin Shulton, in the countie of Porfolke. Thus was cue rie man appointed to crercife fuch office as to him of right amerteined, or at the least was thought requiet for the time prefent. On mondaie then next inluing,

Epcloig ma:

10:01 Lon=

 $\mathcal{A}n.\mathcal{R}eg.I.$ when the frates were affembled in parlement, order was taken, that by reason of such preparation as was to be made for the coronation, they thould fit no more till the morowafter faint Cowards daie. Dn the fundate following, being the even of faint Co. ward, the new king lodged in the Tower, and there made fortie ; fir knights of the Bath, to wit: three of his sonnes, the earle of Arundell, the earle of Warwike his sonne, the earle of Stafford, two of the earle of Denonthires sonnes, the load Beaumont, the load 1 Milloughbies brother, the earle of Staffords brother, the lost Camois his fonne, the lost of Paule. Thomas Beauchampe, Thomas Pelham, John Luttrell , John Liffcie , Milliam Baukeford inflice, William Brinchleie fuffice , Bartholomew Kachford, Giles Daubenie, William Butler, John Alh ton, Richard Sanape, John Tiptoff, Richard Francis, Denrie Derffe, John Arundell, William Strall, John Curpington, Ailmer Saint, Colward Da-Robert Chalons, Thomas Dinocke, Hungerford, Sibethorpe, Peluport, and dinerle other, to the num. ber of fortie and fir.

On the mojow being faint Gowards baie, and the thirteenth of Datober , the lord maior of London road towards the Tower to attend the king, with dinerle worthipfull citizens clothed all in red, and from the Sower the king rove through the citie to Westminster, where he was consecrated, annointed, and crowned king by the archbilhop of Canturburie 30 lowed with all ceremonies and rotall folemnitie as was The earle of due and requisit . Though all other refosed at his adnancement, vet suerlie Comund Postimer earle of Parch, which was coline and heire to Lionell duke of Clarence, the third begotten sonne of king Co ward the third, & Richard earle of Cambridge, fonne to Comund duke of Porke, which had married Anne fifter to the fame Comund, were with thefe dwings neither pleased noz contented: insomuch that now perfecute the other, till the heires males of both the lines were clærlie deffroice and ertinguished.

At the date of the coronation, to the end he Chould not fieme to take boon him the crowne and scepter rotall by plaine ertoxted power, and inturious intru-Courbe was addiced to make his title as heire to Co Chaund erle mund (furnanico o; bntrulie feined) Crokebacke, of smaller some to king Henrie the third, and to saie that the outside fair fait Comund was elder brother to king Coward the first, and for his deformitte put by from the crowne, 5 Croscosche, to whom by his mother Blanch, daughter and sole heire to Henrie duke of Lancacter, he was nert of blod, and bindoubted heire. But because not onelie his frends, but also his privile entinies, knew that this was but a forged title, confidering they were fuerlie informed, not onelie that the faid Comund was ponger sonne to king Henrie the third, but also had true knowledge, that Comund was neither erakebackeo, noza defozmeo person, but agmolie gentleman, and a valiant capteine, and so much fa, 60 noted of his louing father, that he to preferre him in marriage to the quene Dowager of Pauarre, haning a great livelihoo, gave to him the countie pas lantine of Lancaffer, with manie notable honours, high feguiories, and large privileges. Therefore they aduited him to publish it, that he challenged the realmenot onclie by conquest, but also because he by king Kichard was adopted as heire, and declared by relignation as his lawfull successo, being hert heire male to him of the blod rotall.

But to proceed to other dwings. The folemnitie of the commation being ended, the mozow after being tuefdate, the parlement began againe, and the next forme free date fir John Cheinie that was speaker, excusing himselfe, by reason of his infirmitie and sicknesse, Ber of the parnot to be able to exercise that rome, was dismissed, sed, and wiland one Milliam Durward efquier was admitted. ham Dur-Herewith were the acts established in the parlement ward nomit= of the one twentith years of king Kichards reigne ted. repealed and made boid, and the ordinances deuifed Aus repealed, in the parlement holden the eleventh years of the Ads confirfame king, confirmed, and againe established for med. god and profitable. In the same date, the kings el dest sonne loed Henrie, by assent of all the states in the parlement, was created prince of Wales, duke of Commall, and earle of Cheffer, then being of the age of twelve yeares.

Apon the thursdate, the commons came and rehearled all the errors of the last parlement holden in the one and twentith yeare of king Kichard, 4 names lie in certeine fine of them.

First, that where the king that now is, was readie to arraigne an appeale against the duke of Postolke, fings, John Greifleie, Gerald Satill, John Arben, 20 he dwing what perteined to his dutie in that behalfe, was pet banished afterwards without anie reasonable canfe.

> Secondlie, the archbishop of Canturburie, metropolitan of the realme, was foreinoged without anfmer.

Thirdlie, the duke of Glocester was murthered, and after foreindged.

Fourthlie, where the earle of Arundell alledged his charters of pardon, the same might not be al-

Fiftlie, that all the power of that enill parlement was granted and affigued over to certeine persons, and fith that such beinous errors could not be committed (as was thought) without the affent and abuise of them that were of the late kings councell, they made lute that they might be put under arrest, and committed to fafe keping, till order might be further taken for them.

Thus much ado there was in this parlement, the divition once begun, the one linage ceased not to 40 speciallie about them that were thought to be guiltie of the duke of Glocesters death, and of the condemning of the other losos that were adjudged traitoss in the forfaid late parlement holden in the faid one and twentith yeare of king Richards reigne. Sir John Bagot knight then palloner in the Tower, oil Fabian. closed manie secrets, buto the which he was privie; Sir John and being brought on a date to the barre, a bill was feth fecrets. read in English which he had made, conteining certeine euill practies of king Kichard; and further what great affection the same king bare to the duke of Aumarle, infomuch that he heard him fay, that if he hould renounce the government of the kings dome, he wither to leave it to the faid duke, as to the most able man (for wisdome and manhod) of all of ther : for though he could like better of the duke of Benrie the Hereford, yet he faid that he knew if he were once fourth infpres king, he would proue an extreame enimie and cruell ted not to be typant to the church.

It was further conteined in that bill, that as the church before fame Bagot rode on a date behind the duke of Por his comming folke in the Sauoy fræt toward Wieftminfter, the tothe crowne. ruke alked him what he knew of the manner of the duke of Gloceffer his death, and he answered that he knew nothing at all: but the people (quoth he) do fay that you have murthered him. Wherebuto the buke (ware great othes that it was butrue, and that he had faued his life contrarte to the will of the king, and certaine other loads, by the space of thee weeks, and moze; affirming withall, that he was never in all his life time more affraid of death, than he was at his comming home againe from Calis at that time, to the kings prefence, by reason he had not put the duke to death. And then (faid he) the king appoint ted one of his owne feruants, and certeine other that

Dob.tf.

well affected

The buke of Jumaric ac= were fervants to other loods to go infilhim to for the faid duke of Glocetter put to death, Avearing that as he should answer afore God, it was never his mind that he should have died in the fort, but onche for frare of the king, and faving of his owne life. Deuertheleste, there was no man in the realme to whom king Richard was so much beholden, as to the duke of Aumarle: for he was the man that to fulfill his mind, had fet him in hand with all that was done as gainst the said duke, and the other loads. There was re also conteined in that bill, what secret malice king Richard had conceived against the duke of Herefold bring in crile, whereof the same Bagot had sent intelligence buto the duke into France, by one Roger Smart, who certified it to him by Wiers Buckton, and others, to the intent he Mould the better have regard to himselfe. There was also conteined in the faid bill, that Bagot had heard the duke of Aumarle fay, that he had rather than twentie thousand pounds that the duke of Dereford were dead, not 2 for anie feare he had of him, but for the trouble and milchefe that he was like to procure within the After that the bill had beene read and heard, the 6 be boke of Anmarle bis answer bn= to Bagots bill,

John Ball a

duke of Aumarle role by and faid, that as touching the points conteined in the bill concerning him, thep lucre otterlie falle and ontrue, which he would proue with his bodie, in what manner soever it should be thought requilit. There with also the duke of Erceffer thing against him to speake it openlie. Bagot anfivered, that for his part he could fay nothing againt him: But there is (faid he)a yeoman in pelugat one John hall that can fay fomethat. Well then faid the ce duke of Erceffer) this that I do sno thall fay is frue, that the late king, the duke of Porfolke, and c thou being at Modfioke, made me to go with you into the chamell, and there the doze being thut, pe made me to liveare boon the altar, to keepe counfell that we thould never have our purpole, fo long as ce the duke of Lancaster lined, 4 therefore pe purposed to have councell at Lichfield, there you would are rest the duke of Lancaster, in such fort as by colour cc of his disobeieng the arrest, he should be dispatched cc out of life. And in this maner pe imagined his death. To the which I answered, that it were convenient the king thould fend for his councell, and if they a ce gred berebnto, I would not be against it, and fo 3 departed. To this Bagot made no answer.

Bagot and Ball brought to the barre.

Che lord Firzwater appealeth the Duke of Mumarle of trea:

After this, the king commanded that the loods, Berkleie, and Louell, and fir knights of the lower house, Mould go affer dinner to eramine the said Hall . This was on a thurfdate being the fifteenth of Daober. On the faturdate nert infuing, fir William Bagot and the faid John Hall were brought both to the barre, and Bagot was cramined of certeine points, and fent agains to prison. The losd Fitzwa ter herewith role up, and fait to the king, that where the bulke of Aumaris erenfeth himfelfe of the duke 60 nifell twong, to proceed in ante thing againft hing of Clocesters death, I say (quoth he) that he was the verie cause of his death, and so he appealed him of treason, offering by theowing downe his had as a gage to prone it with his bodie. There were twentie other loods also that threw downe their hoos, as pledges to prove the like matter against the duke of Aumarie. The duke of Aumarie threw downe his had to trie it against the lood Fitzwater, as against him that lied falselie, in that he had charged him with, by that his appeale. These gages were delines red to the constable and marshall of England, and the parties put under arreff.

The duke of Surrie food by also against the load Fitzwater, anouthing that there he had faid that the ameliants were causers of the duke of Glocesters ocath, it was falle, for they were constrained to fue the fame appeale, in like manner as the faid look Fitzwater was compelled to give tudgement against the duke of Glocester, and the earle of Arunbell; so that the fuing of the appeale was done by constraint, and if he faid contrarie he lied : and therewith he threw downe his hood. The load Fitzwater answered herebuto, that he was not present in the parlement house, when sudgement was ginen a. gainst them, and all the loads bare witnesse thereof. Dozeover, where it was alledged that the duke of Aumarie thould fend two of his fernants to Calis. to murther the duke of Glocester, the said duke of Aumarle fait, that if the buke of Porfolke affirme it, he lied fallelie, and that he would proue with his bodie, throwing downe an other had which he had bo rowed. The fame was likewife delivered to the confable and marshall of England, and the king licenced the duke of Porfolke to returne, that he might arraigne his appeale. After this was John Hall con Fabia bemned of treason by authoritie of the parlement, for that he had confessed himselfe to be one of them that put the duke of Glocester to death at Calis, and fo on the mondate following, he was drawne from Johnhille the Tower to Tiburne, and there hanged, bowelled, stuted, heaced, and quartered : his head being fent to Calis there to be fet op, where the ouke was murthered.

Dn wednesdate following, request was made by John Ston, rose by, and willen Bagot that if he could sayanie 30 the commons, that sith king Richard had resigned, Entired thing against him to sneake it onculie. Bagot and mad lainfullie denoted from his rotal biggitte. and was lawfullie deposed from his rotall dignitie, mons, he might have judgement decreed against him, so as the realme were not troubled by him, and that the causes of his deposing neight be published through the realme for fatifiling of the people: which demand was granted . Where boon the bilhop of Carleill, a Hall. man both learned, wife, and fout of fromach, bolblie 3 bolb billing thewed forth his opinion concerning that demand; and almost the fall, full, affirming that there was none amongst them wor in that ye had to fay to me, and then ye rehearled 40 thie or met to gitte ludgement boon so noble a prince as king Kichard was, whom they had taken for their fourreigne and liege lost, by the space of two a twentie peares and more; And Jaffure pon (faid he)there ,, ts not for ranke a traitoz, noz fo errant a theef, noz pet focruell a murtherer apprehended or deterned in priv >> fon for his offente, but he thall be brought before the inffice to heare his judgement; and will peproceed to the judgement of an anointed king, hearing neither his answer not excuse ? I say, that the buke of Lan " caffer whom ye call king, hath moze trespassed to it. Richard this realme, than king Richard bath done either to him,02 vs: for it is manifelf 4 well knowne, >> that the duke was banished the realme by 18. Richard and his councell, and by the judgement of his owne? father, for the space of ten peares, for what cause ve know, and pet without licence of king Richard, he is " returned againe into the realine, and (that is worle) hath taken byon him the name, title, t preheminence of king. And therfore I fap, that you have done may >> Richard, without calling him openlie to his answer ?? and defence. As some as the bishop had ended this tale, he was attached by the earle marthall, and committed to ward in the abbeie of faint Albons.

Pozeoner, where the king had granted to the earle of Messmerland the countie of Richmond, the duke The batter of Britaine pretending a right thereto by an olotic Small tle, had fent his letters over buto the effates affem bled in this parlement, offering to abide such order as the law would appoint in the like case to anie of the kings lubicas. There opon the commons for the more suertie of the intercourse of merchants, befought the king that the matter might be committed to the ordering of the councell of either of the parties, and of his counfell, so as an end might be had partices, which request was likewise granted. After therein, which request was likewise granted. this, the records of the last parlement were shewed, with the appeales, a the commission made to twelve persons, to determine things that were motioned in the fame last parlement. Decrebpon the commons plaied that they might have tuffice Parkham, and mailler Galcoigne a lergeant at the law toined with them for counsell, touching the perusing of the res cords, which was granted them, and day given over 10 till the nert mogratu in the White-hall, where thep fat about these matters thice daies togither.

partics.

On the morrow following, being the wuen of Sis mon and Jude the apostles, the commons required to heare the subgement of king Kichard. Where byon k lichard to the archbishop of Canturburie amointed to speake, tagin pers declared how that the king that now is, had granted analysion, king Richard his life; but in such wife as he thould remaine in perpetuall pailon, fo fafelie kept, that neither the king nor realme thould be troubled with 20 him. It was also concluded, that if anie man went about to beliver him, that then he Mould be the firth that thould die for it. After this, the commons praied that the losos and other that were of king Kichards counfell, might be put to their answers for their fundie milbemeanors, which was granted . Dn Wedneloay following, being the morrow after the feat of Simon and Jude, all the processe of the parlement holden the 21 years of king Richards reigns was Ehrente of read openlie, in which it was found, how the earle of 30 Warwike had confested himselfe guiltie of treason, and after parton and mercie for his offense: but the earle denied that ever he acknowledged ante such thing by word of mouth, and that he would proue in that manner socuer should be to him appointed. Epercin was also the appeale found of the dukes of Anmarle, Surrie, and Erceller, the marquelle Doz fet, the earles of Salifburie; and Bloceffer, buto the which ech of them answered by himselfe, that they ne but were compelled thereto by the king: and this they affirmed by their othes, and offered to proue it by what manner they Mould be appointed.

Sir Malter Clopton faio then to the commons; If ve will take aduantage of the processe of the last parlement, take it, and pe thall be received therebn= to. Then role by the load Poslie, and faid to the earle of Salifburie, that he was thiefe of counsell with the duke of Gloceffer, and like wife with king Kithard, t lo discouered the dukes counsell to the king, 50 as a traito; to his maiffer, and that he faid he would with his bodie prome against him, throwing downe hishod as a pleage. The earle of Salisburie soze Home apper mouco heerewith, told the load Moslie, that he fallie kinthe carte belied him, for he was never traitor, nor falle to his *Dauburie, mailter all his life time, and there with threw downe his glove to wage battell against the lood Hoolie. Their gages were taken op, and delivered to the constable and marshall of England, and the parties were arrested, and day to them given till another 60 fime.

On mondaie following, being the morroly after All foules day, the commons made request, that they might not be entred in the parlement rols, as parties to the inogement given in this parlement, but there as in verie truth they were privile to the same: for the subgement otherwise belonged to the king, ercept where anie judgment is given by fatute enaced for the profit of the common-wealth, which request was granted. Divers other petitions were prefented on the behalfe of the commons, part thereof were granted, and to some there was none answere made at that time. Finallie, to avoid further inconvenience, and to qualifie the minds of the envious, it was finallic enaded, that fuch as were spellants in the last parlement against the buke of Glocester and Dukes and or other, Could in this wife following be oppiet. The there beprebukes of Aumarle, Surrie, and Excesser there piet new of their fent, were indged to lose their names of bukes, togis ther with the honors, titles and dignities therebuto belonging. The marqueffe Dorfet being likewife there present, was adjudged to lose his title and dignitie of marqueffe; and the earle of Gloceffer being also present, was in semblable maner tudged to lose his name, title and dignitie of earle.

Mozeover, it was further decreed against them, Tho. Walfi. that they and eucrie of them thould lote and forfeit all those castels, lood thips, manoes, lands, possessions, rents, feruices, liberties and revenues, what soever had beene given to them, at or fince the last parlement, belonging aforetime to any of those persons whom they had amealed, and all other their castels, manors, lordings, lands, pollellions, rents, feruices, liberties, and revenues what soever, which they held of the late kings gift, the date of the arrest of the fato buke of Gloceffer, oz at any time after, thould also remaine in the kings disposition from thenceforth, and all letters patents and charters, which they or any of them had of the fame names, caffels, manous, loads thips, lands, possessions, and liberties, should be furrendzed by into the chancerie, there to be cancelled. Diverse other things were enaced in this parles ment, to the prejudice of those high estates, to satisfic mens minds that were fore displeased with their do ings in the late kings daies, as now it manifefflie awered. For after it was understood that they should The hatred be no further punished than as before is mentioned. Swhich the cogreat murmuring role among the people against mons had cothe king, the archbilhop of Canturburie, the earle of mitted against Porthumberland, and other of the councell, for fa uing the liucs of men whom the commons reputed most wicked, and not worthis in anic wife to live. But the king thought it belt, rather with courtelie to ucraffented to that appeale of their owne free wils, 40 reconcile them, than by cutting them off by death, to procure the hatred of their frænds and alies, which were manie, and of no finall power.

After that the forefato judgement was declared The carle of with protestation by fir William Thirning fustice, Salifburis the earle of Salisburie came and made request, that his request. he might have his protestation entered against the load Poalie, which load Poalie riling by from his feat, faid, that so he might not have; bicause in his first answer he made no protestation, and therefore he was past it now. The earle praied day of adussement. but the lozd Mozlie praied that he might lose his aduantage, fith he had not entered sufficient ple as gainst him. Then fir Patthew Bournie litting bir Dir Dathem derneath the king faid to the earle of Salifburie, Cournie. that forsomuch as at the first day in your answers, pe made no protestation at all, none is entered of record, and so you are past that advantage: and there, fore afked him if he would fair any other thing. Then the earle desired that he might put in mainpasse, which was granted : and so the earle of Bent, fir Kafe mainprised. Ferrers, fir John Roch, if fir John Draiton knights, mainvailed the laid earle bodie for bodie. For the load Polic all the lords and barons offred to undertake, and to be fuerties for him; but yet foure of them had and to be fuerties to, him; but per toute of them had The load their names entered, that is to faie, the loads Will Moule mains loughbie, Beauchampe, Scalcs, and Berkelie : they pufed. bad day till the fridaic after to make their libell.

After this came the load Fitzwater, and praied The load to have day and place to arreigne his appeale against fitzwalter, the earle of Rutland. The king faid he would fend for the buke of Postfolke to returne home, anothen bpon his returne he said he would proceed in that matter. Panic Catutes were effablished in this parlement, as well concerning the whole bodie of the Doo.iii.

The carie of Sali(burte

dir water

Che archb. of Cantur : burie refto= red to his fc.

Thom, Walf, Hall.

The crowne intailed.

common-wealth (as by the bake thereof imprinted may appeare) as also concerning diverse primate perfons then presentlie living, which partlie we have touched, and partite for doubt to be over-tedious, we do omit. But this among other is not to be forgotten that the archbishop of Canturburie was not onclie restored to his former dignitie, being remoued from it by king Richard, who had procured one Roger Walden to be placed therein (as before ye have heard) but also the said Walden was established bis 10 thop of London, wherewith he famed well content.

Dozcouer, the kings eldelf some Henrie alreadie created (as heire to his father, and to the crowne) prince of Wales, duke of Cornewall, and earle of Cheffer, was also intituled duke of Aquitaine: and to anoid all titles, claimes, and ambiguities, there was an act made for the uniting of the crowne unto king Penrie the fourth, and to the heires of his bodie lawfullie begotten, his foure fonnes, Benrie, Thomas, John, and Dumfrie, being named, as to bom 20 the right should descend successivelic by waie of intaile, in case where heires failed to any of them. By force of this aa king henrie thought himfelfe firme. lie fet on a fure foundation, not needing to feare any forme of aduerle fortune . But yet hortlie after he was put in danger to have bene fet besides the feat. by a conspiracie begun in the abbat of Westmin ffers house, which, had it not beene hindzed, it is doubt full whether the new king thould have infoiced his rois altie, or the old king (now a prisoner) restored to his 30 principalitie. But God (of whome the poet faith, had purposed a disapointment of their confuration, and therefore no maruell though the issue of their las bours were infortunat by their flattering hope.

-humana rotat Instar volucris pulueris acti Turbine celeri mobilis aur.e)

But now to make an end with this parlement. After that things were concluded and granted, fo as was thought to frand with the fuertie of the king, and 40 god quiet of the realme, the king granted a free paroon to all his subjects, those excepted that were at the murther of the duke of Gloceffer, and such as had committed wilfull murther, or rape, or were knowne to be notocious theues. And those that were to take benefit by this pardon, were amointed to fue footh the charters therof, betwirt that present and the feat of All faints nert infuing, and fo was this parlement dissolued. Immediatlie after, the king (according to an order taken in the same parlement, to give to but 50 berstand onto all princes and countries about him, by what title and occasion he had taken to him the is kingdome) sent amballadoes buto them to lignifie Amballadogs the fame . Into Rome were fent, John Treneuant fent to forren billiop of Percford, fir John Cheinie linight, & John Cheinie elquier. Into France, mafter Walter Shir low bishop of Durham, and Thomas Persie earle of Worceffer. Into Spaine, John Trenour bishop of faint Afach, and fir William Parre knight. Into Almanie the bishop of Bangor, and two others.

The Scots in time of the late parlement, taking occasion of the absence of the northerne lords, and alfo by reason of great mortalitie that affliced the nor therne people that yeare, innaded the borders, twhe The castell of the castell of Warke, that was alligned to the fafe warke taken kerping of fir Ehomas Greie knight, icho then was by the Scots. at the parlement, as one of the knights of the Chire, by meanes of whose absence, the entinies the somer (as is to be thought) obtained their desire, and so kept that castell a certeine time, and finallie spots led it, and overthick it to the ground . Befides all this, they did manie other mischafes in the countrie, to the budwing of manie of the kings subiens. This yeare Thomas Howbiaic duke of Pyffolke died in erile at Menice, whose death might have beine woy thilie bewailed of all the realme, if he had not bone consenting to the death of the duke of Gloceffer. Ale fame peare occeased the dudiesse of Slocester, the Ebits rough forrow(as was thought) which the conceined of Size for the lotte of hir forme and heire the lord Dumfrie, becease who being fent for forth of Ireland (as before pe haue heard) was taken with the petfilence, and died by the

But now to speake of the conspiracie, which was contriued by the abbat of Westminster as these in frument thereof. De thall bnberffand, that this abbat (as it is reported) bpour a time heard king henrie Hall faie, when he was but earle of Derbie, and young of yeares, that princes had to little, and religious men to much. He therfore doubting now, least if the king what many continued long in the estate, he would remoue the the abbard great beame that then greened his eies, and putched to confirm his conscience, became an instrument to search out against: the minds of the nobilitie, and to being them to an af king. femblie and councell, where they might confult and commen togither, how to bring that to effect, which they earnefile withed and defired; that was, the defruction of king Penrie, and the restoring of king Richard. For there were diverse loads that thewed themselues outwardie to fauoz king Henrie, where they fecretlie withed a fought his confusion. The abbat after he had felt the minds of fundzie of them, called to his house on a day in the terme time, all such lords tother persons which he either knew or thought to be as affectioned to king Kichard, so envious to the prosperitie of king Henrie, whose names were. John Holland earle of Huntington late duke of Cr. The local ceffer, Thomas Holland earle of Bent late duke of that confin Surrie, Coward earle of Kutland late duke of Au, ted against marle sonne to the duke of Pozke, John Pontacute the duke. earle of Salisburie, Dughlozo Spenser late earle of Gloceffer, John the bishop of Carleill, fir Thomas Blunt, and Maudelen a priess one of king Kichards chappell, a man as like him in fature and propor tion in all lineaments of bodie, as white in birth, dignitic, and conditions.

The abbat highlie feathed these loods, his speciall frænds, and when they had well dined, they withdick into a fecret chamber, where they fat downe in councell, and after much talke & conference had about the bringing of their purpole to palle concerning the des Arruation of king Henrie, at length by the abutle of the earle of Huntington it was deutled, that they should take byon them a solemne tusts to be enterprised betweene him and 20 on his part, the earle of a infinite Salifburie and 20 with him at Orford, to the which in white friumph k. Henrie Mould be defired, timen he Mould den at 21be most busilie marking the martiall passime, he sub, food. benlie should be slaine and destroied, and so by that means king Richard, who as verlined, might bere-Nozed to libertie, and have his former effate & dignitie. It was further appointed, who thould affemble the people, the number and persons which thouloac complify and put in erecution their denifed enterpille. Perupon was an indenture lertipartite made, 21 interes fealed with their feales, and figned with their hands, fertipation in the which each frod bound to other, to do their whole indenour for the accomplishing of their purposeders ploit. Poseouer, they sware on the holie enangeliss to be true and secret each to other, even to the houre and point of death.

When all things were thus appointed, the earle of Huntington came to the king unto Mindore, care to come nesslie requiring him, that he would bouchsafe to be for the the at Drenford on the date appointed of their infles, both to behold the fame, and to be the discourrer and indifferent indge (if anie ambiguitie thould rife) of their couragious acts and dwings. The king being the duke of Dorffolke.

Tho.Walfi.

The beath of Greie.

shus instantlic required of his brother in law, and nothing leffe imagining than that which was pretend ocd, gentlie granted to fulfill his request. Which thing obtained, all the loads of the conspiracie departed home to their houses, as they notice it, to set ar: morers on worke about the trimming of their armour against the instanto to prepare all other furnis ture and things readie, as to fuch an high & folemne triump amerteined. The earle of Huntington came to his house and raised men on euerie side, and prepar 10 red hoeffe and harnesse for his compassed purpose, and when he had all things readie, he departed to, wards Orenford, and at his comming thither, he found all his mates and confederates there, well appointed for their purpole, ercept the earle of Rut. land, by whole follie their practiled conspiracie was brought to light and disclosed to king Benrie . Foz this earle of Rutland departing before from Weftminster to se his father the duke of Pocke, as he fat at dinner, had his counterpane of the indenture of 20 the confederacie in his bosome.

The father espieng it, would nieds se ithat it was: and though the some humblie denied to thew it, the himbenture father being more earnest to seit, by force twheit out of his bosome; and perceiving the contents there of magreat rage caused his horses to be sadled out of hand, and spitefullie reproving his sonne of treafon, for whome he was become fuertie and mainpers nour for his good abcaring in open parlement, he incontinentlie mounted on horfebacke to ride tow 30 ards Colindiae to the king, to declare but ohim the malicious intent of his complices. The earle of Kutland feing in what banger he ftod, toke his horfe, and rode another waie to Windloze in post, so that he got thither before his father, and when he was a lighted at the castell gate, he caused the gates to be thut, fairing that he must needs deliver the keies to The carle of the king. When he came before the kings prefence, beknæled downe on his knæs, belæching him of tothe whole mercie and forgruenesse, and vectoring the whole 40 matter buto him in order as everie thing had palfed, obteined pardon. There with came his father, and being let in delivered the indenture which he had taken from his sonne, buto the king, who thereby perceining his fonnes woods to be true, changed his purpole for his going to Drenford, and dispatched medengers fouth to lignific buto the earle of Pop thumberland his high constable, and to the earle of Medmerland his high marthall, and to other his al fured frænds, of all the doubtfull danger and peril: 50 lous icopardie.

The conspirators being at Orenford, at length perceived by the lacke of the earle of Kutland, that their enterpiese was remealed to the king, and there. bpon octermined now openlie with speare and thield to bring that to patte which before they covertlie attempted, and so they adorned Daudelen, a man most resembling king Kichard, in rotall and princelie bes flure, and named him to be king Richard, affirming that by favour of his keepers he was escaped out of 60 pulon, and to they came follwards in order of warre, to the intent to destroic king Henrie. Whilest the confederators with their new published fooll, accompanied with a ffrong armie of men, twke the direct waie towards Eclindice, king Penrie admonished thereof, with a few horstemen in the night came to Darrolken the Cower of London about twelue of the clucke, where in the morning he caused the major of the citie to apparell in armour the best and most couragious persons of the citie, which brought to him their thous fand archers, and their thousand bill-men, besides them that were appointed to keepe and defend the

The confrirators comming to Windloze, entered the castell, and understanding that the king was gon from thence to London, determined with all speed to make towards the citie: but changing that betermine nation as they were on their waie, they turned to The king go-Colbroke, and there flated. Bling Penrie iffung out eth forth as of London with twentie thousand men, came gainst them. Areight to Hundlo heath, and there pitched his campe to abide the comming of his enimies: but when they They retire. were advertised of the kings pullance, amazed with They come to feare, and forthinking their begun enterpile, as men Circelter. mistrutting their owne companie, departed from thence to Berkhamsted, and so to Tircester, ethere the loods toke their lodging. The earle of Bent, and the earle of Salifburie in one Inne, and the earle of Duntington and lood Spenfer in an other , and all The bailiffe of Circofter the host late in the fields, where upon in the night fear fetteth upon four the bailiffe of the towne with fourescore archers them on their fet on the house, where the erle of Bent and the other longings. late, which house was manfullic assaulted and strong lie befended a great space. The earle of Buntington fire on their being in an other Inne with the loss Spenfer, fet lodgings. fire on diverse houses in the towne, thinking that the affailants would leave the affault and rescue their gods, which thing they nothing regarded. The host lie Hall. eng without, hearing noise, and loving this fire in the towne, thought verelie that king Penrie had beine come thither with his pullance, and thereopon fled without measure, everie man making thist to save himselfe, and so that which the loods devised for their helpe, wrought their destruction: for if the armie that late without the towne had not miliaken the matter, when they faw the houses on fire, they might casilic have fuccoured their cheefeteins in the towne, that were affailed but with a few of the townsimen, in comparison of the great multitude that late abroad in the fields. But such was the ordinance of the mightie Lozd of holles, who disposeth althings at his pleasure.

The earle of Huntington and his companie fæing the force of the townshinen to increase, fled cut on the backlive, intending to repaire to the armie which they found dispersed and gone. Alen the earle seeing no hope of comfort, fled into Cler. The other loads which were left fighting in the towne of Circeffer, were wounded to death and taken, and their heads Aricken off and fent to London. Thus writeth Hall of this conspiracie, in following what author I know not. But Thomas Walfingham and diverse other Thom. Walf, fæme somewhat to vissent from him in relation of this matter: for they write that the conspiratours ment bpon the sudden to have set bpon the king in the castell of Windloze, under colour of a maske of Amaske. mummerie, and to to have dispatched him; and resto ring king Richard buto the kingdome, to have reco uered their former titles of honour, with the possessio ons which they had loft by judgement of the last rare lement. But the king getting knowledge of their pretented treatons, got him with all speed buto London.

The conspirators, to wit, the earles of Bent and Salisburie, sir Kafe Lumlie, and others, supposing Harding, that the king had not understood their malicious purpole, the first lundaie of the new yeare, which fell in the octaves of the Innocents, came in the twilight of the evening buto Windfoze with foure hundled armed men, where understanding that the king was withdrawne bpon warning had of their purpoled intention, they fouthwith returned backe, and came first buto Sunnings, a manoz place not farre from Reading, where the quiene wife to king Richard then laie. Here letting a goo countenance of the matter, the earle of Bent declared in prefence of the guenes fernants that the lood Henrie of Lancaffer was fied of the corts from his prefence with his children and frends, and of Bent.

1400

The words

counterfeited

The K.com:

Che lorda Cometowin: citie.

hao

had thut by himselfe & them in the Tower of Lonbon, as one afraid to come abroad, for all the brags made heretofore of his manhod : and therefore (faith be)my intention is (my loods) to go to Richard that was, is, and thall be our king, who being alreadic elcaped forth of prison, lieth now at Poinfret, with an hundred thouland men. And to cause his speech the better to be belieued, he toke awaie the kings cognis fances from them that ware the fame, as the collars from their necks, and the badges of cressants from 10 the fleues of the fernants of houshold, and throwing them awaic, faid that fuch cognitances were no longer to be boine .

Thus having put the quene in a baine hope of that with was nothing for they departed from thence unto Callingford, and after to Abington, intifing the people by all meanes possible unto rebellion, all the wate as they went, and fending their agents as broad for the fame purpole : at length they came to Circeffer in the darke of the night, and toke up their 20 lodgings. The inhabitants of that towne suspenting the matter, and indging (as the truth was) thefe rumore which the loods freed abroad to be but dreams. they take thereupon counsell togither, got them to armo; and flowed all the entries and outgates of the Annes where these new ghestes were lodged, infomuch that when they about midnight fecretlie attempted to have come forth, and gone their waies, the tolunclinen with bow and arrowes were readie to fraie them, and keepe them in . The loods perceis 30 ning the banger, got them to their armo: and wear poins, and did their best by force to breake through and repell the tolunelmen. But affer they had fought from midnight till there of the clocke in the affernone of the nert date, and perceived they could not prevaile, they yarded themselves to the townssmen. belæching them to have their lines laued, till they niight come to the kings prefence.

This request they had obteined, if a piest that was chapleme to one of them, had not in the meane time 40 let fire upon certains boules in the retune to the end that whiles the townshinen thould buffe themselves to quench the fire, the loads might find meanes to el cape. But it came nothing to palle as he imagined, for the townelmen leaning all care to faue their hous fes from the rage of the fire, were kindled more in furie towards the loods, and so to revenge themsclues of them they brought them forth of the abbete where they had them in their hands, and in the time light of the eneming , froke off their heads. The 50 earle of Salifburie, faith Thomas Wallingham' who in all his life time had borne a faucurer of the Lollards o: Mickleuiffs, a despiler of images, a contemmer of canons, and a feomer of the facraments, ended his daies, as it was reported without the facrament of confession. These be the words of Thom. Walf ubichare fet downe, to fignific that the earle of Salifburie was a bidden gheft to blockbam feaff with the reft; and as it thould fame by his relation) ged fro the corruption of the religion then received, and leaned to a feet purfued with spitefulnesse and re-

Walingham writeth' was not with the lords at the caffell of Colundloge, but faire about London to be, hold the end of his bulinelle: and hearing bow the matter went farre contrarte to that be wilhed , be fought to flie by fea; but not able to get awaie, by reafon the wind being contrarie would not permit bim, be twhe his bootle, and having a hright with him called fir John Shellie, be road into Offer, attempting to have fled from thence by fea : but fill the found was to again the him, that he was continuallie dimen backe when he was about to make faile, and fo comming againe to land, he was taken one evening at Three halance to land, the balance to land, the balance to land. Pitwell in Effer, in a mill (that belonged to one of themes his trustic francs as he sat there at supper , togither takin with the faid fir John Shellie . The commons of the countrie that twice him , brought him first to Chel micford, and affer to Plathie, there on the date of S. Daure, that is the fifteenth of Januaric, about fun beis he fetting he was beheaded, in the verie place in which headed, the buke of Clocefter was arrefted by king Richard, De confessed with lamentable repentance (as with ters dw record) that divers a manie wates he had of. fended God and his prince , bicaufe that binderffan, bing the purpose of the other losds, he had not reuea led the fame.

John Loll me earle of Puntington as Thomas

The lood ' Hugh Spenfer,otherwife called carle of ' Chomas Clocciter, as he would have fled into Maics, was Arminist taken and carried to Buffold, there (according to the earnest desires of the commons) he was beheat Hall bed. Daudelen fleing into Scotland, was taken bu the wair, and brought to the Tower . Panie other that were printe to this conspiracte, were taken, and put to death, foine at Oxford, as fir Domas Blunt, Ennim fir Benet Cilie knight, and Thomas Mintercell elquier; but fir Leonard 13:0kas, and fir John Shel lie knights, John Pandelen, and William Perbie chapleins, were diawne, hanged, and beheaded at Tho. Wally London. There were ninetane in all executed in one Hall place and other, and the heads of the cheefe conspirators were fet on polles ouer London bridge, to the terror of others. Shortlie after, the abbat of Caeff munffer, in whose house the conspiracie was begun The abbud (as is faid) going betweene his monafferie? man recommin fron, for thought fell into a funden palfie, and thortie buthlobber affer, without spech, ended his life. The bithop of Thom Wall Carleill was impeached, and condemned of the fame Ehrbitad conspiracie; but the king of his mercifull elemencie, Carbill ach pardoned him of that offense, although he died thouts throughten, lie after, more through feare than force of ficknesse, or rathin the as some have written. Thus all the associats of this compared that are confirmed to the original than the associate of the original than the origi buhappic conspiracie tasted the painefull penance of the with their plefant paffime. profeer as b

Thus have yo beard that writers have recorded tokett. of this matter, with some difference betwirt them Hall that write, how the king thould have beene made as waie at a mils; and other that tellifie, how it thould have bone at a maske of mummerie: but icheter they meant to have dispatched bir tamumming, or at a lufts, their purpose being remaled by the carle of Liutland, they were brought to confusion (as before per haue heard. And immediatlie after, king Penrie, to rid himfelfe of anie fuch like banger to be attempted againft him thereafter , caufed hing Bis thard to die of a violent death, that no man thould afterward faine himselfe to represent his person, though forme bave fait, he was not printe to that wice ked offense. The common fame is, that he was cue The family rie daie fernied at the table with coulie meat, like a ripois de king, to the intent that no creature thould infred as thicher. the more maligned, breause he was sommat estrant 60 nie thing done contrarie to the order taken in the parlement; and when the meat was let before him, be was forbioden once to touch it : yea , be was not permitted fo much as to finell to it, and fo he died of forced famine.

"But Thomas Waltingham is to farre from impu Att. First ting his beath to compulicate famine, that he refer Taemine reth it altoguther to voluntarie pining of himfelfe. Pagarage For when be heard that the complots and attempts of furth bis favourers, as fought his reflictution, and their chine aduancement, admibilated, and the chafe agents chamefullie erecuted; be tobe fuch a conceit at these musicitumes for so Inomas Waltingham termeth them and was so beaten out of bart, that wifullie he starued himselfe, and so ded in Pamfret feines.

The larner pall them:

3 pateff fet tire on the houses of Circefter.

Abr. Fl. out of Tho Walia, pag. 404.

"De bieb bn: confested.

Stips od F

Chr.S.Alb.

An.Keg.1. Calfell on S. Calentines Daie: a happie Daie to him, for it was the beginning of his ease, and the ending of his paine: so that death was to him daintie and fweet, as the poet faith, and that verie well in beefe, Dulce mori miseru, Neque est melius morte in malis rebus.

One witer, which seemeth to have great know or pursue ledge of king Rithards dwings, faith, that king er Dierove Bontie, fitting on a daie at his table, foge fighing, dent of king faid; Haue I no faithfull freend which will deliver me " of him, in of elife will be my death, and whose death will be the prefernation of my life. This faieng was " much noted of them which were prefent, and especials die of one called fir Piers of Erton. This knight incontinentlie departed from the court , with eight frong perfons in his companie, and came to pom. fret, commanding the elquier that was accustomed to few and take the affaie before king Kichard, to bo " fo no more, fairing; Let him eat now, for he thall not longeat. Ling Richard fat downe to dinner, and 20 was ferued without courteffe or affaie, therespon much maruelling at the fudden change, he demanded of the efquier whiche did not his dutie; Sir(faid be) 1 " am otherwise commanded by fir Piers of Erton, a which is newlic come from B. Henrie . When king Richard heard that wood, he toke the keruing knife in his hand, and firake the efquier on the head, fateng The divell take Denrie of Lancaster and the togither. And with that word, fir Priers entred the chams ber well armed, with eight tail men like wife armed, 30 cuerie of them having a bill in his hand.

Bing Richard perceining this, put the table from him, a fleping to the formost man, wrung the bill out of his hands, to valiantlie defended himselfe, that he Que foure of those that thus came to affaile him. Sic the desperat wiers being halfe dismated here with, lept into the that the the thing Richard was wont to fit, while the other foure versons sought with him, and chased him about the chamber. And in conclution, as king Riv that transferd his ground, from one lide of the 40 thamber to another, comming by the chaire, where fir Diers food, he was felled with a ftroke of a pollar which fir Piers gave him opon the head, and theres withrib him out of life, without giving him respit once to call to God for mercie of his passed offenses. It is faid, that fir Piers of Exton, after he had thus flaine him, wept right bitterlie, as one Artken with the picke of a giftie conscience, for murthering bim, whome he had so long time obeied as king. After fered, and concred with lead, all faue the face, to the intent that all men might fee him, and perceive that he was departed this life: for as the corps was conneicd from Pomfret to London, in all the townes and places where those that had the conveiance of it did flate with it all night, they caused divige to be long in the cuening, and malle of Requiem in the morning; and as well after the one feruice as the o ther, his face discovered, was the wed to all that cover ted to behald it.

Thus was the corps first brought to the Tower, and after through the citie, to the cathedrall church of Cower, faint Paule bare faced, where it laie the baies to. gither, that all men might behold it . There was a folemne obsequie done for him, both at Paules, and after at Meliminster, at which time, both at dirige o nernight, and in the morning at the masse of Requiem, the king and the citizens of London were present. When the same was ended, the corps was commany ded to be had but o Langlie, there to be buried in the thurth of the friers preachers. The bithop of The fer, the abbats of faint Albons and Waltham, celes brated the erequies for the buriall, none of the nobles not ante of the commons (to accompt of) being prefent: neither was there anie to bid them to dinner after they had laid him in the ground, and finished the funerall feruice. He was after by king Benrie the fic remoued to Meliminster, and there honogablie intomed with queene Anne his wife, although the Scots butruclie write, that he escaped out of prison. and led a pertuous and a folitarie life in Scotland, and there died, a is buried (as they hold)in the blacke friers at Sterling. ABut Fabian and others ow as it Abr. Fl. out of were point out the place of his interrement, faieng Fabian pag. that he lieth intorned on the fouth fide of faint Co. 378. wards theine, with an epitaph expressing partlie his proportion of bodie and partlie his properties of mind, as after followeth in a rimed heraftichon:

Prudens & mundus, Richardus ture secundus, Per fatum victus, jacet hic fub marmore pictus, Verax sermone, fuit or plenus ratione, Corpore procesus, animo prudens vt Homerus, Ecclesia fauit, elatos suppeditauit, Quemus prostrauit, regalia qui violauit. When the newes of king Richards depoling was forrengine reported in France, king Charles and all his court ces not with twondering, detected and abhorred such an insuric borre o bearg done to an annointed bing, to a crosuned prince, and of the shanes to the head of a realine: but in especiall, Walerane full muriber earle of faint Paule, which had married king 181: of king 181: thards halfe litter, moned with great disdaine to: chard, wards king Benrie, ceaffed not to firre king Chare les this councell to make warres against the Englishmen, and he himselfe sent letters of defiance into England. The earles fute was cafilie agreed buto, and an armie rotall appointed with all fpeed, to innade England. The armie was come bowne into Picardie, redie to be transported into England: but üben it was certeinelie knowen, that king Richard was dead, and that the enterpife of his deliverance (which was cheffie meant) was fruitrate and boid, the armie was disolved. But when the certeintie of li. Richards death was intimate to the Balcoignes, the most part of the wifest men of the countrie were how the Bala right pension: for they judged bereite, that hereby the coignes take Englith nation thould be brought to dithonour, and lotte of their ancient fame and glozie, for committing so beinous an offense against their king and soue reigne loed, the memorie whereof (as they thought) would never die : and cheffie, the citizens of Wurbeaur toke the matter verte fore at the Comach : for they bare erceding favour to king Kichard, because he was borne and brought op in their citie, and there. he was thus dead, his bodie was imbalmed, and 50 foremore than all the residue they shewed themsels ues to abhorre so beinous a bed.

The Frenchmen having bederstanding bereof, thought with themselves that now was the time for them to practice with the Balcoignes to reduce them from the English obeisance, bnder their subieator, Herebpon came Lewes duke of Burbon buto A The duke of gen, and wrote to diverfectities and townes, on the Burbon. confines of Buten, exharting them with large promiles, and faire lugred words, to revolt from the Englithmen, and to become subjects to the crowne of France; but his trauell prevailed not : for the people bnderstanding that the English yoke was but easie in comparison to the French bondage, octermined to abide rather in their old subjection, than for a difpleasure irrecouerable to adventure themselves on a new doubtfull perill; pet it was doubted, leaft the Froiffard. cities of Burdeaur, Dar, and Baion, would have reuolted, if the loads of the marches about those places had leaned to them in that purpole, for they fent their commissioners to Agen, to treate with the duke of Burbon. But for somuch as the logos, Domiers, Bucident, Duras, Landuras, Copane, Rolem, Langurant, were minded to continue ftill English, those cities durft not without them turne to the French o beisance.

inef t. Ris

petaparies.

Polydor.

The carle of

into Gal=

coigne.

beffance, for they could not have ffirred out of their gates, but those lords would have beine readie at their elbowes, to have caught them by the fleues.

laing Denrie being advertised of the Frenchmens covert meanings, and also of the wavering minds of the Galcoignes, fent Thomas Perfie carle of Wiogeeffer with two hundred men of armes, and foure hundred archers into Suien, to aid and allift fir Kobert Linols, his lieutenant there. The chiefest capteines that accompanied the earle in this fournie 1 were thefe : first, his nemue fir Bugh Pattings, fir Thomas Collevill, fir William Lifle, John de Oraillie base sonne to the capitall de Boeuf, sir Willliam Draiton, fir John Danbreticourt : alfo there went with him the bithop of London, and mafter Richard Doall o: Dolleie. The earle at his arrivall fo toiselie intreated the noble men, so granelie perfuaded the magistrate of the cities and townes, and fo gentlic and familiarlic bled and treated the commons, that he not onelie appealed their furie and may 20 lice, but brought them to louing and buisorme obeis fance, receiving of them other of obedience, a loiall fealtie, which done, he returned againe into Enge land with great thanks.

The French king perceiuing he could not bring his purpole about , neither by inuading England,

Amballabors 1102 by practifing with the Galcoignes, lent a folemne from the French king.

364.

ambassage into England, requiring to have his daughter the ladie Isabell, sometime espoused to king Lichard, refloied to him againe. Bing Genriegents lie received those that were sent to him about this mellage, and for answer, promifed to send his commissioners buto Calis, which should further com-Abr. Flour of mune and conclude with them. This seemeth distonant from the report of Fabian deriued out of Gagwine. For he faith that Charles hearing of the fup preffion of B. Richard, fent 2 of his houthold knights into England, requiring bing Denrie the fourth, then neinlie made king, to fend home his daughter Inbell, latelie married unto bing Richard, with fuch 40 downie as with hir was promifed. In doing of which message king henrie toke such bispleasure, that he threw the faid two knights in prilon; where through one of them (named 13landet) vied in England, and the other called Benrie, after great ficknelle returned into France: inherefore if Fabian plate not the fabler, those that were sent on the said message were not gentlie receined of king Benrie; billeffe to be east in pulon and discourteousie dealt withall fand But to remit this and the like variances among with ters to luch as can reconcile them, let vs returne to Geoige earle florth into England.

The answer of king then: =ms dinos & ballado:s.

It was not inough that L. Henrie was thus trop bled now in the first pere of his reigne, with civil fedition, and the couert practiles of Frenchmen; but that the Scots also twke bpon them to make open warre against him : it chanced (as in the Scotish dionicles more at large apeareth) that George of Dunbar, carle of the marches of Scotland, being 60 indispleasure with Robert king of Scots, fled into England, to Denrie earle of Porthumberland, where bpon the Scouth king depined him of all his bignie ties and policitions, and caused his gods to be confilcate, and affer wrote to the bing of Englind, requiring bim if he would baile the truce anie longer to continue, either to deliver into his possession the earle of Adardiand other traitors to his person or else to bandh them out of his realines and dominions. Ling Benrie biferetly answerd the berald of Scotland, that the words of a prince ought to be kept; and his writings and feale to be immolate: and confide. ring that he had granted a fafe conduct to the carle and his companie, he thould neither futhout cause reasonable breake his promise, nor pet de face his bonoz. Which answer declared to the king of Scots, he Oping now. Which animer occurred open warre against the radians king of England, with fire and swood. Herebyon, the king of England, with fire and swood. one fir Robert Logon, a Scotth knight, with cer sunfer meant to the marre meant to the teine thips well appointed for the warre, meant to land haue deffroied the English fleet that was come on Thank the coasts of Scotland, about Aberdin, to fich there: but (as it chanced) he met with certaine thins of Lin, that fought with him, and toke him palo Robin Lie ner, with the relidue of his companie, so that he quite gonden falled of his purpose, and came to the losse himselfe, soar,

At the same time, the Englishmen spoiled also cer. The Burk teine of the Iles of Dikeneie. This fummer, great Dikem beath chanced in this land, manie dieng of the pethy footed by lence, wherewith fundzie places were infected king apparent Henric perceiuing that policie offentimes preuen propie teth perill, and understanding the naughtie purpo. fes of the Scots, gathered a great armic, and entred king him into Scotland, burning townes, villages, and car inuabih ftels, with a great part of the townes of Coen, Donland, burgh and Leeth, and belieged the castell of Coons burgh in the end of September, thereof was capteine Dauid duke of Rothfaie, and a prince of the Ebronkel realine, with Arthembalo carle of Dowglas, having Kothiat, with them manie hardie men of warre. Robert duke of Albanie, that was amointed gouernour of the Thebuked realine, because the king was sicke and not meet to Aibanic, rule, sent an heralo onto king Henrie, promiting him battell within fir daies at the furthest, if he would fo Anno Rega long tarrie, which king Henrie promifed to doright gladic, and gaue to the herald for bringing him fo acceptable newes, a gowne of filke, and a cheine of gold. But king henrie flated fir baies , and firteine tw, without hearing any wood of the governoss comming. Then the winter beginning to war cold, and foule weather fill increasing, caused the bing to breake by his fiege, and to returned without battell o; fkirmif offered.

In the meane time that the king was thus in king him Scotland, the Scots made a rode into Bothumbers returned land, and burned diverfe townes in Lamburrough tome. thire. At the kings comming backe to poche, there barnen fo were two frangers, the one a Frenchman, and the thumbersan other an Italian, requiring to accomplish certeine Julis at feats of armes, against fir John Cornewall, and Ja, York. nico de Artois. Their requed was granted, and the frangers were put to the worth, thereby fir John Cornewall obteined the kings fanour fo farre forth, bir 3th countable fo; beneuolence a gentle interteinment. 50 that he married the kings fifter, the widow of John Contable Polland, earle of Huntington. Det fome faid, that marint in the knight and the counters were agreed assessing linguist. the knight and the counteffe were agreed aforehand, without the kings confent. In the kings ablence, The wife whilest he was fouth of the realme in Scotland as men util gainst his enimies, the Welthmen toke occasion to the limits rebell bnder the conduct of their capteine Dwen Gienden. Clendouer, dwing ichat mildbæfe they could deuile, buto their Engliff neighbours. This Diven Clers John Ser bouer was sonne to an esquier of Wales, named Omn & Criffith Clichan : he divelled in the parith of Cong bourt the waie, within the countie of Personeth in Porth heims. wales, in a place called Clindourwie, with is as much to fair in English, as The vallie by the five of the water of De , by occasion whereof he was lurnamed Clindon Dew.

190 was first let to studie the lawes of the realme, and became an otter barreffer, or an appentife of the law (as they terme bim) and ferued bing Richard at Flint castell, when he was taken by Denrie buke of Lancaster, though other have written that he served this bing Benrie the fourth, before he came to at Tho. teine the crofone, in rome of an elquier, and affer. by reason of variance that rose betwirt him and the loid Reginald Creix of Ruthin, about the lands which he im to rebell.

One burnt in smuhfielb.

as Froillard

Clic hath claimed to be his by right of inheritance: when he faw that he might not prevaile, finding no fuch fauo? inhis lute as he loked for, he first made warre as Et octation gainst the said look Greie, wasting his lands and policifions with fire and fword, cruellie killing his fernants and fenants. The king advertised of such re-Existing in bellious exploits, enterprised by the faid Diven, and his burulic complices, determined to chastile them, as diffurbers of his peace, and so with an armie en the india, tered into Wales; but the Wellsmen with their 10 capteine withorew into the mounteines of Snow, bon, so to escape the revenge, which the king meant towards them. The king therefore did much hurt in the countries with fire and fwood, fleing diverse that with weapon in hand came fouth to relift him, and fo with a great botic of beaffs and cattell he returned. The emperour of Constantinople comming into England to fue for aid against the Eurkes, was met d Contantes Congression on Blackeheath, bpon the feaff day of en Englas, faint Momas the apostle, and brought unto London 20 with great honoz. The king bare all his charges, prefenting him with giffs at his departure, met for futh an effate. After the feaft of the Cpithanie, a par-Jordanent, lement was holden, in which an act was made, as gainst those that helo opinions in religion, contrarie to the received bostrine of the church of Rome, orders ning, that wherefoener any of them were found and provided to let forth fuch doctrine, they thould be apprehenord, and belivered to the bishop their dioces fane; and if they floo fiffelie in their opinions, and 30 would not be reformed, they should be delivered to the secular power, to be burnt to alhes. The first that talled the fmart of this flatute, was one Milliam hawtre og Sawtre a prieft, that being amzehen. ocd was burnt in Smithfield, in time of this parle-

About the same time, king Henrie (according to Idditions of the chronicles promife made (as pe have heard) buto the French d flanderg. ambaffadors, fent ouer into the countrie of Builnes, Coward earle of Butland, otherwise in king Ki abotheric of chards daies intituled duke of Aumarle, son to Eds mund duke of Porke, Benrie earle of Porthumber, land, and his sonne the losd Wenrie Perlic, the losd Puan Kitzwarren, the bishops of Winchester and Lincolne: where the duke of Burbon, the losos Comillionera Charles d'Albert, Charles de Pangelf, John de Chamitiotreatof stelmozant, the Patriarke of Terusalem, and the bis thops of Paris and Beaucois, were readie there to commune with them, and so they assembling togs ther at fundzie times and places, the Frenchmen re- 50 quired to have quæne Rabell to them reflozed, but the Englishmen sæmed loth to depart with hir, requiring to have hir married to Benrie prince of Males, one in bloud and age in all things to hire the French quall; but the Frenchmen would in no wife condel cend thereto, without their kings consent, who at that pictent was not in case to offer his mind, being troubled with his wonted difeate. The commission ners then began to treat of peace, and at length renelved the truce to endure for fir and twentie yeares 60

> king Kichard. Some authors affirme, that there was a new league concluded to continue, during the lines of both the princes. The Frenchmen diverse times required to have some bower alligned forth for queene Habell, but that was at all times otterlie denied, for that the marriage between hir and king Richard was never consummate, by reason thereof the was not dowable. Penerthelesse, the was thoustlie after sent home, under the conduct of the earle of Mozecter, affociat with diverse other noble and honozable per-> pet to come; wherebuto the foure yeares passed being added, made by the number of thirtie yeares, accord > ding to the conclusion agreed byon, in the life time of fortages, both men and women, having with hir all the tewels, ornaments, and plate which the brought into England, with a great furplulage belides given to her by the king . She was delivered betwirt Bul Additions of longne and Calis, to Caleran carle of faint Paule, the chaon of the French kings lieutenant in Picarvie, who being accompanied with the bilhop of Chartres, the logo de uered home, Hugucuile, the ladie of Monpentier litter to the erle of Warch, the ladie of Lucenburgh lifter to the faid carle of faint Paule, & diverte other ladies and gene tlewomen, which received hir with great for and gladnesse, and taking leave of the English loads and ladies, they conveied hir to the dukes of Burgognie and Burbon, that attended for hir, not far off, bpon a hill, with a great number of people. They first con Sheis conucied hir to Bullogne, after to Abuile, from whence vie to Pazing. the buke of Deleance conveied hir to Paris, buto the prefence of the king hir father, and the quæne hir thir fecond mother : the was after given in marriage buto marriage, Charles, sonne to Lewes duke of Daleance.

About the same time, Dien Blendouer and his Anno Reg. 3 Melfhmen did much hurt to the kings lubicas. One Douer. night as the king was going to bed, he was in dan The danger ger to have beene de Aroied; for some naughtic traito of the king to rous persons had connected into his bed a certeine have beene de-tron made with smiths crass, like a caltrop, with three long vickes, therpe and small, standing byzight, in fuch fort, that then he had late him downe, that the weight of his bodie hould come boon the bed, he Mould have beene thouse in with those poicks, and peradventure flaine: but as God would, the king not thinking of any luch thing, chanced yet to feele and perceive the instrument before he law him downe. and fo escaped the danger. Dowbeit he was not fo fone delivered from feare; for he might well have his life in suspicion, a provide for the preservation of the fame; fith perils of death crept into his fecret chamber, and late lurking in the bed of downe there his bodie was to be reposed and to take rest. Th what a suspected fate therefore is that of a king helding his regiment with the batred of his people, the hartgrud gings of his courtiers, and the peremptorie practics of both togither ? Could be confidentlie compose oz fetle himfelfe to læpe for feare of Grangling. Durft he boldly eat and drinke without dread of poiloning? Dight he aduenture to thew himfelfe in great me tings or folemine affemblies without miffruft of mile cheefe against his person intended? What pleasure or what felicitie could be take in his princelie pompe, which he knew by manifest and fearefull experience, to be envied and maligned to the verie death : The state of such a king is noted by the poet in Dionyfius, as in a mirroz, concerning whome it is faid, Districtus ensis cui super impia Ceruice pendet, non Sicula dapes Dulcem elaborabunt saporem, Non auium cytharæg, cantus.

Mis yeare, the eight day of Appill deceased the lood Momas Beauchampe earle of Warwike. In the moneth of Darch appeared a blating farre, firft bes The earle of twene the east part of the firmament and the north, warwike des flathing fouth fire and flames round about it, and life. lafflie, Choting forth fierie beams towards the north, a blacing forethewing (as was thought) the great effusion of starre. bloud that followed, about the parts of Wales and Porthumberland . For much about the same time, Dwen Glendouer (with his Welthmen) fought with the load Breie of Ruthen, comming footh to des fend his policitions, which the same Diven walked and bestroied and as the fortune of that daies worke fellout, the lood Greie was taken polloner, and mas nie of his men were flaine. This hap lifted the Greie of Ru-Wilelihmen into high prive, and increased merues loudie their wicked and prefumptuous attempts.

flanders.

Hor. lib. ca.3. Ode.I.

fight by Dwe Glendouer,

The French: inen demiand chanc Ma:

 $[i_1]$

About

End stitte & fused abread that king 181= chard was It

About Whitsuntide a conspiracio was deuised by certeine persons, that wished the kings death, main, teining and bruting abroad, that king Richard was aline, and therefore erhorted men to frand with him, for thortlie he would come to light, and reward such as take his part with inft recompende. Herewith, I prieft tabe. there was a prieff taken at Ware, or (as some books baue, at Marwike, who had a kalendar or roll, in which a great number of names were written, more than were in any wife guiltie of the fact, as after, wards appeared by the same priests confession. For being eramined, whether he knew such persons as he had so involled, a were there present before him, he faid he never know them at all; and being demanded wherefore he had then fo recorded their names, he answered, bicause he thought they would gladie do what mischiefe they could against king henrie, byon any occasion offered in revenge of the inturies done to king Richard, by whom they had beine adnanced, and princelie preferred. Then therfore there 20 appeared no more credit in the man, he was condems ned, drainen, hanged, and quartered, and diverse that had beene appehended about that matter, were releafed, and fet at libertie. Shortlie after, the prior of The prior of Laund appzes Laund (who for his cuill government had bone deprince of his frate and dignitic) was likewise erecuted, not for attempting any thing of himfelfe, but onlie for that he confessed, that he knew cuill counsell and concealed it. Dis name was Walter Baldocke, a canon sometime in Dunstable, and by king 136 30 thard promoted to the prioritip of Laund.

Alfo the fame time, certeine greie friers were apprehended for treason which they had denised to bring topalle, and one of them, whole name was Richard

Frischie, being asked what he would do if king Rie thard had beene aline, and present with them, and fwered frontlie, that he would fight against any man in his quarrell, cuen to death. Derebpon, he was conbemned, drawen, and hanged in his friers weed, to earnest instance to have his bodie taken downe, and buried with diriges and crequies, and had their fute granted. Sir Roger of Claringdon knight was also put to death about this conspiracie, with two of his feruants, the one an elquier, the other a peoman. De was bale fonne (as was reported) buto Coward, eloch fonne to king Coward the third, furnamed the blacke prince. On Corpus Christi daie at euensong time, the divell (as was thought) appeared in a towne likenede of a greie frier, behauing himselse verie of Office called Danburie, entring into the church in 50

Frete friera appzehended.

Beis execu-

2 areie frier habit.

Sir Boger Claringdon,

The biuell appeareth in arciefrier.

erceuteb.

Siendouer.

outragioulie, plaieng his parts like a diuell inded, fo that the parithioners were put in a maruellous great fright. At the fame instant, there chanced such a tempest of wind, thunder, and lightning, that the highest part of the rafe of that church was blowen downe, and the chancell was all to Chaken, rent, and to ane in per Eight friers ces. Couthin a fmall wile affer, eight of tholegreie friers that had practifed treason against the king, 60 were brought to open judgement, and connicted were diamen and headed at London; and two other luffer red at Leicester, all which persons had published king Richard to be aline. Dwen Glendouer, according to his accustomed manner, robbing and spoiling within the English borders, caused all the forces of the thire of Hereford to allemble togither against them, buder the conduct of Comund Postimer earle Durch taken of Darch. But coming to trie the matter by battell, or function bas ithether by treason or otherwise, so it fertuned, that tell by Dwen the English power was discomfited, the earle taken puloner, and about a thouland of his people flaine in the place. The chamefull villance vied by the Welth women towards the dead carealles, was luch, as bos nest eares would be ashamed to heare, and continent tongs to speake thereof . We dead bodies might not be buried, without great fummes of monie gi uen for libertie to conucie them awaie.

The king was not halfie to purchase the belief wance of the earle Hard, bicause his title to the case of the earle Hard purchase and therefore see crowne was well inough knowen, and therefore ful grounds fered him to remaine in milerable prison, withing both the fair earle, and all other of his linage out of frience. this life, with God and his fainds in heaven, fo ther had beine out of the wate, for then all had beine mell inough as he thought. But to let these things palle, the king this yeare fent his eloeft daughter Blanch, Che kings accopanied with the earle of Summerlet, the bithop baughter of Closesfer, the losd Clifford, and others, into all manie thick brought his to Colin and there manie manie, which brought hir to Colin, and there with great triumph the was married to William duke of Bauter, sonne and heire to Lewes the emperour. About mid of August, the king to chassise the presumptuous attempts of the Melihmen, went with a great power of men into Wales, to purfue the cap teine of the Welfh rebell Diven Glendouer, but in effect he loft his labor; for Dwen conneied himfelie out of the wate, into his knowen lurking places, and (as was thought) through art magike, he caused such foule weather of winds, tempest, raine, fnow, and Intemptral haile to be railed, for the annotance of the hings ar weather. mic, that the like had not beene heard of; in fuch fort, that the king was confireined to returne home, has uing caused his people pet to spotle and burne first a great part of the countrie. The same time, the lost The break Comund of Langlie duke of Posks departed this of the daked life, and was buried at Langlie with his brethren, Yorke. The Scots bnoer the leding of Patrike Bepbone, of the Hales the yonger, entring into England, were overthrowen at Pelbit, in the marches, as in the Scotish chronicle ye may find more at large. This battell was fought the two and twentith of June, in this yeare of our Lord 1402.

the great confusion of his brethren; but they made 40 Archembald earle Dowglas fore offpleafed in his mind for this overthrow, procured a commission to inuade England, and that to his coff, as ye may like wife read in the Scotish histories. For at a place called Homilton, they were so fiercelie affailed by the author at Englithmen, bnoer the leading of the load Perlie, pamulon furnamed Benrie Botipur, and Beogge earle of Parch, that with violence of the English that they were quite vanquished and put to flight, on the kind date in haruest, with a great flaughter made by the Englishmen. We know that the Scotish weiters note this battell to have chanced in the yeare 1403. But we following Tho. Walfingham in this place, and other English writers, for the accompt of times, have thought good to place it in this yeare 1402, as in the same writers we find it. There were staine of The manual men of effimation, fir John Swinton, fir Adam Cant. Gordon, fir John Leuiston, fir Alexander Kamsic of Dalehonsie, and thee and twentie knights, besides ten thousand of the commons: and of pationers as mong other were thefe, Dozoacke earle of fife, fon Piffentis to the governour Archembald earle Dowglas, which taken. in the fight loft one of his eies, Thomas erle of Our rey, Robert earle of Angus, and (as some writers haue) the earles of Atholl & Penteith, with fine him died other of meaner degrees. After this, the load Perfie, having bestowed the prisoners in fuer kee ping, entered Timbale, wasting and destroieng the thole countrie, and then besieged the castell of Coc. The castell of Coc. klaives, whereof was capteine one fir John Gren beliege with low, who compounded with the design with the compounded with the low, who compounded with the Englishmen, that if 1000 Ports the castell were not succoured within the moneths, then he would beliner it into their hands.

The first two moneths passed, and no likelihood of refeme appeared; but yer the third moneth was cross co, the Englishmen being fent for to go with the hing into Calalcs, railed their liege and departed, leav ung the noble men pulsoners with the earle of Poze thumberland, and with his sonne the lood Perfie, to hope them to the kings ble. In this meane while, huch as milliked with the doctrine and ceremonies then bled in the church, ceased not to biter their congeneral friences, though in secret, to those in whome they had affiance. But as in the like cases it commonlie hap neth, they were bewrated by some that were thought 10 thieflie to fauour their cause, as by fir Lewes Clife food knight, who having leaned to the doctrine a long time, bid now (as Thomas Walfingham writeth) of 6 close all that he knew buto the archbishop of Canturburie, to their himselfe as it were to have erred rather of limplemede and ignozance, than of froward nelle or Aubborne malice. The names of such as taught the articles and conclusions mainteined by those which then they called Lollards or heretikes, the faib fir Lewes Clifford gaue in writing to the faid 20 ardbithop. Comund Postimer earle of Parch, pate foner with Dwen Glendouer, thether for irkefom. neffe of cruell captivitie, 03 feare of death, 03 fo3 what other cause, it is bucerteine, agreed to take part with

Owen, against the king of England, and toke to March mart: wife the daughter of the faid Dien.

Strange wonders happened (as men reported) at the nativitie of this man, for the same night he was boinc, all his fathers hortes in the ftable were found the feat of faint Michaell , a parlement began at Messminster, which continued the space of seaven weeks, in the fame was a tenth and a halfe granted by the cleargie, and a fifteenth by the communattie. Porcouer, the commons in this parlement belought Some earle the king to have the person of George earle of Parch debach res a Scotishman, recommended to his maiestie, for commended that the fame earle theired himfelfe faithfull to the whicking by king this realme. There was also a ffatute made, that the friers beggers should not receive any into 4 their order, under the age of fourteene yeares. In this Imbiliadojs fourth years of king Henries reigns, ambaliadors were sent ouer into Bzitaine, to bzing from thence the duches of Britaine, the ladie Jane de Panarre, the widow of John de Pontford, late duke of Bit taine, surnamed the conqueroz, with whom by procuratoes the king had contraced matrimonie. In the beginning of Februarie, those that were fent returned with hir in fafetie, but not without talking the bitter flormes of the wind and weather, that toffed 5 them fore to and fro, before they could get to land. The king met hir at Winchester, where the seventh of Achinarie, the marriage was folemnized betwirt

Whilest these things were thus in doing in England, Maleran earle of faint Paule, bearing Milia deadlie and malicious hatred toward king Benrie, having affembled firtiene or fewentiene hundred him paule men of warre, imbarked them at Harflew, and taking the sea, landed in the Ale of Wlight, in the which 60 he burned two villages, and foure simple cotages, and for a triumph of so noble an act, made foure knights. But when he heard that the people of the Fie were affembled and approched to fight with him, he has feed to his thips, and returned home: where with the noble men of his companie were displeased, considering his provision to be great and his gaine small. In the same verie season, John earle of Cleremont famous in Incomment or its easier, John Calcolyne forms to the duke of Bourbon, wan in Galcolyne out of the Englithmens possession, the castels of faint Peter, faint Parie, and the Peto castell; and the lood de la West wan the catfell of Carlaffin, which was no finall loffe to the English nation.

henrie earle of Posthumberland, with his brother

Thomas earle of Mocceffer, and his some the lood Henrie Perlie, furnamed Hotspur, which were to king Penrie in the beginning of his reigne, both faithfull frænds, and earneft aiders, began now to enuic his wealth and felicitie; and ofpeciallie they were groved, bicause the king demanded of the earle and his some such Scotist puloners as were taken at Homelton and pelvit : for of all the captines which were taken in the conflicts foughten in those timo places, there was delinered to the kings polles fion onelie Mordake earle of Fife, the duke of Albanies fonne, though the king did divers and fundaie times require deliverance of the relidue, and that with great threatnings: therewith the Perfies being fore offended, for that they claimed them as their owne proper prisoners, and their peculiar precies, by the counsell of the loso Thomas Perfie earle of Mozeeffer, whole fludie was ener (as some write) to procure malice, and fet things in a broile, came to the king buto Windloze (bpon a purpole to prome him) and there required of him, that either by ransome or otherwife, he would caufe to be beliuered out of pair of the Perfies fon Comund Postimer earle of Parch, their cous fine germane, thome (as they reported) Diven Olendouer kept in filthie prison, thakled with irons, onelie for that he toke his part, and was to him faith full and true.

The request

The king began not a little to muse at this request, and not without cause: for in deed it touched to fixed in bloud by to the bollics. The mozow after 30 him somewhat neere, fith this Commund was sonne to Roger earle of Parch, sonne to the ladie Philip, daughter of Lionell duke of Clarence, the third forme of king Coward the third; which Comund at king Kichards going into Ireland, was proclamed heire apparant to the crowne and realme, whose aunt called Clianoz, the load Henrie Perfie had married; and therefore king Henrie could not well heare. that anie man should be earnest about the advancement of that linage. The king when he had Audied on the matter, made answer, that the earle of Warch was not taken prisoner for his cause, nor in his service, but willinglie suffered himselfe to be taken , bicause he would not withstand the attempts of Dwen Glendouer, and his complices, 4 therefore he would neither ranfome him, noz relætte him.

The Perfies with this answer and fraudulent excufe were not a little fumed, infomuch that Henrie Hotfpur faio openlie : Beholo, the heire of the relme Chefaieng of is robbed of his right, and yet the robber with his the L. Perfie, owne will not redeme him . So in this furte the Perfies departed, minding nothing more than to bepole king Herrie from the high type of his rotal tie, and to place in his feat their couline Comund earle of Parth, thom they div not onlie deliver out The confpts of captinitie; but also to the high oispleasure of king racies of the Benrie entered in league with the forelaid Dien Perfies with Blendouer. Derewith, they by their deputies in the Dwen Blenbouse of the archdeacon of Bango2, divided the doner. In indenture realme amongst them, causing a tripartite inden tripartite. ture to be made and lealed with their feales, by the covenants whereof, all England from Severne and Arent fouth and ealfward, was affigued to the earle A division of of Parch: all Males, the lands beyond Security that which with they had not, were appointed to Diven Glendoner: and all the remnant from Drent northward, to the lozd Perlie.

This was done (as some have said) through a forlith crevit given to a vaine profeste, as though king phile. Henrie was the molowarpe, curlicd of Gods owne mouth, and they the were the deagon, the lion, and the wolfe, which should divide this realme betweene them. Suthis the dentation (faith Hall) and not binis mation of those blind and fantasticall dreames of the Welth prophetiers. Bing Henrie not knowing of

Epopolol:

Dit Temen

Sparlement.

Gifcoigne.

Che Perlies raile their powers.

Thep crane

than that which affer hamened, gathered a great armic to go againe into Wales , whereof the carle of Posthumberland and his fonue were aductifed by the earle of Woceffer, and with all diligence raised all the power they could make, and fent to the Scots which before were taken puloners at Domeloon, for aid of men, promiting to the earle of Dowglas the towns of Berwike, and a part of Posthumberland, and to other Scotiff loads, great loadships and leige 10 mories, if they obteined the opper hand. The Scots in hope of gaine, and belirous to be reuenged of their old greefes, came to the earle with a great companie well appointed.

Experience articles, by the adule of kithard counter with Scrope, artifolihop of Poske, bother to the lood the Berlies in Scrope, whome king Benric had caused to be behear confpiracie.

Thom, Walf,

rous to proceed in the enterpaile, byon trust to be al fifted by Diven Olendouer, the earle of Warch, $0- 30 ther, affembled an armie of men of armes and ar-The carle of thers forth of Cheshire and Wales . Incontinent, vernour to the lie his uncle Momas Perfie earle of Woccester, prince fureth that had the government of the prince of Wales, who as then laie at London in fecret manner, con-

The pretente off Perfies, fæme excusable, besides the articles aboue mentio, as the public ned, sent letters abroad, wherein was conteined, that then it adread, their gathering of an armie tended to none other end, but onlie for the fafegard of their owne persons, and to put some better government in the commons wealth. For thereas tares and tallages were dailie leated, wider pretente to be imploied in defente of the realme, the fame were vainlie walled, and bruzo. fitablic confunct: and where through the flanderous reports of their entinies, the king had taken a grae. nous displeasure with them, they barff not ameare personallie in the kings prosence, untill the prelats and barons of the realme had obteined of the king licence for them to come and purge themselves be fore him, by lawfull triall of their peres, whose indges ment (as they pretended) they would in no wife refuse. Panie that saw and heard these letters, did come 60 mend their diligence, and highlie praifed their affured fidelitie and trustinesse towards the commons wealth.

But the king biderstanding their cloaked dass, beniled (by what meanes he might) to quiet and ap. peale the commons, and deface their contrined for geries, and therefore he wrote an answer to their lianswer to the bels, that he maruelled much, sith the earle of page Perfice libell. thumberland, and the load Denrie Perfic his fonne, had received the most part of the summes of monic granted to him by the cleargie and communaltie, for defense of the marches, as he could embentlie prome that thould move them to complaine and raife fuch mainfell flaneers. And thereas he binderflod, that this new confederacie, and nothing less minding

The Perfies to make their part fæme god , deuls bed at Buffow . Thefe articles being thewed to diued them to favour their purpole, in so much that manie of them of onot onclie promife to the Perfies ato and fuccour by words, but also by their writings and feales confirmed the fame . Dowbeit then the matter came to triall, the most part of the confede rates abandoned them, and at the daie of the conflict left them alone. Thus after that the conspirators had discourred themselves, the lord Denvie Persie delineied himselfe out of the princes house, and comming to Stafford (where he met his nephue) they increased their power by all water and meaner they could denife. The earle of Porthumberland himfelfe on his amendement to repaire onto them (as some Thefe noble men , to make their conspiracie to waite) with all convenient fped.

the earles of Porthumberland and Morceffer, and the load Perfie had by their letters fignifico to their freends abroad, that by reason of the flanderous reports of their enimics, they curft not appeare in his presence, without the mediation of the presats and nobles of the realme, S as they required pledges, whereby they might fafelie come afore him, to be clare and alledge what they had to face in profe of their innocencie, he protested by letters fent forth bnocr his feale, that they might fafelic come and go, without all danger , or anic manner of indamage ment to be offered to their persons.

But this could not fatiffic those men, but that refolued to go forwards with their enterpase, they marched towards Shecwesburie, opon hope to be all Ded (as men thought) by Dwen Glendouer, and his delighmen, publishing absoad throughout the countries the countries of the tries on each fide, that king Kithard was alive, thard with thome if they wilhed to lee, they willed them to re-alue with a tierie noblemen, and other states of the realine, mos 20 paire in armour unto the castell of Chester, there that with it patre in armout one age that perfent, and redic themen (without all doubt) he was at that perfent, and redic themen to come forward . This tale being railed, though it were most butrue, yet it beed variable motions in mens minds, cauling them to waner, fo as they knew not to which part they Mould flicke; and berelie, divers were well affected towards king kichard, speciallic such as had tasted of his princelic bountifulnes, of which there was no finall number . And to speake a truth, no maruell it was, if manie envice the prosperous Cate of king Henrie, fith it was cuident inough to the world, that he had with wrong be furped the crotone, and not onelie violentlie ocposed king Kichard, but also cruellie procured his death, for the upich undoubtedlie, both he and his policritic tafed such troubles, as put them fill in danger of their Cates, till their direct fucceding line was quite roted out by the contrarie facton, as in Denric the firt and Colvard the fourth it may appeare. But now to returne where we left. King Denrie was not with them, but being licke, had promifed by 40 advertised of the proceedings of the Porties, forth withgathered about him such power as he might make, and being earnefflie called won by the Scot, the earle of Parch, to make half and, give battell to his enimies, before their power by delateng of time Chould fill to much increase, he passed forward with fuch speed, that he was in light of his enimics, lieng the kings in campe nere to Shrewelburie, before they were in specialistic. boubt of anie luch thing, for the Perlies thought that gence. he would have fraicd at Burton byon Trent, till his councell had come thither to him to gine their adule that he wore best to do. But herein the enimic was deceined of his expectation, fith the king had great regard of expedition and making speed for the fafetie of his owne person, wherebuto the earle of Parch incited him, confidering that in delaie is danger, a loffe in lingering, as the port in the like case faith:

Tolle moras, nocuit semper differre paratis, they fraied from affaulting the towne of Sizewelbus troubled and rie, which enterprise they were readie at that instant the sings. to have taken in hand, and forthwith the lood per ming. fie (as a capteine of high courage) began to erhoat The losd the capteines and fouldiers to prepare themselues to perfective battell, sith the matter was growen to that point, plies of that by no meanes it could be anoted, so that (fail to the this pair that hat the last to the last he)this date thall either being be all to advancement s honoz, ozelle if it thall chance be to be ouercome, Chall beliver bs from the kings spitefull malice and cruell distaine: for plaining the men (as we ought to do) better it is to die in battell for the common, wealths cause, than through cowardine feare to pro long life, which after shall be taken from bs, by lontence of the enimie.

Derebpoll

Dum trepidant nullo firmata rotore partes. By reaforce the bings hoven coming in this fort, The Polis

40000

2. 300

٠.,

Berebpon, the whole armie being in number a strongist out fourtiene thouland cholen men, promiled to gaid with him folong as life laffed. There were with the Perfies as chieffeines of this armie, the earle of Dowglas a Scotiff man , the baron of kinderton, fir Lough Browne, and fir Richard Ternon knights, with diverse other front and right valiant capteins. Et Prikes Downthen the two armies were incamped, the one petites 32 against the other, the earle of Coloscesser and the losd Perfie with their complices fent the articles (where) of 3 spake before) by Thomas Caiton, and Thomas rato the Saluain elquiers to king Henrie, under their hands the pentis and feales, which articles in effect charged him with manifelt periorie in that (contact the pentis) manifest periurie, in that (contrarie to his oth receiv neo bon the enangelists at Doncaster, when he first entred the realme affer his erile) he had taken bpon him the crowne and rotall dignitie, impailoned king Richard, cauled him to religne his title, and finallie to be murthered. Dinerle other matters they laid to his charge, as lenteng of tares and tallages, contras 20 rie to his promife, infringing of lawes & cultomes of the realme, and fuffering the earle of Parch to remaine in pillon, without travelling to have him des linered. Anulich things they as procurors & protect tops of the common-wealth, twhe boon them to postante of the continues proceagainst him, as they protested buto the whole mozlo. Bing Penric affer he had read their articles, with the refiance which they annexed to the fame, answer examined no the equiers, that he was readie with bint of 30 imordandifierce battell to proue their quarrell falle, and nothing elfe than a forged matter, not doubting, but that God would aid and affift him in his rightrous cause, against the distoiall and false forsworne traitors. The nert date in the morning earlie, being the even of Parie Pagbalene, they let their battels in order on both fides, and now thilest the warriors loked when the token of battell should be given, the The bing of abbat of Shrewesburie, and one of the clearks of the limbtopar prince feale, were fent from the king buto the Peri 4 lies, to offer them pardon, if they would come to any reasonable agreement. By their persuations, the load Dencte Perfic began to give eare onto the kings of fers, to fent with them his bucle the earle of Mos ceffer, to declare unto the king the causes of those troubles, and to require some effectuall reformation in the fame.

It was reported for a truth, that now then the king had condescended buto all that was resonable athishmos to be required, and sæmed to humble 50 himselfe moze than was meet for his estate, the earle of Worceller (opon his returne to his nephue) made relation cleane contrarie to that the king had faid, in fuch fort that he fet his newwes hart more in displear ling in wrong lure towards the hing, than ever it was before, driv ung him by that meanes to fight whether he would of not: then suddenlie blew the trumpets, the kings part crieng S. George bpon them, the aduerfartes cried Efferance Perfie, and so the two armies furiouslie loined. The archers on both fides that for the best 60 game, laieng on furb load with arrowes, that manie died, and were driven downe that never role againe.

The Scots (as some write) which had the fore ward on the Perfice five , intending to be revenged of their old displeasures done to them by the English nation, fet fo fiercelie on the kings fore ward, led by the earle of Stafford, that they made the fame draw tacke, and had almost broken their adversaries ar raic. The Wielumen also which before had fame lurkingin the twoos, mounteines, and marifhes, hear ring of this battell toward, came to the aid of the veriles, and refreshed the wearied people with new faccours. The king perceiving that his men twere thus put to diffreste, what with the violent impression of the Scots, and the tempelfuous flormes of are rowes, that his adverlaries discharged frely against him and his people, it was no need to will him to ffire: for suddenlie with his fresh battell, he approthed and relieued his men; fothat the battell began moze fierce than before. Here the lord Henrie Perfie, and the earle Dowglas, a right fout and hardie capteine, not regarding the thot of the kings battell, nor the close order of the ranks, preffing forward to. aither bent their whole forces towards the kings perfon, comming boon him with speares and swoods so fiercelie, that the earle of Parch the Scot, percei Che carle of uing their purpole, withozew the king from that five March. of the field (as some write) for his great benefit and Tho. Walfi, fafegard (as it appeared) for they gave luch a violent onfet bpon them that floo about the kings flandard, that flateng his fambard-bearer fir Walter Blunt, and overthrowing the flandard, they made flaughter of all those that stod about it, as the earle of Stab ford, that daie made by the king constable of the realme, and diverle other. The prince that date holpe his father like a luftie Hall. poing gentleman: for although he was hurt in the The valiance face with an arrow, fo that diverse noble men that of the young were about him, would have conveied him forth of prince, the field, yet he would not luffer them to to do, least his departure from amongst his men might hamilie have friken fome feare into their harts: and fo with out regard of his hurt, he continued with his men, & never ceased, either to fight where the battell was mos hot, or to incourage his men where it læmed most ned. This battell lasted thie long houres, with A fore battell indifferent fortune on both parts, till at length, the ewell mains king crieng faint Beorge bidorie, brake the arraie of his enimies, and adventured to farre, that (as fome weite) the earle Doluglas frake him downe , & at Che baliant that instant sue sir Walter Blunt, and thice other, boings of the amarelled in the kings fute and clothing, faieng : I glas. maruell to fee fo many kings thus suddenlie artic one in the necke of an other . The king in dad was railed, 4 did that daie manie a noble feat of armes, for as it is written, he flue that date with his owne The high hands fix and thirtie persons of his entimics. The or manhados the ther on his part incouraged by his doings, fought hing baliantlie, and flue the loso Perfie, called fir henrie Berfie daine, Hotspurre. To conclude, the kings enimies were banquifed, and put to flight, in which flight, the ear le of Doinglas, for half, falling from the crag of an The carle hie mounteine , brake one of his cullions, and was Dowglas tataken, and for his valiantuelle, of the king frankelie kenpuloner, and frælie delinered.

There was also taken the earle of Morester, the worther procures and setter south of all this mildese, fir His taken. thard Ternon, and the baron of Linderton, with dis uerse other. There were flaine upon the kings part, knights beside the earle of Stafford, to the number of ten Came on the knights, fir Bugh Shozlie, fir John Cliffon, fir John kings part. Cokaine, fir Picholas Baufell, fir Walter Blunt, fir John Caluerleie, fir John Paffle of Podington, fir Duch Portimer, and fir Kobert Baufell, all the which received the same morning the order of knighthad : Ar Momas Wiendelleie was wounded to peath, and so valled out of this life thoutlie after. There Died in all boon the kings fide firtene hundred, and foure thousand were greenoussie wounded. On the contrarie fide were flaine, besides the lood Persic, the most part of the knights and equiers of the countie of Cheffer, to the number of two hundred, belides The flaughpeomen and formen, in all there died of those that terof Chethire fought on the Perlies live, about five thouland. This men at this battell man fought on Marie Maghalene crew her battell was fought on Parie Pagoalene enen, being faturdate. Thon the mondate following, the carle wocester and of Closceffer, the baron of Kinderton, and fir Kin others beheat chard Aernon knights, were condemned and behear oco.

Cec.ti.

The king goeth to Yorke.

1)ozthamber:

land commeth

The wellh:

men moleft

the English

It was ince

Ben like a of the clears william wil-

Shins taken.

piciat.

gie.

fubicara.

ded. The earles head was lent to London, there to be fet on the budge.

The earle of Porthumberland was now mars thing forward with great power, which he had got thither, either to aid his sonne and brother (as was thought; or at the least towards the king, to procure The earle of a peace : but the earle of Wellimerland, and fir Boweilmerland bert Waterton knight, had got an armic on lot, and raiseth apoin meant to meet him. The earle or 320, munices against the range of 1902 taking neither of them to be his freed, turned subsect of 1902 taking neither of them to be his freed, turned subsect of 1902 taking neither of them to be his freed, turned subsect of 1902 taking neither of them. denlie backe, and withdrewhimselse into Warke worth castell. The king having set a state in things about Shiewelburie, went fraight to Porke, from whence he wrote to the earle of Porthumberland, willing him to dismitte his companies that he had with him, and to come buto him in peaceable wife. The earle opon receipt of the kings letters came on to him the morow after faint Laurence Daie, hauing but a few of his fernants to attend him, and fo ercufed himfelfe, that the king (bicaufe the earle had Were 20 totke in his possession, and further, had his castels of Alnewike, Warkeworth, and other, fortified with Scots diffembled the matter, gaue him faire woods, and luffered him (as faith Hall) to depart home, al ted for a time to fafe enftodie. The king returning forth of Porkethire, Determined to go into Northwales, to chastise the presump: tuous doings of the burnlie Welthmen, who (after his comming from Specivelburie, and the marches 30 there had done much harme to the English subsects. 13ut now where the king wanted monie to furnish that enterpile, and to wage his fouldiers, there were forme that counselled him to be bold with the bilhops, and luplic his want with their lurplulage. But as it fortuned, the archbilhop of Canturburie was there present, who in the name of all the rest bololie made answer, that none of his province thould be spoiled by anie of those naughtic disposed persons; but that first with hard stripes they should budersand the 40 price of their rath enterprise. But the king neverthe leffe to bled the matter with the bilhops for their god though by other it should seme, that he was commit-

wils, that the archbifhop at length to pleasure him, A tenthleuced calling the cleargie togither , got a grant of a tenth, towards the kings necellarie charges.

The Britaines under the conduct of the lord of Caffils, spoiled and burnt the towne of Plimmouth, and refurned without receiving anie damage, but immediatlie therebpon, the westerne men manning fouth a fleet, binder the government of one 5 William Wilford elquier, made faile ouer to the coalis of Britaine, where they twice above fortie thips laven with oile, sope, and Rochell wine, to the quantitie of a thousand funne, or much thereabouts. In returning homewards, they burnt fortie other vellels, and landing at Pennarch, they burnt townes and villages fir leagues within the countrie, togither with the towns of faint Patthew, and all the buildings there, thie leagues round about the fame towns. About the feast of All faints, a parlement bes 60

Anno Reg. s. 3 parlement gan at Couentrie, and continued there till faint Anat Couentrie. diewes tide: but at length, bicause vittels wared dere, and lodging was Areid, it was adjoined from Tdioined to thence buto London, there to begin againe in the London.

octanes of the Cpithanic. Ehe fance time, a parbon 3 pardon. was granted and proclamed, for all fuch as had taken part with the Perfies against the king, and like wife for other offendors, those ercepted that had confented to betraie Calis, whom the king fent thither to luffer for their offenfes. A little before Chaffmas the Frenchmen meant to have robbed and spoiled mnade the Ale the Ale of Chight, but when a thouland of them were fet on land, and had got togither a great botie of cattell, suddentic there came byon them such number of people that they were confireined to withdraw to their thips, leaving their preie behind them, and no fmall number of their men to paie for their thot, fo that they wan little by that fournie, returning home Chrain with thame and diffonoz.

Frenchinen of wight.

Chis yeare in the parlement holden at London (beginning the mojoby after the feath of faint inla: rie, and continuing twelve weeks) the earle of 3202 minutes thumberland was reflozed unto his former digni, neth square ties, lands and gods, the Fle of Pan onlie ercepted, Entangenties, lands and gods, the Fle of Pan onlie ercepted, College which by reason of the forfeiture made by the earle of land reflect Salifburie, the king had first given buto him, and En Just now deprined him thereof, where all his other lands wan possessions, and livings were wholie to him and his heires refrozed. By authozitie of the fame parlement a subsidie was also granted to the king, of everie 3 subside. knights fæ twentie thillings, whether the fame were holden of him by menaltie, or otherwise. Porcouer, enerie man and woman that might dispend in lands the value of twentie thillings & to vpward, about the repaties, whether the fame lands belonged to the laie fee, or to the church, paied for euerie pound tivelue pence: and those that were valued to be worth in gods twentie pounds and opwards, paid alloafter the rate of lands, that is, twelve pence for everie pound. This fameth to be that subside which Tho- Abr. Fl. only mas Wallingham calleth a foze furtharging fublible, Tho Walin, by an binaccufformed tar: the forme and maner ther. 164 of (faith he) I had here interlaced, but that the verie granters and authors thereof had rather that the po-Aeritie Chould be otterlie ignozant thereof, and ne ucr heare of it; Athens it was granted byon this condition, that hereafter it thould not be datime into example; neither might the entoences thereof be kept in the kings treasurie, not in the ercheker; but the records thereof presentlie (after the inst ac-inquirers hereof for their better inqueft. The Frenchmen about the fame time came before The frinds the 3le of Wight with a great name, and fent cer, mens beman teine of their men to the space, to bemand in name wigh. of king Kichard, and of his wife quene Habell, a tribute or special substoie in monie, of the inhabit tants of that Ile; who answered, that king Richard The micro was dead, and quene Habell fometime his wife had of the June bene lent home to hir parents and countrie, without men. condition of anie downie on tribute: wherefore, they answered reasonablie, that none they would give: but if the Frenchmen had defire to fight, they willed them to come on land, and there found be none to refill them; and after they were on land, they promifed to give them relpit for fir houres space to refresh themselves, and that time being once expired, they Chould not faile to have battell. When the French men heard of this front answer made by the 31amb counts given up) burned; neither thould writs or commissions be sent abroad against the collectors or men, they had no luft to approch neere to the land, but returned without further attempt.

About this fealon, the duke of Dileance, brother Theorie ? to the French king, a man of no leffe pride than haw Ditente ta tinelle of courage, wrote letters to king henrie, ad challenge vertifing him, that for the love he bare to the noble feats of chinalrie, be could imagine nothing either more honorable or comendable to them both, than to meet in the field each part with an hundred knights and elquiers, all being gentlemen, both of name and armes, armed at all points, and furniffed with lpeares, ares, floods, and daggers, and there to fight and combat to the peelbing; and everie person, to thome God thould lend victorie, to have his tolloner, thim to randome at his pleature, offering how felfe with his companie to come to his citie of Angulefine, so that the king wonto come to the lands of Burdeaur, and there defend this challenge.

An. Reg. 5,6.

The king of England granelie answered herebns the minute to, that he maruelled they the duke under colour of doing bods of armes for a baine-glorie, would now fake to breake the peace betwirt the realmes of Congland and France, he being swoine to mains teine the same peace, sith he might further underfind, that no king annointed, of verie dutie, was bound to answer anic challenge, but to his piece of equall flate and dignitie : and further declared, that when opportunitie served, he would passe the sea, and come into his countrie of Galcoigne, with luch companie as he thought convenient, and then might the pulse fet forward with his band, for the accomplithing of his couragious befire, promiting him in the wood of a prince, not thence to Depart, till the duke either by fulfilling his owne defire in manner afores faid, or by fingular combat betweene them two ones lie, for audiding of more effution of Christian bloud. fould thinke himfelfe fullie latiffied. To this and much more confeined in the kings answer, the duke replice, and the king againe rejoined, not without talunts and checks bufitting for their effaces. The duke of Orleance offended highlie (as he might Ebeboke of fenne) farnithed against the king of England with encount be anarmie of fir thousand men, entered into Guien, fugith Eurgs and belieged the towne of Tlergi, whereof was capteine fir Robert Antlfield, a right hardie and vallant knight , hauing with him onelie thee hundred Enge hihmen, which defended the fortrelle so manfullie. that the duke (after he had laine three moneths) and lost manie of his men, without honour or spoile returned into France.

After this, the admerall of Britaine highlie incouraged, for that the last yeare he had taken certeine Cuglify thips laden with wines, acompanied with the load ou Chastell, a valiant baron of 152itaine, and twelve hundred men of armes, failed forth with thir, tie hips from S. Malos, and came before the towne of Dartmouth, and would have landed; but by the pullance of the townelmen and aid of the countrie, they were revelled, in the which conflict, the load du Chaffell, and two of his brethren, with foure hundred other were flaine, and about two hundled taken plie foners and put to their ranfoms, amongs wom the lood of Baqueuille the marthall of Britaine was One Sie one. All this fummer, Diven Glendouer and his adbur wasten herents, robbed, burned, and destroicd the countries adjoining niere to the places where he hanted, and one while by fleight a guilefull policie, an other while by open force, he toke and flue manie Englishmen, broke downe certeine castels which he wan, and some he fortified and kept for his oftene defense. John Euro: bilhop of Allath, confidering with himfelfe how things prospered binder the bands of this Dwen, ded to him, and toke his part against the king. About the same time, the Britaines and the Ficmingstoke certeine thips of ours laden with merthandize, and flue all the marriners or else hanged them.

Also, the old countesse of Drsozd, mother to Ko- 60 bert More late duke of Ireland, that died at Lauame, caused certeine of hir fernants, and other such as the durft truff, to publish and brufe abroad, thos rough all the parts of Effer, that king kichard was aline, and that he would shortlic come to light, and claime his former estate, honor, and dignitie. She procured a great number of barts to be made of file ner and gold, such as king Richard was wont to give onto his knights, esquiers, a frænds, to weare as cognizances, to the end that in bestowing them in king Kichards name, the might the soner allore mento further hir lewo practices: and where the fame went abroad, that king Kichard was in Scotland with a great power of Frenchmen and Scots, readic to come to recover his realme, manie gave the moze light credit buto this brute thus fet footh by the faid countelle.

The perfuations also of one Serlo, that in times Serlo one of past was one of king Kichards chamber, greatlie in creased this errour; for the same Serlo, hearing in France (whither be was fled) that his maister king Richard was in Scotland alive, conveied himfelfe thither, to binderstand the truth of that matter, and finding there one inded that greatlie resembled him in all lineaments of bodie, but yet was not the man himselfelas he well perceived) byon malice that he bare to king Penrie, aductifed by letters fent unto diverse of king Richards frænds, that he was alive indeed, and shortlic would come to shew himselfe of penlie to the world, when he had once made his wais readie to recover his kingdome, to the confusion of his enimies, and comfort of his friends. Thefe forged inventions caused manie to believe the brute raised by the counteste of Orford, for the which they came in trouble, were appehended and committed to pale fon . The counteffe bir felfe was thut bp in close pair The counteffe fon, and all hir gods were conficat, and hir fecretaric of Oxford drawen and hanged, that had spred abroad this fained committed to report, in going by and downe the countrie, blowing pulon. into mens cares that king Kichard was alive, & af Dir fecretarie firming that he had spoken with him in such a place executed. and in such a place, awarelled in this raiment and that raiment, with such like circumstances.

About the feast of faint John Baptist, at the kings commandement, the earle of Porthumberland came The carle of to Pomfret, and brought with him his nechues, and Porthumbers his nethues sonnes, whereby he cleared himselfe of a to the king. great deale of inspicion, manie doubting before his comming that he had given cuill counsell to the young men, whereby to move them to rebellion, and to withstand the king. Sir William Clissoed also came with the earle, and brought the forefaid Serlo Chifford brins with him, whom he had apprehended open his come geth Berioto ming to him at Berwike, in hope to have found fuc. the king. cour at his hands: in confideration whereof the king partoned the faid fir William Cliffoed of his difabe. otence thewed, in keeping the castell of Berwike as gainst him, in which doing he had committed many felt treason.

This Serlo being knowen to be the man that had Serlo examibeene the chiefe murtherer of the dake of Bloceffer, ned for the when he was made awate at Calis, was diligentlie cefters death. eramined, who were helpers with him in the erccutico on thereof, and after that fort they made him awaic: Serio knowing there was no wate with him but neath, would not other any other, but confessed for his pione part, he was worthie for that wicked deed to die ten thousand deaths, and shewed such outward appearance of repentance, that manie fore lamented his cale, and promifed to hire priests to ling malles, (as the maner was) for his foule, of their owne coffs and charges. De was condemned to die at Pomfret, and was drawen from thence through eneric god Be is drawen towne, through which those that had the convesance through every of him valled with him till they came to London, goo towne inhere he was creented, confessing enerie thing to be true concerning his wicked pretente, as before is recited : and further, that when he perceived how their counterfeit practife would come to light and he open= lie remealed, he meant to have returned into France, but wanting monie, be thought to have bene relies ned with some postion at the hand of the said fir Willliam Clifford, and this caused him to come buto Berwike, to thew him his necessitie, who to make his owne peace, did apprehend him, and prefent him to the king, as before pe haue heard.

thing Henrie wanting monic in the feast of faint Anno Reg. 6. Faith the virgine, allembled at Couentrie his high

B.Richards

Sir william

nuke of Olio

De is erecu=

Craeltie of th Smains e firmings. The counter

Ehelozo da

Chaftell

a Drice o.

h. Richard once againe

Cec.iu.

court

Strife be:

twirt the lat-

tie and ipiris

The archbie

thop of Canturburte an= imereth for his bzethzen.

str John

ker of the parlement.

The archb.

De fpake like

chafeth.

court of parlement, in the which, the loso Stephan Scrope of Malham, and the load Henric fit; Hugh obteined first to have places of barons. Poseover, Thelepmens it is to be noted, that this was called The late mans parlement, bicause the thiriffes were amointed to have a speciall regard, that none thould be chosen unights for the courties, nor burgelles for the cities and townes, that had any skill in the lawes of the land. This was done, and when they came togither to talke of the weightie affaires of the realme, fper 1 rialite how the king might be relieued with monie, to beare fuch charges as he was knowen to be at, as well in defending the realme from the Scots and Welthmen at home, as from the Britains, Fles mings, and frenchmen abroad, it was thought most expedient, that the spiritualtie thould be deprined of their temporall possessions, to the reliefe of the kings necestitie. Herebpon role great altercation betwirt the cleargic and the laitie; the knights affirming, that they had offentimes ferned the king, not onelie 2 with their goos, but also with their persons in great dangers and teopardies, whilest the spiritualtie fat at home, and holp the king nothing at all. Thomas A rundell archbishop of Canturburie Contlie answes red herebuto, that the cleargie had alwaie given to the king as much as the lattie had done, confider ring they had offener given their tenths to him than the laitie their fiftens: allo, that moze of their te nants went forth into the kings warres, than the tenants of them of the late fee : belide this, they plate 30 ed day and night for the kings god fucceffe against bis entinies.

> When the freaker named fir John Cheinie, in replieng by plaine fpeach, fæmed little to effæme fuch praires of the church, the archbishop was set in a great chafe, and with tharpe woods declaring what he thought must needs follow, both of the king and kingdome, when praires and fuffrages of churchmen came to be folittle fet by, he grew to fuch impatiens cie, that he flatlie told the speaker, that although he 40 famco little to effame of the religion of the cleargie, he would not have him to thinke, that he should take alvaie the pollellions of the church, without finding fuch as would feeke to withstand him, for if (faid he) the archbishop of Canturburie maie line, thou walt have hot taking awaie any manner of thing that is his. After this, then the archbilhop perceived that the king winked at these matters, he rose from his place and comming before the king, kneeled downe, and belought him to confider, how through the fanour 50 and grace of the almightie God, he had afteined to the kingdome, and therefore he ought to remember his first purpose and intent, which was, to save buto cuerie man his right, fo far as in him laie.

> De willed him like wife to have in confideration the oth which he willinglie had received, that is, that he thould advance the honor of the church, and the miniffers thereof therith and mainteine . Allo, to have in mind the danger and dishonour that redounded to fuch as brake their othes: so that he besought him to 60 permit and fuffer the durch to infor the printleges and liberties, which in time of his predeceffors it had intoicd requesting him to Cand in awe of that king, by idjoin all kings did reigne; and to feare the cenfures and condemnation that those incurred, which take and bereft from the church any good or right belonging to it, into most certeinelie (faid he) are accurled. Then the archbilhop had bled this, 02 the like freath, the king commanded him to go to his feat a gaine, affuring bim, that his intent and purpole was to leave the church in as good flate, or better, than he

The archiftop here with turning to the knights and burgelles of the parlement, faid buto them;

Dou, and fuch other as you be, have given counfell bnto the king and his predecellors, to conficate and " take into their hands the gods and polletions of the ,, celles, which the Frenchmen and Posmans possessed here in England, and affirmed that by the fame he and they should heape by great riches, and indea " those gods and possessions (as is to be proved) were ,, worth manie thoulands of gold: and pet it is most true, that the king at this day is not halfe one marke of filuer the richer thereby, for you have begged and ? gotten them out of his hands, and have appropriated , the fame onto your felues, fo that we may contedure verie well, that you request to have our tempozal, " ties, not to advance the kings profit, but to fatifie pour owne grædie couetoufneffe, foz bnboubtedlie if the king (as God forbio he fould) Did accomplish your wicked purpoles and minds, he thould not be " one farthing the richer the yeare nert after : and true , lie, somer will I suffer this head of mine to be cut of from my shoulders, than that the church should lose " the least right that apperteineth to it. The knights faiolittle, but pet thep proceded in their fute to have their purpose forward, which the archbishop perceining (as an other Argus, having his eie on each fide, to marke what was done labou red to to disappoint their doings, that he wan the fav nour of certeine of the temporall lords to affill him, tho constantlie avouched by their consents, that the thurch thould never be spoiled of the temporalties, and herein they acquited the arthbilliop and prelate, one pleasure for an other, which they had done for them before, when the commons in this parlement required, that all fuch lands and revenues as former time belonged to the crowne, and had beene given a waie, either by the king, or by his predecellors king Coward, and king Kichard, Chould be againe refto red to the kings vie; buto which request, the archbir thop and other the prelate would in no wife confent: thus by the front diligence of the archbifhop Arunded that petition of the commons, touching the spiritual tempozalties, came to none effect. (Pra the knights themselves, tho berte infantlie had from in this et. Thom wife roz, acknowledging their malicionines a guiltimelle Hypod, pag. herein, belought the arthbillion of Canturburie to 167 parton them; and gave thanks that by his course gioulnelle the church in this lo trouble some a time retitued, calling to mind the fateng of an ethnike, by way of application, to the faid archbithops hie praife:

——— sub principe duro Temporibusá maln ausus es esse bonus.]

Two fifteenes were granted by the commons, Two fifting with condition, that the fame thould be pate unto the granted, hands of the losd Furnicall, who thould lee that mo. nie imploted for maintenance of the kings warres. Poscouer, at the impostunate fute of the commons, Letterspa the letters patents that had beine made to diverle tenis remoted persons of annuities to them granted by king Coward and king Richard, were called in, and made void, not without some note of dishonoz to the king. The cleargie granted to the king a tenth and a halfe, 3 tent mi notivishstanding that the halfe of one tenth latelie half granted was yet behind, and appointed to be paid by charge bpon faint Partins vaie now next comming. About this scalon, great lotte happened in Bent, by breaking of the lie. in of waters, that overflowed the fea banks, as well in the archbishop of Canturburies grounds, as other mens, thereby much cattell was drowned. Beither did England alone bewaile hir lottes by fuch breakings in of the fea, but also Zcland, Flanders, & poli land taffed of the like Damage.

William Wickham bithop of Winchester, be Thrum ing a man of great age, occeasied this yeare, leauing willia will behind him a perpetuall memorie of his name, for ham. the notable monuments which he created, in building

The kings archbilliop.

An.Reg.6. 8 two colleges , one at Wincheller for grammart ans, and the other at Orenford called the new col eogc, purchating lance and revenues for the maintenance of findents there to the great commoditie of the commonwealth: for from thence, as out of a goonurficrie, have come forth diverte men in all a ges ercellentlie learned in all sciences. And here Thane not thought it impertinent to speake somes that of this worthie prelat (considering that by him fo great a benefit hath returned to the common i wealth) according to fuch notes as I have feene colleacoby that painfull traueller in fearch of antiqui ties John Leland, tho faith, that as some have suppofet, the fait Wickham, other wife called Perot, was bale sonne to one perot, the towne-clerke of Wick, hamin hampshire, of which place he twice his furname, and that one maifter Woodll a gentleman, buckling in the fato towne, brought him by at ichole, where he learned his grammar, and to write berie faire, in so much that the constable of Minches 20 fercaffell, a great ruler in those dates in Hamp. thire, got him of maifter Wlodall , and reteined him to be his fecretarie, with whome he continued, till king Coward the third , comming to Winchester, conceined fonce goo liking of the young man, and tokehim to his fervice, and withall understanding that he was minded to be a churchman, he first made bimparlon and beaute of faint Partins in London. then archdeacon of Buckingham.

But for fo much as his feruice was right accepta: 2 ble to the king, as he that with great derteritie could handle fuch affaires of the flate, or other matters of charge as were committed to his hands, the king fill kept him about his person, as one of his cheefe hapleing of houthold, and imploied him in fundate offices, as occasions ferued: and first he made him furucios of his works and buildings, namelie at Windlose, in reparing of that castell, and also at Quinburrough, where, by the kings appointment, a on that live. After this, he was aduanced to the keeping of the prince scale, made overleer of the wards manior in Englant (05 and forrests, also treasuroz of the kings revenues in France, and at length was made bilhop of Winches fier . Bet the Blacke prince did not greatlie fauour him, whereboon Whickham procured to keepe him occupied in warres beyond the feas. But at length Johnduke of Lancoffer, and Alice Perers king Co. wards concubine, conceining fome great displeas fure against him. found meane to procure the king to banish him the realme, and then he remained in Poimandie and Dicardie for the space of seanen peares, or thereabout, and might not be reffored fo long as king Coward lived. But after his decease, about the fecond peare of king Kichard the feconds reigne, he was restozed home, and purchased a generall pardon for all matters past that might be surmised against him, or late to his charge.

Afterwards he bare himfelfe fo tweightlie in that dangerous time, when such milithing and privice en, 60 vie reigned betwirt the king and his nobles, that both parts feemed to like of him, infomuch that when the king made him losd chancellos, there was not as nie that greatlie repined thereat; and verelie in that the king made choife of him before others to occupie that place, it argueth there was not so ewill a disposition in the king, not lacke of discretion in other of government, as writers færne to charge him with. But where other could not so well beare insuries at others hands as hamilie Wickham could, the fire of diffention chaffie kindled thereof. For if the dake of Irel und, and the earle of Suffolke, with those of that faction could have refrained to their their displea. fures, when the duke of Gloceffer and other his complices pinched at them (for that they faw the king have them in more estimation than they wished) mattersmight have beene qualifico peraduenture with leffe adm, and without danger to have infued to either part. But bowloeuer it went with them, it map doubtleffe be eafilie contenured, that Wicks ham was a man of fingular wifedoine, and politike forecast that could from meane degree in such wife clime aloft, and afterwards palle through the chances and changes of variable fortune, keeping hims felfe ever so in trate, that he grew at length to be a ble to furnith the chargeable expenses of two such no table foundations which he left behind him, to make his name immortall. But leaving the confideration hereof to others, I will returne to the purpole from whence I have thus far fremed.

In this firt yeare, the fridate affer faint Halen tines date, the earle of Warch his fonnes earlie in the The carle of morning were taken forth of Windloze castell, and Warches conveied awaie, it was not knowne whither at the fornes firt, but luch learth and inquirie was made for them Thom Walfin, that Chartlie after they were heard of, and brought backe againe. The smith that counterfeited the keies, by the which they that conveied them thence got into the chamber where they were lodged, had. first his hands cut off, and after his head striken from his Moulders. The ladie Spenfer, lifter to the The ladie duke of Poske and widow of the losd Momas Spenter coa Spenfer, erecuted at Buffow (as before pæ haue ward. heard) being appehended and committed to close prilon , acculed hir brother the duke of Dorke , as she acculeth chefe authour in stealing awaie the fair carle of hir brother tha March his formes . And further, that the faid duke buke of youke, ment to have broken into the manoz of Eltham the last Christmaste, by scaling the wals in the night seas fon, the king being there the fame time, to the intent to have murthered him. For to proue hir acculation true, the offered that if there were anic knight, or ele quier, that would take boon bim to fight in hir quar frong fortreffe was railed, for defente of the realine 40 rell, if he were overcome, the would be content to be burnt for it.

Dne of hir elquiers named William Paidifone, willia Maid: bearing that answer his ladie and mistrelle pro- offred to fight pounded, cast bowne his hod, and proffered in hir in his ladies cause the combat. The ouke like wise cast downe his quarrell. hoo, readie by battell to cleare his innocencie. But pet the kings sonne loed Thomas of Lancaster are rested him, and put him buder safe keeping in the Tower, till it were further knowne what order should be taken with him, and in the meane time were all his gods confilcate. The same time was Thomas Molobraic earle marthall accused, as pri The earls nie to the purpose of the onke of Porke, touching the withdrawing of the earle of Parch his children, tho confessed indeed that he knew of the dakes purpose: but pet in no wife gauchis confent therebuto, and therefore belought tipe king to be god and gratious lozo bnto him for concealing the matter, and so he ob, teined pardon of that offense. The king had affembled at the same time the most part of the nobilitie at London, to consult with them for diverse weightie matters, concerning the fate of the common-wealth, and about some aid of monie which he required: but the loads thewed thems felues not willing to fatiffie his request. He therfore The A. wancaused the spiritual loods as well as the temporall, teth monica to met at S. Albons in the Lent feason, about the of the lozds. same matter; but pet obteined not his purpose, by reason the barons were sore against him, and so at length on Palme fundate they went their wate, cach man to his home, having gratified the king in no thing concerning his demand. In the meane time, to wit the fifteenth of Darch at a place in Wales called Pulke, in a conflict fought betwirt the Wellymen and cortains of the piliness companie, the sonne of Dwen Clendouer was taken, and fift eine hundred Telefimen taken and flaine. Also in Paic about the feaft date of S. Dunffanc, was the chancellog of the faid Diven taken pailoner, and a great number of o ther taken and flaine. The puloners were brought bp to London, where the chancellor was committed to fafe keeping in the Lower.

1405

Abr Flout of Thom.Walf. Hypod. pag.

Iuli lib t. Herod lib.1. Val. Max. 46.8.cap.7.

This was a threwd discomfiture to the Welth by the Englift, on whome finister lot lowerd, at fuch 10 time as more than a thousand of them were same in a hot fairmify; and fuch shancefull villance executed opon the carcalles of the dead men by the Wiellhy women; as the like (I do believe) hath never of fildome beene practiced. Hor though it was a cruell ded of Compais quene of the Pallagets in Sep. thia, against thome when Cyaus the great king of Perfia came, and had laine hir for ne, the by hir polis cie trained him into such Arcias, that the Que him led with the bloud of Cyzus and other Perfians, dio call his bead thereinto, falong; Bloud thou half thire ficd and now drinke thereof thy fill: againe, though it was a cruell deed of Fuluia the wife of Parcus Antonius (at whose commandement Popilius cut off the head and hunds of that golden mouthed oratoz Tullie, which afterwards were nailed by over the place of common place at Kome) to hold in hir hands the twing of that father of eloquence cut out of his and to pricke it all over with pins and nædels: pet neither the crueltie of Compus not pet of Fulma is comparable to this of the Wielihwomen; which is worthic to be recorded to the Chaine of a fer pretending the title of weake veffels, and yet raging with fuch force of fierceneffe and barbarifme. For the dead bodies of the Englishmen, being aboue a thousand lieng byon the ground imbaued in their owne bloud, was a fight (a man would thinke) grænous to læke bpon , and to farre from exciting and firring by af. 40 feations of crueltie; that it thould rather have more wed the beholders to commiscration and mercie: pet did the women of Males cut off their privities, and put one part thereof into the mouthes of enerte dead man, in fuch fort that the cultions hong downe to their chins; and not so contented, they did cut off their notes and thuilf them into their tailes as thep late on the ground mangled and defaced. This was a verie ignominious ded, and a worffe not committed among the barbarous: which though it make the 50 reader to read it, and the hearer to heare it, alhanicd: pet bicaufe it was a thing done in open fight, and lest testisco in historie; I sæ little reason whie it should not be imparted in our mother twng to the knowledge of our owne countrimen, as well as bri to firangers in a language buknowne . And thus much by wate of notifieng the inhumanitie and detestable demeanour of those Wielshwomen, affer the conflict betweene the English and the Welsh, whereof defultorie mention is made before pag. 520, 60 there Comund Postimer earle of Parch was taken pulener.

Maleran earle of S. Paule, by the affent of the French king, affembled fine hundzed men of armes, fine bundged Genowates with croffcbowes , and a The castell of thousand Flemings on fot, with the which he laid Marke belies fiege to the castell of Warke, the leagues from Cas lis, boon the fifteenth date of Julie. Capteine of the castell as then for the king of England was one fir Thilip Pall, having with him foure score archers, and foure and twentie other foldiers, which defended the place so manfullie, that the earle retired into the towns, and there lodged, fortifieng it for feare of refe cue that might come from Calis. The next daie ho gave an other affault to the caffell, and twice the viter court, therin was found a great number of horacs, kine, and other cattell. The next date there illued footh of Talis two hundred men of armes, two hunbredarchers, and three hundred fortmen, with ten or tivelue wagons laden with vittels and artillerie, conducted by fir Richard Affon knight, licutenantor the English pale for the earls of Summerfet, cap, teine generall of those marches.

The Frenchmen advertised that the Englishmen were comming to remove the fiege, iffued not forth of their lodgings, but kept them within their closure. Penertheleffe, the Englithmen that lo tharpelie and closelie togither, that the Flemings and formenbe. gan to flie: the men of armes: fearing the flaughter of their horacs, ran awaie with a light gallop . Ele Benotvates which had fpent the moft part of their thot at the affaults made to the castell, thewed small reliffance, and so all the number of the French part and all his hoft; and cauling a great veffell to be file 20 were flaine and put to flight. The earle of S. Paule Chrunig and diverse other escaped alvair, and by S. Omers & Dauly got to Therouenne, 03 (as others faic) to faint D. la. Mer, mers. But there were taken to the number of that og foure fcoge, and amongst other the load de Damps er senethall of Ponthien, monticur de Meriners, montieur de Mineles, montieur de Poielles, montie eur John de Pangests capteine of Bullongne, the lord de Kambures , montieur Lionell Darreis cap teine of Graueling , monficur Peter Raffer cap: head after the same was parted from his Moulders, 30 teine of Arde, also Combernard capteine of Tiro uan, Boto Chanon capteine of Pontoire, John Cha non capteine of Lile, Stenebecke capteine of Kalingham, the baftaro of Burnevill capteine of Bur. burgh. There were flaine about 60, and among them as thefe fir Robert Berenquenill, the losd of Duer cus, Pozen de Saucules, the load Tourbet de Rem peupzet, and others.

The Englishmen had the spoile of the earls campe, and being returned to Calis, within five daies after there iffued forth about five bunded men , meaning Irde offend to have wone the towne of Arde with a finden at finds the fault, which they gave to it in the night time. But fir Panfrio de Bois, and the tord Ligine, did fo valiant lie defend it, that the Englishmen with loss of fortic of their men were confireined to returne buto Ca lis, after they had burnt the bear bodies in anold house, for that the enimies thouse not perceive that lolle the Englishmen had fuffeines. After this, the French king, to anoto perils, laid in garifon at Bul Chemaque longne, and in other places, the marques of Pount, bu pount, fonne to the duke of War, the earle of Dampnie, and fir John Harpadan a knight of great renowmeand estimation. The buke of Burgegnie likewise lenta a number of foldiers buto Graneling, buder the leav ding of one John Mandenwall, and to other fortreb les alongs the coast he fent new suplies, for doubt of the Englishmens inuations.

The king of England in deed hearing of the pies Anarmielin paration mavestof warre by the Frenchmen, leuico to College foure thousand with which he fent buto Calis, and to to the feat the sea, of the which 3000 were winder the conduct of the kings sonne. The logo Thomas of Lancaller, Chr. Fland and the earle of lacent, the two and twentity date of 11 Mar. Daie (as fome write) came boon the coaft of flanbers, and entring the haven of Slais, burnt foure The Con great thips which they found there lieng at ando. The fift daie affer their comming into that he will be went on land, thinking to have fought with the other of land, thinking to have fought with the duke of Burgognie. But as other write, als ter they had besteged the castell that stood in the mouth of the hanen, and louing thee score of their men, among thich they name one to beare the title of earle of Penbroke (whom they buried for the time in the church of Hude) huc daies after their come midbelt of Meir, fatth. Gir Philip

An.Reg.6.

ming thicher they beformined to depart from thence, perceining the castell would not easilie be wone, but first they spoiled the countrie about them, and burnt peis flat, other wife called Condekirke, and diucrie other places thereabout.

This done, they take by the bodie of him whom the Flemith writers call the earle of Penbroke, and got them againe to the fea, for that they were aduer. filed how the duke of Burgognie meant to beliege Sluis castell, they returned buto the defense of the towne of Calis, fo much belired of the French nation. As they returned homewards, they met with the caricks of Benoa, of the which one having the wind with hir, meant to have overthrowne the thip therein the losd Thomas of Lancafter was abood: but by the god forelight of the matter of the thip that ruled the fferne, suddenlie turning the same, the bio. lent swaie of that huge vestell comming so bpon them, was auotoed; but yet the caricke froke off the 20 note of the English thip, and baufed hir on the five. Then began the fight verie crueil, till the earle of Bentcame to the rescue: and so finallie after a great 1 grat fight windlit and bloudie battell betwirt the caricks and Englith thips, the victorie remained with the Eng. lithnen, who taking the caricks, turned their failes toward Rozmandie, where they arrived and burnt Counts in the towns of Hoggue, Pountburge, Berflie, faint Petronils no other, to the number of thirtie fir, paling footh into the countrie without reliffance, the space of thirtie viles, spotling all that came in their wale. This done, hey returned, and brought the caricks into the chamer at Rie, where one of them bomillortune of fire puliped, to the lotte and gaine of either of the parties.

John duke of Burgognwanning obteined licence to beliege Calis, prepared a armic of fir thouland men of armes, fifteene hundzed rolbowes, tiwelue thouland fortmen, the which being Tembled, and all necessarie proutsion readie at faint Omers, he was 40 by the French king countermanded, an not suffered to proceed anis further in that weightic enterprise. And this was thought to be partlie the case of the malice that he conceived against the duke or Diles ance, supposing that through him (enuiong his gazie) he was thus disappointed of his purpose. Which such doings were in hand betwirt the English and French, as the belieging of Warke castell by the earle of faint Paule, and the fending fouth of the English fleet, under the governance of the load Aho 50 the other, for (as some write) there were of the rebels mas of Lancaster, and the earle of Bent, the king was minded to have gone into Wales against the Welch revels, that boder their cheffeine Dwen Glendouer, ceaffed not to do much milchefe fill a. gainst the English subjects.

But at the same time, to his further disquieting, Inw colpi: there was a conspiracie put in practile against him actional at home by the earle of Posthumberland, tho had the first confired with Kichard Screepe archbishop of Posks and others, mas duke of Posfolke, who for the quarrell betwirt him and king Henrie had biene banished (as ye have heard) the loods Hallings, Fauconbiloge, Berdolfe, and diverse others. It was appointed that they thoulo met altogither with their whole power, byon Poskeswold, at a date assigned, and that the earle of Posthumberland Chould be cheffeine, promiting to being with him a great number of Scots. The arche bithop accompanied with the earle marthall, deutled certeine articles of fuch matters, as it was supposed that not onelie the commonaltie of the Kealme, but also the nobilitie found themselves greeved with: with articles they the wed first onto such of their adberents as were nere about them, & after fent them abroad to their frænds further off, affuring them that for redresse of such oppressions, they would shed the last drop of blod in their bodies, if need were.

The archbifhop not meaning to fraie after he faw The archbi= himselfe accompanied with a great number of men, thop of yorke that came flocking to Poske to take his part in this one of the cheefe confpi quarrell, forthwith discouered his enterprise, causing rators. the articles aforfaid to be fet op in the publike firets of the citie of Dozke, and bpon the gates of the mo-Calis. Wherebpon railing their liege thus from 10 nafteries, that ech man might binderstand the cause that moved him to rife in armes against the king, the reforming thereof did not yet apperteine unto him. Herebpon knights, elquiers, gentlemen, yeo. men, and other of the commons, as well of the citie, townes and countries about, being allured either for defire of change, or elle for defire to læ a refore mation in such things as were mentioned in the ars ticles, allembled togither in great numbers; and the archbilhop comming forth amongst them clad in ar The archbis moz, incouraged, erhorted, and (by all meanes he thop in armoz. could) pricked them footh to take the enterprise in hand, and manfullie to continue in their begun purpole, promiting forgivenelle of linnes to all them, whole hap it was to die in the quarrell: and thus not onclie all the citizens of Porke, but all other in the countries about, that were able to beare weapon, came to the archbilhop, and the earle marchall. In ded the respect that men had to the archisthop, caw The estima= fed them to like the better of the cause, since the tion swhich granitic of his age, his integritie of life, and incom- archbishop of parable learning, with the reucrend afpect of his as yorke. miable personage, moued all men to have him in no fmall effimation.

The king advertised of these matters, meaning to prevent them, left his tournie into Wales, and mare thed with all speed towards the north parts. Also Rafe Penill earle of Westmerland, that was not The carle of farre off, togither with the load John of Lancalter weitmerland the kings some, being informed of this rebellions John of Lanattempt, affembled togither such power as they caffer the might make, and togither with thole which were ape kings fonne pointed to attend on the faid load John to defend the prepare them booders against the Scots, as the lood Henrie Fitze the kings entbugh, the load Rafe Geners, the load Robert Umfres mies, uill, cothers, made forward against the rebels, and comming into a plaine within the forcest of Galtræ, The forces of caused their Candards to be pitched downe in like Galtræ. fort as the archbilhop had pitched his, over against bem, being farre fronger in number of people than at the east twentie thousand men.

When the earle of Westmerland perceived the The subtill force of the adversaries, and that they late Will and policie of the attempted not come forward opon him, he lubtil earle of welllie deuiled how toquaile their purpole, and forthwith meriand. dispatched medlengies onto the archbishop to onderfland the cause as it were of that great affemblie, and for what cause (contrarie to the kings peace) they came lo in amour. The archbilhop answered, that he The archbia America Homas Powbraie earle marchall forme to Those 60 toke nothing in hand against the kings peace, but shops protethat what soener he did, tended rather to advance the he had on him peace and quiet of the common-wealth, than other arms. wife: and there he and his companie were in armes, it was for feare of the king, to whom he could have no free accelle, by reason of such a multitude of flatter rers as were about him; and therefore he maintele ned that his purpose to be good a profitable, as well for the king himfelfe, as for the realme, if men were willing to biderstand a truth: 4 herewith he shewed forth a fcroll, in which the articles were written werof before ye have heard.

The mellengers returning to the earle of West. merland, thewed him what they had heard a brought from the archiffop. When he had read the articles, men had of the tyles. Shin co

1159 are

The bake of Burgognie

bluge Cake betwirt

he spewed in word and countenance outwardly that heliked of the archbishopsholie and vertuous intent and purpole, promiting that he and his would profes cute the fame in affilting the archbishop, who retob fing hereat, game credit to the earle, and persuaded the earle marshall (against his will as it were) to go with him to a place appointed for them to commune togither. Here when they were met with like num ber on either part, the articles were read oner, and without anie more ado, the earle of Westmerland and those that were with him agreed to do their best, to fee that a reformation might be had, according to the fame.

The earle of polititie Dea-

The archbi=

thop of yorke

marthall arre:

and the carle

Eiton,

The earle of Wellmerland bling more policie wellmerlads than the reft: Well (faid he) then our trauell is come to the wither end: and there our people have beine long in armour, let them depart home to their wonted trades and occupations: in the meane time let bs so drinke togither in figne of agræment, that the people con both fides maie fee it, and know that it is true, 20 that we be light at a point. They had no loner that " ken hands togither, but that a knight was fent Areight waics from the archbilhop, to bring word to the people that there was peace concluded, commans bing comman to laie affor his armes, and to refort home to their houses . The people beholding such tokens of peace, as haking of hands, and drinking togither of the loods in louing manner, they being als readic wearied with the bnaccustomed travell of warre, brake by their field and returned homewards: 3 but in the meane time, whilest the people of the archbi thous five with drew awaie, the number of the contravic part increased, according to order given by the earle of TCleffmerland; and yet the archbiftop perceined not that he was deceived, butill the earle of TCleffmerland arrested both him and the earle mar: thall, with diverte other. Thus faith Walfingham.

But others write formulat otherwise of this matter, affirming that the earle of Weilmerland in dod. and the losd Rafe Ceners, procured the archbiffion & 4 the earle mariball, to come to a communication with them, bpon a ground full in the midwaie betwirt both the armies, where the earle of actesimers land in talke declared to them how persons an emterpule they had taken in hand, to to raise the people, and to move warre against the king, aduling them therefore to submit themselves without further delate buto the kings mercie, and his some the ford John, who was prefent there in the field with bar ners speed, redie to trie the matter by dint of fould, 50 if they refaled this counfell: and therefore howilled them to remember themselnes well; tif they would not yarlo and craue the kings pardon, do bad them dw their best to defend themselves.

Pereupon as well the ardsilhop as the carle marthall submitted themselves buto the king, and to his some the lord John that was there present, and returned not to their armie. Therebpon their trops fealed and fico their waies; but being purfued, of that that they had about them, & fo permitted to go their waies. Howofocuer the matter was handled, true it is that the archvillop, and the earle marthall were brought to Pointret to the king, tho in this meane while was advanced thither withhis power, and from thence he went to Bothe, whither the prifor The archbi ners were also brought, and there beheaded the mos thep of yorks, row after Thitlimoais in a place without the citie. the early mare that is to unvertiand, the archbishop bimselfe, the thall, t others earle marthall, fir John Lamplete, and fir Kobert Abr. Fl. out of Plumpton. Chico all which persons though indems Thom Walin, mitte were promised, yet was the fame to none of them at anie hand performed. By the iffue hereof, 3 meane the death of the forefaid, but speciallic of the archbiftop, the prophetic of a fickelie canon of Bilbi lington in Poskethire fell out to be true, the barblie though foretold this matter, & the infortunate cuent thereof in these woods hereafter following, fairing:

Pacem tractabunt, sed fraudem subter arabunt, Pro nulla marca, faluabitur ille * hierarcha.

The archbishop suffered death verie constantlic, infomuch as the common people toke it, he died a Stranti marty2, affirming that certeine miracles were flooringing wrought as well in the field where he was creented, amang as also in the place where he was buried: and immer Diatlie byon fuch bruits, both men and women began to worthin his dead carcalle, thom they loued fo much when he was alive, till they were forbidden by the kingsfrænds, and for feare game over to bifit the place of his sepulture. The earle marthals booic by the kings leave was buried in the cathediall church, manie lamenting his deffinie; but his head was fet on a pole aloft on the wals for a certeine fpace, till by the kings permittion [after the same had suffered manie a hot funnie date, and manie a wet thower of rame it was taken bowne and buried togither with the bodie.

After the king, according lie as feemed to him gor, had ranformed and punished by grieuous fines the civ tizens of Docke (which has bome armour or their archbishops side against him) he departed & Porke with an armie of thirtie and feuen thousard fighting men, furnifico with all provision necesarie, marthing northwards against the earle of Porthumber, land. At his coming to Durham, se lood Haftings, Ekcloden the lood Fauconbridge, fir Join Collevill of the come. Dale, and fir John Briffith, Jeing convided of the conspiracie, were there bely abed. The earle of pop thumberland, hearing sat his counfell was be waited, and his conferrats brought to confusion, through to much hat of the archbishop of Dorke, with the hundrer offe got him to Berwike. The king comming ofward quickelie, wan the cassell of Warkelways. Wherebyon the earle of porthum Strentel berland, no thinking himfelfe in suertic at Ber, Posthambre wike, fir with the lost Berbotfe into Scotland, land. where they were received of Danid losd fleming.

He king comming to Berwike, commanded then that kept the castell against him to render it ito his hands, and when they flattie benied to to do, he caused a piece of artillerie to be planted against one of the towers, and at the first that overthowing Berniu is part theroof, they within were put in such feare, that Atligated they simplie veloed themselves without any maner the bing. of condition, wholie to remaine at the kings pleas fure. Ocrebpon the chiefelt of them, to wit, fir Will liam Greistoke, sonne to Kafebaron of Creistoke, theton Car Penrie Beinton, and Kohn Blenkinsop, with finds and foure or flue other were put to death, and diverse of this fain ther were kept in pilon. Some write that the earle beath, of Porthumberland at his entring into Scotland, Exca. delinered the towne of Berwike onto the Scots, tho bearing of king Henries approch, and despairing manie were taken, manie flaine, and manie spoiled 60 to defend the towne against him, fet five on it and departed. There was not one boule that was left but burnt, except the friers and the church.

After that the king had disposed things in such conuenient order as food with his pleasure at Berwie, Charles he came backe, and had the castell of Alnewise delle rathen uered unto him to the National Alnewise and the castell of Alnewise and the castell of the caste uered buto bim, with all other the castels that below the box ged to the erle of Posthumberland in the now parts, as Prochow, Langlie, Cockermouth, Aluham, and Dewlfed. Thus bauing quieted the north parts, he That toke his tournie directie into Wales, there he found fortune nothing fanourable onto him, for all his attempts had entil fuccess, in somuch that losing to lost to fiftie of his cartages through abundance of raine carters and waters, he returned; and comming to Wloce His

Hypod,pag.

In. Reg. 6,7. fier, he fent for the archbithop of Tanturburie, and o ther bushops, declaring to them the missortune that had chanced to him, in confideration whereof he res question to helpe him with some postion of monic, towards the maintenance of his warres, for the taming of the prefumptuous and vnquiet Welsh.

In the meane time, the French king had appoins to one of the marthals of France called Pontmes cts murban trancie, and the matter of his crofbowes, with fivelue 10 identification of the faile into Wales to aid Dwen ha Sundo: Glendouer. They twke thipping at Breft, and having the wind prosperous, landed at Wilford haven, with an hundred and fourtie thips, as Thomas Walfingham faith; though Enguerant de Monstrellet mas beth mention but of an hundred and fiventie. The most part of their horstes were lost by the waie for lacke of freff water. The load Berkleie, and Benrie Daie, elpieng their aduantage, burnt fiftene of thole French thips, as they late at road there in the hauen 20 of Dilford: and Choetlie after the fame lord Berkleie, and fir Domas Swinborne, with the faid Denrie Waie, toke other fourteine thips, as they came that waic with prouttion of bittels and munition forth of France to the aid of the other.

In the meane while the marthall Montinerancie, with his armic, befreged the towne of Carmarden, considered and wan it by composition, granting to the men of warre that hept it against him, licence to depart wife ther they would, & to take with them all their moues 30 able gods : the castell of Penbroke they assaulted not, efferring it to be fo well manned, that they fluid but lofe their labour in attempting it. Potwithkanand on they belieged the towns of Hereford well, which middle des neverthelesse was so well defended by the earle of As grant de rundell and his power, that they lost moze than they wan, and so they departed towards the towne of Denbigh, where they found Dwen Glendouer abibing for their comming, with ten thousand of his and not win Wellymen. Here were the Frenchmen totfullie res 40 ceined of the Wielsh rebels, and so when all things were prepared, they passed by Glamorganshire toab fiburbs wards telogeoffer, and there burnt the fuburbes : but hearing of the kings appoch, they suodenlie returned towards Wales.

The king with a great pullance followed, and found them imbattelled on a high mounteine, where there was a great vallie betwirt both the armies, fo that either armie might plainelie perceine the other, and either host loked to be assailed of his adversarie, 50 therefore fought to take the advantage of ground. Thus they continued for the space of eight dates from morning till night, readie to abide, but not to gine battell. There were manie fkirmithes, and ofuerle proper feats of armes wrought in that meane familions will, in the which the French lost manie of their nobles and gentlemen, as the lood Patroullars de Tries, brother to the marshall of France, the lood Patelonne of Partelonne, the lood de la Maile, and the baffard of Bourbon, with other, to the number 60 (as some baue written) of fine hundred. But Enguerant de Monstreller affirmeth, that bpon their refurne into France, there wanted not about thise fcore persons of all their companies.

After they had laine thus one against an other the space of eight dates (as before is faid) vittels began to faile, so that they were inforced to disloge. The Frenchand Welthmen withdrew into Wales, and though the Englishmen followed, yet impeached with the defart grounds and barren countrie, thos rough which they must paste, as our felles and crage gie mounteins, from hill to dale, from marish to was, from naught to worse (as Hall faith) without bittels or fuccourathe king was of force confirmed to retire with his armie, and returns agains to Woy ceffer, in which returns the enimies toke certains car riages of his laden with bittels. The Frenchmen af ter the armies were thus withdrawne, returned into The French Wittaine, making small brags of their painefull men returne fournie.

This yeare at London, the earle of Arundell mar Anno Reg. 7. ried the bastard daughter of the king of Postingale, the king of England and the quenc with their prefend honozing the folemnitie of that feath, which was kept with all sumptuous rotaltie, the morrow after faint Batharins date. And on the date of the Conception of our ladie, the ladie Willip king Benrics daughter was proclamed quæne of Denmarke, Portraie, and Sweden, in prefence of fuch amballa. dozs, as the last summer came hither from the king of those countries, to bemand hir in marriage for him, and had so travelled in the matter, that finallie they obteined it. In the daie of the translation of Thom. Walin. faint Bartine, the towne of Rolfon was on fire. Rolfon burs This yeare the first of Parch a parlement began, ned. thich continued almost all this yeare : for after that in the lower house they had venice a long time to A parlement. grant to any subsidie: yet at length, a little before Chilimatte, in the eight yeare of his reigne they granted a fifteenth to the loffe and great damage of the communaltie, for through lingering of time, the A fifteenth erpences of knights and burgelles grew almost in grated by the balue to the summe that man demanded value to the fumme that was demanded.

Dozcouer, by the clergie a new kind of subsidie A new kind of was granted, to the king, to be levied of flipendarie subsidie granpriests and friers mendicants, and other such relie ted by the gious men as swng for the dead, celebrating (as they termed it) anniversaries: everie of them gave halfe a marke, in reliefe of other of the cleargie that had fill boane the burthen for them before. There boon now they murmured and grudged loze, for that they were thus charged at that present. The same time the earle of Porthumberland, and the lord Wardolfe, warned by the load Dauid Fleming, that there was a conspiracie practiled to deliner them into the king of Englands hands, fled into Wales to Dwen Glendouer. This cost the load Fleming his life: for The load after it was knowne that he had disclosed to the Firming lost earle of Porthumberland what was meant against his life for gis him, and that the earle there boon was thifted awate, ledge to the certeine of the Socots flue the faid load fleming.

Therebpon no small grudge rose betweet those thumbertand that so fluc him, and the said load Flemings friends. of that which For this and other matters, such discention sprong against him. by amongst the Scotish nobilitie, that one durft not trust another, so that they were glad to sue for a truce Diffention as betwirt England and them, which was granted to mög the Scor indure for one years, as in some books we find recoze tilly nobiline. ded. This truce being obteined, Robert king of Scotland (vpon confiderations, as in the Scotiff his forte pe may read more at large) fent his elocit fon James intituled prince of Scotland (a child not pall Gleven years nine yeares of age) to be conveied into france, but faith Harber the conduct of the earle of Dikenie, and a bishop, The vince of in hove that he might there both remaine in fafette, Scotland and also learne the French tong.

But it fortuned, that as they failed neare to the in England. Englith coast about Flambrough head in Holder. nesse, their thip was taken and stated by certeine mariners of Claie (a towne in Postfolke) that were abroad the fame time; and so he and all his companie being appehended the thirtith of Warch, was conneis ed to Windfoze, where though he had leiters from his father, which he presented to the king, conteining a request in his somes behalfe for favour to be thew ed towards him, if by chance he landed within any of bis dominions: yet was he deteined, and as fiell he himselse as the earle of Dikenic was committed to

Abr. Fl. out of

uing know carle of Mazz

beent the

fase keeping in the Cower of London, but the bithop got away and escaped (as some write) by that means I know not. By the Scotish writers we find that this chanced in the yeare 1404, that is, two yeares before the time noted in diverle English writers, as Thomas Walfingham and other. But Harding faith it was in the ninth years of king Benries reigne, to wit, in the yeare 1408.

But thensoener it chanced, it is to be thought, two realmes, but that the warre was rather open, fith diverse Englith rebels fill remained in Scot land, and were there succosed to the high displeasure of king Penrie. I By authoritic of the parlement that all this time continued, the Butons that ferued the quiene, with two of hir daughters were banithed the realme. Robert Palome chancelloz of Drfozo, as then being in the popes court at Kome, was creat ted archbiffier of Pocke. Doccouer the fame time. the popegane unto Thomas Langlie the bishopsike 2 of Durham which by the death of Walter Skirlow was then boid. In the fummer of this yeare, the las die Ahllip the kings vonger daughter was sent ouer to hir affianced hulband, Erike king of Denmarke, Pormaie, and Sweden, being conneied thither with great pompe, and there married to the faid king, there the taffed (according to the common fpech be feo in praising for the successe of such as match togis ther in marrage) both top and some forrow among. Bath, and the load Richard brother to the duke of

There was a fuffs held at London, betweet the earle of Bent, and the erle of Parre a Scotishman; alfo fir John Cornewall, and the lord Beaumont, as gainst other time Scotish knights, whereof the honoz remained with the Englithmen . In the parlement which pet continued, the duke of Poske was reffored Yogherestoged to his former libertie estate and dignitie, there may time in pation. Comund Holland carle of Bent was in fuch factour with king Henrie, that he not onelie Rent in fauor aduanced him to high offices and great honors, but also to his great colls and charges obteined for him the ladie Lucie, eldeff daughter, and one of the beirs of the load Barnabo of Willane, which Barnabo pate Demarrietha ed to him 100000 ducates, in the church of S. Da Barnabologo rie Ducries in Southwarke, by the hands of Don Alfonso de Cainnola, pponthe day of the solemnizat tion of the marriage, which was the foure and twen- 50

In this yeare Roger of Walden departed this Abr. Fl. out of life; the having beene toffed by and downe with fundie changes of featune, tried in a thoat time how inconstant, bucerteine, variable, wandering, bustable, and flitting the is; which when the is thought firmelie to frand, the flipperinglie falleth; and with a differme bling lake counterfaiteth falle toies. For by the meanes of hir changeablenesse, the fato Roger of a waltens vo- pore fessou, grew on to be high lord treasurer of the 60 nam & pacificam seisinam, de duabus partibus realure, and shortle after archisshop of Canturbus mediciatis cuius dam pontis vocati Tinebridge, m rie; but by what right, the world knoweth, confider ring that the lood Thomas Arundell was then lining. Anon after he was deposed from his dignitie. and lead the life of an ordinarie prinat man a long fine; within a will after againe he was promoted and mater billyop of London, which fee he had not pole fessed a full peare, but was deprined, and Picholas Hobbith Incorded in his come. So that hereby men are taught not to be proud of their preferment, nor to rech mof them as of perpetuities, lithens they map be as some dispossessed as possessed of them; and for that all effates a degrees depend upon Gods poiner and providence, whereof the poet divinelie faicth.

Ludit in humanu dinina potentia rebus, Et certam præsens vix habet hora fidem.

In this yeare the seventh of Paic was Thomas In a history of Durham afron the day In this years up to be a Durham after the de of the Langlie confecrated bishop of Durham after the de of the cease of Walter Skirlow. In which place he confi, Tam nued one and thirtie yeares. He among other his beneficiall beos beautified the church of Durham for p uer with a chanterie of two chapleines. Belides which for the increase of learning (wher with himselfe that there was no truce at that present betweene the 10 was greatlie furnithed) be built two schooles, the one for grammar to infruct youth, whereby in following time they might be made more able to benefit them. felues and ferue their countrie; and the other of mu ficke, wherein children might be made apt to ferue God and the durch, both which scholes he ereacd in a parcell of ground comonlie called The plate grane. To which buildings (for he was one that ocliquien much therein, and like onto the philosopher Anarago. ras suposed that there was not any more carthlie o felicitie, than to erect fumptuous palaces, wheripaf. ter their death the memorie of the founders might baue continuance) he added manie fumptuous parts of the palace of Durham . In the towns whereof he did also from the ground (of most statelie stone) erect a new gaole with the gate-house to the same, in that place where of old it remained, and then by injurie of time fallen downe and confumed. This man inivied the fee of Durham almost the whole time of the kings, that is; about fir yeares and fir moneths in There attended hir thither Denrie Bowet biftop of 30 the time of Penrie the fourth, nine peares and five moneths in the time of Penrie the fift, and fifteene peares in the time of Henrie the firt; during the gouernment of all which princes, he was all his life time highlie estemed and reverenced for his fingular wiscome, and for the great authoritie he bare in publike, betweene whome and the major of Actu cattell arole great contention, about a bringe called Tinebringe in the towne of Batelhed or Botelhed, in Latine called Caput capra. But in the years of our nie suposed that he had beene dead long before that 40 redemption 1416, and of Henrie the fiff, the fourth, and of his bishopzike the eleventh, this bishop had the recoverie thereof, as appeareth by the letter of atturnie of the faid bithop, made to diverse to take polscatton of the same.

> The letter of atturnie wherby the bishop authorised diverse to take possession of Tinebridge.

Homas Dei gratia episcopus Dunel-mensis omnibus ad quos prasentes litte-ra peruenerint salutem. Sciatis quod consistentimus deputauimus dilectos consistentimus de Ewrie cheualter senescallum nostru Dunelmia, Williamum Chanceler cancellarium, infra comitatum & libertatem Dunelmia, ac Williamum Claxton vicecomitem nostrum Dunelmia coniunctim & divisim, ad plemedie atis cuiusdam pontis vocati Tinebridge, m villa nostra de Gatesheued, infra comitatum & libertatem Dunelmia existentis. Qua quidem dua partes medietatis pradicta, continent & faciunt tertiampartemeiusdem pontis vsque austrum, in pradicta villa de Gatesheued. Super quas duas partes nuper maior & communitas villa Noui castri Super Tinam, quandam turrim de nouo adificare caperut, & quas quidem duas partes cum franche-fys, iurifdictionibus, & iuribus regalibus super easdem duas partes medietatis pradicta, nuper in curia domini regis versus maiorem & communitatem dicta villa Noni castri recuperanimus nobis

Hall.

Robert Datome archb. of Postic.

The king and the quaric brought hir to Lin Where the take thip= ping. Tho.Walfi.

Porke.

tith of Zanuarie.

Anno Reg. 8. The author to libertie.

The carle of with f king:

of Millanc.

Thom. Walfi: Hypod, pag.

Roger of

An.Reg.8,9. o fuccessoribus nostris episcopis Dunelmia, & in iure ecclesia nostra sancti Cuthberti Dunelmia possidendas de vicecomite Westmerlandia, prapopularium textucius de breus dicti domini regis sibi directi nomine nustro recipiendas; & turrim pradicta ad opus nostrum saluo & secur è custodiedam. Ratum & gratum habiturus quicquid ide Radulphus, Williamus & Willielmus nomine nostro fecerint in pramisse. In cuius rei testimonium has litteras nostras sieri fecimus patentes. Datum Dunelmia 10 per manus Williami Cancellarij nostri 26 Octobris anno pontificatus nostri vndecimo.

> According therebuto in the faid yeare, pollellion was delivered in the prefence of thefe perfons, whole names I thinke not bumet for their posterities cause to be remembred, being persons of god credit and of antiquitie, that is to faic, John Lomelie, Kafe Emzaie, Kobert Bilton, William Fulthzop, Wil liam Tempeft, Domas Sucrties, Robert * Cogniers, Milliam Clarton thiriffe of Durham, Kobertde' Egle, John Bertram, John Widerington, and John Middleton knights of Posthumberland, Chiffother Poglie, Will. Dimunderlaw knights of celeftmerland; and also in the presence of these es quiers, Bobert Bilton, Robert Cwaie, William Bowes, John Conters, William Lamptonthe elder, John de Borden, William Lampton the ponger, Dugh Burunghell, John Britlie, William Bel 30 lingham, Robert Belthis, Henrie Talboies; Tho mas Garbois, John de Hutton, William Hutton, Thomas Coke of Filburne, and five others. This bishop also procured certeine liberties from the pope in the church of Durham, by vertue of which grant they which were excommunicate (and might not intop the privilege of any facraments, in other places throughout the bishoprike) should pet baptile their dilozen in a font of that thurth, in an especiall place appointed therefore, and also receive the other facras 4 ments there to be administred onto them . We died the eight and twentith of Poucmberin the yeare of our redemption 1437, and was buried in the thurth of Durham in the chanterie which he had before erece ted. Before whose death at his manour of Holdon be builded all the well gates there of godlie fione and lime, with the chambers thereto belonging on with he placed his armes.]

The duke of Deleance having levice a mightie are Chebake of mie, had belieged the townes of Burge and Blaie in 50 Othancebes Galcoigne, meaning with force to win the fame; but fauthowns of the fortuned, that for the space of eight weekes togider, there passed not one date svishout tempest of raine, snow, and haile, mired with winds and light nings, which killed aswell men as cattell, by reason thereof he loss was reported) fir thousand men, so that he was, constrained to breake op his camps from before both those townes, and to get him awaie with difference, for all his brags and boaffs made at his first comming thither. The same time, Henrie 60 paie and certeine other persons of the fine posts, with fifteene thips, twike an hundzed and twentier wifes, which laie at anchoz in and about the coast of Bitaine, laven with tron, falt, oile, a Rothell wines.

In this feafon also villes were fet by in diverse places of London, and on the doze of Paules church, withich was conteined, that king Richard being a line and in health, would come thoutie with great magnificence & power to recover againe his hingdome: but the contriner of this demie was quicklie found out, apprehenoed, and punished according to his demerits. The citie of London this yeare in the lummer was to intented with pestilent mortalis tte, that the king durif not repaire thither, not come nere to it. Wher opon he being at the castell of Lads in Kent, and departing from thence, twhe ship at Duinburgh in the Ile, of Shepie, to faile over buto Lein Effer, and so to go to plassifie, there to passe the time till the mortalitic was ceaffed.

Ashe was boon the fea, certeine French pirats which late lucking at the Dames mouth to watch for forme preie, got knowledge by some meanes (as was Chebing in supposed) of the kings passage, and therebyon as he before to be the state of the state was in the model of his course, they entred among taken by his flet, and toke foure vellels next to the kings rats. thip, and in one of the same vessels fir Thomas Rampfton the kings vicechamberlaine, with all his Sir Thomas chamber Auste and apparell. They followed the king Ban so nière, that if his thip had not beene swift, he had landed somer in France than in Eller: but such was The king cfhis good hap, that he escaped and arrived at his ape caped through pointed post. The losd Camois, that was comman fwiftnelle of ded with certaine thips of warre to wast the king o, The lood Cas ner (whether the wind turned to that he could not more put in kepe his direct course, or that his thip was but a blame. flug) ran so far in the kings displeasure, that he was attached f indited, for that (as was furmized against bim) he had practifed with the Frenchmen, that the king might by them have beene taken in his passage.

De have heard that the pope by vertue of his proutilion had given the archbilhopule of Dorke buto maifter Robert Halom ; but the king was fo offended there with, that the faid Robert might in no wife intog that benefice, and so at length, to satisfie the hings pleasure, maister Henrie Bowet was trans. Henrie Bowa lated from Bath buto Booke, and maifter Kobert et archbishop of yogke. Halom was made bithop of Salifburie then boid by remoning of Benrie Chichellie to S. Dauids. The lord Denrie prince of Wales this peare in the fummer fealon belieged the castell of Abirulcwith, and Abirulcwith. constrained them within to compound with him onder certeine conditions for truce; but the prince was no somer from thence departed, but that Diven Owen Giers Blendouer by fubtill craft entered the caffell, put out Douer. the kepers, and charging them with treason for concluding an agreement without his confent, placed other in that fortrelle to defend it to his vie.

About the feath of the Assumption of our lavie, that ancient warriour and worthie knight fir Kobert Anols departed this life : he was (as before pe haue Anols depart beard)bosne of meane parentage, but growen into teththis life, fuch estimation for his valiant prowesse, as he was Bermondsey. thought meet to have the leading of whole armies, and the rule and government of large provinces . For not long before his decease, he being governour of Aquitaine, incumbred with age, religned his office S. Albons. buto fir Thomas Belfort, a right valiant capteine, and therewith returned into England, where he died at a manour place of his in Portfolke, a from thence brought to London in a litter, with great pompe and De was burfa much touch light, was buried in the church of White coin & white friers in fletfret by the lavie Conffance his toffe. fries. where was done for him a folemne obsequie, with a great feast, and liberall dole to the poze.

Befides the diverse noble exploits, and famous warlike enterpiles atchined by this valiant fonns of Wars, he (to continue the perpetuall memoric of his name) builded the bridge of Rocheffer, ouer the river of Dedivate with a chappell at the end thereof; he built Ra-he repared also the bodie of the church of the Abite chester bridgs friers where he was buried, which church was first commonite founded by the ancestour of the load Greie of Cobner. He also founded a college of secular priests at Pomfret, and did manie other things in his life right Thom, Walf. commendable. Sir Thomas Kamplion confable of the tower was ozowned in comming from the court as he would have that the bridge, the ffreame being to big, that it overturned his barge. This peare the Anno Reg.9. ffff. tiventith a Buchard fell aline and bas feigned.

Rampston ta=

'Ogle.

Thom.Walf. I fablioic.

five was granted by authoritie of a parlement then affembled at London, to be levied through the whole The lord Ca= mois arreig=

The lord Camois was arreigned the last of Dataned sacquited ber , before Comund earle of Bent that date high Actuard of England, and by his pieres acquit of the offense, thereof he had beene indiaed (as before ye baue heard) and to dismissed at the barre, was resto. red againe both to his gods, lands, and offices. Alis years the winter was erceding sharps through frost and snow that continued a coursed the ground by all the moneths of December, Januarie, Februar rie, and Warch, informuch that thruthes, blackbirds, and manie thousand birds of the like smaller size, twentith of October began a parlement holden at Gloceffer, but removed to London as Chould ap-peare in Ponember; for (as we find) in that moneth this yeare 1-107, and ninth of this bings reigne, a fub.

perifice with verie cold and hunger.

The earle of the lord 25ars bolfe returne into Englad.

The earle of Porthumberland, and the lord Bar, 2 dolfe, after they had beene in Wales, in France and flanders, to purchase aid against king henrie, were returned backe into Scotland, and had remais ned there now for the space of a whole yeare: and as their cuill fortune would, whilest the king held a councell of the nobilitie at London, the faid earle of Porthumberland and lord Bardolfe, in a dismall houre, with a great power of Scots returned into England, recovering diverte of the earls caffels and feignfories, for the people in great numbers reforted unto them. Derebpon incouraged with hope of and fuccelle, they entred into Porkelhire, t there began to destroie the countrie. At their coming to Meelke, they published a proclamation, fignifieng that they were come in comfort of the English nation, as to reliene the common-wealth, willing all fuch as los ned the libertie of their countrie, to repaire buto them, with their armo; on their backes, and in defend fible wife to affift them.

The king advertised hereof, caused a great armie 40 to be affembled, and came forward with the fame to wards his enimies: but per the king came to Pos tingham, fir Thomas, 02 (as other copies have) Kafe Rokefbie thiriffe of Pozkethire, affembled the forces of the countrie to relift the earle and his power, comming to Grimbaut brigs , befide Unaresbourgh, there to from them the passage; but they returning a fide, got to Meatherbie, and fo to Ladcaffer, and fi nallie came forward unto Brambam more, nære to Haizelwoo, where they choic their ground meet to s fight bpon. The fhiriffe was as readie to give battell as the earle to receive it, and so with a francard of S. Deorge fpred, let fiercelie vpon the earle, who bider a frandard of his owne arms incountred his aduerfaries with great manhod. There was a fore incounter and crucil conflict betwirt the parties but in the end the viaozie fell to the thiriffe. The load Bardolfe was taken, but fore wounded, fo that he Mostlie after blod of the burts. As for the earle of Position berland, he was flathe outright: fothat 60 without from the pope, paiments of monie, and their securior was fulfilled. With agree as ink. now the prophetic was fulfilled, which gave an ink:

Abr. Fl. out of ling of this his heavie hap long before; namelie, Stirps Persitina periet confusa ruina.

For this carle was the focke and maine rot of all that were left aline called by the name of Perfie; and of manie more by dinerte flaughters dispatched. For whose missortune the people were not a little for rie, making report of the gentlemans valiantneffe, renotune, and honour, and applieng unto him certeine lamentable berles out of Lucane, fateng:

Sed nos nec sanguis, nec tantim vulnera nostri Affecere senis; quantum gestata per vrbem Ora ducis,qua transfixo deformie pilo Fidimus.

For his hear, full of Claer horie heares, being put voon a fake, was openlie carried through London, and fet boon the bridge of the same citie : in like maner was the load Bardolfes . The biftop of Bango: was taken and pardoned by the king, for that when he was apprehended, he had no armoz on his backe, This battell was fought the nintanth day of febre arie. The king to purge the Porth parts of all rebellion, and to take order for the punishment of those that were accused to have succoured and attisted the earle of Porthumberland, went to Porke, where then manie were condemned, and diverse put to great fines, and the countrie brought to quiet nesse, the caused the abbat of Pailes to be hanged, thousand him with the fore halo hange. faid carle.

In the beginning of Parch, the king sent & Checarles mund Holland earle of Bent with an armie of men kanting imbarked in certaine thips of warre unto the fea, bi, the fea cause he had knowledge that diverse rovers were wasting about the coasts of this land, and did much burt. When the earle had ferched the coasts, and could meet with no enimie abzode, he was advertised bye, spials, that the pirats hearing of his comming to fea, were withogatone into Britaine : wherefore the faid earle intending to be revenged on them, whome he fought, directed his course thither, and finding that they had laid by their thips in the hauens, to ashe could not fight with them by fea, he lanched out his Brinketin boates, and with his fierce louidiers toke land, and Biltaneal manfullie affaulted the towns of Bistike Kanding Englishman by the fea five. They within foutlie befended them. felues, dwing their best to repell the Englishmen, with theoling darts, calling frones, and flooting The could quarels; in which conflict the earle received a wound keminding in his head, to that he died thereof within fine daies to death.

The Englishmen not dismaied with his death, but Brinketakin the more delirous to obtaine their purpole, continue by four. ed their affaults, till by fine force they entered the towne, fet it on fire, and flue all that made reliffance; and after for want of a generall to command what Chould be done, they being peffered with picies and prifoners, returned into England. The countelle of Bent that was daughter (as pee have heard) to Bernabo viscont lord of Willaine, having no illue by hir hulband, was now moned by the king after hir husbands death, to marrie with his bastard bio ther the earle of Posfet, a man berie aged and cuill bilaged; where opon the miliking him, meant rather The comus to fatilite hir owne fantie, and therefore chole for hir beth hir out hulband henrie Bostimer, a gwolie ywng bacheller, choled bu by thom the had iffue a daughter named Anne, mar fccond hule ried to fir John Afobemond. This yeare, the nert daic after the feast daie of Harrie Pagdalen, in a councell holden at London a differentiable the cleargie, the doctors of the univertities of brewith Cambridge and Drenford being there, with the reft mines of Dr affembled, debated the matter, whether they ought to for a Comtheir accustomed obedience considering that contra- tothepopt rie to his word and promise so solemnlie made, and with an oth confirmed, he withdrew himselfe from the place where he (according to concnants) should have bene prefent, to advance an agreement and concord in the church. Tupon the even of the Patitic tic of our lable, there chanced fuch flouds through a bundance of raine, as the like had not bene fenea fore by ante man then living. Also about the featt of Anno Fes All faints, the carbinal of Burges came into Ong the still land, to informe the king and the cleargis of the in of South and the cleargis of the investment and the clear of the investment and the investment constant dealing of pope Gregorie, in like maner as England he had informed the French king and the French villato men, to the end that he might persuade both these popularies

1408

The fhiriffe of Policibire.

Dis bardie co. rage to fight.

The carle of 202thumber: land flainc.

Hypod.pag. 172.

An.Reg.11.

hings which were accounted the cheefe in challendome, to put buto their helping hands, that the fame pope Gregorie might be induced to oblerue and pers forme that oth, which he had received, to as by the rois all authoritie of those two kings, concord might be had in the church. The French king (as this caromall alleged) following the adulle of the learned men of the univertities of Paris, Bologna, Dileans, Tholoule, and Pontpellier, to avoid the danger of favour Ehrifdand ring ichiline, vetermined to obeie neither the one not 10 the other that contended for the papalie, untill peace and concord might be restored in Cyrises church. The hing understanding the purpose of the cardinall, thewed him what courtefie might be deuised, offering to beare his charges, fo long as it pleased him to remaine in England, and promiting him to confider abuiledlie of the matter. This yeare after the Cpithanie, the archbilhop of Tanturburie called the cleargie of the province of Toucation Canturburie to a connocation in Paules durch at 20 8 12 Paure London , to chofe lufficient perfons that might go buto the generall councell, appointed to be kept at Indiffadora diffa: hereupon were chofen Kobert Halom bishop Indunation of Salisburie, Penrie Chichleie bilhop of faint Daminicioun uid, i Thomas Chillingden prior of Christes church alatpla. in Canturburie. The king before this had fent am. balladors unto pope Gregorie, and also to the cardinals, to wit, fir John Coluill knight, and maiffer Ehremtents Richolas Mirton clearke, with letters, fignifieng the limistothe fell in the chissian common-wealth thorough the lithine; and withall putting the pope in remembrance what mischefe and destruction of people had danced by the fame schisme. These and the like matters, to otter what defire he had to have an unitie in the hurth, he declared frankelie in his letters directed to the pope, so as it might appears to the world, both soberlie and modestlie he sought to induce the pope to procure peace & concord in the church. Terteme collections of which letters (as I find them in 40 Thom, Walf. Thomas Walfingham) 3 have here fet bowne in com-Hypod, pag. mendation of this king to excellentlie minded.

An extract of the kings letter to pope Gregorie.

Of holie father, if the feat apollolicall would bouchfafe by providence to consider, how great dangers have invaded the whole books are a feat and the whole books are a feat a f

the whole world bnder the pretert of schisme, and speciallie the saughter of challian people, which is of about two hundred thousand (as it is an ouched) by the outrage of warres and battell sprong bp in fundice parts of the world; a now late= he to the number of thirtie thousand (by meanes of the distention about the bishop= tike of Leods betweene two, one contending buder the authoritie of true pope, and the other buder the title of antipape) flaine ma foughten field, whereof we make repost with græfe; trulie the faid feat would be pentiue in spirit, a with due sozow trous bled in mind, yea at the motion of a good conscience, it would rather give over the honour of that apoliolical leat, than luffer fuch detestable deeds further to be committed, binder the cloke of distinulation, taking example of the true and naturall mother, which pleading before king Salomon, chose eather to part with hir owne child, than to læ him cut in funder. And although by that new creation of nine cardis nals, against your oth (that we maie ble the words of others) made by you, wher= of a behement cause of wondering is risen, it maie in some fort be supposed (as it is likelie) that your intent respecteth not as nie end of schisme; yet farre be it alwaies from the world, that your circumspect seat chould be charged by anie person with so great inconstancie of mind, whereby the last errour might be counted worse than the first, ac.

An extract of the faid kings letter to the cardinals.

being delirous to thew how great zeale we had, Thaue, that peace might be granted Tgiven so the church by the consent of the states of our realme, have sent over our letters to our load the pope, according to the tenure of a copie inclosed within these presents effectuallie to be executed. Tuherefoze we dw earnestlie beseech the reverend college of you; that if happi= Executions greefe he had conceived for the inconvenience that 30 lie the said Gregozie be present at the generall councell holden at Pila, about the yælding by of the papalle, according to the promise and oth by him manie a time made, to fulfill your and our delires, as we with and beare our felues in hand he will dw; that you will so other things concer= ning his estate, that thereby God maie cheesie be pleased, and as well Gregozie himselfe, as we, who deserved ie do tender his honour and commoditie with all our harts, maie be beholden to give you and euerie of you manifold thanks.

This yeare certeine learned men in Orford and wicklifs doother places, publikelie in their fermons mainteined arine mains and let footh the opinions and conclusions of Wice teined by the bliffe. This troubled the bifhops and other of the clergie foze, informuch that in their convocation house, 50 the fir and twentith of June, by a special mandat of the load chancellos in prefence of the procurators, regents, and others, as Kichard Courtneie, Kichard Talbot, Picholas Zouch, Malter Pibloid, eluch like in great multitude: lentence was pronounced by John Wels, bodoz of the canon law against the Bentece ve boks of John Wickliffe doctor of divinitie, intituled nounced a De sermone in monte, Triologorum de simonia, De perfectio- gainst wicne statuum, De ordine christiano, De gradibus cleri ecclesia: and to these was added the third treatise, which he 60 compiled of logike or logitirie. These books and the conclusions in the same conteined, the chancellor of the univerlitie of Orford by common consent and affent of the reacuts and non regents of the fame bniuerlitie, reproved, difamulled and condemned, inhibiting on paine of the great curfle and depaination of all degrees scholasticall, that none from thences forth hould affirme, teach, or preach by anie many ner of meanes or wates, the fame hereticall boks (as they tearmed them) conteining anie the like opis nions as he taught and fet fouth in the fame boks.

This peare about Diolummer, were rotall tuffs Fabian. holden at London in Smithfield betwirt the fene Jufts in Chall of Peinault, and certeine Peneiwers challen. Smithueid. gers, and the earle of Summerlet, and certeine Eng-Fff.g. liftimen haner enteta great milerie.

Dwen Glen- liftmen defendants. The Welfh rebell Dwen Glenbouer made an end of his weethed life in this tenth peare of king Denrie his reigne, being dainen now in his latter time (as we find recorded) to such miscrie, that in manner despairing of all comfort, be fled into defert places and folitarie caues, where bes ing destitute of all relecte and succour, decading to thew his face to anie creature, and finallie lacking meat to fuffeine nature, for mere hunger and lacke of fod, miscrablie pinco awaie and died. This yeare 1 Thomas Beaufort carle of Surrie was made chancelloz, and Penric Scrope lozd treasuroz. A parles ment began this years in the quindene of faint His larie, in which the commons of the lower house erhi bited a bill to the king and loods of the opper house, conteining effect as followeth.

Anno Reg. 11. Dff:cera mabe. 1410 a partement.

A supplication to the king.

Tho.Walfi. Fabian.

O the most excellent lood our k. and to all the nobles in this present assembled, your faithfull commons dw humblie lignifie, that our souereigne lood the king might have of the temporall possessions, lands & renenues which are lewdie spent. consumed and wasted by the bishops, abbats, and priors, within this realme, fo much in value as would fuffice to find and 30 fusteine one hundred and fiftie earles, one thousand tive hundred knights, fir thous fand and two hundred efquiers, and one hundred hospitals more than now be.

Thom, Walf.

€(.:;;

The king (as some write) bpon adulled confiderat tion hereof hav, milliked of the motion, a therebpon commanded that from thenceforth they hould not prefume to finvic about anic luch matters. Another 40 beffels conteining pollon in them were kept in flore, again car thing the commons fued to have granted buto them, but could not obteme: which was, that clearles conniced hould not from thence fouth be delinered to the biliops prilon. Dorcover they demanded to have the Carnte cither revoked, or qualified, which had bone established by authoritie of parlement, in the fecond years of this kings reigns, against such as were reputed to be heretiks, or Lollards. By force thereof it was proutded, that therefoeuer fuch manner of persons thould be found and knowne to preach 50 or teach their erronious doarine, they Mould be attached with the kings wait, and brought to the next goale: but the king fæmed to highlie to favour the cleargie, that the commons were answered plaines lie, they flould not come by their purpose, but rather that the fair tratute thould be made more rigorous and tharpe for the punityment of fuch persons.

Ming Benrie a buozer of the clergie.

John Badbie burnt. Tho Walfi.

The prince being present at the execuinin pardon.

Motable con: Stancie of Wadbie.

During this parlement one John Babbie a tailor, or (as some write) a finith, being conust of herefie, was brought into Smithfield, and there in a tunoz 60 low metall (namelie gold) inhere with the youngman pipe burnt to death, in pitifull manner. The kings elbeft fonne the losd Penrie prince of Wales being prefent, offered him his pardon, first before the fire was kindled, if he would have recented his opinions; and after when the fire was kindled, hearing him make a rozing note verie pitifullie, the prince caused the fire to be plucked backe, and erhorting him being with pitifull paine almost dead, to remember himselfe, and renounce his opinions, promiting him not onclie life, but also them pence a date so long as he lined to be paid out of the kings coffers : but he having recovered his spirits againe, refused the princes offer, choling efflones to tast the fire, and so to die, than to forfake his opinions. Where byon the prince commanded, that he thould be put into the tun againe, from thenceforth not to have axie fas nour or pardon at all, and fo it was done, and the fire put to him againe, and he confumed to affice.

The king demanded in this parlement, that it The king might be granted to him, to have everte yeare in demand in which he held no parlement a tenth of the cleargie, the parle and a fifteenth of the laitie; but the estates would not ment agree thereunto, by reason whereof, the parlement 3 long is continued till almost the middle of Baie. At length me they granted to give him a fifteenth, not without 3 sham great murmuring and grudging of the commonal, Branco, tie. About this feason died the lood Ahomas Beaus Catle of food earle of Surrie. The eleventh of Appill on there Surrech abouts, the towne of faint Dmers was burnt by car cealleth. fuall fire togither with the abbeie, in which towns was such strange and maruellous provision of engines, and all manner of furniture and preparation Preparation for the winning of Talis, as the like had never made to be 20 beene leene not heard of . Some write, that they of Calis. Calis franding in doubt of luch purueiance, & great preparation beuiled to annote them, procured a pong man to kindle a fire, thereby all that dread full provision was consumed to aspes, and so they within Calis delinered of a great deale of care and feare which they had thereof.

I But Tho. Walfingham maketh a full & complet declaration both concerning the dukes device, sailo of the Caletians delinerance from the danger of the fame; which because it perfecteth the report of this profent matter, I have thought goo to fet downe word for word as I find it in his Hypodigme. About the Abr. Fl. out ninth of Aprill (faith he) the towns of faint Audo Thom W. mare was burned with the abbeie, wherein was hid. Hypod. pag. den and late up the execrable prouttion of the duke of 175. Burgognie, who had volved either to destrois the tolone of Calis, or else to subone it to the will and pleasure of the French. Alere a great mante engines of the wind to this date no there seeme, there an exceeding sort and the wind the control of the control which he had aforehand provided to cast out to the des that shot cast Arragion of the fait towne. For he had gathered to barrels of parties of the fait towner. gither ferpents, scoopions, todes, and other kinds of benemous things, which he had closed and that up in little barrels, that when the flesh or substance of those notiome creatures was rotten, and diffolued into file thic matter, he might laie Gege to Talis, and call the faid barrels let out of engines into the towne; which with the violence of the throw being batht in pieces, might choke them that were within, poison the harnelled men touched therewith, a with their leattered benent infect all the freets, lanes, & pallages of the towne. In the meane time, a certeine young man ab lured with conetoninelle of gold, or lead with affect tion and love towards the kings towne, alked of the governours what reward he should descrue, that would discharge and set fre the towne from lo great a feare, and would burne all the prouttion which they suspected. Derebpon they levied a summe of that yel-ther with the movasferic almost the whole towns. Moreover this years fir krobert Amfreuill vice hir soon abincrall of England, annoted the countries on the Control fea coasts of Scotland : for comming into the forth with ten thips of warre, and lieng there fourteene dates togither, he landed cuerte date on the one fide pis m of the river or the other, taking prefes, spoiles tpats scotors foners; notwithstanding the buke of Albanie, and the earle Dowglas were readie there, with a great power to read him: he burnt the galliot of Scotland (being a thip of great account) with manie off er bef contented, went his waie, and with fire reading made for the purpole, did not onclie burne the faid benemous matter and infected Auffe, but also togi-

An. Reg. 11, 12, 13.

fels lieng the fame time at the Blackeneth ouer as gainst Lieth. At his returne from thence, he brought with him fourteene good thips, and manie other great pules of cloathes, both wollen, and linnen, pitch, panes of control panes, meale, wheat and rie, which bes ing fold abroad, the markets were well holpen thereby, fo that his furname of Robert Pendmarket fees med verie well to agræ with his qualities, which ig:ntmar: name he got by this occasion.

About foure years before this, he burnt the towne of Poples on the market date, cauling his men to meat the cloathes which they got there with their s, what or bowes to to fell them awaie, where byon the Scots ki won und him Kobert Pendmarket. Shortlie after his returne from the sea now in this eleventh years of hing Penrics reigne, he made a road into Scotland byland, hauing with him his nechue yong Gilbert Amfreuill earle of Angus (commonlie called earle ancient of laime) being then but fourtone yeares of age, and this was the first time that the faid earle spread his 20 banner. They burnt at that time Jedworth, and the is called erie most part of Tinivale. This yeare there died of the bloudie fir in the citie of Burdeaux fourteene thouagnat death fand perfons, and to foze raged that difeafe in Bafcoigne and Guien, that there wanted people to drelle their pines, and preffe their grapes.

John Prendergeft knight, William Long fcolw red the leas, fo as no pirat durft appeare, but that merchants a pallengers might palle to & fro in fales tie. But pet through distaine of some that enuied 30 their god luccelle, the fame Pendergelt and Long were accused of robberies which they thould practife. in woling such thips as they met with, of diverse things against the owners wils. Prendergest was binen to take fanduarie at Meliminfter, and could not be fuffered to lodge in anie mans house for feare of the kings displeasure, commanding that none thould receive him, and to was confireined to fet by atent within the porty of faint Peters church there, him for doubt to be murthered of his adversaries: but his affociat William Long laie Mill at the fea, till the load admicrall having paepared certeine bel fels went to the fea himfelfe in person to fetch him: but yet he could not catch him untill be had promifed himpardon, and undertaken upon his fidelitie that he hould have no harme; but notwith francing all promises, bpon his comming in he was thut bp fall in the Tower, and so for a time remained in du The archbis rance. The archbishop of Tanturburie minding in 59 and Can: this featon to visit the universitie of Drenford, could tarbarre not fatred to befire not be luffered, in confideration of pruileges which the binimerlitie they pretended to have.

The realme of France in this meane wife was disquieted, with the two factions of Burgognie and Dileance, in most miserable wife, as in the French biliozies it maie further appeare. Peither could the king, being a lunatike person, and fæble of braine, take any full order for reforming of fuch milchefs, so that the whole state of the hingdome was maruel 60 loudic brought in occase: neither twke those troubles throbest end by the death of the duke of Dyleance (murthered at length through the practife of the duke of Burgognie) but rather moze periloullie increased. For the rong duke of Dileance Charles, sonne to duke Lewes thus murthered, alied himselfe with the dukes of Berrie and Burbon, and with the carles of Alan fon a Arminacke, whereby he was fo Aronglie banded against the duke of Burgognie, whom he defied as his mortall fo and enimie, that the duke of Bur-lognic fearing the sequele of the matter, thought god (because there was a motion of mariage betwirt the prince of Wales & his daughter) to require atd of hing Henrie, who forelæing that this civill discord in France (as it after hapned) might turne his realme to honoz and profit, fent to the ouke of Burgognie, Thomas earle of Arundell, Bilbert Umfreuill earle of Angus (commonlie called the earle of Mime) fir Arandell and Kobert Amfreuill, bucle to the fame Bilbert, fir others fent to John Dlocaffell loed Cobham, fir John Breie, and aid the buke William Porter, with twelve hundred archers.

They toke thipping at Douer, & landed at Bluis, gnie. from whence with specie cournies in the latter end of this twelfth yeare of king Henries reigne they came to Arras, there they found the duke of Burgognie, of whom they were totfullie received, & from thence he appointed them to go binto Peron, where he affembled a power also of his owne subjects, and remoung from thence, he marched through the countrie, by Koie Bretneill, Beaucis, and Gilors, till he came with his armie buto Pontois, where he remais nev about the space of the weeks. From Pontois Anno Reg. 13. the two and twentith of Daober, the duke of Burgo. gnie marched towards Paris, and palling the river of Saine at Pont Peulene, he Caio not till he came to Paris, into the which he entred the 23 of Daober, late in the evening. The duke of Dileance laic at the same time at faint Denis, with the moze part of his armie, & the relique kept the towne of $. Clou, tibere a bridge laie ouer the riuer of Saine. On the Saint Clou 9 of Pouember, with hard tharpe fight the Eng, taken by the lifthmen gat the towne of faint Clou, with the bridge, flue a drowned nine hundred fouldiors that were fet there to defend that pallage, belides 400 that were taken prisoners . They toke also aboue 12 hundred bottes, which they found in the tolune, with great ris thes, thereof the men of warre made their profit. Among other paloners, lir Manlero de Bosa bas liant capteine was taken, and Mortlie after put to fero de 1808 beath, as diverte other were, which the Burgognians put to beath, bought of the Englishmen that had taken them prifoners. The tower that floo at the end of the betoge could not be wone. At another bickering also, it and to have his feruants to watch nightlie about 40 chanced that the Englishmen, boder the leaving of Harding. the earle of Angus or Lime, had the oper hand, and toke manie piloners, whom the duke of Burgognie would that they should have beene likewise put to death as traitoes to their countrie, but the faid earle of Angus answered for himselfe, and the residue of the Englishmen, that they would rather die all in the place, than luffer their prisoners to be bled other= wife than as men of war ought to be, that is, to have their lives faued, and to be ransomed according as the law of armes required, and by that meanes they > morlo at will (for the duke of Drleance immediatlie after the losse of faint Clou, departing from faint Denis, got him into the high countries) fent home the Englithmen with hartie thanks, and great res > ivere preferred. The duke of Burgognie having the

This yeare, the king created his brother Ahomas Recor. Turris. Beauford earle of Dorfet and his fonne the lord Tho. Creations of mas of Lancaster, that was lood fleward of Eng. land, and earle of Aubemarle, he created duke of Clarence. John duke of Burgognie, having now the Hall. governance both of the French king and his relme, to perfecuted the duke of Deleance and his complie The Deleans ces, that finallie they for their last refuge required ato tiall factio fuof king Pentie, sending ouer buto him certains persent of England sons as their lawfull procurators (of the which one for aid. was called Albert Aubemont, a man of great wit, learning, audacitie) to offer in name of the confedes rates unto the fato king Henrie and to his fonnes, certeine conditions, which were made and concluded the yeare of our Lord 1412, the eight of Paie. The names of the chiefe confederats were thefe, John Che confedes duke of Berrie and earle of Poictou, Charles duke of Deleance, and Talois erle of Blois, and Beaumont faction. fff.it. laza

The earles of Angus With of 2Burgo:

Englifhmen.

Sir Man=

Drenfoja

lord of Coucie and Ach, John duke of Bourbon, and Annergne earle of Clearmont fogeff, and Life logo of Beauten, and Caffeau Chinon, John duke of A. lanson, Barnard earle of Arminacke, and others. The effect of the articles which these confederats were agreed, ppontouching their offer to the king of England, were as followeth.

The articles of couenants which they offered to the king of England.

Irst, they offered their bodies, finances, uplands, to serve the king of England, bis heires, and successors, in all sust causes and actions, saving alwaies their allegiance, knowing that he would not further inquire 2 Secondlic, they offered their fonnes and daughs

ters, nices and nephucs, and all other their kins folks to be bestowed in marriages according to the 20 pleasure of the king of England. 3 Thirdie, they offered their castels, townes, treas fures, all their other goos, to ferue the forfaid king.

4 Fourthlie, they offered their freends, alies, and well-willers to ferue him, being the most part of all the nobles of France, churchmen, clearnes, and ho nest citizens, as it should well appeare.

5 Fittlie, they offered to put him in pollellion of the duchie of Bulen, which they were readie to protest to belong unto the king of England, in like and 30 femblable wife, in libertie and franchiles, as any o ther king of England his predecessor had held and intoted the fame.

6 Sixtlie, that they would be readie to recognife the lands which they possessed within that duchie, to holo the same of the king of England, as of the verie true duke of Buien, promiting all feruices and hos mages after the best maner that might be. 7 Secuenthlie, they promised to deliner buto the king, as much as late in them, all townes and caffels 40 to the towne of faint Quintines, as one that never apperteining to the rotaltie and feigniozie of the king of England, which are in number twentie townes and castels: and as to the regard of other townes a fortrelles which were not in their hands, they would to the ottermost of their powers, helpe the king of England and his heires to win them out of his aduerfaries bands.

8 Eightlie, that the duke of Werrie, as vallall to the king of England, and likewife the buke of Dales ance his fubica and vallall, Choulo holo of him by hor 50 mage and fealtie, the lands and feigniories hereafter following, that is to faic; the duke of Werrie to hold onelie the countie of Ponthieu during his life, and the duke of Delcance to held the countie of Angulesine during his life, and the countie of Perigourt for ener, and the earle of Arminacke to hold foure cafels opon certeine fuerties and conditions, as by indenture thould be amointed. For the which offers, co. uchants and agreements, they requested of the king of England to condescend unto these conditions in 60 burges of that five towards Dun le Roie. The fiege

The conditions which they reque-fled of the king of England.

3rth, that the king of England, as duke of Guien thould defend and fuccos them as he ought to do, against all men, as their veric lord and fourreigne, and speciallie butil they had ere cuted inflice fullie upon the duke of Burgognie, for the crime which he committed byon the person of the duke of Deleance.

2 Secondic, that he thould affilf them against the faid buke of Burgognie and his fautoes, to recouer againe their gods, which by occasion of the faid duke and his frænds they had loft and beene deprined of.

Thirdlie, that he thould like wife aid them in all inst quarels, for recovering of damages done to their frænds, vallals and fubicas.

4 Fourthlie, to helpe and affilt them for the concluding and establishing of a firme peace betwirt both the realmes, to far as was pollible. And further they belonght the king of England to fend buto them eight thousand men, to aid them against the duke of Burgognie and his complices, which dailin procured the Frenchking to make war byon them, feeking by all wates i meanes how to defrote them.

The king of England louinglie interteined the mellengers, and byon confideration had of their of fers, as well for that he detelled the Chamefull murther of the duke of Deleance (which remained brough nifed by support of such as mainteined the duke of Burgognie, who (as it appeared) would keepe promife no longer than served his owne turne) as also for that the same offers femed to make greatlie both for his honoz and profit, thought that by the office of a king he was bound in dutie to fuccour them that cried for inflice, and could not have it; and namelie fith in right they were his lubicas and vallals, he ought to defend them in maintenance of his superioritie and feigniorie. Herebpon as bake of Guien, be twice Chebings boon him to succes and defend them against all men, England as their verie losd and sourceigne, and so sending a barb both wate the medengers, promifed to fend them aid be to befind the rie Mortlie.

This feat was not fo fecretlie wrought, but that it was knowne freightwaies in France. Where fore the French kings councell lent the carle of faint Paule downe into Picardie, with fiffene hunder Thrested horsemen, and a great number of formen, who ap faint Bank proching to Builnes, attempted to affault the castell, assault in but was repelled and beaten backe, so that he retired talkild or to the towns of faint Duintings, as one that rouse wan gaine at the Englishmens hands, but euer des this fontun parted from them with lotte and diffionoz. In this against En meane feason the French king being led by the duke lishmen, of Burgognie, purfued them that take part with the buke of Deleance, commonlie called Arminacks, and after the winning of diverle townes he belieged the citie of Burges in Berrie, comming before it bpon faturdate the elementh of June, with a right huge armie. Within this citie were the dukes of Berrie and Bourbon, the earle of Aurerre, the load Dalbeet, the archbishops of Sens and Burges, the bishops of Paris and Chartres, having with them fiftene hundzed armed men, and foure hundzed are thers and arcubalifiers. There were with the king at this Gege, his sonne the duke of Aquitane, otherwise called the Dolphin, the dukes of Burgognie and Bar, and a great num ber of other earles, loads, knights, and gentlemen; lo that the citie was belieged even till within the faur continued, till at length through mediation of Adili bert de Lignac, loed great maister of the Khodes, and the marthall of Sauoie, that were both in the kings campe, trauelling betwirt the parties, there lvere appointed commissioners on both sides to treat for peace, to wit the matter of the crosbowes, and the fenchall of Beinalt, and certeine other for the king; and the archbishop of Burges, with the lood of Gaw court & others for the Dalientiall fide. Thefe coming 3 pett togither on a fridaic, the fifteenth of Julie in the Dol chall the they concluded a peace of on the Normalization north they concluded a peace, to on the mednefoate next 2017000000 following, the campe brake op, & the king returned. Dikamin

Thilest these things were a doing in France, the

An.Reg.13. Copunct of loss henrie prince of Wales, eldeft sonne to king Benrie got knowledge that certeine of his fathers grands were bulie to give informations against him, ihereby discord might arise betwirt him and his father: for they put into the kings head, not ones lie what cuill rule (according to the course of youth) the pitace kept to the offence of manic: but also what great refort of people came to his house, so that the court was nothing furnished with such a traine as dallie followed the prince . These tales brought no ro finall suspicion into the kings head, least his some edising to would prefume to blurpe the crowne, he being yet alive, through which suspicious gelouse, it was perrefued that he favoured not his sonne, as in times pall he had done.

The Prince love offended with luch persons, as by flanderous reports, fought not onelie to fpot his god name absode in the realme, but to fowe discoso allo betwirthim and his father, wrote his letters into enerie part of the realme, to reprove all such san 20 derous devices of those that lought his discredit. And to cleare himselfe the better , that the woold might understand what wrong he had to be Candered in fuch wife : about the featt of Peter and Paule, to wit, the nine and twentith daie of June, he came to the court with such a number of noble men and other his frends that wither him well, as the like traine had beine fildome fæne repairing to the court at any one time in those dates . De was apparelled in a gowne of blew fatten, full of finall oilet holes, at e 30 uerie hole the nædle hanging by a filke thred with which it was fewed. About his arme he ware an bounds collar fet full of SS of gold, and the tirets inhetwife being of the fame metall.

Ehr prince

citattraint.

his Arange

epparell,

The court was then at Westminster, where he being entred into the hall, not one of his companic durff once advance himfelfe further than the fire in the same hall, notwithstanding they were earnesslie requested by the loads to come higher: but they regarding what they had in commandement of the 40 pince would not prefume to do in any thing contrarie therebuto. He himselse onelie accompanied with those of the kings house, was streight admitted to the presence of the king his father, who being at that time grauouslie diseased, pet caused himselse in his thaire to be borne into his privile chamber, where in the presence of their or foure persons, in whome he had most confidence, he commanded the prince to incition the thew what he had to fair concerning the cause of his kingapielēce, comming.

howards to The prince knieling downe before his father faid: Post recombted and souereigne lood and father, I am at this time come to your prefence as your liege ce man, and as your natural sonne, in all things to be at your commandement. And where I binderstand cc youhave in suspicion my demeanour against your grace, you know berie well, that if I knew any man " within this realine, of whome you thould frand in feare, my ductie were to punish that person, thereby to remove that greefe from your heart. Then how 60 ce much more ought I to lufter death, to case your grace of that greefe which you have of me, being your natu cc rall sonne and liege man: and to that end I have this date made my felfe readie by confession and re-" ceining of the facrament . And therefore I belech you most redoubted load and deare father, for the ho. nour of Sod, to case your heart of all such suspicion ce as you have of me, and to dispatch me here before pour knæs, with this fame dagger [and withall he delinered unto the king his dagger, in all humble relierence; adding further, that his life was not fo beare to him, that he withed to live one date with his dipleasure and therefore in thus ridding me out of et life, and your felfs from all fulpicion, here in prefence of these loads, and before God at the date of the gene, rall indgement, I faithfullie protest clearlie to for

The king moved herewith, cast from him the dagger, and imbracing the prince killed him, and with prince his fest Medding teares confessed, that in deed he had him partlie in suspicion, though now (as he perceived) not with inst cause, and therefore from thenceforth no mifreport thould cause him to have him in mittrust, and this he promifed of his honour. So by his great intledome was the wrongfull suspicion which his father had conceived against him removed, and he restozed to his fauour. And further, where he could not but greenouflie complaine of them that had flanbered him fogreatlie, to the defacing not onelie of his honoz, but also putting him in danger of his life, he humblie belought the king that they might an have his occufiver their uniust accusation; and in case they were for to answer found to have forged such matters boon a malicious their wrongful purpole, that then they might fuffer some punity ment for their faults, though not to the full of that they had descrued. The king seming to grant his rofonable defire, vet told him that he must tarric a parlement, that such offendors might be punished by inogement of their peres : and fo for that time be was dismissed, with great love and signes of fathers

Abr.Fl. out of twirt whom the faid pickthanks had folione division, Angl. pratigio infomuch that the fonne upon a vehement conceit of bukindnesse sprong in the father, was in the wate to be worne out of favour. Which was the more like: lie to come to passe, by their informations that printlie charged him with riot and other uncivill demeas nor unfémelie for a prince. Indeed be was pouthfullie given, growne to andacitie, and had chosen him companions agréable to his age; with whome he fpent the time in fuch recreations, exercises, and delights as he fancied. But vet (it thould feeme by the report of some writers) that his behaviour was not offentiue or at least tending to the damage of anie bodie : lith he had a care to anoto doing of wong, and to tedder his affections within the tract of vertue, whereby he opened buto himselfe a redie passage of goo liking among the prodent lost, and was beloved of fuch as could discerne his disposition, which was in no degree fo erceffine, as that he deferued in fuch behement maner to be suspected. In whose dispraise I find little, but to his praise verie much, parcell whereof I will deliver by the wate as a metyard. whereby the relidue may be measured. The late poet that vertified the warres of the valozous English: men, speaking of the idue of Henrie the fourth, faith of this prince (among other things) as followeth:

-procero qui natu maximus hæres Corpore, progressius cum pubertatis ad annos Esset, res gessit multas inneniliter audax, Asciscens comites quospar sibi iunxerat atas, Nil tamen iniustè commisit, nil tamen vnquam Extra virtutis normam, sapientibus æquè A e aliis charus.

About the same time, John Prendergest knight, Prendergest being restozed to the kings favour, with thirtie thips restozed to the scowed the leas, toke god priles of wine and vitels, kings favour which released the commons greatlie. Amongst o. is fent to sea, ther enterpises, he landed byon the sudden at Craal on the faire day, toke the towne, and robbed the faire, fo as they that were come thither to fell their wares. had quicke biterance and flow paiment. King Henrie binderstanding that the French king by setting on of the duke of Burgognie in purlaing the contrarie faction, had belieged the citie of Burges (as before per have heard) determined with all speed to aid the to aid & duke duke of Dileance, to about the feast of the Assump of Dileance.

The kings words to the

The princes renueft to

In Angl. grælijs sub Hen.4.

The buke of Clarence fens

tion of our ladie, he fent ouer an armie of eight hundied men of armes, and nine thouland archers, binder the leaving of his fecond some the duke of Clarence accompanied with Edward duke of Poske, Mo. mas carle of Doefet, and dincree other noble men and worthic capteins. They landed in the Baie de la Hogue faint Maft, in the countrie of Conffantine. The Englishmen swarmed like bes round about the countrie, robbing and spoiling the same.

Enguerant.

The earle of Flanfon and of Clarence.

Richmond

they landed, there came to them fir hundred armed men of Galcoignes that were involled at Burdeaur. When newes thereof came to the French court, being then at Auxerre, incontinentlie the earles of A lanson and Richmond were dispatched to go buto the English campe, bicause they had euer beine parfent tof duke takers with the duke of Deleance , to give them thanks for their paines, and to advertise them of the peace that had bone latelie concluded betwirt the parties, and therefore to take order with them, that 20 they might be fatisfied, so as they should not spoile waste the countrie, as they had begun. But where, as the Englishmen were greedie to have, and the buke of Delemice was not rich to paie, they marched Clarence mar on towards Guien in good order, and that by face king of townes, and randoming of rich piloners, they got great treasure, and manie gwo preces and cheth toward

Enguerant.

The load of Ramburco.

Rent & War= Soike fent 9: uer to Calig.

Fabian. Coine chan= ged.

Fabian pag. 388. Ehree flods without cb: bing between.

Abr. Fl. out of R.Grafton. pag.433,434. infolio.

whitington college c: reated,

Charitie.

Mewgate buildeb.

boties. Being passed the riner of Loire they spoiled the towns of Beaulieu, and with fire and swood walked 3 the countries of Douraine and Paine. The load de Mambures amointed to relift fuch violence, was ear filte vanguished. Pozeoner, to the aid of the duke of Deleance, the king of England fent ouer to Calis the earls of Bent and Warwike, with two thousand fighting men, which spoiled and wasted the countrie of Bullennois, burnt the towne of Samer de Bois, and take with all ault the fortrelle of Kullalt, and dis uerfe other. This yeare, the king abased the coines of his gold and filuer, cauting the fame to be current in 49 this realine, at fuch value as the other was valued before, where indeed the noble was worke by foure pence than the former, and fo like wife of the filuer, the coines whereof he appointed to be currant after Abr. Fl. out of the same rate, In this yeare, and byon the twelfth day of Dadber, were the flouds in the Thames, the one following byon the other, no ebbing betwene: which thing no man then living could remember the like to be fæne.

In this kings time, and in the eighth yeare of his 50 reigne (as Richard Grafton hath recorded)a worthie citizen of London named Richard Whitington. mercer and alberman, was elected maioz of the faid citie, and bare that office the times. This man fo beflowed his gods and subfrance, that he bath well de. ferued to be registred in chaonicles. First he erected one house or church in London to be a house of prater, and named the same after his owne name, Whis tington college, remaining at this daie. In the faid church, belides certeine picels and clearks, he placed 60 a number of pose aged men and women, builded for them boules and longings, and allowed them lund coles, cloth, and wakelie monie to their great relæfe and comfort. This man also at his owne cost builded the gate of London called Dewgate in the vere of our Lord 1422, which before was a most our lie and lothfome prison. We also builded more than the 20. Darrigotos halfe of S. Bartholomcius hospitall in west Smithe field. De builded like wife the beautifull librarie in the graie friers in London now called Christs hospitall. standing in the north part of the clotsfer thereof. where in the wall his armes be graven in Fone. He also builded for the case of the maior of London, his bacthaen, and the woathipfull citizens, on the folemne

 $\mathcal{A}n.\mathcal{D}_{om.141}$ dates of their affemblie, a chapell adjoining to the Guidal Guilbhall ; to the intent that before they entered in thank to anie of their worldlie affaires, they thould begin with praier and innocation to God for his affiliance: at the end foining to the fouth part of the faib chapell, he builded for the citie a librarie of Cone, for the custodie of their records and other bokes. He allo Guilti builded a great part of the east end of Guildhall;and marge did manie other good deeds worthic of imitation. 13p Shortlic after their departure from the place where 10 a writing of this mans owne hand, twich he willed to be fired as a schedule to his last will and testament, it appeareth what a pitifull and relenting heart he had at other mens mileries, and did not onelie with but also did what he could procure for their releefe. In fo much that he charged and commanded his crecutors, as they would answer before God at the daie of the refurrection of all field, that if they found anie debtoz of his, whome if in conscience they thought not to be well worth three times as much as they owght him, and also out of other mens bebt, and well able to paie, that then they Chould never demand it; for he clearcite forgane it: and that they Chould put no man in fate for ante debt due to him. A worthie memoriall of a notable minded gentle, man.

De have heard how the duke of Clarence and his Anno Rest. armie did much hurt in the realme of France, in places as he palled: inherespon at length, the duke of Thedukid Deleance being earnesiste called boon to dispatch Deleaned the Englishmen out of France, according to an are mentioned ticle compassed in the conclusion of the peace, he came to the duke of Clarence, rendering to him and his armie a thouland gramerlies, and disbursed to them as much monie as he or his frænds might eaff lie spare; and for the rest being two hundred and nine thousand frankes remaining bupaid, he delivered in gage his fecond brother, John duke of Angolesme, which was grandfather to king Francis the first, that reigned in our daies, fir Marcell de Burges, and fir John de Samoures, fir Archembald Tiliers, and die nerse other, which earle continued long in England. as after thail appeare. When this agreement was thus made betwirt the dukes of Dileance and Clarence, the English armie with rich preies, botics and puloners came to Burdeaur, making warre on the frontiers of France, to their great gaine . In this Theind meane while, the lood of Welie, one of the marthals of France, with an armie of foure thouland men, belie, of france, ged a certeine fortrette in Buten, which an English knight, one fir John Blunt kept, who with the bun bir Tohn died men that came to his aid, discomfited, chased, Biunt and overtheen the French power, twie prisoners twelve men of name, and other gentlemen to the number of fir score, and amongst other, the faid mare thall, tho was fent over into England, and put in the castell of Willebet, from whence he escaped, amp gol ouer into France, where ferning the duke of Dile ance at the battell of Agincort, be was flaine among

In this fourteenth and last years of king Denries Fabian.
Treigne, a councell was holden in the white friers in to hairmal London, at the which, among other things, order was a fourne a taken for thips and gallies to be builded and made gains in readic, and all other things necessarie to be provided Indials. for a votage which he meant to make into the holie land, there to recover the citie of Jerufalem from the Infidels. For it greened him to confider the great malice of chailitan painces, that were bent boon a milchefous purpole to deffroie one another, to the perill of their owne foules, rather than to make war against the enimics of the chaissian faith, as in con-Science (it fæmed to him)they were bound . He beld Chi his Chailimas this yeare at Eltham, being foge ber, bertown ed with sicknesse, so that it was thought sometime, setnisse.

In.Reg.14. hathehan beene dead : norwithstanding it pleased Coo that he somuhat recovered his Arength againe, and to patted that Chairmatic with as much toy as

The morrow after Candlemas daie began a parhe might. lement, which he had called at London, but he depart ted this life before the fame parlement was ended: for now that his provisions were readic, and that he was furnithed with sufficient treasure, soldiers, caps teins, bittels, munitions, tall thips, frong gallies, 1 and all things necessarie for such a rotal sournie as he pietended to take into the holic land, he was efffonce taken with a fore ficknesse, which was not a les thath of profic, friken by the hand of God (faith maiffer Hall) as folish friers imagined; but a verie apoplerie, of the which languished till his amointed houre, and had none other grafe no: maladie; fo that what manoze beineth, God altereth at his god will and pleasure, not giving place more to the prince, than to the poreff creature liuing, when he feeth his time to dispose 20 of him this wate or that , as to his omnipotent pow, er and binine providence fæmetherpedient . During this his last ficknesse, he caused his crowne (as some write) to be fet on a pillow at his beds head, and fuddenlichis pangs to fore troubled him, that he late as though all his vitall spirits had beene from him beparted. Such as were about him, thinking verelie that he had beene departed, couered his face with a tered into the chamber toke awaie the crowne, and ocparted The father being suddenlie revived out of that trance, quicklie perceived the lacke of his crowne; and having knowledge that the prince his fonne had taken it awaie, caufed him to come before his presence, requiring of him what he meant so to milate himfelfe. The prince with a good audacitie ans forced; Dir, to mine and all mens judgements pou " famed dead in this world, wherefore I as your next value conspours. Whell faire sonne (said the king with a great moner: ligh what right 3 had to it, God knoweth. Well (faid thepetice) if you die king, I will have the garland, lituric pins and trust to keepe it with the swood against all mine a cumies, as you have done. Then faid the king, 3 commit all to God, and remember you to do well. Extended With that he turned himselfe in his bed, and thoutlie after departed to God in a chamber of the abbats of Wellminster called Jerusalem, the twentith daie of Parch, in the yeare 1413, and in the yeare of his age 50 46, when he had reigned thirteene yeares, fine moneths and od vaies, in great perpleritie and little pleasure [or fouretiene yeares, as some have noted, who name not the difease thereof he died, but refer it to ficknesse absolutelie, whereby his time of departure did approach and fetch him out of the world: as Ch.Okl. faith, those words may ferue as a funerall epigramme in memoziall of the faid king Henrie:

giodu 112

Henricus quartus bis septem rexerat annos Anglorum gentem fumma cum laude 🖝 amore, lang senescenti fatalis terminus æui

Ingruerat, morbus fatalem accerferat horam.

We find, that he was taken with his last sicke, nest, while he was making his praires at faint Cowards theine, there as it were to take his leave, and fo to proceed forth on his tournie: he was so sudden, lie and greenouslie taken, that such as were about him, scared least he would have died presentlie, where fore to relative him (if it were possible) they bare him tito a chamber that was next at hand, belonging to the abbat of Wellminster, where they last him on a pallet before the fire, and vied all remedies to revine him. At length, he reconered his speech, and binder Nanding and perceiving himselfe in a Arange place which he knew not, he willed to know if the chamber had anic particular name, therebuto answer was made, that it was called Jerufalem. Then faid the 22 king; Lauds be given to the father of heaven, for now I know that I thall die here in this chamber, according to the propertie of me declared, that 3 ,2 thould depart this life in Jerufalem.

Whether this was true that so be spake, as one that gave to much credit to folich propheces 4 vaine tales, or whether it was fained, as in such cases it commonlie happeneth, we leave it to the aduled reas der to judge. Dis bodie with all funerall pompe was De is butico conveied onto Canturburie, and there folemnlie bus at Canturbus ried, leaving behind him by the ladie Parie daugh. Tie. ter to the lood Humfrie Wohun earle of Hereford this idus. and Posthbampton, Penrie prince of Wales, Thomas duke of Clarence, John duke of Bedford, Humfrie duke of Bloceller, Blanch duchelle of Bauter, and Philipqueene of Denmarke: by his last wife Jane, he had no children. This king was of a meane bis daturs, ffature, well proportioned, and formallie compact, quicke and livelie, and of a front courage. In his latter daies he thewed himfelfe fo gentle, that he gat more love amongst the nobles and people of this realme, than he had purchased malice and euil! will in the beginning.

But pet to speake a truth, by his proceedings, after he had atteined to the crowne, what with such tares, tallages, sublidies, and cracions as he was The prince his sonne being hereof aduertised, en, 30 constrained to charge the people with; and wat by punithing such as moved with discerne to see him be furpe the crowne (contrarie to the oth taken at his entring into this land, bpon his returne from crile) bid at fundzie times rebell against him, be wan himfelfe moze hatred, than in all his life time (if it had bene longer by mante yeares than it was) had bene possible for him to have weded out a removed. And yet doubtlesse, worthis were his subjects to talk of that bitter cup, fithens they were fo readie to ioine cohere aparant twhe that as mine owne, and not as 40 and clame hands with him, for the depoling of their rightfull and naturall prince king Richard, those thefe fault rested onlie in that, that he was to boun tifull to his freenos, and to mercifull to his foes; fpe ciallie if he had not beene drawne by others, to læke revenge of those that abused his god and courteous nature. Wut now to returne to the matter prefent. The duke of Clarence immediatlie bpon knowlege had of his father king Henrie the fourth his death, returned out of Buten into England, with the carle of Angolesine, and other prisoners.

Pow will we rehearle what writers of our Enge lish nation lined in the daies of this king . That renowmed voet Beffrie Chaucer is worthilie named as principall, a man fo erquititlic learned in all friences, that his match was not lightlie found any where in those daies; and for reducing our English twng to a perfect conformitie, he hath excelled therein all of ther; he departed this life about the yeare of our Lord Iolia Store. 1402, as Bale gathereth: but byother it appeareth, 60 that he occeased the five and twentith of Daober in the yeare 1400, and lieth buried at Wickminstex, in the fouth part of the great thurth there, as by a mov nument erected by Picholas Bigham it doth ap peare. John Bolver descended of that worthie famis lie of the Cowers of Stitenham in Porkethire (as Leland noteth) Audies not onclie the common lawes of this realme, but also other kinds of literature, and great knowledge in the fame, namelie in poeticall inventions, applieng his indenor with Chaucer, to garnich the English tong, in bringing it from a rude buperfectuelle, buto a more apt elegancie: for where: as before those daies, the learned bled to write onelis in Latine or French, and not in English, our tong remained verie barren, rude, and buperfea; but now by the diligent industrie of Chaucer and Gower, it was within a wile greatlie amended, foas it grew not onelie verie rich and plentifull in woods, but also fo proper and apt to expresse that which the mind conceived, as anie other bluall language. Gower bepar, ted this life Moutlic after the decease of his dere and louing freend Chaucer; to wit, in the yeare 1 402, being then come to great age, and blind for a certeine time before his death. He was burted in the thurth of faint Parie Dueries in Southwarke.

Pozeouer, Bugh Legat borne in Bertforoffire, and a monke of faint Albons , wate scholies bpon Architrenius of John Panuill, and also vpon Boes tius De consolatione, Roger Alington, chancello: of the buincrutie of Orford, a great forbiffer, an enimie to the doctrine of Wichliffe ; John Botrell, a logi, cian; Picholas Gotham, boine in a village of the fame name in Bertforofhire, a Dominike frier,firt proceeded matter of art in Drenford, and after going to paris, became the French kings confelloz, and 2 therefore hath beene of some taken to be a french man; John Lillethull, fo called of a monafferie in the well parties of this realine whereof he was go nernour; Walter Diffe, so called of a towne in Porfolke where he was borne, firft a Carmelite frier profested in Portuid, and after going to Camp bridge, he there proceeded doctor, he was also confesfor to the duke of Lancaster, and to his wife the duchelle Confrance, & a great letter forth of pope Ur. bans cause against the other popes that were by him 30 and those of his faction named the antipapes; Thomas spaldon, to called of the towne of that name in Eller ichere be was borne : John Coo, descended out of Wales by linage, and borne in Herefordihire, a Franciscane frier.

ADDE to the forenamed, Picholas Fakingham, bogne in Pogfolke, a greie frier , proceeded doctor in Drenford, a great dinine, and an ercellent thilofo, ther, prouinciall of his order here in England; Laurence Bolbecke, a monke of Hamfie, well fene in 4 the Debaue tong, and waste thereof a dictionarie; John Colton, archbithop of Ardmach; John Barrie, so called of a village in Poskeshire where he was borne , a Carmelite of Doncafter ; Kichard Chefer borne in Porfolke, a diuine, and an Auguffine frier in Pormich; John Lathburie, a Franciscane frier of Reading; Pitholas Pout; Richard Scrope bio ther to William Scrope , logo treasuroz of England, fludied in Cambridge, and proceeded there doctor of both the lawes, became an advocat in the court 5 of Rome, and afferwards was advanced to the goucrnement of the fæ of Couentrie and Lichfield, and at length was removed from thence, and made archbilhop of Porke, he wrote an invective again & king Penrie, and at length loft his head, as before pe haue heard; John Wrotham, a Carmelite frier of London, and after made warden of an house of his order in Calis.

Furthermoze, John Colbie, a Carmelite frier of Porwid; William Thorpe a northerne man borne, 60 Langton , a Carmelite ; Kobert Wantom a and Andent in Drenford, an ercellent dinine, and an earnest follower of that famous clearke John Mic-Ads and mos kliffe, a notable preacher of the word, and expressing ments of John his doctrine no leffe in trade of life, than in speech, he was at length apprehended by commandement of the archbishop of Canturburie Domas Arundell, and committed to pulon in Saltwood caffell, where at length he died; Stephan Patrington, bome in Dorkefhire, a frier Carnelite, proninciall of his are Der through England, of which bood there were at that scason 1500 within this land, he was buspop of faint Dautos , and confello: to king Benrie the fift, about the fift years of those reigne he occeased; ko. bert Palcall,a Carmelite frier of Ludlow, confesso, also to the said h. who made him buthop of thereford; Reginalo Langham, a frier minoz of Porwich: Ac tonus Donnnicanus; Thomas Palmer, warden of the Blacke friers within the citie of L ondon; Bofton of Buric, a monke of the abbeie of Burie in Suffolke, wrote a catalog of all the writers of the church, and other treatiles.

Pozeouer, Thomas Pewerell,a frier Carmelite. borne in Suffolke, he was advanced to the fee of Offozie in Ireland by Kichard the fecond, and affer by pope Boniface the ninth remoued to Landaffe in Wales, and from thence called by Denrie the fourth, with consent of pope Gregorie the twelfe, to go uerne the fee of Wlozcester, and so continued bishop of that citie, untill he ended his life in the yeare of our Lozd 1418, which was about the firt years of the reigne of king Benrie the fift; John Purueie, an ercellent binine, proceded mafter of art in Dren ford, he was apprehended for such doctrine as he soe main taught, contrarte to the opinances of the church of Fox, mu Rome, and was at length compelled by Thomas backed bu Arundell, archbishop of Canturburie, to recant at ments, Paules croffe feuen speciall articles, he wrote ob uerle treatiles, & was the fecond time committed to pation in king Penrie the fift his dates , by Benrie Chichleie, that fucceded Arundell in gouernement of the church of Canturburie; William Holme, a greie frier (and a good pplician for curing difeales of the bodie, what foener his phylicke was for the foule) he lived untill Penrie the fift his daies, and deceals fed about the fourth years of his reigne; Aicholas Baiard, a blacke frier, a bodos of bininitie profelled at Drenford; Thomas Rudburne, archdeacon of Snoburie, and bithop of faint Danies in Wales, fuccebing after Stechan Patrington, he wiotea chronicle, and certeine epittles (as Iohn Bale noteth.)

Finallie and to conclude, Picholas Killon, tho being fore græned in mind, as diverte other in thole dates, to confider what inconvenience redounded to the church, by reason of the Arife and brailing among the prelats for the acknowleging of a lawfull pope, tivo or three fill contending for that dignitie, wrote a boke,intituled De tollendo schismate; John Malter,an ercellent mathematician, being firft brought bpof a Scholer in the college of Wilincheller, and after fiv died at Drenford; Thomas of Dewmarket, taking that furname of the towne in Cambridgeshire where he was borne, he for his worthinelle (as was thought) was made bilhop of Careleill, well fene both in other sciences, and also in divinitie; William Auger a Franciscane frier, of an house of that order in Balogewater ; Peter Kullell a graie frier, and of his order the prouinctall here in England; John monke of Cernelie in Porfetthire, wrote a boke in verle, of the oxiginal and lignification of words; William Porton, a Franciscane frier of Court trie ; Bugh Sueth, a blacke frier, and a great put ther; Richard Folhama monke of Polwich; 130, bert Wimbeldon, a fingular divine, and an ercellent Jas and preacher, as appeareth by the fermon which he made numers opon this tert Redderationem villications tua.

Thus farre Henrie Plantagenet sonne to Iohn of Gaunt duke of Lancaster.

Henric